Last spring I was requested to visit a little child in a family of the name of Ng, who are well known to be one of the wealthiest in Ningpo. The father afterwards appeared to be exceedingly grateful for the recovery of the child, and called at my house, followed by a servant carrying his master's full dress cap and robes, in which, on coming into the house, he arrayed himself, and insisted on bowing down and knocking his head on the floor to express his thanks. The children of the family also came to call, and the father sent his card, to beg the physician's acceptance of a very beautiful and costly pair of hanging scrolls, upon which he had caused to be written some verses of a very flattering character. He has since been a frequent visitor, and has shown a desire to acquire a knowledge of our manners and customs, geography, history, and religion. Although we cannot say that the interest he has shown to acquire a knowledge of the "religion of Jesus," has arisen from anything more than an intelligent curiosity; yet, since with God all things are possible, may we not hope and pray that he may yet be brought to seek not merely a speculative, but a spiritual and experimental knowledge of the "only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he has sent."

Visiting an epileptic patient—Chinese mode of treating diseases of this kind.

I was also sent for to visit a young man in another wealthy family, named Liu, who had been for a long time suffering from occasional epileptic attacks, which latterly had become so frequent as to alarm his friends. On going to the house, I found a number of persons in the dress of Táu-ist priests, going through their incantations, and learned that it had been suggested to the family, that possibly the young man's sufferings were owing to the agency of evil spirits, and that these exorcists had been called in to drive away the demons. The chanting of the Táu-ists and the beating of gongs, cymbals, drums, &c., not being favourable to an extended argument on the subject, I merely remarked that "on believers in Jesus, evil spirits had no power;" and after having prescribed for the patient, and left a few tracts for the family, I took my leave. The next day I heard that the young man had absconded from his father's house, without telling any one where he was going; but as the family did not seem unduly anxious about him, they, doubtless, were able to surmise his whereabouts. His idea was, that by thus absconding while the attention of the demons was being diverted by the Tâu-ists, he might escape from his tormentors to some place where they could not find him. Some three weeks after this he returned home, apparently in better health; but as I have not since visited the family, I do not know whether they attribute his improved health to the medicines administered, or to his flight.

These cases are cited, not because we think it of more importance to seek the acquaintance of the rich and noble, than of the poor and lowly, but as showing that there are exceptions (and numerous ones) to the rule, that the rich and noble are too proud to accept gratuitous assistance from a foreign physician. Moreover, when such persons feel compelled to call in the aid of the foreign physician, they feel constrained to treat him with great courtesy and attention, and thus an opportunity is afforded him of visiting their families, and imparting religious truth to some who would feel it too great a sacrifice of dignity for them to come to our chapels to listen or inquire.

Poisoning by opium.

Cases of poisoning by opium have, as in former years, very frequently occurred under our notice, although the applications for help have been in more than one-third of the cases too late—some indeed after death had actually taken place, from an exaggerated report that some who were dead had already been restored to life by the foreign physicians. Opium, justly styled "the bane of China," is now so readily accessible in every village and hamlet, that nine-tenths of the suicides committed in this neighbourhood are by means of opium. A few cases have also been prescribed for, in which persons have attempted suicide by taking large quantities of the liquor which drips from salt while it is drying, and which the Chinese think is capable of destroying life. No fatal cases from this cause have, however, come under my own observation.

Suicide common—various motives which lead to it.

The usual motives for committing suicide among the Chinese are either embarrassment in business, losses by gambling, vexation from quarrelling, or a revengeful desire to bring difficulties upon those who had given offence. In one case in which I was sent for, a brother and sister had a quarrel with a certain rich man, and to be revenged upon him, it was agreed by the former that the brother, having taken a sufficient dose of opium to poison himself, should go to the rich man's house and die there, and that the sister should then collect a mob of friends and relatives, and going to the rich man's house, destroy his furniture, &c., and compel him to pay to the dead man's family a large sum, as hush-money. Incredible as it may appear, the plan was carried out in every particular to my personal knowledge. The man who took the opium was already dead in his enemy's house before I could reach the place, and I met on the way his family and friends going to break up and destroy the furniture. In another case which came to my knowledge, a man took opium, and getting into a sedan, ordered the bearers to carry him to the house of his enemy; but some delay occurring, the poison began to show its effects before they arrived there, and the bearers finding what was the state of things, and fearing to be accused or involved in some way as accessories, put down the sedan in the street, and fled. The corpse of the misguided wretch remained for several days a hideous spectacle to the passers-by, until it was removed by order of the local authorities.

A Tract on the evils of using opium.

In consequence of the large number of opium-smokers applying to be cured, and the little satisfaction derived from treating them, since eight out of ten cases relapsed after a few months into their old habits, unable to resist the temptation so constantly presented to them in every direction, we were induced to print a small tract, showing the evil effects, physical and moral, of opium, with medical directions for preventing or remedying its disastrous effects upon the system. This tract has been much sought after by the Chinese, and, it is hoped, will be productive of good. Something of the kind has been much needed. Opium pipes may be met with in the houses of all ranks and conditions. Almost all the Chinese large commercial houses keep the drug, and the implements requisite for smoking, ready for any of their customers from a distance, who may have contracted the habit. When once the habit is contracted, the poor victim is no longer his own master. It matters not where he is, or how pressing his business, when the hour arrives, he must leave all for the fatal pipe. If he is compelled to delay even for a short time, most distressing symptoms come on, and I have known death to result in many cases from a sudden stoppage of the habit. Even after, by a course of tonics, astringents, and other remedies, the patient has been cured, the sight of the pipe, or the smell of the fatal drug, awakens a longing almost impossible to resist, and which, if but once indulged in, fixes the habit again upon the infatuated wretch with as strong a hold as ever.

Preaching to the people who attend the dispensaries.

At the hospital at Ningpo, the physician's time and strength being wholly taken up in attending to the bodily wants of the patients, the Rev. Mr. Quarterman has attended in the mornings to preach to the assembled patients, as in former years. Latterly, Mr. Wong, our aged native church member, has occasionally exhorted them, under Mr. Quarterman's supervision. In the month of April, a suitable building for a chapel and dispensary having been obtained and fitted up in an advantageous situation within the walls of Chinhai, the Rev. S. N. Martin and myself visited that place once every week until the first part of July, since which time one of the other brethren in turn has generally accompanied me. As was the case two years ago, when the experiment of a dispensary at Chinhai was first tried, we have been obliged often to leave home at midnight, in order to avail ourselves of the tide. Sometimes, owing to unfavourable winds or violent storms, Mr. Martin and myself were obliged to walk a great part of the way; and once, after walking until a late hour in a dark and stormy night, we were glad to avail ourselves of the proffered hospitality of the Chinese, and take refuge for the night in a rice-shop, where the inmates kindly made up a bed for our accommodation.

More help needed.

The numbers in attendance at the chapel and dispensary at Chinhai, have been such as greatly to encourage us, and we most earnestly hope that the Board may soon have it in their power to send us such reinforcements as will enable us permanently to occupy this interesting field of labour. The number of patients prescribed for at Ningpo and Chinhai has amounted to nearly six thousand two hundred. Many interesting cases have been treated at the latter place, among whom were several persons restored, by the blessing of God, from blindness (in one case total, in the others, nearly so) to sight. Five Chinese sailors, wounded by pirates, in an encounter in which two of their fellow seamen were killed, were visited at a large village near Chinhai. One of them had been shot through the lungs, and otherwise so seriously wounded that no encouragement could be given to his friends to hope for his recovery. From the other four, I extracted several balls, and having dressed their wounds, was obliged to leave them among their own friends. Although unable to visit them again, I sent them from time to time suitable remedies, and soon afterward received a visit from one of them, who informed me that with the exception of the one first mentioned, who died the day after I saw him, they had all recovered.

The death of an interesting and valuable Chinese.

It is with a feeling of more than ordinary sadness that I here record the death of Zi sin-sang, who had been for many years an invaluable assistant in this department of the mission. He was a literary graduate of unusual talents and acquirements, and was first employed as a teacher by our brother, the late Rev. W. M. Lowrie, who refers to him in such high terms, (Memoir, p. 361.) Few Chinese have ever acquired so extensive a knowledge of the evidences and doctrines of Christianity, and few of the unconverted among them have been apparently so near the kingdom;—alas! that his unwillingness to sacrifice his literary standing, and meet the sneers of his friends, should have prevented him from coming out and professing Christ Jesus before men, in accordance with his evident and confessed convictions. In addition to his literary acquirements, his knowledge both of foreign and native medicine was such that his place will be difficult to supply. After a short illness, finding that his disease was likely to terminate fatally, he sent for me to his house, and requested me to pray for him. He professed his conviction of the truth of Christianity, and assented, when I pressed upon him the necessity of confessing his past shortcomings, and of himself applying to Jesus as the friend of sinners, able and willing to save to the uttermost all that come unto God by him. The death of one so long and so intimately connected with us, with so little encouragement to hope that his knowledge would prove a blessing, instead of a condemnation, at the day of judgment, is very saddening.

INDIA: ALLAHABAD MISSION.

NARRATIVE OF A VISIT TO FUTTEHPORE AND BANDA, BY REV. J. OWEN.

From Allahabad to Futtehpore we marched with the Lieutenant-Governor's camp, and at the request of the Governor I preached to all the Europeans in camp on the Sabbath. At Futtehpore, Mr. Colvin, the new Lieutenant-Governor, took a deep and kind interest in Gopeenâth's proceedings, presided at the examination of his school, and went all over his mission premises. In these visits he was accompanied by several ladies and gentlemen, all of whom expressed much pleasure in what they heard and saw.

From Futtehpore we went, in four marches, to Bánda, preaching to as many villages as practicable on the way. At Bánda we found Paul's school in an encouraging state. We began with ten boys on the 7th of November, and there are now about a hundred and twenty in attendance. A good school-house, and dwelling houses for Paul and Melancthon are greatly needed. Much of my time while in Bánda, besides preaching in the city, was occupied in making both temporary and permanent arrangements for the branch mission. The whole of its expenses will, I trust, be defrayed from local funds. Several of our European friends at Bánda have come forward in a very liberal way for its support.

From Bánda we went, in three marches, to Hauneerpore, preaching in nearly all the villages on the way. Both in this and the former part of our journey, I found several who remembered my last year's visit. At Hauneerpore I was much interested in the school recently established by the officiating magistrate and collector of that district. Twice I examined it privately, and on the 2d of January was invited to preside at a public examination, and distribute the prizes furnished at the expense of Mr. Spankie, the founder of the school. About forty-eight boys attend the school, nearly all of whom pay more or less for their schooling—a good principle, which I would like to see extensively carried into practice in this country. Though the expenses of the school are entirely defrayed from local funds, Mr. Spankie is anxious to make over the entire superintendence of it to us, and has made an official application to our mission to this effect. This will open a wide and effectual door for our mission to extend its influence into these parts. The school is at present kept in an old Court-House, which is admirably adapted for a mission carried on by native agency. It is a long building, of substantial masonry, with large rooms at each end, and many smaller rooms between. One end would answer us at present, for school purposes, the other end for a chapel, and the rooms between could be occupied by the teachers and their families. It could probably be all purchased for 300 or 400 rs., and 155 rs. were subscribed for this purpose before I left Hauneerpore.

From this place we went, in three marches, to Calpee, which I also visited last year. We preached in the villages on the way, and several times to large audiences in this large city. It is very desirable to occupy this by native agency, but the time does not appear to have come for doing so from local funds.

From this city I desired to proceed to Cracc, at present the capital of the large state of Jalaun, which has recently come under British rule. I knew the Superintendent, and had heard some facts which made me very anxious to visit that place. But at Calpee I met the Superintendent, accompanying the Commander-in-Chief's camp, and learned that he could not return to his station for a long time. We therefore turned our course towards Banda, proceeding, however, by a circuitous route. Our friend the magistrate of Hauneerpore, who kindly accompanied us to Calpee, is with us in this part of our journey, and through his kind aid we enjoy many facilities for becoming acquainted with this part of the country which we could not otherwise have. This is entirely new ground. No missionary, I am confident, has ever been through here before. Indeed, some parts of it have only recently come under British rule. Of this portion of the journey I hope, therefore, before long to send you a more particular account.

INDIA: AGRA MISSION.

THE SHRINE OF KALI AT CALCUTTA.

One morning, a minister of the Scotch congregation at Calcutta, and Mr. Yule, one of their missionaries, went with a gentleman from Glasgow and me, to see this celebrated shrine. It is about three miles below the main part of Calcutta, not on the bank of the Hoogly, [the branch of the Ganges on which Calcutta stands,] but two or three hundred yards from a smaller stream, that leaves the Hoogly above, and returns to it again below. On arriving in the neighbourhood, we found two shops for the sale of kids, which are daily offered to the idol in considerable numbers—on some particular occasions, very many indeed are offered. In each of these sheds were collected as many as a hundred of the pretty little animals. Some had their legs tied together, ready to be carried to the temple, and several customers were chaffering for them.

When we arrived at the temple, we were told that we were too early; the goddess had but just waked up, and the Brahmans were dressing her. This ceremony is performed every morning. We therefore went down to the bathing-place on the creek, and spent half an hour in talking to the people there. Mr. Yule speaks Bengali, and had a few around him. I tried my Hindustani, and found that several understood me very well; and we had a conversation of some length, suggested by the low associations of the place, as to the degradation produced by idolatry, compared with the elevating and purifying influences of Christianity.

After this, we went back through the street that leads straight from the temple to the creek, and found that the greater part of it was lined with little worship-shops—temples we cannot call them, as they are but sheds and niches, barely large enough to hold an idol and its priest. Here were many of the Hindu pantheon—Krishna and his mistress, Jagatnáth, Bhairú, and many others. The idols are placed against the back of the niches on a shelf, and surrounded by hosts of small brass idols, Shálikrán stones, &c. The people who pass along this street for purposes of worship, frequently offer small sums of copper or cowries to their favourite gods, and thus many families of Brahmans and devotees are supported, in addition to the great revenues of the main temple.

Description of the goddess Káli, her dress, habits, and bloody disposition.

On our return, we found that the toilet of the idol was finished, and her door was open. The image bears but a slight resemblance to the human figure. It is large, in a sitting posture, enveloped in gay broadcloth, with wreaths of flowers. The usual necklace of skulls and human head in one of her hands were concealed by the clothing, probably because the attendants knew we were coming to look at her. Her tongue hangs out of her open mouth about eight or nine inches, and was gilded, though usually it is painted red. The temple is a small building, of not more than twelve feet square inside, placed at one end of a square court. In the middle of the court is a much larger and modern building, of Grecian architecture, consisting of a platform as high as the floor of the temple, numerous pillars, and a roof. The space between this and the temple a man can easily stride across. This is for the accommodation of worshippers, who look on while the heads of victims are placed before the idol. At the other end of the Grecian building, on the bare ground, is the place where the victims are killed. Two stakes are driven into the ground very near each other, sloping outwards so as to form something like the letter V. In this figure the neck of the victim is pressed down and held by one man, while another cuts off the head with a sword. It is considered a good omen if this is accomplished by one clean blow, and great care is taken to do so. There were two or three pairs of stakes; and though the soft earth around them had been freshly arranged since the butcherings of the day before, and the sacrifices of this day had not yet commenced, yet there was a sickening odour of blood, that made us take only a short look around the place. Around the court are small rooms for the accommodation of the priests, into which they take worshippers, for instruction and fleecing.

While looking about the place, we had an argument of some length with the priests and people. They confessed that the goddess is sanguinary—"lohú ki bhúkhi—hungry for blood." They expressly confessed that the higher the nature of the being sacrificed, the better she likes the blood: if a man be offered by any one, she will be pleased with the offerer for ten thousand years; and if one cuts his own throat for her sake, he secures her favour for the same period. This has happened since we reached Calcutta; a man cut his throat, in a frenzy of moody devotion, in the cloisters of the court. Nobody has any doubt that the priests advised and incited him to do so; but there is no proof to bring it home to them. It is proposed in Calcutta to petition the government for a law making such shrines liable to pay a deodand when human life is thus sacrificed at them. This would be right. Such occurrences bring great profit to the temple. After one there is always a great rush of worshippers, drawn by the temporary terrible celebrity and prestige gained by the goddess from such a proof of devotion. This income might justly be forfeited to some hospital as a deodand. Now it affords a strong inducement to the priests to lead on some melancholy and burdened sinner to murder himself. About twelve years ago, one of the Brahmans, having a goat to offer, called a poor man, who was near by, to hold the animal. While he was stooping down to hold the goat's head sufficiently low, the Brahman cut his head off at a single blow, and coolly picked it up, and placed it before the idol. The Brahman had supposed there were no witnesses of the act; but there happened to be two women just going in as he was carrying the head of the man across the court. They ran away and told what they had seen. The police arrested the Brahman. The women would have declined to give evidence against the Brahman if they could; but, after having let the thing out, in their sudden perturbation, they were not allowed to be influenced by the Brahmans. On his trial, the murderer professed that it was all a mistake; that he thought he was cutting off the goat's head; and that he believed the goddess made him see the man's neck in the place of the goat's. This plea did not serve him, and he was hanged.

I have recently read an account of the trial of a native for murder before one of the criminal courts. It seems that he was at a special season of the worship of Káli, and happened to be wearing a sword. The sanguinary rites, and the character of the goddess, impressing the man's mind, he began to imagine that a great sacrifice would be a fine thing, and accordingly, he fell upon the assembled company with his sword, and killed two men outright, and wounded three others. The evidence showed the man to be of weak intellect, and excitable temperament, but not insane. However, the presiding judge thought that the murder did not arise from personal malice, and therefore he sentenced the man to imprisonment for life, instead of hanging.

Hook-Swinging, and other atrocious practices connected with the worship of the goddess.

Mr. Yule tells me that at the hook-swinging festival, held at this temple of Káli once every year, beside those that are swung, he has seen as many as two hundred men with iron or wooden rods through their tongues, or their arms, or their sides, sawing them back and forward.

The worship of this goddess presents the most sickening and heart-rending view of Hindúism. It is very common in the North-West Provinces, the scene of our missions, though it is not there connected with such horrible barbarities as here. Yet I have there seen a man cut off a piece of his own tongue to offer to Káli. And she is the popular goddess of all the low and ignorant. A common shout of encouragement, when lifting or pulling is being done, is, "Victory to the honourable mother Káli!" and sometimes, to add great emphasis to it, they add, "of Calcutta." Her little shrines, at which any low fellow can officiate, are everywhere seen. Professional murderers and robbers have her for their patroness. Considering her character and influence, it is no wonder that murder is held by most of the people to be a small crime. In view of these things, how can any one have the face to talk about the "mild Hindús?" Effeminate they are, to a great extent; and they do not present the first example in the world's history of effeminacy being cruel. How long will it take for such representations as I have now given, and which are not exaggerated in the very least, to persuade all the members of our Church that "the dark places of the earth are the habitations of cruelty" in very deed? How long before they, who "are at ease in Zion," shall have their pity excited, and begin to act as if they felt?

JOSEPH WARREN.

INDIA: LODIANA MISSION.

COW KILLING IN AMBALA.

The Hindus and Mohammedans in Ambálá have recently been quarrelling a great deal among themselves. When they come to sit in judgment upon Christ and his doctrines, they are always made friends, like Herod and Pilate, being bound together by the knot of enmity to Christianity. But among themselves, there are constant bickerings and heart-burnings. A week or two ago, the whole city was in an uproar on the subject of beef. The Hindus, according to their religion, consider the cow a sacred animal. They reverence the cow as a mother, and worship her as a deity. In a word, the cow is a God. Hence to kill a cow is an unpardonable enormity. It is a crime worse than murder—a pollution of the earth—a disgrace to their religion. But the Mohammedans have no such scruples. They are almost as fond of beef as Englishmen are. And they respect the sanctity of the Hindu Apis just about as little as John Bull does. They are also fond of rupees. Hence they are ever ready to fill their pockets, and satisfy an old grudge and their belly at the same time. They are the butchers of India in more senses than one. Wherever there is any demand, and they have the power, there they are ready to furnish beef. The number of Englishmen in this country increases the consumption, and so there is a ready market at every station. There is a large European force stationed near Ambálá, and there is butchering and beef-eating going on every day within the bounds of cantonments. But hitherto, the Hindus, pleading immemorial usage, have prevailed upon government to prevent all beef-killing within the bounds of the city. The Mohammedans have always been sore and restless under this restriction. So, recently, when a new Deputy Commissioner was appointed to this district, the Mohammedans succeeded in obtaining permission to kill within the limits of the city. Immediately there was a great uproar. Old sores were opened; slumbering fires were roused. The Hindus, who are the principal shop-keepers, closed their shops to the Mohammedans, and cut off the comforts and necessaries of life from them. They bound themselves under oath and penalty not to sell to any of the followers of Islamism. The latter endeavoured to retaliate in every possible way. They dismissed all their Hindu servants, and killed the cow for very spite. All friendly dealings and intercourse were interrupted. The wide-spread enmity manifested itself in petty squabbles among the boys in our school. A Mohammedan servant could not obtain anything for us from Hindu shops, and the native Christians had to declare solemnly that they were not Mohammedans before they could obtain any thing. Thus on both sides men's hearts were hot, and things were ready for an outburst. In the mean time, complaints had been sent up to Government from both parties, and the Commissioner came to settle the dispute. He came to the city with a small guard, and was soon surrounded by hundreds of Hindus and Mohammedans, some crying one thing, and some crying another; some supplicating that the slaughter of their gods might be stopped, some demanding the privilege of slaughtering beeves. The small guard of the officer was not sufficient to keep off the multitude, and so they pressed upon the great man's carriage, and actually blocked up the way. In vain he tried to beat them off with his whip. They even caught the lash and the bridles of the horses. Seeing that nothing could be done in the midst of so much noise and confusion, he prudently withheld any decision, and with difficulty extricating himself from the crowd, retired. In the mean time, the killing of cows within the boundaries of the city has been suspended, and the whole case has been referred to the higher authorities. The shops are again opened, and apparently friendly dealings resumed; but the enmity still festers underneath. Thus we see these people absorbed with trifles lighter than air, and seriously engaging soul and body in these puerile absurdities, while they will not lend a thought to subjects of infinite magnitude and eternal importance, drawn from the word of God, which to them is foolishness. May the Church be more and more enabled to appreciate the difficulties with which we must contend, and be stirred up to use the remedies.

J. H. O.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE KARENS.

There are many tribes about which we knew little or nothing until the missionaries found them out, and brought them under the notice of Christians. This is the case with the Karens. No doubt our readers have heard their name before now; but it is only from those who have laboured to teach, and bless, and save them. They live in Burmah, and in places near that country; but where they came from, and what was their early history, cannot now be found out. In their character and habits they are something like the gypsies. They wander about the country in small companies; their food is the wild fruit they find in the woods, and their drink, the sparkling stream from the hills. When they wish to stay in one place for a time, they look out for a suitable piece of ground; then they set fire to the trees and bushes that cover it, and when the spot is cleared in this way, they build their huts upon it. They like, when they can, to live near a lake or a river; but they have few wants, and they are easily supplied. If they need a boat or a canoe, the men, like the ancient Britons, cut down a tree, and hew it out into the proper shape. In a similar way they make wooden baskets, and other useful articles. The women, too, have enough work, for they make a kind of cotton cloth for themselves and their children. Their chief food, besides wild fruits, is rice.

They are a meek and peaceful race, and are easily deceived. I am sorry to say they are also very dirty and lazy; but in some other respects they are better than many who live in Christian countries. Unlike the other inhabitants of Burmah, and the heathen in general, they have some notion of a Great Being who governs the world; but this truth is mixed with much that is foolish and superstitious. Soon after the first Burmese Missionary came to Rangoon, his attention was called to these people. He was surprised to see small parties of strange, wild-looking men, from time to time straggle past his house. He was told they were Karens; that they were more numerous than any other tribe in the neighbourhood, and as little likely to be tamed as the wild cows of the mountains. He was also told that they did not like to meet with other men; that they seldom came into a town except they were forced to do so; and that any attempt to do them good would be of no use whatever. This was the opinion even of the Christian Burmese. But as Dr. Judson was of a different opinion, and wished to instruct them, his friends began to think whether this might not be done; and one of them finding, during the war of the Burmese and the English, a poor Karen bond-servant in Rangoon, paid his debt, and thus became, according to the custom of the country, his master for a time. When the war was over, this stranger was brought to the missionaries and taught the religion of Jesus. After a time he felt the power of religion in his heart, and he became a faithful and useful teacher to his countrymen, who heard with wonder and with great attention.

Perhaps you may like to know a little of this man's early history. His name is a strange one: it is Ro-thah-byu. He was born about the year 1778, at a village called Ootwaw. He lived with his father and mother until he was fifteen years old, and was then, from his own account, a wicked and disobedient boy. At length he left his parents, and became both a robber and a murderer. How many of his fellow men he had murdered he did not himself know, but they were more than thirty. His natural temper was very bad. After the Burmese war, he was employed in Mr. Hough's service. There some religious impressions were made on his mind, and he ever remembered the good missionary through whom he received them with much love. Ro-thah-byu followed Mr. Judson to Amherst, where Ro Shway-boy paid for him a small debt, and then took him into his family. For a long time, however, truth made no impression upon his mind; and as Ro Shway-boy began to fear that he could do him no good, and finding that his moral character was very bad, he thought he could no longer keep him in his family. Mr. Judson then offered to clear off the debt if he could maintain himself. Soon after this time he began to pay more attention to religious instruction; and though his temper was often very violent, it was not long before he began to show some sorrow for sin, and a desire to love the Saviour. Still his mind was very dark, and his violent temper would quite discourage him, and prevent his praying to God. After some months, however, he became more watchful over his temper, and gave proof that his heart was really changed. He publicly professed the religion of Jesus, and sat down at the table of the Lord.

Such is the history of this Karen up to the time of his conversion. We will now give you some instances of his usefulness among his countrymen after this great change; for, like other Christians, having himself felt the worth of his soul and his Saviour, he wished very much that others should feel the same. He therefore left his home, and went across some high mountains a long way off; but the rain had been so heavy, and the waters covered so much of the land, that he was forced to give up the journey. But he did not like to go home again without doing some good; he therefore turned aside to a small village, where some Karens lived. Here he preached and explained the word of God. All the people were very attentive, and one man determined at once to become a Christian, and to return with Ro-thah-byu to see the missionary. This man was brother to the chief of the place where he lived, and he became a true Christian, and a very useful one. But he was not the only one in that village who became a follower of Christ. Nearly all the people followed his example. Ro-thah-byu then visited a large town called Tavoy; here he found one of his countrymen, a young man, in a temple, where he had been without food for two days, hoping by this to get a great reward in a future state. Ro-thah-byu told him of the folly of what he was doing, and invited him to the missionary's house. Accordingly he went, and paid serious attention to Christian instruction. After learning much about the way of salvation, he took a Christian book, and went back to his native forest. Some time passed away, when this young Karen again came to the missionary, bringing with him three of his relations, who wished to be taught the religion of Jesus. He then went to the room in which Ro-thah-byu was sitting, and was with him till near midnight talking about the gospel. Early the next morning the conversation on the same subject was begun again. This young man said he wished very much to live with the missionary for ten or twelve years, that he might know fully about God and Christ, and he resolved no longer to worship heaps of brick, but to know and serve the ever-living and true God.

Ro-thah-byu was constantly thinking how he could do good to souls, and spread the gospel of Jesus Christ. Many were the journeys he took; and often, when tired and almost worn out with labour, instead of lying down to rest, he would seek out some of the natives, and tell them of the way of salvation. Perhaps you would like to hear one of his sermons. He had been describing the folly of worldly things and worldly tempers, and then went on to say, "A worldly man is never satisfied with what he has. Let me have more houses, more lands, more buffaloes, more slaves, more clothes, more wives, more children, more gold and silver, more rice, more boats and vessels. Let me be a rich man. This is his language. He thinks of nothing so much as getting worldly goods. Of God and religion he is quite unmindful. But watch that man. On a sudden his breath stops, and he finds himself without anything he once so much loved. Astonished, he exclaims, 'Where are my slaves? Where are my buffaloes? I cannot find one of them. Where is my home? and where are my chests of money? What has become of all the rice I laid up in store? Where are all my fine clothes that cost me so much? I can find none of them. I am lonely and poor indeed. I have nothing. But what is this? He then told his hearers of the sufferings of the lost soul, and spoke of the rich man as mourning in this way: "Oh, what a fool I have been! I neglected God, the only Saviour, and sought only worldly goods, and now I am undone. All this world is misery. Sickness and pain, wars and slaughter, old age and death, are on every hand. But, listen! God speaks from on high, 'Children, why take ye delight, and seek happiness in that low village, the world, where so many thickets of briars and thorns grow? Look up to me; I will deliver you, and give you rest, where you shall be for ever blessed and happy.'" While he was preaching, every eye was fixed on him, and every ear was attentive.

God was pleased to bless the words he spoke to many souls. One respectable man, a Sankai, said he formerly was a great drunkard, but had not taken a drop for months past—not since he first heard of Jesus from Ro-thah-byu. The people were delighted to read the tracts he gave them, which led them to pray, and ask what they must do to enter heaven. One of these Karens says, that not long since he was tempted by a neighbour and his wife to join them in their worship on the feeding of gnats, but he refused, saying that he meant to worship Jesus Christ to the end of his life. Perhaps you do not know, my dear young readers, that gnats are thought to be greater than men—but not so great as the god Brahma;—they are said to live in the heavens, and to have power over some parts of the earth and sky. Do you not pity these poor ignorant heathen; and will you not pray for them, that they may see how foolish it is to feed and worship gnats?

In 1837 Ro-thah-byu visited the Christian villages around the Karen jungle, where he had formerly preached with great success. He remained there about six months, but being afflicted with rheumatism and blindness, he was unable to take a difficult journey. Another reason why he could not preach to those who were still ignorant of God was, that the Burmese government had become angry that so many Karens followed a new and foreign religion. The Christians were put in prison, were fined in large sums of money, and suffered persecution in different ways. The land was filled with men who were sent out and paid by the officers to find where the Christians lived. Under such circumstances, it is no wonder that Ro-thah-byu felt it better for him to dwell quietly among the Christians. As his health was not any better, and a war was expected between the English and the Burmese, he returned to Maulmain, where he remained till 1840, when he arrived at Sandoway, and began teaching a class of boys. But the small-pox broke out, and he was obliged to leave, and dwell in a village close by. Here he was the means of leading many of the people to Jesus. Whilst at this place, in the midst of his work, the summons came for him to die. His rheumatic complaint had become distressing, disease settled on his lungs, and he seemed quite aware that he was near his grave. He was perfectly willing to die, he had no fears, but "as it pleases God," seemed to be the state of his mind. To the last he had not an anxious thought as to his future state, but his usual answer to the missionary was, "Teacher! God will preserve me." Thus died Ro-thah-byu; for if ever a man hated idolatry and loved the Saviour, he did. And it was his untiring love for the souls of his fellow-countrymen that led him to seize every opportunity for speaking to them, that they might be saved. Whole nights did he spend in prayer to God. Is it then wonderful that he should be honoured in bringing so many souls to Jesus? "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord."—Juvenile Missionary Magazine.

CHINA.

There are 360,000,000 of people in China. One-half the heathen world, one-third of the human family live in China. The land is crowded with inhabitants. Wherever you go, it is filled with large villages, thickly-peopled districts, or great and splendid cities. 360,000,000 of people! Let them form one great, long, and splendid procession, and stand and watch them pass. You cannot see the end of the procession. Wait! wait! wait! On, on they come—six every minute; hour goes after hour, still on, on they come! How long will it be before they are passed? One hundred and fifty years!—Ibid.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN APRIL, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 2d ch mo con 8, less 2 for Foreign Missionary, ladies' soc 6; Antrim ch 20. Pby of Troy—Waterford ch, of which 13 66 from Sab sch, to con Rev L H LEE, Mrs LEE, Mrs HARVEY B SCOTT, Mrs G W EDDY, Mrs C ELLIS, and Miss ELIZABETH G STEWART 1 m's 273 36. Pby of Albany—Northville ch 2 307 36

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Wyoming—Tuscarora ch 5; Warsaw ch 6. Pby of Michigan—Fremont ch 3; Orion ch 2. Pby of Rochester City—Port Byron ch, ladies miss soc 12, Sab sch 4; Penfield ch 10 42 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Goshen ch 175 59, Dr JOHN S CRANE, to con himself 1 m 30, Sab sch, to ed Cath. Jessie McCartee and John S Crane 50; Hopewell ch 36 31; Hamptonburg ch 40; Florida ch mo con 5. Pby of North River—Wappinger's Falls ch mo con 5, Sab sch 1. Pby of Bedford—South Greenburg ch 20; South East ch 26; Croton Falls ch 50, Sab sch to ed Henry Thos Lee 12 50; Mt Kisco ch mo con 6; White Plains ch 40; Poundridge ch to con Rev DAVID IRVING 1 m 45 03. Pby of New York—New York 1st ch mo con 124 15, Sab sch to ed W W Phillips at Canton 6 25, teachers to ed James Donaldson and Sarah C Dow among the Otoes and Omahas 12 50, young ladies to ed Mary K Lowrie at Canton 6 25, to ed girl in Mrs Happer's school 6 25, Miss Jaudon's class to ed Fanny Phillips 6 25, inft Sab sch to ed Walter Lowrie at Spencer Academy 6 25; Williamsburgh ch mo con 43 44; Fifth Avenue and 19th st ch mo con 34 09; Forty-second st ch mo con 13 26; Madison av ch mo con 20, less 8 33 for Foreign Missionary; Brooklyn 1st ch mo con 7 72; Grand st ch 208 50; Brooklyn Central ch 42 75; Jersey City 1st ch 474 97, less 5 for Foreign Missionary, Sab sch to ed David Henderson and Elizabeth G Southmayd 50; Fifteenth st ch mo con 16; Yorkville ch mo con 12 64, less 4 for Foreign Missionary; Nyack ch 13 53; Rutgers st ch fem miss assoc 51 40; Chelsea ch mo con 23, a member 25, Sab sch for sup of Bazar school at Allahabad 20. 2*d Pby of New York*—West Farms ch 13 55, less 3 for Foreign Missionary; Scotch ch, Samuel Cochran 100, John T Johnston 100, J B M Johnston 100; Canal st con mo ch 1 94; Sing Sing ch mo con 17, 2078 79

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Baskingridge 109, less 9 for Foreign Missionary. Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch mo con 25 44, Sab sch to ed Archibald Alexander at Spencer Academy 16 23; Flanders ch 10; Chester ch 25; Mt Freedom ch 14 75. Pby of New Brunswick—Village ch Freehold 153 59; Princeton 1st ch 115; New Brunswick N J, Rev Dr Cogswell 25; Freehold ch 51 77; Millstone ch 8 30; Nottingham ch 21 88; Dutch Neck ch 21 34. Pby of West Jersey—Bridgeton 1st ch, by her father to con Miss CAROLINE B REEVES 1 m 30, Sab sch to ed S Beach Jones and Mary R Jones 50; Salem ch 31 25; Blackwoodtown ch 13 25; Cedarville ch mo con colls 44; Cape Island ch 12. Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch Sab sch to ed John M Sherrerd 7; Hackettstown, N J, Mrs Nancy Thompson for Jews 5; Hardwick ch 38 08; Stewartsville ch 49 23; Mansfield ch 30. Pby of Raritan—Clinton ch Sab sch 31 25; Milford ch 12. Pby of Luzerne—White Haven ch, of which 1 from Miss Mayby 3; Wyoming ch 30; Kingston ch 7. Pby of Burlington—Allentown ch 25 1006 36

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Kensington ch mo con 8 62, Sab sch 15 06; Spring Garden ch Sab sch for Agra High School 10; Crookville ch, of which 1 30 from Sab sch 6; Fourth ch mo con colls 50; Tenth ch ann coll in part 212 47, Rev Dr Engles 20, W A Porter 20, J McArthur, Jr 10, H Campbell 5, a member 12, mo con 50 93—in all 330 40, less 36 for Foreign Missionary. 2*d Pby of Philadelphia*—Bridesburg ch 17; Doylestown ch 72 76. Pby of New Castle—Lower West Nottingham ch 12 50; Wilmington 1st ch 28 38, fem benev soc to con Rev J LEIGHTON WILSON 1 m 43, juv miss soc 29 09. Pby of Donegal—Lancaster ch mo con colls 28 82, Sab sch 23 98. Pby of Baltimore—Balt 2d ch 84; Bridge st ch Georgetown 71 70; Washington F st ch youths' miss soc to ed James Laurie and Ninian Bannatyne 50; Balt Franklin st ch 50; Madison st ch 1 25; Frederick ch, of which 16 from ladies sew soc 46 50; Belle Air ch, "a member" 4. Pby of Carlisle—Fayetteville ch 20 75; Shippensburg ch 67; Cumberland ch, Mrs McKaig to ed Linnie McKaig Beal 20; Big Spring ch Sab sch 7. Pby of Huntingdon—Pine Grove ch 30; Hollidaysburg ch 100; Lewistown ch ch 70 40. Pby of Northumberland—Williamsport ch 15; Bethel ch 8 25; Buffalo ch 66; Warrior Run ch, of which 30 to con JOHN MCKINNEY 1 m 50; Derry fem miss soc to con Miss JANE BOYD 1 m 33; Mahoning ch 100 1534 46

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Glade Run ch mo con 15 50, young ladies' miss soc 27 50; Donegal ch 10; Congruity ch mo con colls 19 89; Mechanicsburg ch 3; Rural Valley ch 8; East Union ch 3; Cherry Run ch 4. Pby of Redstone—McKeesport ch 50; Spring Hill ch 10; Round Hill ch 25 80; Uniontown ch of which 6 85 from Sab sch 53 33; Brownsville ch 4 12; New Providence ch 20. Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 1st ch 365 83, less 15 for Foreign Missionary; Second ch mo con 30 09; Fifth ch 15 32; Chartiers ch 21 12; East Liberty ch 29 12, mo con 10 28, Sab sch 7 24; Mingo ch 27 80; Racoon ch 62; Bethel ch ladies' for miss soc 47 42; Sharon ch 11 75; Sewickly ch 55; Valley ch 5; Centre ch "a friend of missions" 3; Fairmount ch 12; Manchester ch 25 35. Pby of Alleghany—Harrisville ch 9. Pby of Beaver—Unity ch 14 12; West Middlesex ch 14 37; Pulaski ch fem miss soc 5. Pby of Erie—Sugar Grove ch mo con 4. Pby of Clarion—Leatherwood ch miss soc 11; Richland ch Sab sch 6 1027 95

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Frankfort ch 28 65, youths' literary soc of Frankfort Springs 42 cents; Lower Ten Mile ch 24; Burghettstown ch 35 70; West Alexander ch 43; Upper Buffalo ch 35. Pby of St Clairsville—Crab Apple ch 92; Bealsville ch 10; Woodsfield ch 7; Wheeling Valley ch 20 65; Martinsville ch 32 15; Beech Spring ch 30 50; Nottingham ch 45; Deersville ch 6; St. Clairsville ch 37. Pby of Steubenville—New Hagerstown ch 38; Big Spring ch 21; Still Fork ch 3 50; Harleam ch 5 25. Pby of New Lisbon—Deerfield ch 25 539 82

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Zanesville—Rush Creek ch 10; Bethel ch 9. Pby of Richland—Mt Vernon ch mo con, bal to con CHARLES SWAN and ROBERT TURNER 1 ms 4 50; Bloomfield ch 2; East Union ch 7 35; Millwood ch 5 31; Waterford ch 4 25, children 1 60; Mansfield ch 44; Martinsburg ch 28 75; Frederick ch 2 75, children 6 13; Mt Pleasant ch addl to con JOHN SMITH 1 m 17 50; Chesterville ch 9 12; Harmony ch 1 87. Pby of Coshocton—Berlin ch 19 66, mo con 13 16, Sab sch 9 38; Williamsburg ch 11; Mt Eaton ch 1, John Johnston 10, Mrs Wise 3 221 33

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Washington ch 27; Hillsboro ch of which 10 each to con J M JOHNSTON and Mrs ANNE FALLIS 1 m's, and 10 from Mrs L H Barry and children of Infant Sab sch to ed Samuel Steel in India 141 28. Pby of Miami—Franklin ch 17. Pby of Cincinnati—First ch Ladies miss soc 260; Seventh ch ann col 140 55, Ladies miss soc 150, Sab sch miss soc three mos colls 32 20; Central ch 1st Mission Sab sch to ed Robert Young 25; High st ch mo con 78 cts; Bethel ch 2 75; Reading ch 9 50. Pby of Oxford—Bethel ch 70. Pby of Sidney—New Jefferson ch 4; Union ch 4 884 06

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Indianapolis—Bethany ch 9. Pby of Palestine—Paris ch 45 54 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Lake—Constantine ch of which 30 to con their pastor, Rev SAMUEL C LOGAN 1 m 36 62, children's coll's 4 25. Pby of Crawfordsville—Poplar Springs ch 4 44 87

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—St Charles 1st ch addl 17, juv miss soc and proceeds of little girls' labour to ed George Champlin Sibley 25. Pby of Palmyra—Big Creek ch, Mrs E Perry 5 47 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—Louisville 1st ch in part 283 48, mo con 30 75; Second ch in part 183; Chestnut st ch 313 10; Shiloh and Olivet ch 100; New Castle ch 20, Sab sch 6; Pisgah ch 8; Shelby co Kentucky, Mrs E Morton 25, and Miss E A Morton 5 to con C B H MARTIN 1 m. Pby of Muhlenburg—Hopkinsville ch 11. Pby of Transylvania—Bethel ch 6; Paint Lick ch 15, less 2 for Foreign Missionary; Danville 1st ch 390 less 10 for Foreign Missionary, Sab sch 50; Danville 2d ch 342; Springfield ch 1. Pby of West Lexington—Fayette co, Ky, J M C Irwin of which 10 for education and 10 for missions in Liberia 20. Pby of Ebenezer—Washington ch 13 1810 33

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Winchester—Gerardstown ch 83; Tuscarora ch 24. Pby of East Hanover—High st ch Portsmouth 10 60. Pby of Montgomery—Christiansburg ch 62 63, Mrs Catharine Jones 5 185 23

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Concord—Rocky River ch GEORGE L PHIFER to con self, Rev DANIEL A PENICK and Mrs ROSA A PHIFER 1 m's 100 00

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE—Pby of Holston—Providence ch 9. Pby of Nashville—Nashville 1st ch 315 324 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Chickasaw—Holly Springs ch Sab sch to ed Sarah B Thompson 25; Water Valley ch 'a member' 1; Sand Spring ch 3. Pby of Memphis—Macon ch 35; Memphis 2d ch 125, Sab sch to ed Jane Gray 25; Mt Carmel ch 89 70, Dr Holmes to ed James Holmes 25, sewing soc 40, coloured persons 5 30; Somerville ch Sab to ed Fannie Q Boyd 30 404 00

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—Pby of South Carolina—Willington ch mo con 40; Rock ch, a family offering, to ed youth in India 28. Pby of Bethel—Bethesda ch for press in Northern India 90; Pleasant Grove ch 55; Six Mile Creek ch 10. Pby of Harmony—Hepzibah ch 6; Salem ch (B R) 89; Sumpterville ch fem miss soc 65; Camden ch 51 25, less 10 for Foreign Missionary; Pine Tree ch 10; Williamsburgh ch 33, Rev James A Wallace 10; Darlington ch 114 25; Cheraw ch 241; Liberty Hill ch 53; Midway ch 3 50; Harmony ch 11; Brewington ch 27; Lebanon ch 23; Salem ch (L R) 35; Bishopville ch 3; Horeb ch 8; Mt Zion ch 127 25. Pby of Charleston—Columbia 1st ch 60 20; Charleston 2d ch mo con coll's 146 72; Circular ch W P Findlay 10, Miss E Peronneaux 3, Miss H E Findlay 1; Beach Island ch 10 1354 17

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Pby of Georgia—Liberty co, Ga, Fem Miss Soc for printing in China 53 33. Pby of Hopewell—Macon ch 150, Sab sch to ed R L Breck and Heman Mead 50. Pby of Florida—Euchee Valley ch mo con 5; Bainbridge ch 1 259 33

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.—Pby of South Alabama—Newbern ch 31; Fairview ch 45; Camden ch 5; Centre Ridge ch 46 50; Geneva ch 5; Black's Bend ch 5; Marion ch 36 15; Shell Creek ch 10; Mobile Government st ch 200; Bethel ch Sab sch to ed Moshumeed Ali Khan 20; 2d ch, of which 120 mo con colls, and 30 from Sab sch to ed E P Smith 250; Mount Pleasant ch, of which 17 from juv soc to ed —— 67; Valley Creek ch, of which 18 from coloured people for Africa 158; Pisgah ch 31 20. Pby of Tuscaloosa—Tuscaloosa ch 100; Concord ch 7; Mt Pisgah ch 8. Pby of Talladega—Marble Spring ch 45 1069 85

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Mississippi—Port Gibson ch 23. Pby of Louisiana—Comite ch 10; Concord ch 5; Woodville ch 33 87; New Orleans 4th ch 11; Baton Rouge ch 30; Plaquemine ch 6 30, Sab sch 29 70 148 87

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.—Pby of Arkansas—Little Rock ch 25 00

SYNOD OF TEXAS.—Pby of Brazos—Galveston ch 76 35

SYNOD OF THE PACIFIC.—Pby of Oregon—Clatsop ch 25 80

Total from churches, $13,572 93

LEGACIES.—Ala, Interest from Underwood Estate 30; Shippensburg, Pa, Legacy of Miss Jane Maclay 50; Cincinnati, O, Estate of John Gallagher 30; St Clairsville, O, Estate of David McWilliams 100; Pittsburg, Pa, Patterson Estate 50; Estate of Dr Gladden 53; York, S C, Estate of John Blair 100 414 00

SEMINARIES.—Princeton, N J, Theo Sem Miss, Bible, Tract, and Education Soc 70 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—Fort McIntosh, Texas, Col G Loomis 30; A Merchant for Shanghai Mission 1200; "——" for India 1666; "——" for China 1667; "——" for Africa 1667; A Lady for the Madiai 25; L M S for Jewish missions 30; Left at Mission House 20; Two Ladies for Belgium 500; Cedar Rapids, Iowa, "A Christian Friend" 2 50; Otoe and Omaha Mission, D Jones for printing Testaments in China 6; Newark, N J, William Rankin to ed Matilda W and Emma W Rankin at Ningpo 50; Two Friends 5; New Brunswick, N J, Rev J J Janeway, D D, 700; Asso Ref Synod of the South for the education of youth at Kentucky, Liberia 95 73; A Friend 100; Jersey Shore, Pa, A Friend 10; Warrentown, Mi, O Shurtliff 2; Texana, Texas, J A Taylor 5; Richmond, Va, Thomas W F Taylor 2½; A Friend 10; Trenton, N J, E B Fuller to con THOMAS J STRYKER and JOSEPH G BREARLY 1 m's 100; Transferred from Waldensian Fund for Pignerol ch 2100 9993 23

Total receipts in April, $24,049 16

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—

Amount previously acknowledged,		$9949 90
Bethesda ch, S C, Maj W Sproul 22; Miss Alice Caldwell 5; Chippewa, O, Mrs Jane Frank 1; Sab sch of University of Virginia 5		33 00
Less		9982 90
Error in amount carried from receipts in Nov 1853, to Dec 1853,	96 17
Transferred to general acc'nt for Pignerol ch	2100 00	2196 17	7786 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS IN CLOTHING, &c.—Fem Miss Soc Rutger's st ch, N Y. one box of clothing for Chippewa and Ottowa Mission at Grand Traverse; Ladies Miss Soc of Upper Octorara ch, Pa, one box of clothing 80; Ladies of Scrubgrass ch, Pa, one box of clothing 106 05; A Lady, N Y, 165 articles of clothing; Mrs M, N Y, 39 articles; Mrs S, N Y, 17 garments; Sew Soc, N Y, 1st ch 36 garments additional.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. B. M. Smith, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M.D. Treasurer.

☞ As frequent inquiries are made on this subject, we give the terms on which the Board of Publication ordinarily employs Colporteurs.

Wages $150 per annum. Equipage $50. All reasonable travelling expenses, together with charges for freight and postage, are defrayed by the Board.

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The Report of this year presents a very encouraging aspect of the enterprise in which we are engaged. Fifteen new books in the English, and one in the German language have been published, giving a total of 38,250 copies. Nine tracts in 12mo, and one in 18mo, have been issued, of which 26,000 copies were printed. Besides these, the Publishing Committee report at the close of the year, March 31st, several other works in course of preparation for the press, and several actually in the printer's hands. But for unavoidable delays, these would have been included in the catalogue of new publications.

It is not, however, our main purpose to aim at a large or rapid increase of our miscellaneous publications. Our chief effort is to multiply copies of approved books. Meanwhile, very diligent efforts are in progress towards greatly enlarging the youths' department of our publications.

A new impression of the 64mo Hymn Book is in press, whose print is both larger and more distinct; advantages which are very desirable, and which will not materially affect the size of the volume. It will still be adapted to the purposes for which it was designed.

The circulation of the Sabbath-School Visitor has now reached 41,000 copies. It is computed that there are about 100,000 families connected with our Church, and it is highly desirable that this valuable auxiliary to the work of parental and Sabbath-School instruction should be found in every one.

During the year one hundred and fifty-one colporteurs have been in commission, of whom one hundred and forty-four have laboured in twenty-five States, six in the British provinces, and one in India. The distribution of these colporteurs in the several States has been as follows:—Three in Maine, two in New Hampshire, twenty-two in New York, four in New Jersey, sixteen in Pennsylvania, one in Maryland, two in Virginia, twelve in North Carolina, six in South Carolina, fifteen in Georgia, two in Florida, one in Alabama, one in Mississippi, one in Louisiana, five in Texas, one in Arkansas, two in Kentucky, one in Michigan, six in Tennessee, nine in Ohio, three in Iowa, four in Indiana, ten in Illinois, four in Missouri, and one in Wisconsin—twenty-five States having been thus included in our field.

Including about 28,000 volumes, and 48,000 pages of tracts, distributed by the Synods of Virginia and Pittsburgh, and 6517 volumes and 381,000 pages of tracts, the amount of donations stated below, the entire distribution of the year amounts to 135,983 volumes, and 1,300,547 pages of tracts. Donations have been made to the amount of $2358.89, viz: To Sabbath Schools 2535 volumes; to naval and military stations and ships of war 142; to humane Institutions 60; Literary and Theological Institutions 226; ministers 850; feeble churches 1376; individuals for gratuitous distribution 1328. Total volumes 6517, and 381,032 pages of tracts. These donations are of course exclusive of those made by colporteurs.

The Treasurer reports $15,867.25 contributed towards sustaining the colporteur enterprise, and $18,687 expended, showing a deficiency of $2,819.75.

The entire proceeds of sales for the year are $77,647.37, exceeding the last year by $6,679.65. The Institution is entirely free from debt, and all its monetary affairs in a sound condition. It is regretted that the contributions for the colporteur fund fall so far short of the expenditures in that department; and yet it is pleasing to know that these contributions exceed those of the last year by over $3500, thus manifesting a considerable increase of interest on the subject among our churches. The excess of expenditure has been mainly owing to the settlement of colporteur accounts of former years.

The Board expresses great satisfaction in the increasing appreciation of its labours manifested in various portions of the Church and among other denominations, and looks confidently to a future of increased and extending usefulness. To secure such result, the Church courts, ministers, and people of our beloved Zion are affectionately urged to weigh the vast importance of a sound religious literature to our Church and country, and exert themselves accordingly in aiding in the work of disseminating our publications, not only in the bounds of our organized congregations, but to the destitute throughout the land.

FAVOUR AMONG THE CHURCHES.

During the month of April, the Secretary of the Board visited several Presbyteries, presenting before those bodies the claims of the colporteur enterprise to the confidence and support of the churches under their care. His visits were, in every case, most cordially received, and every desired opportunity was afforded for making as full and extended statements as were deemed advisable. As most of the Presbyteries conveniently accessible from the office met about the same time, it was not practicable to visit many. The Presbytery of Philadelphia most cordially and unanimously adopted the following paper:

"The Presbytery of Philadelphia, earnestly desiring to aid the churches under its care in every laudable effort to do good, and in the exercise of its constitutional powers of adopting 'common measures for promoting knowledge and religion:'

"Resolved, 1. That the session of each church under care of this Presbytery is hereby affectionately and urgently enjoined to take such order as may be deemed necessary and best to afford the members of such church and congregation an opportunity of making annual contributions to the support of all the schemes of Christian benevolence established by our General Assembly.

"2. That it shall be the duty of the Stated Clerk, at the next semi-annual meeting of this body, to call the roll of ministers and churches, with a view of ascertaining whether this injunction may have been complied with; and at every spring meeting of Presbytery to do the same, in order to ascertain the diligence of the churches in the premises; of all which due record shall be made on the minutes of Presbytery."

The Presbyteries of Huntingdon, Carlisle, Elizabethtown, and New Brunswick, gave similar expressions of desire to co-operate with the Board in its missionary work, by adopting or renewing plans for securing from the churches regular contributions to the colporteur funds.

From several Presbyteries, in more remote sections of the Church, replies to the circular recently sent to them have been received, evincing the existence of the same feeling towards the Board. Contributions in reply to the circular issued last winter, continue to be received from the churches. We refer to the following, as a specimen.

New York, May 13th, 1854.

Rev. B. M. Smith, Cor. Sec. Bd. of Pub.

Dear Brother—My church has never contributed to the Board of Publication. It has, however, annually contributed to the American Tract Society, and this fact was used against all efforts to introduce our own Board. Having been cognizant of its beneficial labours in the West, I resolved to give our Board a chance here, without interfering with the American Tract Society, an institution which I regard highly. Your circular, received last January, furnished me just the aid I needed. I read it, with a running commentary, to my session; a collection was ordered, which resulted in a contribution of $60.50 for your colporteur department. The congregational collection amounted to about $37. The ladies then determined to increase the sum sufficient to constitute myself and wife Life Members, and they succeeded, contrary to my expectations. It was very gratifying to find so much interest manifested in this department of our great Christian enterprises for the conversion of the world.

The Record is doing a good work among us. We circulate fifty-three copies.

Fraternally yours.

AN APPEAL FOR THE BLIND.

Some years ago, Dr. Alexander prepared an excellent work, of an instructive and devotional character, which was printed in raised characters, for the blind. Many copies were called for, and are now, doubtless, communicating the riches of gospel truth to many sons and daughters of this heavy affliction. But by the fire which burned our building, January, 1849, all the copies remaining on hand were destroyed. Since that time, inquiries for the book have been often made. That or something else ought to be published. There is no class of our unfortunate fellow citizens whose afflictions should awaken a more lively sympathy than the blind. The rapid increase of institutions for their instruction, and the great improvements in the art of "teaching their fingers" to read, supply increasing numbers to be benefitted by such a publication.

Still the limited demand does not permit the Board to publish anything, unless, as in the former case, the means are mostly furnished for this special object.

We affectionately and urgently present this matter to the attention of all our readers, and especially of the wealthy. As you look around on your cheerful group of children, gathered around the family table, and storing their minds with useful knowledge, or enjoying the pure delights of entertaining and instructive books, think of the sightless one, whose days and nights are equally dark. Think of those, who, with opportunities for acquiring valuable knowledge of science, are yet cut off, to a great measure, from the teachings of religion. The expense of such a work as was before published, would probably not exceed five hundred dollars for two hundred and fifty copies, though less in proportion for a larger number of copies. But it is highly desirable to furnish not only one, but several, suitable for the adults as well as children. The time is to come when "Books for the Blind" must form an important class. And it is our duty and privilege to vie with philanthropists in contributing to supply these bereaved people with alleviations of their calamities. They provide books to teach them the elements of language—arithmetic, geography, and history. But little has been done to supply books for their religious instruction and comfort, other than the Bible. As yet, the bulk and cost of the Bible, causes it to have a very limited circulation.

We trust this appeal will be extensively circulated by our Church editors, and we solicit contributions for this special purpose, to be sent to the Treasurer of the Board, Dr. A. W. Mitchell, 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

LETTERS OF THE MADIAI.

The Board have in press, along with many other excellent works, mostly for children, the "Letters of the Madiai," giving a graphic and touching narrative of their imprisonment and sufferings, during a persecution, which Governor Cass described a few days since in the United States Senate, "as furnishing one of the most flagrant violations of the rights of conscience recorded in the long chapter of religious intolerance." The book has not been republished in this country. It will be expedited through the press as rapidly as possible, and we suggest that persons wishing it, anticipate its publication by orders. It will richly repay perusal, and we envy no man who can rise from such perusal without a higher appreciation of our civil and religious liberties, and a heart full of devout thanks for God's mercies to these his suffering martyrs. The volume will be embellished with coloured likenesses of both the Madiai.

RELIGIOUS PUBLICATION INSTITUTIONS.

The "Evangelist," referring to an article in Norton's Literary Gazette, uses the following language, which we commend for its truth and timeliness. The importance of such Institutions, in giving to our country the best sort of religious literature, and thus forming the best sort of religious public sentiment, can hardly be exaggerated. The Press is our "fourth estate." Let the Church use it aright, and we need not fear papists nor pagans, infidelity nor Satan.

"The principal organizations for publishing religious works are the Bible Society, the American Tract Society, the Methodist Book Concern, the American Sunday-School Union, the Presbyterian Board of Publication, the Congregational Board of Publication, the Baptist Publication Society, the Baptist Bible Society, the Massachusetts Sabbath-School Society, besides some smaller denominational enterprises. Most of the works issued by them are not sectarian, but of general religious interest, sound in essential doctrine, and excellent in literary and moral character. They are books which, in the main, no private publishing house would venture to publish, but which are nevertheless as desirable as those more popular. They have created their own market—formed the taste which they are adapted to supply; and by the methods adopted for their circulation find their way to quarters to which booksellers have but little access. Their efforts have often been viewed with a jealous eye by the "trade," but without reason. So far from interfering with the legitimate business of the booksellers, they have powerfully contributed to the formation of a taste for reading, and have made infinitely more readers than they have supplied. Their influence has been mainly felt in those strata of society which lie beneath the general reading classes, quickening and elevating into the readers and buyers of books, those who would never have been reached by the ordinary processes of commerce. The trade and the country alike owe an inestimable debt to the zeal and wisdom of these associations, for the part which they have borne in the work of civilizing and evangelizing the age upon which they have operated.

It is a striking fact, that no religious enterprise, whether undertaken by an individual denomination, or by a combination of Christians of different sects, has ever been able to accomplish its purposes without the aid of the press. Though not the main element of power, in prosecuting the work of evangelization, it has yet so great an influence, and reaches so far, and tells so strongly, that it may be safely said, that the religious denomination in this country which uses it most wisely and efficiently will make the deepest and most permanent mark upon the moral and social features of the age. What has been done hitherto, in the use of the press, by the various ecclesiastical and religious organizations, has been partial, and without system. It has never yet entered into the plans of any Church, to make the press one of its recognized agencies for doing its work. The Methodists have come nearer to such a realization than any other denomination, and have reaped the benefit of it. But what the press is capable of doing—how variously and largely it may be made to contribute to the intelligence, growth, and purity, to the social standing, the general influence, and the permanent usefulness and reputation of any Church—we believe the most intelligent Christian has but feeble conceptions."

THE SCENE CHANGED.

A colporteur in Iowa writes:

"I will give you one case wherein my heart was made glad a few days ago. Some time last summer I visited a village in which were living ten or twelve families, not one of whom was a professor of religion. I called at almost every house, and on inquiry, found but one house with the Bible, nor could I sell one book. I called at a store, and the owner, after looking at my books, said with a cold, infidel sneer on his countenance, that he would as soon or rather have his children read novels; and so of most others. All I could do at that time was to give such tracts as I could get them to take, and leave them, praying mentally that they might be brought to see and realize their danger. Judge of my surprise and joy, when again passing through the same village, ten days ago, I called on the same Mr. S. who had said on my first visit he would as soon have his children read novels; he received me kindly, invited me to dinner, and bought three dollars worth of books. He said a change for good had come over him, as he trusted, as also many others in their village. I sold at the next house two dollars worth of books; at another house, the lady said her husband was from home, or she would have had some, but she had no money. I gave her the little book entitled "Only Rule," and being in haste to reach a certain place where I had appointed to be at a sacramental meeting of our church, I hurried on, rejoicing at what God, I trust, had wrought; for if God hath wrought a good work, by whatever instrumentality, I therein will rejoice, and do rejoice. What instrumentality, if any, the tracts which I distributed there on my first visit may have had, I do not know, nor did I inquire."

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF APRIL, 1854.

Presbytery of Albany.

Northville ch, Rev H Rinker 2; Charlton ch 6, per Rev George I Taylor — $8 00

Presbytery of Steuben.

First ch Bath, per Mr Lewis Biles — 21 00

Presbytery of Michigan.

1st ch Plymouth, from Rev James Dubuar 1 47, collection in the church 7 53 — 9 00

Presbytery of Hudson.

Goshen ch, per Rev Dr Snodgrass — 21 34

Presbytery of Bedford.

Rye ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr, 5 75; Ladies of the South-east ch, per Rev R B E McLeod 30 — 35 75

Presbytery of New York.

Greenbush ch 1; Yorkville ch 15 50 — 16 50

Presbytery of New Brunswick.

Kingston ch, per Rev Dr Watson 10; Millstone ch, per Rev C F Worrell, through Dr Thomason 3 — 10 00

Presbytery of Luzerne.

Tamaqua ch, per Rev Wm R Glen, through Geo Wiggan — 9 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Ninth ch, from the Juv Miss Soc, per Andrew Little 20; Seventh ch, per A Bokee, from "A Member" 10; Scots ch, per M Grier 161; Crookville ch, per Rev J D Dudley 5; 2d ch, per Dr Darrah 73 95; J O Haselton 5 — 274 95

Presbytery of Baltimore.

Franklin st ch, per Rev Dr Plumer 52 58; Govane Chapel 5; Madison ch 1, per Rev R C Galbraith; Bridge street ch, per Rev R Happersett 33 39 — 89 97

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Lower Path Valley ch, Rev L W Williams, from sundry members of congregation, per Mr Harris, Treas — 1 62

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Spruce street ch, per Rev B M Smith — 50 00

Presbytery of Richland.

Belleville ch 3; Frederick ch, gift of A McDonald, deceased 1, per Rev John M Faris — 4 00

Presbytery of Coshocton.

Clark ch, per Joel Hall 10; Mt Eaton ch, John Johnston 5 — 15 00

Presbytery of Chillicothe.

Palace ch, per Rev Dr McKinney 2; Bloomingburg ch 2; Union ch, per Rev W P Eastman 4 — 8 00

Presbytery of Cincinnati.

Springfield ch 20 05; Bethel ch 5 07; Rev James Coe 3, per J D Thorpe — 28 12

Presbytery of Vincennes.

Sab Sch of Evansville ch, per Rev A Sterritt — 5 00

Presbytery of Peoria.

Lewistown ch, per Erasmus D Rice — 20 00

Presbytery of Des Moines.

Birmingham ch, per Rev D V Smock — 2 50

Presbytery of Winchester.

Berryville, Rev Charles White — 1 00

Presbytery of Concord.

Rocky River ch, contribution 40; G L Phifer, to const himself and wife and Rev D A Penick hon mems 100, per Rev B M Smith — 140 00

Presbytery of South Carolina.

Willington ch, from John B Bull, bal to con Rev Wm H Davis hon mem 20; From Ladies Benev Soc, per Rev Wm H Davis 20 — 40 00

Presbytery of Harmony.

Cheraw ch 19; Mt Zion ch 21 25, per J F Matheson, Esq — 40 25

Presbytery of Memphis.

2d ch, Rev Dr Gray, per J W Kirtland 49 25; Germantown and Salem chs, per J M Flinn 20 75; Portersville ch, per Rev E H Green 20 00 — 90 00

Presbytery of Oregon.

Clatsop ch, per Rev Lewis Thompson — 5 25

Presbytery of Bethel.

Shiloh ch, per J R Baird (old bal) — 6 24

MISCELLANEOUS.

Carrolsville, Mi, Wm G Smith 10; From J Smith, Esq, per George McNeill, Esq, Fayetteville, N C, through Board of Missions 2; anonymous, per Rev J Y Alexander 10; Emeline Gridley, in part to con her son, Henry Gridley, an hon mem, per Rev Wm J McCord 15 — 37 00

$989 49

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP.

A donation of Thirty Dollars at any one time constitutes the donor, or any person whom he may designate, an Honorary Member of the Board of Publication. Honorary Members receive an elegantly engraved certificate of membership, and are entitled to draw one dollar's worth of children's books or tracts annually, provided they are called for during the year in which they become due.

FORM OF BEQUESTS TO THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

To the Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of ———, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Publication, according to the provisions of their charter.

TO STATED CLERKS OF SYNODS AND PRESBYTERIES.

A very valuable item of Statistics can be furnished with little trouble by Stated Clerks of Synods and Presbyteries by sending to the Home and Foreign Record an answer in writing to the following questions.

When was your [Synod or Presbytery] organized? Where was the first meeting held? Out of what Synod or Presbytery, or Synods or Presbyteries, was it formed?

The meeting of the General Assembly will afford a good opportunity to communicate this information.

Address, Home and Foreign Record, or
Secretary of the Board of Publication.

The Stated Clerk of West Lexington Presbytery requests the attention of the members of that body to the loss of the Third Volume of its Records, and hopes they will unite with him in efforts to procure it.

Ecclesiastical Record.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. R. D. Shane and church of North Middletown, Ky.

Rev. J. P. Vandyke and Red Oak church, Ohio.

Rev. Wm. C. Windel and churches of Green Hill and Rockland, Delaware.

Rev. E. K. Lynn and Hopewell church, Indiana.

Rev. Irwin Carson and Chillicothe church, Ohio.

Rev. William Flinn and Demopolis church, Alabama.

Rev. S. R. Alexander and Indiana church, Presbytery of Vincennes.

Rev. D. Longmore, D. D., and Milton church, Pennsylvania, on the 19th of April.

Rev. D. McNeill Turner and Lexington church, Georgia.

Rev. Alexander Heberton and Williamsport church, Pa.

May 3d, Rev. Wm. L. McCalla and the Union church, Philadelphia.

CALLS HAVE BEEN GIVEN TO

Rev. A. D. Metcalfe, by church of Hickory Wythe, Tenn.

Rev. D. McNeill Turner, by the Tallahassee church, Florida.

Rev. E. E. Swift, by the church of New Castle, Presbytery of Beaver.

Rev. James Wilkinson, by the church of Athens, Pa.

CALLS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED BY

Rev. W. P. Buell, to Mount Bethany and Bolivia churches, Presbytery of Memphis.

Rev. T. D. L. Wardlaw, to Paris church, Kentucky.

Rev. J. M. Worrall, to Covington church, Kentucky.

Rev. G. Wilson McPhail, to Brainard church, Easton, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Wm. Evan Jones, to First church, Green Island, Troy, New York.

Rev. J. B. Ripley, to Mariner's church, Philadelphia.

Mr. James Scott, to Holmesburg, Pennsylvania.

Rev. John F. Baker, to Scranton church, Pennsylvania.

CALLS HAVE BEEN DECLINED BY

Rev. Wm. Pelan, to churches of Frankfort and Jefferson, Indiana.

Rev. J. A. Scott, to church in Henderson, Kentucky.

Mr. Wm. Evan Jones, to the First church, Gloucester City.

Rev. George P. Bergen, to the Bellefontaine church.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. Nathaniel Williams, by Presbytery of Chillicothe.

April 9th, the Presbytery of Louisville installed Rev. J. J. Bullock, D. D., Pastor of the 2d church, Louisville, Ky.

February 24th, the Presbytery of Milwaukie ordained Mr. John McNulty.

April 23d, the Presbytery of Louisville installed Rev. J. F. Coons pastor of the the 4th church, Louisville, Ky.

The Presbytery of Muhlenberg has ordained Mr. L. G. Barbour.

April 16th, the Presbytery of Louisiana installed Rev. James Richards, D. D., pastor of the Third church, New Orleans; and ordained Mr. W. McConnel, and installed him pastor of the Canal street church.

April 20th, the Presbytery of Miami ordained Mr. James H. Brooks, and installed him pastor of the First church, Dayton, Ohio.

April 27th, the Presbytery of Long Island ordained and installed Mr. David M. Miller pastor of the church of Bridgehampton.

March 31st, the Presbytery of Des Moines installed Rev. D. V. Smock pastor of the church of Birmingham, Iowa.

May 3d, the Presbytery of Philadelphia installed Rev. E. P. Rogers, pastor of the 7th church, Philadelphia.

May 3d, the Presbytery of North River ordained Mr. Alfred P. Botsford, and installed him pastor of the church, Hughsonville, Dutchess county, New York.

April 19th, the Presbytery of Redstone installed Rev. D. Kennedy pastor of the church of Greensburgh, Pa.

April 26th, the Presbytery of Long Island ordained Mr. Stephen L. Mershon, and installed him pastor of the East Hampton church.

April 3d, the Presbytery of Greenbrier ordained Mr. James Young.

May 4th, the Presbytery of Baltimore installed Rev. D. T. Carnahan pastor of the Aisquith street church, Baltimore.

March 30th, the Presbytery of East Texas ordained Mr. A. J. Loughridge.

May 3d, the Presbytery of Newton installed Rev. John A. Reiley pastor of the Blairstown church, New Jersey.

May 9th, the Presbytery of Genessee ordained Mr. J. W. Major, and installed him pastor of Caledonia church.

May 14th, the Presbytery of New York installed Rev. J. S. Davison pastor of Eighty-fourth street church, New York.

LICENSED.

By the Presbytery of Bethel, April 1st, Mr. Douglass Harrison.

By the Presbytery of Chillicothe, ——, Mr. J. S. Wilson.

By the Presbytery of Redstone, Mr. W. Caldwell.

By the 2d Presbytery of Philadelphia, Mr. James Biggs.

By the Presbytery of Mississippi, April 14th, Mr. Hilary Moreley.

CHANGE OF POST-OFFICE ADDRESS.

Rev. B. L. Beall from Taylorsville to Salisbury, N. C.

Rev. S. W. Blain from Yancey's Mills to Greenwood Depot, Va.

Rev. Hector McAllister from Fayetteville to Manchester, N C.

Rev. Samuel Hart from Cannellton to Orleans, Indiana.

Rev. C. D. Martin from Pinckneyville to Morrissa, Ill.

Rev. H. R. Wilson, D. D., from Attlebury, Pa., to Bridgeton, N. J.

Rev. J. W. Donaldson from Murray to Fort Wayne, Ind.

Rev. J. W. McCluskey from Wabash to Rossville, Ind.

Rev. McKnight Williamson from Adam's Mills to Hebbardsville, Ohio.

Rev. W. McCandlish from Lewistown to Quincy, Ill.

Rev. John F. Baker from Morison to Scranton, Pa.

Rev. D. Kennedy to Greensburgh, Pa.

Rev. A. S. Billingsley from Achor, Ohio, to Wurtemburg, Pa.

Rev. George K. Marriner to Baskinridge, N. J.

Rev. J. F. Cowan from Potosi to Washington, Mo.

Rev. E. K. Lynn from New Philadelphia to Urbana, Ill.

Rev. Charles Munn, to Muncie, Indiana.

Rev. J. McCluskey, D. D., from West Alexander, Pa., to Steubenville, Ohio.

Rev. J. B. Ripley from Burlington, N. J., to Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev. J. W. Nesbit from Noblestown, Pa., to New Bedford, Pa.

Rev. J. N. Lewis from Big Lick to Wytheville, Va.

Rev. John S. Frierson from Oxford to Tatesville, Miss.

DEATHS.

Rev. William S. Beard, colleague of the pastor of Union Church, Monroe county, Va., died on the 30th of April last, in the — year of his age.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Presbytery of Charleston has refused to place in Dr. Palmer's hands the call of the Central church of Cincinnati.

Rev. B. M. Smith has declined the Professorship of Ecclesiastical History and Church Government in the Theological Seminary of Columbia, South Carolina.

Rev. Henry Sydney, of Centre College, Kentucky, accepts the office of Principal of West Jersey Presbyterial Academy.

CHANGE OF RELATION.

Rev. John Stewart, late of the (New-school) Presbytery of Madison, was received by the White Water Presbytery, at a recent meeting at Greensburgh, Indiana.

Varieties.

The General Assembly of the Prebyterian Church in the United States of America met, according to appointment, in the Central Presbyterian Church in the city of Buffalo, New York, at eleven o'clock, A. M., on Thursday the 18th inst., and was opened with a sermon by the Rev. John C. Young, D. D., the Moderator of the last Assembly. The subject of the discourse was on the evils of ambition among Church officers; text, Luke xxii. 26.—But ye shall not be so; but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve.

After sermon the Moderator took the chair, and opened the session of the Assembly with prayer.

The Standing Committee on Commissions reported that there were present 232 persons who had been duly appointed as Commissioners to this General Assembly; and they were accordingly enrolled.

The Rev. Henry A. Boardman, D. D., was elected Moderator, and the Rev. James Wilson, Temporary Clerk.

General Assembly of the New-School Presbyterian Church.—This body convened in the First Presbyterian Church of this city on the 18th of May, at eleven o'clock, A. M., and was opened with a sermon by the Rev. D. How Allen, D. D., of Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, Moderator of the last Assembly, on 1 Cor. ii. 7: "For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." The special aspect of the subject, ably and eloquently presented, was the comprehensiveness of the doctrine of Paul.

The Rev. Thomas H. Skinner, D. D., of New York, was elected Moderator by a unanimous vote, and the Rev. R. W. Patterson, D. D., of Chicago, Temporary Clerk.

The Rev. Henry Darling, D. D., was elected Permanent Clerk, in place of the Rev. E. W. Gilbert, D. D., deceased.

There were in attendance one hundred and fifty commissioners.

The Benevolent Societies centering in New York have received contributions during the year of more than a million and a half of dollars. The receipts of some of them, as compared with those of last year, have been as follows:

	1852-3.	1853-4.
American Tract Society,	$334,627	$414,159
American Bible Society,	346,542	395,000
American Board of Foreign Missions,	186,682	189,266
American Home Missionary Society,	171,734	191,200
American Foreign and Christian Union,	69,603	75,000
American and Foreign Bible Society,	44,811	44,000
New York Colonization Society,	18,062	27,148
American Seamen's Friend Society,	24,264	26,500
Female Guardian Society,	12,772	22,000
Society for Ameliorating the Condition of Jews,	13,269	14,000
Total,	$1,272,366	$1,399,282
		1,272,366
Increase,		$126,916

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

Postage, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Subscribers are recommended to prepay at their own post-offices, as there is much liability of mistake, and no advantage by prepaying here.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

Board of Domestic Missions.—Meeting of the Board, p. 82. South-Western Agency, p. 82. Ministerial Responsibility, p. 82. Church Dedication, p. 82. Noble Self-Denial, p. 82. Self-Sustaining, p. 83. Encouraging Reports, p. 83. Receipts, p. 83.

Board of Education.—I. Ministerial Education. Increase of Candidates, p. 85. The Field is the World, p. 85. Hints to Theological Students, by the late Rev. James McEwen, p. 85. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges. Yorkville Female College, S. C., p. 85. Princeton College, p. 86. Religious Colleges, p. 86. Montgomery Presbyterial Academies, p. 87. Receipts, p. 87.

Board of Foreign Missions.—Recent Intelligence, p. 88. Seventeenth Annual Report of the Board of Foreign Missions, p. 88. Abstract of the Report, p. 88. Missions in Europe. Extract of Letter from Dr. Revel, p. 89. China: Ningpo Mission: Extract of Report of Dr. McCartee on the Medical Department of the Ningpo Mission, p. 89. India: Allahabad Mission: Narrative of a Visit to Futtehpore and Banda, by Rev. J. Owen, p. 90. Agra Mission: The Shrine of Kali at Calcutta, p. 91. Lodiana Mission: Cow-Killing in Ambala, p. 91. Miscellaneous: The Karens, p. 91. Receipts, p. 93.

Board of Publication.—Sixteenth Annual Report, p. 94. Favour among the Churches, p. 94. An Appeal for the Blind, p. 94. Letters of the Madiai, p. 95. Religious Publication Institutions, p. 95. The Scene Changed, p. 95. Receipts, p. 95.

Miscellaneous.—A Servant of the Church, p. 81. "It is I," p. 81. Dancing, p. 81. The Cradle and the Death-bed, p. 81. Beware of Two Things, p. 81. The Blessing Hereditary, p. 81. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 96. Meetings of the Assemblies, p. 96.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME V. No. 7. | PHILADELPHIA, JULY, 1854. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

GIVE! GIVE!

BY REV. J. SMITH, CHELTENHAM, ENGLAND.

The sun gives ever; so the earth—
What it can give, so much its worth;
The ocean gives in many ways—
Gives paths, gives fishes, rivers, bays,
So, too, the air, it gives us breath—
When it stops giving, in comes death.
Give, give, be always giving;
Who gives not is not living.
The more we give,
The more we live.

God's love hath in us wealth upheaped,
Only by giving it is reaped.
If pent in by a selfish rind,
The body withers, and the mind,
Give strength, give thought, give deeds, give pelf,
Give love, give tears, and give thyself.
Give, give, be always giving;
Who gives not is not living.
The more we give,
The more we live.

SYSTEMATIC BENEVOLENCE.

Few topics excited deeper interest than this in the last General Assembly. The subject was brought up in a variety of forms. Early in the sessions of the Assembly the following overture from the Presbytery of Lexington was laid before the Assembly.

"To the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, to convene in the city of Buffalo, N. Y., May 18th, 1854.

"The Presbytery of Lexington respectfully submits the following overture, praying the Assembly to adopt the same in form or substance.

"The General Assembly, charged by the Constitution of the Church with the duty of superintending the concerns of the whole Church, and of recommending and attempting 'the promotion of charity, truth, and holiness in all the Churches under its care,' recognizing the Church of Christ as a divinely constituted society for the propagation, as well as preservation of the truth, which makes wise to salvation; believing that the various agencies, which the Assembly has, from time to time established, as means for meeting the responsibilities thus acknowledged, are well calculated for securing the desired result; that those especially, as the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, which are mainly dependent for success in their various spheres of service, on the voluntary contributions of the members of our congregations, should be liberally and steadily sustained: and that it is highly important that judicious plans for securing regular, annual contributions, ought to be adopted and executed:—

"Resolved 1. That the Presbyteries which have not anticipated the provisions of this action of the Assembly, are earnestly and affectionately enjoined (1) at their meetings next following the rising of the Assembly, to direct the ministers or church-sessions in their bounds to adopt some method in their respective charges, by which an opportunity shall be afforded, and an invitation given, to all the members of their congregations, to contribute annually to the funds of the boards of the Church and of such other institutions of Christian Benevolence as to them may seem right; and (2), at every spring meeting, to institute a proper inquiry into the diligence of ministers or church-sessions, in executing the provisions of such method or plan.

"2. That the Presbyteries are further and affectionately urged, to enter on record the result of their action on this subject, and report the same, with their annual statistical report to the General Assembly at the next and every subsequent meeting.

"3. That the Boards of the Church are directed each to request the Stated Clerk, or some other suitable member of the Presbytery, to co-operate with their Secretaries or other officers, in securing the proper attention to this important matter, both as to this action of the Assembly, and its general relations to the prosperity of our Church."

On this and other documents of similar purport, a large committee, consisting of one member from every Synod represented, was appointed. After a very mature deliberation on the whole subject, that committee presented a Report, which the Assembly directed to be prepared in the form of an address to the Ministers and Churches, and referred to the Board of Publication, to be printed and circulated. This report concluded with the following resolutions.

1. Resolved, That this Assembly hereby enjoins upon the pastors of our churches to give greater prominence in the ministration of the word, to the doctrine of the Scripture as set forth and interpreted in our standards, (more particularly chap. 26, sec. 2. of the Confession, quest. 121 of the Larger Catechism, chap. 7, of the Form of Government; and chap. 6, sec. 5, of the Direct. for Worship) namely, that "saints are, by profession, bound to maintain an holy fellowship and communion, in relieving each other in outward things according to their several abilities and necessities, which communion, as God offereth opportunities, is to be extended unto all those who in every place call upon the name of the Lord Jesus," "giving and lending freely, according to their abilities, and in conformity to this doctrine, recognizing as one of the ordinances, established by Christ," in connection with the sermon, prayer and praise, a "collection raised for the poor and other purposes of the Church."

2. Resolved, The Presbyteries which have not anticipated the provisions of this action of the Assembly, are most earnestly and affectionately enjoined, (1) at their meetings following the rising of this Assembly, to take order, that the ministers and church-sessions in their bounds shall be directed to adopt some practicable method, by which an opportunity shall be afforded, and an invitation given to all the members of their congregations, to contribute regularly to the objects of Christian benevolence, recognized by the Assembly in the organization of the Boards of the Church, and to such other institutions as, to them, may seem right.

And (2) at every spring meeting to institute a proper inquiry into the diligence of ministers and church sessions in executing the provisions of such method.

3. Resolved, The Presbyteries are further enjoined to enter on record and report to the next General Assembly, their action on the first part of the foregoing resolution, and also to record at their next and all subsequent spring meetings, the result of the inquiry prescribed, and report the same to the General Assembly, with the usual annual Presbyterial Reports, stating the delinquencies and diligence of pastors and church-sessions.

4. Resolved, There shall be appointed a standing committee on Systematic Benevolence, by the Assembly, which shall be charged with the reception and examination of such Reports, and the presentation to the Assembly, of their aggregate results.

5. Resolved, The Boards of the Church are invited to aid in the proper execution of the foregoing arrangements of the Churches, by such official communications with the Presbyteries as may seem proper.

6. Resolved, The Professors of our Theological Seminaries are respectfully requested to give proper attention to the right training of the future pastors of the Church in view of the duties herein contemplated.

The Committee also presented as part of their Report, and recommend for the consideration of the Church Sessions and pastors, one or the other of such plans, for stated and regular contributions, as the following.

1. A committee may be appointed by the session for each object of benevolence, and a particular month assigned, in which they are to do their work, by calling upon the people, or otherwise obtaining their contributions.

2. All the objects to be aided may be presented in separate columns, and each contributor called upon to say what he will give quarterly or annually.

3. Weekly or monthly collections may be taken up, and thrown into a benevolent fund, which the session may divide among the several objects approved by them, in such proportion as they think proper.

HOW TO RECEIVE YOUR PASTOR.

When your minister calls to make you a friendly visit, receive him without ceremony. His time is precious, and he cannot well afford to wait for you to change your dress, perform your toilet, and put things to rights. He calls to see you, not your clothes. And do not weary him with your apologies. He would much prefer to hear you speak of your moral concernments. And if you invite him to sit at your table, give him precisely such food as your family would have if he had not visited you.

Improve your time, while he is with you, in conversation upon such subjects as tend to increase your knowledge and your happiness. Preachers are men and they know that people have their affairs to see to; and if your minister is a man of common sense, and finds that you put yourself out on his account, he will not soon come again, lest by so doing he should put you to some inconvenience. Be kind enough to see him just as you are when he calls—he will like you the better for it.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

ABSTRACT OF THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Presented to the General Assembly in Buffalo, May, 1854.

In presenting their Fifty-second Annual Report to the General Assembly, the Board of Missions desire to express their devout gratitude to Almighty God for the measure of success which he has vouchsafed to his servants in the prosecution of the missionary work assigned them during the year. There has been an increase both in the number of our missionaries and in the contributions of the churches during the year; and, what is of far higher importance, the Spirit of God has evidently accompanied the labours of our missionaries, and made them instrumental of saving good to multitudes of souls.

I. CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

On the 26th of September last, the highly respected and greatly esteemed Corresponding Secretary and General Agent of the Board, the Rev. Charles Colcock Jones, D. D., in consequence of continued and increasing ill-health, tendered his resignation of the office which he had so acceptably and usefully held for several years; and the Board, under the circumstances, felt it to be their duty to accept it. At the same meeting, the Rev. George Washington Musgrave, D. D., then Corresponding Secretary and General Agent of the Board of Publication, was elected Corresponding Secretary and General Agent of the Board of Missions, and entered upon the duties of the office on the first of November last. In view of the great responsibility of the office, and the difficulties connected with its judicious and efficient exercise, the Board would affectionately bespeak for their new Secretary, the fervent prayers, the generous sympathy, and the active co-operation of the whole Church.

II. OPERATIONS OF THE YEAR.

1. Of Missions.—Statistical details.

The number of Missionaries in commission, April 1, 1853, was 288, to which have been added to April 1, 1854, 235, making the whole number 523, or more by eight than the year previous.

The number of churches and missionary stations, wholly or in part supplied (so far as reported) by our missionaries, is 933.

The number of newly organized churches is 52.

The number of admissions on examination is 2,006; and on certificate 1,823: making a total of admissions of 3,829.

The number in communion with churches connected with the Board is 21,060.

The number of Sabbath-schools is 495; of teachers, 3,481; and of scholars, 22,387.

The number of baptisms is 2,238.

And the number of houses of worship, erected, or finished, is 61.

Of the 523 missionaries who have been in commission during the year, 146 have sent in no special report for the Assembly—more than one-fourth of the whole number—consequently we must increase all the returns one-fourth to make them correct.

2. Appropriations.

The appropriations made to our missionaries, from April 1, 1853, to April 1, 1854, have been, at the office in Philadelphia, $42,547.50, and at the office in Louisville, $32,874.42, making a total of $75,421.92.

The appropriations made from April 1, 1852, to April 1, 1853, were, at the office in Philadelphia, $35,273.58, and at the office in Louisville, $21,637.50; making a total of $56,911.08. From this statement, it appears, that the appropriations made at the office in Philadelphia exceeded those made the year before, $7,273.92; and at the office in Louisville, $11,236.92, thus making the total excess of appropriations this year above the year preceding, $18,510.84. The churches ought to understand distinctly, that these large appropriations cannot be continued, unless the treasury is replenished by their equally liberal contributions.

3. Receipts.

The total amount of receipts from all sources from April 1, 1853, to April 1, 1854, is $75,207.80, to which add, balances on hand in the different treasuries, April 1, 1853, $17,753.22, making the available resources of the Board during the year, $92,961.02.

The amount paid out at the different treasuries, for the same time, is $70,306.44; leaving an available balance in all the treasuries, April 1, 1854, of $22,654.58. The amount due the missionaries, at the same date, was $11,076.84; leaving an unexpended balance of $11,577.74.

We are gratified in being able to state, that while the aggregate receipts have fallen off, as compared with the preceding year, $6,247.53, the receipts from the churches have increased $5,805.29—the falling-off has been in individual or special donations and legacies.

4. Re-enforcement and Enlargement of the Church.

During the year, the Board have established new missions in many of the larger cities and towns, and in various rural districts, and have to a considerable extent re-enforced our missionaries in the newer States and Territories.

5. State of our Missions.

The reports of our missionaries, during the year, have been encouraging. Nearly all of them report a good and increasing attendance upon the means of grace on the part of their people, and some of them have enjoyed the special visitations of the Holy Spirit. We have, indeed, great cause for thankfulness that God has vouchsafed to his servants so good a measure of success, and have great reason to be encouraged in the further prosecution of the missionary work.

6. Clothing.

Clothing, valued at $5,896.60, has been received during the year, and distributed among the missionaries who needed it. From their acknowledgments we have reason to believe that the clothing sent has been very gratefully received, and has added very much to the comfort of the missionaries and their families.

III. CHURCH EXTENSION.

The balance of the Church Extension Fund on the 1st of April, 1853, was $6,211.33. The receipts from April 1, 1853, to April 1, 1854, were, from individuals, $3,211.93, and from churches, $3,086.16; making the receipts, $6,298.09; which added to the amount in hand on April 1, 1853, makes a total of $12,509.42. The appropriations paid from April 1, 1853, to April 1, 1854, amount to $6,177.25; which leaves a balance in the treasury, April 1, 1854, of $6,332.17. There are, however, unpaid appropriations, amounting to $8,178.07, which would more than consume this balance, and leave the Church Extension Fund in debt $1,845.90.

Appropriations have been made, during the year, to sixty-three churches, scattered over twenty-two Synods, and within the bounds of forty-four Presbyteries. Thirty-five churches have been finished during the year, and have received their respective appropriations.

For the purpose of comparison, we state, that the receipts for Church Extension from the 1st of April, 1852, to the 1st of April, 1853, were as follows: From individuals, $3,250.95, and from churches, $3,247.39; making a total of $6,498.34. From this it appears that the receipts this year were two hundred dollars and twenty-six cents less than the year preceding. The number of churches which were finished last year, and which received their appropriations was seventeen, or less by eighteen than this year.

As it may be desirable to know the gross amount that has been received from the commencement of the Church Extension Fund, we add the following statement: Cash received for Church Extension from July 20, 1844, to April 1, 1854, from individuals, $46,042.03, and from churches, $17,255.55; making a total of $63,297.58. The whole number of churches which have received appropriations, during this period, is three hundred and thirty-three; and these are scattered over every section of our Church.

The report then presents the great importance of church erection, and urges the necessity of adopting suitable measures to render our Church Extension scheme more effective. The Board express no preference for any particular plan or measure, and refer the whole matter to the General Assembly.

The IV. and V. heads relate to the Executive Committees and Agencies.

VI. IMPORTANCE OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

1. Objects of the Board.

The objects of the Board of Missions are two-fold:

(1.) To supply vacant churches, and assist weak and feeble congregations in the support of pastors.

(2.) To extend the boundaries of the Church, by employing ministers to preach the gospel, organize new congregations, and form churches in the hitherto neglected and waste places of our country.

Hundreds of our churches are so weak and feeble, that it would be impossible for them to maintain their pastors or stated supplies without the aid of others. And how shall new churches be formed, and the kingdom of Christ extended throughout our land, unless the heralds of the cross are sent forth and sustained by those who already enjoy and appreciate the blessings of the gospel?

2. The Gospel Ministry the chief Instrumentality.

The gospel ministry is the chief instrumentality, ordained and employed by God, for the extension of the visible Church of Christ, and the conversion and salvation of men.

3. The Gospel indispensable to the temporal and spiritual Welfare of Mankind.

To the gospel, under God, are we indebted for all our individual, social, civil, and political privileges and blessings. The security of our lives, the sanctity of our homes, the safety of our estates, our political and religious freedom, are all fruits of the gospel, and can only be perpetuated by its conservative and blessed influence.

But great as are the temporal evils against which the gospel defends us—great as are the temporal blessings which Christianity provides for and secures to us—they are nothing and less than nothing when compared with the spiritual and everlasting immunities and blessings which the gospel secures to believers.

4. The Vastness of the Field of our Labours.

The field assigned to the Board of Domestic Missions is our own country, in the thorough evangelization of which, not only we, but the whole world, have the deepest concern.

In 1850, the area of the United States was estimated at about three millions and five hundred thousand square miles, which exceeds the whole of Europe by about five hundred thousand square miles. What a country! What an immensity of territory!

5. Present and Prospective Population of our Country.

In 1850, according to the census then taken, the total population of our country exceeded twenty-three millions. The total number now must be about twenty-five millions.

Advancing at our present rate, both naturally and by immigration, in 1870 we shall number thirty-nine millions of people, in 1890, we shall number seventy-four millions, and in 1900 above one hundred millions! What a field! What a population for missionary enterprize!

The VII. head relates to the progress made by our Church in the missionary work, which is shown to be highly encouraging.

VIII. NEED OF MEN AND MEANS.

1. Demand for Missionaries.

We have often wished, while reading the earnest and affecting appeals that are made to us for missionaries, that the letters could be read by every member in our communion. From the North and the South, from the East and the West, the Macedonian cry is raised, "Come over and help us."

2. Inadequate Support of many of our Missionaries.

The difficulty is not merely to supply the demand for missionaries from so many places; the Board have often been embarrassed, from the deficiency of pecuniary means, in their efforts to sustain adequately the missionaries actually in the field. If the hearts of our people would be affected, could they read the appeals that are made to us for ministers, they would be much more deeply grieved could they read the letters of many of the missionaries themselves, describing their arduous labours and self-denials, the numerous deprivations, and sometimes actual sufferings of themselves and families, from the want of adequate pecuniary support.

There is no class of men, considering the qualifications and labours that are required of them, who are so poorly paid as our missionaries. Their average salary, during the year, was only $403.00. The average salary paid by the Board was $152.00, and the average amount received by them from their people was $251.00; thus making the average sum received by our missionaries, both from the Board and their people, $403.00.

The Board, during the year, have increased the average salary of the missionaries from $132.00 (which was the average salary paid by the Board the year preceding) to $152.00. This average increase of twenty dollars in the salary of five hundred and twenty-three missionaries, makes an aggregate of more than ten thousand dollars. Had their people advanced their part of their salary in the same proportion, the missionaries would have been still further relieved. It is worthy of notice that two-thirds of the increase in the salary of the missionaries were advanced by the Board, and only one-third by their people.

3. The Churches ought to Contribute more generally and liberally.

In view of the inadequate support of our missionaries already in the field, and the immense territory yet to be supplied with the preaching of the gospel, ought not the churches to contribute more generally and liberally to this cause? It is scarcely credible, but such is the melancholy fact, that not more than one-half of our churches contribute anything to our Domestic Missionary Board; and but for the special and liberal donations of a few individuals, the amount contributed by the churches would not be sufficient to sustain the comparatively small number of missionaries employed by the Board!

If this matter is examined more closely, it will be found that in the churches which contribute, the mass of the people give little or nothing. Frequently, if you subtract the subscriptions of a few individuals, the remainder of the sum contributed by the rest of the congregation amounts to a mere trifle. It is obvious that many give nothing at all! Surely, this ought not so to be.

4. Importance of Presbyterial Vigilance and Activity.

If the Presbyteries would see to it that collections are taken up in all the churches, the annual receipts of the Board would be greatly augmented, and their ability to aid in the support of the missionaries, and to extend the boundaries of the Church would be correspondingly increased.

Ought not the Presbyteries to inquire more particularly into the actual ability of the churches to support their pastors when they apply for missionary aid? Could they not, in some cases, induce them to become self-sustaining, and thereby increase the ability of the Board to help those who really need assistance, and to send missionaries into fields that are as yet entirely destitute?

5. Churches receiving Aid should endeavour to become Self-Sustaining and Contributing.

It is manifestly the duty of the churches to sustain the gospel among themselves, without the aid of others, when they are able to do so; and such churches cannot apply for any assistance from the missionary fund without great injury to themselves and injustice to others who really need the funds which they unnecessarily absorb.

Churches receiving assistance from the Board should endeavour to become, as fast and as fully as practicable, self-sustaining and contributing churches.

6. All our Missionaries ought to take up an Annual Collection for the Board.

We have observed, with surprise and regret, that many of our missionaries have not reported any collections for the Board during the year. If it is a divinely commanded duty to contribute towards the support and diffusion of the gospel, it is evidently the duty of every minister to bring this subject before his people, and to give them an opportunity of discharging their personal obligation with regard to this matter, and there are special reasons why our missionaries ought to attend to this subject. Men who are either in whole or in part supported by the missionary fund of the Church ought certainly not to neglect to present the claims of the Board, nor fail to afford their people an opportunity of contributing to it.

IX. NECESSITY OF PRAYER.

Indispensable as it is, that Christians should more generally and liberally contribute to the cause of Domestic Missions, it is even more important and necessary that they should more fervently and believingly pray for its success. Without the benediction of the Almighty, all our efforts will prove unavailing, while with his blessing, the feeblest agencies and instrumentalities will prove effective.

CONCLUSION.

In the further prosecution of the missionary work, immense and difficult as it is, let us be encouraged by what the Almighty has already enabled us to accomplish, and what he has promised to enable us to do, if we faithfully pray, and labour in obedience to his commands and in accordance with his revealed will. Every soul that is converted increases the number of "the sacramental host of God's elect." Every church that is formed, augments our strength and multiplies our resources for accomplishing the great work of our country's and the world's evangelization. Let us remember that the work is the Lord's, and all for the glory of his adorable name! We are weak, but he is strong; and "if God be for us, who can be against us?"

If God's professing people feel under any obligation to their Redeemer—if they love the Church of Christ—if they feel any interest in the welfare of their country—if they have any compassion for the souls of their fellow men, then let them aid the cause of Domestic Missions with their earnest prayers and liberal contributions. Let them reflect upon the uncertainty and shortness of human life, the solemnities of a dying hour, and their final accountability to Him, who will impartially render unto every man according to his work! O, that God would grant us all grace to pray and labour and contribute, with fervour, assiduity, and liberality, so that when Christ shall come, in the glory of his Father, and with all his holy angels, we shall not be ashamed at his appearing, but may behold with joy his approving smile, and hear with ecstacy his welcome plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servants, enter ye into the joy of your Lord."

G. W. Musgrave,
Corresponding Secretary.

REPORT OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Buffalo, May 30th, 1854.

The Rev. John B. Adger, D. D., from the Standing Committee, made a report on the Annual Report of the Board of Missions, which was adopted, as follows:

The Committee on the Report of the Board of Missions have unanimously agreed to recommend to the General Assembly the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That, considering the present and prospective population of our country, and the influence it seems destined to exert on all the nations, as set forth in the Report of our Board, the work of domestic missions, which the Assembly has committed to that Board, is exceeded in its importance and magnitude by no other interest of our Church.

2. Resolved, That this Assembly expresses its approbation of the diligent and faithful execution, on the part of our Board and its officers, of their important trusts, and its thankfulness to God for the measure of success which he has been pleased to vouchsafe to them.

3. Resolved, That this Assembly deplores the fact presented in this Report, that while our Church is not only increasing in wealth, but is steadily developing itself by an increase of members, churches, ministers, presbyteries and synods, there is yet no commensurate increase in her domestic missionary efforts, as evidenced by the circumstance that the average annual increase of contributions for this object through our Board, during the past four years is only $1,913, but during the ten years which preceded the past four years, it was $2,692, and the circumstance that we now have actually forty-seven domestic missionaries less than we had four years ago.

4. Resolved, That in connexion with this discouraging view of the past four years, taken into comparison with the preceding ten, the Assembly would record with devout gratitude, that during the year just closed, there has been an increase of the regular church contributions to this cause, amounting to $6,000, and would express the hope that this regular flow of the charities of our churches may henceforth never know an ebb.

5. Resolved, That this Assembly would express their special approbation of the earnest appeals made in this Report by the Board to our Presbyteries, in favour of more vigilant and energetic presbyterial action in behalf of domestic missions.

6. Resolved, That this Assembly, whilst deprecating any wasteful or unnecessary expenditure of domestic missionary funds, would express particular approval of the conduct of the Board in increasing, as they have done, the salaries of missionaries in the field; the Assembly would express further the assurance that the Board may proceed to a much larger increase in the allowance to their missionaries, fully relying on the justice and liberality of our people to supply the Board with such an increase of means as will enable it to lessen, to some extent, the privations now endured by our brethren; and while the Assembly express thus decidedly their view of the duty of the Board, they would most earnestly exhort the churches to greatly increased exertions, to meet the increased demands on the funds of the Board, which must result from any attempt to do justice to our missionary brethren.

7. Resolved, That it be recommended to the Board of Missions to encourage, as far as possible, the organization of the missionary field into districts, embracing several points of labour, with a view to adapting the system to the work of pioneering by an itinerant ministry.

8. Resolved, That it be recommended to the Presbyteries to encourage more and more the union of several small congregations in the support of one pastor, which, separately, are unable of themselves to sustain a minister, with a view to the more efficient support of the ordinances of God among them, with less expense to the missionary fund.

9. Resolved, That the following named ministers and elders be appointed to fill the vacancies reported in the Board of Domestic Missions:

Ministers—W. S. Plumer, James Hoge, C. W. Shields, J. J. Janeway, John Gray, J. B. Spotswood, F. McFarlane, S. J. P. Anderson, D. Magie, J. H. Jones, L. J. Halsey, J. C. Young, J. W. Alexander, A. Macklin, D. McKinney.

Elders—W. C. Brooks, M. Newkirk, W. S. Martien, G. Brown, J. M. Harper, J. N. Dickson, J. D. Williams, J. Cooper, Paul T. Jones.

10. Resolved, That Rev. Dr. R. J. Breckinridge be appointed to preach the next annual sermon before the Assembly, and that the Rev. John A. McClung be his alternate.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON THE SUBJECT OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Whereas, The Assembly has referred the whole subject of Church Extension, or the building of church edifices, to the Board of Missions, and

Whereas, This Assembly believes this subject to be one of vast importance to the welfare of our whole Church; therefore,

Resolved, That the Board of Missions, in order to give greater efficiency to this work, be instructed: Firstly, to enlarge the Committee of Church Extension; Secondly, to appoint a Secretary for this specific department, if they shall deem it necessary. Thirdly, to bring the cause before the churches in such way as they may deem best suited to secure attention to the importance of the work. Fourthly, to report separately to the Assembly receipts and disbursements of this fund.

And, further, This Assembly would earnestly and affectionately enjoin it upon all our churches to take up collections annually for this object, (to be reported in a separate column in the Appendix of the Minutes of the Assembly,) and upon all our Presbyteries to see that this is done.

MEETING OF THE BOARD.

At the monthly meeting of the Board, on the 12th of June, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:—

In pursuance of the instructions of the General Assembly on the subject of Church Extension, the following resolutions were adopted, viz.—

1. Resolved, That the number of the present Church Extension Committee be enlarged to eleven, of which the Corresponding Secretary of the Board and the Secretary of said Committee shall be ex-officio members, and of whom three shall be a quorum.

2. Resolved, That a Secretary of the Church Extension Committee shall be annually appointed by the Board, who shall take the charge of this specific department, and whose duty it shall be to conduct the correspondence on the subject of Church Extension, and collect funds for that object.

3. Resolved, That the Committee of Church Extension shall recommend to the Board, from time to time, the appointment of such agents and the adoption of such measures, as may seem to them needful in prosecuting the work assigned them.

4. Resolved, That the Committee of Church Extension shall keep regular minutes of all their proceedings, and present the same monthly to the Board for their review and control.

5. Resolved, That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Church Extension Committee to prepare an annual statement of the proceedings and operations of said Committee, to be either incorporated in the Annual Report of the Board to the General Assembly, or appended to said report, as to the Corresponding Secretary of the Board may seem best.

6. Resolved, That all expenses incurred in conducting the operations of the Church Extension Committee shall be charged to the Church Extension Fund, and paid for from the same.

After the adoption of the foregoing resolutions, the Board unanimously elected the Rev. REESE HAPPERSETT, Secretary of the Church Extension Committee.

Mr. Happersett being present, declared his inability to decide the question of duty immediately, but that he would communicate to the Board the result of his deliberation in the course of a week or two.

Under this new arrangement, we trust that the cause of Church Extension will be prosecuted with renewed energy, and from Mr. Happersett's long connexion with the Board, and his particular acquaintance with the operations of the former Church Extension Committee, should he accept the office to which he has been elected, we may hope that the important work of church erection will be carried forward with largely increased success.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of May, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Troy.—Malta ch	$8 69
Pby of Albany.—Northampton ch 5; Carlisle ch, from James Brighton, in part to con self an hon mem 5	10 00
Pby of Columbia.—Jewett ch	38 74

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg—First ch Oswegatchie 100; Morristown ch 8; Hammond ch 20	128 00
Pby of Michigan.—Hudson ch	7 00
Pby of Rochester City.—Penfield ch 10; Pickleville ch 7; Rochester 2d ch, children of the Bible class 4	21 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson.—Milford ch	15 19
Pby of North River—Newbury ch	29 60
Pby of Bedford.—Red Mills ch, from S S Myrick 5; Croton Falls ch 9; North Salem ch 5 40	19 40
Pby of Long Island.—West Hampton ch	10 00
Pby of New York.—Brick ch N Y 25; Brooklyn 2d ch addl from R R Field 100; Wallabout ch N Y 7 86; University Place ch N Y, from the Ladies 108; Fifteenth street ch N Y, for the West 7 50	248 36
Pby of New York 2d.—Peekskill ch	21 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Passaic.—Mount Freedom ch 17; Springfield ch 47 58	64 58
Pby of New Brunswick.—Freehold ch	19 15
Pby of West Jersey.—Bridgeton 2d ch 6 mos colls 25; Pittsgrove ch 30	55 00
Pby of Newton.—Upper Mount Bethel ch	10 00
Pby of Susquehanna.—Wyalusing ch 10; Wyalusing 2d ch 5	15 00
Pby of Luzerne.—Conyngham ch	11 38

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Tenth ch Phila addl from "A Friend through the Pastor 100;" Sixth ch Phila, ann coll in part 211; Cohocksink ch 27; Phœnixville ch, from a member 2 50	340 50
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Easton First ch	100 00
Pby of New Castle.—Head of Christiana ch 10; Zion ch 7; New Castle ch addl from Miss Julia Johns 2	19 00
Pby of Donegal.—Marietta ch 45; Middle Octorara ch 15	60 00
Pby of Northumberland—New Berlin ch 27 50; Jersey Shore ch 15 44; Mifflinburg ch mon colls 9 10; Hartleton ch 5 50; Elysburg ch 22; Shamokin ch 33; Orangeville ch 3; Brier Creek ch 3	118 54

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Cherry Tree ch	25 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Wheeling 3d ch	16 20

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus.—Truro ch 26, of which 14 from the Fem Miss Soc and 9 62 from the Sab sch; Mt Pleasant ch 33 50; Columbus 1st ch addl 21; Worthington ch 17 08; Blenton ch 8 77; Dublin ch 3	109 35
Pby of Marion.—Radnor ch, from a member	2 00
Pby of Zanesville.—Washington ch	46 83
Pby of Richland.—Martinsburg ch addl 20; Lexington ch 2; Savannah ch 2 90	24 90

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake.—Crown Point ch	2 40
Pby of Crawfordsville.—Eugene ch	4 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria.—Crow Meadows ch	2 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Milwaukie.—Waukesha ch 16; Milwaukie ch 15	31 00
Pby of Winnebago.—Wyauwega ch, donation of the pastor, Rev H Gardner, 5; Winneconnie ch 2; Dodge Centre ch 16 50; Burnett and Horicon ch 11 25; Bloomfield ch 1	35 75

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Greenbriar.—Kanawha Salines ch 25; Point Pleasant ch 11	36 00
Pby of Lexington.—Shemariah ch 47 50; Lebanon ch 14 25; Windy Cove ch 10 33; Bethany ch 63 cts; Warm Springs ch 3; Goshen ch 10 25; New Monmouth ch 9 63; Pisgah ch 7 50; Central Union ch 1	104 09

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Bethel.—Ebenezer ch, from Miss Mary Hutchison	5 00

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.

Pby of Tuscaloosa.—Presbyterial collection	30 88
	$1845 53

MISCELLANEOUS.

Joseph Bryan, Mt Zion, Ga. to const Mrs SOPHIA HARRISS an hon men 50; B S Parsons, Galveston, Texas, 25; A Friend, New York, 25; A Widow and her Children of Harrisburg Presbyterian ch 12 50; "Anan," Ohio, 6; Miss L A Donne, Onancock, Va, 3; Master Wm Steiner, Spruce Creek, Pa, 1; Miss Caroline Peel 50 cts	123 00

LEGACIES.

Franklin H Morgan, dec'd, of Knoxville, Tenn, per excu'r Calvin M McClung of St Louis, Mo, 1000, less exchange 10=990; W P Rea, dec'd, of Harrison co, Ohio, 176, less exchange 2 20=173 80; Geo R King, dec'd, of Belvidere, N J, 100	1263 80
Total,	$3232 33

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

2 Boxes from the Ladies of Madison Avenue ch, N Y, valued at	201 32
1 Box from the Circle of Industry of Winchester ch, Va, valued at	250 00
1 Box from a few families in the chs of Little Aughwick and Tuscarora, Pa, valued at	47 00
1 Box from the Sewing Soc of Cranberry 2d ch, N J, valued at	52 38
1 Box from the Boalsburg Miss'y Sew. Circle of Spring Creek ch, Pa, valued at	108 61
1 Box from the Ladies of the Franklin st ch Balt, valued at	314 00
Total,	$973 31

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of May, 1854.

Pby of Newton.—Stillwater ch	2 00
Pby of Raritan.—Flemington ch	24 00
Pby of Donegal.—Middle Otorara ch, from the Fem Benev Soc	24 25
Pby of Philadelphia.—Tenth ch, Phila, add'l from Wm Goodrich	50 00
Pby of Columbus.—Columbus First ch	14 00
Pby of Richland.—Fredericktown ch	50
Total,	$114 75

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of May, 1854.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Sidney.—Huntsville ch	17 00
Pby of Findlay.—West Union ch 6; Truro ch 5; Kalida ch 4 02; Rev J E Marquis, to con Mrs J E MARQUIS hon mem 25	40 02

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of Madison.—Mrs Sarah Reese, Hanover	2 00
Pby of Palestine.—Check returned by Rev H I Venable	20 33

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia.—Shawneetown ch	5 00
Pby of Sangamon.—First ch Springfield 75; Providence ch 3; Jacksonville ch 108 75; Third ch Springfield in part 51 25	238 00
Pby of Peoria.—Randolph Grove ch 6 83; Peoria ch 42 66; Clinton ch 7	56 49
Pby of Rock River.—Princeton ch	20 02

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Iowa.—Westminster ch 25; Middletown ch 1 50	26 50

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Collections in Missouri by Rev J F Cowan	57 50

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Transylvania.—Lebanon ch	6 50
Pby of Ebenezer.—Millersburg ch	10 25

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Nashville.—Smyrna ch	10 75

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.

Pby of Louisiana.—Coll of Louisiana Pby	346 52
Pby of Tombeckbee.—Coll of Tombeckbee Pby	38 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.

Pby of Western District.—Denmark ch 123; Brownsville ch 26	149 00
Pby of Chickasaw.—Sand Springs ch 4; Ripley ch 16; Unity ch 4; Hebron ch 1 25; Rev T C Stuart 3, Miss M J Stuart 3; Hopewell ch 6 30; Panola ch 2; Harmony ch addl 24 50; Chulahoma ch 12; Fredonia ch 5 50; Zion ch addl 25 cts; Waterford ch 7 25; College Hill ch 20; Bethany ch 9 60; New Hope ch 3 40; Lebanon ch 12; Sarepta ch 4; Monroe ch 10	148 05

MISCELLANEOUS.

Dr John N Dorsey, Corrydon, Ky, Sabbath earnings	8 00
Total,	$1199 93

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of May, 1854.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Ohio.—Pittsburgh 4th ch Sab sch 16; Plains ch 25	41 00
Pby of Redstone.—Dunlap's Creek and McClellandtown chs 11 37; Morgantown ch ladies' sewing society 38 44; Indian Creek and Harmony chs 4	53 81
Pby of Erie.—Franklin ch 10; Fairfield ch 4 25; Yellow Creek ch 16 20; Hanover ch 12 69	43 14
Pby of Allegheny.—North Butler ch 3; Clintonville ch 3; New Salem ch 3; Pleasant Valley ch 8	17 00
Pby of Blairsville.—Pine Run ch 13; Indiana ch 41 50; Plum Creek and Parnassus chs in part 49 57	104 07

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Washington ch female missionary society 18 00; Wheeling 1st ch ann and mon coll's 145 84; Forks of Wheeling ch 40; Mt Prospect ch bal to con Genl JAMES LEE h m 12 90	216 74
Pby of Steubenville.—Steubenville 1st ch in part, (Mrs. McLaughlin 12 50)	70 00
Pby of New Lisbon.—New Salem ch 5; Clarkson ch 8 07	13 07

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Friend 5; Rev. J. F. McLaren, D.D. 5; Dr. Isaac Longacre 2 50; Philip Ross, Esq. Wellsville, O. 25	37 50

LEGACY.

Wm. Reed, late of Fairview ch add'l to con Mrs. Mary J. Reed h m	25 00
Total,	$621 33

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

Female Missionary Society of Dunlap's Creek ch a box 37 50; Female Missionary Society of Indiana ch a box 52 23	89 73

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. Van Rensselaer, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
Wm. Chester, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
William Main, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to the Rev. C. Van Rensselaer, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

ABSTRACT OF THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The following is an abstract of the Annual Report of the Board of Education, presented to the last General Assembly:

Part I. Ministerial Education.—The importance of the work of the Board of Education is seen in the greatness of the office of the Christian ministry. With an origin from God, with the truth of God as the subject of its teachings, with the Spirit of God as the breath of its power, with the providence of God as the witness of present and eternal blessings, and with the glory of God to encircle its aims and results, the Christian ministry stands pre-eminent among the vocations of men.

The decrease of candidates for the ministry is then referred to, and statistics are introduced into the Report, showing that evangelical churches at home and abroad are all suffering from this source. The Methodist, Episcopal, Baptist, Congregational, and the different branches of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, as well as the Free Church of Canada, the Congregational churches of Great Britain, the Free Church of Scotland, and the Irish Presbyterian Church, all make the same complaint of a deficiency, or decrease of candidates for the ministry. This decrease commenced in our own Church in 1844, and the Report of that year ascribes, as "the grand reason" for the decrease, the "low state of religion throughout our churches." The present report concurs in the correctness of that statement, and gives some reasons why no other causes can adequately account for it.

Another fact, in direct opposition to the fewness of candidates, is that ministers were never in greater demand. (1.) The field accessible to ministers at home and abroad was never so great as at the present time. (2.) The present is a period of great events and rapid issues in the world's history. (3.) Satan is organizing error with unwonted strategem in opposition to the kingdom of God. (4.) The influence of our own country upon the destiny of the world is another plea in behalf of a greatly augmented ministry.

Prayer, as the means of securing an adequate ministry, is then insisted upon in the Report. Prayer was both enjoined and practised by Christ; and prayer brings the Church directly to God, and thus not only cherishes dependence upon Him, but arouses the Church to activity and effort.

Statistics of Candidates.—The number of new candidates this year is 104, a greater number than has been reported since the days of Dr. John Breckinridge. The total number on the roll is somewhat less than last year, being about 340. The reasons for believing that there will be an increase of candidates, and that our Church has probably reached its lowest point of decline, are then stated.

Recommendations to the General Assembly.—First, to raise the appropriations to eighty dollars for academical students, one hundred dollars to collegiate students, and one hundred and twenty dollars to theological students. The quarterly appropriations would then be for each class respectively, twenty, twenty-five, and thirty dollars. The average increase would be about one-fifth, involving an additional expenditure of five thousand dollars. The Board to have the liberty of increasing the appropriations in special cases, when recommended by the Presbyteries. The other recommendation is to provide some way by which the education cause may be systematically brought before all our churches.

Conclusion.—Two ideas are dwelt upon in the Report. (1.) The necessity of greater caution than usual in bringing young men into the ministry, at a time when a re-action in favour of this great profession seems about to take place. (2.) The importance of unremitting effort in the use of means tending to increase the number of candidates.

Part II. Christian Education in schools, academies, and colleges—Parochial or primary schools. The religious part of the instruction is promoted in three ways: First, by acts of worship, such as prayer, reading the Scriptures, and singing; secondly, by religious instruction in the Bible and Catechism; and thirdly, by Christian government and discipline. A number of new schools have been established during the year; and the munificent offer of $5,000 in aid of the cause has been of the most essential use. The number of schools is over one hundred. Some of the older scholars have professed religion during the year.

Presbyterial Academies.—The two points which require the constant care of Presbyteries are, first, to give religion its due prominence in the course of instruction; and secondly, to make the Academies first-class institutions in all the departments of secular instruction. A large number of youth in our academies have made a profession of religion during the year. The average would give at least two to an academy. The number of our academies is forty-seven. The Ashmun Institute, designed for the education of coloured youth, under the care of Newcastle Presbytery, is nearly ready for organization.

Colleges.—There are fifteen colleges under Synodical supervision, of which nine are well established, the others being of recent origin. In addition to these, three others have charters. After giving a brief account of each college, the Report refers to colleges not under the direct care of the Church, and advocates the position, that when such colleges have the confidence of the Synods, they should be regarded as Presbyterian institutions. The Report expresses the hope that fraternal co-operation will prevail in this department.

Miscellaneous and Teachers' Department.—Thirteen young men have received aid during the year; and among them several sons of our ministers.—Two have professed religion during the year.

General Remarks.—1. The right of the Church to educate does not imply an exclusive right, or the necessity of always exercising that right; nor does it compel parents to send their children to Church institutions. Furthermore, it does not depreciate other educational agencies besides the Church. 2. The apprehension that Church education brings too much business into our Judicatories, may be removed by leaving most of the management to Trustees. 3. The withdrawal of our influence from the State system is then considered. The education of our own children religiously need not, and does not, prevent us from supporting the public system, any more than the charge which our deacons have of the poor in the Church prevents them from sympathizing with the poor in the community who are outside of the Church. Besides, there is room enough for all classes of schools; and the influence of religious schools will be most salutary upon the State schools, especially in improving their religious character—4. The centralization of too much power in the Board, is met by the fact that, in the Presbyterian system, the entire internal management of the institutions is in the Judicatories. 5. The propriety of blending the two departments of the Board in one administrative agency, is left to the judgment of Assembly. Whether another Secretary shall be appointed, or a separate Board be established, or whether the affairs shall be conducted on the present plan, are questions, whose decision by the Assembly, in any way, will be acquiesced in by the Board without the least concern.

Funds.—The following is the state of the treasury:

	Candidates' Fund.	Schools, &c.
Receipts,	$34,961 26	$10,736 03
Balance,	8,068 91	1,998 46
Income,	43,030 17	12,734 49
Payments,	35,105 75	12,643 78
Balance,	$7,924 42	90 71
	Miscellaneous Fund.	African Fund.
Receipts,	$380 00	$60, 00
Balance,	28 42	1110 36
Income,	408 42	1170 36
Payments,	403 25	25 00
Balance,	$5 17	$1145 36

Total Receipts for the year, $46,137 29; total Income $57,343 44; total payments $48,177 78. The sum of 1000 00 having been transferred by the donor from the Candidates fund to the School and College fund, the above aggregates are to be diminished by that amount. Total balances, exclusive of the permanent African fund, $8,165 66.

ACTION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

1. Resolved, That in view of the greatness of the office of the Christian ministry, in its origin, its work, and its necessity in the divine economy of salvation, the diminution of candidates in our own and in other evangelical Churches for several years past is deeply to be deplored, especially as the signs of the times, at home and abroad, indicate an increased necessity for a greater number of wise, devoted, and amply qualified ministers. That this necessity is a providential enforcement upon the Church of the injunction of her Great Head, to pray—to pray in private, and in the sanctuary—to pray habitually that He will send forth labourers into the harvest.

2. Resolved, That the increase of new candidates during the year, demands our gratitude to God, who alone is able to turn the hearts of the sons of the Church from secular pursuits to the self-denying labour of preaching Christ and him crucified.

3. Resolved, That this Assembly, in view of the hopeful signs of increase in the number of candidates, enjoin upon Presbyteries the exercise of great vigilance, to guard against the introduction of the unworthy to a course of preparation for the sacred office; while at the same time, the cheering hope of a continued increase should by no means cause a diminution of effort to enlarge the ministerial resources of our Church.

4. Resolved, That this Assembly approve of the recommendation of the Board to increase the appropriations to candidates, so that those in the academical course shall receive $80; those in the collegiate, $100; and those in the theological, $120; with liberty, in special cases, of increasing the appropriations, on the recommendation of the Presbyteries.

5. Resolved, That the Assembly regard Christian training, at all periods of youth, and in all practicable methods, especially by parents at home, by teachers in institutions of learning, and by pastors, through catechetical and Bible classes, according to the injunction, "Train up a child in the way he should go," as binding upon the Church, and as having a vital connection with the increase of the number and the efficiency of the ministry, and of the stability and piety of the Church.

6. Resolved, That the efforts of the Presbyterian Church in behalf of schools, academies, and colleges, on a definite religious basis, and under her own care, have met with a success, important in present results and hopeful for the future; and that these operations deserve to be continued and enlarged, with an entire friendliness to all other educational efforts, not positively injurious in their tendency; and especially that institutions under the management of members of our own Church, either privately or in corporations not subject to ecclesiastical supervision, in which religion is duly inculcated, ought to be regarded as entitled to confidence.

7. Resolved, That the General Assembly, by affirming the Church to be one of the parties in education, and by acting on that principle in accordance with the practice of all the Reformed Churches, has never denied the importance of State co-operation in this great work, however defective it may be in some parts of the country; but, on the contrary, rejoices in the general enlightenment of the masses under the public school system, and hopes that all Presbyterians, besides supporting their own institutions, will continue, as heretofore, to be known as the sound friends of general education throughout the country, and as the advocates of the introduction of the Bible into the common schools.

8. Resolved, That the mode of conducting the operations of the Board in their enlarged scale, be referred to the Board itself, to take such action as may prevent either department from interfering with the other, and as may continue to keep prominently before the churches the education of pious and indigent young men for the gospel ministry.

9. Resolved, That the last Thursday of February next, be recommended as a day of special prayer and public instruction on Christian education, and especially with reference to the necessity of an enlargement of the ministerial resources of the Church, and of an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon our congregations.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

INCREASE OF APPROPRIATIONS.

It will be seen that the General Assembly have authorized the Board to increase their appropriations to candidates. The following is an extract from the Annual Report of the Board recommending the measure:

The first recommendation is an increase in the regular appropriations of the Board to students preparing for the ministry. The present scale of appropriations was fixed many years ago, when the expenses of living were far less than at the present time. The reasons, which render necessary an increase in the salaries of our ministers, apply with general force to the appropriations of our candidates. The last General Assembly gave to the Board a discretionary power to make an increase in special cases; but this liberty does not meet the want of a general provision. Our Church has always pursued the policy of an affectionate and dutiful concern for her sons who are dependent upon her care; and the time seems to have now come, to testify this interest by a more liberal provision for the supply of their temporal wants. This whole subject is indeed a very delicate one, and possesses its own intrinsic difficulties, both of principle and of administration. The Church has never undertaken to defray all the expenses incident to a theological education. She has, however, made arrangements to defray, in the theological department, the greater portion of the usual expenses; and in all the stages, presents facilities which generally accomplish the end in view, in connexion with other agencies. The Church aims at encouraging all her worthy sons, who feel called by the Spirit of God to pursue their studies for the ministry, with the prospect of sufficient pecuniary aid to meet their principal wants. The Church aids, but does not support; and, without entering into any argument in favour of the wisdom of this course, it is apparent that the scale of her provisions of assistance must vary with the condition of society, and not be fixed on any merely arbitrary rules. The Board believe, after an attentive examination of the subject, that the state of public opinion calls for an increase of aid at the present time. The amount of the increase, which the Board would suggest for the consideration of the Assembly, would be to make the appropriations to academical students eighty dollars a year, to collegiate students one hundred, and to theological students one hundred and twenty. According to this scale, the quarterly appropriations to each class respectively, would be twenty, twenty-five, and thirty dollars, and the additional expenditure involved would be about five thousand dollars.

The Board think that whilst this increase, amounting in the aggregate to one-fifth of the whole expenditure for candidates, would be as large as a careful view of all the circumstances would warrant as a general rule; discretion ought still to be lodged in the Board to increase the sum still further in particular circumstances where the Presbyteries recommend it. This special action ought to originate with the Presbyteries, and to be the subject of their parental and judicious scrutiny. It would also have its natural limitations in the ability of the Board to make the extra appropriations demanded.

The Board, however, do not doubt that the Church would supply their treasury with a sufficient amount of funds, to enable them to meet liberally all just and reasonable expenditures in so great a work as that of furnishing education to candidates for the ministry.

FAITH.

Ye who think the truth ye sow
Lost beneath the winter's snow,
Doubt not, Time's unerring law,
Yet shall bring the genial thaw.
God in nature ye can trust;
Is the God of Mind less just?

Read we not the mighty thought
Once by ancient sages taught?
Though it withered in the blight
Of the mediaeval night,
Now the harvest we behold;
See! it bears a thousand fold.

Workers on the barren soil,
Yours may seem a thankless toil;
Sick at heart with hope deferred,
Listen to the cheering word;
Now the faithful sower grieves;
Soon he'll bind his golden sheaves.

If Great Wisdom have decreed
Man may labour, yet the seed
Never in this life shall grow,
Shall the sower cease to sow?
The fairest fruit may yet be borne
On the resurrection morn.

FAULTS OF THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS.

The following remarks, copied from an exchange paper, are not written in exactly the spirit that is adapted to make them useful. But as they contain much truth, their persual may do good. It is difficult always to avoid extremes, either in acting or in writing.—[Ed.

FAULTS OF STUDENTS OF THEOLOGY.

That "there is not a just man that doeth good and sinneth not," all experience and history amply prove. The minister clothed with the dignity of his office, and trusted with a commission from the Captain of his salvation, is bound to utter the words of Paul, "I am a man of like passions with yourselves."

Absolute perfection is impossible alike to the student and the aged disciple well grounded in the rich experiences of the Christian life.

But that students of Theology, as a class generally, fall into lamentable errors, we think is comformable to experience. They are liable to peculiar temptations, against which they are not warned affectionately and sincerely. Dark clouds frequently obscure the bright sky of their hopes and plans, and no one steps up with a helping hand or sympathizing counsel. One of the prolific springs, whence issue the streams that frequently break over the restraints of reason and religion, and lead them in the paths of sin, is the sedentary nature of their life. They become dissocial in disposition, morose in feeling, and misanthropic to all the world. The sensitive chords that bind together their finer feelings, are ruthlessly sundered by the unfeeling. Whether from this cause, or from a natural, unsocial disposition, we cannot every time determine; but we find students of theology as a class more taciturn, and apparently morose, than any other class of students. Is this state of things as it should be? Under no circumstances or pretext whatever should the atmosphere of friendship be thus frozen, or evil passions be allowed to corrode and fester in the heart. They too often, we imagine, lay the blame of the evil working of their own minds upon external causes. We often see this class of persons laying aside all their naturalness, all liveliness, and sociability, and retire to sanctimonious seclusion and unworded silence. Such a course of conduct is far from being praiseworthy. It poisons their own peace of mind, unfits them for society and destroys their usefulness. Their friends' feelings are hurt, and the cause of religion injured. Gloom clouds their brow, and sullenness blunts their friendly feelings, and hence, very naturally, their unconverted friends reckon this to be the effect of piety. Christ is wounded in the house of his friends, and alas how grievous are those wounds!

They often lay aside the beautiful simplicity of nature, and put on the most repulsive gravity, as if a smile never illumed their acidified features. To see them in this state makes one recur to the cloistered monk, as he steps forth to impose upon the multitude by his solemn countenance and hypocritical stare. Such a way of manifesting piety is highly reprehensible and unscriptural; and we have so seen it in too many cases. How any one expects by this method to advance the work of grace in his own heart—establish his influence in the world, and insure his usefulness as a minister, we are at a loss to determine. Think you, my friend, that such long-visaged religion—such external gloominess is calculated to have a good influence on either the good or bad? The most useful and most beloved of ministers are those that are social and open-hearted—whose countenance is always rayed with kindness and joy. Man is won by little things, and by nothing more than to be regarded. You could travel through the world and strew it thick with friendships; but you are cherishing an evil habit that will shut you out from usefulness and the dear commingling of society. You may become an eloquent orator; a profound divine, and discharge your duty ably from the sacred desk; but if you shut yourself up within yourself, you fail to grasp one of the most prominent means of advantage and influence.

We ask the readers of this article, have they not seen preachers who kept themselves aloof from their flocks—who rarely descended from their stiff clerical dignity to a kindly greeting or a friendly converse; and if the hearts and consciences of such persons be allowed to answer for this fault, they will generally trace it to the unsocial habits contracted while students, when they allowed their unfriendly feelings to sour all their better feelings and sociable impulses.

Ion.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION
IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

DEBATE IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The debate in the General Assembly on the Board of Education is faithfully reported in the Presbyterian. A somewhat more extended report will be given in our next number.

ARANAMA COLLEGE, GOLIAD, TEXAS.

The Rev. Mr. Case, the agent of Aranama College, makes the following statement of the wants of the Institution. Any moneys, designed for this object, may be sent, if convenient, to the Board of Education.

The last Legislature of Texas granted to this Institution a charter, giving it power to hold property to an unlimited extent for educational purposes. In territory, it is entirely removed from Austin College at Huntsville.

The Presbytery of Brazos, some seven or eight years ago, when her territory embraced the whole of Texas, actually located what is now "Austin College," at this point. At that time, however, the region of country bordering west and north of Goliad was subject to Indian depredations; which fact, taken with other embarrassments then existing, led to its establishment at Huntsville, some two hundred and forty miles eastward. A small fund, however, had been given by friends in the older States, conditional that the Institution located furthest West, or nearest to Mexico, should receive the bestowment. To adjust this matter satisfactorily, it was agreed that if a seminary of learning, of high character, should be established by the Old-school Presbyterian Church, at any point west of the Colorado river, previous to the fall of 1854, then this fund should revert to that Institution, otherwise it should belong to Austin College.

But a stronger point is presented in the fact, that the citizens of Goliad, in their corporate capacity, bequeath to the sole use and benefit of this College, one entire league (more than four thousand acres) of the unsold land and lots of the town—besides the twenty acres upon which the old Aranama Mission building (now occupied by the preparatory department of the College,) at present stands. This bequest, however, has these conditions—that by the 12th of May 1857, the Presbytery of Western Texas shall have expended in buildings, library, and apparatus, the sum of $10,000, and shall have a regular college, with the necessary professors and teachers.

The town of Goliad is of Mexican origin, embracing a territory of four square leagues. It is one of the loveliest locations in all the West. The fertility of the soil, and its noted healthfulness, have made it the nucleus, around which, for the last two or three years, an unprecedented rush of population has poured, carrying settlements fifty to seventy-five miles westward of that point. The tide of emigration is still rolling over those wastes, that have hitherto been the haunts of predatory tribes. It may be safely estimated, that by the time stipulated on the part of the authorities of Goliad, for Western Texas Presbytery to fulfil its contract, the lands that will become the property of the College, will be worth $25,000. Private individuals in Goliad have contributed nobly, according to their ability, both in money and lands, for the undertaking. The moneyed donations offered as yet, however, by the friends of the enterprise at home, at the same time that they are individually small, are almost invariably by annual instalments. While, therefore, the Trustees have felt impelled to make a commencement in the way of building, and have already erected one commodious edifice, at an expense of $5000, they have been compelled to effect this in part with borrowed capital; individual members of the Board becoming responsible.

Finally, the wants of that section of our state, growing as it is with unexampled rapidity—imperiously demand that such an enterprise should be commenced at that point. Before two years shall have elapsed, more than a hundred of our youth will be in readiness to enter upon a college course.

And now, as to the necessities of this Institution. First, there is a want of funds, to enable its founders to comply with the conditions of the corporation of Goliad, in order to secure this valuable bequest of land. Secondly, there is a want of a library, a chemical and philosophical apparatus. Whatever may be the actual outlay of money in providing these, it will be remembered that just that amount goes to the credit of the Board of Trustees, with the corporation of the town of Goliad—for it is books and apparatus, as well as buildings, that are counted into the ten thousand dollars expenditure.

In conclusion, I would only add, our Institution needs the hearty prayers and warm sympathies of all who hold near to their hearts the cause of enlightened morality, and the blessings of the gospel. It was founded in prayer, with misgivings not a few, but in meek compliance with the precept, "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand." JOEL T. CASE.

New York, June 6, 1854.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The sum of Seventy-five dollars forms a scholarship to assist a student in the collegiate course, and the sum of One Hundred dollars in the theological course.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, MAY, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of Ogdensburgh.

1st ch Oswegatchie $36 00

Presbytery of Hudson.

Milford ch 8 75

Presbytery of Bedford.

Bedford ch 70 00

Presbytery of Long Island.

South Hampton ch 40 50

Presbytery of New York.

University Place ch 520 16

Presbytery of Elizabethtown.

Westfield ch 24 00

Presbytery of New Brunswick.

Pennington ch 57 50; of which for this fund 20; 1st ch New Brunswick (of which 100 from John Ford, Esq) 144 50; Freehold ch 9 26 173 76

Presbytery of West Jersey.

Williamstown ch 2 60

Presbytery of Newton.

Stillwater ch 4; Upper Mt Bethel ch 10 14 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

9th ch 52 09; 10th ch "for a particular student," through Rev Dr Boardman 100; 1st ch Easton 50 202 09

Presbytery of Northumberland.

Mifflinburg ch 4 72; Brier Creek ch 3; Rohrsburg ch 2 9 72

Presbytery of Washington.

West Union ch 9 00

Presbytery of Columbus.

1st ch Columbus 12 00

Presbytery of Chillicothe.

Presbytery paid candidate 14 50
Bloomingburg ch " " 4 25 18 75

Presbytery of Findlay.

Kenton ch 6 00

Presbytery of Lake.

Crown Point ch 2 40

Presbytery of Schuyler.

Monmouth ch 16 00

Presbytery of Lexington.

Lebanon ch 8 30; Windy Cove ch 6 12; Warm Springs ch 3 00; New Monmouth 7 62; Goshen ch 4 75; Pisgah ch 5 50; Bethany ch 63 cts 35 92

Presbytery of East Hanover.

2d ch Richmond 73 50

$1,275 15

LEGACIES.

Legacy of Franklin H Morgan, Esq, of Knoxville, Tenn, per Calvin M McClung, Esq, of St Louis, Ex, through Messrs Hacker, Lee & Co 1000, less ex 990 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

B S Parsons, Esq, Galveston, Texas 50 00

$2,315 15

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Presbytery of North River.

Rondout ch (special) 25 00

Presbytery of New Brunswick.

Pennington ch 37 50

Presbytery of Newton.

Greenwich ch (special) 38 00

$100 50

III.—FUND FOR TEACHERS, &c.

From Mrs Jane Rose, Phila, to con Rev WM BLACKWOOD l m 50 00

Total $2,465 65

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH, PA., MAY, 1854.

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Ebenezer ch 10 00

Presbytery of Redstone.

Greensburgh ch 14 28; Dunlap Creek ch 3 39; Morgantown ch 14 12 31 79

Presbytery of Ohio.

Lebanon ch 18 00

Presbytery of Alleghany City.

Beaver ch 11 25

Presbytery of Beaver.

Little Beaver ch 5 00

Presbytery of Washington.

Fairview ch 23 54; Forks of Wheeling ch 33 53; East Buffalo ch 21 78 07

Presbytery of Steubenville.

Ridge ch 18 00

Presbytery of Cincinnati.

Pisgah ch 10 00

$182 11

MISCELLANEOUS.

Dr Isaac Long 2 50

$184 61

J. S. LEECH, McALPINE & CO., Treasurers.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, IN MAY, 1854.

Presbytery of Kaskaskia.

Pleasant Ridge ch 3; Chester ch 7; Ruttans Prairie ch 5 15 00

Presbytery of Sangamon.

1st ch Springfield 90; 3d ch Springfield to con Rev R V DODGE h m 50; Jacksonville ch 91; Daniel McAfee, Union ch 5 236 00

Presbytery of St. Louis.

Bonhomme ch 10 00

Presbytery of Muhlenburg.

Greenville ch 5 00

Presbytery of Nashville.

Smyrna ch 3 75

$269 75

MISCELLANEOUS.

J F Bergen, Jersey Prairie, Ill 20; W B Montgomery 5 25 00

$294 75

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, N. Y., June 13, 1854.

China.—Letters have been received from Shanghai as late as the 14th of March, and from Canton, 25th of the same month.

At Canton, the missionaries were well, and were engaged in their labours as usual.

At Shanghai, the hearts of the missionary brethren were cheered by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Nevius in good health on the 14th of March. Mr. Wight's health still continued feeble, and doubts were no longer entertained of the necessity of a return to this country. He and his family, accompanied by Mrs. Coulter and her children, were expecting to embark for this country on the 16th of March. In relation to the general affairs at Shanghai, Mr. Wight remarks: "They remain very much as at our last dates; sometimes one party has the advantage, then the other. The rebels have maintained their ground much longer than any one supposed it possible. The insurgents at the north, by the last gazettes, were still at their old position. They have been making some advances in the neighbourhood of Nankin, having taken a city about one hundred miles to the west of it."

India.—We have letters from the Rev. C. W. Foreman, at Rawal Pindi, March 17; from Lodiana, March 17; from Furrukhabad, March 18th; Saharanpur, March 20th; Ambala, April 1st; Allahabad, April 5th; and from Agra as late as the 7th April.

Mention is made of the continued ill-health of Mrs. Janvier, but with this exception, the missionaries at all these stations were in the enjoyment of their usual health. Mr. Foreman was at Rawal Pindi, to make arrangements for the transfer of the government school to the mission.

Mr. Munnis, speaking of a missionary tour he had been making in the country about Allahabad, remarks, "The people were simple-hearted and open to conviction. How often was the remark made to us, 'All you say is very good and very true: but what can we do? We have never before heard of this Saviour. We have worshipped the gods in the way laid down in our shasters. As we have been taught from our infancy, so have we done. Come and live among us; teach us the true religion, and we will believe and embrace it with all our hearts.' Oh, that we had a few labourers, humble-minded men, to send among them; they would be kindly received by the people at large."

Mr. Campbell, speaking of a similar tour made by himself in the vicinity of his station, says, "There seemed to be a demand for the whole word of God, as if a desire had been excited among the people to know all about our religion and all that our good books say. May God bless what we so feebly did to make known to them the unsearchable riches of Christ."

A letter has been received from Rev. J. L. Scott, announcing the safe arrival of himself and wife, and a party of missionaries of the American Board, at Madras, on the 23d of March, after a tedious and somewhat perilous voyage of one hundred and forty-three days. The whole party were placed on short rations, both of food and water, for a considerable part of the voyage; and the sailing of the vessel was not only impeded but rendered very dangerous in consequence of the ice (the article with which she was loaded) melting more freely on one side of the ship than the other, and thus causing her to lose her sea trim.

Indian Missions.—Letters have been received from the Choctaw Mission as late as 1st of May; Chickasaw Mission, May 4th; and from the Creek Mission, May 19th.

Mr. Loughridge mentions that Mr. McCune had been greatly prostrated by hemorrhage from the lungs, and that a colored woman connected with the mission had also been afflicted in the same way. "The school," he says, "is doing well, and under all these trying circumstances, we are doing as well, generally, as could be expected." We are sorry to learn, that Mrs. Reid has suffered a good deal by sickness for several weeks, but it is hoped that her health has been restored before this. The other members of the mission family at Spencer were in the enjoyment of good health. Mr. Balentine gives an interesting account of the present flourishing condition of the female boarding-school at Wapanucka. The whole number of pupils, including a few who are temporarily absent, is about one hundred, most of whom are making the most satisfactory progress in their studies.

Western Africa—Corisco Mission.—Our readers have already been apprized, through the weekly papers, of the disastrous fire at Corisco, on the night of the 3d of April, by which two valuable lives were lost, and almost the entire mission-buildings and property consumed. A letter from Mr. Mackey, giving a full and detailed account of this sad disaster, will appear in the present number of the Record, and will be read with painful interest by all those who love the missionary cause.

Mrs. Clemens was sick at the time of this painful occurrence, and in consequence of the exposure to which she was subjected, in being removed to a native house at a distance, and from thence to the Gabooon two days afterwards, for the purpose of finding a more comfortable house and having the attendance of a physician, her sickness was much aggravated. But at the time of the sailing of the vessel, which brought this intelligence, she was thought to be doing very well.

Mrs. Williams's health did not improve on her voyage to Africa, as was thought would be the case when she left this country. In consequence of this, and the destitute condition in which the mission was left by the fire, it was thought advisable for her to return to this country.

A vessel belonging to Messrs. B. A. Mumford & Brothers of this city, which was to have sailed the morning this sad news was received, was kindly detained a day, that provisions, clothing and medicines, might be sent, to meet the immediate wants of our brethren at Corisco. Another is expected to sail about the middle or the latter part of next month, at which time a better supply will be forwarded. The Committee have resolved to send out a small iron house for the use of the mission, which will serve as a depository for their books and more valuable effects against any future fires.

The Committee have not thought it necessary to make any special appeal to the churches for aid to repair this unexpected loss. But several Christian friends in this city have made generous contributions towards this object, and we trust that others will be disposed to imitate their example, when the facts of the case have become known.

Since our last, Rev. David A. Wilson, of the Liberia mission, has returned to this country for the purpose of recruiting his health and meeting his family, from whom he has been separated for eight or ten months.

WANT OF TEACHERS AND ASSISTANTS AT THE INDIAN MISSIONS.

The missions and schools among the Indian tribes have frequently suffered for want of a sufficient number of assistants, male and female. At present, the want of more labourers is severely felt. To be able to meet the pressing calls for more labourers, the following statement of the wants of these missions is submitted:

Choctaw Mission—At Spencer Academy are 100 boys, under the direction and instruction of the Rev. Mr. Reid, and three able and competent teachers. In so large a family, a great deal of care and labour devolves upon the wives of the missionaries, and a single lady to assist Mrs. Reid has now become absolutely necessary. A seamstress is also greatly needed. Also, a single man to assist in taking care of the boys when out of school, and at work, and who would be willing to instruct by example, as well as by words.

Chickasaw Mission.—In the Female Institute, at Wapanucka, are 100 girls, under the care and instruction of the Rev. Mr. Balentine and his wife, and six female teachers. One teacher to make up this number, and a single lady to assist Mrs. Balentine are now greatly needed.

Seminole Mission.—There is a good prospect that a missionary for this tribe will be obtained soon, who will give his whole time to preaching the gospel. In addition, a teacher and his wife are needed for the school. Whilst this tribe are poor and discouraged, they are willing to have their youth and children instructed, and there are other encouraging circumstances connected with their present situation.

Creek Mission.—The large boarding-school at Tallahassee, in which are taught 40 boys and 40 girls, has for a year past been in need of two more female teachers. The school cannot exist long in this cripled state, and its continuance will depend on these teachers being obtained.

Iowa Mission.—Under the new treaty, the condition and prospects of the Iowas will be improved. But, for the continuance of the school, a farmer and his wife are now become indispensably necessary. The Rev. Mr. Irvin and his wife, in their state of health, must be relieved of a part of the care and labour devolving upon them, or they will be obliged to withdraw from the mission altogether.

Omaha Mission.—A female teacher is needed in this school, and a female assistant in the dining-room and kitchen, to supply these two places recently become vacant.

Ottoes and Sacs.—Under the same treaties, separate missions and schools will be needed for these two tribes, which at the least will require a teacher and his wife for each tribe.

Chippewa and Ottawa Mission.—The boarding-school at Grand Traverse, under the care of the Rev. Mr. Dougherty and his wife, is now suspended for want of assistance. There are needed one female teacher, a farmer and his wife, and a single lady to assist Mrs. Dougherty in the care of the household.

In all cases where it is practicable, the Committee prefer that the teachers, farmers and other assistants, should continue, as long as practicable, in the service of the Board, unless a failure of health make it necessary for them to return. But there are many qualified individuals whose way is not clear for engaging in the work permanently, who yet could engage in it for a limited time. For such the Committee would be willing to stipulate for a service of three years, and bear the expenses of the journey out and home.

The allowances for the missionaries, and for the assistant missionaries, as teachers, farmers and other assistants, are the same. Boarding and lodging, and everything but personal clothing, is furnished by the Board. Besides, for a man and his wife, $200 a year, and $25 for each child; for a single man $150; a single female $100. The allowances commence when leaving home, and the expenses of the journey, going out and returning, are paid by the Board, unless, in cases which rarely occur, the mission is left without just cause, when the expenses returning are paid by the individual.

To this brief statement of the present wants of the Board nothing need be added. In a Church so large as ours, it cannot be that there are not many qualified men and women for the needed supply. To the Indians it is a matter of life or death. We trust our brethren in the ministry, and others interested for the salvation of our poor heathen neighbours, will assist in finding suitable individuals and making them known to the Committee. Letters addressed to any of the Secretaries, Mission-House, 23 Centre street, will be duly attended to, and additional information, if wanted, furnished without delay.

Mission-House, N. Y. June 12th, 1854.

FRANCE.

A PERSECUTED TEACHER.

We have received a most interesting letter, of the 31st of May, from a respected correspondent in France, enclosing another from a young man connected with the "Central Protestant Society of Paris," who had been imprisoned for teaching in a private family. This letter we lay before our readers, and feel assured that it will be read with the liveliest interest. For prudential considerations, we leave out the names of persons and places, but our readers cannot fail to perceive that the cause of evangelical religion is making steady progress in many parts of France, notwithstanding the violent opposition of the Jesuits.

Our correspondent remarks, in connection with the dedication of the chapel at Sauveterre, for which they had the full authorization of the government, "This will prove to you, dear sir, that there is not in France a general plan for making opposition to the Gospel, on the part of the civil authorities. The opposition arises from the Jesuits only. If they find a prefect, sub-prefect, or mayor, disposed in such and such localities to do their will, our chapels or schools are shut up, or not allowed to be built. But in other localities, where the prefect, sub-prefect, or mayor, are independent, loyal men, the word of God goes its way in spite of the Jesuits; it was the case at Sauveterre, where 150 Roman Catholic converts have been received into the Protestant communion."

In the same letter, it is mentioned that "Two villages, one in the department of * * * and the other in * * *, have recently applied to us, in order to have the regular preaching of the Gospel among them."

From these and various other facts that might be laid before our readers if we had room, it is very evident, that the cause of evangelical religion is making much more rapid progress in France, than is generally known in this country, and we would earnestly commend this cause to the prayerful remembrance of all those who love the cause of our Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Dear Sir—I have delayed writing to you for some days about my stay in the prison of B——, because Mr. ——— wrote me that you were coming to ———. I hope you will come, and for the present, I will only say a few words. I thank God for all the blessings that he has vouchsafed to me during the six days that I was in prison. The jailor showed me much kindness and gave me great liberty; he often asked me into his room, that we might converse together, which gave me opportunities of declaring the gospel to him. From the time of my arrival he never confined me with the other prisoners until towards evening; he showed me several rooms, telling me to choose whichever I preferred. I chose the one which enabled me to have most people about me during the day, and I found myself next day in company with eight other prisoners, all respectable persons; one was confined for having forgotten to light his carriage lamp; another was a doctor who had practised without a license. I soon made acquaintance with these people, and when they found out who I was, they began to question me about the Protestant religion. From that time till I left the prison, I may say I was preaching incessantly every evening. Before we separated, we prayed together. The people were struck by the clearness of the teaching, and they were much affected by the prayers that I offered up for each of them. On Monday, an unexpected circumstance gave further opportunity of declaring the reason of the hope that is in me. The priest came to say mass; I attended along with the others; in the middle of the service he turned towards the prisoners, and began to preach against me, saying that he had learned that there was amongst the prisoners a dangerous person, who was trying by flattering and insinuating words, to turn them from the truth. He brought forward the old and well-known calumnies against the Reformation, and concluded by exhorting his good friends not to listen to such pernicious errors. After the mass, I sent word to the priest that I wished to reply to his attacks; he answered that he had not time; I then went up to him and told him that if he refused, I would publish his conduct in the newspapers; he then told me to go with him into his vestry-room; I replied that as he had attacked me publicly, I must answer him publicly. I had told the prisoners to stay; they urged him to agree to what I asked, and at last, more dead than alive, he went back to the chapel. Victory was assured to me beforehand by the prisoners, and to their great delight, the priest was completely defeated. He wanted several times to go away, but I detained him; at last I let him off after I had given him two of Mr. Priaux's tracts, "Rome and the Romish Church." One of the prisoners said to him: "Sir, as you have not time to-day, come and spend to-morrow here; if we find that you are right, we will follow you, but if the other gentleman is right, we will follow him."

Furious at having been defeated, he complained to the jailor. Shortly after, I was called upon for my explanation, and I expected that I should be separated from the other prisoners, and they feared the same thing, but nothing of that kind happened. The jailor asked me what had occurred. I gave him an account of it, and he then said to me, "If it were only for my sake, do not speak any more about religion." I answered, "Sir, you know how grateful I am to you for the kindness you have shown me, but you ask me to do what would be impossible. If you think it necessary, put me in a solitary cell, because as long as I have any one with me, I shall try to turn them from the errors of the Church of Rome." The jailor was struck with my frankness, and testified his approval of it by the greatest kindness.

Emboldened by this success, I offered him a Testament, some of Mr. Pridaux's works, and some religious tracts, which he accepted with real pleasure. The next day, I asked his permission to distribute a few New Testaments, a hundred or so of religious tracts, and to give a Bible to be kept in the prison; every thing was granted. Before I left, he desired to have another interview with me. I read several portions of Scripture and expounded them for him; he was moved to tears, and, pressing my hand, begged me never to go to ——— without paying him a visit. My fellow-prisoners all pressed my hand warmly, tears glistening in their eyes, and they promised that in remembrance of my visit they would read a chapter every evening, and when they returned home they would do all in their power to win over others to the Gospel, and they hoped that at some future time I would go amongst them to preach the Gospel. Indeed, any one who had heard them, would have thought they had been original Protestants.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

DESTRUCTION OF THE MISSION-HOUSES AT CORISCO BY FIRE, AND THE LOSS OF TWO VALUABLE LIVES BY THE SAME DISASTER.

The following account of the destructive fire at Corisco, will be read with painful interest by all who are interested in the missionary work.

About two months ago I wrote to you of the sad loss our mission sustained by fire. We have now to notify you of another, far more destructive and sorrowful in its consequences. On Monday night, the 3d of April, the Mission House at Evangasimba took fire, and it, with our kitchen, which was rebuilt since the former fire, were totally consumed, and almost the entire contents, including our personal effects and the goods belonging to the mission; but what is most melancholy, two American coloured women, who were living with us as servants, lost their lives in the fire.

The following are the particulars: We had all retired before half-past ten, and there were asleep in the house, Mr. McQueen, Mr. and Mrs. Clemens, Mrs. Mackey and myself, one sick sailor, and fourteen little girls, our boarding scholars; besides Margaret and Julia, the two coloured women mentioned above. Brother Williams and his wife were in Gaboon, on account of Mrs. Williams's health. A little after eleven o'clock, I heard a cry of fire in the servants' room, which was separated from our own by the dining-room only. Mrs. M. and I were instantly up and rushed through the dining-room and servants' room to the girls' sleeping apartment, which communicated with the servants' room. For prudential reasons we always kept their doors locked at night, leaving the key in the servants' room. As I passed through the dining-room the fire had made but little progress, but it was burning with such fury that any attempt to extinguish it would have been utterly futile. When I had opened the girls' door which communicated with the servants' room, the fire had progressed so much that parts of the burning thatch were already falling in. We succeeded in getting the girls all out, Mrs. M. bringing the smallest in her arms. When we passed out through the servants' room, they were both making efforts to secure some of their clothing, and we left them to take care of themselves. In the meantime, Mr. McQueen and Mr. Clemens were aroused on the opposite side of the house, and both of them were for a few minutes engaged in removing Mrs. Clemens to a place of safety in another house. She was in delicate health and in a very delicate situation. As Mrs. M. and I retired with the girls, the fire followed us in the thatch of the roof nearly as fast as we passed through the rooms. No one can conceive the rapidity with which a bamboo house burns, even if he knows the highly combustible nature of the materials, unless he has actually seen one in flames. The roof of the mission-house covered an extent of one hundred and ten feet long and fifty-five feet wide, except twenty feet on one end, which was only half as wide as the other part. This was the library, and used as a study and sleeping room by Mr. McQueen, and now occupied by the sick sailor mentioned above. In less time than ten minutes after the alarm was given, the house in its whole length and breadth was enveloped in flames, and in fifteen minutes the roof had all fallen in.

When we had all, as we thought, left the house, we could not find Margaret and Julia. Mr. McQueen had once spoken to Margaret at the outer door, and Mrs. M. and I had seen Julia making an attempt to save some of her clothing while the way was still clear to escape from the house. They were both women of active bodies and energetic minds, and not a thought occurred to any of us in regard to their safety; and though we could not find them in the large crowd of people who had come together, still we were not alarmed. Soon, however, we were told that they had been seen running to the bush apparently in terror, but we looked for them in vain. When daylight appeared we found their remains, not on the ground where their own sleeping room was, but on the ground occupied by the girls' sleeping room. The only way that we can account for their being found there, is that in their bewildered state they had taken the wrong door in getting out of their room, and were not able to return in consequence of the fire shutting them in. They were both members of the Church, and we trust were pious women. Margaret was raised by Mr. Livingson, of Wilmington, North Carolina. She came out as an emigrant to Liberia in 1849, but never resided in the colony, preferring to come on with our mission company, which came from America at the same time, and she continued to live with us since. She was a woman of rare energy and force of character. I have rarely seen any one, white or black, who had more determination of purpose. When she came to Africa, she scarcely knew her alphabet, but by application and perseverance she had learned to read tolerably well, and she spent hours every day in reading her Bible. Julia was raised by Mr. McDonough, of New Orleans, and was a resident of Monrovia for eleven years, but left there in November last to live with Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who came out to join this Mission.

The fire was in the roof, apparently coming up from the outside, when first seen by both brother McQueen and myself. The girls never had a light or any fire in their sleeping apartment. The light in the servants' room was extinguished when we retired, and so far as we know there had been no light or fire in the house for an hour before the fire broke out, unless the servants had for some reason relit their lamp. We have now no means of ascertaining whether that was so or not. We are backward to believe that it was the work of an incendiary. There is a bare possibility that it might have originated from the servants' lamp, if it was relit, but we think it scarcely at all probable. The only other conceivable way it could have originated, was that some villain for purposes of plunder set fire to the house outside; and we are inclined to think that this was the case, since during the fire there were many things stolen which were put out of the house.

There was much sympathy expressed in our behalf both on the night of the fire and since. While the house was burning there was much weeping and loud lamentation both by men and women. I have not the least doubt that if the work was that of an incendiary, and the person known by any of the headmen, that he would not live two hours. Such is the regard that our mission is held in by the better class of the people. But there are many slaves here and some of them are desperate villains; and we have had many thefts committed by them, but very few committed by the Bengas themselves. Twice we have captured men in the very act of stealing, but they were not Bengas. I do not mean to intimate that the Bengas are either an upright or an honest people, but we are well satisfied that your missionaries here occupy a high place in the affections of the people, and that the mission exerts a strong and salutary influence over them. The king and principal head-men were absent from the island at the time of the fire, on their trading business. They have all been sent for, and a good many of them have already returned. The whole matter will be brought before them; we will demand the return of the stolen goods, and a strict inquiry to be made in regard to the origin of the fire. In the meantime, our operations are almost suspended. Our little girls and boys are all dispersed to their heathen homes, because we have no place to keep them. The clothing of the girls which was principally furnished by kind ladies in America, was wholly consumed, except their night-dresses. We are occupying the houses of two of our native villagers. The new house in process of erection at Ugobi, is far from being finished, on account of the difficulty of obtaining materials, and for my own part, I would not feel as secure as I would like in another bamboo house, and brothers McQueen and Clemens have expressed the same of themselves.

We made an attempt to save a few things, but we were so soon compelled to leave the house, that scarcely anything was saved from the flames. So that our loss has been almost the whole amount of the property in the mission. Furniture, bedding, medicines, provisions, our united libraries, making in all at least fifteen hundred volumes, including our account book, and the records of the mission, and all our correspondence, not even a Bible saved, except the one in the Chapel, and the store of goods which we had on hand as the money of the mission. We saved some little of our personal clothing, part of our bedding, and, perhaps, one hundred dollars worth of cloth belonging to the mission, though a considerable amount of what was got out of the building was stolen. There was a French vessel in the bay at anchor, which furnished us some medicine and necessary provisions for our immediate need. I ought to have mentioned above, that we had in another building five barrels of bread, some rice, and a barrel of beef, which, of course, were saved. We, however, despatched a boat to Gaboon to request Capt. Lawlin, of the bark "Gem," to come to our relief. He did so immediately, bringing Dr. Ford with him also. His promptness in coming, and his kindness to us after his arrival, merit our liveliest gratitude, as well as that of all the friends of this mission. We take this opportunity also of testifying our indebtedness to our kind missionary brethren and sisters of the Gaboon Mission, who so promptly contributed to supply our necessities. So that in regard to food, and clothing, and medicines, we are for the present quite out of the reach of want.

Some of the dispensations of Providence towards our mission have been dark. The present is one of them. Have our affections been too much set on the comforts by which we were surrounded? God has taken many of these away, and two who helped to bear our burdens are also snatched from us. But why were two precious lives thus suddenly taken away? Thou, Lord, knowest. What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter. Yours, &c.

JAMES L. MACKEY.

INDIA: LODIANA MISSION.

APPEAL FOR MORE LABOURERS.

We lay before our readers the following appeal from the brethren of the Lodiana Mission, for more help in the missionary work, and we trust it will receive the serious consideration which its great importance demands. We are happy to say that the Rev. John Newton's health has improved, and he expects to return to his work in connection with this mission during the summer. Rev. George O. Barnes of the Seminary at Princeton has also been designated to this mission, and will go out at the same time. Others, however, are needed, and we trust will be found for this field of labour.

In the Church's efforts to evangelize the world, it is, in a peculiar manner, her duty to observe the leadings of Providence. Let her follow this cloud by day and pillar of fire by night, and she will not stand idle in the market-place, nor run where she is not sent. And where, in the history of Christianity, has so wide a field for her benevolent efforts been thrown open as in British India? Here is the fairest portion of earth. Here the ambition of renowned conquerors from the age of Semiramis to the battle of Plasey, which gave India to a Christian power, has led them to found mighty empires. Here a desire of gain has led commercial adventurers in all periods of national intercourse. Here, then, let the Church found empires for the Captain of her salvation. Here let her win souls, more precious than gems and gold, to enrich her Redeemer's kingdom. Here is a country, where, for nearly forty centuries, idolatry and superstition, in their worst forms, have reigned; whose length is two thousand miles, and its breadth over sixteen hundred; whose inhabitants are numbered by almost hundreds of millions. Here is a field for religious enterprise, surpassed by none in the heathen world. Here the shield of British protection is cast over the Christian missionary from all countries. Here he may go forth to the highways, the bazars, and melas, to preach Christ, encouraged and aided by the powers that be. He may tread the streets of every village, and the walks of every grove, from Cape Comorin to Cashmere, and make known the way of life unmolested. Here, British legislation and British science are coming in contact with despotism and ignorance, and triumphing over them. While we write, the posts for the support of the wires of the telegraph which is to carry news from Calcutta to Peshwar with the rapidity of lightning, are being set up close by our mission premises, and a railway to unite the same distant places has been commenced, which will also pass close by us. Here, also, the intelligent missionary may find in almost every town and city, Christian friends ready to receive him as a brother; and congenial society in no way inferior to that of his native land. Here he may find nearly all the comforts and luxuries of civilized life, and a people polite, intelligent, and in many respects refined—capable of weighing arguments—of comparing truth with error, and appreciating that which is right. Here he may find a comparatively fine climate, and for constitutions predisposed to pulmonary disease, more favourable than that of America or England. Since the commencement of our missions, twenty years ago, only one ordained and one assistant missionary out of upwards of thirty, have died in the field, and only two or three have had to return home on account of the failure of their own health.

In our field of labour, we have seven months in the year of delightful, dry, bracing weather, and frequently heavy frost and ice in December and January. But above all, here is an immense field white already to harvest. The gospel sickle has been thrust in, and much precious fruit gathered home. Here are twenty-two missionary societies, four hundred and forty-three missionaries, forty-eight native preachers, six hundred and ninety-eight catechists, three hundred and thirteen mission stations, three hundred and thirty-one native churches, eighteen thousand four hundred and ten communicants, one hundred and twelve thousand one hundred and ninety-one native Christians, one thousand three hundred and forty-seven vernacular day-schools, containing forty-seven thousand five hundred and four boys; ninety-three boarding-schools, containing two thousand four hundred and fourteen Christian boys; one hundred and twenty-six high English day-schools, containing fourteen thousand five hundred and sixty-two boys; three hundred and forty-seven girls' day-schools, containing eleven thousand five hundred and nineteen scholars; one hundred and two girls' boarding-schools, containing two thousand seven hundred and seventy-nine Christian girls. From all this instrumentality, light is arising. From these fountains of knowledge a spirit of inquiry is going forth through all the grades of native society, and undermining long established opinions. A doubt as to the truth of Hinduism is disturbing the repose of centuries, and filling the hearts of many with fearful forebodings. A desire of something more rational and better is taking possession of the rising generation. Reformers in various places are putting forth new creeds, in many of which important gospel truths are blended with much that is erroneous. A celebrated faqir in Benares has lately declared himself a Christian, and has many followers. Another, near Lodiana, has assumed the title of "Servant of Christ," and numbers his disciples by thousands. His watchword is "Glory to Christ." He ascribes his conversion to the reading of a copy of the New Testament in Panjabi, which he received from the late Mr. Thompson, of Delhi, some twenty years ago. This he professes to take as his guide in all matters of faith.

Only a few months ago, some eighty Sikhs, at a place in the Panjab called Rawal Pindi, openly professed themselves Christians, and a pious English officer, who resides at that place, sent for one of our brethren at Lahor, eighty miles distant, to visit and instruct them. He has also offered 100 rps. per mensem to support a missionary, if we would send one. Similar offers have been made by other pious English gentlemen in different places, but we can do nothing for them for want of men. The above new sects of Christians are all unconnected with any Christian missions, and are, in knowledge and morals, far below the gospel standard. Their creeds embrace much that is opposed to the truth, and much of their walk and conversation is far from scriptural holiness. Their chief motive seems to be to found new sects, and to gain notoriety. They are blind leaders of the blind. They require spiritual teachers to give a right direction to their zeal, and to guide their feet to the path of life. Many of them have endured persecutions with the heroism of martyrs. The scourge, the prison, the stocks, and dungeon, have all been tried in vain to bring them back to Hinduism. To us, as missionaries of the gospel of peace, they have, in some instances, appealed for help and protection, but all we could do was to wish them God-speed, in seeking the truth, and promise them our prayers. Much as we desire to take advantage of these incipient germinations of truth in the masses of heathenism around us, and water them from the well of salvation, we have not the men to spare. It is now time to look for the fruit of missionary labour in our field, but if the Lord should be pleased in answer to our prayers to pour out his spirit on our work, we would be lost in the inquiring multitude, like drops of rain in the ocean. Our present stations are languishing for help. Lodiana, our oldest and once most flourishing station, now presents a scene of deplorable desolation. A brother, who was one of its principal founders, has lately gone to his reward, and his place is left vacant. The press is without a manager, except what superintendence one of the two remaining brethren can give it. The High School, containing more than two hundred scholars, can only have part of the time of the other brother, and must be left chiefly to the direction of native teachers. In the city church and chapels, large audiences assemble on the Sabbaths and week-day evenings to hear the gospel preached, and must be met. A small congregation of native Christians must be instructed; the sick must be daily attended to in the hospital and dispensary; the bindery looked after; proofs read and corrected for the press; visitors entertained, and inquirers instructed at all hours of the day: all of which would be work enough for at least four men.

Sabathu, a delightful station on the hills, which was occupied for about fourteen years, and in which we have two valuable mission-houses and a chapel, has been abandoned nearly four years for want of men. The youth which were there instructed at much expense in our schools, have been left to grow up to maturity without further culture or guidance. The gospel seed which was there sown, has been neglected, and a few who were feeling after truth, left to their former errors.

In Saharunpur more help is required. One of the members of that station has lately had to leave his post on account of continued illness, and to remove to a place more congenial to his health. At Ambala, we greatly need one or two more men to labour in the Cantonment, four miles from the native city, where our station is. It is the largest military post in Upper India, and has a population of about 25,000 souls. Here, are hundreds of native Christians, connected with the British army, who scarcely know the name of our Saviour, and a large class of persons descended from European fathers and native mothers, very little more enlightened. Our duties at our station will not allow us to give these people the instruction and oversight their case demands. In order to gather their youth into schools and exert a religious influence over them and their parents, a missionary ought to reside in their midst. In Lahor, we much need at least two more men, and in Jalandar, a large flourishing town, we have only one native brother, who very much feels the need of an experienced foreign missionary to advise and encourage him. He has had to labour alone for seven years, for the simple reason, we have had thus far no such man to send to him. In addition to our stations, we are surrounded by large cities, whose names have been so often brought before the Christian community, in our journals and reports, that we need not repeat them, which are inviting fields of labour. We have, with the sanction of the Board and Church, taken up a field some five hundred miles in length, and from two to three hundred in breadth, and assumed the responsibility of cultivating it for the Lord.

And now, we ask, will the Board and the Church enable us to meet our responsibility? Will they, with a faith that will remove mountains, take hold of the eternal covenant, and plead the decree the Lord hath declared to his beloved Son? Will the Church bring all her tithes into the store-house of the Lord of hosts, and prove him if he will not open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing? Will she dedicate her sons and her daughters on the missionary altar, and send them forth to the work of the Lord among the heathen? Let not Christian fathers and mothers say, This is a hard saying. Thousands of parents in England send out their sons at an early age, to enter the Indian army and civil service, and their daughters to join their brothers and other relations. All of whom are usually more exposed to the dangers of the climate than missionaries. We, too, who live in heathen lands, have to send our children at a tender age far away to our native homes, to save them from an influence worse than that of climate. Our hearts bleed for them, but parental duty requires the sacrifice. We cast them on the Church, and we say, bring them up for the work of missions; send them, if qualified, to India, to China, to Africa, or wherever the providence of God calls them to go. We know our Board is anxious to send us all the help they can. We lodge no complaint against them. It is to the Church we appeal for more labourers. As watchmen on the walls of Zion, we feel we would be false to our Redeemer, to the heathen, and to the Church, were we to rest satisfied with our present force. Shall we keep silence and slumber at our post while disease and death are laying us waste, and hurrying millions of benighted Hindus from our midst to the tomb? Shall we forbear to disturb the midnight sleep of God's people, while the damnation of the heathen lingereth not and slumbereth not? Say not, Christian friends, all has been done that need be done to stir up a greater degree of missionary spirit in the Church. Say not our appeal will be of no use—that the Church is weary of such calls. Let it be read in the Sabbath school, in the pulpit, in the family circle, and in the colleges and schools of the prophets, and it will not be in vain.

To the dear young brethren who are looking forward to the ministry of reconciliation, we would say in a special manner, "Come over and help us." Some of us have been long in the service. The frost of age is silvering our heads. Our natural vigour is beginning to abate. Prepare to take our places when we fall. Weigh well your duty to the heathen. Mark well the leadings of Providence. Dismiss not this subject with the trite remark, "There is plenty to do at home." What are the destitutions of the "far west" compared with the spiritual dearth of India? Do not neglect the domestic field. But do not all stay at home. Remember the field is the world, and the command is, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. Say not, Let England evangelize her own conquered heathen lands. English Christians might also say, we have plenty to do at home. But what has the kingdom of Christ to do with man's petty divisions of the earth? It knows no political or civil bounds; it is coextensive with the world, and its greatest duty is to conquer the whole world.

God has not given India to England merely as a field for British prowess, or British benevolence. He has not filled the hearts of one hundred and fifty million Hindus with awe at the presence of a few thousand Europeans, merely to fill the coffers of Great Britain with Indian gold. When, a few years ago, the most powerful enemy with which she has ever had to contend in Hindustan threatened to drive every Christian into the ocean, when the whole mass of India's millions heaved with revenge, like the troubled sea, and only waited for the Sikhs to strike the first successful blow, to join in the work of destruction; when the thunders of their hundred pieces of artillery came booming across the Sutlege river, and reverberated through our stations, causing us to quail; when the Governor-General of India, Commander-in-Chief, and many of the great officers of State, hastened to the frontier to check the coming tornado; when the fate of India seemed suspended on a single battle, and trembled in the balance; when, after a few skirmishes with the flower of the Panjab, the British ammunition was nearly all expended, and their army exposed to the infuriated Sikh cavalry; when many renowned heroes fell, and stout hearts began to fail; when the Governor-General ordered all his state papers to be taken off the field, and prostrated himself in prayer to the God of battles as his last hope; and when an order was given to retreat, who impressed the doughty Sikhs with the idea that that retrograde movement was intended to flank them, Who then spread dismay among their sixty thousand warriors, and caused them to fly in confusion across the river they had lately so proudly passed over, and to leave thousands of their fugitives to the mercy of British bayonets? Never since the walls of Jericho fell, at the sound of the rams horns, was a ruling Providence so manifest as in that battle. But it cannot be supposed He revealed his arm merely for the glory of the British arms. No! It was to open up a larger field for the Gospel of his dear Son. And now he invites his blood-bought people from all Christendom to come and labour in this field. Come then, dear brethren, and help us to take possession of this good land in the name of the Lord. We invite you, by the love you bear your blessed Redeemer and his cause, by the perishing millions of India, and by the retributions of eternity, to come over and help us.

INDIA: ALLAHABAD MISSION.

EXTRACTS FROM THE JOURNAL OF REV. JOSEPH OWEN.

The following extracts from the journal of Mr. Owen will be read with interest, on account of the information they give of a portion of India, of which very little is known, and the new openings which they present for the extension of the missionary work in that part of the world.

Banda—its Buildings, Natural Resources—Cruel Practices.

Feb. 10th. Marched fourteen miles into Bánda, and pitched on the borders of the large tank. For a few miles west of Bánda, the soil is very barren, and the country is desolate. No rain worth speaking of has fallen since September, consequently, the light soil here is like ashes, and the atmosphere for some miles before we reached Bánda was filled with dust, and murky. Before entering Bánda, we forded the Cane river, on whose left bank stands Bhura Gurle, a large fort, built in 1784 by Rajá Greman Singh, from whom it was taken by Alée Bahádur. It was taken by the British in 1803. Within the fort is a well of frightful dimensions and depth. The fort is of not the least use now, stands quite empty and unprotected. The Cane is celebrated for its beautiful agates, jaspers, porphyries, serpentines, etc., which are usually found in its bed in the neighbourhood of Punnah, but brought here to be cut and polished; and they take a most beautiful polish. After crossing the river, we passed, on our right, the small rocky range of hills, called the Rock of Bánda, overlooking the town. Soon after this we passed, on our left, the large handsome buildings in which the judges' and magistrates' courts are held. Their proximity to the town seems to encourage the natives in litigation. Before reaching the courts, however, we passed the prison and the gallows. Nearly six hundred are now in the prison, and the gallows is in frequent use. One of the most common crimes for which people are here hanged, is that of murdering infants, plundering their bodies of the silver ornaments, and then pitching them into a well or pit. The bodies are often found at the bottom of a well, many days and even months after the children have been missing. Pity the poor magistrate that has to ascertain the truth and administer justice. Half a dozen men come into court and swear that white is black; another half dozen come and swear that black is white, and he is to decide who is right. Formerly, the oath was taken by Hindus over Ganges water, and by Mohammedans over the Koran, but this is now abolished, and a solemn affirmation taken in its stead. And such specimens of human nature as we meet with in these courts and prisons, those in Sing Sing are mere common-place rascals in the comparison. He had not extended his observations to India who thus eulogized man:

> "What a piece of work is man! how noble in reason!
> How infinite in faculties! In form and moving
> How express and admirable! In action how like
> An angel! In apprehension how like a god!
> The beauty of the world! the paragon of animals!

Man is here the paragon of animals with a vengeance—one almost blushes to belong to the same species. The streets of the city of Bánda have been widened by the English authorities, and, consequently, their healthiness increased. There are several indigenous schools in the town, the number of which I have not yet ascertained. Our own mission school, opened on the 7th of last November, is making good progress. The eastern end of the town is occupied with the Nawáb's cantonments, and his palace built in European style. A mile beyond is the Nawáb's tank, in which is a grand barge, on the borders of which is a handsome country residence, and near which are extensive gardens. On the southeast of the city is a small district belonging to the old Rájá of Bánda, whose residence is now at Ajeegurh. It is an inconvenient neighbourhood to the civil authorities, frequently affording shelter to defaulters; its separate independent existence will therefore probably soon cease. The civil lines are near the city, and the military cantonments about a mile from the city. A regiment of infantry is usually stationed here. A part of that now here is at present doing duty at Nowgong. The civilians are a judge, magistrate, joint magistrate, and assistant magistrate. The judge has jurisdiction not only in the Bánda, but also in the Hauneerpore and Jaloun districts. A neat little gothic church has recently been completed in cantonments, in which the residents at the station worship every Sabbath. There is no chaplain, but the commanding officer or some other gentleman reads prayers, and a sermon. About twice a year, a chaplain visits the station and administers baptism and the Lord's Supper.

Preaching.

Feb. 12, Sabbath.—Preached this morning to nearly all the prisoners in the jail, who listened with great attention. This is usually a part of Paul's duties here on the Sabbath. After this, at nine o'clock, another interesting assembly collects near his house, about a hundred blind people from the city, to whom he and Melancthon first read and give instructions from the Bible, and then distribute alms to the amount of five rupees, furnished every week by Mr. Cust, the magistrate. In the afternoon I gave a lecture to a small assembly of the residents of the station, after which I again took Paul's place in a service with some native Christians and others, at Mr. Fagan's, the judge.

The Schools at Banda.

Feb. 16. Have been examining the school, attending to its financial affairs, which thus far are in a gratifying state, and searching for a suitable locality for its permanent settlement. The native revenue collector has just informed me that there are in the pargana of Banda 27 Persian schools, in which 143 boys are taught, and 21 Hindí schools, in which the total number of boys taught is 314.

A Brahman preaching the Gospel.

Feb. 18. A converted Mahratta Brahman came here a few days since, to see and converse with some of his relatives who are in the Nawàb's service. They are all very shy of speaking to him in public, or of having it known that they say any thing to him. I have been assisting him, as far as possible, in getting private interviews with them, and with some pleasing success. The conversion of this Brahman was remarkable. A few years ago, a gentleman in the civil service wrote an "Examination of Religion," which this learned Pundit took up and attempted to refute. He did so to the satisfaction of his friends, and of his own mind at the time. But he was led to reflect more seriously on the subject, and the result was his full conviction and eventual conversion to the Chris tian faith. He is now a zealous and able preacher of the Gospel.

Ingenious Illustrations of Truth used by a Native Convert.

Feb. 20. This evening I went with Yúnas into the village, where, in an open square, under a large tree, about forty people assembled, to whom we explained the plan of salvation. Near us stood a hideous image of Hannman, the monkey-god. Yúnas used a good illustration in showing the simple villagers the absurdity of their idolatry. A father leaves his child, and goes into a far country. The child forgets whom his father is like, but wishing to have some definite representation of him before his mind, makes a little mud image, sticks on its face an elephant's trunk, furnishes it with a tail, and says, This is my father! The village Pundit returned with us to the tent, with whom we held a short discussion. He is not a learned man, and his resources for the defence of Hindúism were soon exhausted. In discussing with him, Yúnas applied another illustration, a very common one among the Hindús. Several blind men attempted to ascertain the form of an elephant. One felt his trunk, and said the animal was like a large stick; another took hold of his tail, and said he was like a broom; another took his ear, and said he was like a fan (for winnowing grain); another seized his leg, and said he was like a pillar; another felt his body, and said he was like a rock, or little mountain. Consequently they were all disagreed as to his shape. So men in the dark, without the light of heaven, feel after God, and have nothing but disagreement and uncertainty as to his real nature. In this connexion, I may mention another apt illustration sometimes used by our native preachers. There was a great Raja, who had a large empire. A province of this empire revolted and became exceedingly corrupt. The Raja sent an ambassador to preach and reclaim them. The ambassador, instead of reclaiming them, became as bad as the worst. Another ambassador was sent, and he followed in the steps of the first. At last a faithful ambassador was sent, who kept himself separate from sinners, preached to them the Raja's laws, and the means of becoming restored to his favour, and by living a pure and holy life, exemplified the laws that he preached. The consequence was, that he was successful. Krishna came, and was as bad as the worst of men; consequently reclaimed none to purity. Ráma came with like character and like success. Jesus Christ came, holy, undefiled, separate from sinners, and was successful in the work of bringing back revolted men to their offended sovereign.

District of Pargana Sinownee—its extent—destitution of Missionary Labour.

We are now in the pargana Sinownee, containing an area of 170 square miles, a population of 58,425 inhabitants in the whole pargana, and consequently of about 343 to the square mile. South of this is the large and populous pargana Seondah, containing an area of 230 square miles, a population of 83,616, with 363 souls to the square mile. Among all these perishing multitudes in every direction, there is none to break to them the bread of life. Each of the nine parganas in the Bánda district would furnish an ample field for the energies of a missionary with a system of schools under him. The same may be said of Calpee, of each of the nine parganas in the Humeerpore district, of each of the six in the Futtehpore district, and of each of the fourteen in the Allahabad district.

For these four districts, therefore, in order to produce an impression, instead of five missionaries, we ought to have, at the very lowest computation, forty. For such a number from home, in view of the claims of other fields, we cannot hope. Our great object, therefore, should be to get a native agency into the work as fast as possible; first at the most commanding points, as Bánda, Humeerpore and Calpee, and then to fill up the outline with a complete and well-organized system of agency. We must ply these villages with Christian schools, and educate the minds of the people, particularly of the rising generation, in the great science of Christianity. Much cannot, comparatively speaking, be hoped for from the adult population. Nothing, indeed, is too hard for the omnipotent Spirit of God. He can make even one truth of his word effectual to the salvation of a soul who may know nothing of its relation to many others in the Christian system. But this is not his ordinary way of working. The ignorance and prejudices of the people must be removed by, education, in the great truths of Christian science before we can expect to see a great proportion of them turning to the Christian faith. This result can obviously be more easily secured with the young than with the old. Our special attention therefore should be turned to the rising generation, not neglecting, however, to preach to the adult population, as we have opportunity. To the school-room and the class-room in India, too much importance cannot be attached. At the same time, the adult population in the bazars and villages should be instructed and visited as frequently as possible. One who teaches should be able to preach, and one who preaches naturally wishes also to have something to do in teaching the rising generation, for these are not separate spheres, but intimately connected with each other. Preaching naturally leads to the preparation of auxiliary tracts and books, and teaching to the preparation of class-books. Books thus originated from wants actually seen and felt, and prepared by the aid of experience, are far more likely to be of practical service than those made by the professed book-maker.

Feb. 21. Marched from Murwal to Baberú, about nine miles. The Mahratta Bráhmin, who in baptism has taken the name Nehemiah, is accompanying us to Allahabad, on his way to Benares, where he resides. Nehemiah walked with me nearly the whole way, and we preached in two villages, Devartha and Hardauli. The people, however, are very ignorant, and need much instruction in a subject that is entirely new to them. No missionary has ever gone through here before, and of Christ they never before heard. Not much then can be expected from such transient visits as these, unless frequently repeated.

[To be continued.]

MISCELLANEOUS.

LETTER FROM THE FREE CHURCH PRESBYTERY OF CALCUTTA TO THE PRESBYTERY OF LODIANA.

Calcutta, March 15th, 1854.

To the Reverend the Presbytery of Lodiana:

Dear Brethren in the Lord—For several years we have had no friendly interchange of communication with our Presbyterian brethren of the American missions in the north-west of India. This does not arise from any abatement, on our part, of the brotherly feelings which we have ever cherished towards you, but rather from oversight, and the absence of any stimulating cause or positive reason for addressing you, at any one time rather than another: still, we feel assured that a correspondence, such as we used to maintain with some of your Presbyteries, would prove to be a source of mutual benefit; and we have often felt, in times by-gone, our hearts more enlivened for the great enterprise in which we are engaged, by hearing from time to time of your proceedings, your successes, and encouragements;—of the Lord's dealings with the infant churches under your superintendence, and of your hopes and anxieties. We derived benefit even from the statement of the discouragements which you, like ourselves, have from time to time experienced in the course of your evangelistic labours, because we felt strongly, that in the difficulties, and struggles, and opposition, and apparent want of success in our enterprise, we could look for the enlightened sympathy of brethren in the faith, who, in all essential points, whether of doctrine, discipline, or church government, fully agreed with ourselves.

We have rejoiced to hear, from time to time, of your expansion in the vast provinces where you carry on your labours—especially have we regarded with interest and hope your occupation of the capital of the late kingdom of the Sikhs; and we trust that it may please the great Head of the Church to bless your efforts to spread the gospel of the grace of God among the inhabitants of the interesting land of Five Rivers. We have a peculiar interest in your mission at Jalandar; because your native missionary brother there, although he received the gospel from our beloved brethren, the first labourers at Lodiana, was for a time a pupil in our mission institution at Calcutta, and received there the elements of his education. May the good hand of the Lord be with him, to sustain, direct, and guide him, and make him a blessing to multitudes.

You have another fellow-labourer who was still more closely connected with our mission, and in whose welfare and usefulness, as an evangelistic labourer, we are much interested. We are not sure, at this time, where the Rev. Gopeenath Nundi is carrying on his labours, but we hope the great Master is standing by his servant, and making him a faithful herald of the truth as it is in Jesus. He is one of the first-fruits of our labours in this city, and our earnest prayer on his behalf is, that he may become a burning and a shining light among the darkened idolaters and unbelievers of this heathen land.

We trust, brethren, that the Lord of the harvest is prospering you more and more, not only by giving you a door of entrance in among the heathen masses around you, but by giving you a door of utterance fully to declare the whole counsel of God, and his purposes of mercy and love, through the peace-speaking blood of his Son. We trust that you are able to see abundant tokens, from time to time, of the Lord's presence with you in your efforts, and of a growing desire, on the part of those who are still without, to listen to the claims of the glorious gospel of the blessed God. In the wise providence of God, you have been placed in what we are convinced, is a peculiarly interesting and important portion of the great vineyard. The north-west portion of the British possessions in Hindustan is, even now, the most important and most influential portion of British India; and from the immediate vicinity of the semi-independent States within the peninsula, and the close proximity of the great Mohammedan nations of Central Asia; on the west and north-west, as well as of the vast Chinese Empire, beyond the great Himalayan range, the importance of an impression made upon the masses of the population in your provinces is not to be easily estimated. The influence which a converted Christian community, in Upper India, might have on the population of all the surrounding regions, is, in the good providence of God, likely to be very extensively felt. It is on this account particularly, as well as for reasons connected with the lasting good of India, that we would bid you God-speed in all your earnest and patient labours of love among the tribes of Upper India. The posts which you already occupy are most important, and we have every reason to hope that in due time ye shall reap, if ye faint not.

If we may venture on a recommendation, in reference to the stations already occupied by you, we would suggest that you should urge the Church of your fathers to strengthen the efforts of the labourers at Agra and Lahor, by sending additional agents to these places, as, in the providence of God, they may be furnished with the means of doing so. Changes in the country are rapidly occurring. Several of your senior missionaries have left India at least for a time, and some have been called to their Master's house. Work at the various stations cannot be regularly and effectually carried on, without a plurality of workmen; and such central spheres of action as Agra and Lahor seem to require four or five ordained missionaries to carry on all the various branches of the work.

We sympathize with you deeply in the loss sustained by the Lodiana Mission, by the death of that experienced and faithful labourer, the late Rev. Mr. Porter. May the Lord of the harvest sanctify the bereavement to his brethren, and soon send out others to labour as assiduously as our late brother was privileged to do in that important portion of the great vineyard.

There is nothing at present particularly novel, or particularly striking or encouraging in the work, as presented to us in this portion of the field. During the lapse of the years that have just passed away, however, some decided progress has been made here, partly in the way of conversion; although the numbers of converts be yet small, and partly in the general impressions made upon the minds of the community at large. We cannot say that hostility to the Christian faith has much abated on the part of those who have been accustomed to oppose it; but we venture to assert that the most rancorous and most vigorous of our opponents have been made to feel the utter futility of all their attempts hitherto, whether to oppose, or retard, or to check our efforts. And there seems to be a growing impression among even the most orthodox of our Calcutta idolaters, that the old superstitions are altogether incompatible with the progress of the rising generation in knowledge; and there is a very prevalent notion that, in the matter of education, they can neither resist the desire to obtain it, nor compete with missionary societies and their agents in communicating it.

In connexion with our own Presbytery the last year, though but the day of small things, has yet presented to us proofs of God's grace and merciful presence with us in our humble efforts; and we desire in faith and patience to be able to persevere in the good work, sincerely desiring that to God, the Father of mercies, may be all the glory and praise.

Brethren, our prayers are offered in your behalf, that the blessings from on high may be with you, and that grace, mercy, and peace may rest upon you. We shall be rejoiced to hear from you, and to be refreshed with good tidings concerning the things of the kingdom. May the Lord be with your spirits.

With sincere affection, your brethren in the Lord; and in the name and on behalf of the Free Church Presbytery of Calcutta.

Signed, EBEN'R MILLER, M. A., Moderator.
D. EWART, Presby. Clerk.

DONATIONS.

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS IN MAY, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Lansingburgh ch 109 89. Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch, JAMES BOUGHTON to con himself l m 30. Pby of Columbia—Jewett ch 74 48. 214 27

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Rochester City—Rochester 3d ch Sab sch to ed Sarah Ray 25, for education of heathen children 8 20, 33 20

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Florida ch mo con 5; Milford ch 17 10. Pby of North River—Newburg ch 37 61. Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch, S. S. Myrick 5; Bedford ch mo con coll's 83, ladies' for miss soc 13. Pby of Long Island—Southampton ch 83, Mrs. E. J. Huntting to ed Hugh N. Wilson 10. Pby of New York—Brooklyn 1st ch mo con 30; Fifth av and Nineteenth st ch mo con 34 20; Astoria ch 260 92; Forty-second st ch mo con 15 62; Wallabout ch mo con 8 85; Madison av ch 32 21; First ch N. Y., mo con 126 21; Williamsburg ch mo con 25; University Place ch mo con 36 86, ladies 85 50, a child for India Missions 1 71; Eighty-fourth st ch mo con 5; Yorkville ch mo con 8 50. 2d Pby of New York—Scotch ch Wm Post 62 50; Sing Sing ch 1, 987 79

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—New Providence ch of which 20 mo con coll's 45. Pby of New Brunswick—Princeton 1st ch miss sew soc to ed Archibald Alexander, Samuel Miller and Chas. Hodge at Allahabad 75, Queenston Sab sch to ed boy at Corisco 5 29; New Brunswick 1st ch 27 60; Pennington ch, Mrs. LYDIA HALE to con herself l m 30. Pby of West Jersey—2d ch Cape May Co. 4; May's Landing ch 28 07; Bridgeton 2d ch 6 mos con coll's 47 27; Williamstown ch 7 17; Pittsgrove ch 43; Cedarville ch fem miss soc 20. Pby of Newton—Upper Mount Bethel Church 10; Stillwater 1st ch 30. Pby of Raritan—Amwell 1st ch 22 50. Pby of Susquehanna—Warren 1st ch 14 37; Wyalusing 2d ch 2 33. Pby of Luzerne—Summit Hill ch mo con 3 20; Sab sch 1 72. Pby of Burlington—Mount Holly ch 27 60; Columbus ch 7 40, 451 52

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Central ch in part 60 39, W. W. Fleming 50, John Wray 20, James Field 20, Thos. Beaver 20, John V. Cowell 10, J. S. 10, Mrs. S. Richards 10, W. M. 5, Mrs. Cornelius 5, J. C. Taber 5, 12 mos con coll's 130 69, in all 346 68, less 9 37 for Home and Foreign Record; Tenth ch ann coll addl 138 37, mo con 23 63, Morris Patterson 20, Mrs. McArthur 10, Moyamensing Sab sch to ed Achung in China 30; Penn ch 9 14; Spring Garden ch mo con coll's 55 35; Cohocksink ch 30; Phœnixville ch a member 2 50. 2d Pby of Philadelphia—Abington ch juv miss soc for Corisco mission 10, and for Seminole mission 10; Easton 1st ch, of which 50 from Sab sch to ed Jesse M. Howell and Joseph Burk at Futtehgurh 100; Providence ch, Mary Vanderslice, to con Rev. H. S. RODENBOUGH l m 30; Port Kennedy ch 8 15; Bristol ch 11. Pby of New Castle—Forks of Brandywine ch fem miss soc 19; Zion ch 6, Mrs. M. P. Vanderslice 5; Head of Christiana ch 15; White Clay Creek ch 10. Pby of Donegal—Chanceford ch 34; Columbia ch 30 50; Waynesburg ch 157 75. Pby of Baltimore—Central ch 200; Washington, D. C. 2d ch, Miss Cleeves 15, Mrs. Dummer 12, Mrs. W. L. Hodge 5, Rev. J. P. Eckard 10, Miss Jane E. Eckard 2, Miss Anna M. Eckard 1. Pby of Carlisle—Silver Spring ch, three years' annuity from estate of James Graham dec'd 36; Upper Path Valley ch 28 50; Greencastle ch 45 25; Chambersburg ch, of which 66 73 from Sab sch 266 58. Pby of Huntingdon—Little Valley ch, Mrs. Jane B. Long 50. Pby of Northumberland—Sunbury, Pa., Mrs. Dorcas Grant for Jewish Mission 2 50; Jersey Shore ch 20 16, Sab sch class 10; New Berlin ch 37, Northumberland ch 13 23; Sunbury ch 28 77; Mifflinburg ch mo con coll's 10 47; Bloomsburg ch 32; Brier Creek ch 1; Hartleton ch 6 1934 56

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Gilgal and Perry chs 28 25, less 9 loss on bill, ladies' miss soc 25 50; Ebenezer ch 10; Poke Run ch 60; Union ch 14. Pby of Redstone—Laurel Hill ch 37 22; Morgantown church 25; Mt. Pleasant ch, Rev. W. W. McLain 10. Pby of Ohio—Hopewell ch 14 74, John Lockhart of which 30 to con his pastor, Rev WILLIAM HUNTER, l m, and 30 to ed John Lockhart in Nor. India 60. Pby of Alleghany—Butler ch 2 50; North Butler ch 3; New Salem ch 4; Clintonville ch 5. Pby of Erie—Fairfield ch 4 25. Pby of Clarion—Pisgah ch 10; Clarion ch 45; New Rehoboth ch, of which 9 75 systematic contributions 19 75; Concord ch fem miss soc 5 37 374 58

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—West Union ch 5; Claysville ch 28 62; Wheeling 3d ch 16 20; Wheeling 1st ch mo con coll's 80 79; Forks of Wheeling ch 43; Mount Prospect ch, of which 30 to con their pastor, Rev. DAVID R. CAMPBELL, l m 50. Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 1st ch of which 5 for Lodiana Mission, and 3 for mission to the Chinese in California 67, less 12 for Foreign Missionary; Wellsville, O., P. Ross 25. Pby of New Lisbon—Newtown ch 27; Hanover ch 9 50; Bethesda ch 13; Poland ch 33 97; Clarkson ch fem members 13; Salem ch 40 75, ladies of which 25 to ed Clement Vallandigham 50 25 491 08

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Columbus 1st ch 99 71, mo con for China 7 97, Sab sch to ed James Hoge and Josiah D. Smith 50; Mt. Pleasant ch 1; Worthington ch 23. Pby of Marion—Delaware ch, S. Boyd 2, N. F. Luellen 1; Liberty ch 20; Bucyrus ch 22; York ch 9; Richland ch 1; Eden ch 3 20; Union ch 3; Iberia ch 2 50; Pisgah ch 4 60; Brown ch 3 25; Kingston ch 3; Marysville ch 8. Pby of Zanesville—Washington ch 22 90. Pby of Richland—Perrysville ch 4; Harmony ch 30 cts; Hayesville ch 9 53; Savannah ch 3 25; Bladensburg ch 4. Pby of Coshocton—Hopewell ch 8; Linton ch 11; Clark ch 11; Mount Eaton ch 10; Berlin ch 4 33, coll at Benton 7 359 54

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Cincinnati—Pleasant Ridge ch 47 50; Hopewell ch 14 10. Pby of Oxford—Bethel ch, dividend on turnpike stock 3 27 Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch, Dr. S. W. Fuller 10; Huntsville ch 8. Pby of Findlay—Mount Blanchard ch 5 50 88 37

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison. Hanover ch mo con 8, Mrs Sarah Reed 3, Mrs Janet Lee 1, Sab sch to ed J. Findley Crowe 15; Pby of White Water, Liberty ch 25 23; Mt Carmel ch 10 50; Knightston, Ind., Chas. D. Campbell 10 72 73

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Lake. Crown Point ch 2 40. Pby of Fort Wayne—Cedar Creek and Kendalsville ch 10; Fort Wayne 1st ch Sab sch to ed Kalka Parshad 18 82. Pby of Crawfordsville—Eugene ch 4 35 22

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Kaskaskia—Chester ch 6 50; Shawneetown 3. Pby of Sangamon—Springfield 1st ch 30, less 6 for Foreign Missionary, Sab sch to ed James Smith 30. Pby of Peoria—Washington ch 7; Money Creek ch 5; Bloomington ch 2 50; Peoria ch Mrs John L Griswold to ed Mary Woodbridge King 30; Brunswick ch Sab sch 3 111 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—Dane ch 28; Richland city ch H J Morrison and wife 50 cents. Pby of Milwaukie—Waukesha ch, of which 5 from a lady for Siam 12. Pby of Winnebago—Winneconna ch 3 43 50

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Des Moines—Washington ch 13 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St Louis—St Louis 2d ch Sab sch for sup of Rev Henry V Rankin at Ningpo 600; St Louis Central ch 201; St Charles 1st ch Henry, Theodore, Robert and Virginia, children of Mr Gauss, for support of a day school in Ningpo 125 926 00

SYNND OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch mo con 14 25; Second ch mo con 11 30. Pby of Ebenezer—Richmond ch ann col 41 80, mo con coll's 30 11, Sab sch 18 14; Millersburg ch 9 75 125 35

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Greenbrier—Kanawha Salines ch 20; Point Pleasant ch 10. Pby of Lexington—Hebron ch 17 38; Shemariah ch 30 07; Lebanon ch 11 22; Windy Cove ch 12 25; Warm Springs ch 1 42; Bethany ch 63 cts; Goshen ch 7 25; New Monmouth ch 7 87; Pisgah ch 6 25; Central Union ch 1; Fairfield ch, of which 15 from Andrew R and Miss Elizabeth M Cummins, 25, and Mt Carmel ch 25 to con JAMES HENRY l m. Pby of East Hanover—Norfolk ch 111 83; Richmond 1st ch 99, mo con 10 31 396 48

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Orange—Newbern ch 31. Pby of Concord—Steel Creek ch 51; Wilksboro' ch 1; Prospect ch 18; Salem ch 9 57; Taylorsville ch 11 92; Lincoln ch 6; Marion ch 9; Siloam ch 2; Drusilla ch 2; Concord Town ch 43; Bethlehem ch 4; Unity ch (Rowan) 5 50; Thyatira ch 3 80; Pleasant Hill ch 10; Statesville and Bethesda ch 32; Unity ch (Lincoln) 28 38; Centre ch 21; Hopewell and Paw Creek ch 50; Poplar Tent ch 32 70; Bethphage ch 18 55; Concord ch 16 50; Hiwassee ch 2; Providence and Sharon ch's 41 05; Machpelah ch 12; Mallard Creek ch 24 12; Bethany ch 7 75; Third Creek ch 21 12; Rocky River ch 73; Ramah ch 22 35; Sugar Creek ch 52 20; Salisbury ch 65; Davidson College ch 10; Morgantown ch, of which 30 from ladies to con Rev W C SHEETZ, l m 55, Mrs Brown 50 cents, J H Greenlee 10 803 01

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.—Pby of Nashville—Clarksville ch 200, less 6 for Foreign Missionary, Sab sch to ed J T Hendrick 30; Smyrna ch 8 25 232 25

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Western District—Denmark ch 100. Pby of Chickasaw—Oxford ch 14; Hopewell ch 5; Panola ch 1; Harmony ch 12; Bethany ch 1; Rev J B Stafford 5; Zion ch 9 50; Pontotoc ch 3; Chulahoma ch 4 50; Fredonia ch 3; Ripley ch 27 50, juv mis soc 23. Pby of Memphis—Salem ch 5, Rev R R Evans 2 215 50

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Bethel—Ebenezer ch, Miss Mary Hutchison 5 00

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Pby of Hopewell—Madison ch 12; Mt Zion, Ga, Joseph Bryan to con Mrs JULIA CUMMING l m 50. Pby of Flint River—Griffin ch Sab sch to ed Jane Ann Long 25 87 00

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.—Pby of S Alabama—Government St ch, Mobile, juv soc for sup of a mission school in India 70. Pby of Tuscaloosa—Gainesville ch Sab sch to ed John L Kirkpatrick at Corisco 20 juv sewing soc to ed Chas A Stillman 4; Greensboro ch 47 10, Sab sch to ed W Stedman Peck 15; Oak Grove ch 19 25; Pleasant Ridge ch 14 50; Bethesda ch 3; Livingston ch 32 50; Bethel ch 33 25; Elizabeth ch 7 50; Mount Olivet ch 4; Bethsalem ch 15 75; Eutaw ch 44; Burton's Hill ch 8 25; Hebron and Ebenezer ch's, of which 30 from Miss ELIZABETH J BARRY of Clinton, Ala, to con herself l m 90. Pby of East Alabama—Bethel ch 28 456 10

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Mississippi—Pine Ridge ch, of which 10 from coloured members and 25 from Sab sch to ed Elizabeth S Williams, 134 05 less 3 for Foreign Missionary; Port Gibson ch mo con 6. Pby of Louisiana—Plains ch to con Rev FRED S ERNST l d 1 0; New Orleans 3d ch mo con 20. Pby of Tombeckbee—Sundry churches 87 344 05

Total from churches, $8,801 20

LEGACIES.—Belvidere, N J, Legacy of George H King, deceased, 100; Ashland, Ohio, Legacy of Mrs Jannet Stronach, deceased, for China Mission 15; Albany, N Y, Legacy of Patrick Gannon, dec'd, 94; Knoxville, Tenn, Legacy of Franklin H Morgan, dec'd, 990 1199 00

SEMINARIES.—Union Theol Seminary, Va, mo con coll's 130 60

SYNOD OF THE REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—Received from Treasurer of Synod for sup of Rev Messrs. Campbell, Caldwell and Woodside in North India 900, for Scholarships in Orphan School at Saharanpur 284, for sup of native assistants 210, for buildings at Dehra, Nor. Ind. 500 1894 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—A friend of missions, after hearing Dr Duff 100; A colored person for Corisco 5; A friend for Africa 20; S J R 2; Three friends 600; J M McKay 100; A friend to restore mission buildings at Corisco 1000; Two ladies for the same purpose 1000; Onancock, Va, Miss L A Donne, 5; Miss Caroline Peel 50 cts; A friend, Pa, 7 50; Marion, O, Wm Bain 7 50; Galveston, Texas, B S Parsons 25; Balt, Md, Sarah and Mary Levering, (two little girls) the product of their own industry 12; Dr Isaac Longacre 2 50; Huntsville, Mi, Mrs Elizabeth Slater for printing Bibles in China 1 2888 00

Total receipts in May, $14,932 89

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—
Amount previously reported, $7786 73
A friend, 2 00 7788 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS IN CLOTHING, &C.—N Y, A lady 56 garments; Ladies of Amity ch, Pa, one box clothing for Rev D E Campbell, Furrukhabad 38; Ladies of Richland ch, Pa, one box clothing 21 50; R & J Warnock, N Y, 2 doz caps.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. B. M. Smith, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M.D. Treasurer.

☞ As frequent inquiries are made on this subject, we give the terms on which the Board of Publication ordinarily employs Colporteurs.

Wages $150 per annum. Equipage $50. All reasonable travelling expenses, together with charges for freight and postage, are defrayed by the Board.

ACTION OF THE ASSEMBLY.

The following resolutions were adopted by the late Assembly, and, with one or two exceptions, with entire unanimity. The exceptions apply to the third and fourth resolutions; but the opposition to these was not very strong. The Board have not felt authorized to perform the service here directed, unless instructed by the Assembly. Measures are in train for as speedy an execution of these instructions as is practicable. The brethren who have urged the increase of publications in German, ought to be informed, that we have not, thus far, had much encouragement to such a course, for the demand for existing works in that language has been comparatively small.

The resolutions were reported by the Committee on the Report of the Board, except the eighth, which was offered by the Rev. Dr. Brownson.

1. Resolved, That the Assembly recognizes the power of the evangelical press as a powerful and efficient means under God in Christianizing the world.

2. Resolved, That the Assembly have learned with peculiar pleasure of the successful operations of the Colporteur enterprise, and commend that subject to the special favour of the churches.

3. Resolved, That the Board be directed to have an edition of our music book published with seven characters; and that they also publish an abridged edition of the Psalmodist, for the use of Sabbath Schools, and for family worship, both in round and shaped notes, together with a simple course of instruction for youth; and the Assembly urge upon all the Presbyteries and churches, the necessity of greatly increased efforts in the study of sacred music.

4. Resolved, That the Board be directed to have an accurate edition of the Confession of Faith published in the German language, and also such tracts from time to time as they may deem best.

5. Resolved, That the Assembly are highly gratified at the financial condition of the Board as exhibited in their Report, and especially at the amount of money which has been raised without formal agency.

6. Resolved, That it be recommended to the Board to inquire whether still greater efficiency cannot be given to the colporteur enterprize, by making some increase in the salaries of the colporteurs.

7. Resolved, That the Presbyteries be urged to establish local depositories for the more general diffusion of the books of the Board.

8. Resolved, That it be recommended to the Board to pursue still further the policy of gratuitous distribution to the destitute, so far as may consist with the safety of their financial operations, and for this purpose, to appeal to the liberality of the churches.

RELATIONS OF THE BOARD TO THE PROGRESS OF EVANGELICAL TRUTH.

By many persons, as well the friends as enemies of our Board of Publication, it seems to be thought that the main design of its institution was the promotion of sectarian purposes, by the publication and circulation of sectarian books and tracts. They seem to regard it as, at least, essentially and peculiarly denominational and Presbyterian, in a sense rather inconsistent with evangelical Christianity.

Hence, many seem to think, that while a very useful means of disseminating a knowledge of Presbyterian doctrine and order, it is unsuitable for the more important work of disseminating the truths of a common Christianity. And those who are inclined to oppose our enterprise, take hold of this view with great eagerness, as sustaining the allegation of our tendencies to foster strife and promote bigotry and "all uncharitableness."

It is time such misapprehensions and misrepresentations were corrected; and we earnestly beg that our brethren of our Church papers, and others who come into contact with the public mind, would aid us in setting forth the real character of this enterprise, in its relations to the progress and prosperity of the Redeemer's kingdom. For this purpose, we suggest a few considerations.

1. The Assembly established the Board to publish and circulate "approved works, in support of the great principles of the Reformation, as exhibited in the doctrines and order of the Presbyterian Church, to promote sound learning and true religion."

2. With few unimportant exceptions, the leading doctrines of the Calvinistic scheme were held and taught by the Reformers. And not only so, the great bulk of Protestant writers, who have rendered the most material service in moulding the religious character of the Protestant world, have been men of very decided Calvinistic sentiment. The commentaries most extensively circulated in England and America, the systems of theology, and the works on practical religion, the theology of the people, have been the products of minds deeply imbued with Calvinistic sentiments. It is not denied that many works of great literary and theological merit have been produced by others, but we now speak of the sources of influence in forming religious sentiment in England and America, which have exerted the greatest control.

3. Hence, it is found very difficult to re-publish the works of some of the lights of the Church, both in Great Britain and the United States, so as to exclude an appearance of favouring peculiar doctrinal views, without very material omissions or modifications. Indeed, we doubt if the leaven of Calvinism has been extracted, or can be extracted from many, which are deemed undistinctive in doctrinal character; and if it could be, such would often be, like unleavened bread, exceedingly flat. In other words, so thoroughly are such sentiments mixed in a genuine practical Christianity, that we cannot entirely extract them, however successfully we may free it from the technicalities of theology, which might be objectionable to many who love the truth, though taught to hate its phraseologies.

4. In re-publishing and re-producing then, the Christian literature of the Reformation, we are labouring for a common Christianity. We do, by no means, load our books with the peculiar dogmas of our Church. Like our preaching, the great bulk of them present truth, which is acceptable to all, except gross errorists; and yet, like our preaching, they are leavened with the Calvinism of the Bible, and with the Calvinism of Calvary, and the cross.

5. While, then, we must in a few volumes and tracts, present more formally and distinctly our peculiar views, in the way of argument and defence, our chief labour is to sustain the great fundamentals of the Christian scheme, and our privilege and advantage is, that in doing this, we are not compelled, in order to avoid giving offence, often to eviscerate the sound doctrine which they involve, by omitting or modifying forms of expression, which are material to their right apprehension and influence.

Let us remember then, that as we are no less Christians, because we are Presbyterians, we no less preach Christ's gospel, when we preach it as taught in our symbols and declared from our pulpits.

DIFFICULTIES OF THE WORK.

Our Colporteurs meet with many discouraging and faith-trying experiences—one writes from a Western State:

"I found in a cabin the father, mother, two grown daughters, and some smaller children. After warming, I opened my books, and the children gathered around in astonishment at the sight of so many pretty books. The father and mother, however, seemed entirely indifferent. They said they could not read, and had no time to learn. There was no Bible, and the man insisted one would be of no use, as no one in the family could read. He said, however, he intended sending his children to school if one could be kept up convenient to them. One of the daughters expressed a desire to learn to read, and promised she would do so on my giving her a Bible, which I did."

Thus it is with scores of families even in the older settled parts of the country. One of the incidental benefits of this colporteur enterprise is the inducement offered to parents to have their children taught to read. But at the same time, the work of the colporteur is everywhere hindered by the deplorable ignorance which is sometimes so prevalent. No one needs more patience and self-denial than the faithful colporteur. Let us pray for these men! Let us earnestly pray that God's blessing may attend them amidst all the physical hardships they encounter, and the scenes of moral destitution they are called to witness.

GRATIFYING REASONS FOR SUCCESS.

A diligent and faithful colporteur, who belongs to another branch of the Presbyterian family, writes as follows:

My field of labour, as you are aware, was, during part of the months of December and January, 1853–4, in ———— county, Pa. In the town of ——— and neighbourhood, I laboured thirty-five days—sold 495 volumes, which amounted to upwards of $200—visited one hundred and fifty families or thereabouts, and was received by all with the greatest cordiality.

Now, four years ago, (or rather three and a half years ago,) I visited the same field, spent six or eight weeks, with the same books, and did not sell $100 worth. The question now arises (and one too of no trifling importance to the Board)—What is the cause of my late success? To me there appears many reasons. But the most important I will mention only. First: in proportion as the operations of the Board become known, the more favourably are the people influenced towards it: and second, the more the books of the Board are read by the families of the different Presbyterian denominations, the more are they prized and sought after. And, third, the scrupulous care with which the Board have tried to gather up and present to the Church and to the world, the Calvinistic works of the oldest and best divines the Church has ever had, has more than any thing else, or than all other things combined, given a character and reputation to the Board, better felt and more known abroad than it is to itself at home.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Leila Ada, the Jewish Convert. An authentic Memoir. By Osborn W. Trenery Heighway. Revised by the Editor. 12mo. pp. 230. Price 55 cents.

Says the editor of a leading weekly paper:—"If we are not greatly mistaken, this Memoir will be read with absorbing interest. The character of Leila is so transparently beautiful, that it would attract under any circumstances; but when connected with her peculiar history as a cultivated Jewess, struggling after the truth, and at length finding it in Jesus, and rejoicing in it, its charm is enhanced. We commend it in much warmer terms than we could use in introducing the great bulk of religious biography, and we feel sure it will be read. The striking portrait of Leila is prefixed."

The work is largely made up of extracts from the Diary of the subject. We annex a few specimens of her state of religious feeling at different periods. On page 41, she thus expresses her sense of her sinfulness and helplessness:

"I can scarcely write for weeping; often I spend the night-watches restless, and watering my couch with my tears. I am in a state of bitter darkness—darkness which may be felt. I know not the way of salvation. In the Talmud I have no faith—I can have no faith. The more I read the lovely Scripture, the more clearly do I perceive that that book is altogether a fabrication of man. I can believe nothing else; nay, more, I feel that for worlds I could not insult God by imputing it to him, or supposing that he had anything to do with its being written. And the Mosaic law I cannot fulfil; it is impossible to me and all our nation. Lord, help me and save me! O that thou wouldst take compassion on my woful state, and teach me what to do.

"My condition so oppresses my spirits, that to elevate them I often write, and endeavour to make myself believe that God will enable me to rejoice in his salvation, although I cannot tell why, nor how, for if I can understand the Scripture, there are clearly conditions which must be fulfilled. I repent, heartily repent; my heart is indeed broken on account of sin——."

She has left this painful entry unfinished. Every reader will sympathize with such a state, and will be able to image it for himself.

This state of mind was produced by reading the Scriptures, both New and Old Testaments—the former, however, without her father's knowledge. On pp. 67-8, she records her feelings thus:

"I tremble with emotions of fear, uncertainty—uncertainty?—O, I do not know myself! I do not know my conviction! I do not know what to do! I sometimes scarcely dare to think, lest I am——. Lord, do teach me; do make me happy! O, give me thyself; convince me, show me the truth; yet hast thou not answered my prayers for guidance? surely, thou hast made my way plain. Lord, thou knowest me altogether; I cannot disguise my heart from thee. I fear no trial, no loss of friends, no difficulties, so that I am not offending thee, but am living according to thy written word, and believing everything which thou——I may not write."

This last expression denotes her reluctance to avow, as yet, any reference to the Saviour.

Her feelings on a full and cordial reception of the Saviour, expressed after her baptism and first communion, are thus described:

"Bless the Lord, O my soul, and never forget this day's benefits! I have sealed the covenant—have enlisted under the banner of the cross, by receiving the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's supper—but let me write while my eyes overflow with tears of joy—my gracious Redeemer has manifested his presence to my soul, has filled me with the joy and peace of believing. 'That blood which the Jews have imprecated upon themselves and their children, has been showered upon me in the most abundant and unspeakable mercies. I am happy beyond expression. I do, indeed, rejoice with a joy that is unspeakable and full of glory. I feel on the very verge of heaven; I have experienced a glorious elevation of soul—Christ is mine and I am his. Unspeakably happy conviction! Come unto me all ye that fear God, and I will tell you what he hath done for my soul! Bless the Lord, O my soul, and never forget this day's benefits.

"It is a solemn season, a day to be held in everlasting remembrance. When the cup was held to me, and the solemn words were pronounced—'The blood of Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy soul and body unto everlasting life. Drink this in remembrance that Christ's blood was shed for thee, and be thankful'—I felt that my God was reconciled through my Saviour's death, and I was enabled to feed upon Christ in my heart through faith, and with thanksgiving."

On the discovery she made to her father of her religious change, she thus speaks:

"I have this night laid a letter on my father's dressing table; in it I have detailed the change which has taken place in my soul; in it I have avowed my belief in Jesus of Nazareth, and the joy and peace which I experience in believing. O, that it may do him the good I ardently pray for—that it may lead him to embrace the Gospel of Christ. I have committed it to God; I leave it in thy hands, O my Father; bless it, I beseech thee. This whole night do I intend to devote to special wrestling with thee, for the salvation of my dear father.

"And now, I beseech thee, be thou my helper. Choose thou for me my future portion; be my inheritance, calm my agitated spirit; have I not committed the event to thee? O, be with me on the morrow, when I shall be questioned respecting the hope that is in me; do thou be very present with me, and enable me to speak as becomes a temple of the living God. May I be saved from bringing any disgrace or disrepute upon the religion of Jesus—that divine cause which now possesses my heart. May my feet be firmly fixed upon the rock Christ Jesus; and then, whatever shall occur, whether I live or die, I shall be happy—for I shall be the Lord's."

Of her conflicts, trials, and persecutions, we cannot present a specimen—the reader is referred to the volume.

J. H. AND HIS NURSE, and The Child's Prayer. pp. 36. 18mo. Price, 10 cents.

This is another of the attractive little books for the dear little children. It is a history of an afflicted little boy, the son of unregenerate parents, who, under the teachings of a pious nurse, became decidedly pious, and after a short life of bodily pain and suffering, and spiritual fear and joy, passed away in his tender youth, to rejoice where "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, nor pain."

Bound with it is a short, sweet story, in poetry, of a child, to whom Sabbath-school instructions were blessed in his conversion, and who was made the happy means of leading his parents to Christ. Both these are sweet stories. May God bless them to the hundreds of the lambs of the flock throughout our land!

"WITNESSES FOR CHRIST, or the Poet, the Hero, the Statesman, and the Philosopher." pp. 72. 18mo. Price, 15 cents.

In brief notices of Cowper, Haldane, Wilberforce, and Chalmers, with sketches of Rev. Messrs. Walker, Toplady, and Berridge, we have presented the testimony of some of the master minds of the world to the power and blessedness of faith in Christ. Let our children read such portraits, and God grant that their characters may be cast after the pattern of these men of truth and grace.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF MAY, 1854.

Presbytery of Troy.

Stillwater 1st ch, per Saml G Eddy 45 00

Presbytery of Albany.

Schenectady ch, per Rev Dr J T Backus 76 00

Presbytery of Ogdensburgh.

Oswegatchie ch, per Rev L Merril Miller 24 00

Presbytery of Bedford.

Patterson ch 20 50; South Greensburgh ch 5; S E Centre ch, to con Rev WINTHROP BAILEY h m, 34 59 00

Presbytery of Long Island.

Brookfield ch, per Rev Chas S Lord 3 00

Presbytery of New Brunswick.

By Mrs E C Fuller of Trenton, N J, to con Mrs SARAH KIRKPATRICK, Mrs MARY HALL and Mrs MARY A FISK hon mems (each $50) 150 00

Presbytery of West Jersey.

2d ch Bridgeton, per S L Fithian 8 24; Williamstown ch, per Rev C E Ford 2 60 10 84

Presbytery of Newton.

Stillwater ch, per Rev H Reaves 4 00

Presbytery of Luzerne.

Summit Hill 1st ch, per N Patterson, through Mr Dixon Lewis 6 91

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Frankford ch, per P Cressman 7 32

2d Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Neshaminy ch, from the fem tract soc per Rev J Belville 20; 1st ch Easton, Rev Dr Gray per Mr B F Riegel 50 70 00

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Tom's Creek ch, to con Rev R S GRIER, h m 35 50; Piney Creek ch, per Rev R S Grier 14 25 49 75

Presbytery of Northumberland.

Mifflinburg ch, per J W Sands 4 60; Lewisburg ch, per John Nesbit 70 70 75 30

Presbytery of Steubenville.

Bacon Ridge ch, per Rev Laverty Grier 7 00

Presbytery of Columbus.

First ch, per Thos Moodie, Esq 10 25

Presbytery of Zanesville.

Washington ch, per Rev J E Alexander 13 27

Presbytery of Richland.

East Union ch, per Rev J M Faris, Treas 2 68

Presbytery of Peoria.

Canton ch, per J Blackadore 5; Brunswick ch, per Rev D F McFarland 7 12 00

Presbytery of Concord.

Tabor ch 6 70; Morgantown ch 5; Centre ch 12; Poplar Tent ch 9; Bethpage ch 6 75; Marion ch 6 50; Siloam ch 1; Sugar Creek ch 25 cts; Unity (Lincoln County) ch 23; Salisbury ch 18; Macpelah ch 5 25; Duncan's Creek ch 2; per Rev P H Dalton, Treas of Pby 95 45; Steel Creek ch, from Mrs McDowell 10 105 45

Presbytery of Maury.

Zion ch 20; Rev G D Doak in part to con John N Doak h m 10; Rev Duncan Brown, D D, bal to con Mr JAS FRIERSON h m 20 50 00

Presbytery of Nashville.

Nashville ch collection 50 00

Presbytery of South Carolina.

From Mr Edward Calhoun, bal to con Mrs FRANCIS A CALHOUN h m, per J B Bull 10; from Miss Mary McKellar in full to con her neice, Miss AGNES REYNOLDS h m, per Rev Z L Holmes 25 35 00

Presbytery of Harmony.

From the ladies of Camden ch to con their pastor Rev SAML K HAY h m 30 00

Presbytery of Flint River.

1st ch, Columbus 52 50; Mrs L V McCarter 5; Griffin ch 10; Fairview ch 7 40, per R T Marks, Treas of Pby 74 90

Presbytery of South Alabama.

From Rev Wm M Smythe, Treas 114 86

Presbytery of Tuscaloosa.

Mt Zion ch 6 04; Concord ch 4 50, per Rev J P McMullin; Tuscaloosa ch 30; Greensboro ch 32; Bethel ch 21 25; Elizabeth ch 3; Eutaw ch 12, per Rev A T Silliman 108 79

MISCELLANEOUS.

J H Bocock of Harrisonburg 50 cts; Miss L A Donne, Onancock, Va, per Rev J O Sloan 2 50; Cedar Rapids, Iowa, "A Friend" 2 50; Harvey Church, Esq, of Troy, N Y 28 70; Jos Bryan, Mt Zion, Hancock Co, Ga, to con his son, JOSEPH BRYAN h m 50; B S Parsons, Esq, Galveston, Texas, 25 109 20

Legacy from Franklin H Morgan, dec'd, late of Knoxville, Tenn, per Calvin M McClung, executor, of St Louis, Missouri 1000, less exch 10 990 00

$2294 52

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP.

A donation of Thirty Dollars at any one time constitutes the donor, or any person whom he may designate, an Honorary Member of the Board of Publication. Honorary Members receive an elegantly engraved certificate of membership, and are entitled to draw one dollar's worth of children's books or tracts annually, provided they are called for during the year in which they become due.

FORM OF BEQUESTS TO THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

To the Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of ——, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Publication, according to the provisions of their charter.

Ecclesiastical Record.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. W. Reed and the Olive church, Zanesville Presbytery.

Rev. J. P. Caldwell and Salt Creek church, Zanesville Presbytery.

Rev. J. T. Case and the Victoria church, E. Texas Presbytery.

Rev. J. D. Ewing and Falling Spring church, Montgomery Presbytery.

Rev. W. A. Rankin and the church of Marietta, Pa.

PASTORAL CHARGE RESIGNED.

Of Vicksburg, Miss., by Rev. H. M. Painter.

Of George Creek, by Rev. A. G. Fairchild, D. D.

Of Madison church, Presbytery of New Lisbon, by Rev. J. M. Pryse.

Of Blooming Grove and Olivesburg, Richland Presbytery, by Rev. A. Scott.

CALLS HAVE BEEN GIVEN TO

Rev. Sam'l H. Higgins by the Columbus church, Ga.

Rev. B. M. Palmer, D. D., by Augusta church, Ga.

Rev. H. V. D. Nevius, by Walnut Hill church, Ky.

CALLS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED BY

Rev. W. A. Fleming, to the church of Farmington, Ill.

Rev. John Turbitt, to the churches of Prospect and West Jersey, Illinois.

Rev. R. P. Farris, to the 2d church of Peoria. Ill.

Rev. D. A. Wallace, to the church of Nashville, Kaskaskia Presbytery.

Rev. J. C. Hanna, to the churches of Salem and Brimfield, Illinois.

Rev. George McNeill, to the church of Washington, N.C.

CHANGE OF POST-OFFICE ADDRESS.

Rev. R. B. Foresman from Martin's Creek to Middagh's, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Dan'l Steele to Pinckneyville, Perry co., Ill.

Rev. Ithamar Pillsbury from Princeton to Macomb, Ill.

Rev. Alexander Heberton to Williamsport, Lycoming county, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Francis Dinsmore to Morning Sun, Iowa.

Rev. S. C. Alexander to Miranda, N. C.

Rev. J. C. Hanna to Brimfield, Ill.

Rev. E. K. Lynn from Franklin, Ind. to Urbana, Ill.

Rev. Joseph Kerr from Poland to Kossuth, Iowa.

Rev. W. W. Eells, from Newburyport, Mass., to Wilmington, N. C., till Oct. 1st.

Rev. J. C. Bayless from Covington to Pollard's Mills, Ky.

Rev. John Decher to Annapolis, Md.

Rev. George McNeill from Ashborough to Washington, N. C.

Rev. John Huston from Mt. Gilead to Fletcher, O.

Rev. A. Scott from Olivesburg to Savannah, O.

Rev. J. K. Davis from Blairstown, N. J., to Coolbaugh, Pennsylvania.

Rev. P. W. Thompson from Vermont to Ipava, Ill.

Rev. D. D. McKee from Fairfield to Dunlapsville, Ind.

Rev. A. M. Watson from Fort Washita, Florida, to White Hall, N. C.

Rev. Samuel Hart from Connelton to Orleans, Ind.

Rev. Jesse Edwards from Portageville, N. Y., to Plover, Wisconsin.

LICENSURES.

Mr. Henry B. Rose, by the Presbytery of Montgomery.

Mr. S. S. Brown, by the Presbytery of Tombeckbee.

Mr. W. W. Duncan, by the Presbytery of Transylvania.

Mr. J. M. Batchelder, by the Presbytery of Peoria.

CHANGE OF RELATION.

Rev. J. W. Ward, of the New School, has joined the Presbytery of Genessee River.

Rev. W. S. Kennedy, of the New School, has joined the Presbytery of Richland, Ohio.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

May 11th, by the Presbytery of Hudson, Rev. R. C. Shimeall was installed pastor of the church of Monticello.

April 23d, the Presbytery of Palestine ordained Mr. R. A. Mitchell as an Evangelist.

April 23d, the Presbytery of West Hanover installed Rev. John B. Ross pastor of Roanoke church.

April 10th, the Presbytery of Zanesville ordained Mr. W. V. Milligan, and installed him pastor of Carthage church.

April 16th, the Presbytery of Chickasaw ordained Mr. Henry Walsh, and installed him pastor of the Edmiston church.

April 7th, the Presbytery of South Alabama ordained Mr. W. C. Smith and installed him pastor of the Claiborne church.

April 19th, the Presbytery of Erie installed Rev. James W. Dickey pastor of the churches of Gravel Run and Washington.

May 18th, the Presbytery of Fayetteville installed Rev. M. B. Grier pastor of the church of Wilmington, N. C.

January 19th, the Presbytery of Albany ordained Mr. James Cohen, a converted Jew, to the work of the gospel ministry, with a view to his employment among his own people.

DEATHS.

On the 2d of June, at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, the Rev. D. E. Y. Rice, in the 41st year of his age.

On the 3d of June, the Rev. John A. Mearns, pastor of Long Run church, Presbytery of Redstone.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. Ithamar Pillsbury has been elected President of the McDonough College, Illinois.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Referring our readers to the weekly papers for details of the proceedings of the Assembly, we place on record here a brief outline of its most important acts. In another part of this paper, will be found the action of the Assembly on the Reports of the several Boards, and on the subject of Systematic Benevolence.

The Theological Seminaries properly claimed a large share in the deliberations of the Assembly. These institutions are in a healthy condition. A considerable increase in the number of students at Union, a fair attendance at Alleghany, and a beginning of twenty-four in the new Seminary of Danville, furnish gratifying subjects of reflection to the whole Church. The diminution at Princeton is justly ascribable to any other cause than deficiency in the attractiveness of that long-celebrated school of the prophets. It is pleasing to state, on other sources of information, that the Seminary at Columbia, S. C., has a larger number of students than have ever hitherto been connected with it.

A discussion, in some respects painful, arose, respecting the affairs of the New Albany Seminary, which was closed by a resolution, adopted by a strong vote, that "the Assembly has no intention to interfere with the Seminary at New Albany in any way, nor with those Synods which shall continue to be united in support of such Seminary, nor with any of the churches under the care of said Synods." Whatever be the ultimate result of the difficulties of our Western brethren, it must be conceded that the friends of Danville Seminary have gone forward with most commendable zeal and success in more than redeeming the pledges made to the Assembly of 1853.

Rev. Dr. A. T. McGill was elected to the vacant chair in Princeton. The best evidence of his suitableness to the post was manifested in the great reluctance of the friends of Alleghany to surrender him. Considerations involving no depreciation of the chair he has left prevailed to secure their assent to the transfer.

Rev. Dr. Plumer was elected Professor in Alleghany, the choice of the department of instruction being left to him and the Faculty and Directors of that Institution. Though he declined the tender of the chair, under the impression that it was that vacated by Dr. McGill, it is understood that he is willing to consider the proposition as now presented.

Rev. Dr. J. N. Waddell, of Oxford University, Mississippi, was elected Professor of Pastoral Theology and Church Government in the Danville Theological Seminary.

The Assembly erected two new Synods: that of Baltimore, to comprise the Presbyteries of Eastern Shore, Baltimore, and Carlisle, from the Synod of Philadelphia, and Winchester, from the Synod of Virginia; and that of Alleghany, to comprise all that part of the Synod of Pittsburgh lying west and north of the Ohio and Alleghany rivers. In both cases, and especially the first, there seemed to be a very agreeable unwillingness on the part of brethren to part from one another, but the measures prevailed, and we trust may both eventually prove eminently useful to all the interests involved.

Several judicial cases were issued, but they did not present any very specially interesting features.

The subject of appointing Judicial Commissions was discussed both as to constitutionality and expediency, and a paper was offered, arising out of the same view of the unwieldy character of a large Assembly, which excited the discussion, proposing an overture to the Presbyteries, providing a synodically constituted Assembly, instead of the present organization. But these important matters were not reached till so late a period of the sessions that they were laid on the table.

The Assembly wisely discontinued the correspondence with the Irish Church, whose lectures were as unthankfully received, as arrogantly administered.

A most important report on ministerial support was presented by a committee of laymen, of which Judge Fine was chairman, and which had been appointed by the last General Assembly. This report recommends that churches do not hold out to ministers greater promises of support than may be realized; that Presbyteries refuse to settle pastors on incompetent salaries, when competent can be paid; that the secular church officers institute an annual inquiry on the subject of the pastor's support on the first day of November in each year; that Presbyteries require their ministers to instruct and admonish their charges, and hold them to an account for complying with this injunction.

Of the general character of the Assembly, the editors of the Presbyterian use the following just language: "It was the largest General Assembly ever held; in ability it was inferior to none which we have attended; it embraced an unusually large proportion of men just reaching their prime, who bid fair to be extensively heard from hereafter; the topics discussed took a wide range, and included most of the important interests of the Church; and the results arrived at were such as conclusively prove that no denomination could be more thoroughly united as to its general policy."

TO STATED CLERKS OF SYNODS AND PRESBYTERIES.

A very valuable item of Statistics can be furnished with little trouble by Stated Clerks of Synods and Presbyteries by sending to the Home and Foreign Record an answer in writing to the following questions.

When was your [Synod or Presbytery] organized? Where was the first meeting held? Out of what Synod or Presbytery, or Synods or Presbyteries, was it formed?

Address, Home and Foreign Record, or
Secretary of the Board of Publication.

FUND FOR SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS AND THEIR FAMILIES.

The following amounts have been received, since last report, viz:

From the church at Belvidere,	15 00
" " Bedford church, N. Y.	12 50
" " South-East church, N. Y.	11 00
" " church at Roswell,	16 00
" " church at Cheraw,	123 00
" " West Union church,	7 00
	$184 50

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
May 22d, 1854. Treas. Trustees Gen. Assembly.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Subscribers are recommended to prepay at their own post-offices, as there is much liability of mistake, and no advantage by prepaying here.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Abstract of the Report of the Board of Missions, p. 98. Report of the Standing Committee of the General Assembly on the Board of Missions, p. 98. Resolutions of the General Assembly on the subject of Church Extension, p. 99. Meeting of the Board, p. 99. Receipts, 100.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—Abstract of Report, p. 101. Action of Assembly, p. 101. I. Ministerial Education, p. 102. Increase of Appropriations, p. 102. Faith, p. 102. Faults of Theological Students, p. 102. II. Christian Education, p. 103. Debate in the General Assembly, p. 103. Aranama College, p. 103. Receipts, p. 103.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 104. Want of Teachers and Assistants at the Indian Mission, p. 104. France: a Persecuted Teacher, p. 105. Africa: Corisco Mission: Destruction of the Mission Houses at Corisco by Fire, and the loss of two valuable lives, p. 105. India: Lodiana Mission: Appeal for more Labourers, p. 106. Allahabad Mission: Extracts from the Journal of the Rev. Joseph Owen, p. 107. Letter from the Free Church Presbytery of Calcutta to the Presbytery of Lodiana, p. 108. Receipts, p. 109.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Action of the Assembly, p. 110. Relations of the Board to the Progress of Evangelical Truth, p. 110. Difficulties of the Work, p. 110. Gratifying Reasons for Success, p. 110. New Publications, p. 110. Receipts, p. 111.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Give! Give! p. 97. Systematic Benevolence, p. 97. How to Receive your Pastor, p. 97. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 112. The General Assembly, p. 112.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Volume V. No. 7 Extra. | PHILADELPHIA, JULY, 1854. | Price per Year, Fifty Cents.

The Seventeenth Annual Report of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. Presented to the General Assembly in May, 1854. New York: Published for the Board, at the Mission House, 23 Centre street, 1854.

Since the last meeting of the Board, the Rev. Joseph Porter, of the Lodiana Mission, and Mrs. Seeley, wife of the Rev. A. H. Seeley, of the Furrukhabad Mission, Mr. John Reid, of the Choctaw Mission, the Rev. Mathew Brown, D. D., and the Rev. John Goldsmith, D. D., members of the Board, have been removed by death. In this world we shall see their faces no more. Their work in the Church below was finished, and they are now, as we trust, rejoicing with the spirits of just men made perfect, before the throne of God and the Lamb. But whilst the Lord's servants are thus passing away, the Lord himself is ever present with his people, and his almighty power will watch over them, his counsels shall guide them, and his rich, free and sovereign grace and mercy be exercised towards them, till all are gathered home, to the General Assembly and Church of the first-born which are written in heaven.

FINANCES.

The receipts from all sources, as stated in the Treasurer's Report, have been	$173,834 05
To which add balance of the last year,	618 97
		$174,453 02
The expenditures, as shown in the same Report, have been		173,185 50
Leaving a balance in the Treasury of		$1,267 52

As in former years, a considerable amount of clothing has been received from the ladies of a number of the churches, which has been most gratefully acknowledged in the publications of the Board. The supply, though liberal from the churches from which it was received, still falls far short of the demand for these indispensable articles, for the missions and schools in Africa and among the Indians.

PUBLICATIONS.

The Home and Foreign Record is the organ of the different Boards of the Church. The Board of Publication, under whose care it is published, will report the number of copies, and the expenses and receipts.

Of the Foreign Missionary, 20,000 copies are published, in newspaper form, and 3,500 copies in pamphlet form, enlarged to 32 pages 8vo. Of this edition 2,521 are free copies.

Of the last Annual Report 4,300 copies in pamphlet form, and 10,500 copies in newspaper form were published; also a number of circulars and missionary papers.

From the American Bible Society, the Presbyterian Board of Publication, the American Tract Society, and the American Sunday-school Union, large donations of their respective publications have been received, for the different missions and schools of the Board.

MISSIONARIES AND ASSISTANT MISSIONARIES SENT OUT.

To North India.

Rev. James L. Scott and his wife.

To China.

Rev. John L. Nevius and his wife.
Rev. Charles F. Preston.
Dr. John G. Kerr and his wife.
Rev. Reuben Lowrie and his wife.

To Corisco, Western Africa.

Rev. Edwin T. Williams,
Rev. Wm. Clemens, and their wives.

To the Creek Indians.

Mr. Thomas S. Byers and his wife.
Miss Clara Stanislaus.

To the Chippewa and Ottawa Indians.

Mr. J. G. Turner and his wife.
Miss W. A. Isbell.
Miss Harriet Cowles.

To Buenos Ayres.

Rev. Thomas L'Hombral.

To Roman Catholics in Ireland.

Rev. Thomas Warren.

AGENCIES.

The Rev. Wm. S. Rogers has been employed as an agent for eleven months among the churches in the Synods of Ohio, Cincinnati, and Indiana. After seven years' faithful services as an agent of the Board, he has resigned his agency.

The Rev. James Wilson spent five and a half months of agency labor in the Synods of Northern Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Memphis. At the end of this period Mr. Wilson also resigned his agency, to engage in pastoral labors. The Committee part with both these brethren with their best wishes and prayers for their prosperity and usefulness in any other field of labor to which, in the providence of God, they may be called.

In the last autumn one of the Secretaries of the Board spent about two months in visiting and meeting with the Synods in the West and South. He was cordially received by the pastors and members of the churches.

The Rev. John Leighton Wilson, who at the last meeting of the Board was elected as one of their Secretaries, much to the satisfaction of his associates in the Mission House, and of the friends of the cause in the Church at large, has accepted the appointment, and on the first of September entered upon the duties of his office. Since that time both the clerical Secretaries have visited a number of the churches on the Sabbath, at the usual time of making their collections for Foreign Missions, whenever it was practicable.

The Board are now without a single agent. After the meeting of the last General Assembly several agents were appointed, but from various causes none of them could be obtained, except the two above named. Their labors, and those of the Secretaries, could reach but a comparatively small number of the churches, thus leaving the others without any agency, other than that of the pastors themselves. The result of this limited agency has been very different in different Synods. In some the contributions have been increased above that of previous years. This is recorded with thankfulness, as most encouraging. In others there has been a most painful falling off from the amount of receipts heretofore obtained. A tabular statement accompanies this Report, which shows the receipts.

Missions among the Indians.

CHICKASAW MISSION.

Wapanucka.—Rev. H. Balentine, Mr. James S. Allan, farmer, and their wives; Mr. John C. McCarter, Mr. J. L. Davis, assistants; Miss F. K. Thompson, Miss Hannah M. Green, Miss Mary Jane Burns, Miss Maria Shellabarger, Miss Anna M. Turner, and Miss Clara W. Eddy, teachers.

Boggy Depot.—Rev. A. M. Watson, and his wife; Miss Mary Jane Wilson, teacher.

No changes have taken place in the mission family at Wapanucka during the year, except the transfer of Miss Eddy from the Creek mission to the female institution at this place. The institution was severely tried by sickness during the autumn, and as many as four of the pupils have been removed by death. The disease was typhoid fever, which was not confined to Wapanucka, however, but prevailed over all the surrounding country.

The labor of nursing and attending the sick devolved almost entirely upon the teachers, several of whom were themselves far from being well, and were but poorly prepared to endure this unavoidable labor. Fears were entertained that this severe visitation might be prejudicial to the interests of the institution, but these apprehensions have not been realized. In all cases of severe sickness, where fatal results were apprehended, the parents of the children were summoned to the place, and they saw not only that every thing was done to alleviate the sufferings of their children that could be done, but that they were better attended than they could have been at their own homes. The cold weather put an end to sickness, and since then both pupils and teachers have enjoyed almost uninterrupted health.

At the commencement of the year the number of pupils was forty, but in the early part of the year it increased to one hundred, the number to which it is limited. The whole school has been arranged into three separate departments, and two young ladies have been assigned to each; one of whom teaches and the other has charge of the girls out of the school; and between them they do the necessary sewing for the girls, all of whom are too young, or have not had sufficient training as yet, to do their own sewing.

The institution is doing well at the present time, and promises to be a great blessing to the Chickasaw people in very many respects. The want of domestic help in this, as in most of our Indian missions, has been severely felt. The drudgery which Mr. and Mrs. Balentine had to endure has seriously affected her health, and prevented him from the effective discharge of his ministerial duties. It is hoped, however, that the chief difficulty has been surmounted, and that the affairs of the institution will be managed hereafter more easily. It is expected, too, that a farm will be commenced this spring under the direction of Mr. Allan, that will contribute materially to the prosperity of the institution, as well as diminish its expenses.

At Boggy Dépôt, during the forepart of the year, Mr. Watson gave himself up to preaching and the study of the Chickasaw language. His progress in the acquisition of the language was satisfactory, and his preaching was not without encouraging tokens of the Divine blessing. In the early part of the autumn, however, both his own and Mrs. Watson's health became so much impaired, that they were compelled to withdraw from their post of labor. They are both in South Carolina, their native State, at the present time, and are somewhat improved in health. Fears are entertained, however, that they may not be able to resume their missionary labors for some time to come.

Miss Wilson arrived at this station early in May, and immediately entered upon her duties as teacher. Five or six weeks afterwards, she was attacked with chills and fevers, and was compelled to suspend her school. In August her health had improved, and the school was resumed with even fairer prospects than at its commencement. But in October her health failed the second time, and she was compelled to disband her school and retire to Wapanucka. She is still in poor health, and it is feared will not be able to engage again in her work with the reasonable prospect of accomplishing any thing of importance. The station at Boggy Dépôt is a very important one; and if it should seem improbable, after a time, that Mr. Watson's health would allow him to return to his post there, the Committee will make an effort to get some one else to take the place.

CHOCTAW MISSION.

Rev. Alexander Reid; Mr. George Ainslie, Mr. J. Harvey Nourse, and Mr. R. J. Burtt, teachers; Mr. Edward Evans, farmer; Mr. Joseph S. Betts, carpenter, and their wives; Mr. Truman Judson, assistant; Miss Elizabeth Morrison, seamstress.

Several changes have taken place in the missionary force at Spencer Academy the last year. Rev. John Edwards, with the consent of the Executive Committee, was transferred from the service of the Board to take charge of the church at Wheelock, made vacant by the lamented death of Rev. Alfred Wright. Mr. Edwards still continues his connection with the Presbytery, so that his ecclesiastical relations have not been affected by this change. His brethren at Spencer speak of him as a good teacher, a devoted missionary, and a pleasant associate.

Mr. Reuben Lowrie was sent in 1852 to Spencer, to supply the want of a teacher in that institution, and remained there until that vacancy was filled by the arrival of the two excellent teachers who are now there in the discharge of their duties. Mr. Lowrie returned in October, 1853, and since then has been appointed by the Committee a missionary to Shanghai. Mr. Nourse and his wife reached Spencer the 26th of May, and Mr. Burtt and wife the 6th of June. Mr. Betz returned to the mission in June last, the health of his wife having been in a great measure restored. On the 6th of July, Mr. John Reid, a brother of the Rev. Alexander Reid, departed this life after an illness of only six days. For several years previous to his death, he had devoted his life wholly to the service of the mission, and he asked and desired nothing for his services, except what was barely necessary to provide him with food and raiment. His life was that of a sincere and consistent Christian, and his end was peace.

The members of the mission, as a general thing, have enjoyed good health during the year, and have prosecuted their labors without material interruption. The pupils of the school also have enjoyed good health, and have pursued their studies to the satisfaction of their teachers.

During the last year the number of pupils had been increased to one hundred and thirty, being thirty more than was stipulated for in the agreement entered into by the Board and the Choctaw Council. This additional number was received in the hope and expectation that as many of the more advanced pupils might receive a more thorough and extensive education than they could get in the regular prescribed term of study in the institution. But in this respect the teachers of the school and the Committee have been somewhat disappointed. The more advanced pupils, for causes which are not fully understood, have manifested very little disposition to remain longer in the institution than the ordinary prescribed term. In view of this fact, the number of pupils at the commencement of the present session was restricted to one hundred. The pupils are now arranged into three departments of nearly equal size, and placed under separate teachers. The most advanced department is under the care of Mr. Ainslie, the next under the instruction of Mr. Nourse, and the third is taught by Mr. Burtt.

The higher classes are engaged in the study of English Grammar, Geography, Arithmetic, Algebra, Astronomy, and English Composition. Of the present pupils in the institution, seventy attended the last year, and about thirty were received at the beginning of the present session. Generally they are younger than those who had attended the school in former years, and the teachers, in consequence, have had much less difficulty in governing them. And although the Committee have been somewhat disappointed in relation to imparting a higher degree of education to a part of the pupils of this school, it is not to be inferred that such education as they have received is of no value to them. Imperfect, and much below what the Committee would have it to be, it raises them nevertheless, though gradually, in the scale of civilization and improvement.

It is a matter of great importance, however, that the pupils should receive a thorough training, so as to become efficient teachers themselves, or to fill any other stations which the present state of the Choctaw nation demands; and in view of this, it is exceedingly important that some plan should be adopted by which they could be kept at their studies for a longer period; and the Committee are not without hope that the present pupils, having been taken at an earlier age and inured to study while young, will not prove so restive or impatient as those who were taken at a more advanced age. In this view of the matter, the prospects of the institution were never more encouraging than at present. Mr. Reid testifies to the faithfulness and cheerfulness with which both teachers and pupils discharge their respective duties. Much attention is also given to training the boys to habits of manual labor and industry. On this subject Mr. Reid, in his letter to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, remarks: "The formation of industrial habits by our pupils, we deem of the utmost importance to their future welfare and happiness. If they do not form habits of industry when they are young, they never will do it. We have therefore required our boys to work between two and three hours every day. Neither labor nor expense ought to be spared to accomplish this object. Unless the rising generation are inured to habits of industry, they will scarcely derive benefit from any instruction they may receive in our school."

Mr. Reid keeps up regular religious instruction, both on the Sabbath and the week, for the pupils of the Academy and the mission families, and attends other religious meetings in the country, as his more pressing engagements at Spencer will allow. Mr. Ainslie spent most of his last vacation in travelling among the Choctaws, and holding religious meetings among them; and it is probable that he and his associate teachers will spend the coming vacation in the same kind of labors.

CREEK MISSION.

Tallahassee.—Rev. Robert M. Loughridge; Mr. Wm. S. Robertson, principal teacher, and their wives; Miss Nancy Thompson, Mrs. Elizabeth Reid, teachers; Mr. Alexander McCune, farmer.

Kowetah.—Rev. Wm. H. Templeton; Miss C. M. Workman, and Miss Clara Stanislaus, teachers; and Miss Keziah Anderson, native assistant teacher.

Several changes have taken place in the mission family at Tallahassee during the year. Mr. Loughridge and Miss Harriet Johnson, of Stockbridge, Mass., and formerly principal of the Female Seminary in the Cherokee country, have been united in marriage. Miss Eddy, as is mentioned in connection with the Chickasaw mission, was transferred from this mission to the female seminary at Wapanucka. Miss Mary Lewis and Miss Elizabeth Stedham, formerly pupils and for some time assistant teachers at Tallahassee, have been appointed by the Creek Council teachers of separate day-schools in the nation, and they are now efficiently engaged in the discharge of their duties in these new spheres of labor. The Council could not have given a stronger testimony to the value of the institution at Tallahassee than they have in the appointment of these young teachers; and these, it is hoped, are but the first-fruits of a more abundant harvest that is to follow.

The health of the mission family has generally been good, and, with one or two exceptions, that of the pupils has also been good.

The number of pupils in the boarding-school is eighty, one half of whom are females. Ten or a dozen day-scholars have also attended the school, making the whole number between ninety and one hundred.

The studies to which the attention of the pupils has been directed are Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography, and English Grammar, in all of which they have made commendable progress.

At the close of the last session in July, "the examination was attended by a large and respectable audience, comprising a part of the trustees, the principal and other chiefs, the relatives of the pupils, and the Agent of Indian Affairs; all of whom were convinced, by the thorough and impartial examination of the pupils, of the healthy and prosperous condition of the school."

The church at Tallahassee is also in an interesting state. In the Report made to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs in August last, it is mentioned that ten native converts had been received to the church during the year. Since then, three others have been reported, making the whole number of church members twenty-five. There was also a good deal of seriousness among the people at Choska, where Mr. Loughridge preaches every three weeks.

Besides the labors which devolve upon Mr. Loughridge in connection with the church and school at Tallahassee, he preaches frequently in the surrounding country, and also at places more distant. He spends such time as he can redeem from his more active ministerial labors, in translating the Gospel of Matthew into the Creek language, which will probably be ready to be published in the course of a few months. A new and enlarged edition of the Creek hymn book has recently been published, and is received with much satisfaction by the people.

Miss Stanislaus reached the station at Kowetah last summer. About the same time, Mr. Thomas Byers, who had been appointed farmer to this station, and his wife, arrived here also; but his connection with the mission was soon after dissolved.

The mission family have enjoyed a good share of health during the year; and with the exception of a single case of sickness, which terminated in the death of one of the most interesting children of the school, the pupils have been favored with good health.

The school at Kowetah is doing quite as well as could be expected from the limited missionary force on the ground. The average attendance has been twenty-five, about two-thirds of whom are boys. The number of both sexes might be greatly increased, if the necessary means and help could be secured for enlarging the institution.

The church at Kowetah is also in a healthy and prosperous condition. The number of communicants is thirty, of whom twenty are Indians, five are colored persons of African descent, and five are whites. During the year, five have been admitted on examination, three of whom were baptized; the others having been baptized in infancy.

One of the pupils has recently commenced the study of Latin, with the view of qualifying himself for the work of the ministry. This, together with the fact that two other young men from the school at Tallahassee have already been received under the care of Presbytery, with the view of becoming preachers of the gospel, and with the additional fact also that three young teachers, trained in these institutions, are now engaged in teaching independent schools among their less enlightened kindred, is a source of great encouragement; and the Committee would humbly acknowledge their obligations to Almighty God for such favors.

Among none of the Indian tribes are there more encouraging signs of improvement than are to be found at present among the Creeks. Some years ago they became distrustful of the missionaries who were living among them at the time, and required them to leave the country; and for a time they seemed to have taken a decided stand against all missionary efforts among themselves. When Mr. Loughridge, the first missionary employed by the Board to visit this people, arrived among them in 1841, he was received with evident distrust; and when they finally consented to his forming a mission among them, it was under so many restrictions and limitations that the Committee could not but feel that any effort to diffuse the gospel among them could not be other than a doubtful experiment. The year following, Mr. Loughridge and his wife took up their abode among these people, and from that time the feelings of the Indians began to run in a different channel.

Since then there has been a growing confidence in the integrity and uprightness of the missionaries, and an increased conviction of the importance of education and religion to their own welfare and happiness. The schools, as they have been successively established, have been well attended; religious instruction has been heeded, and every year witnesses new accessions to the church; day-schools have been established by the people of their own accord, and are supported at the expense of the nation, several of which are taught by teachers who have been trained at the mission schools; the people are daily becoming more industrious, and are surrounding themselves both with the necessaries and the comforts of civilized life; they have become decidedly temperate in their habits, and in this respect furnish an example not only for the more besotted of their own race, but one that might be safely imitated by their white brethren in all parts of the United States.

SEMINOLE MISSION.

Oak Ridge.—Mr. John Lilley and Mr. John D. Bemo, and their wives.

The Seminole Indians occupy a small district in the south-western portion of the Creek country. They are not numerous, have made little or no progress in civilization, and are lamentably addicted to intemperance. They retain a strong sense of the injuries they have suffered at the hands of white men, and they regard all his overtures of kindness with distrust. A mission on a small scale was commenced among them in 1848, and has been conducted by two laymen (one of whom is himself a converted Seminole) and their wives. The site selected for the mission was a place called Oak Ridge, near Little River, and about one hundred miles south-west of the mission at Tallahassee. In 1849, a boarding-school was opened at this place, with eleven pupils, which has since gradually increased to twenty-six, (the present number in the school,) twenty of whom are Seminoles, two are Creeks, and four are the children of the missionaries. The children of this school have made good progress in their studies. As many as twelve or fourteen can read the Bible easily and intelligently. Mr. and Mrs. Lilley both suffered so much from sore eyes that they were compelled to suspend the school during the summer months. This temporary cessation from their labors relieved their sufferings, and the school was resumed in November. Since then the children have not only been pursuing their studies with diligence, but their teachers are not without hope that several of them are inquiring seriously what they must do to be saved. On this subject, Mr. Lilley writes: "The children are doing well, and improving in their studies. Questions are sometimes asked which lead us to think that their minds are exercised on the subject of religion. We hope the Spirit of God is operating upon their hearts, and will gradually lead them out of nature's darkness into the light of the glorious gospel of the Son of God." Two of the children belonging to the school have been removed by death during the year; one of them was a little girl, and though not more than eight or nine years of age, she gave her teachers the most pleasing evidence that, young as she was, she had been benefited by their instruction and example, and was prepared for the solemn hour of death.

Mr. Lilley also mentions three adults, who had attended the religious meetings at the mission-house to hear the Scriptures read and explained, who seem to manifest a strong desire to know what they must do to be saved; and two of the three had formerly been men of the most profligate lives. Who knows but God may have many of his elect among even this debased people, and that his time is now fully come to raise them up out of the mire of sin, and place them among his own most favored people?

This mission might be greatly enlarged, and the time seems to have come when there ought to be an ordained missionary connected with it. The chief difficulty lies in the want of funds. The Seminoles are poor themselves, have no annuities or school funds, and, with the exception of five hundred dollars granted from the Civilization Fund, they are dependent entirely upon the Board for any thing that may be done to promote the cause of religion and education among them.

IOWA AND SAC MISSION.

Rev. S. M. Irvin; Mr. James Williams, teacher, and their wives; Miss Susan A. Higley, assistant teacher.

Several changes have taken place in the mission family during the year. Rev. William Hamilton, who had been connected with the mission ever since its formation at its present site in 1838, has been transferred to the Otoe and Omaha mission. The separation between Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Irvin, who had been co-laborers for fifteen years, was a source of sincere grief to both, and they account it a real sacrifice which they have been called to make for the sake of Christ and these poor Indians. Mr. Williams, who was appointed to the charge of the school in the spring, has been united in marriage to Mrs. Letitia Donaldson. Miss Sarah A. Waterman, who had been connected with the mission as teacher for several years, left at her own request, in good standing, and enjoys the confidence and respect of her former associates.

Miss Rea had charge of the school for a time, and discharged her duty with efficiency, but could not remain longer than October. Miss Susan A. Higley joined the mission last autumn. During the months of August and September the country was visited with bilious fever, and the mission family and the Indians were both severely afflicted by it. The return of cold weather, however, put an end to sickness, and since then the mission family and the pupils of the boarding-school have enjoyed good health.

In the month of September the mission was favored with a visit from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs; and it is hoped that the free interchange of views between this enlightened and faithful officer of the Government and the missionaries here, and at other stations of the Indian country, may have an important bearing upon the measures which Government may hereafter adopt in relation to these tribes.

The boarding-school has been conducted with efficiency, and on a somewhat enlarged scale. The whole number of pupils is forty; one-half of whom are girls.

The mission to the Iowas is one of the first that was established by the Board among the Indian tribes. It has never been attended by any very marked tokens of encouragement. On the other hand, it has been sustained at times amid the most difficult and trying circumstances.

In the earlier periods of its history there was manifested little or no interest in the missionaries, or in their self-denying labors. On the contrary, the patience of the brethren was often severely tried by the habits of theft and intemperance of this people. Of late, however, they have manifested a better disposition. They are not so much addicted to thieving; and intemperance, though lamentably prevalent still, is not quite so common as formerly. They begin to see the missionaries have their welfare at heart, and are more disposed to listen to their instructions.

The children of the boarding-school have always shown a more docile temper, and have not infrequently evinced a decided interest in the subject of religion. A few years since, one of them who had become the subject of divine grace was removed by death, but not without leaving behind the most pleasing evidence that she had been accepted in the Saviour and was received to his presence in a better world. The missionaries now report the conversion of two more, who were received to the membership of the church at their communion in October. May it not be hoped that these are but the first drops of a more copious shower that is about to refresh that thirsty soil?

At the Iowa mission there are a number of young men and women who have been educated in the boarding-school, able and willing to work, and, with the encouragement they will receive from the Indian Department, are prepared to become useful and respectable citizens of the new Territory.

OTOE AND OMAHA MISSION.

Rev. William Hamilton; Mr. James C. Dillet, teacher; Mr. David Jones, farmer, and their wives; Miss Mary E. Woods, teacher.

Rev. E. McKinney remained in charge of the mission until June, 1853, when Mr. Hamilton, with his family, arrived from the Iowa and Sac mission, to release him from duties and labors which his own impaired health, and that of his family also, made it undesirable for him longer to continue. His connection with the Board, after years of faithful labor, has been brought to a close, but he carries with him the respect of the Committee, and has their best wishes for his happiness and future usefulness.

The mission family have enjoyed good health, and no unusual sickness has been reported either among the pupils in the school or natives about the mission station.

Mr. Hamilton arrived at the station on the 5th of June, and since then has been actively engaged in preaching the gospel, attending to the duties of the school, and discharging the multifarious secular duties unavoidably connected with this station.

The boarding-school has been continued without interruption during the year. The number of pupils reported in October was forty-two, being six more than reported last year. Of these, fifteen are Pawnees, ten are Omahas, six are Sioux, four Blackfeet, three Otoes, and three Puncas, of all of whom twenty-six are boys and sixteen girls. A large number of these pupils entered the school in May. Eighteen or twenty of them can read and write, and about a dozen are sufficiently advanced to study geography. The children attend Sabbath-school also, and those of them who can read are required to commit the catechism, hymns, and portions of Scripture to memory. At the same time the children are trained to habits of industry and out-door work; and the farm that has been commenced in connection with this station, and is to be worked in a measure by the boys of the school, it is hoped will contribute materially to the support of the institution itself.

The Otoes and Omahas, like most of the other tribes in the same region of country, have made very little progress in civilization. The chase still continues to have stronger charms for them than the more sober occupations of civilized life. During the hunting season, the adult population get almost entirely beyond the reach and the influence of the missionaries, and little or nothing can be done to promote their spiritual welfare while thus engaged. This means of subsistence, however, is every year becoming more precarious, and the Indians themselves are beginning to see that they must betake themselves to other occupations or be reduced to utter starvation. It is to be hoped that the kind and Christian instruction which is imparted to them when at their homes, and the salutary impressions which are made upon the mind and the character of their children in the school, will aid them in their purposes of amendment, and save them from ultimate extinction as a people.

The Otoes live on the south side of the Platte, and are less accessible to the missionaries than the Omahas, who live on the north side, and immediately around the mission station. They are desirous of having a separate school for their children on the south side of the river, and the probability is, if there was one, it would be well attended.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The question of forming treaties with these Indians, as well as with Iowas and Sacs and other small tribes, is now engaging the attention of the Indian Department of the Government. Much will depend upon the principles introduced into these treaties, both as it regards the manner in which their annuities shall be given to them, and as to the new location that may be assigned them. It is understood that the Government is desirous that their annuities be so paid to them as to aid and encourage them in supporting themselves by cultivating the soil, and aid in establishing schools among them for both sexes. Should these enlightened views of the Government be carried out, it will be a great blessing to these Indian tribes. All of them have claims to much more land than they can ever use as farmers, and it will be a benefit to them to relinquish the surplus quantity, give up the hunter state, and, with the aid of the funds received from the sale of a part of their land, commence at once to support themselves by the labor of their hands.

The location that may be assigned them is also a matter of vital interest to their future welfare. It would be most injurious to them to be removed far to the West or North. They would be exposed anew to the temptations of the hunter life. To remove them entirely from the white man is now impossible, and they will be far more likely to improve by having the example of industrious farmers as their immediate white neighbors, than to be either by themselves, or in the vicinity of an unsettled white population on the frontier.

CHIPPEWA AND OTTAWA MISSION.

Grand Traverse.—Rev. Peter Dougherty; Mr. Daniel Rodd, interpreter and assistant, and their wives; Miss H. L. Cowles and Miss W. A. Isbell, teachers.
Little Traverse.—Mr. Andrew Porter and Miss Ann Porter, teachers.
Middle Village.—Mr. J. G. Turner and his wife, teachers.

No changes of importance have taken place in the mission families at these stations, except the arrival of Miss Isbell at the station at Grand Traverse, and the transfer of Mr. Daniel Rodd from Little Traverse to the same station.

The reasons for removing the mission establishment at Grand Traverse from the reservation to the west side of the bay, were mentioned in the last Annual Report. The buildings at the new station were partially finished in August, at which time Mr. Dougherty and his family removed to that place, having been preceded by a portion of the Indians who had formerly lived near the old station.

About the middle of September the boarding-school was opened, when twenty-two boys and seven girls were received into it; most of whom had attended the day-school at the old station, and all of whom, except five, were the baptized children of members of the church. In January the number of pupils had increased to thirty-four; twenty-three boys and eleven girls. The number of applications for admission was so much increased and became so urgent, that the Committee have authorized Mr. Dougherty to increase the number of pupils to forty-six, which, with his own children and a few other white children whose parents are willing to pay for their board, will make the whole number upwards of fifty, which are as many as the present buildings will accommodate or the present missionary force could attend to.

Miss Cowles has charge of the male department, and Miss Isbell that of the girls; the pupils of both are making satisfactory progress in their studies. Preaching has been continued as in former years. The number of church members last year was thirty-two, but no report has been received of the number for the present year. Most of the church members live near Grand Traverse: a few are settled near Little Traverse, and are connected with that station.

The mission family was subjected to much inconvenience at the beginning of the winter, in consequence of the unfinished state of the buildings, the want of suitable help, and the delay in receiving their usual supply of provisions. These difficulties are incidental, however, to the establishment of new missions anywhere, and especially among the Indian tribes of high latitudes, but will not be likely to occur again in connection with this mission.

The station at Little Traverse has been carried on efficiently and without interruption during the year. Mr. Porter has continued to hold weekly religious meetings, at which portions of Scripture are read and explained, and a sermon or tract is also read. These are well attended, notwithstanding the influence of the Roman Catholic priest on the opposite side of the bay has been exerted against them. The day-school at this place has also been doing well. The number of pupils at one season of the year was forty, but the average attendance has not been more than thirty. Most of them can read some; ten or a dozen can read the New Testament intelligently, and are acquiring some knowledge of Arithmetic.

A school has been established during the year at Middle Village, to the north, and about ten or twelve miles distant from Little Traverse Bay. This was done at the earnest request of the chief and the principal men of that village. Mr. J. G. Turner, who was appointed by the Committee to take charge of the station and teach the school, visited the place in June, and took measures for the erection of suitable buildings. From thence he returned to Ohio for a few weeks, and was married while there. He and his wife arrived at Middle Village in August, and were most cordially received by the people. Their own dwelling not having been completed, they occupied a hired house for a time, and Mrs. Turner, whilst her husband was industriously engaged in preparing their buildings, opened a school for the children in an adjoining grove, and continued it there, when the weather was not unfavorable, until the house was completed.

They got into their own house in October, and the school in December contained thirty pupils; besides which, Mr. Turner has a night-school for adult young men who attend during the day. Both schools are doing well, and will, no doubt, prove great blessings to those for whose benefit they have been established.

A missionary is greatly needed for the Indians in the immediate vicinity of Little Traverse and Middle Village, and the Committee have resolved to send one there, but as yet no one of suitable character has offered to go to that station. Besides the people living in the villages, where the schools have already been established, there are several villages in the immediate neighborhood or not far distant, which might be brought under the influence of the gospel if it was faithfully proclaimed among them.

The prospects of the Chippewa and Ottawa Indians in the State of Michigan are much more promising than those of the same tribes in the North-west Territory. They are not disposed to emigrate from the State, and the people of Michigan have no particular wish that they should. Many of these Indians have purchased lands for themselves, are cultivating the soil industriously, and in many other respects conforming to the habits of civilized life; and if they go on to improve as they have done for some time past, they will ere long find themselves on a footing of perfect civil and social equality with the whites of the State. The Church should feel thankful for the influence she has exerted in giving this favorable turn to their prospects, and should be encouraged to persevere in this work of love and mercy.

Missions in Africa.

LIBERIA MISSION.

Monrovia.—Rev. David A. Wilson, and his wife; Mr. B. V. R. James, teacher; Miss Catherine Strobel, assistant teacher.
Kentucky.—Mr. W. H. Erskine, licentiate preacher and teacher.
Sinou.—Rev. James M. Priest; and Miss Mitchell, assistant teacher.
Settra Kroo.—Mr. Washington McDonogh, teacher.

Mrs. Wilson suffered so much from the effects of the climate during the forepart of the year, that it was deemed advisable for her to visit her native country with the view of recruiting her health. She arrived in this country about the middle of June. Since then her health has greatly improved, and she now indulges the hope of resuming her labors in Africa, with less liability to sickness than she experienced during her former residence in that country. Mr. Wilson has continued at his post and performed his varied and onerous duties with little or no interruption from sickness. He has had occasional attacks of chills and fevers, but they have always been mild; and he thinks his constitution has not been sensibly impaired by a residence of nearly three years in Liberia. The other members of the mission have enjoyed their usual health, and their ordinary labors have been carried on without material interruption.

Church and Sabbath-school.—The church at Monrovia is still without a pastor. During the year Mr. Wilson has usually preached once on the Sabbath, and held a weekly lecture for the congregation, in addition to his other duties. The church has enjoyed a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Six members were added to it at their last communion—three on certificate of dismission from other churches, and three on a profession of faith. The whole number of church members is forty, being eight more than were reported last year. There is also an interesting Sabbath-school connected with the church, under the superintendence of Mr. James, the average attendance of which has been about seventy-five.

The church desires and greatly needs a pastor to be sent to them from this country, and the Board would gladly comply with their wishes in this particular, if they knew of a man of suitable qualifications who would be willing to go to that station.

The English school taught by Mr. James continues to be one of the largest and most flourishing in Liberia. The number of pupils is sixty-four. The whole school is arranged into five or six classes, the more advanced of whom are studying Arithmetic, Geography, Grammar, Astronomy and Composition.

The Alexander High-School, under the care and instruction of Mr. Wilson, is doing very well. The number of pupils is fourteen. These are the choice youths of the country, and are making very satisfactory progress in Latin and Greek as well as other departments of study. The number will be increased as fast as boys from the primary schools, suitably qualified, shall offer themselves. Mr. Wilson rightly judges that he is performing a more important service to the country at large by confining his attention to the more promising class of youths, who have already made some progress in their studies, and giving them a thorough training, than by undertaking to instruct a large number of less promise and fewer previous advantages. Those under his care at present are receiving a better and more thorough education than those enjoyed who have the control of public affairs in Liberia at the present time; and there is reason to hope, that when they come to fill the more important posts both in Church and State, as they undoubtedly will, they will impart a higher tone of character to every important interest in the country. It affords occasion for sincere gratitude that the school has had some tokens of the Divine presence and blessing during the year. Two of the young men have become the subjects of Divine grace, and several others are asking what they must do to be saved.

Kentucky.—This settlement is on the St. Paul's river, midway from Monrovia to Millsburgh, and about ten miles distant from either. The station here is under the care of Mr. W. H. Erskine. He preaches to the Presbyterian congregation and teaches a school at the same time. A small brick church has been erected by the congregation during the past year, and it is much to their credit that it has been completed, or very nearly so, by funds that have been raised in a great measure among themselves. The number of communicants is thirty-three, the same that was reported last year. There are three Sabbath-schools connected with and carried on by the members of this congregation; one at Kentucky, of forty pupils; one at Calwell, on the opposite side of the river, of fifteen, and one at Millsburgh, of twenty-five, making eighty in all. Mr. Erskine also teaches a day-school at Kentucky, the average attendance of which is twenty-four. Besides which, he has three boys boarding in his family and supported by the Associate Reformed Synod of the South. The same venerable body also support one of the pupils in the High-School, who was formerly supported by them under the care of Mr. Erskine. One or two of the more advanced pupils have recently been transferred to the Alexander High School at Monrovia.

Sinou is situated on the sea-coast, about one hundred miles east and south of Monrovia. It is one of the largest settlements in Liberia, and is making, it is said, more rapid progress in agricultural and other useful arts than any of the other settlements. Mr. Priest was stationed here in 1848, and since then has gathered a church of forty-four members. The number of communicants reported last year was thirty-three. Three of these have died during the year, so that there have been fourteen additions to the church. There is a Sabbath-school connected with the church also, but no information has been received as to the number of attendants. A day-school has been formed in this settlement, and is taught by Miss Mitchell, a colored girl of education, but no report as yet has been received of the number which attend. There is a large native population in the immediate vicinity of Sinou, and the Board would be glad to extend the blessings of the gospel to them also, but they have not as yet found any suitable person to undertake this work. In order to benefit the natives of the country, it is indispensably necessary that their language be studied and understood, and few, if any, of the adult colored emigrants from this country ever make this attainment.

Settra Kroo.—This is entirely a native settlement, and is situated on the sea-coast, fifteen or twenty miles to the eastward of Sinou. The population on the immediate sea-coast is large, but is still greater a few miles further back. It furnishes a large amount of palm oil for sale, and is consequently visited by most of the foreign vessels which frequent this part of the coast. There is a small school here taught by Mr. Washington McDonogh, and it would seem that the people are more disposed to avail themselves of the advantages of education now than they were in former years. There is a Sabbath-school here also of twelve or fifteen pupils, and Mr. McDonogh has religious services both on the Sabbath and during the week for all those who are disposed to attend.

Besides these efforts to promote the cause of education and religion in Liberia, the Board are making arrangements to employ an additional number of pious emigrants as catechists and Sabbath school teachers in other parts of the country. These persons have not had all the intellectual training that could be desired, but it is hoped that they will be useful nevertheless in promoting the welfare of their more ignorant brethren.

Several white men are very much needed as missionaries for this part of the country, and the Committee are happy to report that one young man of promise has offered his services for this field

In consequence of the comparative unhealthiness of this part of Africa, the Committee do not urge any one to go, but they would gladly send any applicant of proper qualifications who would choose to go there with a full knowledge of the true state of the country. They are thoroughly convinced that Liberia can never rise to respectability or importance as a nation, or exert any good orsalutary influence upon the perishing millions around them, until the people are brought under a thorough religious and educational influence; and this, for the present, and perhaps for a long time to come, must proceed from the Christian churches of this country. On this subject, Mr. Wilson remarks:

> I am far from regarding Liberia as a failure; but the conviction of my mind is constantly growing stronger, that it can never meet the expectations of its friends, unless much more is done for its people than has heretofore been deemed sufficient. The Church ought to feel her obligations to furnish them the means of social, intellectual, and religious improvement. The means in operation here now are not sufficient for the present population, and much less will they be so when flooded with streams of ignorance and corruption from abroad. The circumstances here are more favorable for the cultivation of manly and virtuous character than in America, but they are not sufficient to supersede the means ordinarily employed to secure these results.

CORISCO MISSION.

Evangasimba.—Rev. James L. Mackey, and his wife; Rev. George McQueen, Jr. Station not yet determined: Rev. Messrs. Edwin T. Williams, and William Clemens, and their wives.

Messrs. Williams and Clemens, and their wives, embarked at New York, in the Bark Gem, for Corisco, the 19th of September. Since then the Committee have heard of their safe arrival at Fernando Po, and it is presumed they reached their station at Corisco a few days after.

The latest intelligence from the brethren at Corisco was to the 8th of November. At that time they were all in the enjoyment of good health, and had continued their various labors with little or no interruption from sickness. Mrs. Mackey had not been kept out of her school from sickness a single day in the whole year. Mr. McQueen, after having been there six or eight months, mentions that he had enjoyed as good health as he could have expected anywhere in the world; and Mr. Mackey's experience, after having been in the country more than three years, was quite as favorable to the health of the island as that of either Mrs. Mackey or Mr. McQueen.

The Committee regard this as an encouraging feature in the prospects of this mission. Corisco island is central to a large and populous region, and will become the head-quarters of missionary operations on this part of the coast, where newly arrived missionaries may stop to be acclimated and study the language, and where those laboring on the mainland may occasionally resort to recruit their health.

It will serve also as a starting-point for reaching the mountainous regions of the interior, whenever there shall be an adequate missionary force to take up the line of march into the central regions of the continent.

The island itself is not more than four or five miles in length, and two or three in breadth, but it has an active and enterprising population of three or four thousand, who have constant commercial intercourse with a population on the mainland, more than twenty times as great as their own; and it must be seen at once that the Corisco people, when brought under the influence of the gospel, both from their insular position and previous habits, will become efficient helpers in spreading the gospel over the surrounding country.

Mr. McQueen's impressions of the natural beauty of the island and its suitableness as a missionary station, were of the most favorable character.

"My first impressions," he says, "were altogether favorable, nor have I seen or become acquainted with any thing since which would lead me to change that opinion. The natural scenery is quite diversified, and some of it is exceeding beautiful. All nature is clothed in the richest green. Here and there a strange flower pleases the eye; or a vine, of the richest foliage, spreads itself over a tree of stunted growth and forms a beautiful bower, or reaches up to the summit of one of greater height, and from its outstretched arms sends down its tendrils to the earth, like so much graceful drapery. From the west end of our house we see the breakers dashing against the beach, and at times with so much power and majesty as to rise to the sublime."

The various departments of missionary labor have been carried on actively and with little or no interruption during the year. Mr. McQueen has divided his time between the school, the study of the language, and preaching. During the forepart of the year he preached in a private house in one of the largest villages on the island. But during the dry season, he succeeded in getting a neat bamboo chapel erected at Ugovi, the place that was occupied for a short time by the lamented Simpson. He reaches a population here that is too far off to attend preaching at Evangasimba, where Mr. Mackey officiates. The attendance thus far has been good, and he hopes the people are treasuring up much religious knowledge, but as yet there are no very palpable fruits of the gospel among them. He usually spends two hours a day in the school at Evangasimba, and is assisted by one of the more advanced boys. The average attendance of the school has been thirty-seven, eight or nine of whom are boarders. Their progress is satisfactory, and quite as good as could be expected from the limited amount of instruction which they receive. A teacher is very much needed for this school, but as yet the brethren have not been able to secure one of suitable qualifications.

The female school at Evangasimba has been under the care of Mrs. Mackey ever since its commencement. The average attendance has been eighteen, twelve of whom are boarders. Their progress in learning has been most encouraging. Nine out of the twelve boarding-scholars are reading the New Testament with ease and intelligence, and have made equally good progress in sewing and other domestic duties. In relation to the capacity and progress of these children for learning, Mr. Mackey remarks: "I question whether the same number of white girls of their ages, taken uninstructed as they were, would have made greater progress in the same time. A class of nine read in the Testament, and the remainder are spelling or learning their letters. Their progress in learning to sew is equally good. Six or seven of them can sew up a shirt or make a dress, when cut out for them, without any thing more than a general oversight, and their sewing is equally neat and strong."

Mr. Mackey's time has been devoted to preaching on the island and on the mainland, to the study of the language, to the secular affairs of the mission, with attendance upon the sick; and he has recently performed a tour on the mainland, and made observations which are regarded as of great importance to the cause of missions in this part of the country.

The attendance at Evangasimba on the Sabbath is good. No conversions as yet have been reported, but there is a decided improvement in the general deportment of those who attend public worship, and it is believed that five or six young men living in the village contiguous to the mission premises are seriously inquiring what they must do to be saved.

During the last dry season, Mr. Mackey made three successive attempts to cross the "Sierra del Crystal" mountains, with the view of reaching the country of a large and populous tribe known as the Pangwe people. On his first journey he ascended the Muni river to the base of the mountain, and then made his way on foot a considerable distance up the western slope, where he found a cool and healthy air, much beautiful natural scenery, and a large native population, but he was not permitted to pursue his journey over the mountains. He set out the second time, and made but a single day's journey when his progress was arrested by the wars of the country. He commenced his third tour at a point of land midway between the mouths of the Muni and the Mondah rivers, and after a toilsome journey of eight days, in which he passed through several districts of country inhabited by two or more distinct tribes of natives, he reached the Pangwe towns in the mountains. The whole distance from Corisco island to the point where his journey terminated is estimated at one hundred and forty miles. This took him to the western frontiers of the Pangwe nation, the entire population of which is very considerable. They are scattered along this chain of mountains to the distance of several hundred miles, but how far they extend into the interior regions is not known. In the intervening maritime country through which Mr. Mackey passed, he found two native tribes, one of whom he estimates at ten, and the other at twelve thousand inhabitants, and also a few of a still larger tribe who have their chief settlements on the head-waters of the Gaboon. The Muni and the Mondah rivers furnish easy access to all these smaller communities, and a highway for more than one-half of the distance to the more populous portions of the Pangwe country.

The observations and discoveries made on this tour show that an immense field for missionary operation is opened up to the Church, and the Committee earnestly desire to have the men not only to occupy this new and extensive field, but also to occupy other points on the coast of southern Guinea, equally as promising as the one founded at Corisco.

GENERAL REMARKS.

A variety of circumstances conspire, in the providence of God, to prepare Western Africa for the introduction of the gospel, and they ought not to be overlooked by those who feel an interest in the welfare and salvation of this down-trodden race. For more than a year and a half there has been very little of the slave-trade, and unless some untoward event intervene, the prospect is, that it will never again be resuscitated. Commerce in the natural products of the country is developing itself with almost unprecented rapidity, and is effecting an entire change in the habits, the feelings, and the pursuits of the people. No one who knew the country under the distracting influence of the slave trade, can fail to be struck with the tranquillizing change that has been effected in their condition by the peaceful pursuits of lawful commerce

Christian missions, too, have effected a great work among these benighted people. Something like one hundred churches have been organized on different parts of the coast, and more than ten thousand native converts have been gathered into those churches. There are as many as one hundred and fifty Christian schools connected with the various missions in Western Africa, and twelve or fifteen thousand youths are receiving a Christian education in those schools. Twenty different dialects have been studied out and reduced to writing, into many of which large portions of the Bible, as well as other religious books, have been translated and circulated among the people. Missionaries in that country have increased facilities for protecting themselves against the deleterious influence of the climate, and the treatment of diseases peculiar to that country is better understood. A strong footing has been acquired at more than a hundred of the most eligible points of influence on the coast. The voice of the living preacher is now heard in the capitals of Ashanti and Dahomi, on the frontiers of Soudan, at Kalabar, and, as we have just seen, by one of our own missionaries, on the heights of the "Sierra del Crystal."

These will be seen to be advantages of great importance; and if they are followed up earnestly and faithfully, in reliance upon the blessing of God, they must result, ere long, in making known the unsearchable riches of the gospel throughout the whole length and breadth of that vast continent. Honor to that Church which labors most steadily and faithfully to bring about this glorious result!

Missions in India.

LODIANA MISSION.

Lahor.—Rev. Messrs. John Newton and John H. Morrison, and their wives; Rev. Charles W. Forman.

Mr. Newton is still in this country for his health, which has become somewhat better, though not fully restored; he expects to return to his field of labor in two or three months. The health of Mr. Forman was for a time somewhat impaired, and Mr. Morrison had a return of fever; but they were both in usual health at the latest dates, and it is expected that their new place of residence will prove a healthy location.

Preaching—Church.—The brethren preach the gospel almost daily in the streets and bazars, and they find no difficulty in obtaining an audience. "Lahor is a place," Mr. Warren wrote on his visit to this city, "in which it is important to keep up this kind of effort continually. It being the seat of the Panjab government, thousands of men from all parts of the country visit it; and many strangers will hear the gospel in its streets, to whose houses it may be many years in coming in any other way." A church was organized at this station early in the autumn, consisting of eight members, four of whom are natives. The missionaries trust that "the dews of the Spirit may water this vine, and make it bear much fruit."

Itinerating.—Journeys have been made to spread the knowledge of divine truth in the country. One of these tours traversed a district of the Panjab northward of Lahor, between the Ravi and the Chenab rivers, where Mr. Morrison spent six weeks in February and March, among the largest cities and towns. The northern part of this district was found to be densely inhabited; four cities of more than 30,000 inhabitants each were visited, besides several others of inferior size. A respectful attention was given to the Word preached. This was due, however, in some measure to the fear of opposing the foreigners, to whom this part of the country has been but lately subjected, and with whom for a time the missionaries will be identified in the view of the natives. Yet in many places, a vigorous discussion followed the preaching of the new religion. Persons were met with who had heard the missionary at Hardwar; others were found who had read some of the publications of the mission press at Lodiana; a large number of portions of the Scripture and other Christian books in Persian, Urdu, Hindi, Sanskrit, and Gurmukhi, were circulated; and some apparently sincere inquirers after the truth encouraged the heart of the missionary. An affecting example is stated, which should rebuke the indifference of Christians in the work of preaching the gospel to every creature:

> At Sialkot, I met the Superintendent of the Thuggee department, [for the suppression of the Thugs, a class of murderers,] who related to me the following incident: A Thug had been apprehended, and his crime so clearly proved against him, that he felt there was nothing to be gained by concealment. He therefore confessed to a great number of the most cold-blooded murders, committed for the sake of the property found on the persons of his victims. The Superintendent asked him how he could be so hard-hearted and cruel towards his fellows. He then drew from his bosom one of our books, and holding it out, said, "If I had received this sooner, I should not have done so."

Another missionary journey was made by Mr. Morrison in the autumn to Rawal Pindi, a large town about 180 miles north-west of Lahor. The immediate object of this journey was to confer with a number of Hindus, who had abandoned their former religion and were reported to desire Christian instruction. They were found to be little different from the Sikhs in their creed and practice, and their professed desire of missionary instruction appeared to proceed from mercenary or worldly motives. The gospel was plainly set before them, but it is only the Spirit of God that can open the heart to receive it. For four weeks, Mr. Morrison was engaged in the work of preaching in this city, "going to the bazars once or twice almost every day, and almost always preaching to large crowds," both of Hindus and Mohammedans.

New Mission Premises.—At this station there has been some difficulty in obtaining a suitable location for the dwelling-houses of the mission families, and the school has been held in a native house in the city not well adapted to its use. Some changes have been made in the latter, rendering it more convenient; and for the former, an old mosque was purchased and altered, and new rooms were added to it, so that it will accommodate the missionaries. The locality is several feet higher than the neighboring ground, and it is considered one of the healthiest places near Lahor.

Prospects of this Station.—Concerning these Mr. Warren says:

> I was particularly pleased with the prospects of this station. Our missionaries are in high honor with all classes of people around them, both English and native; their school is full; their preaching is effective; they have some inquirers, ... and the region beyond them is in "no small stir about this way." ... But, alas! I must say the same thing about this place which has been so often said in my former letters—more men are wanted.

School.—The session closed in April with 395 scholars. The examination, though necessarily brief, gave great satisfaction to all the visitors. The school continues to enjoy the favor both of Europeans and natives. Its expenses are defrayed by the liberality of friends at the station. Mr. Warren, in the letter already quoted, says:

> I was particularly pleased with this school. All the instructions were conveyed with a tincture of Christianity; the pupils showed, in a variety of ways, that they felt the influence of this course. Some confessed that they were convinced of the truth of the Bible; some were making many inquiries; and the opposition of some was excited. Messrs. Forman and Morrison seemed much interested in their work, and to have every prospect of success, though they may still have to labor long for it.

Jalandar.—Rev. Golok Nath; John B. Lewis, Teacher.*

The usual report of this station, as well as of Lahor, Lodiana, and Ambala, not having been received, the Committee have but imperfect accounts of its condition.

Church.—As reported last year, seven members were connected with the church. Mr. Warren, on his visit to this station, observed some inquirers present at church, and he "spent some time in examining a Musulman candidate for baptism, in whose case Golok Nath wished for assistance and advice." Mr. Warren adds:

> I was glad to find that he had been carefully instructed, and that there seemed to be no disposition to hurry his baptism, in order to gain the credit of having an accession to the church. His admission was postponed, because he had not a full perception of the worthlessness of his own works to procure salvation. We had another conversation with a young Hindu inquirer; but he was sick, and we could not prolong our talk with him. He seemed to be a promising man.

A member of the Bible-class, fearing the opposition of his friends at Jalandar, went to Amritsar, and was there baptized by the English Episcopal missionaries.

School.—In December, the school contained about 250 boys. On his visit at this station, Mr. Warren examined the school, and found "the classes well arranged and carefully taught." Mr. Golok Nath says:

> We have some most promising lads to deal with. Many seem to have a decided preference for Christianity. I can hardly call them Hindus, for they believe Hinduism to be falsehood ... We need much the Spirit of God to bless our labors here.

Native Laborers.—The minister and teacher at this station, as has been mentioned in former reports, are natives of India. Both were formerly connected with the mission school at Lodiana as scholars and afterwards as teachers, and both were received into the mission church at that station.

* Names of missionaries and assistants printed in Italic denote natives of the country.

They are regarded, therefore, with peculiar and affectionate interest by the other missionaries—especially since they have been placed at a separate station. Mr. Warren's letter concerning his visit to their station, already quoted, was published in the Record of February. It mentions the desire of Mr. Golok Nath to have an American missionary stationed at Jalandar, with a special reference to the English department of the school, and gives some views of the question of placing native laborers at stations by themselves. This question need not be discussed in this place. Its decision will be found to turn on circumstances peculiar to each case. The Committee observe with pleasure Mr. Warren's warm interest in these native brethren. He says, "My intercourse with our native friends at Jalandar was most pleasant," and speaks of their having gained the confidence of all classes to a very great extent; while Mr. Golok Nath himself, in a letter to one of the missionaries now in this country, expresses feelings which will find a response in the heart of every true minister of Christ:

I have many mercies, heaped up and running over me. It seems that I am singled out to be a witness for my God, that his mercies are above all his works. I find fresh matter of praise and thanksgiving every day. I have a wide circle of friends to countenance and encourage me in my labor; and willing people to hear me talk about Jesus Christ and his salvation. All glory be to free grace!

Another Missionary wanted.—Jalandar contains some sixty thousand souls, and a large population is accessible from this city. Within fifteen miles of it are a city of twenty thousand inhabitants, another of fifteen thousand, two others of ten thousand each, and two or three towns containing each from four thousand to six thousand. For all of these there is but one missionary and an assistant, who have the charge at the same time of a large school. Besides, the Rajah or chief of a neighboring district, whose capital is twelve miles from Jalandar, has promised on certain conditions to place a considerable sum of money in the hands of the missionaries, to establish schools throughout his territory, to be conducted entirely on Christian principles. In the view of these interesting facts, Mr. Newton says: "How would it be possible for Golok alone, in addition to his present duties, to take the oversight of schools throughout the territory of the Rajah? And yet how painful to be compelled to decline such an offer! Is it not God who is moving the heart of the king thus to favor his cause? Who will go?"

LODIANA.—Rev. Messrs. Levi Janvier and Adolph Rudolph, and their wives; Mrs. Mary R. Porter; Qadir Baksh, scripture reader.

This station has met with a severe bereavement in the death of the Rev. Joseph Porter. He had been suffering for a considerable time from bronchitis, which at length became a confirmed consumption, and terminated his life on the 21st of November. Mr. Porter was connected with the mission for about eighteen years, having gone to India in the autumn of 1835. He was a man highly esteemed by his brethren, a most useful missionary, and a sincere and humble-minded Christian. His last hours were full of peace, and his death was witnessed by most of the brethren of the mission, who were then at this station, attending the annual meeting, and who followed his remains to the grave. A memoir of this lamented missionary was published in the Record of April. Mrs. Porter will continue at Lodiana, in charge of the orphan girls, where she has the prospect of doing much good. The sympathies of her companions in the missionary work, and of the friends of the mission, will lead to many prayers being offered on her behalf.

One of the native assistants reported last year, Daniel Wells, has also been called to his rest. A brief sketch of his life was published in the Foreign Missionary of December. He was a Hindu of the Brahmin caste, and was admitted to the church in 1841. His Christian course is described as not altogether free from some of the defects of native character, yet quiet, steadfast, and in the main correct. He seemed to have a heartfelt satisfaction in being engaged in the work of the Lord, and during his last illness, which was protracted and attended with much suffering, "never for a moment did a cloud seem to rise between him and the Saviour. His feet were planted on the Rock of Ages, and he knew no fear. Often the name of 'Jesus,' 'peace,' 'consolation,' were on his lips."

The health of Mrs. Janvier has continued to be very feeble, so that it was necessary for her to spend the hot months in the hills, accompanied by Mr. Janvier. This caused a serious interruption to his labors at this station, though he was able to engage in some kinds of missionary work in the hill-country.

Church and Preaching.—The number of church members reported last year was nineteen. Services are held on the Sabbath in the church and the chapel, and during the week the gospel is preached in the bazars, where a large congregation can be collected almost at any time without effort. Owing to the absence of Mr. Janvier and the illness of Mr. Porter, these duties fell heavily on Mr. Rudolph.

Schools.—The orphan girls' school, containing eighteen inmates, as reported last year, is still under the charge of Mrs. Porter; and it is earnestly hoped that her health may be continued, so that she can retain this important post. She writes:

Our dear girls were much impressed with my husband's death, and I am not without hope that in some instances the impression may be lasting. They have shown their sympathy for me in many little ways; the sweetest flowers have been gathered for me, and they have made many exertions to free me from care and trouble on their account.

In the English and vernacular schools, 231 scholars were reported in the last returns which have been received. They are under the superintendence of Mr. Rudolph, and the general outline of their studies is not materially different from that which has been described in former reports. The English school, particularly, is spoken of as in a satisfactory condition.

Missionary Tours.—A journey was made in March by the late Mr. Porter, extending to Lahor, during which many opportunities occurred of preaching the gospel "at places before unvisited;" and much interest was shown by the native females in seeing the wife of the missionary. The opinion was expressed by Mr. Porter that "as large audiences of women" could be spoken to by a missionary lady, acquainted with the native language, "as our male missionaries can commonly command; but it requires one to speak the most illiterate kind of Panjabi to make them understand you." Besides visits to places nearer his station, Mr. Rudolph made a tour into the Panjab, and visited the celebrated place of pilgrimage at Jwala Mukhi. His journals, published in the Record, contain interesting accounts of the gospel preached unto many persons. Reviewing this journal, Mr. Rudolph says:

I feel much encouraged in my work; I see that the mass of the people are preparing for a change. Many of our books are read; they have done some execution already. Fourteen years ago, when I entered the mission field, we found nothing but ignorance in matters of religion. The common people were unacquainted with the very first principles of natural religion. Now the case is different. The people have become, in a measure, familiar with gospel doctrines and gospel morality. Much of it has recommended itself so well to many, that they suppose it to be a part of their own system, not remembering where they learned it. Much of it is also misunderstood by the more ignorant classes: [the inadequate] means employed in the spread of the gospel awakens serious fears as to the result, but a great change will come over this land. Idolatry is crumbling to pieces even at the touch of reason, not to mention the gospel. Will the Church at home be prepared when this great change takes place? Or will the few missionaries in the field be left alone to direct and regulate matters among the millions of Hindustan?

The Press.—A considerable amount of work was executed at the press, though the feeble health, and afterwards the removal by death, of its excellent superintendent, Mr. Porter, tended to restrict its issues. No list of works published has been received. The number of pages printed, however, was not less probably than in the preceding year—amounting to nearly 2,000,000. The Gospel of Luke in Urdu, 5000 copies, was among the publications completed. An edition of 8000 copies of the Psalms was in the press, besides other works not yet finished. Mr. Janvier has taken the charge of the printing establishment, at the request of the mission, and will be able to maintain its influence as an auxiliary to the missionary work.

Dispensary and Poor-House.—As in former years, the diseases and wants of many have been relieved. No returns of the number in attendance at the Poor-House have been received; at the Dispensary, from forty to sixty persons at a time obtain medical aid and advice. The operation of benevolent labors like these, conducted year after year, must have some effect on the minds of the native community. The influence thereby exerted may be imperceptible almost, yet it will lead many persons to regard the missionaries as their benefactors, and will predispose larger numbers to appreciate the benevolent nature of the Christian religion.

Another Missionary wanted.—The Committee cannot conclude their account of this station without calling attention to its urgent need of a stronger missionary force. On this subject a strong and affecting appeal to the churches was made by Mr. Warren, which was published in the Record of January last. Lodiana was the first station occupied by the Board in India, and it is still one of the most important. Its large population of Hindus, Mohammedans and Sikhs—or, classing its inhabitants by their nativity rather than their religious faith, the large numbers of natives of the country south of the Sutlej, people of the Panjab, Kashmerians, Afghans, and others, who are found thronging its streets—make this city a place of no ordinary interest as a missionary post. "The neighboring accessible towns are many and important, while the ordinary population is large enough to occupy the time of four men," giving to each man the charge of 20,000 souls. The church, the chapel, the schoolhouses, the dwelling-houses for four families, the printing-press, the native converts, the two hundred and fifty scholars, the people willing to hear—all these are on the ground; and with these are the labors and prayers, the disappointments and bereavements, and yet the faith and hope, the grace and glory of nearly twenty years of missionary labor. The Church has too sacred an interest in this station to be willing that it should remain much longer so feebly manned. At least one more missionary must be sent forth, at an early day, to strengthen the brethren now over-burdened, and to carry forward the good work of the Lord in this city.

Sabathu.—This station, in the lower ranges of the Himalaya mountains, has not yet been reöccupied, though it is in many respects an eligible place for missionary labor. Mr. Warren thus speaks of his visit to Sabathu:

> We have no man whom we can spare from the plains, while his health allows him to remain there, to occupy this post. It is in the hills; the climate is delightful; I have not seen a nicer day in India than that which I spent at this place. There is a bazar, where a school might be set up, and where street-preaching might be carried on; there are European soldiers among whom good might be done; there are numerous villages of hill-people, which an active man might reach—but there is no man for it. We visited the bazar chapel, and found it ready to go to ruins. We visited Mrs. Jamieson's grave, and plucked some buds from a kind of cypress that is growing beside it. Then we rode down the hill, feeling that though the day had been in itself bright, beautiful, and temperate, it still had been one of the dark days of our life. When will the Church awake to her duty, and send out men to fill these waste places?

Ambala.—Rev. Messrs. Jesse M. Jamieson and James H. Orbison, and their wives; William Basten, catechist; Isa Das, Scripture reader.

In September, Mr. Orbison was married to Miss Agness C. Kay, the daughter of a Scotch family. In the early part of the year, Mr. Jamieson suffered severely from ill health, but his usual strength was restored, and he continues in the discharge of his important duties. The native catechist was transferred to this station from Lodiana, with a view to his increased usefulness amongst his countrymen.

Church and Religious Services.—The number of church members reported last year was thirteen. In November a young Hindu man was baptized. He was for some time a pupil in the mission school, and gave pleasing evidence of piety. His age is about eighteen, and it is hoped that he may become qualified to be useful in the missionary work. The general deportment of the members of the church has been satisfactory, and hopes were indulged that the two members, reported formerly as under suspension from the privileges of the church, would be restored to its communion on their giving longer proof of their repentance. The usual religious services have been maintained at this station.

At Ambala, as at other stations, the missionaries are occasionally visited by persons to make inquiries about the Christian religion. These inquirers are influenced by various motives; some of them are undoubtedly under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and eventually they find peace in Jesus Christ and a good hope of eternal life through his grace. Others soon become known as influenced only by mercenary expectations. Others still are perplexing cases, appearing to be sincere, yet not coming to a settled choice and profession of Christ as their Saviour. An example may be given of the latter class, from Mr. Warren's account of his visit at this station:

> A good part of the day was spent in long interviews with a Brahman—a Pandit—who was from the Panjab. He had been attached in some capacity to the establishment of Rajah Gulab Singh, now Maharajah of Jammu and Cashmere. He had met with our missionaries at Kangra and at Jwala Mukhi, and procured and read our books. He appeared to be fully convinced of the falsehood and folly of Hinduism, and generally of the truth of Christianity. . . . He was travelling about, making inquiries of different missionaries, and holding discussions with Pandits. There appeared to be several good points in him—he was living on his own money, and not begging, as many professed inquirers do; he had been offered a situation as teacher in a Government school, and declined, saying that he would first spend what money he had while settling for himself the matter of religion, and then he would take such service as would afford him the means of living, and he seemed to be honest and sincere. [The unfavorable traits were his being anxious to be considered as a learned man, and his having but little sense of the evil of sin. He remained several days at Ambala, and then went on to Saharunpur. Instances like this awaken both the hopes and fears of the missionaries.]

School,—School-house and Chapel.—The school has been continued, and is regarded with increasing interest by the missionaries. A new building for its use has been recently completed, which occupies a much better site than the inconvenient premises heretofore in use. The new building contains a chapel, in which public worship will be conducted. Towards the cost of this school-house and chapel, about three thousand rupees were contributed by liberal European friends. About two thousand rupees more are required to free it from debt, and the gift of a good bell from some friend of the cause would be a timely and valuable present. The school is said to be well attended, and the order of studies does not differ materially from what has been described in former years. The number of scholars in English and vernacular, as stated in the last report, was ninety. This number will probably be increased in the new school-house.

Saharunpur.—Rev. Messrs. James R. Campbell and Joseph Caldwell, and their wives; Theodore J. W. Wylie, catechist; John N. McLeod, scripture reader; Gilbert McMaster, teacher.

Sub-station at Dehra.—Rev. John S. Woodside and his wife.

The last Report mentioned the ill health of Mr. Woodside, and his contemplated residence for some months in the Hills. His health became much better during the year; but it was not considered expedient for him to return to the plains, and he has taken up his abode at Dehra. This is in some respects an important place for missionary labors. It is situated in a valley in the range of the Hills near the plains, and gives access to a numerous population heretofore destitute of the means of grace. European friends have made liberal donations to provide missionary premises at Dehra, and the hope is indulged that Mr. Woodside may have strength to be very useful in this new sphere of labor. If the supply of men and means were sufficient to occupy this and other important places, the Committee would have been glad to make it a separate station; under the circumstances of the case, they regard it as a sub-station in connection with Saharunpur, not involving increased expenditure on the part of the Board.

Religious Services.—Two Hindustani services and usually an English service have been held on the Sabbath, and two meetings during the week. Every afternoon there has been preaching at the church in the city, and very often at some other place in the Bazar. The missionaries speak of these services in their report in favorable terms. "In no previous year has there been so much and so respectful attention given to the public preaching of the gospel. The Lord seems to be opening the ears and we would hope also the hearts of the people, to attend to the great concerns of religion. But few objections to the peculiar doctrines of the gospel have been offered, while many have publicly acknowledged that they are true, and worthy of their acceptance.

Several persons made apparently serious inquiries concerning the way of salvation, but none of them were judged to be prepared to be baptized. The church has received an accession of four members, three on examination as to piety and knowledge, and one on certificate from another church, making the number of communicants twenty-four. The missionaries close their report of the church by saying:

> It is indeed "a day of small things," but still a beginning has been made, and some precious fruit has been gathered; and to those who labor in this "dry and parched land," this green spot, however small—this oasis in the desert—is viewed with peculiar satisfaction. Let God have all the glory, and let us be stimulated to labor more diligently, encouraged to expect much greater things in future.

Schools.—The attendance at the English school has been about fifty; at the Urdu and Persian school, about one hundred; in the orphan boys' school, nine; at the school in the village of Pahasu, ten. In the English school, Geography, Arithmetic, Algebra, Euclid's Elements, Natural Philosophy, History, English Grammar and Composition, and Logic, have been taught, a few of the scholars attending to the higher branches of these studies, while all have advanced in the knowledge of the Scriptures. Concerning the attention given by the highest class to the Bible, the missionaries say:

> There is no lesson in which they seem to take a deeper interest than in the daily reading of the Bible, and, from the many questions asked regarding its meaning, it is evident they are desirous to become acquainted with the great truths of Christianity. In so far as they become acquainted with these, they profess to believe them, while practically they refuse adherence to all the grosser doctrines and practices of Hinduism.

In the Urdu and Persian school, a greater amount of religious instruction has been given than formerly; some of the classes have committed to memory the Shorter Catechism and Brown's Catechism. Their other studies have been pursued as usual. The little school at Pahaus does not increase, the people requiring their children to assist them in their work. The school-house serves as a preaching-station, where the gospel has been heard attentively for hours by the adults, when the missionaries have visited that village.

The progress and deportment of the orphan boys are spoken of in very pleasing terms:

> Those of them who are members of the church have been consistent and without fault, so far as is known to us. They are all storing their minds with sound knowledge, both scientific and religious, which is well calculated to qualify them for future usefulness. . . . We greatly wish that more orphan pupils could be obtained, and we could thus find an opportunity of greatly enlarging the institution. It has been one of the most successful in the field of missions, in supplying well-qualified native assistants.

Itinerating.—A journey of nearly two months was made by Mr. Caldwell, during which some districts were visited for the first time by a missionary. Many persons were met with who had received portions of the Scriptures at fairs, and were prepared to understand better the preaching of the gospel. This tour extended to some districts west of Delhi, inhabited chiefly by Hindus called Jats, who appeared to be less superstitious than most of their countrymen. A journey of five weeks was made by Mr. Woodside in the Hill districts, "and in many places a good opportunity was enjoyed of presenting the gospel to the people." The Hardwar fair was attended by Messrs. Campbell and Caldwell, accompanied by the native assistants; they were joined by Messrs. Warren and Jamieson, from other stations. The attendance of pilgrims was much smaller than usual, owing to the approach of the twelfth year, when bathing will be much more efficacious, as the deluded people believe, in the removal of their sins. "But this cannot fully account," the missionaries say, "for the great falling off that has taken place within a few years past, and the fact appears to be that the celebrated shrines at this place are losing their celebrity; and it is not unlikely that before another quarter of a century passes round, Hardwar will almost have ceased to be a place of pilgrimage."

FURRUKHABAD MISSION.

FUTTEHGURH.—Rev. Messrs. John J. Walsh, Julius F. Ullmann, and David E. Campbell, and their wives. In this country—Rev. Augustus H. Seeley; Hanukh and John Huston, catechists and Scripture readers; Adam, Dhokal Pershad, teachers.

The most serious event at this station was the removal by death of Mrs. Seeley, wife of the Rev. A. H. Seeley, who departed this life on the 9th of May. She was a woman devoted to her work, and much beloved by her companions in the mission, who thus speak of her worth:

God has seen fit to call one of our little circle from time to eternity. By this stroke of his mysterious providence he has indeed left us sorrowing, but not as those who have no hope. Mrs. Seeley was enabled through grace to testify to the last to the unchangeable truth and faithfulness of God, and to the preciouness of that Saviour whose doctrines she adorned, whose religion she recommended, and whose kingdom she loved and longed for to the end. . . . That which has been a very sore bereavement and a most melancholy event to us all, has been to her unspeakable gain.

This bereavement and his continued feeble health have constrained Mr. Seeley to return to this country, to make provision for his motherless children, and if the Lord will, to regain his health, so that he may be able to go back to his field of labor.

The Church—Preaching.—Three converts were admitted to the church by baptism, and one died, so that the number of communicants is now ninety-seven. Including children that have been baptized, the number connected with the church is one hundred and sixty. An interesting incident is related of one of the new converts by Mr. Walsh: "Frequently have I seen him at ten and eleven o'clock at night reading his Bible by the light of a small taper. Such was his love for the Bible that he paid three rupees for a copy of the Old Testament, though his wages is only three and a half rupees a month. This was unknown to me, or I would have presented him with one."

Preaching in Furrukhabad and the surrounding villages by Mr. Ullman, with a Hindustani service on the Sabbath in the chapel at Barpur; in the jail on Sabbath morning by Messrs. Ullmann and Campbell, assisted by the catechists; at Rakka, in Hindustani, by Mr. Walsh, and in English once on the Sabbath by the missionaries in turn,—has occupied a large share of the labors of the brethren. We take the following notices of this department of their work from the report of the mission. Referring to the large city of Furrukhabad and the villages around it, they say—

The great truths of Christianity have been steadily and widely disseminated, and we rejoice to see that the hatred of the Mohammedans and the opposition of the Hindus have in a great measure ceased. [This is ascribed chiefly to their finding themselves unable to withstand the exposure of their respective systems, and not to their interest in the Christian religion; yet it shows their faith in their own religion in some degree shaken.] There are many in the city of Furrukhabad, who have as correct a knowledge of the plan of salvation as minds unenlightened by the Spirit of God may acquire; and some of them openly express their conviction that Christianity will at length prevail throughout India. . . .

The prisoners in the jail invariably listen with respect and attention to what is said, and those who can read gladly receive the gospel and tracts which are distributed amongst them. . . .

At times we have felt this service [the English] to be quite a tax upon our time and strength, but the peculiar benefit we derive from worship in our own tongue has amply repaid us for all our extra efforts. Besides the mission families, several of the residents at the station have regularly attended this service.

The monthly concert and other prayer-meetings and Bible-classes have been conducted as in former years. Considerable labor was expended in preaching and other services at Yakutganj—a village near Futtehgurh, which was mentioned in the Report of last year. And for some time much apparent interest was evinced by the villagers in attending upon the means of grace. It became manifest at length, however, that they were influenced by unworthy motives in professing a desire to become Christians; some temporal advantages they hoped in this way to gain, and on discovering that nothing of this kind would be their reward, they went back to their old and idolatrous practices. Disappointments like this must be expected by missionaries among the Hindus; but the Lord knoweth them that are his.

Itinerating.—Messrs. Seeley and Campbell in December, Mr. Walsh in January, and Mr. Ullman in February, made journeys into the adjacent parts of the country, to distribute tracts and to preach to the people in their villages and by the way-side. They met with many interesting incidents, and found many willing to hear attentively the word spoken unto them, and even to assent to the truth, but none who were ready to forsake all and follow Christ. Accounts of some of these missionary tours have been published in the periodicals of the Board. On these journeys the native laborers often render valuable assistance to the missionaries, of which an example is given in Mr. Ullman's journal:

On the morning of the 29th we went to the sacred place, which was crowded with Mohammedans, and a small number of Hindus; for although the latter do not come to worship, yet curiosity seems to draw them. Not far from this place we ascended an elevated spot, and preached there for about an hour. Some of the Mohammedans, seeing us here, were evidently surprised. One of them we heard saying, "There are the Padrees here also;" as if he intended to say, that there was no place where we did not follow them, in order to preach. Another, who seemed afraid that his religion would suffer by our preaching, said to himself, with evident sincerity, "O God, save us!" Hanukh's preaching I liked much. He did it with admirable boldness; and having been himself formerly a Mohammedan, he knew their system so well, that he could meet them on their own ground. He showed them that Mohammedanism was very little different from Hinduism, and then drew the parallel between both, which surprised a good many of the hearers, for they had never viewed it in such a light. Some turned away laughingly; others, feeling offended at Hanukh's boldness, in comparing them with the despised idolaters, either showed their anger, because they could not answer him, or tried to refute or silence him, if not by arguments, yet by noise and clamor. I then preached on the words, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden," &c.

School.—The High-School in Furrukhabad under Mr. Seeley's efficient superintendence continued to increase in numbers, until it now contains 297 scholars, of whom 75 are Mohammedans. The boys' school in the cantonments at Futtehgurh has 117 scholars enrolled; and the girls' school 30, under the superintendence of Mrs. Walsh, aided by Mrs. Ullman. The attendance at the bazar schools is not reported, but is probably about 226—a new school of this kind having been opened in connection with the boys' school in the cantonments. The Christian Village girls' school, under the care of Mrs. Campbell, has fifteen scholars—"many of them bright and interesting children: some of them will compare very favorably with girls of the same age and advantages at home." The girls' school in the cantonments, under the patronage of Mrs. Cunninghame, is supported by donations of European friends at the station. The girls in it are taught to read the Bible, repeat the Catechism and hymns, and to do plain needlework. One of the most interesting and advanced girls in this school, in the face of every effort to prevent it, was removed by her own mother to be devoted to a life of shame. Such is heathenism!

For the High School, a suitable building has long been an object of moment, but a site for it could not be obtained. Some expectations are now indulged of securing premises adapted to its use. The report of the mission says of this school, that—

Most of the boys are poor, and the scholarships which have been so kindly given by friends in America, will be the means of doing much good, by enabling the most promising to remain longer in the school. The lower castes furnish but very few of the scholars in attendance, as the following returns will show, viz.: Mohammedans, 75; Brahmans, 102; Kayuths, 43; Baniyas, 13; Sadha, 8; Different inferior castes, 56; total, 297.

The Asylum and Christian Village.—The number of orphans in the asylum is thirty-three, one having died, one admitted, and one married and settled in the village.

The conduct of the children has been very satisfactory, and very few cases have called for correction. The largest boys are engaged in manual labor, and the younger attend school. As few of the boys give much promise of future usefulness, it is thought best to confine their studies to their mother-tongue. . . In regard to the village, every thing has gone on satisfactorily during the past year. Mrs. Walsh has kept up her Bible-class, and the Sabbath-school has been continued as usual.

The past year has not been so favorable in a pecuniary point of view as the former year. Orders for tents have come in slowly.

Some solicitude is expressed in regard to work that would prove remunerating. The demand for tents, it is supposed, will diminish with the extension of better means of travelling. It may be expedient to introduce looms for weaving; though farming is a more reliable occupation; and if pecuniary means were available for leasing lands and houses, so as to form a self-supporting community on a gradually extending scale it might not only relieve apprehensions now felt, but eventually exert an important influence on the native community. This subject was presented at some length in a communication of Mr. Walsh, published in the Record of last September.

A Relief Society has been formed at Futtehgurh, during the year—and funds amounting to upwards of 2200 rupees were contributed by European and native donors. As one of the mission was requested to be the Secretary of this fund, Mr. Walsh consented to act as such, and a great many poor people have been relieved, who engage not to solicit alms in any other quarter. Besides these, about forty lepers, blind, and infirm people are supported in a poor-house.

Candidates for the Ministry.—Two of the native catechists, Hanukh and John Huston, "have been taken under the care of the Presbytery, and are receiving a regular course of instruction, with a view to obtaining licensure to preach the gospel. Both these young men give much promise of usefulness; and Hanukh has peculiar natural capabilities for the high calling to which he is now looking forward."

MYNPURIE.—Rev. John E. Freeman and his wife; Hulassi Roy, head teacher and catechist; William, teacher of branch school and catechist.

The labors pursued at this station are those of preaching and teaching. The usual services have been held on the Sabbath, with an increased attendance. A Sabbath-school, with about thirty boys, has been formed, and the instructions addressed in it to the children have been heard with interest by adult spectators. Some weeks were spent in the cold season on a missionary tour, and the villages within seven miles of the station have been visited with the offer of the gospel, though the missionary laments that his other engagements have prevented his going more than once to each village. The melas near Mynpurie have also been visited for the same purpose. These labors have been of interest to the native assistants, and their part of the work has been prosecuted with much faithfulness.

Mr. Freeman says:

The hearts of many assent to the truths which they hear, but, alas! fear of society, friends and priests compels them to stifle conscience, put truth far away, and still follow the way of error. May the Lord arise and have mercy upon this deluded people!

Referring to the visits made to the villages and melas, Mr. Freeman adds:

At all places we have met with kindness, and the people have listened with interest to truth. At one of the melas I noticed men that stood for three hours, all intent upon what was said. Upon conversing with them afterwards, I found them to be sensible men, upon whom the rays of light had dawned for the first time.

In the Schools, more are in attendance than last year, when in both schools two hundred and sixteen were reported. In English, mathematics, philosophy, physical geography, general history; and in Hindi and Urdu, works on arithmetic, geography, &c., have been taught. The progress of the boys in the branch school in reading the gospel and learning the Catechism is noted. All enjoy the advantage of Christian instruction, though none of them have become subjects of divine grace.

The catechists have received continued instruction in the Bible and in Church History in Hindi, while Hulassi has given attention to the Greek Grammar, in preparation for greater usefulness.

AGRA MISSION.

AGRA.—Rev. Messrs. James L. Scott, Joseph Warren, Robert S. Fullerton, and their wives; Rev. Robert E. Williams; George David and ———, catechists.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott embarked for Calcutta in October. Mr. Warren and his family are on their return to this country, on a visit required by considerations of health and of arrangements to be made for the education of their children. The station at Agra will feel deeply the temporary loss of Mr. and Mrs. Warren's efficient labors and influence, but the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Scott will encourage the brethren in their work.

The Church at this station has succeeded in obtaining the services of a Scotch Presbyterian minister, connected with the Free Church body; and it is hoped that its interests will be happily promoted by the full and effective labors which it will be in his power to render to the congregation. The missionaries, having other and pressing duties to fulfil, and being so few in number, often found the church services to press heavily on their strength and time. Yet, as this church was the child of the mission, nurtured by the missionaries, and is still closely related to their work, they cannot but cherish a warm and deep interest in its future welfare. No statistics of its members have been received, though we learn that one of the female scholars in the High School was admitted to the communion of the church. Last year the number of members reported was forty-five.

The Schools connected with this mission have continued to prosper. The school for boys contained ninety scholars, and the school for girls fifty scholars, several of whom were saved from the Romanist nuns. These may be classed as High Schools, intended chiefly for the children of East Indian families, persons of mixed parentage—European and native. The boys' school is under the charge of Mr. Williams; the girls' school, of Mrs. Fullerton. Both have been well conducted, and enjoy much favor in the sight of the European and East Indian community. They will not only keep many of the youth from the pernicious schools of Romanists at Agra, but will impart secular learning under Christian influence, and this too upon a missionary basis, their object being the religious benefit of the scholars. Tuition fees are charged, but at rates intended merely to defray the current expenses of the schools for subordinate teachers, &c., the salaries of the missionares being paid by the Board, like those of their brethren in other departments of the missionary work. It is hoped that these schools will prove means of great good to a class too much neglected, but of increasing numbers and influence. Mr. Williams speaks of many of the scholars as making good progress in their studies, and of some of them as displaying traits of character which lead to the expectation that they may some day be called to be preachers of righteousness to their countrymen. Besides East Indian scholars, a few of other classes have enjoyed here the advantages of instruction, and amongst them the son of one of our native brethren, the Rev. Golok Nath, of Jalandar.

In the vernacular school, supported by the church, twenty-eight boys have been learning to read. The native catechists also work well and steadily.

Itinerating.—Partly for health, and partly for missionary labor, Mr. Warren made an extended journey, in the course of which he visited the stations of the Lodiana mission, and was permitted to preach the gospel at many places. Some valuable papers from his pen have been inserted in the Record and the Foreign Missionary, which were fruits of this tour.

An Open Field.—Messrs. Fullerton and Williams are still engaged in studying the native language, and the former has now been long enough in the country to be able to continue the Hindustani service, which Mr. Warren had conducted. A wide field is open before them for preaching among the natives, and here, as almost everywhere else, native catechists and other laborers might be employed to the best advantage. Agra, as the centre of the mission, has large places all around it, so that catechists and schoolmasters might be stationed at points where they could be easily under the superintendence of the brethren. Within forty miles of this city are Hatras, Sarsni, Etah, Futtehabad, Bhateswar, Firozabad, Shakurabad, Futtehpore—Sikri, Kerowlee—all large towns; and there are as many more within the same distance. Alygurh, Muttra, and Gwalior might be occupied as stations for missionaries; and if we look further from Agra towards the south and south-west, the prospect, alas! is unbounded. No station meets the eye in that direction for hundreds of miles, although the country teems with people accessible to the missionary of the cross! The Committee have under consideration a measure for the extension of the missionary work, looking to the special training of East Indian and native laborers for the harvest; and they hope to maintain a force of at least four missionaries in this field, with means to employ every qualified assistant that can be obtained.

ALLAHABAD MISSION.

ALLAHABAD.—Rev. Messrs. Joseph Owen, Robert M. Munnis, Lawrence G. Hay, and Horatio W. Shaw, and their wives; John Hari, licentiate preacher; Jan Beg, George Douglas, Yunas Singh, Levi, Mirza, catechists; Thomas Janvier, Scripture reader.

The missionaries at this station have been able to fulfil their duties without interruption, excepting Mr. Munnis, whose health became so enfeebled that he was on the point of leaving the country. Regaining his strength, he was glad to resume his usual labors. During part of the year the cholera prevailed at Allahabad, carrying off many of the native inhabitants, and some of the natives connected with the mission. The usual labors and the schools were greatly interrupted for a time, but the lives of the brethren were graciously preserved. The names of some of the native assistants in the Report of last year will be found in connection with the sub-stations of Futtehpore and Banda.

Some changes have been made, at the suggestion of the Committee, in the division of labor among the brethren at this station. As the work to be done is great, and the number of laborers few, it was considered expedient to place each missionary in charge of a separate department, and it will be an important matter to employ under his supervision as many qualified native laborers as can be obtained. Mr. Owen, besides preaching in English and native services, has the charge of the theological class, and the supervision of their missionary labors during the cold season; in the other months, their instruction, the translating of the Scriptures, the revision of translations already made, and the preparing of other works for the press, will occupy most of his time. Mr. Munnis is engaged chiefly in preaching in the native bazars and the villages near the city, in which he is aided by some of the native brethren. Mr. Shaw gives his chief attention to instruction in the Mission College, and Mr. Hay has the charge of the printing-press; though both these brethren are also engaged in preaching. This division of labor will not prevent the missionaries from helping one another, according to the exigencies of the mission at large.

Church and Religious Services.—The usual services in the church and chapels have been maintained. Three adult members were admitted to the church by baptism, one that had been excommunicated was again received after long trial and apparent penitence, and two have died, leaving the whole number of church members forty-seven.

The case of the member restored from excommunication is thus described by Mr. Hay:

Mulsahai was formerly a catechist at Futtehgurh, but left that station, and professed to be a Mohammedan, some six or seven years ago, for which he was excommunicated. He has been again admitted to the church on profession of repentance. This man's wife, Judith, has always been connected with this mission, and is a teacher in Mrs. Owen's female bazar school. Mulsahai was for several years in the army of the King of Oude, holding a good rank and drawing good pay. More than a year since, he left that service, and has been ever since professing his desire to live with the people of God, and most hearty sorrow for his grievous defection. God only knows his heart, but we have strong hopes that his repentance is genuine, and that he may yet do much good. We ask for him the special prayers of the churches at home.

Pleasing accounts are given of the members of this little company who were called to their rest. Mr. Hay writes:

Fermana was the wife of Mirza Jan Beg, catechist. Her loss is a very severe one, not only to her family, but to the mission. She has for years maintained a very exemplary Christian character. Her meekness, kindness, and earnest piety endeared her to all her acquaintances. For several months she conducted a female prayer-meeting on Saturday afternoons, only intermitted on account of the very hot weather. She had been very active in ministering to the sick a few days before her death, was always ready to do a favor to any one, and so far as I know was universally beloved. Her whole deportment furnishes us with the best hope that she has attained the rest of the blessed. Just before her death, she expressed her desire to depart and to be with Christ.

The other, Benjamin, died on the 18th of December. He was a compositor in the printing-office, and had been a member of the church two years. He was a pious, humble man, always attentive to his work, and setting a good example to others. He was truly a man of prayer, attached to God's Word, and ready so far as he could to beseech others to listen to the message of mercy. He seemed quite prepared to die, for several months expecting this termination of his illness, and looking forward to it without fear. It is a great comfort to us all that he left us such good grounds for hope that his name was written in the Lamb's book of life.

Itenerating and Bazar Preaching.—Journeys were made by some of the missionaries and native assistants to preach the gospel in various parts of the district of Allahabad. Accounts of these tours have been published in the Record and Foreign Missionary, which show that an open door is set before the brethren to engage in this useful kind of missionary work. Preaching in the bazars has not been neglected, and has been the main work of Mr. Munnis, whose labors were extended to the numerous and populous villages along the Ganges in the vicinity of Allahabad, and to one of the Melas. The native assistants, Simeon and Jan Beg, have aided in these labors, and the gospel has often been preached in this way to large crowds.

Schools.—In the different departments of the college, 340 scholars were reported in January last, of whom about one third were in the English department, and the others in Urdu, Hindi, and Persian. The girls' vernacular school, under the charge of Mrs. Owen, and supported by local funds, has had 30 scholars in attendance. The orphan girls' school, under Mrs. Shaw's care, had 16 scholars at the beginning of the year and 18 at the end; two left the school without permission, two died, one was removed by her relations, one was married, and eight were received. Mrs. Shaw gives a good report of these girls. Their behavior has been satisfactory, and they are steadily progressing in their studies and in the acquirement of such knowledge as will fit them for usefulness in after-life. Two bazar schools contain about 75 scholars, under the superintendence of Mr. Munnis, who thus writes of them: "The boys in these schools learn reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, the catechism, and portions of the Holy Scriptures—all in Hindi. When I go to examine these schools, twice and sometimes thrice a week, I have a large crowd of people around me, who have an opportunity of listening to the gospel, explained in the simplest manner to the boys."

The Press.—Owing to some oversight, or failure of the mail, no returns of the works printed at the press have been received; but Mr. Hay writes, that "the number of pages printed is less than last year reported, (over 3,700,000.) There are two reasons for this—first, the small editions of the several works; a variation in press-work is not an index of the proportionate amount of labor performed. The other reason is the fact, that a large part of the work done could not be reported, being unfinished." Some new houses for native workmen have been built; various fonts of native type have been completed or renewed; a new set of punches having been prepared, a complete new font of large sized Hindi and Sanscrit has been cast; a new font of the same size as that used in printing the Hindi Bible is now nearly ready, and the general condition of the establishment is all that could be desired. In connection with this, it may be appropriately stated here that Mr. Owen's important labors in revising and editing the translation of the Holy Scriptures in Hindi have been continued as far as his other duties would allow.

Sub-Stations.—Connected with the Allahabad Mission are two substations occupied by native laborers. One of these is at FUTTEHPORE, where the Rev. Gopeenath Nundi is stationed, with Kasim Ali, catechist, and W. H. Trisler, Scripture reader, whose labors have been continued through the year. No report has been received of the school at this place, which contains about 100 scholars. Of the services of the native minister in preaching, Mr. Owen in a recent letter has given a pleasing account: "He is doing a good work at Futtehpore. He is now visiting the towns and villages in this district, and is desirous of exploring the district thoroughly. The other day he unexpectedly came to a village, in which were a thousand houses of Brahmans, all of whom received him most civilly, and heard the Word with great attention."

The other sub-station is at BANDA, and was first occupied last autumn under interesting circumstances. This city is a place of considerable note, having numerous inhabitants, and more than usual commerce; it is situated in the province of Allahabad, about ninety miles west of the city of that name, and it is in the centre of a large and populous district, in which missionary labors have heretofore been almost unknown. These things have led our missionary brethren often to desire that a missionary station might be formed at Banda, but their limited force of laborers and inadequate supply of funds have delayed the attainment of their wishes. The liberality of European friends at this place, and particularly of a gentleman of the civil service, has supplied the means of commencing a school, and upon their application the mission determined to send two of the native assistants, Paul Qaim and Melancthon Jacobus, to engage in this new field. The school was opened on the 7th of November with but ten scholars, and the number in a few days increased to about fifty, notwithstanding the fears and opposition of many of the people of the town. At the end of two months one hundred and twenty were enrolled, of whom thirty-five were learning English. The European residents manifest a very pleasing interest in this mission school. The missionaries at Allahabad will watch over the native brethren, and in the cold season Banda can be made a central place for itinerating labors.

Referring to this method of spreading the gospel among the Hindus, Mr. Owen writes:

When we get a native agency working in the Banda district as in the Futtehpore district, another at Humeerpore, and another at Calpee, and get our own district of Allahabad covered over with a native agency, we may begin to feel that we have taken possession of the land in Immanuel's name.

Mission in Siam.

BANGKOK.—Rev. Stephen Mattoon and his wife; Samuel R. House, M. D., licentiate preacher; Quakieng, Chinese assistant. In this country—Rev. Stephen Bush.

The health of Mr. Bush has not become sufficiently restored to enable him to return to his missionary work. The missionaries at Bangkok acknowledge with gratitude that they "have been preserved in health and strength, mostly without interruption, and that during a year of unusual sickness among the natives of the land." They also gratefully recognize the happy outward condition of their post of labor:

At no former period have we, with the single exception of our diminished numbers, been so favorably circumstanced for carrying on our work. We entered upon the year 1852-3, not as in former years without any certain dwelling-place, but established at last in a station and home of our own, and relieved in great measure from those cares and distractions so unavoidable during the preceding year. We trust these favorable circumstances have not been misimproved; and though we are humbled by the consciousness of having fallen far short of doing all that we ought to have done,.. still we feel a satisfaction in reflecting that the gospel has been made known to so many of this heathen people, and that a witness for Christ has gone so widely forth from our station here . . . It is a blessed work to proclaim the supremacy of Jehovah, the grace of the divine Redeemer, among those sitting in the gross darkness of Budhism, ignorant alike of there being a God who made them and a salvation available without money and without price. It is a work we trust we love more, as our longer residence among these heathen better fits us for it, by increasing our knowledge of their language and modes of thought, and as more intimate acquaintance with their true moral condition makes more evident to us their perishing need.

Religious Services.—Three or more Sabbath services have been maintained at the station. As there is yet no chapel, the largest room in one of the dwelling-houses is the place of the morning service, conducted by Mr. Mattoon and attended by about forty persons. Two Chinese services are conducted in the after part of the day, one by the Chinese assistant, who continues to walk worthy of his Christian profession, and the other in the evening for the Chinese from the island of Hainan, in which the native convert from that island takes a part. Another evening service has been conducted by Dr. House for the pupils and Siamese connected with the station, at which the leading doctrines of Christianity have been set forth in familiar lectures. Daily morning worship in Siamese has been conducted by Mr. Mattoon, in which, with singing and prayer, a portion of the Scripture is always explained; and evening worship in Chinese has been maintained by Quakieng. In these stated services, attended for the most part by the same persons, a considerable amount of divine truth has been imparted, requiring only the influences of the Holy Spirit to make it effectual unto salvation.

No additions have been made to the members of the little church. The brethren wait and long for the outpouring of the Spirit from on high, when many shall be "added to the church, such as shall be saved." In the mean time they are permitted to give a good report of the two native converts. "The elder, Quakieng, manifests much maturity of Christian character," the missionaries say, "and has given us no anxiety save for the continuance of his life, threatened by cholera on two occasions. The other, the native of Hainan, younger and more exposed, we regard not without solicitude; still we have not been without much to encourage us in his consistent walk and conversation. We maintain with them a weekly church prayer-meeting."

Books distributed—Colportage.—The mission premises are found to be well situated for the work of book distribution, the street in front leading to a frequented ferry, and all who travel on one side of the river having to pass on one side of the mission compound. At the station, the missionaries state in their report—

A portion of each day has been devoted to the receiving of visitors who may call for books, and we often have forty or fifty in a day. While they are supplied with tracts or portions of the Scripture, opportunity has been taken to converse with them, explain our doctrines, and point out the errors of theirs. When it has been practicable, some account has been required of each book that has been read previous to giving another. In this way many an informal Bible-class on the Scripture has been held with a large number especially of the youth, who either as pupils of the priests or as novitiates reside in the different wats of the city. Many of these have thus read and been questioned on the entire series of Christian books that have been prepared in Siamese, and are now eagerly waiting for new issues from the press.

Dr. House has been continuing the interesting work of colportage, engaging in it as often as once a week. He has selected the district of the city adjoining the new premises of the mission, and his aim has been to place one of the Gospels, with other books or tracts, in each family. As a foreigner and a stranger, having before him an object almost incomprehensible by most of the natives, he entered upon this work with some misgivings as to the reception that would be given to him and to his message. His fears proved to be groundless:

Though, in going from house to house, neither prince nor noble, rich nor poor, were passed by, in no one instance has he been rudely repelled; and though some were inclined to trifle, and others seemed indifferent, in most instances his books have been received with unfeigned pleasure, and in many he has been invited, nay, urged, to explain their contents, and discourse to the household as they were assembled around him about the doctrines of the foreign religion. To all the story of Creation and the Cross has been related more or less in detail. It may be added that scarcely a household has been visited in this way, out of nearly four hundred, where one or more readers were not found.

In the whole of Bangkok, with its 300,000 to 400,000 heathen inhabitants, under the reign of the present king, the missionary is as secure from insult or injury as he would be in British India. Colporteur efforts like these may be freely made, and their importance must be apparent to every reflecting mind.

Education.—A beginning has been made in the work of Christian education. Including three children for some time in the families of the missionaries, but not supported by the mission, there are now twenty-seven boarding-scholars, four of whom are girls, growing up under Christian influence and instruction. They have made good progress in geography and mental arithmetic, and have gained a considerable knowledge of scriptural truth through the verse-a-day lessons and a Catechism prepared for their use. They are of various races and origin, but mostly the sons of Chinese by native mothers. They are under the superintendence of the Chinese assistant, who has excellent qualifications for this work. Mrs. Mattoon and Dr. House have given a portion of their time to the school, and Mrs. Bradley, of one of the other missions, has kindly given instruction in vocal music. The brethren express much gratification at their encouraging prospects in this department of their work.

The interesting sphere of instruction opened to Mrs. Mattoon and the wives of other missionaries among the female inmates of the royal palace, has not diminished in interest. Lessons have been given with little interruption throughout the year. The report of the mission speaks of these instructions in the following terms:

The respect and confidence of many of the princesses and others in that singular community of females would seem to have been secured, and abundant openings and opportunities of Christian usefulness have gladdened the hearts of those engaged in teaching there. Their labors have been of late months gradually assuming a more decidedly evangelical cast, and we would fain hope that the good seed sown in that once inaccessible soil, and watered by so many prayers, will yet prove not to have been sown in vain.

One of the princesses, who appeared to take most interest in the new truths thus brought to her view, and to evince some degree of concern in their solemn import, was suddenly removed by death. No opportunity was enjoyed of learning her state of mind at last; but may not the hope be indulged that she was led by the Spirit to trust in Him who is the resurrection and the life?

Translating the Scriptures—Printing.—Mr. Mattoon has prosecuted the work of translating the Scriptures. He has nearly completed a revised translation of the Gospel of Luke, and the Gospel of Matthew has been printed during the year. These are virtually new translations. To this important part of the missionary work, Mr. Mattoon's strength will for some time be chiefly devoted.

The number of volumes printed during the year at the press of one of the other missions, will be seen by the following returns:

	Size.	Pages.	Copies.	Whole No. Pages.
History of Creation	18mo.	36	3000	108,000
An Exhortation	32	11	5000	55,000
Elijah and Elisha,	12	49	2000	98,000
The Miracles of Jesus,	12	82	2000	164,000
Gospel of Matthew	12	92	2000	184,000
Elementary Lessons	12	40	500	20,000
				629,000
Obtained by exchange:
Golden Balance	12	36	1000	36,000
Parables	12	48	1000	48,000
Instructions of Jesus	12	58	1000	58,000

More Missionaries needed.—It is with deep regret the Committee have to conclude their report of this interesting and important mission, without being able to mention any new laborers sent forth to join the brethren in their work. More men ought to be employed among the Siamese, and there is an urgent call for missionaries to the people of other countries now living in Siam. Besides the Peguans, Burmese, and others, there is a large number of Chinese in this country, and among them are many from the island of Hainan, speaking a separate dialect. This island contains 1,500,000 inhabitants, for whom no Protestant missionary agency has been provided. It is worthy of consideration that the door for labors amongst them is open at Bangkok, a constant intercourse being kept up between the Chinese at that city and their countrymen on their native island; and it also deserves attention, as a marked event, that one of the converts in the mission church is a native of Hainan, probably the only true follower of Jesus amongst the people of that island. With his aid, Mr. Mattoon has been conducting some efforts for the spiritual benefit of this people; but a missionary to give his whole time to them is greatly needed. May some devoted laborers be soon raised up for this special work!

After presenting the history of their labors for the year, the missionaries thus conclude their report:

Alas, we have no conversions from heathenism to Christianity to report, no cheering record that the Spirit has been poured out from on high. Many indeed have asked the question, What works of merit shall we do, to secure the favor of the God of whom you tell us? And there have been a few inquirers after truth, seemingly in earnest to be taught the way of the Lord more perfectly. But dissimulation so abounds among this people that we must be ever on our guard, and receive with distrust even the most apparently sincere application for instruction. The motive may be never so trivial, they will not scruple to feign the highest respect for your Lord's message and yourself. With the hope of being taught English, or of obtaining employment, or of receiving pecuniary aid when embarrassed, or it may be of getting some coveted article of foreign manufacture—a lead-pencil or a few sheets of white paper—they will display a consummate hypocrisy of address that would mislead the most wary.

Still we are willing to spend and be spent for such a people as this. We would fain love their immortal souls. We can wait till we see the salvation of God, who will be exalted among the heathen.

We know that the understandings of many among them are convinced of the existence of a creating, overruling God, and of the excellence of the plan of salvation which we proclaim; but sin has stupefied their conscience and paralyzed their wills, and none but the Almighty Spirit from above can arouse the one and renew the other. The wonders, however, that have been wrought in other lands, the same grace can work here; and when the day of her visitation comes, the reapers in Siam will forget their weary years of unrequited toil, as they shout the harvest home with joy akin to the joy of their Lord.

Missions in China.

CANTON MISSION.

Canton.—Rev. Andrew P. Happer, M.D., Rev. John B. French, Joseph G. Kerr, M.D, and their wives; Rev. Charles F. Preston; Leung Awo, Scripture reader.

Messrs. Kerr and Preston and Mrs. Kerr embarked for Canton in November last. The health of the missionaries at the station has been generally good, though in May and June Mr. Happer suffered from inflammation of the eyes, causing a partial interruption of his labors.

Preaching.—Public religious service has been conducted by Mr. Happer twice on the Sabbath, and three times on week-days. The audience at the Sabbath morning service varies from 75 to 90, and consists of the teachers, scholars, patients, servants, and a few casual hearers. The evening service is attended by nearly the same persons, with the printers and scholars from one of the stations of another mission. The congregation, though small, being constant and regular in attending worship, it has been practicable to impart systematic instruction in divine truth; and this has been done on the basis of the Shorter Catechism, with which most of them are acquainted. The attention and apparent interest of most of the hearers has been gratifying, but the missionary is "daily made to feel that it is only the Holy Spirit who can savingly enlighten and convert the soul." The week-day services are held at the Dispensary before the hour of administering medicines, and the attendance has ranged from 30 to 80. In some of these meetings the native assistant has been of service.

Mr. French continued to officiate in the Southern Baptist chapel, until the return of the missionary in charge of it in January. He then succeeded in obtaining a chapel for himself, in a most eligible part of the city, where no foreigners reside. This building was obtained at a moderate rent, and besides answering as a chapel, accommodates a day-school, and furnishes a room for the dispensing of medicines. Mr. French says: "This is the first chapel which has ever been obtained in Canton separate from the residence of foreigners. And it is a matter of devout thanksgiving to God, that the effort thus far has been attended with so much success. To prevent any opposition arising in the neighborhood, I promised the landlord that the dispensing of medicine should, for a time, be connected with the preaching of the gospel, and Mr. Happer has kindly taken the oversight of this department. As yet no opposition has arisen."

The services held in this new chapel are the same in number as in Mr. Happer's chapel; and the following statement is given by Mr. French of his chapel-meetings:

> The attendance has averaged from 20 to 80 persons; though during the whole service, more than double these numbers have come in. The order and attention manifested by those who attend has generally been very encouraging. At the hour of service a card is hung out at the door, requesting persons to come in, and listen to the preaching of the gospel; and I stand at the door myself for a few moments, with some tracts in my hands, and personally invite those who are passing to enter. In a little while we have a good audience, and service begins, which consists in reading a portion of Scripture, preaching and prayer. After service a tract is given to each person present, and explanations offered more or less extended as circumstances permit. . . . The service continues for about an hour, and then, on week-days, those who are in need of medical treatment go into the Dispensary in an adjoining room. On the Sabbath no medicines are dispensed. The services at the chapel are becoming daily more interesting to me. The attendance is growing better, and the attention paid by the hearers is more encouraging. Oh that God would accompany his own truth with the demonstration of the Spirit and with power, and make it the wisdom of God and the power of God unto the salvation of souls!

The missionaries are not yet permitted to report many converts as the fruit of these labors. Mr. Happer gives brief notices of two persons who were referred to in the last report:

> The old man whom I mentioned as giving some good ground to hope that he is a convert, has continued to be a diligent reader and constant hearer of the Word, and his conduct, so far as I have been able to learn, is quite unexceptionable, but I have deemed it inexpedient to admit him yet to the church. The other, whom I mentioned as having renounced his idols, still continues a frequent attendant upon the services, but gives no reliable evidence of a change of heart.

Schools.—The boarding-school for boys under Mr. Happer's charge contains thirty scholars, from thirteen to seventeen years of age. They are divided into three classes, and besides giving attention to Chinese studies, they are making gratifying progress in English studies. Their diligence and deportment are highly commended. Their religious instruction has been carefully attended to, as in former years. They are thus acquiring an intimate knowledge of the Scriptures, "which are able to make them wise unto salvation." Sixteen of the scholars have been lately received, taking the place of a class which had completed their time in the school. Concerning those whose connection with the school has closed, Mr. Happer gives the following account:

> Of the 17 boys who came from Macao in 1847, 11 have completed the course of eight years. Of the other six, one died in 1847, one left the school for ill health in 1848, one left for a situation in 1849, one was dismissed for laziness in 1850, one left without any good reason in 1851, and one left for California in 1852. Of the two boys who came into this class from other schools, one completed his term of study, and the other was dismissed for insubordinate conduct in 1852. Eighteen boys are still living and scattered about the world as follows:—three are in California, three in Shanghai, one at Amoy, one went to New York, [and thence to California,] two are at home, and seven are in Canton. . . . With but one exception, all these former pupils are with their own countrymen, or with missionaries. Those with missionaries are in the way of getting more knowledge and are under Christian influence, while the others are in a situation to diffuse their knowledge among their countrymen.

Two of these young men are in the employ of the mission, assisting in the school and in the Dispensary. They attend the means of grace, and are studying the Epistle to the Romans, with Hodge's notes and questions. If they should become the subjects of grace, they might become most useful men, and special prayers are requested by Mr. Happer on their behalf.

A boarding-school for girls was commenced on the 15th of December, under the charge of Mrs. Happer, with six pupils. The number would probably be enlarged to twelve. A similar school was authorized to be commenced under the care of Mrs. French. The girls will be taught reading and writing, making clothes and other needlework; and under Christian training, it is hoped that they may become the subjects of divine grace, and be prepared to exemplify the power of the gospel in domestic life.

Two day-schools are under the superintendence, one of Mr. Happer, the other of Mr. French, and have 67 scholars on their rolls—a number which could easily have been enlarged. Their punctual attendance, good attention to their studies, and respectful deportment at public worship, are reported. Part of each day is devoted to the study of Christian books. The plan is under consideration of preparing more books specially adapted to the use of these schools, simple Scripture lessons, like the "Peep of Day," "Line upon Line," &c.

Dispensaries.—The time and labor devoted by Mr. Happer to dispensing medicines have continued to be well spent. A widely spread missionary influence is exerted in this way. The sufferings of many persons are relieved, and the Christian instructions addressed to them by their benefactors have been in many cases received with grateful attention. A better appreciation of the object of the missionary becomes gradually extended in the native community. This was clearly exhibited in the arrangements for the new chapel; the prospect of having a small Dispensary connected with it tended to obviate objections, and to conciliate the feelings of the people in the neighborhood. During the year about 3500 different persons were prescribed for at the principal Dispensary, and at the other, from ten to thirty persons on dispensing-days.

The fears of the people, as connected with the excited state of feeling on political affairs, diminished the attendance from the country; and Mr. Happer remarks that "A number of women of the better classes came during the winter and spring months, but they nearly all ceased to come after the excitement attendant on the fall of Nankin." On the arrival of Dr. Kerr more time can be given to this department of labor.

In the distribution of Tracts the attention of the missionaries has been limited for the most part to visitors at the chapels and Dispensaries. Some time has been given by Mr. Happer to the preparation of tracts, and an Explanatory Catechism on Matthew's Gospel has been completed.

A native prayer-meeting has been held in Mr. French's study, on Saturday evening. "It has been attended by four or five native Christians, the teacher of the boys' school, and several other persons, including the servants. The meetings have been generally very pleasant, and it is hoped profitable to most of those who attended."

NINGPO MISSION.

Ningpo.—D. B. McCartee, M. D., Rev. Messrs. Richard Q. Way, Henry V. Rankin, Samuel N. Martin, William P. Martin, and John L. Nevius, and their wives; Rev. John W. Quarterman; Mrs. Coulter.

Mr. and Mrs. Nevius embarked for this mission in September last. Dr. M'Cartee and Miss Knight were united in marriage. The mission families have generally been favored with good health. "Every department of labor has been carried on," the missionaries remark in their report, "with less than usual interruption, and some have been considerably extended."

The Church.—The number of native members of the church reported last year was seven. One of these, who was mentioned in the last report as admitted to the church and married, has been called to her rest. She was attacked by cholera, and the brief space of her illness afforded little opportunity for conversation with friends, though she expressed, in view of her approaching end, her peace in believing; but her Christian life gave the best evidence that for her to die was gain. She had been a pupil in the school, and became a praying girl. After her marriage in fulfilment of an early betrothal by her parents, though receiving no aid from her husband in her Christian course, and much deprived of the means of grace, yet she maintained a consistent walk, and gave pleasing evidence of growing piety. The missionaries regard her as now safely gathered, with Min Geen, a former convert, in the Saviour's fold in heaven. It is with lively gratitude that the brethren are permitted to report the baptism of eight hopeful converts during the year, of whom they speak in the following terms:

> They are all fruits of long and patient instruction, and were not admitted to the church till they had given the fullest evidence of sincerity. The first received was a young woman brought up in Miss Aldersey's school. She was married last fall, and though not then a professed Christian, patiently endured beating, starvation, and other harsh treatment, rather than perform the idolatrous rites connected with the marriage ceremony. Having thus shown her faith by her works, she was soon after admitted to the fellowship of the church, and is now living on the North Bank, near enough for regular attendance at chapel on the Sabbath.
>
> Three of the others are boys in our boarding-school, and will be noticed more particularly in connection with the school. Of the rest, one is a teacher by the name of Lu, and another is a printer named Dzing, who have for several years enjoyed daily instruction in one of our mission families, and were not brought to take up the cross without struggles and trials such as clearly to evince the sincerity of their profession. They both possess talents and education sufficient to make useful preachers of the gospel; and though that office will more than any other expose them to the contempt of their countrymen, are desirous of entering it as soon as they can be prepared for its duties. Lu, the teacher, is for the present employed in the boys' school, both as a preparatory discipline for an office in which aptness to teach is a chief requisite, as well as in the hope that he may in the mean time exert a wholesome religious influence over the boys in the school. With the same view, we will probably make Dzing assistant teacher in a day-school.

The second teacher in the boys' school was also baptized and received into the church, after the preceding account was written.

Preaching.—The missionaries are all engaged on the Sabbath, and most of them on several days in the week, in preaching the gospel to audiences varying from ten to two hundred. A new chapel has been erected in a much-frequented part of the city, which is generally well filled, and often crowded. The motive which draws the greater part of their hearers to these services is mere curiosity. Yet impressions are doubtless made on the consciences of many, which may lead them to the Saviour of sinners; and the general influence of idolatry is thought to be very much weakened. It is believed that "the people, though not prepared for the voluntary renunciation of idolatry, would acquiesce in any act of authority which should abolish it, and establish the worship of the true God in its stead." Two facts are stated in support of this opinion—one referring to a Buddhist festival that had been interdicted, under certain circumstances, by the Mayor, without producing excitement; the other, "that though the Insurgents are known to be inexorable iconoclasts, demolishing with unsparing hand objects of immemorial veneration, this is so little to the prejudice of their cause, that the Imperialists, while they have industriously circulated all kinds of fictions, have never, that we know of, dared to employ their hatred of idolatry as an argument against them."

Schools.—The boarding-schools and a day-school have been conducted as in the preceding year. In the former, twenty-six boys and twenty-nine girls, and in the latter, twenty-three boys, were in attendance at the close of the year.

The term of three boys in the boarding-school expired during the year, six were discharged on account of exhibiting little promise, and two were received. They have all made considerable progress in acquiring a knowledge of Bible truth, a part of each day being devoted to this study. Besides this, their studies have been continued in History, Geography, Astronomy, and in more elementary books, according to their time in the school. Their deportment has been more correct than in previous years, and a religious influence seems to be more pervading. Three have been added to the church on profession of their faith, as already stated, who have thus far witnessed a good confession among their schoolfellows, and their talents encourage the hope that they will yet be extensively useful. At one time about a dozen appeared to be anxious to secure an interest in Christ. Three or four still retain their serious impressions, and the rest give encouraging attention to the truth.

The girls' school is under the charge of Mr. and Mrs. Rankin, assisted by Mrs. M'Cartee. The time of one scholar has expired, though she will be retained as a monitor; another has left the school to be married; her parents having betrothed her to a young man living in another city, four new scholars have been received. Most of the scholars are under the age of twelve; they are described as generally prepossessing in their appearance, respectable as to talents, good in their conduct, and some of them exceedingly amiable in disposition,—a truly interesting company of youth. Their progress in their studies has been satisfactory. These are conducted partly in the Chinese character and partly in the Romanized colloquial dialect, and embrace geography, history, and more elementary branches, according to their grade in the school, with attention to singing and to household duties. They are fond of singing; "a number of the girls often assemble in the recitation-room, and seem to derive much enjoyment from it. Sometimes they do not cease till they have sung through the whole hymn-book," the Chinese collection of hymns, however, not being very large. Special care is given to their instruction in the Scriptures, which forms a large part of their daily occupation, and they know much of the truth. Some of them have been under serious impressions, but, "like most children of their age at home, they think but little seriously of the important interests of their souls. Let Christians at home," the superintendents continue, "pray with us that this whole band may love the Saviour, and follow him 'whithersoever he goeth.'"

The day-school, under Dr. McCartee's charge, contains some promising boys, but furnishes, in the report of the mission, no topic of special interest.

The Press—Distribution of Books.—The printing establishment suffered a heavy loss in the removal of Mr. Coulter, whose death was mentioned in the last Annual Report. The press has been conducted with efficiency, however, by Mr. Way as superintendent, though it is considered important to send out a practical printer as soon as a suitable man can be obtained. Some of the native workmen left the printing-office to enter into other kinds of employment, and it was difficult to supply their places. The works printed are shown in the following table:

	Copies.	Eng. pages.	Whole No. pages.
Genesis, from Eng. p. 56	16,000	40	640,000
Almanac of Peace, 1853	4,500	62	279,000
Repentance and Faith in Jesus	6,000	16	96,000
Christian Customs, 3d edition	6,000	8	48,000
Doctrine of Regeneration	6,000	9	54,000
Life of Jesus, in verse,	6,000	10	60,000
Easy Introduction to true Doctrine	6,000	28	168,000
Tract on Opium,	6,000	20	120,000
Geography, from 64th page	3,000	140	420,000
Salvation of the Soul,	6,000	16	96,000
Prescribing Days, for Dr. McCartee	2,000	4	8,000
Geography Rom. Colloquial	500	30	15,000
Questions on Matthew,	900	213	191,700
Bible History vol. 2, to p. 104	3,000	104	312,000
Life of Elijah,	2,000	45	90,000
Gospel of Luke, Rom. Colloquial	700	172	120,400
Fundamental Principles,	6,000	19	114,000
Sundry, small,	2,150		8,700
Total,	82,550		2,240,800

The preaching of the missionaries is usually accompanied with the distribution of books. These tend to maintain the impressions made by the preacher, and to impart clearer views of what was imperfectly understood. Persons from distant places are often among the hearers, but not being familiar with the Ningpo dialect, they are anxious to carry home with them these Christian books. One of the tracts bearing the imprint of the Ningpo press was found in a town near Chinkeang-fu. Some demand for these books is said to be springing up in Shantung and other northern provinces, as is shown by the eager application for tracts made to the missionaries at Shanghai, by companies of men from those provinces. The report of the mission adds:

> The publications of our press are thus diffused over a vast area, and a time seems to be coming when they will no longer be thrown aside with neglect. If in the providence of God such a period does arrive, we will realize more than ever the value of our presses. The wooden blocks of the natives are worn out with the printing of a few thousand impressions; and were the demand for books great, the expense of cutting would need to be incurred for every district; while a few fonts of metallic type would send forth streams sufficient to irrigate the empire.

It is of some interest to append to this statement the fact, that a strong desire to adopt the method of printing with metallic types has been expressed by a native publishing firm, extensively engaged in the book business in another city, and some inquiries have been made by them in order to effect this object.

In the Romanized colloquial, translations of the Gospels of Matthew, Luke, and John, have been printed—Matthew and John, on blocks—partly at the expense of the English Episcopal missionaries; and the report of the mission says:

> The number of those who are capable of reading these books is as yet small, not much exceeding two hundred; but as they are written in the vernacular spoken alike by the learned and the illiterate, they cannot but be intelligible when read in their hearing, and their influence will not therefore be confined to the few who may learn to read the Alphabetic system. Indeed, the boys and girls from our schools may do much good by reading these books to their parents and friends, who, though they know nothing of the characters which these books contain, are already familiar with the words. And our native catechists may read the Bible in our chapels, not as heretofore in a language which requires to be accompanied by an extempore translation, but already clothed in words simple and appropriate; so that the multitudes of unlettered poor, to whom their own books are sealed, may hear in their own tongue the wonderful works of God.

The medical labors of Dr. McCartee have been continued, with undiminished energy and increasing influence. Above six thousand cases were treated during the year, most of them in Ningpo, but many of them at the Dispensary in Chinhai. Ophthalmic cases, and gun-shot and other wounds, have received surgical aid; but the larger number have been cases requiring the physician's attention, and among these have been numerous instances of opium-poisoning in order to commit suicide. For embarrassment in business, losses by gambling, vexation from quarrelling, or revengeful desire to bring difficulties on those who had given offence, many of the Chinese do not hesitate to take away their own life—alas! they know not what they do! Dr. McCartee gives an example of suicide for revenge:

> In one case in which I was sent for, a brother and sister had a quarrel with a rich man, and to be revenged upon him, it was agreed by the former that, having taken a sufficient dose of opium to poison himself, he should go to the rich man's house and die there, and that the sister should then collect a mob of friends and relatives, and, going to the rich man's house, destroy his furniture, &c., and compel him to pay the dead man's family a large sum as hush-money. Incredible as it may appear, the plan was carried out in every particular, to my personal knowledge. The man who took the opium was already dead in his enemy's house, before I could reach the place on being sent for, and I met on the way his family and friends going to break up the furniture. [Another case is stated, in which the man sickened and died in the street, before reaching the house of his enemy.]

In consequence of the large number of opium-smokers applying to be cured, their frequent relapses, the commonness of the use of this drug among all classes and conditions, a small tract was printed, showing the evil effects, physical and moral, of opium-smoking, with directions for remedying its effects. This tract has been much sought after by the Chinese, and cannot fail to do much good.

At the hospital in Ningpo, Mr. Quarterman, and at the Dispensary in Chinhai, Mr. S. Martin, have attended with Dr. McCartee, to preach to the assembled patients, as in former years. Latterly Mr. Wong, the aged convert, has occasionally exhorted his countrymen, under Mr. Quarterman's supervision.

The practice of the missionary physician has not been confined to the poorer classes. Occasionally he has been called in by the rich, and opportunities are thus afforded for exerting a happy influence which would hardly have otherwise occurred. Here is an example from the medical report of the mission:

> Last spring I was requested to visit a little child in a family who are known to be one of the wealthiest in Ningpo. The father afterwards appeared to be exceedingly grateful for the recovery of the child, and called at my house, followed by a servant carrying his full-dress cap and robes, in which on coming into the house he arrayed himself, and insisted on bowing down and knocking his head on the floor to express his thanks. The children of the family also came to call. . . . He has since been a frequent visitor, and has shown a desire to acquire a knowledge of our manners and customs, geography, history, and religion. Although we cannot say that the interest he has shown to acquire a knowledge of "the religion of Jesus" has arisen from any thing more than an intelligent curiosity, yet since with God all things are possible, may we not hope and pray that he may yet be brought to seek, not merely a speculative, but a spiritual knowledge of the "only true God, and Jesus Christ whom he has sent?"

Missionary Journeys.—Besides the visits to Chinhai, and some excursions for health, which were also used for tract distribution and preaching, two journeys of greater extent were made, which are thus referred to in the report of the mission:

> In one of these, books were distributed and the gospel preached in parts of the Tsz-kyi district, seldom, perhaps never before visited by missionaries. The other was a tour through the district of Funghwa, in which the people welcomed the missionary, and threw open their Examination-Hall and temples for him to preach in. They also listened with attention, and received books gladly. In this tour more than a thousand volumes were distributed, and the missionary was painfully impressed with the want of laborers, not to reap, but to sow with the first seeds of truth the vast regions already open to the gospel.

Sub-station at Chinhai.—The last Annual Report contained a short notice of this city, with the reasons for regarding it as an eligible place for a missionary station. The report of the mission thus refers to this subject:

> Within this Department there are besides Ningpo five other walled cities, each containing from ten thousand to thirty thousand inhabitants, and surrounded by innumerable villages and hamlets. Three of these are distant from Ningpo about a day's journey, and the other two may be reached in two or three hours. Our attention has long been directed to these as inviting localities for branch-stations, but our force is still too small to attempt the occupation of more than one of them. We have selected Chinhai. It is the largest of the five, and most convenient of access. . . . Early in the spring, after much difficulty, a house suitable for a chapel and dispensary was rented and refitted; since which Dr. McCartee has visited the dispensary once a week, and the chapel has at the same time been opened for preaching by other members of the mission. The attendance at both is highly encouraging.

SHANGHAI MISSION.

SHANGHAI.—Rev. Messrs. M. Simpson Culbertson, Joseph K. Wight, and Reuben Lowrie, and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowrie embarked for China in April. Towards the end of the year, the health of Mr. Wight gave way, and serious apprehensions were awakened as to his being able to continue in the missionary field, but at the latest dates his health was somewhat improved.

The state of public affairs, in the later months of the year under review, interfered with the usual routine of labor in the city of Shanghai. A party of Insurgents took possession of the city on the 7th of September, who were afterwards besieged by an Imperial force. The houses of the missionaries were exposed to danger from the artillery of the contending armies, and it became advisable for the brethren to remove on the 1st of October to the suburbs occupied by foreigners. Their visits to the chapel and their intercourse with the people in the city were afterwards much restricted by the existing hostilities. But they were not considered to be in any danger personally, nor were some departments of their work at all abridged. The disturbed state of the country at large has given rise to apprehensions that missionary labors might be greatly interrupted, but hitherto the protection of the Almighty has been extended to his servants. Previous to their removal from the city—

Public Services were maintained in the small chapel, Mr. Wight preaching twice on the Sabbath, and Mr. Culbertson on Sabbath afternoon. Two services were held during the week. The Word was also preached in some of the temples to which the people resort.

Books Distributed.—Tracts have been given in connection with these services, which, the missionaries say in their report, "have been gladly received. During the past summer they have been solicited at our houses, and also at those of most of the missionaries residing here, by sailors from the northern provinces. When questioned as to their motive in asking for books, they stated that last year some tracts had been taken to Shantung by the junks, and they had been so much sought for by the people that they wished this year to take a large supply. They were so eager to procure them, and each man to obtain as many as possible for himself, that we do not doubt they expected to obtain a pecuniary reward for their trouble by selling them."

Translating the Scriptures.—Mr. Culbertson has continued to devote his time chiefly to the work of translation. The report of the mission thus speaks of this work:

> The revision of the former translations of the Old Testament has been carried by the Committee of Delegates to the end of the Pentateuch. Owing to the ill health and absence of the other members of the Committee, Mr. Culbertson has carried on the work alone to the end of the first book of Kings. The Rev. Dr. Bridgeman, the senior member of the Committee, returned to Shanghai from the United States in May last, and the work done in his absence is now being revised. It is hoped they will be able at the same time to revise some parts of the translation of the New Testament, and the Gospel of John has already been prepared for the press. The excitement and alarm which have arisen from the disordered state of the country, have occasioned some loss of time, and somewhat retarded this work.

Buildings—Rate of Exchange.—The secular affairs of this and the other missions in China have been much embarrassed by the difficulty of transmitting funds for the support of the missions. This has been more seriously felt at Shanghai than at Canton, not only by reason of the larger sums required to be sent to the former point, in order to defray the expenses both of the Ningpo and the Shanghai missions, but also on account of the higher rates on mercantile bills of exchange. The serious interruption of foreign commerce made it impossible to sell these bills except at a loss, varying from 25 to 80 per cent.; and it became necessary to remit funds to the missions in specie, which, though under existing circumstances a less expensive operation than remittances by drafts on London, is yet attended with serious loss and no little inconvenience. In matters of this kind, the Board has to encounter the same perplexity and loss with merchants and others engaged in business in China. The expenses of the missions on this account have been considerably increased during the last year. For this reason, prior to the occupation of Shanghai by the Insurgents, neither a chapel nor a dwelling-house, which had been authorized by the Committee, were built. The same cause would still delay their building, even were public matters in a peaceful state.

It will be seen from the preceding report of the missions in China, that the brethren are faithfully laboring in their several stations to build up the Redeemer's kingdom. The various departments of the missionary work are in full operation at Ningpo, and though the smaller force connected with the two other missions does not admit of the same extent of labor, yet all the brethren are engaged in appropriate efforts to advance the Kingdom of Christ in this country. At no former period have these labors been performed under circumstances of greater interest. The attention of the world has been turned to the political movement now in progress, which seems likely to overthrow the Manchu dynasty, and to place on the throne a Christian emperor. The details of the revolution cannot be here narrated. It appears to be ascertained that the leader of it was at one time under the instruction of Christian missionaries, and that, whatever motives may have at first prompted him to take up arms against the Mandarins, he has avowed his opposition to idolatry and his faith in Christianity. The idols have been destroyed at his command. Their priests have been treated with a severity which shows that the new reformer has not fully imbibed the spirit of the Saviour. Errors in doctrine are not surprising in one so imperfectly instructed, but it is wonderful that so much Christian truth should be embraced, and still more remarkable is the power with which it has been set forth, not by the sword, but by the pen, as of a ready writer. Motives of selfish policy have been attributed to him, and may have too great ascendancy over him, but the reflecting observer will recognize with deep interest the correctness of moral conduct which has marked the progress of his army, and the devout Christian will see in this wonderful movement the hand of the God of nations and the God of grace. Whatever may be its final issue, it has already, in some degree, broken the indifference of the Chinese as to spiritual things, and the indifference of the Church as to her duty to this heathen people. The result will be seen in God's time. At present, the prospect is that the leader of the Insurgents will soon become Emperor of China, that the door for missionary labors will be thrown widely open, and that the Chinese will to a large extent renounce idolatry; but all this will not make them a Christian people. They must have first the means of grace, and then the outpouring of the Spirit from on high. At such a time as this the Church should arise in the strength of her Lord, and engage in the great work already set before her, which seems to be on the eve of a vast expansion. Copies of the Sacred Scriptures should be multiplied. Many more missionaries should be sent forth. Prayer should be offered without ceasing, that God would give a right direction to all the great interests now in motion. It cannot be denied that there may be a great disappointment in the results expected from this strange movement. Doubtless the great Adversary will strain all his power to pervert it. The heart of the chief may easily turn aside, like a deceitful bow. Fanaticism, or a merely secular policy, may tempt him to extremes equally dangerous. In God only should the friends of missions confide, and their earnest entreaties should not be withholden, that He would overrule and dispose the issue of the Chinese Revolution for the establishment of the Church of Christ amongst this numerous people.

Some extracts are appended, giving the views of our missionary brethren concerning this revolution. It is known that they are not all of one mind in their opinions of it, though the most common feeling among them is that of hope as to its happy results. These extracts are taken from the reports of the two northern missions; the report of the Canton mission does not refer particularly to the subject. After giving some account of the insurrection, the report of the Shanghai mission concludes as follows:

What the result of this revolution will be, we pretend not to foresee. When the old dynasty is overthrown, as we think it must be, the successful chief will have to encounter immense difficulties in establishing firmly his throne. Genius of the highest order will be needed to grapple with the problems he will be called upon to solve. If the mass of the people throughout the empire submit to his rule without opposition, it will be something remarkable. And yet, when we remember how necessary public order is to the vast majority of the people, and the consequent general desire for tranquillity, it is hardly too much to expect that, if Hung Sew-tseun succeeds in driving the Manchus from Peking, his rule will be generally accepted by the Chinese.

What his course may be in that case, in reference to the propagation of Christianity, remains to be seen. He might resort to coercive measures, and thus create a prejudice against the gospel, He might erect a state hierarchy and place himself at the head of the Church, to the great detriment of our cause. In many ways, through ignorance or pride, he might retard, however good his intentions, the promulgation and success of the Word of Life. The people of God everywhere should make supplication without ceasing, that all these dangers may be avoided.

On the whole, we look hopefully upon this revolution. The hand of God is so marked in its origin and in its progress, that we cannot but hope it is his purpose to accomplish speedily, by this means, results fraught with mercy to his people. It may be, however, that for a season desolations are determined. China may be visited for her sins, and prepared by calamities for the future good in store for her. Our work may for years be more or less interrupted by public disorders. Still these events will in the end accomplish the purpose of God. In the meantime . . . let not the laborers be withheld. They should be now on the spot in greater numbers, ready to reap the ripening harvest. Talents, genius of the highest order, may here find ample scope. We would earnestly appeal to the young men whose hearts God has touched, that they turn not their backs, on slight grounds, upon the call which is now proceeding from the world's most populous empire. Jehovah himself goes before us. We have but to follow. . . . . Wonderful are the ways of God. In India he brings in a foreign Christian power to make it, even against its will, the means of giving the gospel to that benighted land. In China, it seems to be his design to accomplish the same end, as in the Roman empire, by placing on the throne a dynasty of native princes, who shall use the power and influence of their position for the subversion of idolatry and the advancement of true religion.

With a not less striking view of their field and the duty of the Church, the brethren of the Ningpo mission close their report:

In conclusion, we would beg to send through you to our entire Church, one more earnest appeal for more missionaries.

Twelve years ago, when China's outer wall was broken down, the Church recognized it as the Lord's doing; responded to the call of Providence; and the five Ports were soon occupied by more than seventy Protestant missionaries. But what if God, by a more signal providence, should utter a louder call? What if he should suddenly and at once prostrate all the barriers? What if he should, before the lapse of another year, lay open the whole interior of a country as vast in extent as our confederated States, and teeming with more than ten times their population—is our Church ready to come up and possess the land? The present is a crisis for China. The revolutionary party owes its strength to a Christian element, derived from the labors of missionaries. Its chiefs and generals, with all the armies under their command, abhor idols, believe in one God, receive the Bible as his Word, and profess their faith in his Son Jesus Christ as the Saviour of the world. And it is not improbable that this revolution may issue in the total subversion of idolatry, and the recognition of Christianity as the religion of the empire. But whether so glorious a result be accomplished or not, the fate of the Manchu dynasty is sealed, and with its overthrow we may expect the downfall of that exclusive system which the Tartar emperors have been the chief agents in upholding. In that event, is our Church prepared to enlarge the scale of her operations in China? Has she men?

We think she has. Even though the candidates for the ministry be few, and the number of them offering for the foreign field small, cannot our Church send out some of her two thousand pastors, to gather new flocks among the lost sheep of China? Years of pastoral experience in a Christian land are not a hinderance, but on the contrary an important qualification, for the missionary work. And it is not impossible for a man of sound mind and studious habits, though somewhat advanced in life, to acquire enough of the language to be very useful. Matthew Ricci was nearly fifty years old when he entered China; and none of his successors have exerted a wider influence, or left behind him a higher reputation.

Finally, we would entreat the earnest prayers of all God's people for us in our work, and for heathen China, soon we hope to become Christian.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco.—Rev. William Speer and his wife; Lai Sam, colporteur; Lam Chuen, teacher.

The circumstances under which this mission was commenced were stated in the last Annual Report. Its subsequent history shows that a good deal of preparatory work has been done, and some of the results of this labor are already visible.

Religious Services—Church.—Preaching in Chinese was commenced in February, 1853, on the first Sabbath of the Chinese year, and was continued on Sabbath evenings to the end of September. This service was then suspended until a new chapel could be obtained. The attendance was very unequal, at times but few, and occasionally a crowd, being present. The afternoon of the Sabbath was devoted to a Sunday-school and Bible-class, attended sometimes by twenty-five persons, and often by a smaller number, the Chinese being reluctant to leave their daily business, which is followed on the Sabbath as on week days. Social religious meetings were held on Wednesday evenings, and family worship every morning, attended by a few who had been members of the church in China, whose prayers and singing in their own tongue are spoken of as edifying and of much interest.

On the 6th of November a church was organized, consisting of four members, who had been communicants in a Presbyterian church in Hong Kong. One of them was ordained as an elder, and "the whole services were solemn and edifying." Their example and influence on their countrymen it is believed will be quite salutary. Two of them are in the employ of the mission, supported by donations made in San Francisco, and are fulfilling their duties to the satisfaction of their Christian friends. One of them, the colporteur, is described as a man of deep piety; he is very zealous in seeking to promote the spiritual welfare of his own people. Some of the attendants on preaching have appeared to be much impressed by the truth, and some the missionary hopes will yet be brought to a saving knowledge of Christ.

Preaching in English has frequently occupied a part of the Sabbath, in the churches in San Francisco and the neighboring towns, often on subjects connected with the mission. By this means, and by public addresses and lectures, Mr. Speer has successfully endeavored to awaken an interest in the work of the mission.

Mission House.—As a gratifying evidence of the interest taken by the citizens and by the Chinese themselves in the object of the mission, a handsome sum of money was given to procure suitable premises for the use of the mission. About $16,000 was contributed for this purpose, over $2,000 of which was given by Chinese merchants and shopkeepers. An eligible piece of land was purchased, and measures taken to build a house for the mission, which will be of three stories in height, and contain a chapel, school-room, parsonage, &c. About $7,000 will be required to complete this building. Mr. Speer warmly acknowledges the liberality of the citizens of San Francisco towards this object, and towards the mission in all its departments; and he says: "The house, with the lot, has been secured solely and for ever to the undisturbed use of the missionaries of the Presbyterian Board, unless the Presbyterian Church shall voluntarily resign the appointment of occupants for it."

School—Hospital Visits.—An evening-school was maintained for a few months, but the attendance was very irregular, and only the simplest rudiments of English were taught. In the Mission House, it is considered desirable "to have a library of Chinese and English books, a reading-room with newspapers, and a more complete philosophical apparatus."

In the Marine Hospital there are commonly a number of Chinese patients, to whom visits have been made by the missionary. Some of the patients on their recovery expressed great gratitude for the kindness shown to them. Mr. Speer adds an interesting notice of an Englishman and a negro, to whom opportunity was afforded during these visits of giving religious instruction and comfort. The former had been deluded into the miserable folly of Mormonism, but on his way back to England was found in the Hospital. "It pleased God to bring him apparently to an humble and penitent acceptance of Jesus Christ as his Saviour, and he died in comfort and the hope of an entrance into the kingdom of heaven." The colored man was also "led to a joyful faith in Christ. . . . His last hours were filled with happiness inexpressible." It is proposed to dispense medicines to a limited extent at the Mission House when it is completed.

Visits to the Interior.—Some of the towns in the interior have been visited, to awaken an interest in the object of the mission, and to preach to the Chinese. Mr. Speer says, "The Chinese in the interior seem to me more friendly than in San Francisco. Among the mines they are in circumstances to feel more sensibly their weakness, and too often suffer shocking injustice and injuries, more especially from European foreigners and Mexicans. Even the Digger Indians feel a special license to murder and rob this harmless people."

Such is a brief abstract of the progress of this mission. It affords ground of encouragement for the future. The respect and confidence of the Chinese has been in some degree secured for the missionary work. They are beginning to feel the influence of living among our people, exciting them to improvement, and some of them have taken out papers preparatory to becoming naturalized as citizens of our country. Their numbers are, by the latest accounts, again on the increase; about a thousand having arrrived at San Francisco in the week preceding Mr. Speer's last letter. The interest of our own citizens in the mission has been manifested in a most liberal and gratifying manner, and the preparatory arrangements are now nearly finished. Should not the marked favor of Providence which has attended the work thus far, lead the Church to pray for a large measure of spiritual blessings upon these new heathen in our country? Their spiritual condition, as pagans, is not less deplorable in California than it would be in China; in some respects it may be even more pitiable. Their own condition and their relation to the vast multitudes in their native country, now so deeply moved by a religious and political revolution, and especially their relation to the Christian people of this land, should all tend to awaken a strong interest in the efforts now in progress for their conversion. With the blessing of God, these efforts shall not be made in vain.

Missions among Romanists.

Europe.—The Committee are looking with increased interest to the great work of evangelization in Papal Europe. In several of the Roman Catholic States, a strife is going on between light and darkness, at the present moment, not unlike that which characterized the earlier stages of the great Reformation of the fifteenth century. Our evangelical brethren there, though comparatively few and feeble, are contending earnestly, nevertheless, for the faith once delivered to the saints, and they greatly need and ought to have the earnest sympathy and hearty coöperation of their Christian brethren in this more favored country.

Including what has been given for the endowment of the Theological Seminary at Latour, the Committee have been enabled to remit a larger amount of funds for the promotion of evangelical religion in Europe than in any previous year.

They regret however that no more progress has been made towards the complete endowment of the institution at Latour, and that so little has been placed a their disposal for the ordinary purpose of sustaining evangelical preaching.

In the providence of God a great many channels are now opened, through which the light of the gospel may be freely communicated to those of our fellow-men who have so long sat in Romish darkness; and it is hoped that, as it is becoming better understood that the Committee have facilities for employing advantageously almost any amount of funds that may be placed at their disposal for this purpose, our churches will be stirred up to much greater liberality than has ever yet been put forth in connection with this enterprise.

The plan of operation in this field of labor, as is generally known, is different from that pursued elsewhere.

The Board have no distinctive missions or missionary laborers here, who are under their immediate direction. Nor does it seem desirable that they should, when it is remembered what advantages they have for operating through the agency of others, and in view also of the urgent claims which are constantly pressing upon the churches for missionary laborers for other parts of the world.

The funds appropriated to the purposes of evangelization in Europe have usually been remitted to respected correspondents in different parts of the country, who are known to the Committee as men of sound and enlightened judgment and of thoroughly evangelical views. It is understood that these funds are placed at the disposal of evangelical societies, of which these correspondents are themselves leading and influential members.

These missionary associations are the Evangelical Society of Brussels, of Geneva, the Central Protestant Society of Paris, and the Waldensian Synod. The Central Protestant Society of Paris, and the Evangelical Society of Geneva carry on missionary operations in France. The Evangelical Society of Brussels confine their labors to Belgium, and the Waldensian Synod operates in all the states of Italy, and to a limited extent in the south-eastern parts of France.

These societies are conducted by men who are sound in the faith, and whose views of church polity are essentially the same with our own. If in some respects their church organization deviates from the presbyterian standard, it is to be attributed mainly to the forcible and authoritative intervention of the civil power in their ecclesiastical affairs. The Board, however, sustains no official relation to any of these societies, and thus will be at perfect liberty to suspend its contributions, if at any time there may be reason to believe that these brethren have turned aside from that good and great work in which they are now so zealously and successfully engaged.

This plan of operation combines a great many advantages. It saves the necessity of drafting upon the churches for men to carry out the details of missionary labor in Europe; it secures the services of many excellent and pious men, to whom the languages of Europe are vernacular; and it secures the aid and coöperation of some of the best and wisest men of the age in the great cause of evangelizing the world.

Such of these societies as have been engaged in the work of evangelization in France have had peculiar trials as well as peculiar blessings during the year.

On the one hand, they have been opposed and thwarted, not only by the Roman Catholic priesthood, but by measures on the part of government, which, it is known, have been instigated by them. On the other hand, there has been no time when they have enjoyed clearer or more encouraging tokens of the Divine blessing, than in the midst of this opposition and persecution. On this subject, one of our correspondents remarks:

"The circumstances in which we live are always the same. On one side the Word and the Spirit of God are evidently working in many places for the conversion of numerous souls; but on the other side the opposition of the Roman Catholic bishops and priests, sanctioned by the government, becomes more and more decided. In my previous letter I mentioned that two of our chapels, one at . . . and the other at . . . , and three of our schools in the same locality, had been shut up by the civil authorities, and in order to please the bishops in those departments.

"But the new converts are persevering in the ways of the gospel, and are not turned aside by the opposition made to them. They cannot hear the public preaching of the salvation of Christ, but they read the Bible in their houses. Our agents cannot instruct them in the church, but they go from house to house, teaching the people and praying with them. The children cannot be gathered into the Protestant schools, their parents preferring to keep them at home and give them such little instruction as they have themselves. I can assure you, dear Sir, from personal observation, nothing can be more edifying than the example of these poor people, who in faith, patience, submission and courage, wait for better times, without the least exhibition of anger or insubordination.

"In . . . the three hundred converts have not been deprived the privilege of hearing the preaching of the gospel; but as often as the pastor goes to that village to hold worship with them, he finds two police officers there to prevent people of the neighboring villages from worshipping with them. A great many people of the neighborhood having manifested a desire to join the evangelical party at . . . , the priests, fearing the extension of the revival, undoubtedly instigated this measure on the part of the government. It is the same at . . . The people there assured me, some weeks since, that if they could have the liberty of opening their chapel and have the regular ministry of the gospel, their present number of five hundred would be increased to one thousand."

Another respected correspondent writes on the same subject: "Though some of our ministers are prevented from publicly preaching the gospel, we have not dismissed them. Withdrawing them from their posts would be deserting from the field of battle at the very moment of the struggle; and it would be confessing, and that quite prematurely, that the cause of the gospel is lost. Moreover, if some of our ministers cannot preach the gospel from the pulpit, they continue, nevertheless, very active in the work of evangelization; they proclaim the blessed doctrines of the gospel from house to house; they pay visits for the purpose of edification or consolation, and they always perform other ministerial duties. It is therefore our duty to sustain them at their several missionary posts, and none of our friends will reproach us for so doing."

In some cases the bigotry of the Roman Catholic priesthood has carried them to such extreme measures as to awaken popular disgust, and to do themselves essential injury. One of these is the well-known fact, that the body of a Protestant was dug out of the cemetery of Chelles by order of the prefect of de l'Oise, and, as it is well known, at the instigation of the Bishop of Beauvais. This matter was published in several of the public journals of the country at the time, and has done the persecuting party more harm than they could have imagined when they first meditated this sacrilegious deed.

But if our evangelical brethren have been exposed to severe trials, they have also had many indubitable tokens of the Divine blessing, and have abundant cause to persevere in their work.

One of our correspondents, speaking of the Society with which he is connected, says: "It has for its object the spreading of the gospel in France among our poor scattered Protestants, and also among the Roman Catholics. In the course of the two last years, great revivals have taken place, in many parts of France, in the midst of Roman Catholic populations. For example, in . . . sixty persons, at . . . four hundred and fifty, in . . . five hundred, in . . . five hundred, in . . . hundreds and hundreds have left the Church of Rome, taken leave of their priests, turned to our Christian faith, and are listening at this moment to the preaching of the gospel. All those new stations and many others belong to our Society. We were obliged to build chapels, to open schools, to establish for them the ministry of the gospel. Not only that, but so numerous were the calls, on the part of the Roman Catholics, and the want of ministers to supply those calls, that we were under the necessity of establishing a school of divinity in Paris, for the education of pious young men for the ministry of the gospel. We began with twelve pupils, and will increase the number, according to the resources it will please God to send us. At this moment we are indebted for $3000. The Protestants in France are generally poor, and those whom God has enriched with the good things of this world are for the most part indifferent."

By the liberality of individuals and churches, the Committee have been enabled to appropriate for the purposes of evangelization in Europe $14,972 25, of which $7,786 73 have been invested for the Seminary at Latour; $2100 have been remitted for the church at Pignerol; $1110 00 for the support of preachers and colporteurs among the Waldenses, and $1000 for the purchase and distribution of Bibles by them, which sums were contributed for these specified purposes.

It is greatly to be regretted that no more progress has been made in the endowment of the Seminary at Latour, and especially so, as it had the cordial recommendation of the last General Assembly.

The Committee would earnestly recommend this enterprise to the churches, and they are not without hope that it may be completely endowed the present year.

The visit of Dr. Revel, the Moderator of the Waldensian, Synod, to the last General Assembly and to some of the churches, is undoubtely still fresh in the minds of all who had the happiness to hear him. The Church which he represented has, through the merciful providence of God, after many long years of sorrow and persecution, been permitted to enjoy a season of rest. This respite from persecution, far from abating their zeal for the cause of the gospel, has rather quickened and given scope for its more full development. Not only are they actively and efficiently engaged in promoting the cause of vital godliness in their own valleys and mountains, but they are carrying on the work of evangelization in many of the most important villages and towns in Italy; and what is very remarkable, and can be accounted for in no other way than by a special interposition of Divine providence, is, that they encounter little or no opposition, but on the contrary their work seems to be regarded with general favor. May it not be that God in his mysterious providence intends to make them the chief instruments in the conversion of that people who have, for so many generations, been their unrelenting persecutors? But, for a more detailed account of their labors, the Committee would refer to the accounts published in the missionary journals on this subject.

Mention was made in the Home and Foreign Record of August, of the appointment of Rev. Thomas Warren, formerly pastor of the Aisquith Street Church, Baltimore, as a missionary to the Roman Catholic population of Ireland. This measure was recommended by the Presbytery of Baltimore, and with the expectation that the funds necessary for his support would be raised chiefly in churches particularly interested in this mission. Mr. Warren embarked for that field of labor the 2d of June, and arrived at Belfast the 4th August. After surveying the field and conferring with several of the leading members of the Irish Assembly, he determined to locate at Ennis, the county town of Clare. Ennis has a population of 8000, and as it is almost entirely Roman Catholic, and there is not a single Presbyterian church or missionary in the whole county, it was deemed a suitable place for the commencement of the mission. Mr. Warren, however, had no sooner settled and commenced his labors here, than the most unexpected and violent opposition was raised, and he has been almost entirely cut off from any active labors among them.

Upon mature consideration, he came to the conclusion that he would not be likely to acquire any important influence over the people, without the additional aid of schools and colporteurs to distribute tracts among the people.

This, however, involves a larger outlay of funds and a greater amount of supervision on the part of the Committee, than had been contemplated in connection with any mission to Papal Europe; and whilst they have every confidence in the judgment, wisdom and zeal of Mr. Warren as a missionary, and will continue his salary for a year or longer, they do not expect, in view of all the circumstances of the case, to make this one of their permanent fields of labor.

South America.—The Board have looked with interest for some years past for some providential opening by which they might commence missionary operations in some part of South America. But hitherto, the intolerant character of some of the governments of that country, the unsettled and revolutionary state of others, and the want of missionary candidates of suitable character for that field, have prevented them from carrying into execution this purpose.

A few months since, Rev. Thomas L'Hombral, a member of the Presbytery of New York, offered himself to the Board to be sent to that field, was accepted, and designated to Buenos Ayres, as the most promising place to commence his labors.

Having been well supplied with Bibles, tracts, and books in the Portuguese, Spanish and French languages, he embarked at New York for his field of labor the 11th April.

His attention will be directed chiefly, in the first instance, to the French population, which is considerable at that city; though he will labor and distribute the word of God among others as the way may be opened.

This first step is an experiment, but there is reason to hope that it may lead to great and important results. This brother, who is gone alone to lay the foundation of this great work, is earnestly commended to the sympathies and the prayers of the people of God.

Mission to the Jews.

New York.—Rev. John Neander; Mr. Julius Strauss, licentiate preacher.
Philadelphia.—Rev. Bernard Steinthal.
Baltimore.—Rev. Frederick I. Neuhaus.

The general aspect of the missionary work among the Jews has not been materially changed during the last year. It is still a work requiring much patient labor, and faith that will not yield to discouragement.

The missionaries are the same as were reported last year, and their labors amongst their Jewish kinsmen have been prosecuted in the same way. They follow substantially the colporteur plan of action. Visits are made from house to house, for religious conversation and explaining the Scriptures; and copies of tracts and of the Bible are distributed, mostly by gift, in some instances by sale, as auxiliary to the instructions which have been imparted. The Jews are invited to the houses of the missionaries, and are exhorted to attend the Christian sanctuary. Many of them are also addressed in the public streets and places of business, and their attention is kindly called to the things which belong to their peace. A large amount of faithful and self-denying labor has been thus performed by these brethren. In the present state of the Jewish mind, and in the circumstances in which they are placed in our cities, it is doubtful whether any better method of proceeding could be adopted.

The results of this labor do not arrest public attention, and yet the eye of faith will not view them as fruitless. The truth is set before the Jews, very much as it is frequently declared to the heathen at our missionary stations,—by personal and individual address, varying with different circumstances, rather than by formal or stated public discourses. The leaven of the gospel is thus diffused; who can trace its influence and progress? Dissatisfaction with a religion of outward observances, convictions of sin, and desires of peace and rest, may thus be awakened and deepened, under the effectual working of the Holy Spirit, until some immortal souls are led unto Jesus Christ. In some few instances, during the last year, a profession of the Christian faith has been made. In how many others secret desires and purposes of following Christ may have been formed, the great day will reveal. The duty of the Church is plain, whether many or few conversions are reported; the gospel must be preached to every creature. And when the Spirit of the Lord is poured out from on high, a great company both of Jews and Gentiles will be converted, who shall be all one in Christ.

The missionary at Baltimore was laid aside from his labors for more than a month by severe illness, but he has been permitted to resume them with increased thankfulness. An extract or two from his monthly reports will serve to convey an idea of his work. In February last—

> Among the Jews, I have visited 29 families and 36 stores, and in the streets I spoke only to 17 persons. I was visited by four Jews. I have distributed four Bibles—Hebrew, English, German, and French; and I have also distributed 345 pages of Hebrew tracts.

In March last—

> I was enabled by the grace of our God to continue the work in which I am engaged. I was permitted to visit 35 families and 29 stores. I spoke in the streets with 37 Jews, and I was visited by three of them. I have distributed 468 pages of Hebrew tracts.

The missionary in Philadelphia has reported interviews held with the Jews under various circumstances. Sometimes he has been cordially received at their houses, and permitted to give instruction to their children. One family, who had attended a Unitarian service for a year or two, was led to regard Unitarianism as a poor exchange for Judaism, and evinced considerable interest in studying the Scriptures with the missionary. Some others have appeared to be sincere inquirers, and it is hoped that two will soon be admitted to the communion of the church. The state of mind among many of the Jews is indicated by the following extract from Mr. Steinthal's report in November:

> On the day of Atonement (October 12) I had some interesting conversations with a number of Jews, in which many of the leading points between us and our Jewish brethren were freely discussed. Their opinions taken together might build a little Babel; not one of them had a correct knowledge of sin or its imputation; all conceived religion to lie within the compass of reason and human power, and justification to be by the works of man alone. I exhorted them all that they should look to Christ and live. Others acknowledged that they were not satisfied with Judaism.

In New York, Messrs. Neander and Strauss have continued to seek the salvation of their unbelieving kinsmen. Their journals report numerous conversations held with Jews, in which their great aim was to set forth Christ as the end of the law for righteousness. In reviewing the labors of the year, Mr. Strauss writes in the following terms:

As this is my last report to you before the Annual Report of the Committee, I will sum up my last year's labors as follows: Distributed about 2,000 pages of tracts, 3 Hebrew Bibles, 12 German, and 9 English, and 8 German-English Testaments. One Jew has made a public confession of his faith by baptism; one Jewess is at the point of doing so; and I have reason to believe that another Jew and three Jewesses will soon follow their example. Thus we have great reason to thank our Master for his kindness towards us, in permitting us, unworthy as we are, to lead some of the scattered sheep of the house of Israel to their crucified Messiah. I believe there has never been a more favorable moment for missionary labor among the Jews than at present. They are everywhere divided; the Talmud is losing its influence; and the Jews in general are not averse to discuss the claims of Christ. If the Church would but cry mightily unto the Lord for Israel's sake, we should hope soon to reap a plenteous harvest.

The Committee have given considerable attention to the relation which the missions to the Jews in these cities ought to bear to the Germans. It is known that the German population is very largely on the increase, the immigration from Germany now exceeding that from Ireland; that many of them are Romanists, many indifferent to any religion, many sceptics, and many avowed and bitter opposers of Christianity; that but few evangelical ministers of the gospel are laboring among them, and but few can be obtained for this urgent work;—these are matters of deep moment. On the other hand, the missionaries of the Board to the Jews are themselves Germans by birth and language, though of the Jewish race; and in their missionary work among their kinsmen, they are continually brought in contact with their countrymen, both classes living in the same quarter, and to a large extent speaking a common language. The inference seems to be an obvious one, that these ministers of the gospel ought to seek the salvation of both Jews and Gentiles. Thus they will fulfil their great commission, and thus follow the apparent leadings of divine providence.

The missionary work among the Jews must not be neglected. The mission to this people, it will be remembered, was planted in our own cities, rather than, as was at first contemplated, in some foreign country, in obedience to the leadings of providence. The qualifications required by missionaries for effective labor among them are to a considerable extent foreign to the usual studies of our ministers. The support of missionaries to the Jews, as of those to the heathen, must be drawn at first altogether from the churches, and not in part from those to whom they minister. And their missionary work here is the same as would be required of them in Damascus or Jerusalem. These reasons have rendered it proper that missions to the Jews should be placed under the charge of the Board of Foreign Missions. But in the circumstances of the case, as relating both to the German population and to the missionaries, which have been already referred to, the Committee have considered it to be expedient that these brethren should devote a part of their labors to the Germans. They have, further, addressed a communication to the Presbyteries with which they are connected, soliciting such action on the subject as they may deem advisable, and suggesting that the expense incurred by their missionary labors among the Germans would be a proper charge on the domestic missionary funds of the several Presbyteries. It gives them pleasure to add that an encouraging commencement has been made in Williamsburgh, where Mr. Neander has succeeded in collecting a congregation of Germans, who have been organized as a church by the Presbytery of New York. His labors amongst them have been acceptable and useful, while he has not neglected to seek the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

The preceding narrative shows the progress of the missionary work during the last year, and its present state. Its perusal will awaken mingled emotions. There is reason for humility that more has not been done to save perishing souls. Stronger faith ought to have been put forth, and more earnest efforts made. The most devoted will be ready to acknowledge their deficiencies, and to abase themselves before God. The Church is responsible for all that she is able to do, and so is each one of her members, to make known the way of life among the nations—to preach the gospel to every creature. On the other hand, the preceding report shows the good hand of God upon this work. The doors open, the missionaries at work, and the additional laborers who have been sent forth, the truth preached, taught and read, the work of grace begun in some souls and finished in others, are all to be gratefully recognized as of the Lord, and by the favor of his providence and his Spirit. It is indeed the day of small things in most of these missions, but the eye of faith discerns in their working the hand of the Lord of the world. He as the Good Shepherd is gathering his sheep into the fold—one by one, it may be now, but in his own time it will be by thousands, as on the day of Pentecost. Let the Church believe that the Lord himself has this cause at heart, and that he is carrying it forward, and then no doubt can be indulged as to its final issue, nor any fear as to the usefulness of the labors now put forth on its behalf; these labors shall not be in vain in the Lord.

The present state of the unevangelized tribes and nations is full of interest. Not for ages before has the call of providence sounded more loudly, summoning the people of God to the work of evangelization. The Indians, our own heathen, are in circumstances increasingly urgent; what is done for them must be done quickly. The great population of western and central Africa is now stretching out their hands to receive Christian missionaries; hardly any barrier remains to be overcome, excepting such as will always exist, or such as the gospel must remove. The inhabitants of China are stirred by a revolution having in it an element as new and strange as it is powerful, and one which may result in the supremacy of the Christian religion in the land of Sinim. Siam is more open than ever, and the light of the gospel may be made to shine forth from its capital upon the neighboring lands of darkness. India could not be more accessible to the Church; Hinduism is in rapid decay; and in this valley of vision a movement among the dead is now commenced; before long they shall live and stand upon their feet, an exceeding great army. The Jews, beloved still for the fathers' sakes, were never more unsettled in their religious belief, nor more in need of being directed to the Messiah. Amongst Romanist nations, in Europe and on this continent, notwithstanding the arts and malice of the priests, much may be done and much is doing for the spread of true Christianity. The war now beginning between the powers of western and eastern Europe will probably, whatever its precise issue may be, tend to a radical change in the Mohammedan religious system, which must henceforth cease to be a persecuting power in Europe and Western Asia, and which will doubtless everywhere, before long, pass away like a stream dried up by the heat of summer. The Christian may be permitted to hope that the final result of this conflict will also be the breaking down of the power of Russia as a persecutor of the saints and an opposer of the kingdom of Christ; to be followed speedily by the similar destruction of the Papal Antichrist. The leading movements of divine providence for many years have been in the direction of Christian missions, and the end of the great war now beginning, it may be believed, will open still more widely the door of entrance for preaching the gospel to every creature.

In such a time as this, every Church of Christ should be a foreign missionary church. No real Christian should be willing to be excused from taking an active part in the work of missions. Those who are already enlisted in this cause should go forward in it with quickened pace, following their great Leader. The end will be "Glory to God in the highest; on earth, peace and good-will unto men."

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME V. No. 8. | PHILADELPHIA, AUGUST, 1854. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

LOOSE PRESBYTERIANS.

"Why, yes, he is a kind of loose Presbyterian!" A loose Presbyterian! Presbyterianism sits loose on him, like a loose garment, easily thrown off. He has a loose attachment to the doctrines and usages of the Church. He dreads becoming a sectarian so much that he can hardly be said to be decidedly of the Christian sect. He takes but little interest in the affairs of the church to which he belongs; the plans and operations of that church he knows but little about; her periodicals he does not read; political and secular papers have more attraction for him. He of course gives but little to sustain the institutions of the Church, and the preaching of the gospel at home or abroad. He is careless in keeping the Sabbath, and has not moral courage to prevent Sabbath-breakers from making him Sabbath calls. He goes to preaching only when it is convenient, and the weather is fine; and seldom to prayer-meeting. He takes little or no interest in the Sabbath-school. His children are not punctually there, nor at preaching. They grow up still more loose than their parents; so loose as to marry without any regard to religion and church connection. Some of them become infidels, some drunkards, some Universalists, falling in with what may be most popular in the circle where they chance to move. The loose Presbyterian seldom has morning and evening worship in his family. His children seldom learn the Catechism, or become familiar with the Bible. The loose Presbyterian is easily offended, if things are not managed to please him; and he sometimes thinks the minister personal when he points out his sins. The loose Presbyterian is not much honour to the Church. Wonder if he will ever get to heaven! DELTA.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

PHILLIPPI, THESSALONICA, AND BEREA.

Of these three churches of Macedonia, an honourable testimony is recorded in the eighth chapter of 2d Corinthians. Concerning them, St. Paul declares that notwithstanding their deep poverty, the riches of their liberality nevertheless abounded, and that when bestowing their charity, it was not withheld as long as possible, until the right time for its appropriation had nearly passed away, and then given grudgingly and of necessity, but praying the apostle with much entreaty to receive their gift. Having first given their own selves unto the Lord, they then bestowed their means upon his poor servants who had become their brethren. How seldom now-a-days do we hear of three churches like unto them, or even of one. In general, they appear to think that if they take care of themselves, keep out of debt, and pay their poor, hard-worked, over-driven pastors their small yearly pittance, they do well—yea, great things. We hear every day startling and pathetic appeals made to the churches for help; it is needed in every direction; help for the weak against the strong, for new churches just started in unsettled parts of the country, for feeble churches, who have struggled through a sickly existence, and who, through the force of circumstances, and without fault of their own, are just ready to expire for want of help. We need the prayers of the churches, we need their money, and we need the services of their sons, dedicated to the Lord in baptism, trained up in his nurture and admonition, and consecrated to his glorious work as ministers of the everlasting gospel. But alas, how few prayers ascend to heaven on our behalf; how few give of their ample means; and concerning the woful lack of candidates for the ministry among us, to the Church in general may be applied the words of the prophet Isaiah to Jerusalem, "There is none to guide her, among all the sons whom she has brought forth." And how can it be otherwise? The children of the Church—those who should prove her bulwarks and defenders—how often are they suffered to grow up in ignorance of the way of life; with little or no religious instruction at home, by example they are taught that the favour of the world is life. They know nothing of the grounds of their faith; the Bible and Catechism are not studied by them; they can give no answer to the question, "Why am I a Presbyterian?" they attend the services of the sanctuary as a mere form, and as soon as possible, either abandon it altogether, or go over to the more attractive and fashionable church of the day. CUMEA.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

LEFT BY THE CARS.

See that man who is just too late, or the other, who was sitting quietly at his breakfast when he heard the departing signal. Neither can believe he is in fault. Oh no! his watch is right. The conductor hurried the train; the agent's watch is out of order. He feels as if there has been a conspiracy to delude and vex him. He is positively fretted; he blames everybody except himself, and he only is to blame. Good humour may be restored, as he reflects—It cannot be helped; I must just take the next train. But very great and permanent evils may result. He has learned a lesson, and will be in time to-morrow. Let us moralize on this very usual event.

1. There has been an error. His watch was wrong after all. He did not take care to set it by the true standard. Men fail of success because they adopt wrong principles. They fail to become pious people of God, because they will not consult his standard. They blame the Bible, the Church, the ministry; anything, anybody, everything, everybody, rather than self.

2. Our sincere belief that we are right will not save us. God has a certain fixed, immutable, and holy law. If we follow its teachings, we shall grow wiser and better; but if we follow our own notions, he makes no provision for our faults; we are just left to suffer.

3. There are favoured times for obtaining God's favour. When the Spirit strives and calls, and the word is sinking in our hearts, in the accepted time, and the day of salvation, we should be ready. While we are tarrying and halting, the hour may pass. We flatter ourselves that our time will answer—that we shall not be too late; and ere we are aware, the accepted hour passes away unimproved, and when we call, he will not answer.

4. And here the illustration fails. There will be no other train for the finally impenitent. The negligent traveller can go to-morrow, but alas for the negligent sinner! his to-morrow may never come. Then

> While God invites, how blest the day,
> How sweet the gospel's charming sound!
> "Come, sinner, haste! oh haste away,
> While yet a pardoning God is found."

A CHILD'S PRAYER.

Sweeter than the songs of thrushes,
When the winds are low:
Brighter than the spring-time blushes,
Reddening out of snow,
Were the voice and cheek so fair
Of the little child at prayer.

Like a white lamb of the meadow,
Climbing through the light;
Like a priestess in the shadow
Of the temple bright,
Seemed she, saying, "Holy One,
Thine, and not my will be done."

ALICE CAREY.

"I AM STRONG IN HIM."

Rev. Mr. McLeod of Scotland, recently addressing the London Missionary Society, related the following anecdote, which is richly illustrative of the Christian faith, and full of beautiful and touching pathos:

"The other day I was requested by a brother minister, who was unwell, to go and visit a dying child. He told me some remarkable things of this boy, eleven years of age, who, during three years' sickness, had manifested the most patient submission to the will of God, with a singular enlightenment of the Spirit. I went to visit him. The child had suffered excruciating pain; for years he had not known one day's rest. I gazed with wonder at the boy. After drawing near to him, and speaking some word of sympathy, he looked at me with his blue eyes—he could not move—it was the night before he died—and breathed into my ear these few words: 'I am strong in Him.' The words were few, and uttered feebly. They were the words of a feeble child, in a poor home, where the only ornament was that of a meek and quiet, and affectionate mother; and these words seemed to lift the burden from the very heart; they seemed to make the world more beautiful than ever it was before; they brought home to my heart a great and blessed truth. May you, sir, and I, and every one else be 'strong in Him!'"

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.

Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.

Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

ANNUAL STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS BY THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Fiscal Year, from April 1st, 1853, to April 1st, 1854.

We publish the following statement of receipts, in order that the members of the congregations who have contributed to the Board of Domestic Missions during the past year, may see how much was given to the Board by the churches with which they are connected. If the name of any church is not found in the list, it is because nothing has been received from it during the past year. If, in the judgment of any of the contributing churches, the amount contributed by their church is not as large as it ought to have been, we trust they will endeavour to increase their contributions during the present year. And will not the churches which contributed nothing during the past year, resolve to give what they can, this year, to a cause so important? Hereafter it is our purpose to publish this list of contributing churches annually.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry.

Antrim Church	$66 60
Londonderry	31 00
Newburyport 1st	102 50
Newburyport 2d	27 00
	227 10

Pby of Troy.

Cambridge 1st (united)	100 00
Lansingburg	123 16
Stillwater 1st	78 99
Troy 2d	407 17
Troy 2d Street	542 73
Waterford	162 00
	1414 05

Pby of Albany.

Albany 2d	474 00
Albany 3d	25 33
Amsterdam Village	53 11
Ballston	15 00
Ballston Spa	5 69
Charlton	22 25
Esperance	17 98
Freehold	5 10
Galway	9 25
Hamilton Union	28 75
Kingsboro	174 27
Little Falls	28 37
Mayfield	5 00
New Scotland	30 12
Northampton	20 00
Princeton	17 09
Saratoga Springs	166 77
Tribe's Hill	48 30
Windsor	6 50
	1162 88

Pby of Columbia.

Jewett	51 00

Pby of Mohawk.

Oneida Depot	9 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg.

Oswegatchie 1st	111 00
Oswegatchie 2d	50 00
	161 00

Pby of Genesee River.

Bath 1st	310 00
Caledonia	25 00
Moscow	12 00
Oakland	25 40
Pifford	5 38
Portageville	8 00
Sparta 1st	10 00
Sparta 2d	13 50
Warsaw	22 00
	431 28

Pby of Buffalo City.

Aurora 1st	15 00
Buffalo (Central)	200 88
	215 88

Pby of Michigan.

Bennington Church	2 00
Lyon	1 75
Meridian	9 00
Plymouth 1st	15 00
	27 75

Pby of Rochester City.

East Bethany	8 00
Penfield	13 00
Phelps	22 00
Pickleville	11 00
Port Byron	10 00
Rochester 3d	138 53
	202 53

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson.

Coshecton	3 72
Deer Park	10 00
Florida	16 00
Goodwill	52 00
Hamptonburgh	35 00
Hopewell	20 00
Monroe	5 00
Monticello	55 00
Scotchtown	57 00
West town	10 00
	263 72

Pby of North River.

Cold Spring	10 00
Fishkill	30 00
Fishkill Landing	5 69
Highlands	30 00
Marlborough	29 50
Newburgh	184 61
Wappinger's Creek	17 00
	306 80

Pby of Bedford.

Bedford	111 00
Croton Falls	85 25
Mount Kisco	41 00
North Salem	26 65
Patterson	9 43
Red Mills	5 00
Rye	34 50
South Salem	81 73
White Plains	35 00
	429 56

Pby of Long Island.

Brookfield	10 00
East Hampton	46 00
Fresh Pond	10 00
Hempstead	25 00
Sag Harbor	55 00
Southampton	75 00
	221 00

Pby of New York.

Astoria	94 00
Brooklyn 1st	437 09
Brooklyn 2d	347 55
Brooklyn (Central)	60 00
Chelsea	217 00
Greenbush	2 00
Jamaica Church	117 50
Jersey City	122 59
Madison Avenue	96 00
Newtown	45 00
New York (Brick)	1564 00
do 1st	2411 00
do 5th Av. 19th	3764 35
do 42d St.	30 50
do 84th St.	100 00
do Rutgers St.	396 06
do University Pl.	930 31
do Wallabout	60 32
Nyack	10 00
Williamsburgh	118 47
do Austin St.	18 00
Yorkville	50 00
	10,991 74

Pby of New York, 2d.

Delhi	12 57
Mt. Washington	104 30
New York (Scotch)	787 50
do Staunton St.	50 00
Peekskill	73 00
Sing Sing	163 00
West Farms	10 00
	1200 37

Pby of Connecticut.

Hartford City 1st	5 00
Thompsonville	17 00
	22 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown.

Baskenridge	40 00
Elizabethport	20 00
Elizabethtown 1st	250 00
Lamington	77 00
Liberty Corner	24 00
Mount Freedom	25 00
New Providence	50 00
New Vernon	21 00
Pluckemin	20 00
Rahway 1st	50 00
do 2d	50 00
Westfield	31 03
	658 03

Pby of Passaic.

Chatham Village	35 00
Connecticut Farms	35 00
Morristown 1st	80 39
Morristown 2d	113 00
Mount Olive	7 50
Newark 3d	225 49
Paterson 1st	101 00
	597 38

Pby of New Brunswick.

Bound Brook	85 00
Cranberry 1st	30 00
Cranberry 2d	63 00
Freehold	77 54
Middletown Point	66 17
Millstone	7 00
New Brunswick	200 00
Princeton 1st	97 48
do 2d	35 10
do Coloured	2 00
Rocky Hill Station	13 00
Squan Village	25 13
Titusville	20 00
Trenton 1st	195 00
do 2d	29 00
do 3d	40 00
	985 42

Pby of West Jersey.

Blackwoodtown	25 00
Bridgeton 1st	202 00
Bridgeton 2d	20 00
Camden	41 42
Cedarville	31 50
Greenwich	50 00
Leed's Point	3 00
Millville	28 00
Pittsgrove	30 00
Salem	18 75
Williamstown	8 00
Woodbury	96 43
	554 10
Personal	20 00
	574 10

Pby of Newton.

Belvidere	50 00
Blairstown	15 00
Danville	6 00
Fox Hill	11 00
German Valley	31 00
Greenwich	62 00
Hackettstown	52 25
Knowlton	37 00
Mansfield	70 00
Newton	73 19
Stewartsville	46 78
Stroudsburg	18 00
Upper Mt. Bethel	14 00
	486 22

Pby of Raritan.

Amwell 1st	24 00
Clinton	46 85
Flemington	126 02
Frenchtown	9 00
Kingwood	15 52
Lambertville	34 54
Milford	12 38
Pleasant Grove	10 00
Solebury	10 00
	288 31

Pby of Susquehanna.

Athens	4 50
Canton	9 00
Friendsville	2 00
Monroeton Church	20 51
Orwell	20 00
Rome	12 00
Silver Lake	4 00
Towanda	19 00
Troy	15 56
Warren	6 58
Wysox	4 20
	117 35

Pby of Luzerne.

Conyngham	15 50
Kingston	40 00
Lackawana	10 00
Newton	12 00
Summit Hill	25 00
Tamaqua	114 18
Tunkhannock	27 50
Wilkesbarre	100 00
Wyoming	30 00
	374 18

Pby of Burlington.

Allentown	60 00
Burlington	140 53
	200 53

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.

Charlestown	5 62
Chester	29 15
Chocksink	20 00
Crookville	5 00
Philadelphia 2d	479 66
do 4th	81 00
do 6th	325 00
do 7th	35 00
do 9th	36 68
do 10th	788 28
do 11th	280 50
do African	5 00
do Central	100 00
do Kensington	40 00
do Scots	267 00
do South	16 00
do S. Western	7 63
do Sp. Garden	101 08
do W'stminst'r	19 39
	2641 99

Pby of Philad'a 2d.

Abington	75 00
Allen Township & Catasaqua	54 25
Bensalem	27 00
Bridesburg	11 80
Brainerd	20 00
Bristol	16 00
Conshohocken	2 50
Doylestown	28 64
Easton 1st	100 00
Frankford	78 00
Germantown	90 00
Holmesburg	20 00
Newton	12 50
Norristown	26 00
	561 69

Pby of New Castle.

Doe Run	30 00
Dover and Smyrna	18 07
Fagg's Manor	45 32
Forks of Brandywine	105 00
Great Valley	42 15
Lower West Nottingham	111 26
New Castle	113 25
New London	44 00
Oxford	100 00
Penningtonville	8 00
Port Deposite	50 00
Rock	6 00
Upper Octorara	111 35
White Clay Creek	10 00
Wilmington 1st	80 00
Zion	20 87
	895 27

Pby of Donegal.

Chanceford	28 00
Chestnut Level	22 89
Columbia	59 62
Little Britain	11 28
Mount Joy	75 00
Slateville	50 00
Strasburg	5 00
Waynesburg	112 00
Wrightsville	21 76
	385 55

Pby of Baltimore.

Annapolis	88 00
Baltimore 1st	1200 00
do Franklin St.	91 04
do Govane Chap	21 88
do Madison St.	7 37
Bladensburg	13 00
Ellicott's Mills	22 50
Frederick	38 75
Georgetown Bridge st.	60 00
Havre de Grace	20 00
Taneytown	78 70
Washington City F St.	81 08
	1722 32

Pby of Carlisle.

Buffalo	22 00
Carlisle	134 00
Chambersburg	120 25
Cumberland	125 00
Dickinson	17 00
Fayetteville	20 00
Great Conewago	105 00
Green Castle	40 00
Green Hill	14 00
Hagerstown	31 25
Hancock	17 00
Mercersburg	206 60
Middle Spring Church	60 00
Middletown	37 00
Millerstown	20 00
McConnelsburg	84 00
Newville	151 52
Paxton	94 00
Petersburg	35 64
Rocky Spring & St. Thomas	40 00
Schellsburg	50 00
Shippensburg	134 00
Silver Spring	50 00
Tom's Creek and Piney Creek	7 50
Upper Path Valley	45 00
Well's Valley	12 00
	1642 76

Pby of Huntingdon.

Alexandria	45 50
Bellefonte	65 00
Birmingham	3 85
Brier Creek	3 00
Chillisquaque	3 00
Clearfield	4 00
Hollidaysburg	105 00
Huntingdon	125 79
Lewistown	155 07
Lick Run	45 61
Little Valley	48 00
Little Augwick	43 00
Logan's Valley	2 09
Lower Tuscarora	105 00
Middle Tuscarora	50 00
Mifflin & Lost Creek	70 00
Mt. Pleasant	1 01
Orangeville	1 10
Perryville	125 00
Rohrsburg	5 00
Shaver's Creek	46 10
Shirleysburg	16 00
Sinking Valley	34 00
Spruce Creek 1st	148 00
Waynesburg & Newton Hamilton	402 00
West Kishacoquillas	59 75
Williamsburg	7 03
	1718 90

Pby of Northumberland.

Bloomsbury	35 00
Chillisquaque	15 00
Derry & Washingtonville	40 00
Hartleyton	3 00
Lewisburg	2 75
Mifflinsburg	11 00
Milton	90 00
New Berlin	24 50
Nippenose and Chatham Run	5 00
Northumberland	11 44
Rohrsburg	7 00
Sunbury	23 56
Warrior Run	50 00
Washington	52 85
Williamsport	12 00
	363 10

Pby of Eastern Shore.

Buckingham	44 00
Monokin	30 00
Snow Hill and Pitt's Creek	40 00
Wicomico and Barren Creek	25 70
	139 70

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.

Armagh	14 50
Beulah	57 67
Blairsville	39 00
Boiling Spring	9 00
Cherry Run	5 00
Congruity	32 00
Crooked Creek and Appleby Manor	10 00
Cross Roads	22 00
Ebenezer	112 00
Elder's Ridge	26 20
Fairfield	5 58
Gilgal and Perry	15 00
Harmony	3 00
Indiana	38 50
Johnstown	85 00
Kittaning	81 14
Leechburg	6 00
Ligonier	18 00
Mechanicsburg	4 00
Murrysville	10 00
New Alexandria	26 32
New Salem	19 00
Pine Run	8 07
Plum Creek	5 25
Poke Run	60 00
Rural Valley	20 00
Salem	16 00
Saltsburg	48 63
Summit Hill	12 25
Unity	50 00
West Lebanon	5 41
	864 52

Pby of Redstone.

Brownsville	5 00
Connellsville	67 58
Dunlap's Creek and M'Clellandstown	37 96
Greensburg	38 75
Laurel Hill	72 02
Morgantown	5 00
McKeesport	40 50
Mt. Pleasant	38 37
Rehoboth	60 03
Round Hill	26 15
Sewickley	23 00
Tyrone	15 62
Uniontown	59 00
West Newton	17 10
	506 08

Pby of Ohio.

Allegheny City, 2d	18 50
Bethel	50 00
Bethany	56 52
Centre	58 16
East Liberty	48 00
Highlands	12 00
Hopewell	17 66
Lebanon	24 00
Manchester	54 00
Miller's Run	34 10
Mingo	11 88
Montour	16 00
Monongahela	85 00
Ningpo	22 00
Pittsburgh, 1st	460 00
Do 2d	332 74
Do 6th	54 00
Raccoon	43 60
Sewickley	36 50
Sharpsburg	27 50
Sharon	17 25
	1479 41

Pby of Allegheny.

Amity	10 00
Butler	51 00
Concord	30 36
Cross Roads	35 00
Freeport	23 33
Harrisville	19 00
New Salem	8 00
Plain Grove	36 25
Portersville	20 00
Slate Lick	29 43
Tarentum	51 90
Union	7 00
	321 27

Pby of Beaver.

Beaver Falls	24 00
Bridgewater	37 16
Clarksville	25 00
Little Beaver	49 05
Mt. Pleasant	9 00
Neshanock	56 75
Newport	4 15
Pulaski	11 00
Sharon	9 00
Slippery Rock	6 00
Unity	13 00
Westfield	47 00
West Middlesex	7 60
	298 71

Pby of Erie.

Fairview and Sturgeonville	30 00
Franklin	10 00
Harmonsburg	7 21
Meadville	60 00
Mercer	30 00
Mill Creek	6 00
Sandy Lake	1 00
Sugar Creek	8 00
	152 21

Pby of Clarion.

Brookville	19 50
Callensburg	18 75
Clarion	45 00
Concord	6 25
Leatherwood	26 00
Licking	22 02
Middle Creek	5 00
New Rehoboth	12 50
Pisgah	40 00
Rehoboth	18 75
Richland	5 00
	218 77

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.

Burgettstown	25 00
Claysville	28 00
Cross Creek	160 50
Cross Roads	34 00
Fairview	49 21
Florence	27 62
Forks of Wheeling	40 00
Lower Buffalo	8 30
Lower Ten Mile	32 00
Mill Creek	41 00
Mt. Prospect	67 35
Mt. Union	2 00
Pigeon Creek	44 34
Ritchietown	5 00
Upper Buffalo	86 75
Upper Ten Mile	14 00
Washington	166 47
Wellsburg	14 00
West Alexander	74 48
West Union	22 40
Wheeling 1st	247 44
do 2d	150 00
do 3d	20 71
do 4th	16 92
	1377 49

Pby of St. Clairsville.

Beach Spring	45 00
Brownsville	6 00
Crab Apple	45 00
East Woodsfield	3 00
Martinsville	26 50
Morristown	14 00
Mt. Pleasant	54 50
Nottingham	15 00
Rock Hill	51 52
Short Creek	5 00
St. Clairsville	34 50
Wheeling Valley	13 35
	313 37

Pby of Steubenville.

Annapolis	8 10
Bacon Ridge	17 00
Bethlehem	12 00
Bloomfield	7 00
Carrolton	14 00

Centre Unity Church	10 00
Corinth	14 00
Cross Creek	7 00
Harlem	6 00
Harrisburg	3 34
Island Creek	22 00
Kilgore	4 00
New Hagerstown	14 00
Ridge	17 00
Steubenville 1st	80 00
do 2d	100 00
Two Ridges	20 00
Wellsville	19 37
	374 81
Presbyterial	12 50
	387 31

Pby of New Lisbon.

Bethesda	24 00
Canfield	49 75
Deerfield	18 00
East Palestine	16 25
Madison	17 12
New Lisbon	53 75
New Salem	5 85
Newton	5 00
Poland Church	28 11
Yellow Creek	29 00
	246 83

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus.

Blendon	6 20
Circleville	16 60
Columbus	138 65
Hamilton	4 00
Hopewell	8 69
Lancaster	22 00
Lithopolois	3 50
Mifflin	5 87
Mt. Sterling	6 18
Sciota	18 08
Truro	16 00
	245 77

Pby of Marion.

Bowling Green	1 50
Brown	4 05
Bucyrus	4 00
Corinth	1 00
Creek	4 00
Iberia	20 00
Kingston	6 00
Marion	30 00
Marysville	8 00
Osceola	2 50
Radnor	10 00
Salem	10 00
Union	2 50
Upper Sandusky	25 00
York	5 00
	133 55

Pby of Zanesville.

Bethel	5 00
Brownsville	36 50
Hebron	28 00
Marietta	4 00
Mount Pleasant	1 00
Newark	45 52
Norwich	8 00
Pleasant Hill	10 50
Uniontown	5 00
	143 52

Pby of Richland.

Ashland	42 67
Bladensburg	17 10
Bloomfield	1 00
Chesterville	4 50
Fredericktown	19 82
Harmony	6 50
Haysville	14 65
Hopewell	11 60
Jeromeville	5 00
Lexington	2 16
Londonville	3 00
Lucas	3 00
Mansfield	23 50
Martinsburg	31 00
Mifflin	3 00
Mt. Pleasant	15 12
Olivesburg	6 00
Orange	7 00
Perryville	15 00
Pleasant Hill	5 00
Savannah	30 56
Sharon	7 00
Utica	10 00
	284 18

Pby of Wooster.

Canal Fulton	1 00
Chippewa	10 00
Congress	15 00
Green	25
Jackson	22 94
Hount Hope	13 00
Northfield	8 00
Springfield	13 75
Sugar Creek	26 69
Wooster	44 20
	154 83

Pby of Coshocton.

Apple Creek	18 00
Clark	5 00
East Hopewell	20 00
Evan's Creek	4 00
Keene	8 00
Linton	75
Mt. Eaton	8 00
Nashville	2 00
Perry	1 50
Unity	39 00
Williamsburgh	7 35
	113 60

Pby of Hocking.

Barlow	3 57
Decatur	1 68
McArthur	3 50
Mount Carmel Church	6 87
New Plymouth	2 50
Rutland	14 41
	32 53

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe.

Bloomingburg	17 50
Chillicothe 1st	79 66
Hillsborough	143 40
Washington	50 00
	290 56
Personal	5 00
	295 56

Pby of Miami.

Clifton	53 50
Dayton 1st	100 00
" 3d	50 00
Dick's Creek	50 35
Harmony	18 00
Jersey	27 00
Lebanon	98 00
Middletown	34 50
Springfield	130 00
Xenia	10 30
Yellow Spring	55 00
	621 65
Personal	10 00
	631 65

Pby of Cincinnati.

Central	5 00
Cincinnati 1st	63 10
" 5th	38 78
" 7th	162 97
" High St.	6 86
Hopewell	17 06
Monroe	15 25
Mt. Carmel	56 20
Pleasant Ridge	37 50
Reading	15 00
Somerset	11 23
Springfield	46 11
	475 06
Personal	50 00
	525 06

Pby of Oxford.

Bethel	46 00
Camden	18 50
Hamilton & Rossville	95 40
Harmony	6 60
Oxford	9 80
Somerville	19 75
Venice	33 00
	229 05

Pby of Sidney.

Buck Creek	45 00
Covington	4 00
Greenville	12 00
Mt. Pleasant	4 16
Pequa 1st	88 00
Sidney	87 00
St. Mary's	29 00
Stoney Creek	5 00
Union	4 00
Urbana	8 00
West Liberty	23 00
	309 16
Personal	75
	309 91

Pby of Maumee.

Bethel	2 70
Gilead	5 86
	8 06
Personal	10 00
	18 06

Pby of Findlay.

Blanchard	4 50
Delphos	5 00
Findlay	100 10
Goshen	5 90
Kalida	1 60
Kenton	15 25
Lima	22 70
Little Grove	2 30
Van Wert	2 00
	159 35
Personal	10 00
	169 35

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.

Corydon	9 60
Jeffersonville	6 00
Livonia	16 40
New Albany 1st	212 90
Owen Creek	6 00
Utica	1 25
Woodville	1 00
	253 15

Pby of Vincennes.

Bruceville	12 50
Claiborne	3 00
Evansville	86 00
Hopewell	4 00
Indiana	16 25
Princeton	6 50
Rockport	5 25
Union	4 30
Upper Indiana	27 50
Vincennes	54 90
Washington	4 00
White River	10 00
	234 20
Personal	5 00
	239 20

Pby of Madison.

Bethel Church	24 10
Jefferson	10 00
Madison 1st	94 50
New Lexington	17 00
New Washington	10 50
Pleasant Township	30 00
South Hanover	62 10
Vernon	30 58
	278 78

Pby of Indianapolis.

Bethany	20 00
Bloomington	56 00
Hopewell	54 20
Indianapolis 3d	14 50
Knightstown	50 00
New Prospect	6 00
	200 70
Personal	85 00
	285 70

Pby of White Water.

Bath	22 75
Billingsville	1 45
Brookville	30 50
Connersville	10 00
Dunlapsville	56 00
Greensburg	101 50
Lawrenceburg	20 00
Liberty	50 00
Mt. Carmel	107 30
Mt. Hope	5 00
Reesville	154 92
Richmond	8 00
Rising Sun	15 00
Sand Creek	21 50
	603 92
Personal	5 00
	608 92

Pby of Palestine.

Charleston	16 31
Friendsville	5 00
Grandview	63 00
Hebron	4 15
Independence	4 80
Mt. Carmel	9 00
Paris	50 00
Wabash	10 00
	162 26
Personal	20 00
	182 26

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport.

Lafayette	25 00
Logansport	75 00
Mill Creek	7 00
Monticello	5 00
Normanda	5 00
Peru	11 50
Rock Creek	2 00
West Union	2 09
	132 59

Pby of Lake.

Constantine	37 50
Crown Point	7 88
La Porte 1st	19 00
Rolling Prairie	31 00
South Bend	20 53
Sumption's Prairie	17 00
Tassinong	2 00
Valparaiso	40 00
	174 91

Pby of Fort Wayne.

Albion	2 70
Eel River	1 00
Fawn River	6 50
Fort Wayne 1st	20 87
Hawpatch	2 50
La Grange	5 00
Sparta	1 25
	39 82
Personal	5 00
	44 82

Pby of Crawfordsville.

Bethany	25 00
Covington	14 05
Green Castle	5 00
Lebanon	25 00
Ohio	6 75
Putnamville	13 25
Rockville	18 00
Thorntown	12 00
	119 05
Personal	3 30
	122 35

Pby of Muncie.

Indianapolis 1st	189 60
Lake Branch	3 50
New Castle	20 00
	213 10
Personal	20 00
	233 10
Synodical	80 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia.

Carlyle	8 00
Chester	5 70
Dry Point	2 00
Edwardsville	8 00
Golconda	6 03
Greenville	10 50
Nashville	12 63
Pleasant Ridge	9 00
Rattan's Prairie	4 00
Shawneetown	5 00
Staunton Church	4 00
Sugar Creek	12 00
Washington	7 38
	94 24

Pby of Sangamon.

Jacksonville	103 00
North Sangamon	102 50
Petersburg	73 00
Providence	16 90
Springfield 1st	64 00
" 3d	50 00
Union	15 00
	424 40
Personal	50 00
	474 40

Pby of Schuyler.

Camp Creek	14 00
Chili	5 00
Fountain Green	22 00
Henderson	10 50
Knoxville	13 00
Macomb	21 00
Monmouth	20 06
	105 56
Presbyterial	18 40
	123 96

Pby of Peoria.

Bloomington Church	40 00
Canton	10 00
Farmington	11 00
Lewistown	190 00
Osceola	3 00
Princeville	12 25
Salem	17 50
Waynesville	17 00
	300 75

Pby of Rock River.

Andover	7 00
Camden Mills	13 00
Galena South	167 43
Princeton	45 05
Rock Island	36 00
Sterling	15 00
	283 48

Pby of Chicago.

Chicago (North)	125 00
Earlville	25 00
Roscoe	7 50
Willow Creek	23 00
	180 50
Synodical	22 62

SYDOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane.

Madison	15 00
Oakland	12 00
Verona	3 00
Westminster	5 40
	35 40

Pby of Milwaukie.

Milwaukie ch	55 00
Waukesha	5 00
	60 00

Pby of Winnebago.

Depere	23 39
Fort Winnebago 1st	44 00
Winneconnie	7 00
	74 39

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Iowa.

Charleston	1 85
Keokuck	12 00
Middletown	9 50
Mt. Pleasant	5 00
Round Prairie	7 00
Sharon	2 10
Unity	2 14
	39 59

Pby of Cedar.

Andrew	2 10
Du Buque	31 20
Franklin	11 70
Grandview	2 30
High Prairie	1 25
Tipton	13 00
	61 55

Pby of Des Moines.

Birmingham	10 00
Fairfield	32 00
Shiloh	4 00
Winchester	6 00
	52 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Missouri.

Arrow Rock	4 65
Augusta	13 35
Auxvasse	11 00
Boonville	71 00
Columbia	88 00
Concord	18 25
Fulton	42 05
Jefferson City	69 70
Mexico	6 50
Millersburg	13 35
Salt Pond	11 20
	349 05

Pby of St. Louis.

Bonhomme	40 85
Fee Fee	15 75
Lima	5 35
Maline	13 10
St. Charles	27 00
Union	14 60
Washington	9 33
Washington & Newport	35 05
	161 03
Personal	12 50
	173 53

Pby of Palmyra.

Big Creek	7 00
Des Moines	14 85
Hannibal	18 50
Louisiana	16 00
Monticello	11 15
Mt. Prairie	8 00
Paris	5 50
Philadelphia	33 40
Pleasant Hill	9 00
	123 40

Pby of Potosi.

Apple Creek	24 25
Belleville	20 10
Farmington	31 50
Potosi	20 60
Steeleville	17 23
	113 68

Pby of Upper Missouri.

Crooked River	6 75
Ebenezer	1 00
Independence	43 00
Lexington	130 00
Liberty	41 35
Platte City	4 50
Prairie	15 00
Savannah	7 50
West Port	10 60
	259 70

Pby of Nebraska.

St. Joseph	2 75
Synodical	143 60

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.

Bardstown	91 00
Big Spring	27 00
Cloverport	7 00
Elizabethtown	17 00
Goshen	66 00
Louisville 1st	631 20
do 2d	380 95
do 3d	34 00
do 4th	40 50
do Chestnut St.	505 08
Mulberry	81 28
Owensboro	100 00
Pennsylvania Run	16 30
Pisgah	5 00
Shelbyville	200 30
Shiloh & Olivet	133 25
	2335 86
Personal	285 00
	2620 86

Pby of Muhlenburg.

Bowling Green	8 00
Greenville	8 00
Henderson	88 10
Mt. Zion	11 00
Union Point	2 13
	117 23
Personal	4 00
	121 23

Pby of Transylvania.

Bethel	64 00
Danville 1st	348 00
do 2d	170 60
Ebenezer	16 00
Edmonton	13 00
Greensburg	5 00
Harrodsburg	92 55
Houstonville	60 50
Lancaster	67 70
Lebanon	33 00
Munfordsville	10 00
New Providence	18 00
Paint Lick	86 38
Perryville	27 25
Richmond	62 00
Silver Creek	16 37
Springfield	6 00
Stafford	20 00
	1,116 25
Personal	184 25
	1300 50

Pby of West Lexington.

Bethel	1 00
Carrolton	12 00
Cherry Spring	26 55
Clear Creek	37 00
Frankfort	222 97
Georgetown	5 00
Harmony	28 00
Hopewell	48 00
Horeb	65 00
Lexington 1st	74 50
do 2d	258 75
Nicholasville	105 00
Salem	16 00
Versailles	28 00
Walnut Hill	18 00
Winchester	49 80
Woodford	12 00
	1007 57
Personal	120 00
	1127 57

Pby of Ebenezer.

Augusta	12 00
Burlington	50 00
Carlisle	6 00
Covington 1st	82 52
Crittenden	11 00
Flemingsburg	79 60
Greenup Union	5 00
Maysville	159 70
Millersburg	7 50
Paris Church	120 60
Sharpsburg	19 00
Sharon	13 00
Washington	31 00
	596 92
Presbyterial	40 70
Personal	13 00
	650 62

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Greenbrier.

French Creek	5 00
Kanawha Salines Church	15 00
Lewisburg	20 62
Oak Grove	5 00
Parkersburg	35 00
Point Pleasant	25 00
	105 62

Pby of Lexington.

Augusta	25 00
Bethany	2 25
Bethel	33 00
Bethesda	15 00
Carmel	19 10
Fairfield	12 50
Goshen	4 75
Hebron	13 00
Mossy Creek	19 25
New Monmouth	7 12
New Providence	59 00
Pisgah	3 00
Staunton	50 45
Timber Ridge	13 00
Tinkling Spring	42 48
Union	14 50
Waynesboro	13 75
	347 15
Presbyterial	47 30
Personal	23 50
	417 95

Pby of Winchester.

Alexandria 1st	80 00
Berryville	10 00
Charlestown	42 50
Falling Water	45 00
Fredericksburg	31 00
Louisville	26 00
Martinsburg	2 50
Romney	53 59
Salem	11 25
Winchester	100 00
Tr.of Pby—chs.not given	216 65
	618 49
Personal	5 00
	623 49

Pby of West Hanover.

Amherst	25 00
Bethesda	17 75
Bluestone	17 06
Briery	18 10
Buffalo	61 50
Charlottesville	30 50
College	93 92
Cumberland	56 13
Farmville	29 68
Finney Wood	48 85
Halifax	18 25
Lebanon	13 00
Little Concord	5 00
New Store	7 25
Old Concord	20 00
Peaks & New London	10 00
Scottsville	23 15
Trinity	20 00
Village	27 80
Walker	12 00
	554 22
Legacy	50 00
Presbyterial	42 46
Personal	20 68
	667 36

Pby of East Hanover.

Norfolk	137 87
Nottaway	30 00
Petersburg 1st	303 51
Portsmouth High St.	5 00
Richmond 1st	110 60
Richmond 2d Church	50 00
Smithfield	7 00
	643 98

Pby of Montgomery.

Bell Spring	3 00
Covington	4 00
Falling Spring	23 00
Fincastle	7 50
High Bridge	10 00
Jacksonville	9 00
Locust Bottom	10 00
Mountain Union	9 25
	75 75

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Orange.

Alamance	45 50
Bethel	6 00
Bethlehem	38 50
Buffalo	14 00
Chapel Hill	41 75
Clarkesville	51 00
Graham	6 75
Grassy Creek	16 00
Greensboro'	54 35
Harmony	1 00
Lexington	10 10
Madison	20 25
Milton	30 00
New Bern	32 00
New Hope	5 00
Oxford	20 00
Pennel	16 00
Raleigh	103 50
Shiloh	11 50

Spring Garden Church	17 83
Spring Grove	3 00
Spring Hill	34 50
	578 53
Presbyterial	61 58
Personal	55 00
	695 11

Pby of Fayetteville.

Antioch	6 50
Ash Pole	15 65
Barbacue	7 80
Bethel	12 35
Bluff	9 71
Buffalo	15 00
Centre	9 60
China Grove	24 00
Euphronia	13 00
Grove (Duplin)	21 00
Laurel Hill	11 50
Lumber Bridge	5 77
Long Street	6 00
Philadelphus	2 15
Rockfish Factory	8 00
Sardis	15 80
South River	5 40
Wilmington	78 50
	266 73
Presbyterial	18 92
	285 65

Pby of Concord.

Back Creek	25 00
Bethel	12 00
Bethpage	11 65
Centre	31 00
Charlotte	37 00
Concord Town	14 85
Ebenezer	4 25
Fourth Creek and Bethesda	27 00
Hiawassee	5 18
Machpelah	18 00
Mallard Creek	24 25
Marion	8 00
Morganton	25 00
Paw Creek	40 00
Pleasant Hill	25 75
Poplar Tent	27 20
Prospect	23 00
Providence	32 05
Ramah	17 00
Rocky River	59 25
Salisbury	49 00
Sharon	16 00
Steel Creek	79 35
Sugar Creek	39 00
Tabor	3 00
Taylorsville	21 57
Third Creek	25 75
Thyatira	10 00
Unity (Lincoln)	37 75
Wilkesboro	3 00
	801 85
Personal	18 00
	819 85

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Holston.

New Providence	10 20
Rogersville	14 80
Salem	25 00
	50 00

Pby of Nashville.

Clarksville	245 70
Gallatin	50 00
Harpeth	3 00
Hermitage	30 05
Smyrna	18 63
	347 38

Pby of Tuscumbia.

Florence	90 00
Tuscumbia	25 00
	115 00

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pby of South Carolina.

Presbyterial	37 50

Pby of Bethel.

Bethel	30 50
Bethesda	40 00
Catholic	1 00
Fairforest	10 00
Hopewell	20 00
Lancasterville	9 00
Pleasant Grove	7 00
Purity	20 00
Yorkville	25 15
	162 65

Pby of Harmony.

Treas. of Pby—chs. not given	158 70

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.

Pby of Georgia.

Bryan Neck	50 00
Midway	231 42
Mount Vernon	23 00
Pleasant Grove	25 00
	329 42

Pby of Hopewell.

Athens	157 93
Clarkesville	23 00
Macon	166 15
Treas. of Pby—chs. not given	135 50
	482 58

Pby of Flint River.

Albany	15 00
Alcovia	3 95
Americus	28 00
Bethany	12 50
Columbus	126 35
Columbus 1st	67 56
Decatur Church	16 50
Ephesus	22 50
East Newton	25 00
Ebenezer	10 00
Emmaus	10 00
Fairview	13 00
Greenville	4 00
Griffin	10 00
Hopewell	18 30
La Grange	44 10
Long Cane	5 55
Mt. Tabor	20 00
Muscogee	7 20
Newnan	10 00
Perry	5 00
Smyrna	4 85
West Point	21 50
Zebulon	3 00
	503 86

Pby of Florida.

Bainbridge	3 60
Euchee Valley	6 50
Marianna	13 25
Tallahassee	35 75
	59 10

Pby of Cherokee.

Dahlonega	7 75
Lafayette	8 20
Pea Vine	8 00
Rome	23 60
Roswell	59 45
	100 70

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.

Pby of South Alabama.

Centre Ridge	10 10
Treas. of Pby—chs. not given	300 00
	310 00

Pby of East Alabama.

Wetumpka	35 00

Pby of Talladega.

Marble Spring	50 00
Talladega	35 00
	85 00

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.

Pby of Mississippi.

Bethel	195 00
Canton	82 75
Ebenezer	15 50
Grand Gulf	15 00
Jackson	106 00
Natchez	203 50
Pine Ridge	119 20
Port Gibson	159 00
Providence & Pecan Grove	52 00
Rodney	20 00
Vicksburg	50 00
	1017 95

Pby of Louisiana.

Plaquemine	26 70
Personal	130 00
	156 70

Pby of Tombeckbee.

Aberdeen	19 00
Columbus	121 10
Kosciusco	27 58
Louisville	6 50
	174 18
Presbyterial	110 55
	284 73

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.

Pby of Arkansas.

Batesville	78 05
Helena	10 00
Little Rock	74 00
Port Smith	84 10
Pine Bluff	6 00
Van Buren	84 70
	336 85
Personal	23 00
	359 85

Pby of Ouachita.

Eldorado	42 65
Lapile	60 00
Mt. Holly	100 00
Scotland	32 50
	235 15

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.

Pby of Western District.

Brownsville Church	33 00
Jackson	50 00
Shiloh	25 25
	108 25
Personal	4 25
	112 50

Pby of Chickasaw.

Harmony	27 90
Holly Springs	134 85
Oxford	70 00
Pontotoc	32 00
Water Valley	17 35
Zion	24 50
	306 60

Pby of Memphis.

Bethel	18 00
Covington	25 00
Emmaus	150 00
Germantown	34 00
Memphis 1st	107 00
do 2d	100 00
Mt. Carmel	70 00
Portersville	32 00
Ramah	6 00
Salem Church	45 75
Somerville	100 00
	687 75
Personal	22 00
	709 75
Synodical	59 50

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Brazos.

Austin	18 00

Pby of Eastern Texas.

Palestine	5 25

Pby of Western Texas.

Lavacca Church	5 00
Victoria	22 00
	27 00

SYNOD OF THE PACIFIC.

Pby of California.

Benicia 1st	83 60

Pby of Oregon.

Clatsop	48 30

Synopsis of preceding statement.

Synod of Albany	$2,854 03	Synod of North Carolina	1,800 61
" Buffalo	1,038 44	" Nashville	512 38
" New York	13,435 19	" South Carolina	358 85
" New Jersey	4,281 52	" Georgia	1,481 96
" Philadelphia	10,071 28	" Alabama	430 00
" Pittsburgh	3,840 97	" Mississippi	1,459 38
" Wheeling	2,325 00	" Arkansas	595 00
" Ohio	1,107 98	" Memphis	1,188 35
" Cincinnati	2,178 64	" Texas	50 25
" Indiana	1,848 01	" Pacific	131 90
" North'n Indiana	787 77		$63,101 03
" Illinois	1,479 95	Miscellaneous	7,755 08
" Wisconsin	169 79	Legacies	4,240 39
" Iowa	153 14		* $75,096 50
" Missouri	1,165 71
" Kentucky	5,820 78
" Virginia	2,534 15

* Note.—$111.30 after having been received for Domestic Missions, and so acknowledged, was by the contributors ordered to other accounts: and this reconciles the disagreement between the foregoing statement and the Report on the "State of the Treasury."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of June, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry.—Antrim ch	$1 29
Pby of Albany.—Charlton ch	10 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Bath First ch	80 00
Pby of Buffalo City.—Bethany Centre ch	7 65

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Long Island.—Huntington ch 18; Islip and Huntington chs 9	27 00
Pby of New York.—Scotch ch New York, cash coll 265 85, from Mrs Johnston 100, John T Johnston 100, Jas B Johnston 100, Samuel Cochran 100, Wm Post 62 50, A Robertson Walsh 50, Robert Carter & Bros 50—in all 828 35; Astoria ch 113 50; Brooklyn 1st ch 778 12; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch N Y, from a member 5; Brooklyn 2d ch addl 5; Newtown ch L I 48 50; Jamaica ch, of which 20 a thank-offering for the hopeful conversion of a son 122	1901 07

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Passaic.—Second ch Elizabethtown	154 20
Pby of West Jersey.—Cold Spring ch, of which 16 from the Sab schools	60 00
Pby of Newton.—Hackettstown ch 32 28; Blairstown ch 40	72 28
Pby of Raritan.—Clinton ch	20 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Central ch Phila, from Jas Boyles 50; North ch Phila, from Robt Wallace 5; Tenth ch Phila, from a member 10	65 00
Pby of New Castle.—Slateville ch 50; Pequa ch 41	91 00
Pby of Baltimore—Aisquith st ch, Balt. from Moses Hyde	1 75
Pby of Carlisle.—Carlisle ch, from James Hamilton, Esq, in part to con ANDREW BLAIR an hon mem 30; Petersburg ch 13	43 00
Pby of Huntingdon.—Little Valley ch, from Mrs Jane B Long	50 00

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Cherry Tree ch addl	13 00
Pby of Clarion.—Beechwoods ch	15 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of New Lisbon.—Deerfield ch for the coloured people South 21; Newton ch 4	25 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion.—Liberty ch 6; Eden ch 2 53; Salem ch 6 50; Richland ch 3 05; York ch 6 25; Upper Sandusky ch 16; Bowling Green ch 3; Union ch 2 71; Bucyrus ch 5; Iberia ch 2 50; Pisgah ch 3 50; Brown ch 3 40; Kingston ch 3; Marysville ch 12	75 44
Pby of Zanesville.—Brownsville ch 18; Hebron ch 9	27 00
Pby of Richland.—Mt Vernon ch, from Wm Shannon	2 50
Pby of Coshocton.—Hayesville ch 14; Valley ch 8; Mount Eaton ch 7; Berlin ch 4 33	33 33

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria.—French Grove ch	4 40

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Winnebago.—De Pere ch	5 65

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Winchester.—From sundry chs, per Treas. of Pby	295 48
Pby of West Hanover.—Draft on said Presbytery	1000 00
Pby of Montgomery.—From sundry chs per Treas. of Presbytery	300 00

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Maury.—Zion ch	20 00

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Bethel.—Bethesda ch	30 00

SYNOD OF THE PACIFIC.

Pby of Stockton.—Benicia 1st ch, California 62 25, less exchange 1 80	60 45
	$4491 49

MISCELLANEOUS.

J Brewster, Esq, Shirleysburg, Pa 50; Mrs Jane Rose, Phila 10; Chandler Ward, Franklindale, Pa 75 cts; Mrs Martha Drake, Clarkson, N Y 5; Old balance from the Southwark Bank 143 41; Elbridge G Burr, French Creek Va 50 cts; Eliza E Townsend, Painted Post N Y 25; Philadelphia Society of Nassau Hall, Princeton N J 5	239 66

LEGACIES.

Legacy in part of Wm Hay, dec'd, of Mich 253 42, less exchange 1 27=252 15; Legacy in part of John Gilcrest, of Washington co, Pa, per Treasurer of the Gen Assembly 354 36; Legacy in part of Wm Woods, dec'd, of Stewartsville, Pa 39 18, less exchange 13 cts=39 05	645 56
Total,	$5376 71

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 Box from the Ladies of Oswego ch N Y, valued at	100 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Frankford ch Pa, valuation not given.
1 Box from the Ladies of the 2d Presbyterian ch, Washington City, valued at	50 00

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of June, 1854.

Pby of Genesee River.—Sparta 1st ch, for the 1st ch Fort Winnebago, Wisconsin 30; Bath 1st ch, from a Lady, for 1st ch Fort Winnebago, Wisconsin 200	230 00
Pby of New York.—Scotch ch N Y, cash coll 162, from Jas B Johnston 100, John T Johnston 100, Wm Post 62 50, Robert Carter & Bros 50	474 50
Pby of New Brunswick.—Titusville ch, for 1st ch Fort Winnebago, Wisconsin 30 50; Pennington ch, for 1st ch Fort Winnebago, Wis 73	103 50
Pby of Newton.—Greenwich ch	18 00
Pby of Raritan.—United 1st and 2d chs of Amwell, for the 1st ch Fort Winnebago, Wis	32 00
Pby of Philadelphia.—Sixth ch Phila 50; Tenth ch Phila, addl from Mrs Hoge 10	60 00
Pby of Huntingdon.—Little Valley ch, from Mrs Jane B Long	200 00
	$1118 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Two Friends," New Jersey, for the 1st ch Fort Winnebago, Wis 10; "Eugenia M." 2	12 00

LEGACY.

Legacy of Wm Brown, dec'd, of Tenn, for New Providence and Rogersville chs Tenn	207 00
Total,	$1337 00

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of June, 1854.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Ohio.—Mt Carmel ch, Mrs A McD 2, J W 50 cts, H R 50 cts	$3 00
Pby of Clarion.—Licking ch	3 67
Pby of Beaver.—Westfield ch 27; Newcastle ch 60	87 00
Pby of Allegheny.—Ladies of Scrubgrass ch 4 86; Tarentum ch 16 60	21 46
Pby of Blairsville.—Plum Creek and Parnassus chs 1 50; Warren 3 93; Concord 13	18 43
Pby of Erie.—Salem ch	5 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of St Clairsville.—Woodsfield ch 6 06; Beach Spring 31	37 00
Pby of New Lisbon.—East Liverpool ch	10 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Hon Wm Curill 10	10 00

LEGACY.

Legacy of Robert Devling	100 00
Total,	$295 56

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Reported for the Home and Foreign Record.

EDUCATION DEBATE IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

[We give up our space to the debate in the last General Assembly, on the Education question. The resolutions, which were published in the last number of the Record, were carried with great unanimity, the negatives being few in number.]

Dr. R. J. Breckinridge, of West Lexington Presbytery commenced by saying that he had two or three general remarks to make on this important subject. 1. In the first place, there was a very strong impression on his mind that the work of preparing candidates for the ministry was the great work of the Board of Education. Every other interest was subordinate and collateral. However important general education might be, the work of training candidates to preach the word of God was the original basis of the operations of the Board, and was still, in his judgment, the main work. 2. In the second place, there was danger of weakening the operations of the Church in ministerial education just in proportion to the addition of other interests to this department. Diverse operations are unfavourable to enterprise and success. One of the reasons why there has been a diminution of candidates was, that general education had been superadded to the original object of the Board. This was his own private conviction. 3. In the third place, Dr. Breckinridge said that he was very reluctant to have the Church agitated by a controversy about ecclesiastical supervision in education. The great mass of our people, especially elders and intelligent laymen, were opposed to separating the Presbyterian Church from the education movement of the day. In his opinion, such separation would be disastrous in the extreme, and ought not to take place. Nevertheless he was willing to have the Church conduct institutions of her own, provided it would not be considered disloyal to her authority for those who entertained different opinions, to continue to act in favour of the State system. Dr. Breckinridge concluded with some complimentary remarks to the Corresponding Secretary of the Board.

Judge Fine, of Ogdensburg Presbytery, N. Y., said that it was due to the Presbyterian Church to maintain distinctly and emphatically three points connected with educational operations. These were, 1st. Our ministry must be an educated ministry. Presbyterians never had any sympathy with a ministry that was unprepared to do God's work among all classes of society. 2d. Education for the ministry must not be conducted on a superficial basis, but must be thorough. A mere smattering of learning was dangerous. The Church did not want superficial men. She wanted men learned in the Scriptures and acquainted with human nature; and amidst all other attainments, a knowledge of the ancient languages and of philosophy was pre-eminent. Of course piety was the first of all acquisitions; but he was now speaking of the intellectual, and not the moral, qualifications of the ministry. 3dly. The Board of Education could not do the work of the Church properly, unless it attended to the early education of our youth. We must look to the under strata, and not confine ourselves merely to the upper rocks. A true view of education, as of geology, includes a survey of the whole field. Our children and youth must be attended to in schools, academies and colleges as well as in theological seminaries. With this brief statement of some general principles, Judge Fine said that he heartily approved of the resolutions before the Assembly.

Silas Holmes, Esq., of the New York Presbytery, remarked that among the chief duties of the Church was the training of children. The Bible laid down the rule, and that rule was to train them religiously. No other sort of training came up to the requirements of God. The Bible not only gave the precept, it gave examples to illustrate what it taught. The case of Samuel was full of instruction. Our candidates for the ministry would not be so few, if the church had mothers like Hannah. The time of beginning education was in infancy; and mothers were the first and best instructors of children. Character is commonly moulded in its main features at the age of seven years. If children are not then under good discipline, there was a fearful probability that their evil nature would gain the upper hand. Schools were necessary to carry on and complete the work of mothers at home; and these schools should be religious schools. A great deal was said about colleges and academies and the necessity of having our youth under religious influences in the more advanced stages of education. But, for his part, he would lay stress on the schools for early education. Let us have religious schools for the young, at any rate—parochial schools, where the Church could see that religion was properly taught.

Rev. W. J. Frazier, of Palmyra Presbytery, remarked, that the want of early Christian education cannot be fully repaired. God's plan is to begin early. "Train up a child in the way he should go." Who is to train him? If parents fail to teach religion to their children, where must we look for the supply of the deficiency? To the State? No. But to the Church of Christ. The Church has no higher duty than to take care of the young. It belongs to her to "feed the lambs." Neglected children are a woful inheritance to society, and as probationers for eternity, how awful is their condition! We need the organized instrumentality of the Church. This great work must not be left to shift for itself. We cannot do better than to train up children in God's fear. The Board must be encouraged to go forward.

Rev. D. V. McLean, D. D., of the 2d Presbytery of Philadelphia, said that the great object of the Board, was undoubtedly to look after candidates for the Ministry. The paucity of candidates, however, was not owing to the Board of Education; nor was the evil confined to our own Church. The great cause of this calamity was the defective religious training of our youth. Until the Church does more of what Dr. Breckinridge calls collateral work, our candidates cannot be expected to increase. Ministers do not favour the plans of the Board enough. There is a want of energetic co-operation, a lukewarmness in carrying on the work of religious education. Another defect is, that we take up young men too late. Dr. Alexander, used to say, that we had to educate a great many young men in order to get a few good ones. That is true. We begin too late; and besides that, the Church has too little oversight of the work. The fact is that, of late years, the Church has had very little oversight of her children. In the earlier stages of education, there had been scarcely any at all, until parochial schools came into vogue. If our youth had been brought more under the eye of the church, had been more looked after by those who had officially the charge of their religious training, if their education had been of a thorough Christian character, and under the proper sort of supervision, is it to be believed that more young men and young men of better qualifications would not have been brought in? It is not an uncommon thing to advise some of the candidates, who came to the institution with which he was connected, to go to other employments. Suppose that there was no sort of church supervision over candidates until they entered the theological Seminary; how little could be known of the character of the young men, and of their qualifications, mental and moral, for the work of the ministry. The truth is, that the Church ought from the beginning, to have more control over education. We have Sunday-schools, but where are our religious day-schools for children? There are irresponsible schools, and Roman Catholic schools, and Quaker schools; but where are our own schools, in sufficient numbers to meet our wants and to do our work? One great reason for all our deficiencies and failures, he repeated, was neglect in the early stages of education.

It has been said that a large body of our people and of our elders are opposed to the educational operations under the care of our Church. [Dr. Breckinridge here explained, and said that he had merely contended that the Presbyterian Church ought not to separate itself from the educational movement of the day, and that in his judgment many of our people were of that opinion.] Dr. McLean replied that none of us are in favour of separating from the State system. The report takes no such ground; nor do the resolutions before the Assembly. But the State system was not enough. We ought never to think of giving up the entire education of our children to the secular powers. What had made Scotland such a glorious country but the early care of her children? Her parochial schools had been her strength. If our Church were to abandon her position on education, we should be going a century backwards.

Rev. Dr. Hodge, of the New Brunswick Presbytery, remarked that it was impossible, at the present, to go into a very extended discussion. Dr. Breckinridge seemed to think that there was a radical difference of opinion on the subject of education in our Church. Dr. Hodge hoped that it was not so. Some of the former Reports of the Board were indeed adapted to produce an impression unfavorable to the State schools. But the last report [of 1853] had explained the ground on which State schools and Church schools might harmoniously co-operate; and there appeared to be a general concurrence in the correctness of those views. Dr. Hodge proceeded to state some general principles. 1. All agreed that education is absolutely necessary. The people must be taught. 2. This education, from the primary school and the academy up to the college, must be religious. Religion was not only a proper subject of education, but the work in all its stages must be conducted religiously. Our ministers and laity are opposed to the infidel principle that secular must be separated from religious education. No such separation can be made. It is impossible to exclude religion from the training of the young. Man is either good or bad, and education is either religious or irreligious. It cannot be neutral in its character. 3. The duty of education belongs to the family, to the Church, and to the State; not partly to one and partly to another, so as to absolve either of the three from the duty of inculcating religion, but education, in all its departments, belongs jointly to all parties. The parent is bound, the Church is bound, and the State is bound to educate religiously. There is an obligation everywhere to impart a moral and religious training. Every one concedes the right of the State to educate; but this does not interfere with the rights of the family, or of the Church. The family, the Church and the State are co-ordinate parties, all l ing under obligations to educate on the principles God's word. 4. When the Church finds that family and the State fail to provide the requisite k or amount of education, then the Church may interpose and provide institutions under her own care. If the State imparted the same kind of education as that given a hundred years ago, no parochial schools would have been necessary. Religion was, at that period, a regular part of education. Our Church schools owe their origin to the exclusion of religion from the public schools. When the State excludes religion, it is the duty of the Church to establish schools of her own, just as in heathen lands. Our missionaries cannot perform their missionary work hopefully, if the children are educated irreligiously, and hence they establish religious schools. The Church need not have institutions of her own, if the work be properly and sufficiently provided for elsewhere. Her agency may be regarded as supplementary. If education in the public schools was as in the olden time, our Church would not have moved in the subject. We do not desire to separate from the State. The public schools are necessary for the masses. The State has a great work to do in education. It is only when the State fails to do its duty, and when the religious education of the young cannot be so well secured, that the Church need interpose her authority. As to the question whether the Board of Education was the proper organ for the Church in this matter, that was a question of mere policy. No principle was involved; and for his part, he thought the Board could do all the work required. It was better to increase the force of the office, when necessary, than to establish a new and separate Board.

Rev. Stuart Robinson, D. D., of the Presbytery of Baltimore, said that he had but a single point to make. It is assumed that, because the State does not give the right education, therefore parochial schools are necessary. Now, he did not admit this inference. The Church was no party to education outside of the ordinances of the house of God. The Church educates by preaching the Gospel, and by making parents assume vows in the baptism of their children. Our Confession of Faith has no provision for a machinery outside of its own spiritual ordinances. The Church was a party to education in the sense of the Confession of Faith, and no farther. She was not a party to teach reading and writing any more than to teach children how to make money. [Captain Holmes here asked a question, which was not heard by the reporter. Dr. Hodge asked whether the doctrine, advanced by Mr. Robinson, did not prevent our Church from establishing schools among the heathen? No answer was understood to be returned to Dr. Hodge's question.] Mr. Robinson went on to say, that there was a distinction between superintending schools by elders and by trustees. Private schools were often necessary, and trustees might be appointed to manage them, but not by the Church. But his own experience, as a teacher, was that he would rather have no trustees at all. And least of all, did he want elders as trustees. By and by, the people would elect men as school trustees and not as elders. Christians may exercise a good influence over the schools of their neighbourhood, but to have control as a part of a Church session, was another thing; and if in this sense the Church was claimed as a party in education, he denied the position.

Dr. R. J. Breckinridge had no desire to provoke discussion, or to embarrass the action of the Assembly. He was willing to regard Dr. Hodge's views as expository of those of the Board of Education. Certainly, some of the Reports of the Board look as though they were opposed to the State schools. The mode of stating the subject had, however, been changed, and he was gratified at this. The mind of the Church was perhaps immature on some points; but if the public sentiment was becoming stronger against a withdrawal from the State schools, it was a happy thing. He had no desire to embarrass the action of the Church; but if all education was to be engulphed by an ecclesiastical movement, then he thought that the Board of Education was not the place to put that power. As Superintendent of education in the State of Kentucky, he had found his duties exceedingly onerous. But this Board was to be charged with the educational interests, elementary, classical and theological, of all the States of the Union.

Rev. Dr. Spring, of the New York Presbytery, commenced by adverting to the importance of the question, and to its claim upon the Church for mature consideration. If things were as they had been in the olden time, the subject would wear a very different aspect. It was now forced upon the Church by the change of circumstances, and he was sorry to hear it said that the Church had only a supplementary part in the work of education. The organization, which had the seal of Christ's blood, the witness of the Spirit, the everlasting truth of God, and the ordinances of grace, and which included within its fold all true believers, was not a supplementary agency. It was a great work of the Church of God, to take care of the young. The Church would flourish in proportion to her concern for her offspring. The State was formerly sanctified by the Church, and the public schools taught religion, as in Scotland. Our country is indebted to the word of God for the measure of prosperity it has enjoyed. But religion is not now taught in our schools. There is a controversy between the Church and an infidel world. What sanctified education in former times? It was the influence of the clergy, and of the pious and the good in society. But the world was fast taking education out of the hands of the Church, and claiming it as its own exclusive possession. The training of the young was gradually but surely passing away from the Church; and the State was gradually, and deceitfully, and with art, becoming the arbiter in the matter. The question was fast coming to this—whether the Church, or an infidel world, was to educate our youth. Experience, sad experience, will teach us this fact more and more. It is not surprising that public men and politicians raise a clamour against denominational education. When a Church school or academy prospers, the State school feels a jealousy, and there is a flourish of trumpets against religion. So with denominational colleges. When a college on another basis sees a Church institution flourish, it will begin to decry Church education. This is natural. For his part, he wished State institutions to have this check, and he had no doubt that the influence of religious schools and other institutions was salutary upon the State system. The Church ought to do all she can in education both personally and ecclesiastically. He hoped the Assembly would continue to approve of all that was doing in establishing schools, academies and colleges. The Church can and will take part in the work of education. He called attention to the emphasis of this remark. Yes, the Church has the power; she has the ability to train her own youth, and she must, and will, exercise her lawful influence. I regret the spirit of indifference to our new educational operations, or rather to the old operations of the Church in a new form. How long was it since the State resolved that Christianity should not be represented in the public schools? In canvassing for a Professor in a certain college, the State of New York had ordained that religion was to be no element in determining his qualifications. A few years ago, it was considered good policy to put ministers as Presidents of our colleges; but now many seem to think that it is better to have laymen. Science and literature are carrying the day, and religion is looked upon as a secondary thing. The times have changed. Let us maintain our ground as a Church, and utter our testimony against banishing religion from institutions of learning. If the State will not have religious schools, let us show the world that we will establish schools under our own care, in which religion shall be taught, as in days of old. The Church must take a bold, deliberate, immoveable stand upon this subject. Providence is compelling her to embark in the work, and she must summon up all her enterprise and piety. The Board of Education was not attempting, as Dr. Breckinridge seemed to think, to monopolize all the educational business throughout the different States. The object was simply to set up institutions where Providence seemed to demand it. Religious schools, academies and colleges ought to be founded wherever the opportunity was offered. The Board were doing a good work, and I bid them God speed. Let us encourage them in every way in our power.

Rev. J. J. Brownson, of Washington Presbytery, said that there was evidence that on all fundamental principles there was but one mind in the Church. In carrying out these principles, there might be some difference of opinion. Our position was very different from what it was fifty years ago. Formerly Presbyterians had the education of the country very much in their own hands. It was different now, especially as regards colleges. Other churches are establishing institutions of their own; and he wished them success in their efforts; but these various denominational operations placed the Presbyterian Church under a new necessity to look after her own interests. It was a grave question whether our old institutions ought not be brought into closer connexion with the Church. There were other reasons which urged a re-examination of this point; and among them was the comparative safety of denominational colleges. As I recently passed through Carlisle, I saw Dickinson College, whose halls were once adorned by the piety and talents of Nesbit, and Mason, and McKnight, and Neill, and Davidson. This institution, which was established by the prayers and the money of Presbyterians, has now become alienated from us. Other instances of perversion might be named. Under the pressure of the times, it is a grave question whether we shall lose our place in the old institutions. Dickinson College shows the tendency of things. Influences are at work which may undermine Presbyterianism elsewhere. This, in some of its aspects, is a question of self-preservation. The power of the Church to take part in education was generally admitted, and he believed that its exercise was eminently salutary. The Board of Education was engaged in a work of immense service to the interests of religion; and the Presbyterian Church at large was prepared to maintain the principles on which these operations were conducted.

Rev. Dr. J. B. Adger, of Charleston Presbytery, denied that this was a settled question. It seemed to be regarded by some that, because the Assembly had once passed a measure, it must pass it again. He was not in favour of any further action on this subject. He did not agree that secular education formed a part of the business of Church courts. He did not deny that religion was an important part of education; but the question was, whether our Church courts had the right to engage in secular education. Even if they had the right, how could they attend to all this complicated business?

Professor J. Wilson, of West Hanover Presbytery, said that he comes from a non-ecclesiastical college—one of those institutions which the Board were willing to endure! One of the resolutions which we are called upon to pass, expresses confidence in all institutions in which religion is "duly" inculcated. If no other institutions are to be tolerated except those in which religion is "duly" taught, what is the meaning of "duly." Must the Shorter Catechism be taught? Must there be religion in every recitation? How can science be taught in a religious manner? If religion is introduced at all, how can it be done in any other than a side-way? A great deal has been said about the defects of the present system of education, but these defects have been exaggerated. Where do our ministers come from? From our ordinary schools, academies, and colleges; from such colleges as Princeton, Jefferson, Hampden Sidney. There is a good religious influence in these institutions. At this moment there is a revival of religion in Hampden Sidney College, Virginia; and even in the University of Virginia, originally founded on infidel principles, God's grace is manifesting its power. What does this mean? It shows that it is possible to have religion in other institutions besides those under the care of the Church. Private men may educate in a worthy manner. This is not a question of machinery, but of principle.

Rev. R. H. Chapman, of Talladega Presbytery, thought that now was the time for the Church to make its mark. It was a day of great opportunity, and a day that calls for the maintenance of religion in education. "Duly" means that religion is a legitimate part of education, and that as much religion must be put in as is required by "nurture in the Lord." It means that religion shall exert a decided influence upon the minds of the young. The Church is safe whilst she has a voice in the education of her children. Other institutions under private management may be good, and these are not merely "endured" or tolerated, but cordially commended to the Christian confidence of our people. God forbid that they should not prosper! He would have preferred that the resolution had stated that these institutions, and all others in which religion was "duly" taught, had our confidence, and not merely that they were "entitled" to it. But the resolution did not contemplate anything invidious. It lays down a proposition in which we all concur. As to the right of the Church to take part in education, he believed it with all his heart, and the time may come when the Church will be required to do a great deal more than she is now doing.

Paul T. Jones, Esq., of the Philadelphia Presbytery, arose to give one or two items of information. The public school system in Philadelphia, was in many respects an admirable system, but it did not exert much religious influence. The High School—an excellent institution—was supplied with its pupils from the common schools. The most distinguished scholars were selected, and admitted to the privileges of the High School, as a reward of merit. But what were the statistics, as officially published, in regard to the occupations of its graduates? Why, out of some fifteen hundred graduates, about a dozen had become ministers of the Gospel. Can much religion be inculcated, when such results confront us? I am a Director of the public schools, and can speak with confidence of their admirable management, as secular institutions. But religion is scarcely leavening the schools. A portion of the Bible is indeed read by the teacher, but what is reading a few verses as a part of religious education? The Church, of which I am a member, [Dr. Boardman's] has a missionary parochial school under its care. That school commenced with seven scholars, and now has over a hundred. It stands not far from three public schools, where the children might be taught for nothing, but so popular is the religious instruction and administration of that parochial school, that the parents, though poor, prefer sending their children to it. I am in favour of the common school system; but the absence of religion is a sore evil. There is room for parochial schools, and our Church is wise in adhering to her educational policy.

Rev. H. M. Robertson, of Winnebago Presbytery, said that there were two ways of looking at this question, and he agreed with the last speaker that the practical was the best. Wisconsin, where I live, is a State of quick developments—a sort of hot-bed, where principles show their results soon, where they crop out so that we can see and understand them. We have a State system, and many of the schools are good, but as a whole its working is irreligious and infidel. In a village, where we have a strong Presbyterian church, we tried for four years to secure a religious influence in the public school, but we were outvoted. Was it our duty to sit still? No, Mr. Moderator, we went to work, and established a school for our own. And we could not have done it without the aid of the Board of Education. And what has been the result? We have not only prospered in our own school, but our influence has caused the infidel teacher to be removed from the public school and an evangelical Christian put in his place. In the University of Wisconsin, religion is not allowed to be introduced. There is no regulation about the observance of the Sabbath, and the students may go to Church or to fishing, just as they please. Presbyterians in Wisconsin could have no sympathy with such an educational movement. Disastrous results cannot fail to follow in due time. We have taken our position. We are shut up to our own academies and college or to sending our children out of the State. The Congregationalists, Methodists, Episcopalians, Romanists, have their own separate colleges. Institutions of education may indeed be established by private individuals. But what guarantee is there that these private institutions will keep right, even if they begin right? Besides, we need system in education. If the State does not do the work, the Church must come in. Nothing can be done efficiently in so great matter, except by public management.

Rev. A. D. White, of New Brunswick Presbytery, said that the plan of parochial schools had been tried, and proved good. His own Church had tried it. The public school having failed to impart religious instruction, we felt it to be our duty and privilege to establish a school under the care of the Church. The plan has worked well, and is popular. Other denominations patronize it. The Bible is studied daily, and the Catechism is also thoroughly taught. It would be an unfortunate day for us if our school were given up. The principles of the Board of Education are right principles. We consider our school a practical test of their truthfulness.

Dr. J. C. Young, of the Transylvania Presbytery, thought that there would be unanimity in adopting the Report. The subject of education was undergoing a discussion in our Church, and right principles were working their way up. Some years ago, he did not agree to all that was in the Education Reports. They were radically right, but some expressions were wrong and needed modification. There will be a clearing up of all difficulties by degrees, and the Church will ultimately settle down in its denominational work. He did not agree to all that the Secretary of the Board had said in a public address about religious education in colleges. But these things may be amicably discussed out of doors, and not in the Assembly. We shall all doubtless agree substantially in due time, if indeed we do not already.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, JUNE, 1854.

I.—Fund for Candidates.

Presbytery of Troy.

1st United Presb ch of Cambridge 57 25, less 1 50 to Home and Foreign Record=55 75, of which 18 from the ladies for the pastor — $55 75

Presbytery of Genessee River.

Ch Moscow 7; Rev M Stewart, Bath 5 — 12 00

Presbytery of New York.

1st ch Bridgeport — 25 58

Presbytery of New York 2d.

Scotch ch collection 183; John T Johnston 100; James B Johnston 100; Wm Post 62 50=445 50, less 100 paid students — 345 50

Presbytery of Elizabethtown.

Baskingridge ch — 21 00

Presbytery of Newton.

Blairstown ch — 20 00

Presbytery of Raritan.

Clinton ch — 47 00

Presbytery of Burlington.

Allentown ch — 20 00

Presbytery of Donegal.

Chanceford ch — 4 00

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Monahan ch — 9 00

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Little Valley ch, Mrs Long — 100 00

Presbytery of Columbus.

Circleville ch — 12 59

Presbytery of Marion.

York ch 4 31; Pisgah ch 62; Marysville 8 — 12 93

Presbytery of Richland.

Ashland, Legacy of Thomas Jefferson Beers, 10; Orange ch 5; Hopewell ch 6; F L Ball, bal on Killan scholarship, and bal to const Joseph Beers hon mem 10 — 31 00

Presbytery of Miami,

Clifton ch — 26 00

Presbytery of Cedar.

Davenport ch, Iowa — 31 00

Presbytery of Montgomery.

High Bridge ch — 10 00

Presbytery of Mississipi.

1st ch Natchez 680, less exchange 5, — 675 00

Presbytery of Louisiana.

Carmel ch 20; Comite ch 2; Jackson ch 6 50 — 28 50

Presbytery of Chickasaw.

Lebanon ch 5; Sarepta ch 2; Oxford ch 1 — 8 00

Presbytery of Memphis.

Morning Sun ch 16, less exchange 32 cts — 15 68

$1510 63

LEGACIES.

From Estate of Wm Wood of Westmoreland, Pa, 236 12, less exchange of which to this Board — 78 10

MISCELLANEOUS.

John Brewster of Shirleysburgh, Pa, 30; Eliza E Townsend, Painted Post, N Y, 25 — 55 00

1643 63

Less bad bill — 5

$1638 63

II.—Fund for Schools, Colleges, &c.

Presbytery of New York.

1st ch New York (ladies of, special) — 242 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs Hocking, Batavia, N Y — 25 00

III.—Fund for Teachers, &c.

Rev T P Hunt — 10 00

Total — $1916 13

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

A WORD TO MINISTERS.

It is of great importance that the ministers of the churches should keep in view one fact, viz. that there is no agent now in the service of the Board. The liabilities of the Board for the current year are very heavy; but they can no doubt be easily met, if each brother in the ministry will see to it that the church under his charge shall have a timely opportunity of making a contribution to this work. If this is not done, the most serious embarrassment is inevitable. But the experience of the last year on this subject, contains much encouragement.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, N. Y., July 13, 1854.

Indian Missions.—Letters have been received from the Chickasaw mission, June 5th; Choctaw mission, June 7th; Seminole mission, June 5th; Otoe and Omaha mission, June 22d; Iowa, June 30th, and from the Chippewa mission, June 19th.

A church was organized at Wa-pa-nucka the latter part of March, being composed of eleven persons connected with the mission, and three Indian converts. The female school contained eighty-nine, all of whom were in the enjoyment of good health, and were prosecuting their studies to the entire satisfaction of their teachers.

Mention is made of the death of a young Creek convert by the name of Joseph Burgess, who was formerly connected with the school at Oakridge, and acted as interpreter to the missionaries there for several years. As a Christian, his conduct was always consistent and exemplary, and he died "exhorting his friends to serve God, and meet him in heaven."

The following extract from a letter of Mr. Lilley, in relation to the present state of the school at Oakridge, will be read with interest:—"Our school is doing as well as usual. Sometimes we feel very much encouraged with the children's progress and their general conduct. Much seriousness prevails at the present time, and many of the children are attending strictly to the duty of secret prayer. When I inquired this morning about one of the larger girls, who had not come down, one of the younger ones replied, 'She was praying.' I would not convey the impression that these children are Christians, or even that they act in all things as they ought; but may we not hope, by the habit of secret prayer, and other religious duties, they will be kept out of many sins which they would otherwise fall into, and be led by the Holy Spirit to trust in the Lord."

Death of Mrs. Reid.—We are under the painful necessity of announcing the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Reid, wife of Rev. Alexander Reid, of the Choctaw mission. This afflictive event occurred on the 6th of June, after a severe illness of several weeks. Her death was peaceful and happy, but her loss is most sensibly felt, not only by her bereaved consort, but by the entire mission family, and the institution at Spencer, with which she was connected, and to which all her energies were devoted, for the four last years of her life. We commend her afflicted husband, and the institution for which she laboured, to the prayerful remembrance of the people of God.

West Africa.—Letters have been received from Monrovia, April 27th; Kentucky, May 5th; Sinou, May 2d; and from Settra Kru, May 16th. Some seriousness, and other tokens of good, were manifesting themselves in the church at Monrovia. The church building at Kentucky was nearly completed. Religious services were well attended, and the number of church members was increasing. The school is also represented as in a prosperous condition. From Sinou and Settra Kru, nothing of special interest is communicated. The school at the latter place is well attended, and the natives in that region of country are now very desirous that a missionary should be sent to them. Who will go?

Siam.—The only recent intelligence from the mission at Siam, is a letter from Rev. S. Mattoon, of March 15th. Dr. House had suffered from an attack of intermittent fever, but was convalescent at the date of the letter. The other members of the mission were in the enjoyment of their usual health, but were feeling very sensibly the need of missionary help.

China.—Since our last issue, letters have been received from Canton, April 20th; from Ningpo, March 28th; and from Shanghai, April 11th. At Canton all the members of the mission were well, and were pursuing their usual labours in peace and quietness. The following notice of an aged convert at Ningpo, will be read with interest. "An old woman, who has been in Mrs. R's class for some time, I have had under special instruction for some weeks, with a view to baptism. She seems to be truly in earnest, and is by no means ashamed of the Gospel. Indeed, she has to have a day's wages deducted every Sabbath she comes to church, which is a very favourable proof of her sincerity. It is virtually paying for the privilege of keeping the Sabbath. She brought her mistress with her two weeks ago, and another woman a week since, who is a professed inquirer." Several other cases of interest are also mentioned. A good many books, including the four Gospels and three Epistles, an arithmetic, geography, history, catechism and several tracts have been printed in the Ningpo Colloquial, and are ready for circulation among the people.

Chinese in California.—On the first Sabbath in June, the Mission Church in San Francisco, was set apart for religious services. Chinese services were conducted by Mr. Speer; an English service afterwards by Dr. Scott and Messrs. Speer and Williams. This building, which includes a chapel, schoolroom, apartments for the family of the Missionary, &c., was erected at a cost of over $20,000, most of which was contributed by liberal friends in California.

India.—Our latest letters from India are Allahabad, 18th April; Futtegurh, April 20th, and Agra, May 2d. The schools at Agra had been disturbed by the prevalence of small-pox, and one of the teachers of the female school had died of the disease; it had disappeared, however, and the schools were going on as usual. Mr. Williams remarks, in relation to the male school, "Among our pupils are several who give us hopes, that we may be able some day to exert through them a directly Christian influence upon the heathen. My meaning is, that they are clever, studious, correct in all their deportment, and listen with a certain interest, which appears rather unusual, to remarks and appeals with reference to the poor idolaters around them." Mr. Owen speaks of the flourishing condition of the station at Futtehpore, under the superintendence of Gopenath. He met there a man who is in the habit of coming six miles to spend the Sabbath and attend the religious services of the day, which consists of two sermons and a Bible class. The new station at Banda, is also spoken of as in a promising state.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

It is a momentous question, and one that ought to be seriously pondered, not only by every private member of the Church, but especially by all of our ministers, whether as a Church and people, we are as heartily engaged in imparting the everlasting gospel to the perishing nations of the earth, as we ought, and as the Saviour requires us to be. The question is not, whether we are doing anything, for much is being done, whereof we ought to be truly thankful; but the question is, whether we come up to the full standard of duty, and are employing energetically the multiplied talents that have been conferred upon us, in meeting the exigencies brought about by the providence of God in the condition of these nations. The duty and the obligation of the Church to do all she can for the universal spread of the gospel among mankind, are too obvious and well understood at the present day to need any special discussion. All who hear the gospel preached, or are in the habit of reading their Bibles, know that the Saviour has commanded his gospel to be carried into all nations, and preached to every creature. No one is entirely ignorant of the deep degradation and ignorance into which the heathen nations of the earth have fallen, or the wonderful success which has attended the efforts that have been made to enlighten their minds and raise them up from the mire of sin and pollution, into which they have sunk. Fresh proofs are afforded us almost every day, that the minds and hearts of the heathen, debased as they may be, are as susceptible of religious impressions, and may as easily be brought into the true fold of Christ, as any other people on the face of the earth.

As the Church has buckled on her armour, and gone forth to the task assigned her by the Saviour, difficulties which were once thought insurmountable, and which were pleaded by many as an excuse for not engaging in it at all, have melted away like wax, and vanished like the morning cloud.

Countries and nations which were once effectually sealed up, and denied all access to the messengers of mercy, have been thrown wide open by the hand of God; and facilities are now afforded for reaching those countries, and making known the gospel there, that could scarcely have been imagined a few years ago. And not only have India, and China, and Africa, and other parts of the world been thrown open to us, but the minds of the people in these various countries have been prepared, in a wonderful manner, for those great changes which the gospel is inevitably destined to effect among them. The African is fast loosing confidence in the virtues of his fetishes, and shows an unexpected readiness to embrace the gospel, whenever it has been made known to him. The Hindu does not now confide in his Shastres, as he once did, and he is manifesting a desire for change and revolution, even before he is made acquainted with the gospel. The Chinese, worn out with the absurdities and bewildering darkness of Budhism, and other forms of idolatry, are set in motion by the first rays of gospel light that have fallen upon their minds, and we see them moving forward, en masse as it were, in search of that greater light from which these first rays have emanated. Many of the Indian tribes of our own country are convinced that they must now choose between Christianity and civilization on the one hand, and utter extinction as a race on the other; and they are not only stretching out their hands to us for help, but their recent progress in improvement is such as to show that they may be rescued from ruin, both in this world and the world to come. And not less encouraging are the tokens of good that are to be seen among those of our fellow-men who have bowed down so long under the power of antichrist. Among these the kingdom of Christ is coming, not with pomp and show, but with great power nevertheless.

Now, in view of all these facts, it may be asked, whether our Church is acting up to the full standard of duty? Is she acting up to the command of the Saviour, or the exigencies of the times? Is she fulfilling her obligations to the heathen in proportion to the resources and prosperity which God has bestowed upon her as a Church? Is she doing in this great cause what other branches of the Christian Church are doing?

The opportunities now offered to do good to those of our fellow-men who have so long sat in the region and shadow of death, are very precious, and we ought to regard it as a most precious privilege, as well as a most solemn duty, to maintain a leading position in this great work of mercy. And what our hands find to do, ought to be done with all our might. We ought to work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man will be able to work.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

REPORT OF THE GIRLS' BOARDING-SCHOOL, CORISCO.

The following report of the female boarding-school at Corisco, under the care of Mrs. Mackey, was written a few days previous to the disastrous fire at that place. We trust it will be resumed soon, but would commend, in the mean time, this little scattered flock to the prayers of all who love the cause of Christian missions.

Another year of the girls' boarding-school at Evangasimba is about to close, and I sit down to give you some account of it. You have received on a former occasion some notice of the first year of the school. The second year commenced in April, 1853. We had then eleven girls and we have admitted three since, making the whole number fourteen. Eight of these could read in the Testament at the commencement of the year, and are steadily improving—four of the others can read in the first reader, two are spelling in words of two and three letters. Our morning exercises in school continue from eight until half-past ten.

In the afternoon we meet in the school-room to sew. Most of the girls can sew with neatness and speed, and some of them are now beginning to cut out and fit garments themselves. The larger ones begin to assist the smaller ones, which makes the afternoon exercise much easier for me than formerly. They can make all their own clothes with a little assistance from me. They have also made some small quilts for their own beds, besides making a number of shirts and other garments for the boys and men who are employed in the mission. They have also learned to wash and iron clothes for themselves and the boys who live here.

They have been slowly, but gradually increasing in the knowledge of religious things. They have been daily instructed in religious truth in the day-school and in the Sabbath-school. They learned readily to repeat the answers to the Catechism which Mr. Mackey has prepared in their own language. They always appear delighted, when a plate or engraving of any Bible scene is exhibited, and can generally relate what they hear in connexion with it. I accompany them every night to their bed-room when they retire. I first taught them to repeat the little prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep," which is translated into Benga. They also repeat the Lord's prayer in English. I try to make them understand that repeating these is not really praying. But that they must offer up their own thoughts and desires. Some of them say they do this, and they are all very careful never to omit repeating the Lord's prayer every night. On one occasion after having talked with them longer than usual, I forgot their prayers and was about leaving the room, when several of them spoke at once, "Mamma, we not prayed yet." They have also learned a number of Hymns, which they can repeat and sing without a book; these they learned by repeating them after me each night, one verse at a time, until they knew them. They can now repeat about sixteen, which they have learned in this way, among which are, "Rock of ages cleft for me," "O that the Lord would guide my ways," "Jesus, and shall it ever be," &c. They are fond of singing. On Sabbath days they often sit down together in their own room and sing over these hymns. They are beginning to understand now a little of what they hear and read in English. They ask a great many questions about the meaning of words, and often ask me to explain passages of Scripture which they have been reading. It is their constant practice every Sabbath night when we set down in their bed-room, for the larger ones to begin and tell me everything they can remember of the discourse at church and Sunday-school, and the evening lecture, and they can relate the substance of all they have heard during the day.

They have exhibited, for some months past, more seriousness and attention to the subject of religion than formerly. Last Sabbath night one of them in telling what she heard at church, said among other things, "Mr. Mackey said the missionaries feel sorry when they see people break God's law, and love to do their own fashions more than what God tells them." I asked them if they did not feel sorry too, when they saw women go out to fish, or do other work on the Sabbath, and some of these women too their own mothers? One little girl said, "I told my mamma, she ought not to work on her farm on Sunday." Another said, "We told some women long time ago it was bad to go catch fish on Sunday, but they dont regard what we say." Another said, "I told my mamma there are six days to work, but Sunday you must not work, it is God's day." At one time after reproving them for some misconduct, I asked them what is the reason girls do what is bad more than good. One of them replied, "Because our hearts are bad and devil tempts us."

Their conduct is generally good, and most of the misdemeanors they have committed, have been caused by the evil influence of their connections.

Some of my happiest hours here have been spent with them at night, sitting on their little bamboo bed. It is then they feel at perfect liberty to say what they think, and to ask me any questions they please; and though they have sometimes asked idle ones, they have also asked some that were very important.

A few nights ago one of them requested me to tell her how to pray by herself for a new heart. She said she had a dream about the place that burns with fire and brimstone, and she feared much because she had a bad heart. One of the others some weeks ago requested Mrs. Williams to tell her how to pray alone. Mr. Williams has commenced a course of instruction occupying two evenings in the week for the boys and girls of the schools. He uses for his Text-book, "Truth made Simple" by Dr. Todd.

They are greatly delighted, and I trust they will be much benefited. There is a great variety of character among them, but their general failing is want of stability. They are very susceptible to impressions of both good and bad. While they are with us, they show a disposition to do what we tell them is good, but when they are with their own people they seem to be alike easily influenced to evil. On this account we separate them as much as possible from their people. We permit them to see their mothers, and other near connexions in the public room of the mission-house; but we never, unless there is special reason for it, allow them to go to town or give them permission to be absent over night.

INDIA: LODIANA MISSION.

JOURNAL OF REV. J. M. JAMIESON.

A Brahman School—Distribution of books among the scholars.

January 23d, Perek.—Rode nine miles this morning to this place. No villages on the way, and grain scarce. Found my tent pitched near the village, and on the bank of a large pool of water. Close by, there were several temples. In one of these there was a school of some twenty Brahman boys, taught by a Pundit in all the mysteries of the Sanscrit Grammar. Schools being in my line, I resolved to pay the young votaries of science a visit, and approached the door where they were poring over their books; but, unaccustomed to the odd figure of a specimen of civilization in hat and pantaloons, and ignorant of my sympathies with their pursuit, they all bolted through a back passage, and left the master and me in possession of the temple, books, wooden slates and all. The poor Pundit, in his fright, at first denied that he was guilty of teaching school; but when I told him to be comforted, that I was a veritable padre of his craft, he confessed that the cravings of his stomach obliged him to teach a school, and intimated that the same cause must have driven me to the same extremity. When the scholars saw that I was on friendly terms with the Pundit, they cautiously returned, one by one, and took their places. I asked them a few questions relative to their studies, and, like many another conductor of school examinations, looked wise, and astonished them with my profound knowledge of the A B C's of their sacred language. From this not very appropriate introduction, I proceeded to explain the elementary principles of a higher knowledge. This done, I gave the Pundit and each of the scholars a suitable book, with which they were much pleased. From the school I went to the bazar, where I found a large and attentive audience, but no readers.

Style of building—Deep wells.

A remarkable feature in this part of the country, is the absence of mud houses. The towns and villages are built of burnt brick, and have a substantial and comfortable appearance. This is accounted for by the fact that the whole country is covered with a coarse grass, which is much used in burning bricks. They only cost here a rupee per eight thousand, while in Ambálá we pay a rupee a thousand. Another peculiarity of the district is the great depth of the wells. Water is usually found, near rivers, within twenty feet of the surface of the ground; while here, where there are no streams of water, wells have to be sunk from eighty to a hundred and twenty-five feet. In the sandy desert, a few miles to the south-west, water cannot be found at any depth.

Deserted palace—Immense fort.

24th—Kyntal—Distance six miles; road good; cultivation scanty. I am again nicely housed in another deserted and lapsed palace of the late unfortunate Rajah of this place. This was his permanent residence, and is larger than the one in Pohoa. It stands on a piece of nearly square masonry, which jets out some hundred feet into a small lake. The building occupies about two-thirds of this space, and is three stories high. The materials and style are similar to those of the one described above. In front of the palace, and across the lake, is a splendid fort, rising up some hundred feet from the edge of the water, and covering several acres of ground. It is composed of burnt brick, laid in a cement of lime and brick dust, and surmounted with towers adorned with marble, plaster, and stucco. In time of peace, these towers were the residences of the queens. From them, occult passages lead down to the secret baths, constructed in the margin of the lake, for the use of the invisible ladies. The whole has a very imposing and impregnable appearance. The city contains about twenty thousand inhabitants, and gives many tokens of prosperity.

The place formerly governed by a Mussulman—Passed into the hands of the Sikhs, and then into British possession.

The country, which bears the same name, was, sixty years ago governed by a Mohammedan Sirdar, named Inaiat Khan. He was the last of the Mussulman dynasty. Becoming unpopular with his subjects, who were chiefly Sikhs, they invited him to a conference, when a wealthy landholder, named Desu Singh, who had once been a barber, in order to provoke the Sirdar to a quarrel, asked him to let him have his hookah to smoke. As was expected, the Sirdar, resented the insult, and was immediately stabbed by the barber, and died on the spot. Desu Singh then seized the reins of government, and established a Sikh dynasty, which lasted till the death of the late Rajah, twelve years ago, when it became a part of the British empire. As soon as the civil authorities in Ambala heard of his demise without direct heirs, one of their number was sent, with a few horsemen as a guard, to take possession of the country in the name of the Hon. Company; but the widowed queens felt no disposition to leave their airy towers and dark walks at the bidding of a British agent, and prepared to contest their rights. They had never heard the continuous roll of the drum, sending the notes of "God save the Queen" round the globe every twenty-four hours, nor of the empire "on which the sun never sets." They thought they had as good a right to reign in the land of their fathers, as Queen Victoria had in her little island. Their voice was, therefore, for war. A body of horse sallied out of the fort, and attacked the agent's camp. Their leader was killed, and a parley ensued. The Englishman and his guard behaved bravely, but were outnumbered, and fled to Ambala. The brave queens' victory was complete, but of short duration. British troops, with all the implements of war, were poured into their dominions by thousands, and their fort besieged. In the meantime, however, their majesties had secured their treasures and jewels, and had left for ever the home of their better days, and throne of their deceased husband. They fled with their female attendants, some on asses and mules, and some on foot, to seek protection in the territory of a neighbouring Rajah; but he, being in alliance with the British government, and at liberty to do what they permit him, refused to receive them. Worn out in body, and dejected in mind, they sat down on their own bank of a river which forms the boundary between his possessions and theirs, and patiently awaited their doom. They were soon in the power of their dominant foes, who treated them as queens, and graciously pardoned the indiscretion they had committed, in resisting the annexation. Two of the queens have since died, the third resides in the fort at Pahoa. In such cases, self-administered poison often cuts short the time of life.

Preaching at a Bazar—Distribution of books—People want a School.

Went to the bazar to-day twice, and found many hearers. All listened attentively, and but few objections were made. Also gave away many books. Several respectable persons besought me to establish a school in Kyntal, and promised me at least two hundred scholars. There was, for several years after the country lapsed to the English, a civil station here. Many of the youth had been employed in the courts as writers, and thus acquired a taste for learning. The station was a few years ago removed to Taneswar, which is nearer the centre of the district.

Monkeys and pigeons tenants of a palace.

25*th*.—Rained all night. Have spent this day in the same place. Was much disturbed in the night by scores of monkeys and pigeons, which had taken shelter in the palace from the rain. I endeavoured to catch a young monkey to take home to my boys, but it was too nimble for me. My cook, however, succeeded in entrapping a fine half-grown one, and having fastened a rope around its neck, and tied it to a stake, he thought he had secured it. It cried bitterly, which brought many others to its rescue; and while we were amusing ourselves with their ludicrous attempts to frighten us from our prey, they bit the rope asunder, and carried off the captive in triumph. I succeeded better with the pigeons. Having, early in the morning, darkened all the windows in the great hall, except one pane of glass, the bewildered birds all flew to it. Beside this, I stood, staff in hand, and laid as many on the floor, hors de combat, as served me for a dinner. Little did the luxurious Rajah and his jewelled queens think, a few years ago, that an antipode republican would so soon occupy their throne-room, and catch monkeys and kill pigeons in their palace! Sic transit gloria mundi.

Conversation with Brahmans—Distribution of books.

Had a large crowd of Brahmans all day in the palace-yard, calling out for books. Distributed a good many, and talked to them as often and as long as my voice would serve me. One venerable grey-bearded pundit and astronomer, who was busy counting his beads mechanically, did not want to hear anything on the subject of religion. He knew all about that. He wished to discuss his favourite study, and asked me a number of pertinent questions, which I answered to his satisfaction, and then ran him ashore on some of the absurdities of his system. Could I believe that the tracts and portions of God's word, which have been here distributed by me on this occasion, would be carefully and prayerfully read, I might hope that a blessing would attend my labours. But we must cast our bread on the waters. It shall be found after many days.

Conversation with a profane heathen—Caravan of Camels.

26*th*.—Thik, a small village, seven miles from Kyntal. Went to the bazar twice, and had a small audience each time. Met with no readers. An old man, who was the chief speaker, and who had a high opinion of his own piety and talents, interlarded his speech with so much profane and obscene language, and was, withal, so jocular on serious subjects, that I was obliged to reprove him severely. I told him he had grown old in iniquity, and that the frost of years, which had silvered his head, indicated that his course was nearly run, and exhorted him to prepare to meet his God. He grew more serious, and seemed ashamed of his conduct. On my return to my tent, I passed a caravan, consisting of about two hundred camels, with their drivers, on their way from beyond Lahor to Merut, with a kind of grease for sale. In conversation with the chief man, he told me he was a Mussulman; that he lived with his camels in the wilderness, and was entirely dependent on them for his living. With them, he transports grain and merchandise from place to place, for which he is paid. When out of employment, and at home in the jungle, he and his family live chiefly on camel's milk. I asked him if he made butter from it. With some astonishment at the simplicity of my question, he replied, "No! Praise be to Allah! If their milk yielded butter, everybody would keep camels, and then what would the inhabitants of the jungle do?" How intimately these noble animals are associated with sacred history, and how well adapted to the habits and wants of the Eastern world! I love to see them—so patient, so gentle! With their soft, broad feet, and dreamy steps, and almost strangers to thirst, they tread the deep burning sands of the desert, unconscious of fatigue, and luxuriate on dry thorns, without any other food.

Drawing water from deep wells for irrigation.

Near my tent, is a large, deep well, from which four men and eight oxen draw water, night and day, for irrigation. It supplies about thirty acres of wheat with sufficient moisture. On two sides of the well are inclined planes of near thirty degrees, excavated from the ground, and leading down some two hundred feet from the well, and eight or ten feet wide. A large leathern bag, with an iron rim to keep the aperture from collapsing, is fastened, by a hook, on one end of a cable long enough to reach the water. The other end of the cable runs through the groove of a fixed pulley above the well, and is attached to the ox-yoke. The bag is lowered into the water, the oxen descend the plane, and raise the water-bag to the top of the well. It is there seized by a man, and dragged on to a platform, where it is emptied of its contents. This done, the cable is detached from the ox-yoke, and the process is repeated. The water is conducted to all parts of the field by small channels, in which indents are made with the feet, to give it a lateral direction.

Controversy with a Brahman.

27*th*.—8 miles.—Found my tent pitched near the village. After breakfast went to the bazar, and stopped at a grain-merchant's shop, where a few men and boys were sitting and smoking the ubiquitous hookah. I commenced a conversation with them about the price of grain, and gradually got on to the subject of redemption through Christ. A tall, rough-looking Brahman, with a strong voice, endeavoured to overwhelm me with his eloquence. I let him blow off, and then went on with my discourse, as if I had not heard his volley. I quoted some extracts from the Shastres to show that they were composed by the Brahmans for their own special benefit, and the thraldom of the people, viz. that the Brahmans are the deities of the world, and the religion of all other castes consists in serving them—that the Brahmans are superior to kings, and must not be punished for any crime, &c. The audience generally declared themselves on my side, to the great discomfort of the Brahman. One man desired me to visit his brother who had been sick for two months. I accompanied him to his house, and found the sick man suffering greatly from congestion of the liver. The poor man had depended on the nostrums and charms of the priests, until his disease had become of a serious character. I had no suitable medicines for him, but gave him a note for the English doctor at Taneswar, and directed his friends to take him immediately to that place.

Ancient City—a sacred Lake—Superstition about bathing at the time of an eclipse.

28*th*. Taneswar, 9 miles.—This is a very ancient city, and contains about twenty-five thousand inhabitants, chiefly Hindus. There is a civil station here, at which there is a Deputy and two assistant English Commissioners, a physician, and several Anglo-Indian writers. Near the city is a small lake, which is considered the most sacred of all the three hundred and sixty bathing-places in Kurakchheti, or the field of the great battle. In the lake are two islands. On one of them is a handsome new temple, connected with one on the opposite shore by a beautifully arched bridge, resting on piers, and some one hundred yards in length. The temple and bridges were built a few years ago, by the late celebrated faquir, Sarb Nath. On the other island is an old temple, connected also with the main land, by a bridge of the Saracenic order. In the Mohammedan dynasty, the temple was converted into a fort, and the bridge was built to make it accessible to troops, a number of whom were garrisoned there to prevent the Hindus bathing in the lake. The reason assigned for this preventive measure, is, that the waters communicated so much virtue to the Hindus, who bathed in it, that the Mohammedan reign was endangered by it. The English Government is not so much afraid of its virtue; they have expended large sums of money in keeping the lake supplied with water, and are making a splendid McAdamised road round it, for the benefit of the Brahmans. The propitious time for bathing is during an eclipse of the sun. When one occurs, thousands of pilgrims, from far distant places, assemble to wash away their sins. Some years ago, the Brahmans announced that on a certain day, at 12 o'clock A.M., there would be a total eclipse of the sun, and vast crowds hastened to the favoured spot. But to their astonishment, no eclipse occurred. From that day to this, not one of the Hindu astronomers could assign a cause for the failure. On making a calculation of the eclipse, I found that although the moon was, at the time, within a few minutes of the line of the nodes, its shadow fell far south of Taneswar, and, consequently, no eclipse was visible there. The meridian for which the Hindoo tables of eclipses are calculated, is said to pass through part of Ceylon, Benares, Taneswar, Agra, and Ujain. But this place is some twenty miles to the east of the meridian. Their whole system of astronomy, which is nearly the same as the Ptolemaic, is only an approximation to accuracy.

Tomb of a Mohammedan saint.

The only object of attraction in the city is the tomb of a Mohammedan saint, who gained notoriety by fasting forty days at a time, on several occasions. The main building is forty or fifty feet square, nearly the same in height, and surmounted with a large dome. It stands on an elevated square terrace, more than twice the extent of the tomb. The whole is faced with beautiful white marble slabs, handsomely finished. In the same enclosure are several mosques, which bear marks of the Goth-like disposition of the Sikhs, who sacked the city about one hundred years ago. They also spoiled the tomb of much of its beauty. It was built by the disciples of the saint shortly after his death, about two hundred years ago. The English Government have lately ordered it to be repaired, and made an appropriation of five hundred rupees for this purpose. Five thousand would not suffice.

Distribution of books.

At the bathing-place I visited several temples, talked with the Brahmans, and gave them books. They were loud in praise of the virtues of the lake, and its efficacy to wash away sin. One of them pointed triumphantly to a leaning temple, whose foundation stood in the water, and was almost undermined by it, and exclaimed, "See, even the temples do it reverence!" This was done with a view to preparing me to make them a present. The Governor-General, Commander-in-Chief, and all the nobility, they said, visited them and gave them gifts, and why should I break the custom? "And what," said I, "has become of all the gifts? They are as if they had never been. I give you books containing knowledge that will never pass away, and which, with the blessing of God, can save your souls. As literary and religious men, you should prize good books more than money. Besides, it is contrary to the religion of the true God to encourage idolatry in any way." All agreed I was right, and we parted good friends.

[To be continued.]

CHINA: NINGPO MISSION.

A LETTER FROM THE REV. J. W. QUARTERMAN.

Ningpo, March 15th, 1854.

Since the last monthly letter, the mail has brought us yours of November 28th, and the semi-monthly may possibly bring something later before this finds an opportunity to leave. We cannot interpret the dark dispensations of Providence in removing useful labourers from China, even before the recruits arrive. But those of us who remain are thankful, and still making known to the ignorant the way of life. Every day the gospel is proclaimed to some who never before thought of the subject, and to others who, we hope, by frequent hearing, will, ere long, become possessed of faith. Some who live near the chapels, and have much leisure, come in very frequently, and thus come to know much of our way of thinking and feeling. A foundation is thus laid for the action of truth, which may prove saving. One of these cases is a man who has money from rents and other resources, so that his time is almost wholly at his command, and always on Sabbaths he has been at our different chapels, for a number of years. Having no education in letters, he is yet possessed of some striking qualities. Many subjects for which others go to their books, he professes to think out. Still he is not regarded as a fit subject for baptism, though he may have sufficient knowledge, if there were evidence of a renewed nature. He is frequently present when I am addressing his countrymen, and will often exhort them himself. Very often I bring before them representations of our first parents, Cain and Abel, &c.; then this man says to them, "These Western people bring you doctrines declared in the chapels, but you will not believe them; they give you books, but you will not read them; now they bring you something to see." From the Bible alone can they learn the fact of one ancestor, and then the cause of death, and then the redemption. They seem to be struck with the death of Abel; and from this I hope many may see the real difference between the good men of this world and the believer. The frequent exhibition of apparatus from the West will remove the prejudices so long inherent here. And darkening the room even, will tend to familiarize them with the idea that we design their good, and not to harm them; for some years ago they would have avoided a dark room, and raised the most terrifying reports about such a thing. Our young friend, Shih-Neaon, too, thinks the prejudices are wearing away, for they seldom say we talk wild, as they used to.

On the 5 h inst., the wife of Loo Sien Sang was baptized, and in the afternoon their son, about seven years old, was baptized with A.'Poo's third. At the same time, a young woman, educated by Miss Aldersey, was received into the church, and on the 14th, (yesterday,) was married by the pastor at Miss Aldersey's house, to a man not opposed apparently to Christianity. The marriage was the occasion of gathering many women, some from the country, and as on such occasions they have the freedom of the house, they went into the parlour, where I had some twenty to discourse to. Others wishing to hear, we adjourned to the chapel below, and I spoke then to many who did not know anything of the gospel before. Mr. Loo also spoke, and they went away expressing some admiration of our belief. Yet while their eyes are fast closed by the god of this world, they remain unaffected by the truth. All these had just seen the effects of the electric fluid, and I took occasion to warn them of the falsehood of their idols, which could not harm nor save. I am very glad we have this machine and the phantasmagoria lantern. My plan is to go almost every day, hang out a board of invitation to witness experiments in lightning, astronomy, &c., which draws in persons, and sometimes they come by appointment. In the afternoon, I go to the Foo Sien, and discourse with any who come in; and here some will tell to others' wondering ears what they had witnessed at the other place. You will see that I reserve no time for book-making, and trust to conversation to learn more of the spoken language. No one else at present is lecturing on science, and there are always others to write books, so I try to call attention to books already printed, keeping Jones's Catechism and a map of the world for a text-book, with a copy of Morrison's Bible in blue silk binding at the side, to show my authority and keep the proper supremacy, for the word of God. For this reason, I have no teacher, but get help as I need it from other teachers. The day-school on North Bank has twenty-five scholars, but mostly small, very poor, and not promising. Yet they are learning who made them, and where they are going.

CHINA: SHANGHAI MISSION.

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS OF THE CHINESE.

The following communication from Rev. M. S. Culbertson, contains much interesting information on the subject of Chinese superstitions, and will be read with interest by all who are fond of studying the character of this wonderful people.

Much has been written respecting the religions of China, and much remains to be written. One branch of the subject, however, has been seldom discussed; it is that of the prevalent popular superstitions. The moral and political disquisitions of Confucius and Mincius, have no doubt exerted a mighty influence on the Chinese mind for many generations. The dreams of Laoutsze, and his glowing strains in praise of Eternal Reason, have also had sufficient force to make themselves felt through intervening ages, down to the present time. But Buddhism has been more successful still in seeking and possessing the secret avenues to the human heart. It makes its appeals to man as an immortal being, destined to live beyond the grave, and thus strikes a chord which finds a response in every soul. It speaks of virtue rewarded and vice punished in the world to come, and thus secures its sway over by far the larger portion of the most populous empire on the globe.

But aside from these recognized systems, there are articles of belief, not belonging to any system, which may be considered as forming part of the religious creed of the whole Chinese empire. Many there are which have never been written, which are nevertheless indelibly impressed upon the living records of many hearts. Some of these perhaps are universally received. Others are limited in the extent of their influence, and are confined to the localities in which they originated. It is, after all, but little that foreigners have yet learned of the Chinese mind; and it is but little that can be learned, until there has been an opportunity for years of extensive and intimate intercourse—not by books, with the men of a bygone age, but with the living men, with whom there can be a mutual interchange of thought—not in formal and distant interviews, but in the freedom of mutual confidence and friendship.

It will probably be found that the great deceiver has been compelled to lead the human mind, in all ages, and in every land, in very much the same paths of deceit. Error may branch into a thousand forms, and assume many curious shapes, but there is nevertheless a general resemblance. The desire to penetrate the future, and learn something of the destiny which all feel to be marked out for them, and to be beyond their own control, has found a place among men in every age, and everywhere has been used by the great adversary to bring men into more complete subjection to himself. The means by which the Chinese attempt to look into the future, are much the same with those which have prevailed among other heathen nations. Astrology and appearances in the heavens, the flight and songs of birds, dreams, the features of the face, the lines of the hand, the length of the fingers, are all appealed to, to give some glimpses of what is yet hid among the secrets of futurity. The Chinese, too, are rigid observers of "times and seasons." It may with truth be said of them, though in a very different sense from that intended by the Royal Preacher, that "to every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under heaven." A thousand phenomena in nature are invested with significance of future good or ill. A hitch of the garments, a burning of the ear or face, a twitching of the nerves, all bring some tidings of what is yet in the womb of time.

Lucky and unlucky times.

For the purpose of determining what particular times are lucky or otherwise for any individual, great importance is attached to the eight time-characters; two characters being employed to designate each year, month, day, and hour. For this purpose, a cycle of sixty is employed for each of these several divisions of time. To mark the progress of the revolution of the cycle, two sets of characters are used, called the ten stems and the twelve branches. These two sets, being written together in pairs, will give a new combination each time, until the cycle of sixty is completed, after which they will recur in the same order as before; that is, as there are two more in the one set than in the other, the characters coupled together will be different until one set has been written five and the other six times. Each of these twelve branches is represented by an animal. These animals are the rat, cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, horse, sheep, monkey, cock, dog, and boar. By some mysterious bond, every person is connected with the animal which happens to designate the year of his birth. The ten stems are allied to the five elements—metal, wood, water, fire, and earth. These elements again are connected by the same mysterious union, with the points of the compass; metal with the west, wood with the east, water with the north, and fire with the south, while earth stands in the same relation to the centre. The twelve months and four seasons, have also their relations to the five planets, the twelve signs, and the twenty-eight constellations. Any person's fortune may therefore be in some measure ascertained from these data, for all are under the determining influences of the relationships existing among the various objects with which we become united in virtue of the year, month, day, and hour, of our birth. From the indications of this horoscope, and careful study of the various combinations of stars, animals, elements, and seasons, which control our destiny, those who are skilled in the secrets of the art may determine something concerning what that destiny is, and above all, may determine what course of conduct, in any given case, is most likely to be attended with happy results, and what particular times are most likely to ensure success to any important undertaking. Most persons keep a record of the characters designating the moment of their birth in some temple. A book is kept for the purpose, and on the payment of a small fee, the record is made by the priest, and a memorandum given. This entry in the temple book is considered equivalent to a constant prayer for prosperity and long life.

Consulting omens in relation to forming matrimonial relations.

In case of any matrimonial alliance in contemplation, the first step in the negotiation is to consult the indications of the several horoscopes of the parties, and if there appear to be anything in the combination produced by the union of the elements by which their destiny is governed that would prove unlucky, the match is forthwith given up. For the determination of this important question the services of a regular professor of the art are required, and his decision is formally given in writing. For example, if one be connected with the rat, and the other with the horse, it is considered by many a sufficient reason of itself to outweigh all other considerations.

In sickness also, these records are consulted for the purpose of ascertaining what the result may be. The use of these important data does not cease with one's life. At death they determine the time and place of burial, or at least enter largely, in connection with other elements, into the data for the determination of these questions. The position of the tomb of the head of a family is a matter of great importance; involving not only the happiness of the deceased, but the fortune of his family also. If repose of the departed spirit should be disturbed by any injurious influences gathering around the tomb, the effect would be injuriously felt by his descendants, even in remote generations.

Blind men may constantly be seen parading the streets, thrumming a rude guitar to give notice to the public that they are ready to give information to any who may require it, in reference to their future prospects; and they do so from the data furnished by these time characters.

Another mode of fortune-telling is by the drawing of words. The stands of those who are engaged in this method of gratifying the curiosity of the people may be seen in great numbers in the streets. There is no lack of customers. They generally have before them a small table, on which are placed the implements of their craft. These are a little white tablet, used in place of a slate, a pencil and an ink-stone, and above all, a small bamboo vase filled with little rolls of red paper, within the folds of which are concealed the characters pregnant with the fates of so many anxious expectants of their revelations. Sometimes the table is dispensed with, as an unnecessary luxury, a mere encumbrance, and in that case the practitioner takes his seat upon the ground, and spreads his apparatus before him, in such a way as he thinks will be most likely to tempt the curiosity of the passers by. The habit of some is to attract customers by a loud measured cry, or song; while others sit with quiet patience, awaiting a demand upon their services. However quiet before, however, there are few who do not become marvellously voluble the moment any one turns aside to learn something of his destiny. The inquirer draws out at random one of the little red rolls. The operator opens the roll forthwith, seizes his writing tablet, jots down with the utmost readiness the various combinations suggested by the character drawn, announcing the results, meanwhile, in a loud voice, in a rapid and uninterrupted stream of words. The customer pays down his cash—amounting perhaps to a quarter of a cent in value, and goes on his way, meditating with pain or pleasure on the prospects opened up before him by his glance into the future.

Divining with money.

Somewhat similar to the above is the method of divining with cash. Three pieces of the coin are placed in a vase, and then turned out upon a table. The number of coins which have been left with the face up is carefully noted, and they are then thrown again, and the result marked as before. The results of three throws are combined in one; and then another set of three throws is taken. The results represent the combinations of the eight diagrams, and these in connection with the age of the inquirer, and the peculiar astrological phases of the day on which the inquiry is made, constitute the data from which the events of the future may be evolved. Blind men often obtain a comfortable maintenance in this way. They can readily distinguish the face from the reverse of the coin by the touch, and all the rest they have at their tongue's end. This indeed, is as necessary for others as for the blind, for the books are not consulted at the time, but are learned by rote. A ready memory, or a ready invention, is the capital required for driving this trade.

Blind men acting as fortune-tellers.

The blind employ another method of attaining the same end, that is to say, for transferring a portion of current coin from the pockets of the curious, or the credulous to their own. An able-bodied blind man, who has sufficient capacity for pursuing this honest and respectable calling—for so it is regarded—need never appeal to the hand of charity. The blind fortune-teller's rattle may be distinguished at a considerable distance, as it rises above the many noises of the crowded thoroughfare, or resounds through some secluded street, echoed by the high dead walls which enclose the dwellings or warehouses of the rich, or lost through the open doors of the cottages or workshops of the poor. The sightless oracle may be seen passing along leisurely, feeling his way with a cane—for he seldom has a guide to share the profits of his profession—while he at the same time shakes briskly a bamboo vase containing a number of bamboo slips, marked with notches, to enable the fingers to take the place of the eyes. The inquirer draws out at a venture one of the bamboo slips. The characters it represents are easily recognized by the notches, and then the interpreter has nothing to do but to sing the song which has been taught him from the books, as connected with the particular combination brought out by the slip of bamboo thus drawn.

Idols consulted as fortune-tellers.

In a way somewhat similar to this the gods themselves are sometimes consulted more directly. In some of the temples a large vase with bamboo slips is kept for this purpose. The slips are numbered, and in a book or tablet the fate connected with each number is written. It is sad indeed, to see an intelligent man take the vase and present himself with marked anxiety before his idol god. He elevates it and shakes it before the god, then bows most reverently to the earth three times, or perhaps three times three. He in this way implores his god to give him a good lot, and assure him of coming prosperity. This is at least a recognition of the important truth, that our fate is controlled by a superior power, and that the same power overrules and determines the result of the casting of lots.

The object of casting lots.

In all these cases the object is not in general to obtain a history of one's future life, but merely to obtain an answer to some specific inquiry. A friend perhaps is sick, and the object is to know whether there is hope of recovery or not; or some undertaking is under consideration, or has been commenced, and it is desired to know whether it is destined to be successful or not. Perhaps at the beginning of a new year, one wishes to ascertain whether he may expect prosperity or adversity—whether life or death. It is not to be supposed, however, that the answers obtained are always implicitly relied upon, and necessarily influence the conduct. The effect might be to confirm a purpose, or discourage the prosecution of an enterprise, but not always to cause the abandonment of an undertaking because of an unfavourable answer.

Imperial Almanac consulted on all important cases.

But superstition does not end with these vain attempts to unravel the mysteries of the future. As the means employed for this purpose depend for the most part upon supposed influences emanating from the heavenly bodies, or other sources, so, great care is taken to avoid becoming in any way obnoxious to evil influences from those sources. For every undertaking there is a lucky and an unlucky time, and there is a universal and most inconvenient attention paid by all classes to the oracular declarations of the Imperial Almanac, with reference to the proper times for performing any important work, or commencing any important design. Under each date, the Almanac decides what may and what may not be done. The particular aspect of the stars, or of some single star on each day, being favourable to the success of some kinds of affairs, and unfavourable to others. If a house is to be built, nothing can be done until a good day for laying the foundation comes round; and it is no less important to have a lucky day for erecting the wooden frame-work which sustains the roof. If a tomb is to be prepared, a corpse placed in the coffin, or funeral rites to be performed, it is indispensable to wait until favourable influences predominate. A landlord cannot compel a tenant to remove from his house until the tenant can find a proper day for effecting the removal. So also a journey commenced at an improper time will be likely to prove disastrous, and the man who leaves his home for a distant region on the fifth, fourteenth, or twenty-third of the month, will, in all probability, never enter his door again. He may avoid the evil, however, by affecting to start on the previous day, by removing the bedding and effects to be taken with him, and depositing them over night in his neighbour's house, or on the boat which is to be his conveyance.

Large vessels must not commence a long voyage except on a day approved by the Almanac and the diviners. Should it not be convenient actually to sail on the day thus fixed, it will answer every purpose to break ground on that day, by weighing anchor and moving a little in the direction to which the vessel may be bound.

Auspicious days for getting married.

So important an event as a wedding must of course be performed at the hour in the highest possible degree favourable to the happiness of the union to be formed. The days which are sufficiently good for so important a ceremony are comparatively rare. In every year, however, there are a few days that are favourable in an extraordinary degree. On such days, the gaudy bridal sedans may be seen traversing the streets in great numbers. The numerous marriage processions, with gongs stunning the ears by their noises, and long lines of coollies bearing the wedding gifts in shining red cases, gay with gilt and carving, together with the temporary sheds put up in front of the door, to make room for the accommodation of the guests, and the sounds of music and mirth within; all these combined, have the appearance of a gala day, and would sometimes lead one to think that half the population was either getting married, or assisting others to do so.

Rules how and where to build houses.

No people are more wedded to the world, or more intent on the pursuit of mere worldly objects, and yet they seem to feel themselves in the midst of the spirit-world. They live in continual dread of evil spirits, and noxious influences of all kinds, and from every quarter. These evil influences are generated everywhere around them in a thousand ways, and great pains are taken to counteract their effects. The direction in which a door opens, or the position of some neighbouring object, may be the means of involving the poor tenant in a host of calamities. If one build a new house, and place the ridge so as to point exactly toward his neighbour's front door, the result may be disastrous to the latter. So also a very high house in a neighbourhood is very much dreaded; and this is the chief source of the objections which have been made to the building of churches within the walls of cities. One mode of warding off these noxious influences is to affix some charm over the door, or on the side of the house, in the direction from which the influence is supposed to proceed. Sometimes this is a piece of board with a tiger's head painted upon it; or it may be the eight diagrams—(which are merely eight sets of straight lines, three in each set, of different lengths, commonly arranged in a circular form)—posted over the door. Sometimes again the charm consists of two characters, signifying, "I dare to meet you," and sometimes of other characters. There is a great variety of these charms, consisting of characters or figures of various shapes and significations, to be used according to the nature of the influences to be guarded against.

Much depends upon the relations of objects in various localities, and the particular influences of the points of the compass in any given combination of objects. Hence it is common for those who can afford to pay the fee, to consult diviners in reference to the position of the various parts of any new building they are erecting. Six points are regarded as requiring special attention; these are, the position of the cooking range, the direction in which the doors shall open, the position of the stone mortar used in the preparation of articles of food, the direction of the roof-ridge, the position of the bedstead, and the place for the well.

The importance of such considerations as the influence of the points of the compass, and their relation to other objects, is as much regarded by the higher as by the lower classes. High officers send forth grave state papers, filled with what are regarded among enlightened nations as the merest puerilities. For instance, a short time ago the Taoutae of Shanghai, the highest magistrate residing in the district, objected to the erection of a church on a lot which had been purchased within the city, and in an official communication to the American Consul, assigned such reasons for his objection as the following: The lot, he said, was situated near to the temple of the god of fire, and on the west side of it. But the west is the quarter connected with metal, and fire subdues metal. If now, a church, or high building, be erected on this site, fire and metal will necessarily be brought into conflict, and fire, of course, will gain the mastery. The consequence of this will be, that fires will prevail throughout the city, and much property be destroyed. In addition to this, many calamities of other kinds will be brought upon the good people of Shanghai, in consequence of such an erection. He begs, therefore, that another site, not attended with so much danger to the city, be selected for the proposed building. His Honour does not make this statement on his own authority alone; he says that the diviners have made an examination of the spot by his orders, and the above is their report.

About the same time this officer sent a communication to the Consul, complaining that a drought, which had been prevailing for some time, was generally supposed to be owing to the noxious influences proceeding from two very large churches in the city, which were of a red colour, and one of which besides had a very high tower. The lurid glare of the fiery red colour, he said, was very disastrous in its influences, and he earnestly begged that they might be painted some other colour. He referred to the American Episcopal and Baptist churches. The high tower of the latter is much dreaded. It so happened that the District Magistrate, who was in office when it was built, died not long after it was finished. His death was universally ascribed to the influences proceeding from this tower.

Such are a few of the prevalent superstitions. There are many others, but these are sufficient to show how debased the human mind becomes when left to its own unaided powers, without the light of revelation.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PROGRESS OF TRUTH IN PIEDMONT.

The work of evangelization continues to progress in Piedmont, and is being advanced by the printing and publishing of translations of useful books. There has lately issued from the Turin press, in Italian dress, such works as "The Life of Dr. Gordon of Hull—The Christian Philosopher triumphing over Death," "Man's right to God's Word," the prize essay of Mr. Boucher, the chaplain to the King of Holland—besides a number of small religious books. The liberty of the press is a great thing for the progress of the truth in that country. There are daily proofs of this in the boldness with which the politico-religious questions are discussed in the newspapers. An example has been recently given in the spirited replies of the editor of a daily newspaper at Nice—L'Avenir—to the excommunications of the bishop. The Vaudois religious journal—the Buona Novella—is doing good service to the cause, by the promptness and clearness with which it repels the bitter attacks made upon the Protestant party by the Armonia, Catolico, and other organs of the Jesuits. It gets no rest from its enemies, and has most successfully shielded the cause of truth and righteousness from their calumnies and falsehoods—those weapons which he who was a liar from the beginning puts into the hands of his children. They find that, while they are building the wall in these troublous times, it behoves the workman to have his weapon always at his side.

The controversy is becoming hotter every day with the Romish bishop and priests, who are fierce in their complaints of "Protestants being free to teach their errors publicly in the journals." Two documents —very significant of what is going forward—have just been issued by the dignitaries of Rome in the province of Turin and Savoy, addressed to the king and senate. The object of these addresses is to force the Government into a concordat with the Pope. In these they lament over "the decline of the festivals; of the worship of the blessed Virgin and of the saints;" call attention to "the proselytism that for some time has been exercised in the towns and provinces by the Protestant heresy;" and complain of the "unlimited favours granted to Protestantism, and of the abuse in the journals against the Pope, the bishops and all the Catholic clergy." The Savoy bishops wind up their address by these extraordinary words: "Even in England the Catholic clergy are better treated than here." Praise from such a quarter—Savoy,—noted for the prevalence of Jesuitism and bigotry—might surely open the eyes of the British Government, which seems by some of its acts to have forgotten that this is a Protestant country, and, by its support of Popery, to be blindfoldly bent upon sacrificing our religious liberty.

Piedmont is thus, at the present moment, the battle-field of the truth. It is a remarkable fact, that the exciting cause of this stir should be such an insignificant body as the Waldenses, the smallest and the poorest Church in Christendom. These bishops, who so indignantly spurn the idea of "permitting that every one is free to believe as he wishes," and threaten, that "if liberty to proselytism be accorded, it will provoke a religious contest, the consequence of which will be more serious than is believed," contemptuously demand, "How many are there in the states of the king of these Protestants?—22,000, out of a population of 4,918,855, or 1 to 214." Strange that a people, so insignificant in number, should be the terror of Rome! Assuredly, with all Rome's artillery thus directed at them, they have a peculiar claim upon the sympathy of Christians of other lands at the present hour.—Home and Foreign Record of the Free Church of Scotland.

JEWS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The late census estimates the whole number of Jews in the United States at 46,000, but according to the Synagogue rolls, there are more than 120,000, many of whom are only known as Germans, Poles, Hungarians, or belonging to some other European country. In the State of New York they have thirty synagogues, and there is a synagogue in every considerable town where there is enterprise and facility for the acquirement of wealth.

FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND INSTITUTE IN MADRAS.

In the Central Institute and four branches, there were reported to be 2135 pupils on the roll, and an average actual attendance of 1870. Of these, above 200 are Mohammedans, 150 to 180 Brahmins, and the majority of the rest are of different castes, and a few of no caste. The number of girls is about 650. Many of the girls are able to read their own Tamil, Teloogoo, and Hindustani fairly, and some of them the English Scriptures. The influence of females in the East is largely misunderstood in this country, and those who are best acquainted with the character of Eastern society, are the most sanguine in assuring us that such Seminaries as yours must eventually renovate the whole aspect of things. All the work of teaching and preaching is carried on in school-rooms procured by funds raised in India.—Report to the General Assembly, May, 1854.

POPERY IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

What has the late census revealed concerning the strength of Popery in these lands? With all its teeming swarms of immigrants, and all its great swelling words of progress—what is the number of its adherents, or what ratio do they bear to the people of this country? Of 10,212,563 sittings supplied by the different churches in England, 9,669,686 are by Protestants, so that less that one-eighteenth belongs to Roman Catholics, Unitarians, and other bodies, whose errors place them beyond the pale of the Christian Church. The entire number of Romish worshippers on the census Sabbath, 30th March, 1851, was 249,289—less than a quarter of a million—a number which, with any other name but that of Romanist, would not be of much importance.

Again, if we pass to America, we see that Popery is not making such progress as its abettors pretend.

In Maryland, once utterly Popish, there are at this day only 65 Papal churches to about 800 Protestant places of worship.

In Florida there are 152 churches, and only five of them Popish.

In Louisiana there are 278 places of worship, but only 55 are the Pope's.

In Texas there are 164 churches, but only 13 of them are Popish; yet these States were originally settled by Papists.

In a word, the recent census of America, like our own, has exposed the pretences of Popery, and proved that the system is repelled by myriads. In the entire country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Rome has only 1112 churches, accommodating 821,000 hearers, which is not one-eleventh part of the number of Methodist churches alone; scarcely one-eighth of the Baptists, and not one-fourth of the Presbyterians.—Ibid.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN JUNE, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.— Pby of Albany — Broadalbin ch 10; Little Falls ch 20 $30 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Genesee River—Sparta 1st ch 10; Caledonia ch 65 72; Bath 1st ch 80. Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie 1st ch 88; Hammond ch 8. Pby of Buffalo City—Bethany Centre ch 10 261 72

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Goshen ch, a friend, 2. Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch mo con's 48 43; Croton Falls ch mo con 10 50. Pby of New York—University Place ch mo con 22 98; Madison Avenue ch mo con 15; Wallabout ch mo con 7; New York 1st ch mo con 121 24, young ladies to ed Richard W Dickinson 25; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch mo con 31 49, a member 5, Robert L Stuart to restore Mission buildings at Corisco 250; Forty-second street ch mo con 18 39; Brooklyn 1st ch mo con 13 25; Chelsea ch mo con 22; Williamsburg ch mo con 25; Jamaica ch mo con 14 22; Yorkville ch mo con 6 50. 2d Pby of New York—Canal street ch mo con 3 18 641 18

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY. — Pby of Elizabethtown—Woodbridge 1st ch 30. Pby of New Brunswick—Bound Brook ch mo con 10. Pby of West Jersey—Leed's Point ch 10. Phy of Newton—Blairstown ch 25. Pby of Raritan—Kingwood ch 18. Pby of Susquehanna — Rome ch 12 36. Pby of Luzerne—Kingston ch 3 108 36

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA. — Pby of Philadelphia — Tenth ch, Mrs Hoge 10, mo con 34 31; Central ch, S Caldwell 100. Pby of Carlisle—Dickinson ch 17. Pby of Northumberland—Chillisquaque ch fem miss soc 21 182 31

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Redstone—Sewickley ch 18. Pby of Ohio—Mt Carmel ch, individual contributions 3; Pittsburgh 2d ch mo con 8 06; Centre ch fem miss association 22 25, male miss association 30 50. Pby of Allegheny—Middlesex ch, ladies miss soc 7 75, children of Mrs Eleanor Lyons 1 50. Pby of Beaver—Clarkville ch 33 75. Pby of Clarion — Beech Woods ch 10; Licking ch 3 66; Bethesda ch fem miss soc 16; Hon Wm Curll 5 159 47

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Pigeon Creek ch 61, less 1 counterfeit; Cross Roads ch 13 37 73 37

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Marion—Mt Gilead ch, Mrs Mary Morrison for Choctaw Mission 1. Pby of Richland—Mt Vernon ch, Wm Shannon 2 50. 3 50

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.— Pby of Cincinnati — Fifth ch 21 66, less 6 80 for Foreign Missionary; Seventh ch, a lady 5, three mos con coll's 23, Sab sch three mos coll's 31; Cheviot ch 10 52 84 39

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Indianapolis— Shelbyville ch 5. Pby of Palestine— Palestine ch mo con 11 16 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport— West Union ch 3. Pby of Fort Wayne—Swan ch 3 6 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Schuyler—Presbyterial coll's 8 50; Camp Creek ch 1 50; Ellison ch 2 10. Pby of Peoria—Osceola ch 2. Pby of Rock River—Andover ch 17 50; Freeport ch 15 46 60

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—Andrew ch 3 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of Upper Missouri—Lexington ch Sab sch to ed A V C Schenck 25 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch mo con 7 50, a member 5; Second ch mo con 7 60, a member 50 cts; Pisgah ch 15 88. Pby of Muhlenburg—Salem ch 10. Pby of Transylvania—Harmony ch 15. Pby of Ebenezer—Paris ch ann coll 62 25; "Old Zed," near Millersburg, Ky, 31 53; Flemingsburg ch, A D Taylor 5 160 26

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Winchester—Received from Treasurer of Presbytery 49 75

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.—Pby of Maury—Zion ch 60. Pby of Nashville—Nashville 2d ch, youths' miss soc to ed Adam G Adams 25 85 00

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Pby of Florida—Monticello ch 115 90

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Mississippi—Port Gibson ch 10; Ebenezer ch 4; Natchez ch mo con coll's 149 65, Sab sch 20 65, coloured members 21 80. Pby of Louisiana—Prytanea street ch, N O, mo con 30 55; Carmel ch 16 50 253 15

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.—Pby of Indian—Chickasaw Mission, individual contributions 26 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Western District—Brownsville, Tenn, Dr Saml Watkins 1. Pby of Chickasaw. Lebanon and Sarepta chs 14. Pby of Memphis—Mt Carmel ch, a member 15 30 00

Total from churches, $2,360 96

LEGACIES.—Washington co, Pa, Legacy of John Gilcrist, deceased, 354 36; Bound Brook, N J, Interest on Legacy of Jacob Steele, deceased 36; Legacy of Wm Hay, late of Michigan, in part 252 15; Stewartsville, Pa, Legacy of Wm Woods, deceased 39 05, in all 681 56, less 3 25 expenses on account of estate of Hans Wilson 678 31

MISCELLANEOUS.—An Old Presbyterian 28; A lover of missions 1; A lady, to restore mission buildings at Corisco 50; Clarkson, N Y, Mrs Martha Drake, of which 5 for the Jewish Mission 10; Richmondville, N Y, C H Gardner 5; Eugenia M 2; Painted Post, N Y, E E Townsend 25; First Assoc Ref'd Presb ch, Philadelphia, fem miss soc to ed Elizabeth Dales and Maria Lansing at Wa-pa-nucka 25; Fishkill, N Y, Mrs Charlotte F Kirk, in part to con her husband, Rev W H Kirk 1 d 50; South Wheeling, Va, Sab sch for Corisco mission 10; Shirleysburg, Pa, J Brewster 80; A lady, of which 3 for Jewish mission 6 302 00

Total receipts in June, $3,341 27

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—
Amount previously reported, $7788 73
A friend, 2000 9788 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS IN CLOTHING, &C.—Ladies of Bridgewater ch, Beaver Pby, one box clothing 60 03; Mrs K, 68 garments; Mrs D 2 garments; Mrs —— 5 garments; A lady 34 garments; Young ladies 8 garments for Seminoles; Ladies of Blairsville ch Pa, one box clothing 53 60; Mrs S one box and one bundle of clothing for Corisco mission.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. B. M. Smith, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M.D. Treasurer.

☞ As frequent inquiries are made on this subject, we give the terms on which the Board of Publication ordinarily employs Colporteurs.

Wages $150 per annum. Equipage $50. All reasonable travelling expenses, together with charges for freight and postage, are defrayed by the Board.

MODIFICATION AND REDUCTION OF PRICES.

Although the cost of labour and material employed in the production of our books was never higher than at present, yet such has been the increase of our sales, that we feel justified in making a considerable reduction in the prices of many of our books, so as greatly to reduce the cost of the whole. These reductions take effect with the beginning of this month, and the catalogues now issued will show the details. We present the summary as to the classified Libraries for Ministers, Congregations, and Sabbath-schools.

It will be observed in the catalogues that the prices of all books of five cents and upwards, have been adapted to the Federal currency. This is in accordance with a very general and earnest demand from colporteurs and others in various parts of the country. We trust that our friends will show their appreciation of a liberalized policy by greatly increased orders. To make the modifications mentioned, we have been compelled in some cases to reduce the price of a book below the standard of cost and charges as fixed by our regulations.

Library for Ministers, consisting of 33 volumes:
Catalogue price in Muslin,	$25,40
For cash,	$18 81
Library for Congregations, consisting of 175 volumes:
Catalogue price in Muslin,	$72,16
For cash,	$53,45
Catalogue price in half Roan,	$67,06
For cash,	$49,67
Library for Sabbath-Schools, consisting of 132 volumes:
Catalogue price in Muslin,	$30,20
For cash,	$22,37
Catalogue price in half Roan,	$25,35
For cash,	$18,78

CORRESPONDENCE OF COLPORTEURS.

The actual working of this enterprise is well set forth, in the following extracts from the correspondence of this office.

HOW MINISTERS AND ELDERS CAN HELP.

I found on arriving, that strong desires had been recently expressed by ministerial brethren, that a colporteur might be sent, and they at once took hold of the matter, commending the work from the pulpit, and in private—imparting necessary information in reference to the field, and inviting me to consider their houses as always open to me, whilst members of session have followed their example.

THE "BEST BOOKS" FOR THE PEOPLE.

Many families have some of these doctrinal books, as precious treasures, inherited from their fathers; and others have not seen Boston's, "Fourfold State," "Fisher's Catechism," "Scott's Force of Truth" and kindred works, since they received their portion at the division of their parents' library, and gladly supply themselves, and make provision for their families. These remarks apply equally to members of other branches of the Presbyterian family, and they have expressed their gratification in the strongest terms, with our people, asserting frequently, that they are "the best books ever brought on this field."

VALUE OF BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE YOUNG.

One peculiarly gratifying feature in this field, is the supplying of the youth with the sterling memoirs, &c., which are unexcelled by any religious Publication Board in our land. From these rich stores, gathered from the best writers of our own land, and from that country where deep biblical knowledge prevents the working of erroneous leaven, they are supplied freely; and in general, a few standard doctrinal works are chosen as an addition to the common stock; and then an appropriate volume, such as the Memoirs of John Newton, or R. M. McCheyne, Mary J. Graham, Mrs. Andrew, and John Barr, or those charming juvenile works, "Another Lily Gathered," "Children Coming to Christ, "Flower Transplanted", &c., until each young reader has one in their own name. This is a common occurrence in every congregation, so that I frequently leave eight, ten, and twelve volumes in a single family; and in some instances a greater number.

HOW CHRISTIAN PARENTS MAY PROVIDE FOR THEIR CHILDREN.

I am often directed to a family in which one or both parents were educated in the Presbyterian Church, and generally am received with great kindness, as my visit and conversation revive early associations, and recommend such works as my knowledge of their situation leads me to think appropriate to their condition. There are many such scattered over this field, and occasionally far from any church of their own order. Will not the fathers and mothers in our churches, who have children gone forth to the West, think of this, when called upon to contribute to the Board, that they may be enabled to send forth the colporteurs all over this great field, and search out and supply those who have been consecrated to God in infancy, and have gone forth in search of a home? None, scarcely, of our Christian parents, can confidently say, "my children or grandchildren will never be there;" consequently they should do for those now there, that which others will be called upon to do, possibly, for their own relations.

VALUE OF OUR DOCTRINAL WORKS—DR. PLUMER'S "GRACE OF CHRIST."

Among many similar testimonies to the value of a class of our publications, to which some timid Presbyterians occasionally object as too denominational, we consider the following, proceeding from a New England clergyman, specially worthy of attention:

"This book I have perused with great interest. I love its theme. I love its doctrines—'the good old paths'—the only true and safe paths. I love the book because it has so much of God's precious truth in it, aptly and appropriately quoted, and presented in such a manner as not only to be attractive, but what is more, convincing. I love the book the more, because, in these days in which, in the Providence of God, we have fallen, there are such multitudes of books sent out into the world called sound and orthodox, which are the very farthest from it."

OUR CAUSE IN THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

The readers of the Record are apprized of the incipient efforts which have been made to extend the circulation of our books in the British Provinces. We append an extract from a letter recently received from an active friend of the Board, in the Presbytery of St. Stephen, Nova Scotia:

"I brought the subject of the introduction of your books, by colporteurs and otherwise, before the Synod, and also before my own Presbytery of St. Stephen. I beg you will be pleased to communicate to the Board, the following resolution of Presbytery here annexed:

'The Rev. Wm. Elder having brought before the Presbytery the terms on which the Presbyterian Board of Publication would supply their books, and commission colporteurs recommended by the Presbytery—Resolved, That the thanks of the Presbytery be conveyed to the Board for their obliging and liberal proposals; that the members of Presbytery seek to open up channels for these valuable publications, and that meanwhile, and until the next meeting of Presbytery, inquiries be made as to whether any suitable person can be found to act as colporteur.'"

OUR WORK APPRECIATED.

Such letters as the following encourage us. Let the spirit animating the writer possess all our ministers, and we shall not lack for funds. We give this as a good specimen of the cheerful alacrity of scores of our small churches, in ranging themselves in line, for annual contributions. We like to see large donations of course, but so far from "despising the day of small things," we especially delight in welcoming these small contributions. They evince a right spirit, and as the churches grow, they will grow. Let the good habit be formed, and greater and yet greater results will ensue.

June 20th, 1854.

Dear Brother—The churches to which I minister design making an annual collection for each of the Boards; but —— did not last year reach the Board of Publication, and hence commence with it this year. The amount forwarded ($3) is small, but the congregation is also small and not possessed of large means. I doubt not that every congregation in our connection, if invited by their ministers, would cheerfully contribute annually to the funds of the Board. A great responsibility rests upon the ministry. The people do, to some extent, appreciate the importance of publishing and scattering broad-cast over the land such publications as those issued by the Presbyterian Board. In these parts, far from a book-market, such works are welcomed, especially by intelligent Presbyterians. We have in this Presbytery, covering the third of the State, one faithful colporteur; but it is a small part of the territory that he can reach. We need more labourers in this department. We ministers do not get to see your latest publications, much less to own the whole of them, as we should like to do. For my own part, I have not bought five dollars' worth of books within the last two years.

CONGREGATIONAL LIBRARIES.

On this subject, here are some capital thoughts from the Southern Presbyterian, which so well express our views, we need not add a word—except to beg the reader's attention. Let elders and pastors read and act!

The value of a good library to any association can hardly be estimated too highly, especially in places remote from the great emporiums of trade. In many parts of our country, books are scarce and difficult to be procured. No small proportion of those in actual use are worthless or worse than worthless. It is unfortunately the case, though a natural result, that those, who have the most need of good books are the least qualified, and least disposed to make a wise selection. There are many, however, in every community; who will read good books, if they have them at hand—bad books if no others are to be had. No book was ever read that did not leave upon the mind some impression, more or less permanent, and more or less salutary or injurious.

In this view, we have looked with special interest upon the operations of the Board of Publication of our Church, designed to supply our people with works of approved excellence and standard value. Not one can be placed in a household without an assurance, that if read, it will do good, immediate and lasting. Our colporteurs are traversing the country in every direction, sowing the good seed from which an abundant harvest will be reaped in due time. Few families, however, who may be visited by the colporteur, are able to purchase all the books which they desire and need. To remedy this, it has been proposed that every church should procure and keep at some convenient place for the use of the congregation the entire works issued by the Board. On the score of economy, this plan has decided advantages over any other yet tried, nor are there any difficulties to its successful management, which a little care on the part of the officers in each church would not overcome. No Sabbath-school is considered as fully organized and endowed for its work, without a reading library for its pupils. But however good the works, and complete the collection constituting these libraries, they are not adequate to the wants of a congregation. Books are needed which are adapted to more mature minds, books containing more solid instruction, profound strength, and systematic exposition and defence of Scripture doctrine.

We learn that the Rev. W. Baird, agent of the Board of Publication for the South, has recently visited various places in North Carolina, and attended the meetings of such of the Presbyteries as he could reach. He has directed special attention to the establishment of Congregational Libraries, and his plans seem to be received with great favour. We copy below a resolution adopted by Orange Presbytery, hoping that through the efficient labours of the Agent of the Board, a great work may be accomplished on behalf of other and all parts of our Southern Church.

Resolved, That this Presbytery heartily approves of the plan proposed by the Agent of the Board of Publication, and recommends all the churches to procure a complete set of the books of the Board as speedily as possible.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

LETTERS OF THE MADIAI. 12mo. pp. 166. 50 cts. Illustrated with coloured portraits of Francesco and Rosa Madiai.

This interesting work, which we announced in the June Record as nearly ready, is now for sale. Our readers are aware that two humble and pious citizens of Florence, husband and wife, were most cruelly persecuted by the Papal authorities a few years since. Their only crime was their abjuration of the Papal Church, and profession of an Evangelical faith, with an humble and peaceable Christian conduct in accordance with this profession. As Papists in this country generally endeavour to avoid the stigma attached, by all right-minded persons, to the persecuting course of their European brethren, by ascribing to the victims of such persecution some political offence, we have appended to the work an authentic copy of the sentence under which these people suffered.

These letters are all so good, breathing such a truly Christian temper, that we are at some loss to make a selection. We offer the following, which is a fair specimen of the whole. Our readers will find the book well repaying perusal.

Cell 27, Feb. 13, 1853.

MY DEAR MADIAI—I have not written to you sooner, as I waited to hear from Mr. Chapman's own lips how you were. Now I will answer yours of the 23d January, and rejoice in the good news of your health. The more we study the Holy Bible, the more we find pearls to gather. Let the wise call us impious and fools, if they will. Paul says, "If I am wise, I am so for you; and if I am a fool, I am a fool for Christ." If we "are numbered among transgressors," so also was the Saviour of believers. "We know in whom we have believed, and therefore have we spoken." Courage, my friend: if imprisonment be not sufficient for the truth, let us give also our blood—our lives, so they be yielded up for that Jesus "who gave up the ghost" in a sea of troubles, for our salvation. Time passes; the punished and the punishers are journeying towards eternity, and there we shall not find men, but God, who sent his Lamb "to take away the sins of the world," and who will know the believers in "Him whom he hath sent." Christ said, "He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me." Where then is our impiety before God? See 1st Peter, chap. iv. ver. 14: "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you; and on their part, he is evil spoken of; but on your part, he is glorified. But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer. Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf." Let liberty or imprisonment, health or sickness, opulence or poverty, come to us, provided the great God who made us, the mighty Saviour who redeemed us, and the Spirit, the comforter and sanctifier, who revealed the love of Christ in our hearts, be our only support. To the triune God, blessed throughout all eternity, be glory for ever. Amen.

ROSA MADIAI.

It has already been intimated, in the abstract of the Annual Report published in June, that the Board have in course of publication several works especially for Sabbath-School Libraries. We append a brief notice of five of these volumes, and trust in our next to announce several others ready for sale.

1. PETER THOMSON. The Dying Sheep. The Bible the best Book. Pp. 106. 18mo. Price 20 and 25 cents.

Interesting incidents in a good boy's life are here held up for imitation, and the formative influences of parental and pastoral counsel and example are well delineated. In the two short tracts appended in the same volume, instructive and useful lessons are presented.

2. ANNIE BELL. The Hated Task. The Red Berries. The Little Miller. The Faithful Dog. Pp. 108. 20 and 25 cents.

In these sketches, of which the first gives name to the volume, we find some excellently drawn descriptions, and most wholesome and valuable truths, adapted to entertain and improve young readers.

3. HISTORY OF MINNA AND HER LAMB AND HER DOVES. Pp. 75. 18mo. 15 and 20 cents.

A lamb is given to a little girl by her kind father, which, growing under her care, becomes a pet to which she is much devoted. It is employed by judicious parents as the means of impressing on her mind some of the most important facts and doctrines of Scripture, in the exhibition of which that animal is brought forward, either literally or figuratively; so also the doves, which a kind friend presents, are made the medium of conveying useful religious instruction to the child. The whole book will strike those who are solicitous on the subject of literature for children at this day, as a good execution of a very happy conception.

4. THE BLIND MAN AND PEDLER. Blind Betsey, or Comfort for the Afflicted. Pp. 72. 18mo. 15 and 20 cents.

Perhaps our young readers may not be as much interested in this volume as in the others, and yet it embodies, in a pleasing form, instruction in some of the most momentous and also consoling truths ever given to the world.

5. MEMOIR OF REV. JOSEPH W. BARR. By Rev. E. P. Swift, D. D. A new edition, Revised and adapted to Sabbath-Schools. Pp. 132. 18mo. 20 and 25 cents.

If we are not very much mistaken, this little book is destined to a wide circulation, and the production of lasting good. We cannot avoid indulging the opinion that the usefulness of this biography, in awakening and strengthening a spirit of early consecration to the Saviour's service, will do very much towards lifting that dark veil of Divine Providence which hangs over the deplored early death of this devoted missionary. Our readers are perhaps aware that Joseph W. Barr was one of the first missionaries sent by our Church, and perhaps the very first, destined to Africa. Well does the writer remember the impression produced on his own mind by seeing him in Richmond, Virginia, a few days before he was expected to sail. It was just when he had completed all his preparations, and was on the eve of setting out, that the Master called him to himself. Let all Sunday-schools and Christian parents get this Memoir for the children and youth of our Church. Here is no cant, no fanaticism, no sentimentalism, but an exhibition of a settled, pious, common-sense view of a great Christian duty, and a diligent, faithful effort to perform it. God cut off the cherished purposes of the missionary's heart, and disappointed the expectations of thousands of Christian friends; but in all He does what is right. May his blessing attend this little book on its mission to the churches and their children!

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF JULY, 1854.

Presbytery of Albany.
2d ch, per G Batcheldore	$236 75
Presbytery of Buffalo City.
Aurora 1st ch, per Rev J M Harlow	8 00
Presbytery of Rochester City.
Port Byron ch, per Rev George C Heckman	10 00
Presbytery of Hudson.
Florida ch, per Rev Wm A Westcott 6; Goodwill ch, from Female Benevolent Society, per Mrs Sarah Pelton, Treas, thro' Wm J Blain 11	17 00
Presbytery of Bedford.
South Salem ch, to con Rev and Mrs JULIA LINDSAY hon mems	60 50
Presbytery of New York.
1st ch, to con DAVID OLYPHANT, MARY A BOKEE, and DAVID MCKENZIE BOKEE hon mems 1144; Williamsburg ch 46 36, per Wm Rankin Jr	1190 36
Presbytery of New York 2d.
Peekskill ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr, Treas	21 00
Presbytery of Elizabethtown.
Liberty Corner ch, per Rev J T English	10 00
Presbytery of Newton.
Upper Mt Bethel ch, per Rev H Reeves	6 00
Presbytery of Philadelphia.
Kensington ch, per Rev Wm O Johnstone 30; Westminster ch, per Rev Robert Watts, through John Patterson 14 36	44 36
Presbytery of New Castle.
Fagg's Manor ch, from a member, per Rev Alfred Hamilton	5 00
Presbytery of Huntingdon.
Little Valley ch, Mrs J B Long	25 00
Presbytery of Richland.
Pleasant Hil ch, per Rev L Dorland 10; Jeromeville ch, per John D Thorpe 4 50; Ashland ch, per Rev J M Faris, Treas 14; Frederick ch, per Rev J M Faris, Treas 10	38 50
Presbytery of Coshocton.
"A Friend," of Lafayette ch	5 00
Presbytery of Miami.
From Mrs Jane Hall 5; from her sister, Miss Nancy Henderson 5; Rev R J Hall 4 50	14 50
Presbytery of Fort Wayne.
La Grange ch, per Rev Wm Cathcart	10 00
Presbytery of Holston.
Providence ch, per Rev James D Tadlock	10 00
Presbytery of South Carolina.
From Rev J Leroy Davies	27 60
Presbytery of Louisiana.
Jackson ch 4; Carmel ch 4—per Rev J E C Doremus	8 00
Presbytery of Chickasaw.
Lebanon ch 5; Sarepta ch 1; Oxford ch 1—per Rev F Patton	7 00
Presbytery of Indian.
Pine Ridge ch 22 20; Good Water ch 5—per Rev C Kingsbury	27 20
MISCELLANEOUS.
From Andrew Bryant, Mt Carmel, per J D Thorpe 50; "A Friend" for Colportage 200; Eliza E Townsend, Painted Post, N Y 25	275 00
Total,	$2056 77

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

HISTORICAL NOTICES OF SYNODS AND PRESBYTERIES.

We commence, in this number of the Record, the publication of these notices, hoping that the attention of Stated Clerks will be arrested, so that additional statistics of the same kind may be gathered.

1. The Presbytery of Erie was formed out of those of Redstone and Ohio, October 2d, 1801, by the Synod of Virginia, and held its first meeting April 13, 1802, at Mount Pleasant church.

2. The Presbytery of Connecticut was formed out of that of New York, by the Synod of New York, October 15th, 1850, and held its first meeting October 29th, 1850, at Thompsonville, Connecticut.

3. The Presbytery of St. Clairsville was formed out of that of Steubenville, and held its first meeting in St. Clairsville, Belmont, Ohio. Organized on the first Tuesday of January, 1839.

4. The Presbytery of Richland was formed out of that of Lancaster, by the Synod of Ohio, October, 1817, and held its first meeting at Mount Vernon, Ohio, November 26th, 1817.

5. The Presbytery of Fort Wayne was organized January 1st, 1845, and was formed out of a part of the Presbytery of Logansport, Synod of Northern Indiana, and part of the Presbytery of Miami, of the Synod of Cincinnati.

6. The Presbytery of West Jersey was organized November 5th, 1839, in Bridgeton, New Jersey, by the Synod of Philadelphia, and was formed out of the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

7. The Presbytery of Potosi was formed out of the Presbytery of St. Louis, by the Synod of Missouri, in St. Louis, October 23d, 1843, and its first meeting was held at Farmington on the first Thursday of April, 1844.

8. The Presbytery of Beaver (originally Hartford, name changed October, 1833), was formed mostly out of that of Erie, by the Synod of Pittsburgh, October, 1808, and held its first meeting during the fall of that year (the authorities for dates varying between October 8th and November 8th), at Hartford.

9. The Presbytery of Talladega was formed out of that of East Alabama, in the fall of 1851, by the Synod of Alabama, and held its first meeting in Talladega, April 8th, 1852.

10. The Presbytery of West Lexington was formed out of that of Transylvania, by the Synod of Virginia, and held its first meeting in Lexington, April 16th, 1799.

Ecclesiastical Record.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. J. M. Pryse and Madison church, Ohio.

Rev. W. A. Rankin and Marietta church, Pennsylvania, (May 30th.)

Rev. H. Blackwell and Eagle Fork church, by the St. Louis Presbytery.

Rev. James R. Smith and Highlands church, by the Presbytery of Ohio.

Rev. G. I. Taylor and Charlton church, by the Presbytery of Albany.

PASTORAL OFFICE RESIGNED BY

Rev. J. M. Worrall, of the Oxford church, Ohio.

Rev. Dr. W. L. Breckinridge, of the First Presbyterian church, Louisville, Kentucky.

CALLS HAVE BEEN GIVEN TO

Rev. Henry Mandeville, D. D., of Albany, (of New-school,) to the Government street church, Mobile.

Rev. Justus T. Umsted, of Keokuk, Iowa, to the North church, Philadelphia.

Rev. J. Harrison, D. D., of Aberdeen, Mississippi, to the First church, Burlington, Iowa.

Rev. Thomas B. Neil, to church in St. Mary's, Ga.

CALLS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED BY

Rev. D. F. Buttolph, to the collegiate pastoral charge of Midway church, Georgia.

Rev. James Williamson, to the Athens church, Pa.

Rev. D. Higgins, to the Columbus church, Georgia.

Rev. Elam Smalley, D. D., to the Second church, Troy, New York.

Mr. James McCaskie, to the South-Western church, Philadelphia.

Rev. J. A. Lyon of St. Louis, to the church of Columbus, Mississippi.

Rev. J. M. Worrall, to the 1st Presbyterian church, Covington, Kentucky.

CALLS HAVE BEEN DECLINED BY

Rev. Dr. Palmer, (second time) to Central church, Cincinnati.

Rev. A. Ryors, D. D., to the First church, Madison, Ind.

Rev. Jephtha Harrison, D. D., to First Presbyterian church, Burlington, Iowa.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

April 18th, Rev. J. W. Dickey was installed pastor of the Gravel Run and Washington churches, by the Presbytery of Erie.

April 25th, Rev. J. P. Caldwell was installed pastor of Olive church, Ohio, by the Presbytery of Zanesville.

May 4th, Rev. J. L. Vallandigham was installed pastor of the churches of White Clay Creek, Head of Christiana, and Newark, by the Presbytery of New Castle.

May 31st, Mr. W. A. Fleming was ordained and installed pastor of the Farmington church, by the Presbytery of Peoria.

June 1st, Rev. Lucius W. Chapman was installed pastor of the Wyalusing, church, Pennsylvania, by the Presbytery of Susquehanna.

June 6th, Mr. D. F. Smith was ordained and installed pastor of Chaloogata church, by the Cherokee Presbytery.

June 6th, Mr. James Scott was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Holmesburg, Pennsylvania, by the Second Presbytery of Philadelphia.

June 8th, Mr. J. F. Boyd was ordained and installed pastor of the Union church, by the Presbytery of Muncie.

June 8th, Mr. C. A. Munn was ordained by the Presbytery of Muncie.

June 11th, Rev. John E. Dubose, of Presbytery of Cherokee, was received by the Presbytery of Flint River, and installed pastor of the church of Atlantic, Georgia.

June 13th, Rev. F. Goodhue was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church, Marengo, Illinois, by the Presbytery of Chicago.

June 13th, Rev. J. E. Miller was installed pastor of Stroudsburg church, Pa., by the Presbytery of Newton.

June 14th, Rev. O. V. McLean was installed pastor of the Huntington church, by the Presbytery of Huntington.

June 14th, Rev. Henry L. Doolittle was installed pastor of the Troy church, Pennsylvania, by the Presbytery of Susquehanna.

June 14th, Rev. Andrew Shiland was installed pastor of the church of Mount Kisco, by the Presbytery of Bedford.

June 18th, Rev. D. A. Wallace was installed pastor of the Nashville church, Illinois, by the Kaskaskia Presbytery.

June 20th, Rev. M. Barrett was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church of Newton, New Jersey, by the Newton Presbytery.

June 21st, Rev. E. Smalley, D. D., was installed pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Troy, New York, by the Presbytery of Troy.

June 22d, Mr. W. E. Jones was ordained and installed pastor of the Green Island church, New York, by the Presbytery of Troy.

———, Rev. Salmon Cowles was installed pastor of the West Point church, Iowa, by the Presbytery of Iowa, and also inaugurated president of Des Moines College.

June 27th, Rev. Charles H. Taylor was installed pastor of Ballston Centre church, by the Presbytery of Albany.

June 28th, Mr. John Kelley was licensed, and also ordained an Evangelist, in view of his contemplated mission to Western Africa, by the Presbytery of Washington.

July 2d, Mr. George Owen Barnes, son of Rev. James C. Barnes, D. D., was ordained by the Presbytery of Transylvania, at Danville, Kentucky, as an Evangelist, and is expected to sail for India in August or September.

July 11th, Mr. J. Bingham Ripley was ordained and installed pastor of the Mariner's church, Philadelphia, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

July 12th, Mr. James McCaskie was ordained and installed pastor of South-West Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Rev. Josiah D. Smith has been transferred from the pastoral charge of the First to that of Westminster church, Columbus, Ohio.

LICENSED.

May 23d, Mr. William Life, by the Presbytery of Lexington.

July 3d, Mr. Joseph H. Carroll, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

July 5th, Mr. William Calderwood, by the Northern Presbytery of the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Mr. Calderwood is designated for the India Mission.

July 3d, Mr. D. M. James was licensed to preach the gospel, by the Presbytery of Passaic.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. S. B. Smith, from St. Charles, Missouri, to Lewistown, Illinois.

Rev. H. Rinker from Edinburgh to Windsor, N. Y.

Rev. Luke Dorland, from Lexington to Ontario, Ohio.

Rev. T. S. Withrow, from Washington to Hartwood, Va.

Rev. J. B. Ramsay, from Brownsburg to Kerr's Creek, Virginia.

Rev. Thomas Stevenson, from Fayette to Pine Grove Mills, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Albert Shotwell, from West Point, Georgia, to Wilsonville, Kentucky.

Rev. J. P. Caldwell, from Chandlersville to Sharon, Noble County, Ohio.

Rev. J. Williamson, from Taneytown, Maryland, to Athens, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Joseph H. Fenton, from Des Peres to Kirkwood, Missouri.

Rev. R. L. Staunton, D. D., from Oakland College, Mississippi, to Washington City.

Rev. James H. Baird, from Wooster, Ohio, to Rushville, Indiana.

Rev. W. C. Mosher is Stockton, California.

Rev. Lucius W. Chapman, is Camptown, Pa.

Rev. William Life, Muncy, Lycoming County, Pa.

DEATH.

On June 30th, the Rev. Robert Vance Moore, Licentiate of Cincinnati Presbytery.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Professor Sturgis, late of Harrison College, has accepted the office of Principal in the Miami Presbyterial Academy, Monroe, Ohio.

Rev. Dr. W. L. Breckinridge has accepted the Presidency of Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri.

Rev. A. Ryors, D. D., has been elected Professor of Mathematics in Centre College, Kentucky.

Rev. James Matthews has accepted the Chair of Latin and English Literature in the same college.

Rev. Dr. Plumer has accepted the Professorship of Didactic and Pastoral Theology in Alleghany Theological Seminary.

Rev. W. C. Anderson, D. D., Oxford, Ohio, has resigned the Presidency of Miami University, and accepted an appointment as agent for the endowment of New Albany Theological Seminary.

Rev. W. H. McGuffey, D. D., LL.D., has been tendered the Presidency of Miami University.

MONEY LOST THROUGH THE POST-OFFICE.

All persons having occasion to remit money to the Board of Publication, are most earnestly requested and urged, never to inclose it in letters. During less than eighteen months, we have lost upwards of $1500 in notes, specie, and drafts. The drafts can generally be saved, by stopping payment. Comparatively little has been lost in this way. Depredators on letters are generally afraid to use drafts, and so destroy them; so that there is only a trouble and delay.

We have used every effort and precaution to avoid this drain on our resources; but it continues. The General and City Postmasters have been advised of the facts, and have co-operated with us; but thus far our efforts and theirs have proved futile.

We must therefore urge that all remittances be made in checks, payable to order, and not to bearer. Drafts on Northern or Eastern Banks will be preferred; but let those remitting, obtain checks or drafts in the most convenient way practicable.

CONTENTS.

Board of Domestic Missions.—Annual Statement of Receipts by the Board of Missions, p. 134. Receipts for June, 1854, 136.

Board of Education.—Education Debate in the General Assembly, p. 137. Receipts, p. 139.

Board of Foreign Missions.—A Word to Ministers, p. 140. Recent Intelligence, p. 140. The Presbyterian Church and Foreign Missions, p. 140. Africa: Corisco Mission; Report of the Girls' Boarding-School, Corisco, p. 141. India: Lodiana Mission; Journal of Rev. J. M. Jamieson, p. 141. China: Ningpo Mission; Letter from Rev. J. W. Quarterman, p. 142. Shanghai Mission; Popular Superstitions of the Chinese, by Rev. M. S. Culbertson, p. 143. Miscellaneous: Progress of Truth in Piedmont, p. 144. Jews in the United States, p. 145. Free Church of Scotland Institute in Madras, p. 145. Popery in England and America, p. 145. Receipts, p. 145.

Board of Publication.—Modification and Reduction of Prices, p. 146. Correspondence of Colporteurs, p. 146. Value of our Doctrinal Works—Dr. Plumer's "Grace of Christ," p. 146. Our Cause in the British Provinces, p. 146. Our Work Appreciated, p. 146. Congregational Libraries, p. 146. New Publications, p. 147. Receipts, p. 147.

Miscellaneous.—Loose Presbyterians, p. 133. Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea, p. 133. Left by the Cars, p. 133. A Child's Prayer, p. 133. "I am Strong in Him," p. 133. Historical Notices of Synods and Presbyteries, p. 148. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 148.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD.

PHILADELPHIA, AUGUST, 1854.

SYSTEMATIC BENEVOLENCE.

Address of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, to the Ministers, Churches and people, under their care.

DEAR BRETHREN—During the recent sessions of the General Assembly, at Buffalo, New York, overtures on the subject of Systematic Benevolence were presented, from several Presbyteries, requesting that the Assembly would take some order by which the churches and people of our connexion might be led to adopt, and carry out some efficient scheme for sustaining our Benevolent Institutions by regular contributions to their funds. The subject was also brought to the attention of the Assembly in other prominent and emphatic modes. The Reports of our Boards gave utterance to the most earnest desire for securing the hearty and general co-operation of the church in all her courts, and by all the members of her communion, in the various enterprises with whose management they have been entrusted.

Deeply sensible of the intrinsic importance of the subject in all its bearings, and earnestly desirous to make some suitable response to their invitations to action, the Assembly, at an early stage of its proceedings appointed a Select Committee, consisting of one member from each Synod represented, to which the overtures and other suggestions were referred. This committee having carefully and maturely considered the whole subject, presented a Report, which was adopted by the Assembly with great cordiality and unanimity.

Feeling it to be very important, together with the resolutions based on that report, calling for action on the part of the lower courts of the church, and the cheerful co-operation of the people, to communicate also the opinions and sentiments of the Assembly to all the ministers and churches, it was determined in the want of time to recast the Report into the form of an Address, to publish the whole as adopted by the Assembly, with this brief prefatory statement.

The Assembly solemnly asks your earnest and prayerful consideration of the views here presented, and trusts that you will give all diligence in promptly and faithfully executing the duties herein enjoined on the churches and Presbyteries.

Report of the Select Committee on Contributions to Benevolent objects, presented to the General Assembly, May, 1854.

The Select Committee, to whom was referred the general subject of Contributions to objects of Benevolence, beg leave to report to the Assembly, as follows:

That they have carefully examined the various Memorials and Resolutions committed to them, and are satisfied that these documents express the sentiments of the great majority of the Assembly's Presbyteries on the subject of methodical efforts for the advancement of Christ's cause and kingdom at home and abroad.

Your committee, on reviewing the repeated recommendations of the Assembly to the churches on the subject of contributing to the different causes of benevolence under its direction, are painfully reminded of the wide-spread indifference with which these recommendations have been regarded; and hence they feel a great degree of embarrassment in entering upon the duty assigned them. They are persuaded, however, that the neglect with which the Assembly's action has hitherto been treated in many instances, is not so formidable as to be beyond the reach of remedy; and to point out that remedy has been the object of earnest and prayerful consideration on the part of your committee.

The extent of this indifference to the Assembly's recommendations, and through them to the Master whose stewards we are, is truly deplorable; and imperatively demands the adoption of adequate measures for its removal.

An examination of the Assembly's Minutes for 1853, reveals some humiliating facts on this subject.

The total number of churches reported, was 2,879.

The whole number of churches reported as having contributed to the Board of Domestic Missions, was 1,322, being 112 less than-one-half the whole number of churches.

The number reported as having contributed to the Board of Foreign Missions, was 1,063, being 371 less than half, and 104 over one-third the total number of churches.

749 churches contributed to the Board of Education, being 30 more than one-fourth of the whole.

And 440 churches made contributions to the Board of Publication, being 39 less than one-sixth of the whole number.

Your committee had not the statistics before them by which to ascertain the proportion that contributed to the Church Extension Fund, another object of benevolence frequently commended by the Assembly; but they are satisfied, that the facts would show a much greater deficiency on the part of the churches, than the lowest figures above recorded.

These statements exhibit, in the judgment of your committee, a lamentable disregard of covenant obligations by a majority of the Assembly's churches. And the force of these statements would be greatly increased, if the actual number of contributing communicants in the honored minority of churches, could be distinguished from those who give nothing to advance the cause of Christ through these channels.

Another item will add to these facts a darker shading. There are many non-communicants in these congregations whose donations materially increase the revenues of our Board; and just in this proportion are the contributions of our covenanted membership diminished.

And still another consideration deserves to be noticed here. The sums paid to the Board of Foreign Missions outside of our church, the legacies bequeathed to the different Boards, and the private donations amounting to large sums in the aggregate all go to prove that the collections taken up in a methodical manner in the contributing churches constitute an annual offering totally unworthy of being laid by 220,000 redeemed sinners, upon the altar of consecration to Him who hath bought us with His own priceless blood.

If these facts could be drawn forth into the definite array of figures, the committee fear that only an aggregate minority of communicants in the contributing churches would be found to sustain methodically and conscientiously, the Assembly's cherished instrumentality of doing good to souls.

But there is another point of view from which any delinquencies of the majority of our churches should be examined. The degree of responsibility under any obligation is in proportion to ability to discharge it. Our Master has said, "Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required;" and his apostle has said, "It is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." Now, it is notorious that a vast amount of wealth is harvested in the Presbyterian Church, and hoarded there, of which the Lord of the Harvest receives not a tithe. In addition to this, a large proportion of the current funds which sustain the operations of trade and business, pass daily through the hands of a numerous class of our communicants, leaving a profit in their possession; or as the rewards of daily labor, providing abundance of the good things of this life. From all the channels through which money is acquired with manual labor and without it, in which the present times have an unexampled distinction, and in which our churches largely share, how very small must be the proportion which flows into the treasuries of the Lord!

In the unparalleled prosperity which waits upon production and commerce, there is a scriptural demand for an unparalleled increase of the funds of organized benevolence. But your committee are constrained to say, that they look in vain for this result in the funds placed at the disposal of the Assembly's Boards. The enlargement of funds hardly keeps pace with the increase of churches and membership, and falls far behind the enlarged responsibility which accumulating means bring with them. In past seasons of ordinary prosperity, both the number and amount of our contributions should have been greatly multiplied, as we have already seen. When God bestows any good upon us, it is a law both of our moral nature and of His kingdom, that some expressive return should show our grateful sense of His mercies; and when He pours upon us signal favors, He expects an appropriate response. Your committee believe that through the length and breadth of the Presbyterian Church, that response which these times of temporal prosperity demand, has with almost no exceptions, been withheld.

Another consideration, and the last one we shall notice here, is, the daily enlargement of the great field of Christian effort. The theatre for exertion in and cause of Christ is as broad as the world; and access to important points at home and abroad, where sanctified labor may be successfully employed is opening rapidly, but not improved. Many fields lie waste, because God's people withhold from God's servants the means to enter and to cultivate them. When the highways are cast up among the nations by the King of Zion, he calls his servants to enter, and by the same act he calls for the means to sustain them. Our responsibility therefore widens with the expansion of the field before us. The calls are for the most part unheeded; and the glaring sins of indifference and covetousness rest upon the churches.

How can this adverse state of things be accounted for? Your committee might enlarge upon the causes, but prefer the less unpleasant task of suggesting a remedy.

But there are to any remedy certain barriers, which must be removed. One of these we mention with great reluctance, and yet we sincerely believe that there will be found in it a principal obstacle. We mean the apathy of the teaching and ruling eldership in relation to this entire subject. The criminal neglect of many churches to honor the Lord with their substance and with the first fruits of all their increase, is occasioned in a great measure by the neglect of their teachers to expound faithfully and frequently the law of Christ's kingdom in relation to this obvious and explicit duty, explaining the scriptural method of obeying it, and the scriptural motives to obedience. The Word of God on almost every page contains something in relation to this law, its motive or its method. And in view of this fact, it is difficult to account for the prevalent error, which regards this duty more as advice than precept, and more as optional than obligatory, unless the solution is discovered in the remissness of the ministry, "rightly to divide the word of truth" on this particular point. Your committee would repel the charge of indiscriminately censuring our brethren in the Lord whom we love and venerate as a pious, learned and able ministry, to which many of us belong; but we appeal to the established principle that faithful pastoral labor in the pulpit, and in the family, is followed sooner or later with commensurate success; and when applied to the point before us, the committee express their firm conviction, founded upon their own experience and observation, that not one of the Assembly's churches which enjoys the stated means of grace, would remain delinquent after receiving the faithful and affectionate instructors of the ministry on the scriptural law of beneficence, its motive and its method. Give the people light, and by the help of God's Spirit they will walk in it. The want of information is in many minds, a greater obstacle than want of disposition. The conscience of our people, enlightened by the Spirit of God, and regulated by the Word of God, may be safely trusted on this or any other subject. The clergy and the laity of our beloved Zion believe that they draw nearer to the great source of Truth in doctrine and in polity than any other branch of the Church of Christ. If we occupy such a sacred nearness to the Fountain of Infinite Truth and Love, let it be seen that our practice corresponds with our profession, and our progress with our advantages.

The Committee quote from one of the resolutions placed in their hands, that "the doctrine of the Scriptures interpreted by the Confession of Faith," is "that collections for pious uses, are a part of the regular ordinances of worship on every Sabbath."* The truth should be plainly stated, that while our creed is orthodox, the practice of many of our churches in this department of Christian duty is heretical; and they are so far guilty of "holding the truth in unrighteousness." The question, whether covetousness, like any other sin, should not be disciplined, ought to engage in these days of Christ's coming, the profound attention of every Presbytery and every session; and no person in the opinion of the Committee, should be admitted to sealing ordinances, whose views on this subject are not clear and scriptural. Every member of the church, is under a solemn recorded obligation to do his part to sustain the cause of Christ. What his part is, he is left to determine in prayer before God, and in the light of the Divine Word. He is a laborer in the vineyard, and must work. No excuse will justify, but absolute inability. Whoever is able to earn his living, is able to give something to Christ's cause. At convenient seasons, he should "lay by him in store, as God has prospered him," a portion of his earnings for Thank-Offerings, to the Giver of every good. Let it be done with consistent liberality; for "the liberal soul shall be made fat." Let it be done cheerfully: for "God loveth a cheerful giver." Every communicant who is above the necessity of receiving alms, who withholds his gift however humble, is guilty of the sin of "covetousness, which is idolatry. The Saviour pointed out a much loftier act of self-denial than the foregoing, when He commended the poor widow's donation, and valued her two mites, which were all her living, above the costlier contributions of ostentatious alms.

The wealth in the Presbyterian Church, in whatever form it may exist or circulate, is consecrated wealth. It became so, by the act which received its possessors into membership. And your Committee are convinced, that the practical denial of this truth clearly reveals one great cause of the decline of vital godliness, which extensively prevails throughout all our borders, and over which this Assembly mourns. The tithes and offerings are not brought into the storehouse; and consequently, God's blessing is not poured out, and Zion languishes. Powerful awakenings are almost unknown. The ministry is not adequately supplied with recruits, nor adequately supported. Sinful conformity to the customs and fashions of a world lying in wickedness, and under God's curse, is rapidly levelling the distinctions which should be preserved erect and prominent, between the church and the world. This evil is the more dangerous, because its approach is gradual, and its inroads covered by specious pretexts, that wear the garb of Christian propriety, which is a character frequently assumed by covetousness and pride.

In order to arrest these destructive tendencies, all scriptural means must be employed. But your Committee are confined to one of these. And they would urge upon their brethren, the much disregarded truth, that liberality is an indispensable means of grace. To employ it successfully, the scriptural motives to beneficence should be fixed in the conscience, and influence the heart. These motives may be variously expressed; but we arrange them, for the sake of brevity, into three classes:

1. Philanthropy is one of these. But it is the lowest motive, and may be shared in common by the religious and the irreligious. Where it exists as a controlling motive, it is guided more by emotion and sympathy, than by principle; and often leads the Christian to find in worldly associations, the ways of doing good, to the partial or entire exclusion of the church, which is the great benevolent society formed by Jesus Christ, its Head; and thereby much of the means of usefulness, which ought to flow through sanctified channels, is expended upon measures of temporary or doubtful utility.

2. Love to the souls of men is another motive, which elevates the preceding from the temporal to the eternal. It is philanthropy sanctified. It does not neglect the physical wants of man; but it values beyond every other estimate his spiritual necessities. The realities of death, judgment and eternity, apprehended as not far distant, coupled with the awful fact, that the day of grace is hourly closing upon thousands of our fellow-men, present an overwhelming motive to sanctified exertion.

3. But there is still another motive, which absorbs the first and second, as the greater includes the less. It is a supreme regard to the glory of God. This is the highest motive that can be addressed to the conscience and the heart. It places all human interests in their true relations to our Maker. It consecrates time, talents and property, to the service of Christ. It sets out from the right point of exertion, to relieve the temporal and spiritual wants of man. It is sustained by the approbation of conscience and the favor of God. If the most benevolent plans, prosecuted under this paramount motive, should fail of success, and labor and means, appear to be thrown away, the reflection that every act was done for God's glory, will extract the sting of disappointment, for God's will has been done, and the reward is laid up in heaven. This motive, therefore supplies what no other motive can. It has less to do with mere human feelings and sympathies, and more to do with divine principles, which should regulate all the desires and susceptibilities of the soul. This is the motive which should be brought to bear continually upon the Christian life and practice; and when its influence shall become paramount in all our communions, the Presbyterian Church will come up with one supreme purpose to the service of her Head, and lay her sons and daughters, and her costliest offerings, upon the altar of consecration to His cause.

Fully impressed by the facts and principles thus briefly presented, we turn anxiously to inquire, in what way the General Assembly may, in the exercise of its legitimate power, endeavor to remedy the evils on which we have animadverted, and draw out the resources of the whole church, in sustaining the enterprises of Christian benevolence, which have been wisely organized by the Assembly itself, or by other ecclesiastical authorities of our church.

* Form of Government, Chap. VII.—The ordinances established by Christ, the Head, in a particular church, which is regularly constituted with its proper officers, are prayer, singing praises, reading, expounding and preaching the Word of God; administering baptism and the Lord's Supper; public, solemn fasting and thanksgiving, catechising, making collections for the poor and other pious purposes; exercising discipline, and blessing the people.

Directory for Worship Chap. VI. sec. 5.—The sermon being ended, the minister is to pray, and return thanks to God; then let a psalm be sung; a collection raised for the poor, and other purposes of the church; and the Assembly dismissed with the Apostolic benediction.

As a fair exposition of the great principles of a scriptural church order, we believe our constitution now provides all the requisite organization for efficient effort, in every department of such enterprizes.

The church is a divinely constituted missionary society, and its courts are specific forms of executive agency, for the work of propagating, as well as preserving the truth.

To the General Assembly, as the Supreme Court of the Church, charged with the duty of providing measures, whose operations may be co-extensive with our ecclesiastical limits, "for the promotion of truth, charity and holiness, in all the churches," properly belongs the work of presenting to the Presbyteries and other subordinate courts, and urging on their adoption and execution, by the moral power with which it has been intrusted, wise and practicable methods of procedure in all the departments of service, necessary to the fulfilment of the great obligations devolving on the church.

This duty can be performed without entrenching on any rights of conscience, neither "lording it over God's heritage" by enacting laws which require a blind and implicit obedience, not arrogating to itself the province of the State in laying taxes even for the support of the best interests which are connected with human duty and destiny. Its power is moral. It is that with which the church has clothed it. Though more than advisory, it is less than arbitrary. To those bodies, the Presbyteries, which, by commissioners, constitute the Assembly itself, it can address the language of requisition to the discharge of duties clearly recognized and cheerfully admitted. The Presbyteries sustain a similar relation to the Pastor and church sessions, the former, personally, and the latter by representatives, being their constituent elements. These, in turn, sustain a similar relation to the people, who have submitted themselves, under the laws of the church and according to the principles of a moral government, to their authority. When, therefore, the various courts of the church have established instrumentalities for the promotion of religious knowledge, they are not only privileged but bound to use the authority with which they have been entrusted, to procure the means, for rightly sustaining such instrumentalities, by devising the plans and diligently supervising their proper execution.

It is easily seen, that were all the members of our communion to comply with the Scripture injunction, to give of their substance for sustaining the cause of Christian Benevolence "as God has prospered them," there would be a large increase in the incomes of all our schemes, whether connected with the church at large, as represented in the Assembly, or established by any of our subordinate ecclesiastical authorities. Now to procure such contributions, it is not so material, that any particular plan be urged on the churches, in whose details, all should agree, and according to whose provisions all should act. All that is properly demanded, is that the duty of securing the desired result should be urged, and its execution enforced. If an Ecclesiastical Court possesses the right to prescribe any particular duty, it must also possess the right to enquire into its performance.

According to these plain and simple principles, which are clearly and succinctly presented in the overture submitted by the Presbyteries of Lexington and Elizabethtown, we are prepared to recommend for the adoption of the Assembly the following Resolutions, which embrace in substance those presented in that overture:

1. Resolved, That this Assembly hereby enjoins upon the pastors of our churches to give greater prominence in the ministration of the word, to the doctrine of the Scripture as set forth and interpreted in our standards, (more particularly chap. 26, sec. 2. of the Confession; in quest. 121 of the Larger Catechism; in chap. 7, of the Form of Government; and in chap. 6, sec. 5, of the Directory for Worship) namely, that "saints are, by profession, bound to maintain an holy fellowship and communion, in relieving each other in outward things according to their several abilities and necessities, which communion, as God offereth opportunities, is to be extended unto all those, who in every place call upon the name of the Lord Jesus," "giving and lending freely, according to their abilities, and in conformity to this doctrine, recognizing as one of the ordinances, established by Christ," in connection with the sermon, prayer and praise, a "collection raised for the poor and other purposes of the Church."

2. Resolved, The Presbyteries which have not anticipated the provisions of this action of the Assembly, are most earnestly and affectionately enjoined, (1) at their meeting following the rising of this Assembly, to take order, that the ministers and church sessions in their bounds shall be directed to adopt some practical method, by which an opportunity shall be afforded, and an invitation given to all the members of their congregations, to contribute regularly to the objects of Christian benevolence, recognized by the Assembly, in the organization of the Boards of the Church, and to such other institutions as, to them, may seem right.

And (2) at every spring meeting to institute a proper inquiry into the diligence of ministers and church sessions in executing the provisions of such method.

3. Resolved, The Presbyteries are further enjoined to enter on record and report to the next General Assembly, their action on the first part of the foregoing resolution, and also to record at their next and all subsequent spring meetings, the result of the inquiry prescribed, and report the same to the General Assembly, with the usual annual Presbyterial Reports, stating the delinqencies and diligence of pastors and Church sessions.

4. Resolved, There shall be appointed a standing committee on Systematic Benevolence, by the Assembly, which shall be charged with the reception and examination of such Reports, and the presentation to the Assembly of their aggregate results.

5. Resolved, The Boards of the Church are invited to aid in the proper execution of the foregoing arrangements of the Churches, by such official communications with the Presbyteries as may seem proper.

6. Resolved, The Professors of our Theological Seminaries are respectfully requested to give proper attention to the right training of the future pastors of the Church in view of the duties herein contemplated.

The Committee also presented as part of their Report, and recommend for the consideration of the Church Sessions and pastors, one or other of such plans,

FOR STATED AND REGULAR CONTRIBUTIONS

as the following.

1. A committee may be appointed by the Sessions for each object of benevolence, and a particular month assigned, in which they are to do their work, by calling upon the people, or otherwise obtainining their contributions.

2. All the objects to be aided may be presented in separate columns, and each contributor called upon to say what he will give quarterly or annually.

3. Weekly or monthly collections may be taken up, and thrown into a benevolent fund, which the Session may divide among the several objects ap^{a} proved by them, in such proportion as they think proper.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME V. No. 9. | PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER, 1854. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

THE MERCIES OF DAVID.

O Lord God, turn not away the face of thine anointed: remember the mercies of David thy servant.—2 Chron. vi. 42.

The Jewish kings were anointed with oil: thus Saul is called the Lord's anointed: 2 Samuel i. 14, 21. Jesus Christ, our Prophet, Priest, and King, is the true anointed: Heb. i. 9.

The mercies of David are the promises made to David; as in 2 Samuel, vii. 8–16; Psalm lxxxix. 20–37; and Psalm cxxxii. 1–18. These promises apply to Christ and the blessings of the covenant; and then the mercies of David become the sure mercies of David, as in Isaiah lv. 3. The quotations made from these passages in the New Testament show their application to Jesus Christ, king David's royal son. See Acts xiii. 34; Heb. i. 5; Acts ii. 30. And hath raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David: Luke i. 69.

In closing his prayer at the dedication of the temple, Solomon enforces his petitions by two cogent arguments:

1. The first, is his own relation to God: Turn not away the face of thine anointed—deny me not—put me not to shame by denying my requests—for I have been anointed king over thy people Israel. No doubt Solomon has reference to the promised Messiah, and prays to be heard and accepted for his sake; but he also pleads his own relation to God, as the anointed king of Israel. He had been properly inducted into office—he was anointed with oil; and he prays that he may be heard, because he sustains this relation to God and his people, and not have his face turned away with shame, because his petitions are denied.

So we may plead our relations, in our prayers to God, in the name of Christ. Are we rulers? we may plead this relation in our prayers. Are we subjects? we may plead this also at the mercy-seat. Do we hold office in the church? we may plead this before God. Are we members of the church? we may plead our relations to God, as his people, before his throne. Are we parents? we may pray to be blessed as parents. Are we children? and is the seal of God's covenant upon us? we may plead our covenant-relation to God, and ask him to bless us, as the seed of his people, according to his promise. David pleads this, when he says: I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid, Ps. cxvi. 16; I am a child of the covenant—save the son of thine handmaid. Ps. lxxxvi. 16. This is the argument implied wherever God is addressed as the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob—a covenant-keeping God; and the children of the covenant may ever use this argument in prayer; and not to use it, is to despise our birthright, as did Esau, and sell it for less than a mess of pottage! Gen. xxv. 29–34; Heb. xiii. 14–17.

2. Hence, Solomon's second argument is, the promises of God: Remember the mercies of David thy servant. No doubt there is reference to Christ and his benefits, as Solomon desired that both he and his people might partake of them; but the primary reference is to the mercies promised to David, and these included Christ, his kingdom, and benefits. In the urgency of his prayer, Solomon pleads God's promises—the promises made to David. In 2 Samuel, vii. 8–16, we see what mercies were promised to David: I will set up thy seed after thee. . . . . I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom for ever. I will be his father, and he shall be my son. . . . And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever. The same promises we have in Ps. cxxxii. 1–18—The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it: Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne. . . . There will I make the horn of David to bud: I have ordained a lamp for mine anointed. His enemies will I clothe with shame: but upon himself shall his crown flourish. See also Psalm lxxxix. 20–37. These promises relate to David's kingdom, but have their ultimate fulfilment in Jesus Christ. See Isaiah lv. 3; Luke i. 69; Acts ii. 30; Acts xiii. 34; Heb. i. 5. These promises and others Solomon pleads—with this argument he closes his prayer: O Lord, thou hast promised to bless my father's house and establish his throne; remember thy promises—the mercies of David thy servant!

So we may plead God's promises in our addresses at the mercy-seat. Exceeding great and precious promises are put on record for our encouragement; and these promises are yea and amen in Christ Jesus. We may plead them before God; and, in pleading them, come boldly unto the throne of grace. We need his Spirit—he has promised his Spirit; let us ask, that we may receive. We need daily supplies of grace—it is promised; let us plead these promises. We need strength for the duties and trials of our various relations; his strength is perfected in weakness—let us seek it in prayer. He has bound himself by covenant engagements to bless his people and their offspring; it is our high privilege to plead these covenant engagements when we come before him in prayer. As Solomon said, so may we say: Remember the mercies of David thy servant—remember the promises made to the fathers, and bless us, their children. O Lord God, turn not away the face of thine anointed: remember the mercies of David thy servant!

Remarks:

I. Encouragement to Christians in three respects: 1. To seek larger measures of grace. 2. To seek greater degrees of comfort. 3. To be more importunate in prayer.

II. It has a three-fold application to the children of the church:—1. They may be instructed by it as to their covenant relations, duties, and privileges. 2. They may be reproved by it, for lightly esteeming the covenant and their relation to it. 3. They may be encouraged by it to seek the Lord now, while he is waiting to be gracious. W. J. M.

From the Dublin University Magazine.

DEATH.

Angel, who treadest in the track of Time!
Guarding the entrance to that unknown clime,
Whence come no whispers to the world below,
Whence not a song we hear
Of triumph or of cheer,
Or sound of happy footsteps passing to and fro.

Pale as the Maybell trembling in the breeze
Thou makest youthful cheeks. The summer seas
Lose their calm blue beneath thy waving wing;
Fierce storms thou summonest
From the deep mountain breast,
To be thy pursuivants when thou art wandering.

Thy name is terrible; thine icy breath
Stern order to the War-Fiend uttereth,
Who stains the pleasant turf a fearful red;
Or dashes in the wave
A myriad of spirits brave,
For whose eternal rest no saintly song is said.

Yet have I known thee, Death, with gentle hand
Lead some poor wanderer to the heavenly land,
Amid the purple light of autumn eves;
While to the harvest moon
Arose a rustic tune
From sunburnt, lusty reapers, binding up their sheaves.

And even if, in some too cruel mood,
Thou didst neglect the weary multitude,
To clutch the fair bride in her orange bloom—
To dim her eyes of light
Upon the marriage night,
And bear her pallid beauty to the marble tomb;

Or the sweet child who prattles all day long
Didst touch with chillness 'mid his cradle song—
Yet, unrepining, let us hope and pray.
The Master calls his own
Up to his golden throne;
When they are gathered there, thou, Death, shalt pass away.

From the New York Observer.

THE DECISIVE MOMENT.

A few years since while travelling in an adjacent State, along the banks of a majestic river, a friend pointed to the flashing current, and related the following incident: Not long before, when the spring rains filled the broad channel with a surging flood, a lumberman ventured out in a boat upon a bay, to save timber which was breaking from its fastenings, and would soon be swept down the stream, unless secured. In his absorbing interest to prevent the loss, he went too far into the rushing tide. His little bark was caught by the current, and amid wild cries for help, he was born away, arrow-like, before the tumultuous waters. The alarm spread, and a neighbour recollecting there was a bridge several miles below, mounted a horse and hastened to reach that only place of rescue. Onward in helpless calmness, the imperilled boatman sped; and on the shore his deliverer rode with the fleetness of a courier towards the bridge. Reaching the structure, which trembled to the violence of the flood, he called for a rope, and throwing it over the arch, waited the approach of the pale and anxious man. He saw the swaying cord, and as he swept beneath it, grasped with the energy of a last hope, the thread of life. In another moment, he was in the embrace of friends. And I have thought when I have seen men concerned for their souls' salvation, and on the current of depravity sweeping them away, there must come a decisive crisis—a last offer of mercy; and who shall say when the friendly hand of a Redeemer will be withdrawn for ever? "I might have been saved," will be the keenest pang in the agonies of the second death, while the vision rests on the moment which decided the entrance upon the infinite deep of retributive waste. P. C. H.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.

Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.

Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

THE BOARDS OF OUR CHURCH.

The following extracts are from the "Biblical Repertory and Princeton Review," July No. pp. 559-561. The Reviewer referring to the discussion which took place in the last General Assembly, on the subject of the Boards of our Church, says:

"Both these gentlemen" (the Rev. Messrs. Stuart Robinson and George D. Armstrong,) "expressed the opinion that there was a growing dissatisfaction with the working of our Boards. It was time, Mr. Robinson thought, to consider whether there was not a more excellent way. Several brethren from the West spoke with feeling, from their own experience of the necessity of greater exertions in this cause. Among them, Mr. Pawling, from western Missouri, Mr. Goodhue, from Illinois, Mr. Stafford, and others, made very effective appeals to the Assembly. Mr. Comfort, an Elder from Virginia, made a very forcible speech in defence of the Board" (of Missions,) "denying in behalf of the laity, any of those feelings of dissatisfaction which a few of the ministers seemed to entertain. Dr. Spring spoke with much effect on the same side. Dr. Musgrave, Secretary of the Board, closed the debate by one of the ablest and most effective speeches delivered on the floor of the Assembly for a long time. The paper given above was then adopted with scarce a show of opposition. The sense of the House was so strongly evinced in favour of the Boards, and in opposition to mere speculative objections to their existence, that we presume the controversy will not be renewed. It seems indeed unworthy of debate, whether the body appointed to carry on our benevolent operations be called a Committee, and be appointed by the Assembly, or whether it be called a Board. In the one case it would be a small body, in the other large. The former method has the advantage of simplicity, but the latter has considerations in its favour which are not likely to lose their influence on the Church. In the first place, they have been incorporated in our church policy for years, and a change, without adequate reason, is unbecoming and disparaging. In the second place, they are a necessary intermediate agency between the Assembly and its executive officers. The Assembly cannot conduct its Theological Seminaries otherwise than through the intervention of a Board. It cannot attend the examinations, see to the fidelity of the professors, and the conduct of the students. Neither can it otherwise conduct with advantage, its missionary or educational operations. It cannot inspect the action of the executive committee and secretaries. It cannot go into any minute examination of the wisdom of their appointments and disbursements. Some of us are old enough to remember, how our New-School brethren endeavoured to break down the Missionary operations of the Assembly, by insisting that if the Assembly undertook to conduct missions, it must go into all the details, it must sit in judgment on the qualifications of every missionary, and on the economy of every item of expenditure. They saw, what the Church, with few exceptions, now sees, that to abolish our Boards, is virtually to give up the whole work of missions and education. In a small, compact body, like the Church of Scotland, with a permanent commission to refer to in any emergency, it may do for the Assembly to conduct all its operations by simple Committees. But, in a body as large and as widely extended as ours, a division of labour is absolutely necessary. You cannot send a great army on a foraging party, or to build a bridge.

In the third place, the abolition of the Boards would throw a responsibility and power on the Executive committees and Secretaries which they ought not to be entrusted with. Their accountability to a body like the General Assembly, which, from its nature, is incapable of effective inspection, would be merely nominal. The whole work would really be in the hands of a very few men, without any real supervision and control. Our complaints against the management of the American Home Missionary Society, whose whole power was in the hands of a few men in New York, should make us sensible that any irresponsible power is a dangerous thing. And, not to prolong an unnecessary discussion, it may be remarked, that our Boards serve the purpose of break-waters. In calm weather they seem unnecessary and an incumbrance. But, when a storm comes, they are an essential protection. So long as everything goes on well, the responsibility of the Executive Committees to the Boards seems merely nominal; and one might be disposed to think they might as well be out of the way as not. But let anything go wrong; let any emergency arise in which long examination into details is necessary, the existence of a body intermediate between the Committees and the Assembly becomes all-important. As to the objection that the Scriptures know nothing of Boards; that they are not Church Courts, &c., we would only say, this is the jus divinum theory in its dotage. God has not sent his Church into the world as an infant in its swaddling clothes, without liberty of action; he has given her a work to do, which requires the free use of her limbs; and it will be found hard work to bind her with split hairs."

CLOTHING.

We were sorry to learn that some of our lady-friends were under the impression, that some of the clothing forwarded to us for the use of our missionaries is occasionally sold, and the proceeds placed to the credit of the Board. To correct such an erroneous impression, we state explicitly, that the rules of the Board positively prohibit the sale of any clothing, and that all the clothing that is sent to us is forwarded to the missionaries—not as a part of their salary, but in addition to it, and as a donation from their benevolent friends. Their fair patrons may rest assured that their benevolent gifts are never diverted from their intended object, and that the clothing which they send, often adds greatly to the comfort of the missionaries and their beloved families. While writing on this subject, we take occasion to observe, that if the friends of the Gospel were more generally and fully aware of the actual wants of many of the missionaries and their dependent households, they would send to us many more boxes of clothing for their relief. The more we become acquainted with their necessities, the more deeply do we sympathize with them, and the more earnest is our desire to relieve them.

In this connection we desire to express our hearty thanks to the ladies of the Rev. Dr. Boardman's church for the very large amount of clothing furnished by them to our missionaries. No less than nine boxes, valued at $930 60 were furnished by them during the past year. The good thus effected by them is their best reward!

A MINISTER WANTED.

We direct the attention of unemployed ministers or licentiates to the following communication. From the description of the field given by brother Dorrance, it must be a desirable location to one adapted to it. We trust that it will not be long before they obtain a preacher "who can with earnestness divide the word of life, and press upon his hearers 'each a portion,'" whether by the use of a written discourse or without it, as he shall deem best adapted to his gifts, and the tastes and wants of the people.

Wilkesbarre, June 28, 1854.

Permit me, through your columns, to call the attention of any unemployed, but good, active, and faithful minister or licentiate to a field of usefulness. In the thriving village of Hazleton, Luzerne Co., Pa., a Presbyterian Church has recently been organized under favourable auspices. A new house of worship, a neat and substantial building, has been erected at a cost of some $3500, the furnishing of which is very complete. Connected with this as a pastoral charge is Beaver Meadow, four miles distant, a quiet and pleasant village, with a commodious church edifice. Then, four or five miles farther east is the lively village of Weatherly, where a small, but neat and convenient chapel is ready to be occupied by a zealous minister, when such is found.

These three villages will make a pleasant pastoral charge, and one in which an active and devoted servant of Christ might be very useful. These localities, in the mountain coal-fields of Pennsylvania, are remarkable for healthfulness. They are easy of access from Philadelphia by railroad nearly the whole distance. A competent support will be given, say some $500 or $600 per annum, which, among a kind-hearted people, is quite sufficient for an unmarried man, or for one with a small family.

To an enterprising preacher of the gospel this is an inviting field of labour. A man whose whole idea of a minister's vocation is, that he prepare an elaborate theological discourse, and on Sabbath read it off heavily to a listless audience, would be of no use here. But one who can with earnestness divide the word of life, and press upon his hearers "each a portion," would be most acceptable and useful.

The congregations are composed of intelligent persons, many of them young men, who from different parts of the country have gathered here, and find employment in the coal operations. Further information, if desired, may be obtained from Ario Pardee, Esq., Hazleton, or Rev. Richard Webster, Mauch Chunk. The congregations have been some time vacant, and would cordially receive a visit from any suitable man who is disposed to cast in his lot with them.

Yours, &c.
John Dorrance.

CALIFORNIA.

We commend the following highly interesting letter of one of our esteemed missionaries in California to all our readers, but especially to ministers who are seeking fields of usefulness. From his statements they will perceive that there are various points in California where ministers are greatly needed and where they would be comfortably supported. We are rejoiced to learn that the moral and religious state of California is so rapidly improving, and trust that the brightest hopes of our friends there may be fully realized. We shall be very glad to hear again and often from our respected correspondent.

Stockton, California, May 29th, 1854.

Rev. Dr. Musgrave.

My Dear Sir:—I wrote you a short letter from San Francisco, early in February, merely to inform you of my safe arrival in California, and I promised to write again so soon as I should select a permanent field of labour. At that time I had visited only two or three small places on San Francisco Bay, but afterwards I went to Sacramento, to ascertain by personal inquiries what prospect there might be for organizing a branch of our Church in that place. I was there told that the enterprise would be attended with many difficulties, inasmuch as the field was already occupied by the Congregationalists, with whom all the Presbyterians in the city had united, (and they were few in number,) and from which they were at present unwilling to withdraw. It was their intention to do so, however, so soon as their numbers should be sufficiently increased by immigration, to enable them to build a church and support a minister.

I concluded, therefore, to visit some of those towns in the Southern mining region, which hitherto had been entirely neglected by ministers of every denomination. On my way to the Southern mines I called at Stockton, where I received many kind attentions from Rev. James Woods, who was one of the pioneer ministers of California. He located at Stockton in 1849, and remained firmly at his post amid the tremendous gold excitement which hurried almost every one into the mines. In 1850 he caused to be erected an edifice capable of holding about 350 people, and organized a church, which since then has been increased to about forty members. By his private and public labours, combined with a consistent Christian example, a healthy moral influence has been exerted on this whole community. But his health had become so much impaired by his constant exertions and want of rest, that he expressed his intention of soon resigning the charge of his church, for the purpose of recruiting. He was therefore desirous to have me supply the vacancy, which his departure would occasion. In this request, the other brethren also joined him, considering it quite as important to maintain churches already established in prominent localities, as to organize new ones in the back settlements.

After a detention of several days at Stockton, by the heavy rains which rendered the roads impassable, I proceeded about the 1st of March to Murphy's Camp, 75 miles west, and located in a delightful valley of the Sierra Nevada mountains. After remaining at Murphy's till the 5th of April, and preaching twice every Sabbath to large congregations of miners, I received a letter from three of the Elders of the Stockton church inviting me to return and supply the pulpit made vacant by the resignation of Rev. Mr. Woods. I complied with this invitation, and returned immediately to Stockton, where I am still preaching.

This is simply an outline of what I have done since I last wrote you.

I have very few missionary incidents to record. It may not be uninteresting, however, to state my impressions of the social and religious condition of the country; and in doing this I shall omit to say anything in regard to the delightful climate, fertile soil, splendid scenery, and sources of wealth of California, because much has been written on these subjects already.

There is much in the social and moral condition of California to encourage a Christian minister, and much to dishearten him. While the people as a mass are exceedingly generous and kind, they are at the same time, to a great extent, deistic in sentiment and grossly immoral. Deism and Universalism prevail to an alarming extent, and poison the very fountains of society.

The majority of the ministers in California, have, I think, mistaken the prevalent moral disease of many of the people. Scepticism evidently lies at the foundation of the utter disregard of religion, and the wide-spread immorality that prevails to so great an extent. Hence, very little good is effected by preaching, in the customary manner, only repentance and faith, to men, who either deny revelation altogether, or else affirm, that if there be a future state, as the Bible declares, all men will be equally happy irrespective of their characters. Ministers must be able to answer readily and convincingly the objections of the sceptic—they must not take too much for granted, but while they declare the necessity of repentance and holiness, they must also set forth arguments for the truth of the Bible, and convince the men who turn the religion of Christ into ridicule, that the same Saviour at whose precepts they now mock, will in turn, "laugh in the day of their calamity, and mock when their fear cometh."

Among the immense multitudes of every nation who have assembled on these Pacific shores, every other thought seems to be merged into that of acquiring wealth. Gold is the God almost universally worshipped. To obtain it every energy of mind and body is taxed to the utmost. The effect of this upon the character is very marked and striking. On entering the country for the first time, one is particularly struck with the feverish excitement, restlessness and discontent depicted on the countenance of every man he meets. "Now or never" is the feeling that prevails. This golden opportunity will soon pass away, never to return. Such is the feeling that urges on the individual to contend against the most formidable obstacles, and endure the severest discomforts and privations.

Many of the more wealthy and fortunate live in a sort of regal magnificence; but the immense fortunes they have accumulated, instead of diminishing, seem rather to have increased their appetite for more. Such indeed is the natural effect of riches.

Others, who have been less fortunate, complain of hard times and low prices, and sigh after what they call "the good old days of '49." Many such have told me of the immense fortunes they have squandered in gambling and dissipation, and of their resolution to lead a different life, so soon as their former losses should be repaired.

And there is another large class of men, who came to California expecting to pick up gold as plentifully as stones in the street; but, being disappointed in these expectations, and finding that men must dig here, as elsewhere, if they would thrive, they have become disheartened, reckless, and desperate. Some resolve on returning home so soon as they shall have acquired the means of doing so, while others, setting at defiance the laws of God and man, declare that the world owes them a living, and a living they will have at all hazards.

Hence there are more robberies and murders committed at present, than at any former period. Two murderers, recently convicted, confessed before their execution, that they were connected with large organized bands, under skilful leaders, who carried on their depredations from one end of the State to the other. In some of the mountain districts it is quite unsafe for a man to travel by himself. Hundreds of murders are committed, that never come to light; and those that are discovered excite little attention, on account of their frequency.

Among many of all classes of society, decent morality is almost unknown. Licentiousness, gambling, drunkenness, profanity, and Sabbath-breaking abound to a frightful extent. The worst passions of the human heart have free play—being restrained neither by public sentiment, nor by the principles of our holy religion. Duelling is the common method of settling difficulties. Theft and robbery are still punished with death in many instances.

A general impression prevails, that no store nor tavern can be supported on temperance principles. Hence, it is rare to see a store, tavern, or boarding-house where liquors are not exposed for sale. The amount of drunkenness and profanity beggars all description, especially upon the Sabbath, which by the masses is made a day of recreation and amusement, instead of a day of holy rest. Many who, at the East, bore fair characters, and who were even members of churches, have become in California the ringleaders in vice. So true is it, that the greater the height from which one falls, the deeper he sinks and the more signal his ruin. But when we reflect that the population is a mixture of all races, and that a large proportion have never enjoyed the advantages of a Christian education, nor felt the influences of Christian society, and that here there are cast around them scarcely any of the restraints of virtuous female intercourse, a better state of morals could hardly be expected.

I have already mentioned that I spent four weeks at Murphy's camp, one of the most easterly mining towns in Calaveras county. It is situated in a beautiful valley, surrounded by lofty and picturesque mountains. Within the radius of a mile, more than a thousand miners are engaged in washing gold. For five months previous to my arrival, the Camp had not been visited by a minister of any denomination. But, in spite of this, I found quite a number of Christian brethren, who had been accustomed to hold a prayer-meeting every Sabbath morning at 9 o'clock. At 11 o'clock they again assembled in a school-house, where, in the absence of a minister, one of their number conducted religious services, and sometimes read one of Newton's sermons. These brethren were members of different denominational churches, but, I trust, they were real members of the true invisible church of Christ. They were a part of the seven thousand in Israel, who had not bowed the knee to Baal. They exerted a salutary influence on the whole camp, which had the reputation of being the most moral town in the mountains. And this reputation was unquestionably due to these heroic followers of Jesus. It was cheering to find a few roses blooming in a spiritual desert, and to meet with this little band of gallant Christian soldiers, who, amid the most corrupting influences, and surrounded by a host of enemies, had maintained untarnished that faith which was once delivered to the saints. But among the miners generally, irreligion and immorality extensively prevailed. Having no disposition to assemble for worship on the Sabbath, they spent the day in purchasing their weekly supplies, washing clothes, writing letters, gambling, and attending bull-fights. These bull-fights have been introduced into various parts of California by the Mexicans. Many of the miners, however, who at first appeared to be the most reckless and depraved, I afterwards found to be not wholly indifferent to the importance of religion. For soon after I visited the Camp, they began to attend divine worship on Sunday with considerable regularity, and gave good attention to my sermons. I endeavoured to present the truths of the Gospel in a practical light; to show them the certain ruin sin would bring upon them, and to point them to the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world. Several of those who had the reputation of being confirmed infidels, expressed a desire to have me remain with them during the year, and remarked that going to church reminded them of their early days and distant homes. They offered to raise $125 per month for my support, for as long a time as I might choose to stay. I visited them in their rustic cabins, and conversed with them on moral and religious subjects. While some excused their sinful practices, yet many of them expressed an intention to amend their course of life after leaving the mines—not considering that their present habits would, in all probability, cling to them for ever.

A good Methodist minister came to Murphy's before I left, to remain one year. For this reason I returned to Stockton with the more satisfaction.

Faithful ministers of our Church are needed in nearly all the mining towns, of which there are quite a number containing a population ranging from 1000 to 3000 souls, viz: Sonora, Columbia, Placerville, Agua Frio, Angel's Camp, and Mokalumne Hill. All these towns are in Tuolumne and Calaveras counties. And then there are many larger towns in the northern mines, where, I am told, ministers of the right stamp would receive an ample support, and their presence be hailed with delight. Such are Shusta, Yreka, Downieville, Grass Valley, &c.

A minister is much needed at Santa Clara, to take the place of the Rev. Mr. McCoy, who has accepted a call to a church in Texas. Churches might also be established at Los Angelos (the most immoral town in California), Humbolt Bay, Napa, and the Bodega country.

If the Board could have sent out twenty good ministers four years ago, our branch of the Church could have been successfully planted in all the most important cities and towns in the State, from which we are now excluded. Still, the harvest is great. May the Lord send forth more labourers into his harvest.

I suppose the Board is aware that there are at present only six ministers of our branch of Zion actively engaged in preaching the Gospel in California. Only six to supply this immense state, where wickedness abounds more than in any other portion of the Union! But these have been doing a good work, and their labours have been greatly blessed.

Rev. Albert Williams has the largest and most influential congregation in San Francisco. By his piety, talents, and influence, not only have the interests of Christ's kingdom been greatly promoted in that city, but a powerful impulse has been given toward the establishment of educational and charitable institutions. The Rev. William Speer and Rev. F. Buel have been able co-labourers with him in other departments. The one, by his able and eloquent addresses, has excited public attention to the wants of the multitudes of Chinese that are continually flocking to these shores; and the other has accomplished an untold amount of good by the distribution of Bibles, and the organization of Bible societies in every part of the State. Rev. James Woods, who left Stockton last April, has so far recovered his health, that he is now making an effort to organize a new church in the suburbs of San Francisco, and has succeeded in collecting $1000 toward the erection of a chapel. His success is considered certain. I learn that Rev. Dr. Scott's arrival was hailed with great delight, and that on the first Sabbath the immense Musical Hall in which he preached was crowded to overflowing.

Rev. Mr. Woodbridge's church at Benicia has suffered some diminution since the removal of the State Capital to Sacramento, yet he is so popular among all classes of the people in Benicia, that no other denomination has been able to gain a foothold there.

Rev. Mr. Kennedy is labouring near Tulare Lake, 150 miles south of Stockton. He has there organized a church and established an excellent school, which he teaches himself.

The Rev. Mr. Canders, who, for the past year, has been disabled from preaching, by a bronchial affection, occupies the post of head teacher in the public school at Stockton, where he is accomplishing much good by training the youth of the city in the principles of sound morality. The above are all the ministers of our church (except myself) who are now in California, and only six of these are engaged in preaching the gospel to American congregations.

The Presbyterian Church in Stockton is in a very flourishing condition. My congregations are large, the Sabbath-School is well attended; and the Bible Class, which I recently organized, and to which I give personal attention, manifests unusual interest in the study of the Scriptures.

I have commenced a course of evening lectures on the evidences of Christianity, which are exciting considerable attention, and which I have reason to believe, will result in good to all classes of the community; both by convincing the sceptical that the Bible is a revelation from God, and by enabling believers to give an answer when asked, for a reason of the hope that is in them.

On the whole, the state of Society in California is rapidly improving. Large numbers of virtuous and Christian ladies are arriving every month, and men who have lived here alone for three or four years are continually returning home for the purpose of bringing back their families. There is nothing so powerful as the influence of female society to soften and refine the rugged and wayward nature of man. A better day is dawning. This mixed population from all parts the earth, is becoming gradually amalgamated, and is exhibiting day by day more unity of character and sentiment; the habits of the people are becoming more fixed and regular, and a love for order, good laws and religious institutions is fast developing.

Public attention is being turned towards cultivating the arts and sciences, founding schools, colleges, asylums and churches, all of which are harbingers of a better day.

The rains of winter are now over, and the earth and sky are glowing with golden sunlight, our extensive plains are covered with a carpet of flowers of rainbow colours, and of the most delightful fragrance; and myriads of merry birds are filling the air with joyful music; swarms of insects are on the wing and all creation is jocund and gay. This is the Palestine of America. Lebanon with all its stately cedars is less an object of admiration than our snow-capped Sierras, whose giant forests tower to heaven, in whose bowels the wealth of the world is stored, and into whose valleys of green the laughing streams wash down the golden ore. The fragrance of our wild flowers is little inferior to the roses that bloomed in Sharon. The songs of the nightingales keep pace with the hours at night, the strains of the lark announce the dawn of the morning, and during the day "the voice of the turtle (dove) is heard in our land."

Here God's goodness is abundantly displayed in his works, and as I behold them I am happy. This brilliant sunlight serves as an emblem of the Sun of Righteousness, and these glowing skies continually remind me of that land where the day-light never fades.

I remain, Dear Sir,
Very truly and sincerely yours,
WM. C. MOSHER.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Missions.

Honorary Members have a right to sit in the meetings of the Board, and engage in their deliberations, but have no right to vote. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to them every year. Provided we have their address.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

To the Trustees of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of ———, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Missions of the said General Assembly, according to the provisions of their charter.

☞ Persons making bequests to the Board of Missions are requested to be careful in adopting the above form.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of July, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Albany.—Albany Third ch 5; Little Falls ch 17 78	$22 78

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Oakland ch	10 00
Pby of Buffalo City.—Buffalo Central ch	41 00
Pby of Michigan.—Plymouth 1st ch	10 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Bedford.—Yorktown ch 4; North Salem ch 5 26; Croton Falls ch 10	19 26
Pby of New York.—Eighty-Fourth st ch N Y 54; Wallabout ch N Y 6 82; Jersey City ch, of which 50 from the Sabbath School 333	393 82

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown.—Mount Vernon ch	20 00
Pby of New Brunswick.—Trenton 1st ch, from a member	10 00
Pby of Luzerne.—Kingston ch 11 19; Tunkhannock ch 5; Newton ch 12	28 19

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Great Valley ch	41 25
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Abington ch 70; Holmesburg ch 10 25	80 25
Pby of New Castle.—Penningtonville ch	5 00
Pby of Donegal.—Donegal and Mount Joy chs 45; Doe Run and Coatesville ch 49 53; Columbia ch, from a lady, for a plain gold ring sold 1	95 53
Pby of Baltimore.—Madison st ch Balt 2 95; 1st ch Balt, from Miss Raymond 1	3 95
Pby of Carlisle.—Shippensburg ch, Sab sch	9 00
Pby of Huntingdon.—Little Valley ch 39, and from Mrs Jane B Long 50=89; Shirleysburg ch 11; Williamsburg ch 47 16; Milroy ch addl 5; Spruce Creek 1st ch 23; Birmingham ch 4 50; Presbyterial collection 12 80; Newton Hamilton ch, from a lady, for a diamond ring sold 4; Spruce Creek 2d ch 17; Lower Tuscarora ch 14; Mifflintown and Lost Creek ch in part 60	237 46
Pby of Northumberland.—Danville ch, from a lady, for a gold chain sold	5 00

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Allegheny.—Mount Nebo ch	7 32
Pby of Beaver.—Pulaski ch	12 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of St Clairsville.—Brownsville ch	6 50

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion.—Kingston ch, from Aaron Harrison	44 33
Pby of Richland.—Lake Forks Cross Roads 12 70; Perrysville ch 1	13 70
Pby of Wooster.—Wayne and Chester chs, of which 5 50 from the pastor and his family	12 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport.—Normanda ch	5 00
Pby of Lake.—Valparaiso ch	30 00

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Lexington.—Through Treas. of Pby, from New Monmouth ch 28 60; Old Concord ch 7; Hebron ch 16 50	52 10

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Bethel.—Bethesda ch	20 00
	$1235 44

MISCELLANEOUS.

M J S, a young lady of Huntingdon, West Tennessee 55 cts; Family Missionary Society of T A Godfrey, Tremont, Pa 5; T L Lyon, of Bayou Goula, La, to constitute his father GEO A LYON, Esq, of Carlisle, Pa an hon mem 50; Rufus Young, Lexington, Mo 5; A friend, per Rev W Scribner, 5 60; Missionary Society of Houston Pres ch, Texas, per D McGregor 10; A Debtor to the cause 3	79 15
Total,	$1314 59

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 Box from the Female Miss'y Society of Easton First ch, Pa, valued at	65 00

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of July, 1854.

Pby of Genesee River.—Bath 1st ch, from a lady, per Rev G D Stewart	50 00
Pby of Philadelphia.—Tenth ch Phila, addl from "M L J" 30, and from J W Tilford 5	35 00
Total,	$85 00

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of July, 1854.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Armagh ch 10; Centreville ch 2 50; Salem ch 7	19 50
Pby of Erie.—Conneautville ch	7 00
Pby of Beaver.—Neshanock ch	56 36
Pby of Ohio.—Pittsburgh 1st ch, Young Ladies' Missionary Society, bal to con Miss MARTHA MURPHY hon mem	20 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of St. Clairsville.—Short Creek ch 8; New Castle ch 2 75	10 75
Pby of Washington.—Lower Ten Mile ch	28 00

LEGACY.

Matthew B Lowrie, Esq, per H Childs, Ex'tr, less Tax	95 00
Total,	$236 61

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

CLOTHING.

Ladies of New Salem ch, a box valued at	51 00

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the months of June and July, 1854.

JUNE.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe.—Hillsboro ch	105 80
Pby of Cincinnati.—Pleasant Ridge ch 52 50; Reading ch 44	96 50
Pby of Oxford.—Eaton ch	21 40
Pby of Sidney.—Troy ch	10 00
Pby of Miami.—Jersey ch	9 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.—Jeffersonville ch in part 42, Rev J H Gill in part to con Heber Gill hon mem 26 54; New Philadelphia ch 9 30; Monroe ch 10	87 84
Pby of Vincennes.—Mount Vernon ch	3 00
Pby of Madison.—New Washington ch	18 50
Pby of Indianapolis.—Franklin ch	34 73
Pby of Palestine.—Palestine ch, quarterly coll	14 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Sangamon.—3d ch Springfield addl 9 25; Union ch 4; Petersburg ch in part 67 90; North Sangamon ch 22 30	103 45
Pby of Schuyler.—Schuyler Pres colls 8 50; Ellison ch 2 10	10 60
Pby of Peoria.—Osceola ch	3 00
Pby of Chicago.—North Pres ch Chicago, to con E S WILLIAMS, H D BASSETT, JULIUS WHITE, and MISS ELIZABETH A BLACKER hon mems 200; Marengo ch 10 22, Rev John Ustick 1	211 22

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Missouri.—Rocheport ch	10 00
Pby of Palmyra.—Mt Horeb ch 8 31; South Fork ch 7 12; Lick Creek ch 6 50	21 93
Pby of Upper Missouri.—Mt Vernon ch	2 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.—A member of the Goshen ch 20; A member of the 1st ch Louisville 5	25 00
Pby of Transylvania.—Harmony ch	30 00

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.

Pby of Tuskaloosa.—Tuskaloosa ch	30 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.

Pby of Western District.—Brownsville ch	15 00

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Brazos.—Oak Island ch 23 30; Centreville ch 9 55, Joseph Bannerman Esq 5; Prospect ch 20	57 85

MISCELLANEOUS.

Middleport, Ill 2; Oswego, Ill 5; Mrs Mary Morrison, Mt Gilead, Ohio 1, H J Morrison and wife Ohio 50 cts	8 50
Total,	$929 32

JULY.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Cincinnati.—Springfield ch 69 50, of which 50 to con Rev CHARLES A B KEMPER hon mem; A Lady of the 7th ch Cincinnati 5	74 50

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of Vincennes.—Washington ch 6, Rev S Taylor 4 50; Hopewell ch 4; Bruceville ch 4	18 50

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia.—Elm Point ch	6 00
Pby of Schuyler.—Fall Creek ch	4 00
Pby of Chicago.—White Rock ch 5; Roscoe ch 17 50	22 50

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar.—Le Claire ch	6 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.—Frances Snowden, Goshen ch 50; Mrs Elizabeth Morton, Shelby co, for support of Rev J T Umsted, Iowa 37 50; Miss Margaret Guthrie, Pennsylvania Run ch 10	97 50
Pby of Muhlenburg.—South Carrolton ch	4 50
Pby of Paducah.—Marion ch	9 00

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.

Pby of Arkansas.—Jacksonport ch 54 70; Searcy ch 58 45; Helena ch 50	163 15
Pby of Ouachita.—Mount Horeb ch in part to con John Elliott hon mem 30; Tulip ch 142 50; Washington ch 63 40	235 90

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Brazos.—Rev N A Penland 7; Mr N Mc Clintock 2; R Henry, Wheelock 2	11 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Maria H Evans, Christian co, Ky,	10 00
Total,	$662 55

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. Van Rensselaer, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
Wm. Chester, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
James Wood, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
William Main, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

DR. JAMES WOOD

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

At a meeting of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church, held on July 6th, the Rev. Dr. James Wood, formerly Professor at the New Albany Theological Seminary, was unanimously elected Associate Corresponding Secretary.

The importance of having more help in the office has been felt for some time past. In the last annual report to the Assembly, the question of the best mode of administering the affairs of the Board was presented for determination. The Assembly, however, referred the matter back to the Board, and the following action was taken at the last monthly meeting.

"The last General Assembly having resolved that the mode of conducting the operations of the Board in their enlarged scale, be referred to the Board itself, to take such action as may prevent either department from interfering with the other, and as may continue to keep prominently before the Church the education of pious and indigent young men for the Gospel ministry," the Board proceeded to consider the subject, and after discussion, it was

1. Resolved, That in view of the enlarged operations of this Board, and the increase of business in the office, it is expedient to appoint an Associate Corresponding Secretary.

2. Resolved, That the salary of the Associate Secretary be the same as that of the other two Secretaries of the Board, and that in addition to his salary, his travelling expenses be allowed.

3. Resolved, That the Board will now proceed to the election of an Associate Corresponding Secretary.

Whereupon the Rev. James Wood, D. D., was unanimously elected.

P. S.—It gives us great gratification to add that Dr. Wood has accepted the appointment, and is now at his post in Philadelphia.

PITTSBURGH FIELD.

At the meeting of the Board of Education, held on July 6th, the Rev. John McClusky, D. D., was unanimously elected to the vacant agency of the Board in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, of which Pittsburgh is the centre.

Dr. McClusky has entered upon his work under the most encouraging circumstances.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

OUGHT I TO STUDY THEOLOGY?

Some ten years ago I left my home, a kind father's, my mother's grave, brothers and sisters, and all the scenes of a happy childhood, to prepare for college. I had no very definite plans for the future, but determined to read and study all I could, and had no doubt all other things would be added without much trouble on my part. But college-days were soon over. I must choose a profession, and awaken from my dreams and studies to the realities of life. But what profession shall I choose? The study of theology is urged upon me by a pious step-mother and a lawyer brother, who had not felt entirely at rest in his conscience since he disappointed the family, and all his friends, by choosing the legal instead of the sacred profession, and he was now anxious that I should take upon myself the duties of the high calling of a minister of Christ. I did not then feel quite willing. It would be a surprise to many who had been intimate with me in college, and whose voices had often mingled with mine in scenes of midnight revelry; though, with all my love for merriment, and flow of soul, and buoyancy of spirits, which often cause the choice spirits of college to spend their golden years in scenes of folly, if not of wickedness, the pious counsels of a most excellent mother, in early life, had built up within me a strong fortress of integrity and conscientiousness, whose walls, though they trembled sometimes in imminent danger, could not be overthrown. Besides, a few successful efforts in college, which every student loves to remember, had given me a strong desire to become known as an orator and writer, and the law, I thought, would offer the best advantages for accomplishing my purpose.

I commenced, with all diligence, the study of the law, and for two years I have prosecuted the study, and may soon be admitted to practice. But now my attention is arrested by that question again, Ought I to study theology?

I have attended courts, and listened to the eloquent pleadings of talented lawyers; have observed the older members of the bar retired from practice, and enjoying the wealth and honours their talents had procured for them. I have also observed closely the members of the sacred profession, seen their labours and trials, and that very frequently there falls to their lot an old age of poverty and neglect.

I have reasoned with myself in view of these different phases of life in the two professions. I have considered that if I enter upon the practice of the law, I shall at the age of twenty-five have a profession, be clear of debt; and, better still, have a local habitation and a name, and many blessings in anticipation cluster around those words. If I study theology, I must put off much longer the period when I shall enter upon the active duties of life. I must, when nearly half my allotted years are flown, destitute, homeless, in debt, become a suppliant, perhaps, for one of those places where the salary is only $400 or $500—and there are many such even in New England; while any boy who understands bookkeeping can get from $600 to $1000. I must then struggle on through life with the prospect of being turned off, if I live till my powers are exhausted, and my ability for active usefulness gone, to get a living, as best I may, among relatives.

Hard, hard indeed, considered in this light. But take higher ground, and look again; look beyond this narrow vale, and reflect a moment on the scenes of the judgment, which will very soon be taking place around you. Cannot you put off pay-day till then? Imagine the nations assembled, and that you may behold some countenances there which you have been instrumental in brightening with hopes of eternal life. The wealth, honours, and eloquence of the lawyers, how will they appear there? The labours, trials, and the heart-burnings, and physical discomfort you may have undergone in the high calling of a minister of Christ, how will they appear? Oh! do not, when you think of these things, weigh them in this world's scales, or measure them by an earthly standard! Be more thoughtful, and call about you, as well as you can, in imagination, the scenes of the judgment, and give these considerations their true value.

You wish honours? A religion which was established by the death of the Son of God, and on which the earthly prosperity and eternal interests of the world depend, cannot but be most honourable; yes, lavish with crowns of imperishable value to its ministers.

You desire wealth? Wealth is only valuable as a means of procuring happiness. Eternal joy and rapturous songs of praise fill heaven with delight. Strive for that wealth, and lead others with you in its pursuit.

You desire an influence over men, and to be known and powerful by the charming influences of eloquence? There is no influence so worthy your ambition, so charming to its possessors, as that which draws men from darkness, and leads them to light and life; no eloquence like that of him who tells the story of the cross, whose theme is eternal life through Christ. Every consideration or inducement which should be allowed to influence your choice, is held out, even if the Captain of your salvation had never said, "Go ye into all the world, preach the Gospel to every creature."

In deciding this question, then, look at it as you should at every other, not by the short-lived, glimmering light of time, but by the full light of eternity. Imagine yourself at the death-bed, and looking back on life. What retrospect will give you most satisfaction there?—Independent.

LINE UPON LINE; LINE UPON LINE.

So obtuse is the intellect, and so hard the heart of man; so bent is he upon pursuing his wonted course, though ever so perverse and wrong, that to produce a radical change in his mind and morals, he must be long and repeatedly expostulated with, taught and urged, and exhorted, with all long suffering and doctrine.

This error is a native weed, growing in the garden of every man's heart with more or less luxuriance. Hence, even those whose appropriate work it is to teach others, find it necessary to make repeated and powerful efforts to make and keep themselves what they should be.

"Line upon line, line upon line; precept upon precept, precept upon precept," is the language of inspiration. Every reformer of his race has proved that unless he observes this rule, he accomplishes little. The reformer's labour must be like a continual dropping in a very rainy day. The preacher, the writer, the teacher, the colporteur, the missionary, the editor even, must give line upon line, till he sees the desired result. It is the want of this course persevered in, that has produced most of the failures in individuals, and in both small and large bodies. First know you are right, and then give line upon line till you set others right.

But success depends not altogether upon the repetition of the application; but when the results begin to appear, and the ground begins to be gained, effectual measures must be taken to secure all that is gained, and not leave this to chance, hazard, or miracle. Line upon line is as needful to secure as to gain. All farmers, all mechanics, all business men, all judicious political men of all crafts and persuasions know, feel, and act upon this principle. Neither wisdom nor strength can secure success without line upon line, even to the end.—Christian Herald.

EDUCATED TO DEATH.

The above remark was made by a plain man of good common sense, and applied to those young ministers of the present day whose health so soon fails after commencing their pastoral labours. The cause of so many failures became the subject of conversation where I happened to be. Some gave one reason, some another, when one of the company said, They were educated to death. The idea was so new and singular, that I thought much of it. I have ventured to transmit my thoughts for your disposal.

Educated to death—Is this the result? thought I, of those means of mental culture whose object is to promote intellectual strength and increase the usefulness of the educated. I thought the above expression had more meaning than was at first apprehended, and that the man who made it discovered more than ordinary acumen. It surely taxes the physical powers of the student most severely to pursue a ten years' course of unremitted study. The care during this period, which should be taken to keep the body in due vigour by exercise, is often omitted, which lays the foundation for premature decay. The temptations to omit this exercise are so many as to be rarely overcome. "Set your mark high," is the watchword through the whole course, from the primary school to the academy, from the academy to the college, from the college to the theological seminary, and from the latter to the pulpit. Incentives to ambition, like so many thorns, are goading on every side, until the whole man is absorbed in mental exertion. In the meantime, the body is hardly acknowledged as having any partnership in the work.

That such a course of life should early wear out the bodily organs, is no matter of surprise. Nothing but miraculous interposition could save health under such circumstances. Until more attention is paid to the health of the body during the long course of education now pursued, we must adopt our friend's explanation, and say—"Many of our young ministers are educated to death."

On reflection, we thought there was another sense in which the remark might be applied. The simplicity of the gospel seems to be educated out of some of these young minds. Why is it that we often hear complaint from our aged hearers that they cannot understand the young ministers fresh from the seminary? "Their sermons," say they, "are more like dissertations about religion than a plain exhibition of gospel truth, pungently applied. They have departed from their fathers in their mode of sermonizing; and their prayers have in them much less of Bible language than ministers used in former days." Are these things so? Old men are not usually captious hearers. They go to the sanctuary to be fed with the sincere milk of the word, and are surely able to tell whether the food is such as they can relish, digest, and convert into spiritual nourishment

Whatever the young minister may have learned more than his fathers, if the effect be to lead him from the simplicity of the Gospel, not so much is gained, after all, by the superior advantages of his education. Men must feel the force of divine truth, or they will not be moved to repentance and newness of life; and that preaching which will best do this, wherever learned, is the most according to the Gospel. I could not help thinking that in more senses than one have some of our young ministers been educated to death. Our friend did by no means undervalue education: the more the better, of the right kind. In the well-balanced Christian, the apostle places it next in order to faith and virtue.

I lately met an intelligent lady, the widow of a respectable clergyman, who had been some weeks from home, stopping at various places in her visits. She told me the peculiar satisfaction she had enjoyed on her journey in hearing old ministers preach. Was this because she could better understand them than the younger brethren, and thus be better edified? Was it because the fathers had not been so long and so profoundly educated as to hinder them from explaining the word of God intelligibly to common minds, that the good lady was so much edified and comforted by their preaching? All preaching, if not, surely should be such, that the aged might be strengthened in the faith, and better fitted for that world of light and peace into which they will shortly enter.—Puritan Recorder.

HINTS TO CANDIDATES.

PAUL'S PRE-EMINENCE, AND THE SECRET OF IT.—"I laboured more abundantly than they all." This was his pre-eminence. This he regarded as among the greatest "signs of an apostle." And well he might; for even his Master and Exemplar said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." "I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day. The night cometh, when no man can work." Must Christ work, who created all things, John i., and "upholdeth all things by the word of his power," Heb. i., and who by that simple word expelled diseases and demons, and raised the dead; and must not we? "Work," therefore, "abundant labour," stands high among the signs of an apostle," and not only so, but among the "signs of a Christian;" for our highest distinction and purest glory, as well as our clearest evidence of Christian character, lies in our resemblance to Christ. We follow a working Redeemer, and we must be working disciples. The more "abundantly" any man "labours," if he "works the works of the Father," the more nearly and manifestly does he resemble Christ, to whose "image" it is the glorious dignity of the child of God to be "conformed." Rom. viii.

What then was the secret of Paul's pre-eminence? "Howbeit, not I, but the grace of God which was with me." This reveals the whole secret of that wondrous activity which, "from Jerusalem round about unto Illyricum, fully preached the gospel of Christ." If Paul was eminent, it was grace that made him so. And that grace is just as free to you, and to me. "He giveth more grace." Let us then "come boldly to the throne of grace, that we may find grace to help us," and then pour out that grace in "abundant labours" for God and the souls of men. Is not this the sweetest life on earth, and the surest path to heaven?—Am. Messenger.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

MEMPHIS SYNODICAL COLLEGE.

Propositions were before the Synod from three places, viz: Mount Carmel Church, Tipton county, La Grange, and Jackson. The Trustees of West Tennessee College, at Jackson, proposed a union with the Synod in the endowment of a College, and desired Synod to appoint a Committee to confer with them as to the terms and basis of this union. In consequence of this proposition, Synod appointed a Committee of Conference and deferred the location of the College till the present meeting.

In the meantime the offer from Mount Carmel was withdrawn. The Committee of Conference with the Trustees of the West Tennessee College presented through the Rev. C. S. Dod, acting Chairman, a full and able Report, which was discussed for several days, when the following minute was adopted: "While Synod duly appreciates the kindness of the Board of Trustees of West Tennessee College, as manifested in the proposal to us through the Committee of Synod, and while we cordially acknowledge the confidence manifested towards this body in that proposal, yet there appear to us insuperable obstacles to the consummation of the proposed union—therefore,

Resolved, That this Synod respectfully decline to accept the proposal made to us through the Committee by the Board of Trustees of West Tennessee College, and that the Stated Clerk be directed to forward a copy of this resolution to the Board of Trustees.

The proposition from the Masonic Fraternity and citizens of La Grange, was then taken up; which is substantially as follows:

1st. To give the College site, of ten, or twenty acres.

2d. To deliver 500,000 bricks upon the ground for the College building.

3d. $2500, either in materials at cash prices, or in money.

4th. An apparatus (given by the ladies) worth five or six hundred dollars.

5th. Seventy-five scholarships, of $500 each, secured by notes under seal, with good and sufficient security—interest to be paid annually. The first year's interest of the scholarship notes accruing after their execution to be applied towards the building. Synod resolved with a great degree of harmony to accept the proposition and to locate the College at La Grange. Synod also observed a special season of prayer, returning thanks to God for bringing us to so harmonious a conclusion, and imploring his blessing upon us in the prosecution of this great enterprise.

Synod then proceeded to the election of a Board of Trustees.

This Board consists of fifteen members, and is divided into three classes, of five each, one of which shall go out of office and their successors be elected at each annual meeting of Synod. It is composed of one Minister and two Elders from each Presbytery, and the remainder citizens of La Grange and vicinity.

The following persons were elected Trustees:

Revs. J. H. Gillespie, J. A. Rogers and J. B. Neely, Presbytery of Western District; Rev. A. H. Caldwell, T. L. Dunlap and Z. Conkey, Chickasaw; Revs. J. H. Gray, J. B. Maclin and J. B. Kirtland, Memphis; J. W. Jones, J. L. T. Sneed, C. S. Palmore, J. N. Cocke, R. Locke, and Thos. G. Anderson, from La Grange and vicinity.

The Board of Trustees were directed to hold their first meeting on the Thursday before the fourth Sabbath in August next at La Grange.

Synod resolved to raise an endowment of one hundred thousand dollars as a permanent fund, and appointed the Rev. P. R. Bland, and the Rev. L. P. Gaston agents to accomplish it.

Gen. J. L. T. Sneed was appointed Agent to solicit funds and Books for the founding of a Library.

The Rev. Messrs. Bland, Waddel, S. McKinney, Gaston, J. H. Gray, with Messrs. Sneed and Swayne, were appointed a Committee to draft a suitable Charter and submit it to Synod at its next meeting, and if approved, to present it to the next Legislature.

The following resolution closes the action of Synod on the College question:

Resolved, That, looking to God for His blessing, and relying upon His grace, we will, as Ministers, Elders and Churches, exert ourselves to establish a College of the first class, for the proper intellectual and moral training of the precious youth who may attend our halls of instruction.

TRIENNIAL CATALOGUE OF UNION COLLEGE, N. Y.

For the first time since 1852, Professor Pearson has issued a Triennial Catalogue of this institution. We append a brief resumé of its leading facts. The catalogue ranges from 1795 to 1854, and indicates that the college has had four presidents, sixty-eight trustees, seventy-five professors and tutors, five treasurers, and three registers.

Graduates,	3239
Students who did not graduate,	1070
Total,	4309
Honorary degrees,	388
	4850

Of the graduates and non-graduates, (4309,) the following are the professions as far as known:

Editors,	26
Clergymen,	855
Lawyers,	1070
Physicians,	265
Presidents, Professors, and Teachers,	225
Merchants, Mechanics, and Bankers,	154
Farmers and Planters,	95
Civil-Engineers and Architects,	60
Army and Navy Officers,	12
Total,	2792
Professions unknown	1517
	4309

Number known to be dead, 759. Number living, 3580.

SUSQUEHANNA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT TOWANDA, BRADFORD COUNTY, PA.

INSTRUCTORS.

Rev. S. F. Colt, A. M., Principal, Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy, and for the present will conduct the course in Natural Science.

Rev. James McWilliam, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages and Belles Lettres.

Charles R. Coburn, Esq., Professor of Mathematics and Master of the Normal School.

Miss Fannie Biles, Teacher of Music and French.

Miss Phebe Dayton, Teacher of English and Music.

(NOTE.—Negotiations are in progress for securing the services of two other lady teachers in time for the opening.)

Andrew J. Noble, Steward.

THE ACADEMIC YEAR

Will consist of three terms of fourteen weeks each; the fall term commences on Wednesday, the 6th of September.

The winter term commences on Wednesday, the 13th of December.

The summer term commences on Wednesday, the 3d of April.

There will be two vacations—viz: two weeks at the close of the winter term; and eight weeks at the close of the summer term.

CLASSIFICATION OF STUDIES.

Fourth Class.—Elementary English Branches.—Reading, Spelling, Writing, Mental Arithmetic, Geography, and Grammar, commenced.

Third Class.—Higher English Branches.—Arithmetic, Elementary Algebra, Physiology, Astronomy and Natural Philosophy, commenced—Composition, Modern History, Advanced Geography, and Meteorology.

Second Class.—Mathematics, Natural Sciences, and Classics, commenced.—Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Surveying, Book-keeping, Physiology, and Natural Philosophy, completed. Botany, Chemistry, Rhetoric, Ancient History, and Geography, Latin Grammar and Reader, Watts on the Mind, and Civil Government.

First Class.—Mental and Moral Science, with the above continued.—Mental Philosophy, Moral Philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, Butler's Analogy, Day's Mathematics, Logic, Elements of Criticism, Chemistry, Geology, History, Latin continued, Greek commenced.

In addition to the above, College classes will be organized, if pupils suitably qualified attend. Especial attention will be paid to the instruction of such persons as design to qualify themselves for teaching in common schools.

Expenses per Term of Fourteen Weeks.

Tuition in the First Class,	$7 00
" Second Class,	6 00
" Third Class,	5 00
" Fourth Class,	4 00
Room rent,	1 75
Incidental expenses,	38
Modern languages, each,	3 00
Ornamental needle work and embroidery,	2 00
Drawing,	2 00
Instrumental music, with the use of instrument,	10 00
Oil painting in landscapes,	8 00
" figures,	10 00
Price of board in the Hall, $1 63 per week, or	22 75

Washing 37½ cents per dozen; light and fuel at the actual expense.

Pupils will furnish their own bed, bedding, towels, &c. All the books used at the institution can be procured at city prices.

The bills for the term must be paid in advance—or one-half at the entrance, and the remaining half at the expiration of the half term. For absence, for one week or more on account of sickness, or other good cause, corresponding allowance will be made, when desired.

Students will be received during term time, and charged accordingly. It is exceedingly important, however, that they should all be present at the opening of the terms.

Towanda is eighteen miles south from Waverley station on the New York and Erie Railroad, whence there are daily stages. It is twenty miles east of Canton, on the Williamsport and Elmira Railroad. It has also stage connection with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, at Montrose, with Tunkhannock and Wilkesbarre, with Wellsboro', and with Laporte, Sullivan county.

CARROLL COLLEGE.

The commencement exercises of this institution, extending through Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of the past week, have afforded our citizens an opportunity of witnessing the excellence and efficiency of the instruction which has been given, during the past collegiate year, by those who have had charge of its educational interests. The examinations of Monday and Tuesday, in the various branches of Mathematics, in Philosophy, and the Ancient Languages, were highly creditable both to the instructors and their pupils. From the rigid and searching examination of the more advanced pupils, it was evident they had been trained to a system of the most thorough practical instruction. The speaking on Wednesday was less declamatory than is usual on such occasions, and, in our judgment, all the better for being so; while some of the original pieces evinced a high degree of improvement in the art of composition.

The addresses of Dr. SAVAGE and the Rev. Mr. SPENCER—the one to the pupils of the institution, and the other on founding Colleges—were highly interesting and appropriate to the occasion. The subject of founding Literary Institutions at the West was treated by Mr. Spencer, in a very liberal and unsectarian point of view. The best guarantee of liberty was to be found in the accessibility of a liberal education to the entire body of the people—in the common schools, so munificently endowed in this State—in the academies and numerous higher seminaries of learning, and in the freedom and unrestrained action of the public press. The tendency to multiply Colleges was thought to evince a healthy state of things, as far as education was concerned. There was little danger of extending the facilities of education beyond the actual wants of the community. The constitution of society and the nature of our institutions were such as to demand a general education for all, rather than a particular education for the few—for those only who might be able to avail themselves of the more exclusive advantages of some distant State or National University. The several propositions advanced by the speaker on this subject were most effectively and eloquently urged upon the attention of his hearers, and were received by them with a general expression of approbation.

The remarks of President Savage, addressed to the students at the close of the exercises on Wednesday, were unusually interesting and instructive. There was no effort at display, but an earnest desire to impress the great teachings of "the wisest of men and kings" upon the minds of his pupils.

We hope and trust that this exhibition, so admirably conducted, and so well attended by our citizens, will have a tendency to awaken an increased interest in the enterprise which Dr. Savage and those concerned with him have undertaken, and so successfully prosecuted thus far. Let the citizens of this community evince one-half the interest in behalf of this institution which is manifested from abroad, and the beautiful edifice upon the hill will be at once substantially enclosed, and the spacious and sightly grounds ornamented with suitable walks and shade trees.—Waukesha paper.

SOMETHING ABOUT SCHOOLS.

We know a man who last summer had four colts pastured on a farm some five miles distant. At least once in two weeks he got into a wagon, and drove over to see how his juvenile horses fared. He made minute inquiries of the keeper as to their health, their daily watering, &c.; he himself examined the condition of the pasture, and when a dry season came on, he made special arrangements to have a daily allowance of meal, and he was careful to know that this was regularly supplied.

This man had four children attending a district school kept in a small building erected at the cross-roads. Around this building on three sides is a space of land six feet wide, the fourth side is on a line with the street. There is not an out-house or shade-tree in sight of the building. Of the interior of the school-house we need not speak. The single room is like too many others, with all its apparatus arranged upon the most approved plan for producing curved spines, compressed lungs, ill health, &c.

We wish to state one fact only. The owner of those colts, the father of those children, has never been into that school-house to inquire after the comfort, health, or mental food daily dealt out to his offspring. The latter part of the summer we chanced to ask "who teaches your school?" and the reply was, "he did not know, he believed her name was Parker, but he had no time to look after school matters.—Am. Agricul.

OAKLAND COLLEGE, MISSISSIPPI.

At the recent commencement of this College, the Rev. R. L. Stanton, D. D., resigned the Presidency, and delivered an impressive farewell address. Professor Hutchinson, also, resigned the Professorship of Languages. The address before the Literary Societies was made by John Murdock, Esq., of Cave Mount, and the annual sermon was preached by Rev. J. Richards, D. D., of New Orleans.

The Board of Directors elected the following Faculty, after much deliberation and with entire unanimity, viz: Rev. James Purviance, President; Rev. L. A. Lowry, Professor of Mathematics; Rev. J. E. C. Doremus, Professor of Languages; Rev. Wm. D. Moore, Professor of Natural Science; Rev. James Adams, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

The True Witness thinks the prospects of the College are very flattering.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, JULY, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of New York.

Yorkville ch 28, less 2 50 for Home and Foreign Record 25 50

Presbytery of Elizabethtown.

Elizabethtown ch 170, less 50 paid candidate 120 00

Presbytery of West Jersey.

Presb ch May's Landing 12; 2d ch Cape May 3 15 00

Presbytery of Baltimore.

Frederick ch 13 00

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Fayetteville ch 17 85; Chambersburg ch 60, of which to this fund 40 57 85

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Bellefonte ch 23; Shirleysburg ch 6 81; Shaver's Creek ch 23 60; Williamsburg ch 36 94; West Kishacoquillas ch 24 25; Milroy ch 25; Lower Tuscarora ch 82 25 221 85

Presbytery of Miami.

Springfield ch 39 95

Presbytery of Sidney.

Hill Grove ch 3; Union ch 3 6 00

Presbytery of Logansport.

Rossville ch 5 00

Presbytery of Chicago.

White Rock ch 6 00

Presbytery of Cedar.

Muscatine ch 7 50

Presbytery of Des Moines.

Winchester ch 3 00

Presbytery of Lexington.

Union ch 12; Timber Ridge ch 12; N. Providence ch 35 59 00

Presbytery of Tuskaloosa.

Eutaw ch 5 00

$584 65

REFUNDED.

J W D 48 00

$632 65

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &C.

Presbytery of Long Island.

Hempstead ch (special) 20 00

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Chambersburg ch (special) 20 00

Total $672 65

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH IN JUNE AND JULY, 1854.

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Saltsburgh ch 30 10; Murraysville ch 14 41; Unity ch 48; Congruity ch 33 50; Ligonier ch 14; New Alexandria ch 16; West Lebanon ch 3; Elder's Ridge ch 7 08, Society of Inquiry of Elder's Ridge ch and Academy 8 28 174 37

Presbytery of Redstone.

Indian Creek and Harmony ch 3 00

Presbytery of Allegheny City.

Cross Roads ch 42; Fairmount ch 10 52 00

Presbytery of Ohio.

Mingo ch 25 12; Bethany ch 24 70 49 82

Presbytery of Clarion.

Licking ch 3 66; New Rehoboth ch 6 9 66

Presbytery of New Lisbon.

Poland ch 19 10; Brookfield ch 4; Hanover ch 6 50; 29 60

$318 45

MISCELLANEOUS.

Hon W Curll, 5 00

Total, $323 45

J. S. LEECH, McALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, JUNE AND JULY, 1854.

Presbytery of Oxford.

Hamilton ch 50 00

Presbytery of Madison.

South Hanover ch 48 75; Madison ch 58 50 107 25

Presbytery of Indianapolis.

1st ch Indianapolis 54; 3d ch Indianapolis 11; Shiloh ch 2 70; Shelbyville ch 12 79 70

Presbytery of Schuyler.

Ellison ch 1 40

Presbytery of Peoria.

Bloomington ch 5 00

Presbytery of Louisville.

1st ch (a member of) 5; Pennsylvania ch, Miss Margaret Guthrie 10 15 00

Total, $258 35

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,

No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, August 14th, 1854.

Indian Missions.—We have letters from Wapanucka, July 10th; from Spencer, July 12th; Tallahassee, July 12th; Kowetah, July 4th; Otoe and Omaha Mission, July 21st; Grand Traverse, July 21st. All of the mission families at these various stations, with the exception of one or two cases of sickness that were not considered serious, were in the enjoyment of good health. The schools at Spencer, Wapanucka, Tallahassee, and Kowetah, had just closed their annual sessions, and under circumstances quite as favourable to their future prosperity as at any previous examination. Mr. Reid speaks in commendatory terms of the diligence with which the teachers at Spencer had discharged their duties, and thinks the growing attachment between them and their pupils augurs well for the future welfare of the institution.

We are happy to add, that there is now a reasonable prospect that all these schools will be resumed in the autumn, with a full complement of teachers and other assistant missionaries, with the exception of a farmer for the station at Tallahassee, and two teachers for the Otoes and Sacs, whom the Committee would be glad to send, if suitable candidates offered their services.

India.—Since our last, letters have been received from Mynpurie, May 12th; Furrukhabad, May 10th; Rawal Pindi, May 2d; Dehra, May 1st; Lodiana, May 13; Saharanpur, May 4th; and from Allahabad, May 13th.

At Allahabad, the members of the mission family were well. There had been several cases of smallpox in the Girls' Orphan Asylum, but none had terminated fatally. The High School is represented as in a flourishing condition, and contains, at the present time, between five and six hundred pupils, most of whom are making satisfactory progress in their studies. The Lieutenant-Governor had recently testified his interest in the institution by sending a contribution of two hundred rupees towards its support.

Mr. Ullman, in speaking of the male school at Furrukhabad under his care, remarks: "The number of boys in it at present is 270. I would have a larger number, if I did not give religious instruction the first place, for there are many bigotted Mohammedans and Hindus here, who would send their children if we said nothing about Christ and Christianity. Yet we gain more and more influence over the people, partly by our teaching in the school, and partly by preaching." Mr. Ullman also urges the need of a female school in that city of 80,000 inhabitants, and inquires whether Christians in this country would not contribute for the support of such an institution.

China.—We have no letters from any of the missions in China since our last, with the exception of one from Canton of the 4th of May. The mission families at that place were well at the date of the letter.

We have newspaper reports of the arrival of the "Ellen Foster" at Hong Kong, the 6th of May, on board of which Mrs. Way and her children took passage from New York to Ningpo; and of the "Horatio," at the same place, on the 12th of May, on board of which Dr. and Mrs. Ker and Mr. Preston were passengers; but from the brethren themselves, no intelligence as yet has been received.

Mr. Wight and family, and Mrs. Coulter and her children, arrived in New York from Shanghai on the 23d of July. Mr. Wight's health has been improved by the voyage.

California.—A letter has been received from Mr. Speer as late as the 15th of July. He is now in the occupation of the new house erected for the Chinese Mission, and the prospects of the mission itself are encouraging.

South America.—The last Annual Report mentions that the Rev. Thomas L'Hombral, of the Presbytery of New York, had been appointed to commence a mission in Buenos Ayres. He embarked for that place from New York on the 10th of April, and arrived there the 4th of May. We have a letter from him dated the 14th June, from which it appears that he was kindly received both by foreigners and residents, and had entered upon his missionary work with encouraging prospects. He gives the following statistical account of the mixed population of that city. Besides the Spaniards, who form the mass of it, there are 10,000 Frenchmen, 15,000 Italians, 10,000 Germans, 4000 or 5000 British subjects, and a few hundred, perhaps 1000 Americans. Mr. L'Hombral's labours, in the first instance, will be directed mainly to the French population, but he will preach and distribute the word of God among others as he shall have opportunity. We regard this mission, though in its infancy, as one of great promise and importance, and we earnestly commend it to the prayers of all God's people.

DEATH OF A MISSIONARY.

We are under the painful necessity of announcing the death of Mrs. Janvier, the wife of the Rev. Levi Janvier of Lodiana Mission. This painful, though not unexpected event, occurred on the 5th of May in the Simla, to which place her husband had taken her a short time previously, in the hope that a change of air would be beneficial. Her sickness had been protracted and her sufferings at times had been very great, but she died in tranquillity of mind, trusting to the atoning merits of her Saviour. A more extended account of her last hours will be given in a future number of the Record.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Are we, as a church and a people, as actively and extensively engaged in making known the Gospel among the heathen nations of the earth, as the Saviour requires and expects us to be? Do we come up to the spirit and example of the apostles and primitive Christians? Are we fulfilling, in this particular, the great object for which the church and the Christian ministry were instituted?

These are solemn and weighty questions, and they ought to be seriously pondered by all those who profess to be the friends and followers of the Lord Jesus. To Him alone, as the great Head of the Church, do we owe allegiance, and to Him alone, must we stand or fall in the great day of accounts. If we act in accordance with the spirit of his commands, so as to secure his approval, it matters very little what else we may be in this world, or in what light our conduct and character may be regarded by our fellow men.

But what is his will touching this great matter? Most unquestionably that his gospel should be made known throughout the whole world. We think there is no point more clearly set forth in the teachings of our Saviour than this, and it cannot but be strikingly manifest, whether we reflect upon his own declarations and promises, the assurances that his kingdom is to become universal upon the earth, or the nature of the great work of atonement itself. But above all, his command to his disciples to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, is too plain to be misapprehended. The provisions of salvation are sufficient for the whole human race, and it must be proclaimed everywhere. None of the race are too obscure or too far off to be overlooked or neglected. The Gospel embodies the only remedy for sin, therefore, it must be proclaimed among all nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues upon the face of the whole earth. And we are assured upon divine authority, that as a consequence of this universal proclamation of the Gospel, men shall come from the north and from the south, from the east and from the west, and sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. The disciples understood the command of the Saviour in its true import, and like faithful and obedient servants, they devoted all their energies to the one great object of preaching Christ, and him crucified, to all mankind. The amazing success which attended their labour, attests the fact that they rightly apprehended the meaning of their Saviour, and were acting so as secure his hearty approval.

But the command to preach the gospel to the destitute, was not more obligatory then than it is now, or one particle more binding upon primitive Christians than upon ourselves. The great facts of the case are the same now that they were then. Man is a miserable, ruined sinner, and he needs the pardoning grace of Christ as much now as he ever did. The heathen nations of the earth, at the present day, are involved in as deep and profound darkness as the Gentile world was in the days of the apostles; and without the light of the everlasting gospel they must for ever remain immured in this darkness. Sin has drawn its lines deep upon their characters, and nothing but the grace of God can obliterate its traces, or fit them for the society and kingdom of heaven. Jesus Christ is the only name given under heaven among men by whom they can be saved; but how shall the heathen nations of the earth "believe on him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent?"

It is obviously and undeniably the fact that the hopes of the heathen, both for time and eternity, are dependent upon their receiving the gospel. By its aid they may be emancipated from all their ignorance and corruption, and be fitted for heaven. Without it, they are doomed to unmitigated heathenism here, and so far as we understand the word of God, to irretrievable ruin hereafter. How momentous and solemn the responsibility, therefore, that devolves upon us who are entrusted with the oracles of the living God! How fearful the account we must render of our stewardship in the day of judgment!

But if the success which attended the preaching of the apostles and primitive Christians among the gentile nations of the earth be regarded as evidence that they rightly apprehended the wishes of their divine Master, equally may we appeal to the success of modern missions as conclusive proof that this great enterprise is acknowledged and approved by our glorified Redeemer. Wherever that gospel has been preached in modern times, whether in Africa, India, China, in the Isles of the sea, or among the red men of America, there have been multitudes of converts to the Christian faith, the genuineness of whose conversion we have no more reason to question than our own.

What clearer evidence could be given that this work is of divine appointment? Every convert that has been gathered from these nations, is undeniable proof that the Saviour has his elect among them, and that in making known to them the everlasting gospel, we are not engaged in a visionary or self-imposed work, but one which has been enjoined by the Saviour, and must be of binding force, until every human being on the face of the earth has heard of his precious name.

Nor is the duty imposed upon the Christian church, of spreading the Gospel over the whole world, an impracticable one. On the other hand, with the assurances of divine aid that is guarantied, we might cheerfully gird up ourselves to the work, even if it were tenfold more stupendous. It appears formidable only when our faith fails to perceive the Almighty hand by which it is sustained and carried forward. But however appalling the difficulties of this work may once have appeared, we of the present day have seen enough of the wonder-working providence of God, to realize that all of them, even the most formidable, will vanish ere long like chaff before the storm. Countries which, a few years ago, were almost beyond our reach, have, in the progress of commercial enterprise, been brought nearer to us than some portions of our own land. The barriers with whichc ertain pagan nations were surrounded a few years ago, as that of China for example, and which no doubt was a device of the adversary to keep out the light of the Gospel, have been so effectually broken down, that we are already beginning to forget that they ever existed.

Pagan and Mohammedan communities, as in Central and Northern India, which, a few years ago, would not tolerate the preaching of the Gospel under any circumstances, now listen to it with seriousness and interest. Systems of false religion, which once held multitudes of our fellow-men in hopeless bondage, are now relaxing their grasp, if they are not melting away before the light and power of the Gospel. Heathen minds, which seemed too debased to be raised much above the brute level, have, under the awakening power of the Gospel, evinced a degree of sprightliness and energy that was scarcely thought possible. Christian churches, in many places, are superseding heathen temples, and the love of God is taking possession of hearts that were once filled with the grossest impurities.

Now by what means have these marvellous changes been brought about? Whence have arisen these precious tokens of good? Undoubtedly they have been effected by the grace and providence of God. A variety of human agencies undoubtedly have been employed, but there was a superintending providence that originated, and is giving direction to all, even the least of them.

The Saviour, if we may judge by the signs of the times, is preparing the heathen world, in a manner that has never perhaps been done before, for the universal triumph of the Gospel. To this great work he is summoning all his hosts. This he has done not only by express command, but now even more emphatically by his providence.

Is our Church, as such, awake to this great work? Are the abundant resources, which a benignant providence has conferred upon her, properly employed in putting forward this great cause? Is her compact and efficient organization made to bear with proper efficiency on this great enterprise?

We apprehend that but one answer can be given to these questions, and that in condemnation of our want of zeal and faithfulness. But this point we shall consider more fully in a subsequent article.

INDIA: AGRA MISSION.

HINDU OMENS.

In the last number of the Record we published an account of certain superstitious notions of the Chinese, which were not much known to the world, but which undoubtedly exert an important influence in shaping the conduct and forming the character of that singular people. In the present number we publish another of a similar character, from the pen of Rev. Joseph Warren, on the Omens of the Hindus, which no doubt has equally as much to do in giving complexion to the character of this not less singular people, and will be read with interest.

Heathen nations are proverbial for their concealment, and especially in what relates to their superstitious notions. And yet these very notions form the true basis of their character, and, when known, will account for many things in their conduct and lives that would otherwise be perfectly anomalous. The missionary, in order to exert an influence over the minds of the people, must look into these secret springs of action; and the more knowledge he acquires in this connexion, the better will he be qualified for the discharge of his responsible duties.

These articles have another important bearing. They show that man, without the Bible, has no sure guide, and no solid foundation upon which to stand.

What steady purpose can be carried out, or solid happiness enjoyed, when that happiness or purpose is made to depend upon the involuntary twitchings of a muscle, the singing of a bird, or the accidental crossing of one's path by a frightened animal? And yet such is the bewildered condition of the heathen, that their peace is disturbed, and their strongest purpose unsettled, by the shaking of a leaf. And there is, and can be no alleviation for their misery, until they are brought forth into the clear light of the Gospel.

Omens derived from the twitching of different parts of the body.

All involuntary movements of different parts of the body, or nervous twitchings, are considered signs of coming events, worthy of the most serious attention. I have a small book, which I bought in Agra, the sole subject of which is this kind of omen. It enters into a detailed account of what is foretold by the twitching or fluttering of every part of the body. For instance—if the right upper eyelid flutters, it shows that good fortune is coming; the right under eyelid, some one will be seen who will give pleasure. If the right ear twitch, good news will be heard. Generally, the left side being similarly affected, indicates the opposite of the right—but both sides together intensify or multiply the thing indicated most capriciously. I am told, by a very respectable native, that in the midst of any interesting conversation, one person will exclaim: "There! my right shoulder (or whatever part it may be) twitched;" and immediately the conversation will be dropped, and all present will join in a discussion as to what is meant by it; and they will offer their congratulations or condolence, as the case may require the one or the other.

Signs derived from the singing of birds.

The voices of birds or animals are another class of omens. They are exceedingly numerous and intricate. One kind foretells good when heard on the right, and evil on the left. Another kind reverses the rule. One kind, to be favourable, must be heard in front; another, in the rear. Some kinds bode only evil, in whatever situation heard. Some kinds foretell good or evil, as the case may be, when heard from certain directions; and nothing if heard from any other. The voices of some are omens only in certain months of the year; others signify different things in different months. Often a good omen of this kind is spoiled by the answering of a bird or beast of the same species from a different quarter; and often one bird of a kind is not sufficient to constitute an omen—there must be two or three. And if two are the number of voices desirable, one more will spoil all. Some require an absolute abandonment of the design of the hearer; some a modification or delay; some may be counteracted by better or worse omens; and some may be expiated by offerings to the Brahmans, or to Lakhshmi, or to Bhawáni—the Brahmans, however, taking care to secure the greater number of such offerings. This is the kind of omen that the Thugs seek for generally, when setting out on a murdering expedition. They go out from the village about half a mile, and pray to Bhawáni: "O Kálí, if thou wilt give us success in our undertaking, grant the omen from the right." And then, if they hear the voice of an animal or bird, of the kind required, on the right before the left, they conclude that they have her blessing. The omens which they regard are somewhat, though not radically, different to those regarded by the common people. They seem, however, to excel all others in the undoubting confidence they repose in them. A noted Thug was being examined by the judicial officers, and was asked why it was, if they were so especially under the protection of Kálí, that she permitted them to be discovered, their secrets learned, their gangs broken up, and numbers of them capitally convicted? The reply was, that they had grown covetous, and had murdered prohibited castes, such as sweepers; and many of them had become impious, and had disregarded the omens; and what could they expect but that Bhawáné should forsake them? They had formerly, in the time of their ancestors, offended her, and had been punished; and so they were now. When asked how their forefathers had offended her, they said, that they used to leave all the bodies of those who were killed by them unburied, and she used to come after them, and dispose of them. They did not know what she did with them; but they did know, that she had commanded them not to seek to learn what she did; and yet their imprudent and impious curiosity at one time got the better of them, and some of them went back to see what she was about. They found her tossing the dead bodies up in the air, and throwing them about as a cat does a mouse in play. She was very angry, and always afterward left them to dispose of the dead bodies. This man said, that this was the first great evil that had happened to their profession; and this brought on them by impertinence: but the great evil—the ruin of their trade and religion—came from the neglect of omens; because this was a direct denial of her power, and rejection of her authority.

Omens of sight.

The omens related to sight are more numerous than those that address themselves to the hearing. Scarcely anything is seen that is not, in some particular circumstances, indicative of some future good or evil. I will give a few specimens under this head. Seeing a fox is, in all cases, lucky. A wagtail, seen on cow-dung, or standing on the back of an ox or cow, denotes coming prosperity; but to see the same bird on the first of any month, flying, is unlucky for a year. If one see a jay on the day of the autumnal equinox, he will be very fortunate—will be kept safe from all the peculiar abominations of the age in which he lives. Whoever sees the moon on the 19th day of the month Bhádon (in 1852, the 17th of September), will be sure to be slandered. My Munshí says, that whatever may be the case with other omens, this, at any rate, is true. In this country, there is very little doubt of this fact—and that they who do not see it, will also be slandered—probably they will be in other countries too. These are enough to illustrate this class.

Omens connected with travelling, journeys, etc.

Nearly related to the above are some omens that particularly bear upon setting out from one's house, on any journey or business. These are exceedingly numerous. I can give but a small part of what I have noted. One condition of these omens is, that they must occur before the person has proceeded forty steps from his door; otherwise they are of no force for good or evil. If within this distance one meet a person carrying fish, buttermilk, grain, vegetables, or sweetmeats, the omen is good. If he meet women singing or dancing, he may go on singing for joy, too. If he meet a married woman, especially if she have a child in her arms, he will prosper. If he meet a Brahman, washed clean, with a book under his arm; or a bad woman; or a dead body; or a bride, being carried to her husband's house, crying; or a washerwoman, with clean clothes; he will be fortunate. But if he meet a widow; or a man with his head uncovered; or a cat coming towards him, or crossing the road before him; or a bundle of soiled clothes; or a bride not crying; he must go back and wait a while, and then set out again. So he must if any person before him sneezes; or if he do the same himself; or if his ear itch. If any one call a washerwoman, or speak of a washerwoman in his hearing, before he has reached the prescribed distance, he must go back and begin again. I have heard an amusing story here, of a Mohammedan officer of government, of some eminence—a very highly flattered man amongst the natives—who was kept at home nearly all day by some mischievous boys, who stationed themselves here and there in the street near his door, and called out to each other something about a washerwoman whenever he came out. As often as this happened he went back and smoked, or drank water, or washed his mouth, and took a fresh departure. It was essential for him to go to his office; and at last he effected his object by hiring people to drive away the boys, and watching his opportunity to make a rush of forty steps before he could be interrupted again. These boys were naughty—and naughty boys ought to be whipped, of course; but, had I seen it, I could not have found in myself the heart to do it. If the poor man had happened to see cats fighting when he was within forty steps of his door, he must have gone back, and not have gone to his office that day, be the consequences what they might—this is one of the very worst of omens. On the other hand, a dog carrying a bone would have encouraged him greatly; because, as the dog would be happy with his bone, so he too might hope for happiness. If he were to see a lizard fall from any height to the ground, it would give him hope of good luck; though the rationale of this omen is not so easily understood. But omens do not often appear to have any rationale at all. At such times the itching of any part of the body, save the ear, is lucky; so is rain falling, except in large quantity—which requires a delay of seven days; and so is a cow, ox, calf, peacock, jay, or squirrel, voiding excrement. These people are, indeed, very bountifully provided with means of guessing at the future.

There are some animals and birds whose voices are good omens, while seeing them is bad—such as the got (a large kind of lizard), the kite, the owl, the tortoise, and the wolf.

Omens connected with seeing snakes.

Snakes, as might be expected in the case of so dangerous a reptile, are prolific in omens. If a person meet one on going out, and within forty steps of his own door, it is a very good omen; if he jump over the snake, it makes his prosperity in his present undertaking certain; if he be obliged to turn back, or go out of his way, to avoid been bitten, the good omen of meeting with it is nullified. If, when a man is asleep, a snake come and look at him, and raises up its head, and oscillate it over the man's head, but do him no harm, the man will become a king—or, at least, a very powerful and great personage. Some other things in my notes about snakes are too indelicate to be detailed.

Many omens are drawn from lizards. Their falling from the roof of the house upon one's person is generally an indication of good; but the omens are particular for every separate day of the month, and for every different part of the body. When they fall on the head, on lucky days, they denote sovereignty or great power; on the neck, love and friendship, &c. Their creeping upon one from the floor is bad.

The eagle, a bird of omen.

Eagles afford many omens. If one be seen flying towards the rising sun, or the north, or sitting on an elephant's head, the beholder will obtain money, rank, or pleasure. If we see them on a kitchen or storeroom, we may look for exemption from sickness. If one should see an eagle sitting on a large snake, he would become a king, or, at least, very rich. If one be seen on the Peepul tree (ficus religiosus), or on thorny trees, or on ashes, or on a grain-parcher's house, or on a ruin, the beholder may look out for sickness, unaccountable quarrels, poverty, enmity of relatives, labour, sorrow, and probably imprisonment. Dig in the place where you see one vomit, or roll himself in the dust, and you will find buried treasure. In case of good omens by eagles, it is proper to burn an offering of clarified butter and sweet spices before an image of Shiw, to hasten the good; and after bad omens of this kind employ a Brahman to perform expiatory services for seven days, to avert the evil. In regard to eagles, also, I must say, that many of the omens refer to such indelicate matters, that they cannot be recounted.

Miscellaneous omens.

If a person be about to do anything, and accidentally hear another saying that he would do it if able, or intends to do it at some time, or in any way commending such a scheme, it is to be taken as one of the best of omens.

Seeing a halo round the moon in the first half of any month is bad; it denotes great sickness. In the last half of any month it foretells rain.

The direction in which one places his head when about to sleep, is a great matter. Sleeping with the head towards the east, brings riches and exaltation; towards the south, long life; towards the west, many dreams; towards the north, nothing. On a journey, always sleep with the head to the westward, and you will get home soon.

Omens connected with the birth of twins.

If twins are born in a family, it is not considered good, independent of the trouble and expense which they entail. Monstrous births must be expiated, by a Brahman hired for the purpose, on behalf of government; though no expiation can avert the threatened evil from the parents. If a woman's first child be a girl born in the month Pús, (part of January and February,) it is a very bad omen; she must conceal her face from every person for twelve years, or a gold image of mother and child must be made and given to the Brahmans. A native gentleman told me that his brother made this gift, when this bad omen happened in his house; though the images must have been very small, as they only cost him twelve rupees [$5.75.]

When horned animals have more than one young at a birth; when elephants, tigers, and some other animals have young in certain specified months, or in particular circumstances, varying in the case of each kind of animal, the young, or gold effigies of them, must be given to the Brahmans, or something terrible will happen to the owners. There are very many of these things, the Brahmans having taken care to make this, as well as everything else that a Hindu does, or that happens to him, a source of profit to themselves. To this class may be added a great many notions relating to lucky and unlucky numbers. For instance, it is very unlucky to own one goat, three elephants, seven horses, &c. It is well to give one to the Brahmans, or to buy one from them, to change the bad luck to good.

It will be seen that most of the things detailed above are the omens observed by Hindus; but it should be understood that when they do not directly refer to, or involve any participation in, the religious acts of the Hindus, the Mohammedans observe them as carefully as any body. Indeed, they are quite as superstitious as the Hindus in this respect; and they add what the Hindus place less reliance upon, dreams. One of the little books which I have collected, is entitled, in substance, "The Principles of the Interpretation of Dreams, which his Majesty Gabriel communicated to his Majesty Joseph, in Egypt." But, although it is called "Principles," I can discover nothing like principles in it, except that many of the things promised bear some analogy to the things seen in the dreams; there is no attempt to lay down rules, from which the interpretation of any particular dream might be deduced; but only a long list of things said to be indicated by things seen in dreams. For instance, if a person dream that he sees the glory of God, his safety and happiness for both worlds is secured; if he see an angel, he will obtain heaven; if he see a beautiful woman, he will be married; if he dream of riding on an elephant, he will become rich; if of an elephant attacking him, he should give alms to avert some great evil; if he see a deer, he will be fortunate, and probably have a son.

It is useless to detail more of such puerilities; and it cannot be necessary, after what I have said in the beginning of this article, to make any further effort, in order that it should be profitable to my readers, or to the cause of missions. I pray that it may be applied according to my intention; for if it only gratify my readers' curiosity, my time in studying the subject will have been wretchedly wasted.

FURRUKHABAD MISSION.

MYNPURIE STATION—EXTRACT FROM MR. FREEMAN'S JOURNAL.

After describing the ceremonies at the Mela, he remarks:

Rose early on Sabbath, and with the Catechists went down to the place of preaching when the native brethren invited me to hold a meeting. A large crowd witnessed our solemn service, giving them an impressive contrast to their own follies; I remarked on the day, and work, and the necessity of the Holy Spirit; the brethren sang a native hymn, which was heavenly music in such a place. I then addressed the large audience on the nature of Christian worship; to me it was an hour that more than paid for the 16 miles of dust through which we came, to be there. In the evening, went out again to preach to a great multitude gathered around. Some priests attempted to stop me, on pretence that I prevented the faquirs from playing, and receiving their picas. I paused to give them an opportunity, but was requested by the audience to proceed—preached till dark, on Christ the only way of salvation; they listened attentively. On our return met a man with his arm stiff and erect—spoke to him of the sin of depriving himself of the limb God had given him; he was making an exhibition of it for alms; those around seemed to approve of my words; such people are now seldom seen. On Monday, were all out preaching before sunrise, found the streets crowded, and the people filling every nook, waiting for a favorable opportunity to bathe. We went to the top of the temple to take a view of the multitude, which resembled a flock of sheep, as they lay stretched along the bank, dressed in clean white robes. We preached without any disturbance. Our theme was faith as evidenced by its fruit. We endeavoured to prove that God required the worship of the heart, which could be done at all times, and in all places. They listened with interest, but feel that they cannot give up these idol ceremonies and holy days for gospel simplicity. We called on Brigadier Parson and lady; they are rare specimens of God's dear people; have given $800 to build churches in India, gave me last year $25 for my school; they have been here 46 years without leaving. When they came, there were but six or seven chapels, and no missionaries from Calcutta to Lahor, with the exception of three at Serampoor; the land is now filling with chapels, missionaries, and native Christians. They tell of the immense change that has taken place since their remembrance. May the time be not far distant when all India shall worship the true God. We endeavoured to improve our time, morning, noon and night, till my voice became quite rough and broken. To talk and preach in the crowd, and dust of the Melá four or five hours, soon wears one out. We divided into small parties in order to work to better advantage, and felt our days of gathering were few.

The infatuation of the Heathen—feeding turtles—worship of idols—conversation about the way of salvation.

Reached Mathma, the birth-place of Krishnu, one of the prominent incarnations of the god Vishnu. Went into the city and preached, a large number gathered round asking alms, said they were dying for want of food. I replied I had little to give for the body, but came to offer them the bread of life for their souls. Found a man feeding turtles by hundreds, these were his gods. I remarked to him of the folly of feeding these animals, that God had given a river full of provision, whilst his fellow-creatures were starving around; some of these turtles had grown black from age. One man here asked me why I said Krishnu could not save him. I replied, he was himself a sinner, and fell by an arrow in battle, he could not save himself. Another old man I asked, how he expected salvation; he replied he trusted in his idols; I urged him him to trust in one true God. A large class of beggars passed with glass rings in their ears about an inch thick. As I spoke to them of the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, they inquired if I was a preacher. I replied, Yes? sent of God to tell them of a Saviour. I noticed at the bathing places, as each pilgrim came up, the priest muttered over him some words in an unknown tongue, then received his offering (as none came empty handed) sprinkled some water over him; gave him several slaps on the shoulder, signifying all was done; the pilgrim then touched the priest and departed, seeming perfectly satisfied all was now safe with him.

Wedding party—conversations with different persons.

On our route to-day we met a wedding party that had come 200 miles, some carrying swords, spears, javelins, and a large number of dancing women following; they were wild with excitement. Wedding parties of this kind in India open a flood of abomination. To-day I walked 18 miles, a great part of the way through sand, the longest walk I ever took; had frequent conversation with the pilgrims returning from the Melá. Thus I often improve the journey with passing individuals; find the Hindus more accessible in small towns and villages than in cities; met a company of women carrying provision to their husbands, with whom I conversed; they are reluctant to do so, when a number of men are present. Went into the office of a native judge; he was surrounded with a large number of respectable-looking men, who were Mohammedans, and engaged in writing and repairing books; they invited me to a seat. We entered into a discussion of the great principles of salvation, the credibility of the Bible, nature of Christ, heaven and hell. They asked many questions and seemed to feel the beauty of truth but will still cling to their refuge of lies. They invited me to come again, and bring some books with me.

Arrival at Agra Mission—schools at this place.

Reached Agra to-day, and stopped with Mr. Fullerton; they have a school of about forty girls. Mr. F. appears worn out with labour; Mr. Williams has a school on the opposite side of the street, some eighty boys; some from heathen parents, who wish to give their children a superior education. In the evening we attended a scientific lecture, open to all by paying a small entrance fee, about three hundred were present; at the close a voluntary was played on the Seraphina; this takes wonderfully with the people. There we had pleasant intercourse with our missionary co-labourers; had much to consult about, our studies, our preaching, our distribution, our assistant readers and preachers; the work in all its parts. We thus strengthen, comfort, and stimulate each other in our toil. These are green spots in our pilgrimage but we cannot linger long.

Resumes his journey—Brindabar, its temples.

On our way again. The road river side is covered with temples and altars, under sacred trees. Stopped at Brindabar; this city is full of temples, priests, monkeys and vagabonds; saw a number of men jumping into the river, where the water is seventy or eighty feet deep, for a few cents. There is a temple which will cost $2,000,000. The sum of $1,500,000 has been already expended. There is a large enclosure, two immense gateways with large rooms over the arch forty feet, which are made of curved stone; in the centre is the idol Krishnu, there we were not allowed to enter; at the entrance of the gate are carved guards, large as life, which the people told me kept improper persons from entering paradise.

The city of Govenold—a splendid palace—preaching and distribution of books.

25th—Walked four miles to breakfast, went into the city of Govenold—stopped at the tomb of a king, where they were giving out a quantity of flour to the poor; they profess to give it in the name of their gods; I remarked on the folly of giving to these idle and able-bodied men. We passed the royal residence, it is a large square of eleven acres; here are ponds of delicious fish, fountains playing, parterres of fruits and flowers, and marble lattice work. The king and his sons sitting in the lattice work-rooms, looking out upon the fountains—his palace is white marble inlaid with precious stone; there are about one thousand fountains in and around this palace; nothing can exceed the grandeur and magnificence of this palace. I had no conception of native luxury before I visited here, though I had seen many elegant palaces.

Sabbath.—Went out early into the city with the catechists, and preached as long as we had voices. We had large and attentive audiences; spoke of the Sabbath and its blessings; gave books to those who could read; some came to our tents for books. Visited the native school, where rote is the rule and understanding the exception, gave some good instruction. Sent a copy of the Old and New Testament to the Governor of the city. In the afternoon we spread our tent cloth in front of our tents, and held a service; quite a number from the city were present; some of them who had been conversing with the catechist, came forward, and asked me to send them a native Christian teacher, to live in their village and teach their children. These men are like feudal Barons, pay no rent to the Raja, but supply soldiers in case of war. With sorrow I told them we had no one to send. I have no doubt many such are to be found. When will the church arise in her strength and give a supply for all lands. We encamped near one of the royal cities; went into it to preach, where we had an immense audience; we all preached till we were exhausted, all seemed eager to hear. But this is no evidence they love the truth; would it were; though we trust as we thus sow the seed, the Lord of the harvest will some day gather it in. We see evidences of natural depravity and awful superstition.

Worship of pigeons and other animals.

At Dig we visited a fort which was taken by the English in 1804; the walls rise from fifty to seventy feet high, solid stone; all is now desolation; occupied by sacred pigeons. I should think there were at least 50,000 fed daily with grain, at a cost of $700 yearly; this is an easy way of laying up rewards. To the Hindu all life is the same, man or beast; transmigration leads to this; hence monkeys at Brindebane, turtles at Mathma, pigeons at Dig, and within a few miles of Mynpurie a rich man has a temple, and employs nine men at $5 per month to feed ants; their food consists of sugar and flour. Truly darkness covers the nation and gross darkness the people.

LODIANA MISSION.

EXTRACTS FROM THE JOURNAL OF REV. JOSEPH OWEN.

[Continued from page 108.]

A secret sect.

In our morning's walk, Nehemiah gave me an account of the religion taught by Práu Náth to Chuttur Sál, and which has been followed to a very considerable extent by the Búndelás. Pogson, who wrote the history of the Búndelás, could get no definite account of this creed. Wilson has a passing notice of the sect in his Sketch of the Religious Sects of the Hindús. Under, the head of Práu Náthís, Wilson thus remarks:—"These are also called Dhámís. They owe their origin to Práu Náth, a Kshatriya, who being versed in Mohammedan learning, as well as in his own, attempted to reconcile the two religions. With this view, he composed a work called the Machitáriyal, in which texts from the Koran and the Vedas are brought together, and shown not to be essentially different. Práu Náth flourisheda bout the latter part of Aurangzeb's reign, and is said to have acquired great influence with Chuttur Sál, Raja of Búndelkhand, by effecting the discovery of a diamond mine. Bundelkhand is the chief seat of his followers; and in Punnah is a building consecrated to the use of the sect, in one apartment of which, on a table covered with gold-cloth, lies the volume of the founder. As a test of the disciples' consent to the real identity of the essence of the Hindú and Mohammedan creeds, the ceremony of initiation consists of eating in the society of members of both communions; with this exception, and the admission of the general principle, it does not appear that the two classes confound their civil or even religious distinctions; they continue to observe the practices and ritual of their forefathers, whether Musalmán or Hindú, and the union, beyond that of community of eating, is no more than any rational individual of either sect is fully prepared for, or the admission that the God of both and of all religions is one and the same."

The Práu Náthís, or Dhámís, make a great secret of their creed, and it is known to exceedingly few out of their community. Nehemiah received the account he gave me this morning from an intelligent native Christian, who was formerly a Práu Náthí. Práu Náth was born in Guzerát. His preceptor, Deochaud, was an inhabitant of the same province. When Práu Náth became a young man, he chose the life of an ascetic, and made a journey into Arabia, where he remained several years. Here he became acquainted with Mohammedanism, many of whose doctrines he afterwards mingled with his system of faith. Returning from Arabia, he proclaimed himself a prophet, and began to teach and gather disciples. After some time, he found his way to Punnah, in Búndelkhand, where he took up his abode. While residing there, Chuttur Sál, in a plundering excursion, one day came to rob him. Práu Náth fixed his eyes upon him. Chuttur Sál was disarmed of his resolution, and fell at the prophet's feet. Práu Náth became his preceptor, and gave him a system of religion for himself and his posterity. After this, he requested him to rise from his seat, and indicated to him the rich diamond mine, lying beneath him, from whose treasures he promised that Chuttur Sál and his descendants should be enriched. Práu Náth, Chuttur Sál's great guru, or religious teacher, taught that the Supreme Being lives in a heaven, which is above all other heavens. In the next heaven below him, lives his wazir, or Prime Minister, named Akshar. The name of the Supreme Being is Akshrátit, [beyond or above Akshar.] Aksharátith as an appearance like a man, and lives in a most glorious palace, in which are beautiful apartments, adorned with all manner of precious stones, and surrounded with splendid gardens, and lakes, and rivers, and mountains of diamonds and other precious stones. In these splendid gardens and mountains are all kinds of beasts and birds. All this, however, though it has a visible appearance, is yet immaterial and spiritual. There Aksharátit enjoys all pleasures, with thousands of attending spirits, which, though inferior to him, are his female companions. With these he amuses himself in eating and drinking, and moving about. He never troubles himself with the affairs of this lower world, having made over all care of it to Akshar, his wazir, who comes every day about nine o'clock to pay him a visit, when Aksharátit, having just risen from sleep is washing his face. At that Akshar stands aloof. Aksharátit, while washing, having heard of Akshar's arrival, simply turns his head and looks at him. This is the utmost honour that Akshar can receive.

One day it happened that the sakhis, or female companions, felt curious to know the máyá, or delusive power of Aksharátit, and besought him to show it to them. He, seeing it dangerous for them, prohibited them, saying, "If you once fall into my máyá, you will forget yourselves and me, and all your former state, and become very miserable." But they continued to insist upon their request. At last Aksharátit complied with their wishes, and commanded them to shut their eyes. Immediately they found themselves in this lower world. This is the origin of the creation of this world, which is all Aksharátit's máyá.

When they came into this world, they found their condition as had been foretold; they lost all knowledge of themselves and Aksharátit, and became slaves to their carnal mind and senses, and subject to various births or transmigrations. Then Aksharátit, having viewed them in his compassion, sent his prophets to warn and to restore them, such as Moses, Noah, David, Solomon, Abraham, Jesus, Mohammed, and last in time, though greatest in importance, Práu Náth. Through these prophets, all those sakhis, who are now beholding Aksharátit's máyá in this lower world, are destined sooner or later to be restored to their former place and enjoyment. But other men, who are not of these chosen sakhis, if they adopt the faith of Práu Náth, will get rid of transmigration and all the miseries belonging to this world, and will be entitled forever to enjoy the heaven of Akshar the wazir, though they cannot with the sakhis, enter the heaven of Aksharátit. So far for the doctrines, now for the precepts.

Práu Náth prohibits the worship of the Hindú triad, Bramhá, Vishnu and Siva, and other gods, as Ganesh, etc., whom he does not believe to be gods, but some powerful delusive spirits. Nor does he allow the worship of natural objects, such as the sun, the Ganges, etc., nor any idol or image of stone, brass, wood, etc., but cultivates the mental worship of Krishna. Krishna, according to him, was originally an incarnation of Vishnu, whom Práu Náth believed to be the devil (called by him Azazel, borrowed evidently from Mohammedanism, and by Mohammedanism from the Old Testament.) When Vishnu, or Azazel, became incarnate (literally made an avatára, or descent, from the Sanscrit root tri, to float, to swim, and ava, down) in Krishnu, Aksharátit resided in him from the beginning of his avatára for eleven years and fifty-two days, therefore they worship Krishna as the Supreme Being only under this age. All his acts that were performed under this age they ascribe to Aksharátit, beyond this age they do not think him worthy of worship. Of all Aksharátit's acts in the person of Krishnu, his rás lilá, or notorious sporting with the milkmaids, is regarded as the most glorious, praised in many poems, and celebrated by the Práu Nathís at particular festivals. This they say was performed in a night of immense duration, and not in this world, but in a place called Akhand Vindávan, while the whole world was annihilated. Yet, when the whole world and all its inhabitants were restored to their former state, this night, though it lasted millions of ages, appeared to the people, when they found themselves awake in the morning, to have been a night of only ordinary length.

Práu Náth did not allow his followers to perform any Hindú ceremonies whatever, (although lately a few have been adopted,) yet they count themselves among the Hindús, and are recognized as such by other Hindús from the external marks of tilak, (a mark on the forehead,) and kanthi (a short necklace) worn by all the Dhámís. The Bráhmans and Kshatrís among them are to be recognized by the janeú, or sacred thread, who yet do not read the gayatri, or sacred stanza, although this is indispensable to other Bráhmans and Kshatrís. To these may be added a few other things by which they might be taken for Hindús, such as borrowing all the stories from the Puránas, though with their own peculiar interpretation, and borrowing many Hindú terms and using them in their books. Although they profess to keep no distinction in castes, yet this profession is carried out only in the higher castes, who sit and eat together. They call all those who are in the faith of Práu Náth "brothers," and the whole assembly that worships together the sunder sáth, (or beautiful company,) corresponding somewhat to congregation or church. They admit to their "congregation" even Mohammedans, a thing unknown to Hindús, yet abstain from eating with them. They do not, like other Hindús, burn their dead, but bury them, having made the bodies sit upright in the grave with the legs crossed. They think death a most joyful event, and therefore while carrying the dead to burial celebrate the event with songs and instrumental music. Formerly when they had buried their dead, here all ceremonies ended. Latterly, in conformity to other Hindus, they have adopted some other ceremonies, and the chief heir remains separate as impure for several days. Even the custom of burying the dead is practised in Punnah only, the Jerusalem of their religion, elsewhere they are burned. From this their custom of burying their head, and forbidding all Hindu idolatry, and from believing in Mohammed, the Koran and all the prophets mentioned in it, and from inserting many stories from the Koran and Hadís in their religious books, such as the ascension of Mohammed to the seventh heaven, etc., and from adopting several Mohammedan terms in their religious books, such as Khudá for God, arsh i azim (the great throne) hagg hádi (true guide,) they might be understood to be inwardly Mohammedans. At all events, their religion is a strange mixture of Hindúism and Mohammedanism.

The collection of their sacred books is called Kuljam, (a different name from that given by Wilson in the above extract, which is written in Hindú, Guzarátí and Panjábí, and to some parts of it they give the names of Tauret (law), Zabrú (Psalms), Injil (Gospel), although the subjects are as different as possible from those rightly so named. For instance, their Injil treats of the lilá, or sport of Krishna. These books are carefully kept at Punnah, the seat of their religion, and although not allowed by their preceptor Práu Náth, who cultivated only the mental worship of Krishna, they have latterly adopted the worship of the book itself, which is placed on a throne in their chapel, which they singáro, or crown with a turban and other garments, and with jewels, and adorn with flowers, and offer to it the choiest dishes of food at different times, and they even furnish it with a bed. Thus, although they professedly disclaim idolatry, they have in fact latterly become idolaters.

They have missionaries in various parts of India, such as Guzarát, the Panjáb, Cashmere, Napaul, and some parts of the Goruckpore District. They have established congregations and temples in all these places. Their missionaries do not, like us, preach from street to street, but travel about with great pomp and ceremony, by which they attract crowds, from whom they quietly make proselytes. In making proselytes they practice pious frauds, by withholding from the Hindùs the Mohammedan element of their religion, until the new converts are sufficiently initiated and confirmed to be introduced into this portion of their sacred mysteries. For instance, at Kúvah, the capital of Baghelkhand, Nehemiah saw some late converts to this faith, from whom even the name of Práu Náth had been studiously withheld. In discussion with the missionary by whom they were converted, Nehemiah happened to call him a Práu Náthí, when he utterly denied that he knew such a name.

Perhaps their influence, so far as it goes, though certainly it is not very considerable, may, by undermining the ancient Hindúism, be preparing the way for a better religion.

INDIAN TRIBES.

OTOE AND OMAHA MISSION.

The following account of the mission-school for the Omaha children, by Mr. James C. Dellett, the teacher, will be read with interest; especially when it is remembered, that the tribe from whom these children have been gathered were proverbial, a few years ago, for their wildness, and their devotion to the hunter life.

Perhaps it would not be wearisome to you, to see a brief account of the general progress of the children during the first year. This, however, will not be so satisfactory and encouraging as we could wish —though not entirely unfavourable.

Our larger children have made decided improvement in reading, writing, and elementary geography. Arithmetic seems the most difficult to them of all their studies, especially the rules of subtraction and division. It appears, if they are naturally deficient in any particular, it is in the powers of calculation. Yet, with a great deal of labour and patience, some of them are beginning to conquer these difficulties, which did seem to them beyond their grasp, and unconquerable.

Some others have advanced from their spellers to their readers, but, owing to the difficulty they find in our pronunciation, their progress is slow. Their limited knowledge of the meaning of our terms is another cause of their tardiness in reading. But I cannot account for the ease and rapidity with which most of them learn to write. In less than six months from their first effort, most of them are able to write a fair hand, and can imitate a copy with great exactness.

The small children which we received about a year ago from the village, can understand and make themselves understood in English, and are spelling readily in four and five letters.

Though this is not so encouraging as we would wish, and you might expect, we ought not to despise the "day of small things;" for they have made greater proficiency in their knowledge and practice of the priciples of industry and virtue than in their studies.

Those who are able to work, do it cheerfully, and have, during the year, accomplished a great deal. They are beginning to realize the pleasures and comforts derived from a life of quiet industry, compared with the necessities and miseries of their wild, degraded friends. They are also becoming more and more ashamed of the vile customs and practices of their friends, and are beginning to appreciate, to some extent, the instruction they receive here. Their tastes are improved—and I think but few would be willing now to leave us; notwithstanding the restraint they are under here, and the freedom they enjoy at home, so congenial to their nature.

Their knowledge of the truth is more extensive than they are willing to express, though little practiced. Some, however, do appear to be quite conscientious, and consistent in their general deportment, but manifest no particular anxiety for the salvation of their souls. But it is not for us to change the heart—we can only sow the seed, and look to God for the increase; for which, also, God's people should watch and pray with us. And we humbly trust, that in the day of God's power they will become the subjects of his grace, though we may "toil all the night and take nothing."

CALIFORNIA.

The following account of the dedication of the Mission House at San Francisco, for the Chinese, by the Rev. William Speer, will give you some idea of the state and prospects of that mission.

It is to us all here a cause of much gratitude to God, that our Mission House is at length completed, occupied, and the work in it so favourably commenced. Frequent inquiries have been made of late by the Chinese as to its objects. Every possible exertion will be employed to bring them to feel that it is the place appropriated by the American community to their religious worship. And we have reason to hope too, that its existence and operations may exercise an influence favourable to the Chinese upon our own portion of the population.

The Mission House was dedicated to God on the first Sabbath of this month. On the Saturday previous, Lai Sam, the elder and colporteur, called at all the leading Chinese houses and notified them of the occasion. Handbills had been previously pasted about the quarters which they most frequent, in which something to this effect was said to them. The true God that made the heavens and earth and man, having in six days completed His work, rested on the seventh, and appointed it to be a holy Sabbath; which all men, in every age and country, are bound to observe. The laws and custom of the land require it. The people of this city have erected an edifice for the use of the Chinese, in the hope that they will conform, also, to our respect for the Sabbath.—Some account was then given of the Mission House and its various purposes, with notice of the dedication on the day following.

These services were held, one in Chinese at one o'clock, when the largest number of the people were present, and two in English at half-past three and half-past seven, P. M. The Chinese discourse was upon Matt. xxviii. 18–20, explaining the reason why American and other Christians build churches, send missionaries, and support benevolent institutions, for their benefit. They listened with apparent interest to this and a short concluding address from Lai Sam, which was designed to enforce these topics. The English dedication-sermon was preached at half-past three o'clock. The room might have been four times filled with those who wished to be present on this occasion. The text was from Acts ii. 16, 17. The prayer, setting the building apart for the service of God, and invoking his acceptance of, and blessing upon it, was made by the Rev. Dr. W. A. Scott, late of New Orleans; the concluding prayer was offered by the Rev. A. Williams. It was felt to be a solemn occasion. It commences, indeed, an extension of our missionary work in scope and importance, which calls for the sympathies and prayers of Christian friends in every part of our country. We can now give seat to near three hundred Chinese. How long will it be before the room is regularly filled? How long before the Spirit is poured out, as at Pentecost? The Chinese here are subject to may evil influences. The number yet attending is but few; though they are of the best class of their people. We hope to see the day, when this place shall be thronged with weeping inquirers for the way of salvation—when the lowest and vilest shall come with broken hearts to seek pardon from Jesus. The number of those residing in the city, I might state, is about two thousand. But there are constantly many coming and going between this and the mines, or their native country.

The evening school was resumed on the Monday after the dedication. On the first evening four gave in their names as scholars, promising to stay for a period of not less than six months. This week there are about three times that number, and each evening we have several visitors. Some of these scholars are the best Chinese merchants of this city, and men of much influence among their countrymen. I have been making some movement towards establishing a dispensary in the mission house, for the benefit of this people. And it is possible that we may, before long, see the way clear to commence a lithographed weekly newspaper in their language.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MADAGASCAR.

The prospects of Christianity in this island may be learned from the following report.

The appointment of Messrs. Ellis and Cameron on a temporary visit to Madagascar, with a view to obtain ample and accurate information as to the position and prospects of Christianity in that island, was stated by the Directors in their last report, and the result of their visit fully justifies this preliminary measure.

They sailed in the month of July, from Mauritius to the port of Famatave, and, although they were unable to proceed to the capital, they acquired the knowledge of many important facts confirmatory, for the greater part, of the intelligence which had reached this country during the preceding year, and inspiring a confident hope that the day is not distant when the messengers of peace and salvation will again be welcome to those shores. To detail with minuteness the information which our friends acquired, or the sources from which it was obtained, might involve individuals in great peril, and endanger the result which we so ardently desire. The Directors trust, therefore, that their constituents will accept a brief and general statement of the facts ascertained. All that had been reported of the attachment of the Prince of Madagascar to the Gospel of Christ, and to its suffering confessors, was found to be true. Both the Prince and his wife are members of the church in Tananarivo. His dwelling has often been the refuge of the persecuted, and from his limited resources he has generously supplied the wants of the poor Christians. His cousin, the Prince of Ramonja, is also a most honourable and consistent professor of the faith of Christ, although at the sacrifice of worldly honour, and the imminent risk of his personal sofety. The severe laws against Christianity have not been repealed, but their execution since the year 1849 has been relaxed or suspended. But the martyrs of that and former years, hitherto supposed to be nearly fifty, actually amounted to about a hundred. Many believers are still in slavery as the penalty of their faith, and holy women appear at the midnight meeting of the church wearing a heavy iron collar, as the symbol of disgrace, and the instrument of torture.

The desire of the Malagasy Christians for copies of the Scriptures, to supply the place of those which have been destroyed by the hand of persecution, is intense, and measures have been adopted to satisfy their wishes.

The Queen, though still an inveterate idolater, is most fondly attached to her only child, and has not only distinctly nominated him as her successor, but has indicated the intention of resigning the crown in his favour. But in this she is withstood, by the heathen party, headed by her nephew, a man of stern resolution, and possessing great influence with the army. But if this champion of idolatry is feared, the Christian Prince is admired and loved; and with the prayers of the faithful, not only in Britain, but throughout Christendom, constantly ascending to the throne of grace on his behalf, we may humbly hope that God, who has hitherto guarded the precious life of his servant, will yet give him the throne of Madagascar, and make him a nursing father to his church.—Annual Report of the London Missionary Society.

JOURNAL OF THE WIFE OF A MISSIONARY IN THE INTERIOR OF AFRICA.

May 23, 1853.—I sent off our letters to Abbeokuta; twenty-two persons had been written to by my hand. To-day, also, the first post to Ibadan arrived. I saw the easy, smirking, smiling African, some time before he reached our dwelling; and while I was on the tiptoe of excitement for the contents of his tin case, and he so entirely unconscious of the treasures he held, I was reminded of Cowper's description in his "Winter Evening"—

> . . . . the close packed load behind,
> Yet, careless what he brings, his one concern
> Is to conduct it to the destined inn;
> And, having dropp'd the expected bag, pass on.
> He whistles as he goes . .
> messenger of grief
> Perhaps to thousands, and of joy to some;
> To him indifferent whether grief or joy.

But oh! what mingled hope and fear, in opening these treasures, takes possession of one's heart! My home letters tell a tale of joy and sorrow. The comfort is in "baring my heart before Him who its depths can understand." I do thank every one for their precious letters. You can hardly think what the sight even of a kind friend's handwriting is in this far-off land.

I do wish some of you could just look at us this evening. The scene would be amusing—in our little native dwelling, with its mud walls and thatched roof, without ceiling, no doors or windows; and yet we feel as secure as if we had bars and locks. People are too much afraid of us to steal, even if they were so inclined. Many comforts surround us, and we are quite as happy as though we were in a palace, though not perhaps quite so comfortable. For instance, it is raining; patter, patter, it comes on your head, and you must move; it is soon put to rights again, and as soon you find it coming down in another place. But it is a variety, and often affords a little amusement. It has not spoiled anything yet, and when the roof gets thoroughly soaked—which it will soon do now, as the rain comes in good earnest—we shall not have these disturbances.

A bright lamp—French moderator—now lightens our dwelling; our various boys, with some of their friends, are sitting in the piazza, with their country lamps, teaching each other to read—some Yoruba, some English. We have a nice table, not mahogany nor rosewood, but covered with a bright, cheerful looking cloth, with some beautiful green oranges of delicious flavour, one of the many little kind offerings of my African friends. Now and then a frog hops in to take a survey—but, being taken by surprise, it is generally glad to hop out again, after a little scream from me—and some long, worm-like looking things, with at least a hundred legs. But my greatest enemies are the musquitoes; they are too fond of biting. We are very near the bush, which accounts for their constant visitation; but they are, after all, far better than the dirt, noise, and dangers of the town.

[To be continued.]

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN JULY, 1854.

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Buffalo City—Buffalo Central ch 41 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Deer Park ch, of which 7 for Corisco 18. Pby of Bedford—Yorktown ch 2; Red Mills ch, S S Myrick 5; Patterson ch 34 92. Pby of Long Island—Smithtown ch 33 25; South Haven ch 24. Pby of New York—New York 1st ch mo con 45 54, Sab sch to ed W W Phillips 6 25, to ed girl at Corisco 25, teachers to ed James Donaldson and Sarah C Dow 12 50, Miss L Jaudon's class to ed Fanny Phillips 6 25, Infant Sab sch to ed Walter Lowrie at Spencer 6 25; Eighty-Fourth st ch mo con 12 60; Forty-Second st ch mo con 12 60; Brooklyn 1st ch mo con 22; Chelsea ch mo con 27, Sab sch for sup of Bazar school at Allahabad 15; Madison Avenue ch mo con 20 74; Yorkville ch mo con 7 54; University Place ch mo con 10. 2d Pby of New York—Scotch ch three mos con colls 255, Mrs Ferguson 24 629 44

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch mo con 15 87; Morristown 2d ch a friend 2. Pby of New Brunswick—Bound Brook ch 10; Cranberry 1st ch 40, less 3 for Foreign Missionary; New Brunswick 1st ch 25 54. Pby of West Jersey—Camden 1st ch Sab sch to ed Robinson P Dunn and Levi H Christian 50; Cape Island ch three mos con colls 23 50. Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch J G Shipman 20, Sab sch to ed John M Sherrerd 8. Pby of Raritan—Lambertville ch 38. Pby of Luzerne—Kingston ch 11 19 241 10

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Kensington ch Sab sch to con Rev WILLIAM O JOHNSTONE l d 112 03; Arch st ch in part 220, J L 20. Pby of New Castle—New London ch benev fund 60. Pby of Baltimore—Balt 2d ch, children of J H Brown to ed Mary E Wilson 25; Broadway ch 29; Madison st ch 2 95. Pby of Carlisle—Rocky Spring and St Thomas ch 20, a friend 5. Pby of Huntingdon—Presbyterial coll 12 80; Shirleysburg ch 15, J Campbell 5; Spruce Creek 1st ch 10; West Kishacoquillas ch 60; Sinking Valley ch 13; Little Aughwick ch 35 50; Shaver's Creek ch 27 62; Curwinsville ch 30; Lower Tuscarora ch 2 12; Hollidaysburg ch, ladies to ed John Lloyd in China 25; Alexandria ch 60 50; Altoona ch 6 41; Bellefonte ch 71; Waynesburg and Newton Hamilton chs 189. Pby of Northumberland—Derry and Washingtonville ch, Washingtonville fem miss soc to con Miss SARAH E CLARK l m 30; Washington ch 28 1114 93

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Elairsville—Salem ch 11; Johnstown ch 82. Pby of Redstone—West Newton ch 18 75. Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch Sab sch to ed Richard and Mary Lea 50; Albion ch Sab sch to ed Giles Swan Bates 25. Pby of Allegheny—Slate Lick ch 27 33; Freeport ch 22 09. Pby of Erie—Mercer ch, Mrs Mary Homes 10; Fairview ch 11 61, a member 1; Sturgeonville ch 8 66, a member 50 cents; Girard ch 3 23. Pby of Allegheny City—Sharpsburgh ch 28 299 17

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Wheeling 2d ch Sab sch to ed Delia M Dickson, Cyrus Dickson, Edgar Woods, James M McKelly, and Robert Crangle 62 50, to ed ——— 6 25; Wheeling 3d ch, Mrs Woods and Rev Edgar Woods to ed Theodore Woods 15; Washington ch ann coll and twelve mos con colls 157 34, Sab sch for California Mission 20, to ed two boys at Canton 60; West Liberty ch 4 86. Pby of St Clairsville—New Castle ch 4 10; Grand View ch 7 43. Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 2d ch, Youth's miss soc to ed Wm P Breed 12. Pby of New Lisbon—Deerfield ch fem for miss soc to ed John Hartzell and Anna Maria Stratton 50; Rehoboth ch 8 25 407 73

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Zanesville—Cambridge ch 23; Buffalo ch 22 06; Pleasant Hill ch 23; Norwich ch 7 80; Cross Roads ch 7; Hopewell ch 5 75; Newark ch 6. Pby of Richland—Lake Fork Cross Roads ch 12 75; Perrysville ch 6; Clear Fork ch 3; Loudonville ch 3. Pby of Coshocton—Unity ch of which 30 to con JAMES DORLAND l m 43. Pby of Hocking—Gallipolis ch 31 62 193 98

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Oxford—Oxford 3d ch 46 50; Harmony ch 20 25. Pby of Sidney—Troy ch 4; Covington ch 2; Stony Creek ch 13 85 75

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of New Albany—New Albany 1st ch 226 42. Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 4. Pby of Indianapolis—Shelbyville ch 4; Hopewell ch 4. Pby of White Water—Mt Carmel ch 13; Connersville ch 12; Knightstown ch 32; Rising Sun ch 13 24. Pby of Palestine—Wabash ch 6 314 66

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Muncie—Indianapolis 1st ch Sab sch to ed Mary Jane Axtell 25; Pby of Crawfordsville—Bethany ch 20; Rockville ch 16 60 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Kaskaskia—Nashville ch 12. Pby of Peoria—Peoria 1st ch Sab sch to ed Addison Coffey 25; Crow Meadows ch 6 36. Pby of Chicago—Willow Creek ch 23 50 66 86

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Milwaukee—Waukesha ch 7 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—Grandview ch 3 45. Pby of Des Moines—Birmingham ch, of which 1 from children 21 25 24 70

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of Upper Missouri—Hopewell ch 6 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch mo con 22 60; Second ch mo con 9 35; Chestnut st ch 29 65; Pennsylvania Run ch, Miss Mary Guthrie 10. Pby of Muhlenburg—Greenville ch 5; Christian co, Ky, Maria H Evans 10 86 60

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Lexington—Lexington ch 170; Old Oxford ch 5; New Providence ch, pupils of Bellville female seminary 28 12; Shemariah ch, Miss Clarke's female school, for female education in North India 10. Pby of West Hanover—Hebron ch 12, Dr W L Wight 5, Mrs H Harris 5; Orange and Madison ch 10; Village ch 42 49; New Concord ch 2 25; Old Concord ch 20; Cumberland ch 33 75; Trinity ch 10; Peaks and New London ch 1; Rev Peyton Harrison 12; South Plains ch 30 53. Pby of East Hanover—Richmond 1st ch mo con 5 66 402 80

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Orange—Fairfield and Eno chs 20 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Chickasaw—College ch 38 33

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—Pby of South Carolina—Willington ch 20. Pby of Bethel—Beersheba ch 11 35; Catholic ch 58 05; Bullock's Creek ch 10; Yorkville ch Sab sch 7. Pby of Charleston—Wilton ch a member 5; Charleston 2d ch ann coll 207 27, Moore fund 86 75, contributions from a small circle of friends for sup of a Waldensian missionary 152, Juv miss soc 9 35; Walterboro ch 30; Columbia 1st ch mo con colls 125 81 722 58

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Pby of Georgia—Jacksonville ch to con Rev A W SPROULL l m 31 75. Pby of Hopewell—Thyatira ch 40 71 75

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Louisiana—Prytanea st ch N Orleans, Juv miss soc to ed Elias R and Hannah J Beadle 31 08; New Orleans, La, Grandchildren of late Rev Jos Copes to ed Joseph Copes in North India 25; New Orleans 3d ch Sab sch to ed Grace Leeds and Abby Eldridge Beattie 50 106 08

Total from churches, $4,941 46

SEMINARIES.—Washington College, Tenn, E S M 5 00

LEGACIES.—Harmony, N J, Legacy of Peter J Dewitt, deceased, 4000; St Thomas, Pa, Estate of M Patton, deceased 30; Pittsburg, Pa, Legacy of M B Lowrie, deceased 95; Tinker Run, Pa, Legacy of Rev Wm Swan in part for African Mission 1200 5325 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—An old Presbyterian 25; A friend at Sandy Hill, N Y 3; ——— for African Missions 17; San Francisco, Cal, Hannah Spalding to ed John Anderson at Canton 30; A friend of Missions 5; Associate Reformed Synod of the South, for the education of boys in Africa 204 27; Lexington, Mo, Rufus Young 3; A friend 10; Mary Anne Goza 2 50 299 77

Total receipts in July, $10,571 23

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. B. M. Smith, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M. D. Treasurer.

☞ As frequent inquiries are made on this subject, we give the terms on which the Board of Publication ordinarily employs Colporteurs.

Wages $150 per annum. Equipage $50. All reasonable travelling expenses, together with charges for freight and postage, are defrayed by the Board.

CO-OPERATION OF THE REFORMED DUTCH CHURCH.

The interesting event, mentioned in the following extract from the Presbyterian, of July 29, would have been noticed in our August number had the meeting mentioned occurred a few days earlier in July. It is a subject of mutual congratulation on the part of both these branches of the great Presbyterian family. The co-operation involves no sacrifice of principles, and no compromise of important truth. We fervently pray and confidently believe that a union of effort, for disseminating a common system of Gospel truth, based on the love of that truth, may prove durable, productive of the true "unity of the spirit," and of lasting benefit to the cause of a common Master, our common country and the world.

We trust it will not be long before we shall be permitted to record other illustrations of united effort, based on common attachment to the distinctive truths of the Gospel, and not on the surrender of any of their important principles.

Board of Publication and the Reformed Dutch Church.—The General Synod of the Reformed Dutch Church, at its last sessions, organized a Board of Publication, which has been preparing for active operations. In addition to issuing their own publications, they have made arrangements also for circulating those of the Presbyterian Board. A correspondence having taken place with a view to this end, it was deemed expedient that there should be a personal conference, and accordingly, the Rev. Dr. Campbell, professor in the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, and President of the Board of the Dutch Church, together with the Rev. Dr. Strong, the Rev. Mr. Strong, Corresponding Secretary of the new Board, and Mr. Ferris, Publishing Agent of the same, visited Philadelphia last week, and spent several hours conferring with the Executive Committee of the Presbyterian Board, which had been called together specially to meet them. Arrangements mutually satisfactory were agreed upon. The Dutch Board is to add its imprimatur on the title page of such works of the Presbyterian Board as it may adopt for circulation in the Reformed Dutch Church, and also to keep the publications of the latter for sale, at its Depository in the city of New York. Further details it is not necessary to publish. The conference was mutually pleasant; so much so that at the suggestion of the Rev. Dr. Campbell, special thanks were returned to God at the conclusion of the meeting for the fraternal spirit which had prevailed. We wish much success to our Dutch brethren in their new enterprise, and are highly gratified that two Presbyterian bodies so nearly allied, have thus found a platform on which they can labour together.

STATISTICS OF COLPORTAGE.

During the quarter ending July 1, 1854, the reports of seventy two colporteurs, present the following results of work performed.

Volumes sold 25,925; given away 2,445.—Total 28,368. Families visited, 18,839; with 4,388 of whom special religious exercises were held.

The proceeds of sales amounted to nearly $12,000, exceeding those of the corresponding quarter last year by upwards of five thousand dollars.

The time spent in the work is much less in proportion to the results, than at any former period with which a comparison has been made.

There have been gratuitously distributed 260,220 pages of tracts, worth $175, and about $1000 worth of books. The taste for the more solid substantial kind of religious books is improving. One evidence of this is found in the fact, that the proceeds of sales exceed greatly the proportionate increase of the number of volumes, thus showing that more of the latter are of the larger and more costly works.

These figures, however, convey but a poor representation of the value of this service to individuals, families, the churches, and the country. Time, in part, and eternity only, in full, can develope the great moral results of the work.

Meanwhile, the question deserves the serious attention of all ministers and church officers, whether we cannot greatly increase the sowing of this valuable seed of the word, in all the destitute portions of our country. We greatly need more labourers, men of self-denying, earnest, prayerful spirit—and we greatly need largely increased contributions. We have but one collecting agent in the field. We trust that the colporteur fund will not be permitted to fall in arrears and the work be impeded for want of means.

OBITUARY.

Died, on Sabbath, July 30th, Mr. Cyrus Higley, one of our most valuable colporteurs. Mr. Higley was somewhat advanced in life, and has been for about four years in our service. He has gone to his reward, and we pray that the good seed sown by him may spring up in abundant fruit to the glory of his Saviour, and for his crown of rejoicing above.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

Dear Children:

You know, perhaps, that the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States is a number of ministers and elders who meet once a year to consult together and make plans for doing good. Some years ago, the General Assembly appointed several of the ministers and elders to be a Board of Publication, who should have good books made for people to read. The Assembly also directed the Board to take care and have some books made for children. Now we have made several, and you have, no doubt, seen and read many of them. In the "Record" for August, we told you about some new books which had just been made. And now we have some more ready for you. We will describe them to you. Many of them are such little, short books, that we cannot very well bind them alone. So we have sometimes put several of them together in one binding. When this is the case, the name of the first one is given as the name of the book. You will see here, that in writing about them, we put the name of the first one in larger letters than the names of the others.

1. THE BABY, Good and Bad Luck, The Golden Image, and The Star. By Charlotte Elizabeth. 18mo. Pp. 108.

"The Baby" is an account of Moses, who was hid three months, and then put in a little basket on the edge of the river. It is the same account you have in the Bible, with many things said to explain it.

"Good and Bad Luck" was written to show that nothing happens by chance, but that God governs the world, and all people and things. It contains a great deal of good advice to children. You will find in it, too, an account of a little girl, and what her father told her about the sin and folly of trusting to "luck," and how we ought to trust in God.

"The Golden Image" is the Bible story about Daniel and his companions, whom a wicked king had put in a fiery furnace, because they would not worship an image he had set up.

"The Star" is a very instructive account of the Saviour's birth, and the visit the "Wise Men" made to him.

In these books, as in "The Baby," you are told many things which explain what the Bible says. At the end of each, are some very pretty verses.

2. WHITE LIES, Little Oaths, and The Bee. By Charlotte Elizabeth. 18mo. Pp. 72.

Although these are not "story books," such as you sometimes read, yet they are accounts of people and things which you will find very interesting and improving. They are written to show you that you must always speak the truth, even in little things; must never use any bad words, and must be very industrious. We hope you will love to read such books, and that God will bless the reading of them to make you good, sweet, pious children.

3. THE BOAT and The Drowned Officer. By Charlotte Elizabeth. 18mo. Pp. 36.

In the first, you have an account of the dangers of disobeying parents. A little boy and girl went near a shore where they had been told not to go, and fell in the water between a boat and the shore, and would, perhaps, have been drowned, but for timely assistance.

4. THE ROSE BUD, The Hen and Her Chickens, The Bow in the Cloud, and The Glowworm. By Charlotte Elizabeth. 18mo. Pp. 72.

In these little books you will find much excellent and useful truth told in a very pleasing manner. The first three, especially, contain very important Bible truth, which we trust you will not only read and remember, but learn to love.

5. Captives of Alb's Valley. A Legend of Frontier Life. By a Son of Mary Moore. 18mo.

This is a graphic and touching narrative of one of the memorable scenes of Indian warfare, with which the history of our western frontier, during the latter part of the last century, abounds.

James and Mary, two children of James Moore, of Tazewell Co., Va., with a young woman residing in the house at the time, were carried into captivity by the Indians; the first child previously, and the last, with the young woman, subsequently to the burning of their father's house, his murder, and that of all his remaining family, except his wife and infant child, and an absent son. During the march of the Indians west, the infant was brutally killed, and the mother, after their arrival at their towns, most cruelly put to death. The sufferings of the children and their ransom are detailed in the unvarnished simplicity of truth; and the strikingly instructive ways of Providence are most piously and faithfully exhibited. The true manliness and heroism of the brother of the young woman, by whose untiring efforts the captives were traced, and finally restored to their friends, presents a rare instance of fraternal affection and daring courage.

Mary Moore became the wife of Rev. Samuel Brown, Pastor of New Providence Church, Rockbridge Co., Va., and the mother of five Presbyterian ministers. Her pious and quiet life, in the retired sphere in which she moved, did not afford much incident of such interest as her earlier days of hardship. But the connection of the youth of fiery trial with the life of the Christian wife and mother, is brought vividly before us, and the lessons of religious instruction conveyed, are well worthy the serious pondering of all who observe the ways of God to man.

The work is embellished with three handsome engravings.

We forbear making any extracts, as we have room for none which would give a proper representation of the work.

6. Pictorial Second-Book. 18mo. pp. 107.

This is a book for children, prepared for the Board, containing eleven spirited and useful sketches, illustrated with as many engravings. It will arrest the attention of the young, and, we trust, greatly improve their hearts, as well as cultivate a taste for useful reading. The Sketches are combinations of facts pleasingly embellished, without the improper use of fancy.

Dorcas: a Model Female Portrait, selected from the writings of Cox and Jay. 18mo. Pp. 108.

Rev. Messrs. Cox and Jay each wrote a treatise on Christian Benevolence, to which the name of "Dorcas" was given, and in which her character, so far as presented in the Scriptures, is illustrated. Though somewhat similar in their scope and aim, yet these treatises are not so much alike that one supersedes the other. Both are here given, and a most timely and judicious work on this important and neglected virtue is offered. It is really a "Plea for Charity" on Christian principle; and we trust it may find a wide circulation, and be abundantly blessed. We give a brief extract.

"There is a posthumous charity which often purchases to the dispenser considerable reputation when he little deserves it, and which is utterly vain to him who is inevitably beyond the reach of human applause or censure. If the charity of Dorcas had been of this questionable nature, we should not have read of the widows that stood weeping by her deathbed, and exhibiting the various articles of clothing she made while she was with them. Assured that life was the proper time of action, and that opportunities of usefulness could never be recalled, she did with her might whatever her hands found to do. It is deplorable to see the numbers who, while possessing ample means and rich opportunities of feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, and visiting the sick, consume their lives in forming their plans, or proclaiming their intentions. They are indeed great benefactors in their wills, and with unsparing liberality distribute their wealth, when they can no longer keep it. They were bountiful, only because they were mortal; and notwithstanding the misplaced commendations of their survivors, bestow reluctantly what death extorts. Dorcas was 'full of good works and alms-deeds which she DID.' A person with whom the writer is acquainted, had specified a large sum in his will to be appropriated to the purpose of erecting convenient alms-houses for the poor; but bethinking himself of the possibility that his life might be extended to a distant period, and that in the meantime the poor would continue to suffer, and many of them perish without the projected aid, he became the instant executor of his own will, and lived for years to be a gratified witness of that comfort which must otherwise have been so long delayed. It is descriptive of the 'good man,' that 'he HATH dispersed, he HATH given to the poor.'"

Appended is a short tract on "Female Piety," by Rev. J. A. James, whose name guarantees the worth of the matter. It is in keeping with the rest of the volume.

TRACTS.

The Board have just issued Vol. VIII. of the series of Tracts, containing tracts from No. 137 to 165 inclusive.

No. 163. Infant Membership, secured by the Abrahamic Covenant. By Rev. N. Hoyt, D. D. pp 20.

This is a concise and conclusive plea for Infant Baptism, by one who has adopted the views he so ably sustains, on conviction and not from prejudice. It is so argumentative and the parts of the argument are so intimately connected, that no such extract as we can offer will do full justice to the whole.

No. 164. Individual Responsibility, or work enough for every Church Member. By Rev. John Leyburn, D. D.

In these days of associated effort, there are few dangers greater than those arising from the evils so clearly set forth, and so ably and eloquently resisted in this admirable tract.

"One of the sorest evils under which the Church of Christ labours, is the fact that so large a portion of her membership act as if there were no claim upon them whatever to lend a hand towards advancing her interests. Many enter the church apparently with the feeling that the only thing to be accomplished by it is, that their church connection, in some undefined way, may at last bring their own souls to heaven. They do not regard taking upon themselves the Christian profession as an obligation the most solemn and unrepealable upon their part; to cultivate, by every instrumentality, personal piety; and to engage in all available methods for sustaining the institutions of the gospel, and spreading abroad the truth as it is in Jesus. Upon what other ground than this can we account for the fact, that so many live and die, apparently under the impression, that whilst others are called to seek after eminent piety—to bear the burdens of the church—to engage in every good word and work, they are as much exempt from any such obligation, as if provision had been made in the church for two distinct classes, one of which was to do the work, and the other simply to look on as spectators, and at last share a portion of the spoils?"

"We have known such Christians, whose ingenuity in doing good seemed almost as much to be admired as the actual results accomplished. They were ever devising some plan for reaching others with what seemed adapted to the peculiar spiritual wants of each. If a book fell into their hands which seemed calculated to be useful, copies of it were immediately bought and given to friends, or loaned diligently to various persons, from whom the promise was required that it should be read. If a tract or a newspaper article struck them as suited to some particular case, it was forthwith mailed and sent off on its errand of mercy. Half-worn clothing, remnants of food from the table, or whatever could be applied to the relief of the poor, were carefully and systematically laid aside, and in due season appropriated to praiseworthy uses, as well as donations of a more costly sort. By a thousand methods, running through every day of life, have some, who name the name of Jesus, given evidence of the spirit of their Master, who went about doing good; and never, until eternity reveals all hidden things, will it be known what have been the happy results of these labours of love."

No. 165. A Friend Indeed, pp. 4.

A short and suitable summary of the duty and privilege of every sinner. Let all read and ponder.

No. 168. The Hearer of Prayer.—By Rev. James Hamilton, National Scotch Church, London, pp. 24.

This has been extracted from a work of this excellent and prolific author, the "Mount of Olives," and is a most suitable and timely discussion of this important topic.

No. 169. Devout Meditations.—By Rev. W. S. Plumer, D. D. pp. 16.

This tract contains so many good things, that the reader must peruse the whole, properly to appreciate it. We give as a specimen some of the directions to the performance of the duty inculcated.

"Put the highest value on divine things. Subordinate all to them. Never think it a small matter to secure God's favour, to wear his image, to behold his face in peace, to dwell in his bosom. Seek great things in religion.

"Try to take cheerful views of divine things. Dwell on your mercies. Look at the bright as well as the dark side. Do not cherish gloomy thoughts. Melancholy is no friend to devotion. It greatly hinders the usefulness of many. 'It falls upon a contented life like a drop of ink on white paper, which is not the less a stain because it carries no meaning with it.' Let your soul rove through the truths of Scripture as the happy herds do through the green pastures.

"Beware of all the malignant passions. They are great foes to grace. Envy is devilish. Hatred is murderous. Wrath is cruel. Even peevishness destroys equanimity, and then connected thought is impossible. God's Spirit is a dove, not a bird of prey. He flies from noise and strife. He who ruleth not his own spirit will be ruled by an evil spirit.

"Remember that there are no limits to the improvement you may make. You may acquire a thousand times your present strength of character, and you will then be prepared for still higher advances. You are not straitened in God. Be not straitened in your own bowels. Enlarge your heart. Enlarge your desires. Be filled with the Spirit. Be filled with all the fulness of God.

"Make much of the Lord Jesus Christ. Never slight him. He is the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely. You may easily think too much of some others. You cannot make too much of him. He is before all, in all, through all, over all, above all.

"Watch against the influence of the things of time, and keep eternity in view. The Lord is at hand. The Judge standeth before the door. Think of things a great while to come. That which shall befall you a thousand years hence, is of vaster moment than what befalls you now. Remember that."

Thoughts on the Resurrection of the Body. By a Layman. 18mo. Pp. 29.

We sincerely wish many more of our "Laymen" would employ their talents and leisure in thinking to as good purpose on pious topics. We have here, in compact form, the scriptural doctrine on this important and consoling subject.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF JULY, 1854.

Presbytery of Bedford.
Bedford ch, per Rev D C Lyon	24 00
Presbytery of Long Island.
Huntington ch, per Rev Wm Rankin, Jr	7 00
Presbytery of New York.
Madison Avenue ch, per Rev Wm Rankin, Jr	45 00
Presbytery of Raritan.
Lambertville ch, per Rev P O Studdiford	11 00
Presbytery of Philadelphia.
South-Western ch, per Rev James McCaskie	6 93
Presbytery of Baltimore.
Frederick ch, per Abraham Haff, deacon	13 00
Presbytery of Redstone.
McKeesport ch, per Rev Nathaniel West, D D	37 50
Presbytery of Marion.
Kingston ch, Aaron Harrison, per Rev Ahab Jinks, for gratuitous distribution of Tracts	44 33
Presbytery of Miami.
First ch Springfield, per Robert Rogers	87 30
Presbytery of Vincennes.
Upper Indiana ch, per Jas Crawford, Colporteur	5 00
Presbytery of Logansport.
Logansport ch, per Rev Levi Hughes	21 42
Presbytery of Schuyler.
Chili ch, per Rev Joseph Worrell	4 50
Presbytery of Cedar.
Muscatine ch, per Rev Samuel J Baird	7 50
Presbytery of Des Moines.
Winchester ch, per Rev D V Smock	3 00
Presbytery of Winchester.
Fredericksburg ch, per Layton Y Atkins	2 00
Presbytery of Maury.
Zion ch, per Rev Wm Rankin, Jr 20, H A Frierson, Sec'y, from the Colportage Society of Zion ch to con Mrs Sarah E Stevenson hon mem 30, and 20 in part to con Rev D G Doak hon mem	70 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
From Mrs W B Barton, Woodbridge 5; "G" 10; Rev G D Stewart, Bath, N Y 5; Rufus Young, Lexington, Mo 1 50; Mrs P A Matthews in part to con her son Wm Lowrie Matthews hon mem, Wyoming, N Y 15	36 50
Total,	$425 98

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

HISTORICAL NOTICES OF SYNODS AND PRESBYTERIES.

11. The Presbytery of Knoxville was formed out of the Presbytery of Holston, by the Synod of West Tennessee, Oct. 16th, 1846, and held its first meeting at Ebenezer Church, Knox county, Tennessee, November 12th, following.

12. The Presbytery of Central Texas was formed out of the Presbytery of Brazos, by the Synod of Texas, April 10th, 1854, and held its first meeting at Austin College on the same day.

13. The Presbytery of Memphis was formed out of the Presbytery of the Western District, by the Synod of Memphis, October 24th, 1850.

14. The Presbytery of South Alabama was organized March 1st, 1821, by the Synod of South Carolina and Georgia.

15. The Presbytery of Mississippi was organized by the Synod of Kentucky, October 6, 1815, and held its first meeting in Pine Ridge church, March 6, 1816. The petition for the formation of this Presbytery was from West Tennessee Presbytery, and Rev. Joseph Butler, Wm. Montgomery, Jacob Rickhow, and James Smylie, were its first members.

SYNODS.

1. The Synod of Alabama was organized in 1835, by the division of the Synod of Mississippi and South Alabama.

2. The Synod of Mississippi was organized by the General Assembly, June 6, 1835, and held its first meeting at Natchez, October 28, 1835. It was formed out of the Synod of Mississippi and South Alabama, which had been organized in 1829, and is properly a continuation of the old Synod with a new name, as the petition to the Assembly was "to set off a new Synod, to be called Synod of Alabama, and change the name of the present Synod." The Synod of Mississippi held their first meeting at Mahew, Choctaw Nation, November 11, 1829.

Ecclesiastical Record.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. Henry M. Parsons and Warrior Run church, Pennsylvania, July 25.

CALLS HAVE BEEN GIVEN TO

Rev. B. N. Hobson, by the Lexington church, Missouri.

Rev. A. Barr, of Danville, Pennsylvania, by the church of Truro, Ohio.

Rev. David McGill, (late of the Presbytery of London,) by the Union church, Philadelphia.

Rev. Jerome Twitchell, by a church in Galveston, Texas.

CALLS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED BY

Rev. Samuel D. Campbell, to the Euchee Valley church, West Florida.

Rev. Nathaniel West, Jr., to the Central Presbyterian church, Cincinnati.

Rev. —— Clark, to the Altona church, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Samuel J. Baird, to the church of Muscatine, Iowa.

Rev. F. A. Shearer, to the church of Iowa City, Iowa.

Mr. Wm. H. Lester, late of Princeton Seminary, to the pastoral charge of the Presbyterian church in West Alexander, Pa.

Mr. Charles Cooper, to the Presbyterian church in Pontiac, Michigan.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

June 22d, Rev. John Turbitt was installed pastor of Prospect church, and on 23d, of West Jersey church, by the Presbytery of Peoria.

July 11th, Rev. Henry B. Burr was ordained sine titulo by the Presbytery of Long Island.

June 19th, Mr. David S. McComb was ordained as an Evangelist by the Presbytery of Cedar.

June 27th, Rev. M. A. Parkinson was installed pastor of the Island Creek church, by the Presbytery of Steubenville.

July 2d, Rev. A. Van Vliet was installed pastor of the First German Presbyterian church, Dubuque, Iowa, by the Presbytery of Cedar.

July 11th, Mr. J. Henry Kaufman was ordained by the Presbytery of Baltimore.

July 23d, the Rev. James B. Ramsay was installed pastor of the church of New Monmouth, Rockbridge, Virginia.

July 29th, Mr. Charles White was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Berryville, Clark county, Virginia.

August 3d, Rev. William A. Flemming was ordained and installed pastor of the Farmington church, Illinois, by the Presbytery of Peoria.

LICENSED.

July 3d, Mr. M. James, by the Presbytery of Passaic.

July 19th, Mr. T. G. Wells, by the Presbytery of Crawfordsville.

July 25th, Mr. John Nelson, by the Presbytery of Northumberland.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. Wm. K. Talbot, from Oquawka, Illinois, to Marion, Arkansas.

Rev. J. P. Lloyd, from Leesville, Ohio, to Mt. Gilead, Ohio.

Rev. J. K. Agnew, from Pittsburgh to Green Castle, Pennsylvania.

Rev. J. E. C. Doremus, from Jackson, Louisiana, to Oakland College, Mississippi.

The Rev. G. S. Hall, from Covington, Louisiana, to Tallmadge, Ohio.

DIED.

July 2d, Rev. Edwin Holt, at Evansville, Indiana.

July 5th, Rev. James Nourse, (of Washington City,) at Salem, Iowa, in the 50th year of his age.

July 14th, Rev. Matthew G. Wallace, aged about 80 years, at Terre Haute, Indiana.

July 31st, Rev. M. E. Johnston, of Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

August 1st, Rev. Joshua F. Green, of cholera, at Memphis, Tennessee. He had been on a visit to Frankfort, Kentucky, where he received a call to the pastorate, and was on his return to Little Rock, Arkansas.

August 3d, Rev. Wm. McCombs, at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

August 11th, Rev. John Peebles, of Huntington, Pennsylvania, aged about 55.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. Dr. Huntington, of Albany, accepts the Professorship of Biblical Literature in Auburn Theological Seminary, to which he was recently elected.

Rev. J. A. McClung, of Indianapolis, has been elected President of Hanover College, and has accepted.

Rev. Thornton A. Mills, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, has been elected Secretary of the State Board of Colonization.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, MAY 1854.

During the year ending May 1854, four new Presbyteries were organized, viz: Red River, Alleghany, Paducah, and Central Texas.

Synods in connection with the General Assembly,	28
Presbyteries,	146
Candidates for the Ministry,	390
Licentiates,	235
Ministers,	2203
Churches,	2976
Licensures,	63
Ordinations,	83
Installations,	160
Pastoral relations dissolved,	108
Churches organized,	92
Ministers received from other denominations,	23
Ministers dismissed to other denominations,	11
Ministers deceased,	41
Churches received from other denominations,	9
Churches dissolved,	11
Members added on examination,	13,433
Members added on certificate,	8,797
Adults baptized,	3,597
Infants baptized,	12,041
Whole number of communicants reported,	225,404
Amount contributed for Congregational and Presbyterial purposes,	$1,407,931
Amount contributed for the four Boards,	$435,584
Amount contributed for miscellaneous purposes,	$193,209

The following Ministers have died during the year included between the spring meetings of the Presbyteries 1853, and the same meetings 1854.

NAMES.	PRESBYTERIES.
L. S. Gibson,	Brazos.
J. M. Becton,	East Texas.
John H. Rittenhouse,	Northumberland.
David Harrower,	Genesee River.
Theodore Sayre,	Tuskaloosa.
P. H. Folker,	South Carolina.
John Core,	Clarion.
Horatio J. Bardwell,	Tombeckbee.
John H. Van Court,	Louisiana.
Wm. S. Reid, D. D.,	West Hanover.
Alfred Wright,	Indian.
S. J. Cassels,	Georgia.
Moses Welch,	Londonderry.
Joseph Porter,	Lodiana.
Wm. H. Moore,	Talladega.
Wm. K. Patton,	East Alabama.
B. Shaw,	Ouachita.
P. Houck,	Fort Wayne.
H. L. McGuire,	White Water.
David King,	Troy.
T. C. May,	Muhlenburg.
R. S. Dinsmore,	Des Moines.
Ebenezer Churchill,	Greenbriar.
Francis Laird, D. D.,	Blairsville.
John Rhodes,	Susquehanna.
Joseph L. Shafer, D. D.,	Newton.
David Comfort, D. D.,	New Brunswick.
Jared D. Fyler,	do.
Samuel Mathews,	Elizabethtown.
John Goldsmith, D. D.,	New York.
John F. Clark,	North River.
J. K. Cornyn,	Wyoming.
Joshua Moore,	Huntingdon.
Alexander Brown,	Peoria.
M. Brown, D. D., LL.D.,	Ohio.
David R. McCoy,	Philadelphia.
John Witherspoon, D. D.,	Orange.
James Laurie, D. D.,	Baltimore.
W. L. Hughes,	Charleston.
I. M. Cook,	Beaver.
C. A. Gregg,	Sidney.

Varieties.

ASSOCIATE REFORMED STATISTICS.—The General Synod of the West has under its care 18 Presbyteries, 128 pastors, 26 unsettled Ministers, 29 probationers, 325 congregations, and nearly 20,000 communicants.

CRIME IN PAPAL AND PROTESTANT COUNTRIES.—A distinguished English gentleman, who has spent many years as a resident, or in travelling in various Papal countries in Europe, in a recent speech in London, has presented some deeply interesting facts concerning vice and crime in Papal and Protestant countries. He possessed himself of the Government returns of every Romanist Government on the Continent. We have condensed and will state its results.

In England four persons for a million, on the average, are committed for murder per year. In Ireland there are nineteen to the million. In Belgium, a Papal country, there are eighteen murders to the million. In France there are thirty-one. Passing into Austria we find thirty-six. In Bavaria, also Papal, sixty-eight to the million; or if homicides are struck out there will be thirty. Going into Italy, where Papal influence is the strongest of any country on earth, and taking first the kingdom of Sardinia, we find twenty murders to the million. In the Venetian and Milanese provinces there is the enormous result of forty-five to the million. In Tuscany forty-two; though that land is claimed as a kind of earthly paradise; and, in the Papal States, not less than one hundred murders for the million of people. There are ninety in Sicily; and in Naples the result is more appalling still, where public documents show there are two hundred murders per year to the million of people!

The above facts are all drawn from the civil and criminal records of the respective countries named. Now, taking the whole of these countries together, we have seventy-five cases of murder for every million of people. In Protestant countries—England for example—we have but four for every million. We think the above facts in regard to vice and crime in the two great departments of Christendom, worthy the most serious pondering of every friend of human life, of morality and virtue.—Boston Traveller.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—The Boards of our Church, p. 150. Clothing, p. 150. A Minister Wanted, p. 150. California, p. 150. Receipts, p. 152.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—Dr. James Wood, Associate Corresponding Secretary, p. 153. Pittsburgh Field, p. 153. I. Ministerial Education. Ought I to study Theology? p. 153. Line upon line, line upon line, p. 153. Educated to Death, p. 153. Hints to Candidates, p. 154. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges. Memphis Synodical College, p. 154. Triennial Catalogue of Union College, p. 154. Susquehanna Collegiate Institute at Towanda, Pa., p. 154. Carroll College, p. 155. Something about Schools, p. 155. Oakland College, Miss., 155. Receipts, p. 155.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 156. Death of a Missionary, p. 156. The Presbyterian Church and Foreign Missions, p. 156. India: Agra Mission; Hindu Omens, p. 157. Furrukhabad Mission; Mynpurie Station—Extract from Mr. Freeman's Journal, p. 158. Lodiana Mission; Extracts from the Journal of Rev. Joseph Owen, p. 159. Indian Tribes: Otoe and Omaha Mission, p. 160. California, p. 160. Miscellaneous: Madagascar, p. 160. Journal of the Wife of a Missionary in the Interior of Africa, p. 161. Receipts, p. 161.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Co-operation of the Reformed Dutch Church, p. 162. Statistics of Colportage, p. 162. Obituary, p. 162. New Publications: Books for Children, p. 162. Tracts, p. 163. Receipts, p. 163.

MISCELLANEOUS.—The Mercies of David, p. 149. Death, p. 149. The Decisive Moment, p. 149. Historical Notices of Presbyteries and Synods, p. 164. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 164. Varieties, p. 164.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME V. No. 10. | PHILADELPHIA, OCTOBER, 1854. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

GOD'S SPECIAL PROVIDENCE.

"Doth God take care for oxen?" Yes. For sparrows? Yes. Are the very hairs of our head all numbered? Yes. Then trust him with thine immortal soul; he will take care of that. "But, is it not beneath the great God to take care of, watching over, such small and insignificant things as sparrows and the hairs of the head, when he has to take care of great planets and keep them from running against each other; for example, Saturn, with its rings of solid matter, and seven moons, larger, take them all together, than a thousand such worlds as ours?" No; and it should exalt our views of him that he is able to take care of the small as well as the great. And it should give us the highest consolation, that when our mortal body crumbles, God watches over each atom in all its wanderings, and at the appointed time will summon them all back, like the scattered members of a disbanded army, to take their proper places in the new body that is to be. Yes, body and soul God will watch over for good—the highest good that heart can wish or mind conceive.

Does not an anxious thought pervade you, when you think of that long farewell you are soon to bid to all earthly scenes—your body to be laid in the grave to moulder into ten thousand atoms, and be wafted perhaps on the wings of every wind to all parts of the globe? And how long? It may be for thousands of years. Then, your thinking, conscious spirit—where will it be, and in what condition or circumstances, during that long period of separation from the body? Suppose it in Paradise, where Christ said the dying thief should be with him; yet where is Paradise? Not that highest heaven, the resurrection state, when Christ shall "change this vile body, that it may be made like unto his glorious body." That is indeed a state of freedom from sin and sorrow, and, according to the measure of the soul's capacity, of unmingled happiness. But most certainly there is a more exalted state, when soul and body shall be joined again; and of this we can better conceive because of our experience in this world. We know something of an embodied state, but nothing of a disembodied.

Now although the words "this day shalt thou be in Paradise," should be enough for our faith, had we nothing else, yet it is delightful to strengthen that faith by the further lights and leadings of God's word. And doubtless the Lord Jesus designed that most interesting talk with his disciples about the sparrows and lilies, to be our support and solace in all possible suppositions. Especially when infidelity from within and without suggests perplexing doubts of the future, should we appeal to the great truth of God's special Providence. "How much better are ye than sparrows! If God so clothe the lilies and the perishable grass, how much more you, for whom his dear Son came down and died."

But says the doubter again, "I don't know about all this; men die, good and bad, and fall into all manner of evil. Why does not your doctrine of a special Providence keep them from premature evil? But it does not, and so no argument can be drawn for the future. Besides, your own book says, 'Time and chance happeneth to all;' I see no special Providence." Answer—You notice the evils into which God in his wisdom permits men to fall, but you are blind to the deliverances which he works every day. If God should open your eyes, as he did the eyes of Elisha's servant, you might see that the deliverances exceed the calamities a thousand fold. Did not Marshal Ney pass through a hundred battles, and not get shot by one of the hundred thousand bullets that whistled around him?

Take the following: Elias Boudinot, founder of the American Bible Society, was returning in his chaise to his home late in a dark night, from a court he had been attending many days. He did not know that a recent freshet had carried away all the planks from the long bridge which lay in his accustomed path. Therefore he drove right on as though there were a bridge there, and reached home safely. His friends inquired by what road he came. "The usual road," he replied. "Impossible," said they, "there are no planks on the bridge." He persisted, and they, trembling for his veracity or his sanity, eagerly went with him, next morning early, to survey. When arrived, they found the very tracks of the carriage at either end of the bridge and on the sleepers, and the very foot-prints of his horse on a central sleeper. There was no more to be said—sanity and veracity were both safe. Some power had presided over the instinct of that horse, had ordained the correspondence of those wheels with the sleepers over which they passed, and kept the man in ignorance of his danger. Was that power, fate, or chance? O, my doubting friend, I turn from you and listen to another voice, "Hast thou not known, hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary?"

If authority for the above is demanded, reference may be had to the family, particularly Mrs. Adriana Boudinot, of Beaverwycke, N. J., a near relative of Judge Boudinot, from whose mouth she received the account.—Exchange Paper.

AT THE DOOR.

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock." At what door? The barred door of your heart, fellow-sinner; your heart, defiled, darkened, perverted, hardened, alienated from God and holiness, greatly needing the entrance of some one who can change all this, restore it to God, and make it an abode of purity, love, and peace.

Who stands there? Your best friend. He who has done for you already what no other being could or would; who has made possible the change you need, and now presses urgently upon your acceptance of the provided mercy.

How does he knock? Reason asserts your true condition, your deep necessity for just such a Saviour. Conscience thunders its condemnation of your guilt. Memory peoples the past with accusing witnesses. Apprehension looks forward to dreaded, deserved ills that the future has in store.

He has knocked long. By his word, pressed upon you in early childhood by Christian parents, friends, teachers, pastors, or, in later life, pondered in the solitude of your closet. By his providence, preserving life and health, or sending sickness; supplying every want, directing all your ways, protecting from danger, giving friends and removing them, in each case for your good. By his Spirit, awakening, convicting, reproving, melting, leading others to repentance, pardon, and peace; convincing you that you have only to accept the proffered mercy to be blessed.

Why does he knock? Because of his love for your soul. He would save it. You have shut and barred him out, and persevered in excluding him. He even begs to be admitted. He will hardly be denied. He has done and suffered so much to make salvation possible for you, that he cannot bear to have you persist in refusing to be saved.

But he will not always knock.

> "There is a time, we know not when,
> A point, we know not where,
> That seals the destiny of men
> For glory or despair;
> To pass that limit is to die."

Many a soul has passed it, and found henceforth the fountains of feeling for ever frozen, the ears deaf to every persuasion, the soul unmoved even at the prospect of eternal misery, its destiny sealed with as much certainty as if the eternal darkness of despair already shrouded it.

Hear that knock. Open and admit him. Then he and his Father will love you, come unto you, and make their abode with you. He is himself a "door," the only door of hope and safety for your poor soul. Knock, and it shall be opened unto you. Still persist in your refusal, and you may ere long knock at the door and find it shut.

There are others than thy Saviour about the door of thy heart. "If thou doest not well"—just thy case in this refusal—"sin lieth at the door." Death, too, lies at the door. The entrance thou refusest to a pleading Saviour, death may at any moment force. Christ will never force an entrance. If he enters, it must be at thy opening.

He who knocks at thy heart's door in love and compassion, will soon appear before thee in another character. "Behold the Judge standeth before the door!" Are you prepared to meet him with your heart still closed; to hear him say, "Because I have called, and ye refused; I stretched out my hands, and no man regarded; I also will laugh at your calamity, I will mock when your fear cometh?"

Are ye prepared to endure eternally that most terrible of all wrath, "the wrath of the Lamb?"

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me."
—Congregationalist.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

SUGGESTIONS TO PRESBYTERIES AND CHURCHES.

The following judicious and reasonable remarks, by the editor of the Louisville Herald, we commend to the serious attention of our readers:

"The Presbyteries, in a few days, will hold their sessions, and make out their applications to the Board of Missions for aid in supporting missionaries, during the coming year. They will not, we trust, take it amiss in us to throw out two or three suggestions, which it will be well for them to bear in mind, in making their demands upon the Missionary Treasury. One is, that the Board will most probably be harder pressed in raising funds this year, than they have been for a great many years past. The almost universal drought and failure of the crops, and consequent tightness of the money market, will all conspire together to produce the result.

"Another suggestion is, that the Board are already pledged for a large amount to missionaries commissioned by them, and unless God opens the hearts of his people to make greater sacrifices than they have hitherto made, they will find it difficult to redeem the pledges already given, to say nothing at all of making any new ones.

"A third suggestion is, that unless the Presbyteries guard against it, the churches will now make larger demands than usual upon the Missionary fund, owing to their decreased ability to pay their ministers' salaries. There is an impression abroad, in some churches, that the Board has no sort of difficulty in raising funds, no matter how hard the times may be, and that their funds are inexhaustible, and that all that they have to do is to vote the money to a missionary, and it will come. It is the duty of the Presbyteries to disabuse their minds of all such erroneous opinions, and to teach them that when they themselves find difficulty in raising funds to pay their own ministers, owing to the shortness of crops, and the stringency of money matters, the Board will find precisely the same difficulty in inducing other churches to raise money to make up their deficiencies. Men are generally more inclined to make sacrifices to supply themselves than they are to supply others. The only other thought that we would throw out is, that the churches should be impressed with the absolute necessity of making sacrifices to support the gospel, and carry forward the various schemes of benevolence, in this season of drought. They have hitherto given of their abundance to sustain these causes. Sacrifices are things almost unknown in this country, except among a very small class of God's people. Now let them be taught, from the pulpit and the press, that they ought to deny themselves of many of their unnecessary, and often hurtful luxuries, that they may save something to help forward the cause of Christ in the world."

"If the constituted authorities of the Church do not impress these things upon the minds of the people in due time, many of the benevolent operations of the day will be seriously crippled, and those self-denying men, who are depending upon the churches' benevolence for their support, while they are doing her work, will be left to suffer for the want of the comforts of life."

"The salaries of both Foreign and Domestic Missionaries must be paid promptly, or their families will be exposed to great trials, for they are generally wholly dependent on their salaries for their daily supplies, which are, when promptly paid, barely sufficient to provide the common necessaries of life. Let the Presbyteries then see to it, that their churches ask as little, and give as much as possible to the Board, and all will go well."

PROGRESS.

September 5, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Dear Sir—I have just finished my last quarterly report, under my commission from Louisville, September 1, 1853. I thought it might be interesting to you to detail a few facts in connection with my past twelve months' labour. Permit me, in the first place, to tender to you, both in behalf of the church and myself, our heartfelt thanks for the assistance you have rendered us. I am gratified, also, to be able to state that we will no longer need your assistance, unless affairs should take a very adverse turn suddenly. Our people have already subscribed the full amount of the salary for the ensuing year, (i. e. $400.) Your help placed us upon our feet; we can now walk alone. I hope that we will not soon forget your fostering care, and further, that we will be able ere long to pay back with interest what we have so opportunely received.

Our contributions to your department for this year, including about $6 recently contributed, will amount to $17; to Foreign Missions $16.50; for church repairs, etc., about $130; other objects $13.

Since the date of my commission, our membership has increased from 28 to 48 (an increase of 20.) Of these 7 made a profession of religion for the first time in our church; 6 had certificates out of date, and were consequently examined; 7 were received on certificate. There have been 13 infants and 2 adults baptized since last September. All of these, with the exception of one infant, I baptized myself, since my ordination in May (31st.)

Our Sabbath-school is in a flourishing condition. It was organized in May of this year, with 25 scholars. We have now an average attendance of 35 or 40, with 60 enrolled. We procured recently a library, with hymn books and catechisms from our Board, and have just sent for forty copies of the "Visitor." This is all very encouraging to those who four months since felt almost discouraged from attempting to have a school, owing to the great distance which many resided from church, and the apparent absence of material for teaching and superintendence. But although I have frequently had to act in the threefold capacity of teacher, superintendent, and librarian, I have been abundantly repaid for all the additional labour it has imposed upon me.

We had communion on last Sabbath. We have now a regular quarterly communion. We received four persons on examination, and two on certificate. These were all heads of families, and the first mentioned each presented their children for baptism. Two of them, who were mothers, presented themselves on Sabbath, and their children on Monday. We had a very interesting and refreshing meeting. We were blessed with the evident presence of God's Spirit. This no one could doubt who came with proper motives. Many felt and said, "It is good to be here;" and even those who stood aloof from the sacraments showed deep solemnity upon their countenances, whilst the moistened eye and falling tear betrayed on the part of some the deepest emotion, and left the salutary impression upon our minds that God's Spirit was striving with them in an especial manner. A few were present who once sat with God's people, but had gone back to the world. These showed evident signs that conscience was still at work, and it is to be hoped that they may, by God's Spirit, be led back to the fold. I refer especially to those who hold certificates of ancient date, of membership in sister churches, and refuse to present them, because required to appear before the session.

Notwithstanding some discouragements, we have reason to bless God for what he has done, and trust it is but the beginning of good things.

We observed Thursday previous to our communion as a day of fasting, humiliation, and prayer, and to God's blessing upon its observance I attribute all the good fruits and pleasant experience of this, to us, delightful season. Week-day meetings, days of fasting and special prayer, monthly concerts, Sabbath-school and Bible classes, and catechetical instruction, were all with one consent neglected when I first came here. The change that has taken place, under God's smile, in these particulars, is worthy of special gratitude to God, and is ground of encouragement for the future.

We have adopted a plan of contributing systematically to our Boards, at the time of each communion. It works well. Now in conclusion, permit me to say, that if there is any "growing dissatisfaction" with the working of our Boards, the growth has not extended to this corner of God's vineyard. It has cost a great effort to become self-sustaining. But the results will amply repay the effort, and if others similarly situated would "go and do likewise," dissatisfaction would be displaced by a large growth of gratitude, strength, and efficiency, and your Board would not be crippled in its efforts to do good. Yours, &c. W. A. F.

GOOD FRUITS.

The following report from one of our beloved missionaries in Texas, exhibits some of the blessed fruits of missionary labours, and will be read with pleasure and thanksgiving to God. The closing sentence breathes the true missionary spirit, and is worthy of commendation and imitation:—"Should you have a field where trials and hardships are to be endured, here am I, send me." Such an apostolic spirit must, with the blessing of God, accomplish great things for the Church and the world.

Marshall, May 10th, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Dear Brother—I now submit to you my final report as missionary of the Board. Four years since I commenced my labours here under the direction of the Board. There was no church of our faith in Texas nearer than ninety miles. I found in this place only five menbers, who were organized into a church on the 31st of May, 1850. The Lord has blessed our feeble efforts, and this small number has been increased to fifty. We have now a good house, a respectable congregation, and the church is beginning to be active and efficient.

In erecting this house, we have received aid from the following churches, which will please accept our sincere thanks:—Natchez, Miss.; First and Second churches, Louisville, Ky.; Second church, Mobile, Ala.; a church near Selma, Ala.; Augusta, Ga.; Columbia, S. C.; Dr. Smyth's and Glebe street, Charleston, S. C.; First church, N. Y.; Dr. Goldsmith's church, Newtown, N. Y.; Dr. Snodgrass's church, Goshen, N. Y.; First and Second churches, Rahway, N. J.; First church, Morristown, N. J.; First church Jersey City, N. J.; from some unknown friends, Philadelphia. Let me assure these churches and friends that their money has not been given in vain. Had it not been for this timely aid, we should yet have been without a house of worship, and been compelled to draw aid from the Board for several years to come. We have now determined, by the help of the Lord, to support the ministry without further aid, and to endeavour to repay you all that we have received.

In taking leave of the Board, I would acknowledge with gratitude your many acts of kindness towards me. Your aid has always been timely; never have I asked a favour but what you have most promptly and cordially granted it; by your letters I have been greatly encouraged, and by your promptness in paying my salary, I have been enabled to live, though sometimes not quite so comfortably as one might desire. We have not perished for want of food, though sometimes it has been extremely scarce. We begin now to live in some comfort for missionaries. Our hearts are encouraged, and we are looking ahead for better days. Never shall we, as a family, forget your kindness, and ever shall we pray the Lord to bless you in your great and good work, and abundantly reward you for all your acts of kindness to the laborious and self-denying missionary.

Since I have been labouring under the direction of the Board, I have organized four churches, and assisted in collecting the fifth, all of which, except one, are now in a flourishing condition. If the $100,000 scheme could be brought about, and timely aid rendered to these weak churches, it would in the end be a great saving to the Church. They would all soon become self-sustaining if they had houses of worship erected. We most sincerely hope that this great object will be accomplished.

Should your Board deem it best for me to take a new field and plant the Church, I am at your disposal, though my people here are willing to do almost anything to retain me among them. I have but a short life before me, and I wish to direct my labours in that way in which I can accomplish the most good, and I have been led to believe that it is my peculiar element to plant and raise the church until she can walk alone. Should you have a field where trials and hardships are to be endured, here am I, send me. With great respect I am yours in the labour and patience of the gospel of Christ,

M. N. S.

AN INCIDENT.

From the report of one of our missionaries, we subjoin the following extract, which we have no doubt will be read with interest. We would be glad to receive such incidents from our missionaries, whenever it is in their power to furnish them. They are generally read with interest, and would serve to increase greatly the usefulness of the Record.

In going to church this morning, I met with a man who belonged to the Romish Church. He had been for some time an inmate of the family of a gentleman in my congregation, where I naturally became acquainted with him. He was trudging on foot nine or ten miles to mass. I asked him if he were going to have his sins pardoned by the priest. He replied, evasively, that now and then he did; that he made it a practice to go to church, as a matter of duty. I asked him why he did not come to our church, as I had never seen him there. "You are all too much prejudiced," said he. I told him I thought the most of the prejudice was upon his side. "No," said he; "you will not use any other Bible but King James's translation. The Catholic Bible is the only true Bible. James had it translated just to suit his purposes, and you all follow him." I told him we could read the Hebrew and Greek, in which the whole Bible was first written. He thought the Hebrew and Greek was not to be held as above their Bible; that was the source of the truth of God. Argument was of no use, so I bid him farewell, by solemnly charging him to look to Christ alone for the pardon of his sins, and that he must be faithful to God, and his own soul. He seemed deeply impressed with what I said, almost to tears. They have feeling, and immortal souls, but they are bound in the iron chains of Rome's superstition.

He teaches a lesson to many of our members, who take it as a hardship to go two miles to church, when every Sabbath this disciple of Rome walks cheerfully ten miles; not to hear the word of God expounded, but to go to the mass, and forgiveness of sin by deluding priests, who ought to know better.

S. R. H.

A PAPIST MISTAKING A MASS-BOOK FOR THE BIBLE.

July 26th, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Rev. and Dear Sir—Since my last report, we have had no special religious interest in any of the churches of the city.

I have made it my business to visit generally in the section of the city where our mission church is located, and especially the population about the manufactories. Most of these are natives of this or adjacent States, only a very few of foreign origin. For instance, out of fifty-one families, eight were foreigners; of these six were Irish, one German, one French. To continue a few statistical observations on the above basis—of the fifty-one families, ten were without Bibles, eleven only attended church regularly, leaving forty who went occasionally, or never; and the children of eighteen families were attendants of Sunday-schools, all these, with two or three exceptions, members of the school attached to our mission church. Perhaps the most lamentable feature of this spiritual negligence, is that a majority of these families had been, (at least some one or more persons in each,) members of the Baptist or Methodist churches, in the region of country from which they had removed, when coming here.

In all the families visited, I met with but one person who had ever been previously connected with the Presbyterian Church. She was from Tennessee, and if a Methodist, I might have affirmed that she had "fallen from grace;" but as a Presbyterian, we could only infer that she never had grace, or grace would have kept her from falling into her present condition! For four years she had forsaken the sanctuary, and was now sending her little daughter to school to a class of teachers lately come into our city, for whom a fine building is now in process of construction—"The Sisters of Charity"—or more properly, "Female engines for working the raw material into the specious fabric of Popery." I should, in the exercise of due charity, be compelled to suppose that this Tennessean Presbyterian had herself become strongly tinctured with Romanism, for when I asked her if she had a Bible, she railed out with more vehemence upon me than any Papists with whom I had met. Indeed, I am sorry to record it, but this quondam Presbyterian was the only instance of anything like ill, or even disrespectful treatment, I received in all my visiting among blacks or whites, foreigners or natives.

With regard to Romanists in our city, so far as my knowledge extends, I find them faithful in attending their church, but without exception destitute of the Bible. A significant fact, this, of the regard which the grim "old giant Pope" has for the word of God! However, in a few instances, I persuaded them to accept one of my Bibles, or, if that was refused, to take a few tracts, (of which I carry with me in visiting, a supply of the Board's publications, with Bibles for the destitute, from the city depository.) In other cases, both tracts and Bibles were refused with a shudder. But as an evidence of Bible destitution and actual ignorance of the word of God, take the following conversation with an Irish Papist woman.

I approached a house—in which I saw a rosy-faced woman and a cluster of children—with my Bibles and tracts in hand.

Missionary—I see you have a fine supply of good-looking children here. Do they go anywhere to Sunday-school?

Catholic—No, they don't; they go to Mr. B——'s church (mentioning the name of the Romish priest in the city).

M.—Are you a member of the Catholic church yourself?

C.—Yes, and go there too.

M.—Have you a Bible in your family?

C.—I don't believe in your Bible, and don't want any.

M.—But I mean to ask if you have a Catholic Bible.

C.—Yes, we have a Catholic Bible.

M.—Of course you believe in God, and that what he tells us, we ought to do; and God can tell us, just as clearly as man, what he would have us to be and to do. Now this, (holding out a Bible) is, I believe, God's word; you think the Catholic Bible is God's book; bring out your's, and compare it with mine. You won't find as much difference as you think there is.

C.—Well, (she said, beginning to soften in her tone and manner, and leaving the room, returned immediately, with what she called "a Catholic Bible," to wit, a mass-book, or book of prayers and ritual,) this, said she, is my Bible!

M.—Oh! but this is not the proper Catholic Bible (Douay).

C.—No? (With a mingled tone of inquiry and surprise.)

M.—No; the Catholic (Douay) Bible is a translation from the Latin, and that from the Greek and Hebrew, from which this Bible (opening one in my hand) was also made. They are more alike than you suppose; if we could only compare them together, I could soon show you.

C.—(With a rather incredulous look) I have never seen any other Bible than this (her prayer-book); and if I follow this, I won't go wrong!

M.—True, you can't go wrong if you follow the Bible, but the prayer-book is not the Bible.

This case is not the only instance in point, as evidence of the positive ignorance and delusion in which Papists are kept with regard to the word of God, even in the authorized version of that apostate church.

Romanists are on the increase here, caused by the large influx of foreigners connected with our several railroads, as labourers, about the depots, &c. They are making efforts to erect a new and splendid church here, and for this have been giving concerts, through the help of Protestant amateur performers and assemblies, and by the help of Protestant contributions.

In concluding my report, I would merely remark I have as yet made no effort, of a public character, in behalf of my enterprise, waiting "a more convenient season." I am yours in the Lord. C. B. K.

OREGON.

Eugene City, July 22d, 1854.

Rev. and Dear Sir—Though removed so far to the western verge of our great republic, that a communication for the Record will not be perused by its readers for well nigh two months, yet we believe the feeble beginnings of the Church in Oregon should be recorded, that the sympathies and prayers of Christians may be elicited.

We would not conceal the fact that we have many difficulties to contend with. Many causes conspire to make this a peculiarly sterile field. The effect of the removal of all moral restraints, which emigrants to this region experience, cannot be fully known, save by the eye-witness. Many who set out professors, after travelling for months without Sabbaths or means of grace, are, on their arrival, ashamed of the name of Jesus. Most of those who were without any profession of religion, become exceedingly callous and indifferent, if not openly vicious and profane. Of many may it be said, they fear not God, nor regard man. Half has never been understood of those demoralizing influences; hence, half of the arduousness of founding the church here has never been known.

Another difficulty in the way of the Presbyterian Church, is the exceedingly small amount of Presbyterian element here collected. Our Church is comparatively weak in the most westerly States, but from those States, Oregon has principally been peopled; hence the scarcity of Presbyterians. Campbellism, a stripling of frontier growth, has here, from this fact, hundreds of adherents, where we have but tens. Our Church has had till recently no churches nor ministers here, and our church-loving people have not entered the region antecedently penetrated by their living ministry.

We should not here pass by the ardency with which wealth is sought in this her western retreat, nor the eagerness with which gold is hunted by the plain-traversing gold-hunter, but we hasten to notice, as pre-eminently deleterious to our cause, the fact of ministerial secularization. The minister arrives here, with a promised salary of, say five hundred dollars; (in no instance have I known it more;) his wardrobe has been exhausted on the plains, and his library lost; in short, all is gone. Money he has none, and if he had, he finds it worth no more than one-third or fourth its original value. If he formerly needed four or five hundred dollars, he finds he now must have twelve or fifteen; but immediate wants pressing, he may not receive a cent of his salary for months. He secularizes himself; he remains a quarter missionating, and three quarters an office-filling, or claim-surveying, or ox-driving preacher. This is no imaginative figure. Show me a minister in Oregon who possessed no personal competency, and here you will see his exact portrait. Do you say we ourselves are in fault? Do you say, "Ask, and you shall receive?" We must confess our error; and if this is the last time we ever feel this subject worthy of notice, we feel a vast barrier in the way of our usefulness in Oregon will have been removed. But we do not wish to complain. We came here to suffer hardships. We came here expecting the "manifold more" which our Divine Master has promised, not in gold or chattels, but in the beamings of his face divine; and having these, we would follow his divine example, no complaining escaping from our lips.

But we turn to a brighter scene. The parched traveller sometimes arrives with gladness at a refreshing oasis; so here sometimes the spiritual traveller descries a refreshing oasis, amid the surrounding desolations. Yet these are few, and their shade exceedingly feeble. Less than three years since, there was but one of our churches in all the territory now included in Oregon and Washington Territories. At the same period, the writer found, besides the family of brother Geary, who had just arrived, but three members of our own Church in the Willamette Valley. Now, in the same valley, there are three church organizations, and two others about to be organized. There are, moreover, three other ministerial brethren in this valley now, and two of these so nigh as to make an exchange and mutual assistance very practicable. Thus we begin to sit down under the branches of this vine, and eat of her pleasant grapes; or, to vary the simile, the Presbyterian banian tree, thrusting her branches far beyond the Rocky Mountains, inserts her tendrils in the fertile valley of the Pacific coast, and he who, delighting in its shade, wandered therefrom, again finds it, and sits down beneath it with sweet delight. God has done something for us, and therefore we are glad. We feel, however, that these are but feeble beginnings. We feel that we are surrounded by vast moral wastes. We feel that in a few years, a large population will here have centred itself; and we feel that unless the leaven of truth prevent, this multitudinous mass must be a moral putrefaction. The Presbyterian Church should, and with God's blessing on the proper means would, do a great work here. And if this letter should enlist the tender sympathies and fervent prayers on our behalf of some of God's children, we feel it will not have been written in vain. R. R.

PRAYER-MEETINGS AND REVIVALS.

August 2, 1754.

Dear Brother—Three months ago I was labouring under many discouragements, because I could see no prospect of a better state of things in the Church. My people, like others, are men of enterprise, and though they do not go to the gold region, yet they seek for worldly good to the neglect of more durable riches. This often gives me pain, and my heart is filled with sorrow. Still I can say with an apostle, "though cast down, yet not destroyed." In the midst of all my discouragements there is a gleam of hope that the Lord hath not forsaken us, that he hath not forgotten to be gracious. Soon after I wrote you, I thought it advisable to establish prayer-meetings in different parts of my parish; this had a good effect; the brethren came forward and took part in the exercises better than was expected, and it is to be hoped that good results will eventually follow this movement. Last Sabbath we had a very pleasant communion season. Our house of worship was very well filled, and we received by profession an individual about sixty years of age, well educated, a teacher, and one who bids fair to be of great service in the church. He is able in prayer, and well qualified to take charge of the Sunday-school, which he did last Sabbath. Hitherto I have by necessity been preacher, chorister, and Sunday-school superintendent. I am thankful that the Lord has sent some one to share these offices of duty and usefulness with me. There are others who will probably join us at our next communion; it is with gratitude to God that I am able to record this fact as a token for good. Our meetings on the Sabbath are generally well attended, and the people appear to listen to the gospel as though they felt an interest in it.

Our Sabbath-school appears more prosperous this summer than during any previous year of my ministry here. I hope that the rising generation will learn to respect the Sabbath, the Bible, and the ordinances of God's house, better than their fathers do. In relation to the aid which I receive from your kind Society, I am in duty bound to say, that none but those who need and receive this boon, can tell the comforts which flow from its reception. Were it not for this aid many congregations would be deprived of the benefit of a pastor, and what could I do on the small sum of one hundred dollars, when everything for the table is almost double its former price. But blessed be God I am not labouring for money, but for souls and for Christ, and he who fed Elijah has always fed me, if never by the instrumentality of ravens, yet by the hand of his good providence. I am yours truly, with many kind regards,

C. S. L.

REVIVAL.

August 2*d*, 1854.

My Dear Brother—It becomes my duty again to prepare for the inspection of the Board something in the way of a report of my labours during the past three months. And here I would record my humble gratitude to God for his mercy afforded to me, in giving me a comfortable measure of health, and permitting me to continue my labours without interruption, while sickness and death have prevailed around me on every hand.

During the past three months I have preached fifty-two times, attended thirty-three prayer meetings, making an address at each one, and made sixty-eight pastoral visits. I have also made seven or eight Sabbath-school addresses. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper has been administered in three of my churches, fourteen members have been received, and five children baptized.

I have just closed a meeting at one of my churches, of ten days' continuance. Much seriousness, the deepest solemnity prevailed from an early period of the meeting—it was manifest that the Spirit of God was there, and as the meeting progressed the interest greatly increased. On the third day of the meeting, I deemed it expedient to appoint a time to converse with inquirers. The first meeting of this kind was attended by sixteen persons, all of whom appeared to be deeply concerned for the salvation of their souls. On the following day I met above twenty at the inquiry meeting, and the number of inquirers daily increased until it exceeded fifty. Before the meeting closed, some of these were rejoicing in Christ; and the number who have been hopefully converted during the meeting and since its close, is above thirty. Among these are found persons of every age, from twelve to sixty-five years.

My labours have been arduous, but most delightful; and I have experienced to a wonderful extent the fulfilment of that blessed promise, "As thy day, so shall thy strength be," and "My strength is perfected in thy weakness." Pray for me, my dear brother, that God may sustain me in my labours, and that he may continue to bless my poor efforts to glorify his name. I remain, yours in the gospel.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of August, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Troy.—Stillwater 1st ch	$96 67
Pby of Albany.—Broadalbin 1st ch 10; Northampton ch 5; Princetown ch 25	40 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Bath 1st ch, Ladies' Missionary Society	12 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of North River.—Cold Spring ch	15 00
Pby of Bedford.—South East Centre ch	15 50
Pby of Long Island.—West Hampton ch	15 00
Pby of New York.—Nyack ch	8 05
Pby of New York 2d.—Peekskill ch 34 58; Sing Sing ch, of which 25 from Ladies' Sewing Soc, and 50 of which to con Dr Wm N Belcher an hon mem	164 58
Pby of Connecticut.—Thompsonville ch	21 54

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of New Brunswick.—Cranbury 1st ch 35; Rev R Taylor 5	40 00
Pby of Newton.—Musconetcong Valley ch	10 00
Pby of Susquehanna.—Orwell ch	15 00
Pby of Luzerne.—Kingston ch	5 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Newtown ch	10 50
Pby of New Castle.—Dover ch 7; Smyrna ch, of which 6 37 from Sab sch 10 60	17 60
Pby of Baltimore.—Broadway ch, Baltimore 45 50; Bridge street ch, Georgetown, D C 58 63	104 13
Pby of Carlisle.—McConnellsburg ch 62; Green Hill ch 26 44; Bedford ch 25 89; Schellsburg ch 2 50; Upper Path Valley ch 38 71; Dickinson ch 17	172 54
Pby of Huntingdon.—Curwinsville ch 25; 1st ch Spruce Creek 104; Pine Grove ch 25	154 00
Pby of Northumberland.—Lewisburg 75 62, less 1 counterfeit, of which 2 62 from Sab school children =74 62; Bloomsburg ch 30 12; Derry ch 14; Washingtonville congregation 11 31	130 05

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Hocking.—Rutland ch, Cyrus Higby	25 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria.—Brunswick ch, of which from Pastor 94 cts	6 34

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Iowa.—West Point ch	4 00

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Fayetteville.—Philadelphus ch 5; Female Benevolent Society of China Grove 18; China Grove 20; Tirzah ch 12; Rock Fish ch 5; Elizabethtown ch 10; Mt Pisgah ch 16 80; China Grove ch 16. Rock Fish Factory ch 5; Galatia ch 7 50; Ashpole ch 16; Antioch ch 9 25; Smyrna ch 16 10; Laurel Hill ch 24 15; Cypress ch 6 33; Bensalem ch 6 50; collection at Pby 50 58, less exchange 2 42 =48 16	241 79

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Holston.—Providence ch 8; New Providence ch 8	16 00
	$1340 29

MISCELLANEOUS.

The children of Mrs Henrietta G Elliot, to con their mother an hon mem 50; "D," Ashwood, Tenn 2 50; "W," Harrisburgh, Pa 10; A Archibald, West Croton, Mass 1	63 50
Total,	$1403 79

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 Box from the Ladies of 1st ch Rahway, valued at	80 00
1 Box from Mrs Chisman's Female Seminary, Mt Holly, N J, valued at	56 00

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of August, 1854.

Pby of Carlisle.—Bedford ch 20 21; Schellsburg ch, from John McVickers 2 50	22 71
Pby of West Jersey.—Pittsgrove ch, for First ch Fort Winnebago	15 00
Pby of Genesee River.—Warsaw ch, for First ch Fort Winnebago	50 00
Pby of New York 2d.—Peekskill ch	21 00
Pby of Bedford.—South East Centre ch	10 00
	$118 71

MISCELLANEOUS.

A member of Mississippi Pby 7 50; Mrs R J Murphy, Alisonia, Tenn 2 50; Mrs Jane Erwin 1; Mrs M J Watson 50 cts; Rev Edward Wurtz, Ashwood Landing, La 5; Mrs Wm McCullock, Truro, Nova Scotia 4	20 50
Total,	$139 21

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of August, 1854.

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Fairview ch 50 35; Cross Roads ch 27 20	77 55
Pby of St. Clairsville.—Rock Hill ch 46 89; Mt Pleasant ch 46 15	93 04

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Elder's Ridge ch 33 70; New Salem ch 17 05	50 75
Pby of Clarion.—Letherwood ch Miss'y Society	12 00
Pby of Ohio.—Miller's Run ch	9 41

MISCELLANEOUS.

Joseph Donaghey, Esq, Lower Buffalo ch, to con self hon mem	50 00
Total,	$292 75

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of August, 1854.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Miami.—Muddy Run ch	30 00
Pby of Oxford.—West Alexander	15 00
Pby of Findlay.—Shawnee Benev Soc Lima ch 5; Ottowa ch 3; Little Grove ch 3; Rockport ch 4	15 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.—Owens' Creek ch 4; Charlestown ch, bal to con Hon James Scott hon mem 10	14 00
Pby of Madison.—Chas H Park, South Hanover ch 2; J R M and family, Hanover 4	6 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Schuyler.—Oquawka ch	5 00
Pby of Rock River.—Camden ch	5 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Ebenezer.—Richwood ch 7; Augusta ch 9	16 00

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Holston.—Mt Pleasant ch	10 00
Pby of Knoxville.—Madisonville ch	15 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.

Memphis Synodical collection	29 50

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Des Moines.—Fort Des Moines ch	8 70

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.

Pby of Louisiana.—A Friend in Baton Rouge	5 00

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Central Texas.—Austin City ch	54 32

SYNOD OF THE PACIFIC.

James H Blair, California, formerly of Kossuth, Iowa	138 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Arispe, Ill 7; Decatur, Ill 17; Lancaster, Ohio 20	44 00
Total,	$410 82

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. VAN RENSSELAER, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
WM. CHESTER, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
JAMES WOOD, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

ENCOURAGING PROSPECTS.

From the general tenor of our correspondence the past month, and from other reliable sources of information, we anticipate a considerable increase of candidates for the gospel ministry, during the current year. This state of things demands our gratitude to the Head of the Church, who, in answer to the prayers of his people, is giving indications of his gracious purpose to send forth more labourers into his harvest. It should also excite us to continue our prayers and exertions to the same end. The fall sessions of our colleges and academies commence about this period, and in these are congregated, to a great extent, the materials for our future ministry. God alone can sanctify the talents and learning of these young men, and call them to engage in this high and holy vocation. But he has taught us that for this, as well as other blessings, he "will be inquired of by the house of Israel;" and he has connected therewith this precious encouragement, that he "has never said to the seed of Jacob, Seek ye my face in vain."

The following letter, published in the Southern Presbyterian, contains a happy illustration of these remarks. It was written in March last, by the Rev. Dr. Talmage, President of Oglethorpe University. The first part belongs appropriately to the department of general Christian education, but as it is equally pertinent to the ministerial department, we insert it here. The two departments are mutually dependent on each other, and no confusion is produced by an occasional blending of these objects together. Indeed, it is not always practicable to separate them, without dividing or mutilating the communications of our correspondents.

Mr. Editor—It will encourage the friends of religious education, and especially those who have been praying with special earnestness for the youth in literary institutions, to be informed that our College is enjoying a refreshing season of grace.

The marked presence of the Holy Spirit was first made manifest on the night of the last Thursday in February. According to our custom for several years past, the Faculty suspended the usual studies for the afternooon of that day, and assembled the students in the chapel for a season of devotional exercises. Every member of the College, I think, was present. Nothing remarkable appeared, beyond a respectful, and, as we thought, in some instances, an interested attention to the exercises.

At night, the pious students held a special prayer-meeting, at which were present a number of their fellow-students. The attention was such that they ventured to appoint another meeting for the morning, and requested me to be with them. The appearances were highly encouraging—a number seemed deeply concerned. Since that time, a daily meeting for prayer and exhortation has been held, at an hour that does not interfere with the studies or recitations.

These meetings have been eminently blessed. The number in attendance has gradually increased, until now nearly all the students are found at them. One after another, many of them have become deeply concerned. Some twelve have been led to entertain, at first, a trembling hope, which has been more and more confirmed, and to all appearance, the interest is still decidedly on the increase. Their convictions have not been of that overwhelming character, as a general thing, as were those which marked some of our former seasons of religious quickening; but they appear to be deep, and I trust they will prove to be lasting. Their great complaint seems to be of hardness of heart, and a fear lest their sinfulness may grieve away the Spirit's influences. The work of God thus far has been like the gentle "dew upon the grass." Whilst we have had but few cases of awfully overpowering conviction, so we have had but few of remarkable spiritual joys, such as sometimes characterize these refreshing seasons.

Most of the cases of hopeful conversion are among the children of pious parents—some of whom have been struggling for months under secret convictions. A number of the parents had written to the officers of the college, expressing the deepest concern for the spiritual interests of their children, and I had been struck with the language of more than one father, stating that they did not so much desire earthly greatness for their sons, as it was their earnest prayer that they should become holy and useful men. A widowed mother had, a short time ago, written, begging that the teachers would talk to her boy on the subject of religion, for she felt incompetent to train him aright, and she had sent him to us that he might be surrounded by religious influences. How will the heart of that mother rejoice to learn, that her son was among the first to entertain a hope in Christ!

These parents, we know, prayed earnestly for their children and for the College, on the day of special prayer—and God has proved himself eminently a prayer-hearing and covenant-keeping God. We have other cases, however, of hopeful conversion, showing that God is a Sovereign, and that he exercises his rightful prerogative to work "when and where he pleases."

In the struggles to build up this Institution, and to make it worthy of the support of the Church, and of the friends of a solid and thorough education, it is truly encouraging to be able to record the signal manifestations of the smiles of Heaven. I hope that all the ministers and members of the churches belonging to the Synods under whose care this Institution is placed, will not cease to offer up daily prayers to God for our beloved pupils, and that many of them may be drawn by the Spirit of all grace, to devote themselves to the ministry of reconciliation.

One of the most alarming features of the age, seems to be the comparative fewness of young men who are turning their attention to the work of the ministry. Is it not a special judgment of Heaven upon the Church for her worldly-mindedness and other sins?

The calls from vacant churches and destitute regions, for ministerial supplies, are really heart-affecting and alarming. To specify one region of Georgia—in South and South-Western Georgia, covering a territory 200 miles in length by 150 in breadth, comprising some thirty counties, not more than four or five ministers of our order are to be found, and other denominations are making similar complaints.

I have a letter from a friend in Albany, Dougherty county, stating that they are starving for one to break the bread of life. The little Presbyterian church consists of four members. They have built a church—the place is growing—they are ready to contribute of their poverty $400 per annum towards the support of an acceptable minister, but they can get no supply. In Blakely, Early county, a gentleman, not a professor of religion, chiefly from his own means, has built a church for a Presbyterian place of worship; but they can secure the services of no minister, and are disposed to offer the house to some other denomination. A late letter from Fort Gaines states, that they have built a Presbyterian Church there—the place is growing and enjoying great prospects of worldly prosperity, but they can find no minister to supply the church. And these destitutions are but examples of similar spiritual desolations in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas—not to speak of other quarters of the land.

It may be encouraging to some who are praying for an increase of ministers, to be informed that a benevolent gentleman in Savannah enclosed to me a few days ago $250, as his annual contribution towards the education of a destitute candidate for the ministry—and since that time another gentleman, through a mutual friend, who withholds his name, offers $100 for the support of any destitute candidate whom I will recommend to his patronage.

Truly "the harvest is great and the fields are white for the harvest"—but where are the labourers? "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that he will send labourers into his harvest."

In the almost fearful increase of population, by birth and emigration, in our country, unless a vastly increased supply of ministers shall be sent, our land will be in danger of reverting back to barbarism. No nation can afford to do without a preached gospel, for the interests of both time and eternity; and of all nations a republic is most dependent for its prosperity on an able, enlightened, and pious ministry.

It is matter for unfeigned gratitude to God that he has inclined our Church with almost unbroken unanimity, from the General Assembly to the lowest ecclesiastical judicatures, to commit themselves fully, and in earnest, to the great and momentous work of denominational and religious education.

SAMUEL K. TALMAGE.

MINISTERIAL SKILL.

Very few ministers, either in this or in any other country, had more tact in the discharge of duty than Dr. Payson. Once, in the progress of a revival among his church in Portland, after having repeatedly invited meetings in his house, of those who wished to seek religion, he one day gave an invitation to all those young persons who did not intend to seek religion. Any one, who did not know Dr. Payson, would be surprised to hear that thirty or forty came. He had a very pleasant social interview with them, saying nothing about religion, until just as they were about to leave, he closed a very few plain and simple remarks as follows: "Suppose you should see, coming down from heaven, a very fine thread, so fine as to be almost invisible, and it should come and attach itself to you. You knew, we suppose, that it came from God. Should you dare to put out your hand and brush it away?" He dwelt a few moments on this idea, until every one had a clear and fixed conception of it, and of the hardihood which any one would manifest who would openly break such a tie. "Now," continued he, "just such a slender, delicate thread has come from God to you this afternoon. You do not feel, you say, any interest in religion—but by coming here this afternoon, God has fastened one little thread upon you all; it is very weak and frail, and you can in a moment brush it away. But you certainly will not do so. Welcome it, and it will enlarge and strengthen itself, until it becomes a golden chain to bind you for ever to God."

To mention the various plans of good laboured for, and accomplished, on the part of this excellent man, would be to almost fill a volume. One more only shall now be adverted to. A gentleman, who saw and conversed with him in Boston, when he visited that city toward the latter part of his life, was lead by his preaching and conversation to very serious concern for his soul, but his wife was still, in a great measure, indifferent to the subject. Meeting her one day in company, he said to her:

"Madam, I think your husband is looking upward; making some effort to rise above the world, toward God and heaven. You must not let him try alone. Whenever I see the husband struggling alone in such efforts, it makes me think of a dove endeavoring to fly upward, while it has one broken wing. It leaps and flutters, and perhaps raises itself a little way, and then it becomes wearied, and drops again to the ground. If both wings co-operate, then it mounts easily."—Ex. Paper.

DR. CAREY'S EARLY STRUGGLES.

Carey was a journeyman shoemaker, in the small hamlet of Hackleton, a few miles from Northampton; and when, as a "consecrated cobbler," (the term of reproach applied to him by Sidney Smith, in sneering at his missionary efforts,) he removed to the neighbouring village of Moulton, it was to preach to a small congregation of Baptists, for a salary under £20 a year, and to teach a school besides, that he might eke out a scanty livelihood. To Sidney Smith, as to nine-tenths of the British population, it looked ridiculous enough that such a man should not only trouble his own mind, and try for years to trouble the minds of others about the conversion of 420,000,000 of pagans; but that he should actually propose that he himself should be sent out to execute the project. He succeeded at last, however, in obtaining liberty to bring the subject before a small religious community, of which he was a member; and on the 2d of October, 1792, at a meeting of the Baptist Association at Kettering, it was resolved to form a missionary society; but when the sermon was preached, and the collection made, it was found to amount to no more than £12 13*s.* 6*d.* With such agents as Carey, and collections like this of Kettering to support them, Indian missions appeared a fit quarry for that shaft, which none knew better than our Edinburgh reviewer, how to use; and yet, looking somewhat more narrowly at the "consecrated cobler," there was something about him, even at the beginning, sufficient to disarm ridicule; for if we notice him in his little garden, he will be seen motionless for an hour or more, in the attitude of intense thought; or if we join him in his evening hours, we shall find him reading the Bible, in one or other of four different languages, with which he has already made himself familiar; or if we follow him into his school, we shall discover him with a large leather globe, of his own construction, pointing out to the village urchins the different kingdoms of the earth, saying: "These are Christians, these are Mohammedans, and these are pagans!" his voice stopped by strong emotion as he repeats, and re-repeats the last mournful utterance. Carey sailed to India in 1793. Driven by the jealousy of the East India Company out of an English ship, in which he was about to sail, he took his passage in a Danish vessel, and chose a Danish settlement in India for his residence: yet he lived till from that press which he had established at Serampore, there had issued 212,000 copies of the sacred Scriptures in forty different languages—the vernacular tongues of 330,000,000 immortal beings, of whom more than 100,000,000 were British subjects, and till he had seen expended upon that noble object, on behalf of which the first small offering at Kettering was presented, no less a sum than £91,500.—Dr. Hanna.

SCHOOL TEACHING BY CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY.

As the Board are occasionally consulted on this subject, and as two or three cases have been recently brought before the Executive Committee, we deem it proper to make the following suggestions, viz:

1. The first best course obviously is for a student to pursue his studies without interruption—and this should be done in all cases, where it is practicable.

2. When pecuniary considerations render it necessary to teach, the time thus appropriated should be as brief as possible—say not more than three months—and this ought to include, if possible, the vacation in the Institution of which the candidate is a member.

3. A school composed of pupils somewhat advanced in study should be sought in preference to one composed of children. An opportunity is thus afforded for reviewing important branches of science.

4. Take charge of no school where full liberty is not granted to impart to the scholars religious instruction, and to engage daily in devotional exercises.

5. Be careful to maintain such a deportment as will honour religion, and the Christian ministry; and endeavour to be useful both to the scholars and their parents, by performing, in an appropriate manner, those active duties which may properly devolve upon you in the circumstances of the case—such as Sabbath-school instruction, social prayer, &c. "To do good, and to communicate, forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." While every encroachment, and even the appearance of encroachment upon the peculiar functions of the gospel ministry should be avoided, there is ample room, without doing this, for the employment of your gifts in promoting the interests of Christ's kingdom.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

QUARTERLY REPORTS—NEED OF FUNDS.

Reports have been received from several institutions under the care of the Church, showing a degree of prosperity, with regard to students, &c., which will be highly gratifying to the friends of Christian education. The severe drought, and consequent failure of crops, have produced in some of them an unusual pecuniary pressure; and earnest appeals are made, through the Board, to the wealthy and benevolent, to assist them in this emergency. "For the year upon which we are just entering," says one of these reports, "provision has yet to be made for more than $3000 of the means to meet our current expenses. And to add to our troubles, the drought through this region has produced a complete dearth, so that for the next year our provisions will have to be imported from such distances as greatly to enhance their cost. Already we are paying three times the usual price for many of the substantials of life, and nothing but cash in hand will command them. Under these circumstances, you will readily perceive, that with all the effort we can put forth, we shall need the whole of the $1000 asked from your Board, if it is possible for it to be given us." Another, after detailing their necessities, and stating their deficit of $1000 for the current year, concludes thus: "Please let me hear from you soon, with such aid and comfort as you can give, by way of procuring funds for our present necessities, and giving encouragement for the future."

The above extracts are published, in order to bring before the minds of our readers the present demand for an increased liberality, in contributing to the fund for general education. As this department depends mainly on private donations, (the public collections being generally made for the ministerial fund,) those members of our Church who take a special interest in schools and colleges, are respectfully invited to aid the Board in relieving the wants of these institutions.

MAKEMIE COLLEGE, ARKANSAS.

Information has been received, that the Trustees of this Institution have taken incipient measures to erect a college building; for which purpose they have written for a plan, which was recommended to them by an officer of this Board, and expect to proceed as soon as practicable to put the building under contract. We wish them success in their important undertaking; and we commend it to the prayers and co-operation of the members of our churches, particularly of those residing in that State, and the South-West. In the infancy of such an enterprise, special encouragement is needed, to strengthen the hands of those brethren who have embarked in it, and who, but for such aid, will be unable to carry out to the extent of their wishes this magnificent project. We trust the Synod of Arkansas, at their next meeting, will take such action as will secure the raising of $10,000 at least, within their own bounds, as the beginning of an endowment.

EFFECTS OF BAD TEACHING.

It is said that Popery is making large accessions in some of the Protestant towns in Germany, while Protestantism is gathering many converts in the Popish towns of France. These contrary effects may be in each instance traced to bad instruction. The Papists in France, disgusted and dissatisfied with the insufficient instruction of their priests, are constrained to turn to evangelical Protestantism for a knowledge of the true gospel; while the Protestants of Germany, seeing their clergy sunk in rationalistic errors, and withholding from them the truth as it is in Jesus, go to Popery, in the hope, although a vain one, of finding something more suitable to their spiritual condition. There is between the two this difference: the teachings of Popery are essentially bad at the best, while Protestantism can never teach badly, until it has first apostatized from the faith, and lost all that constitutes its essence. In other words, it is genuine Popery which drives its subjects to Protestantism, while it is only a nominal Protestantism which forces its adherents into Popery.—Presbyterian.

COLLEGES AND THEOLOGICAL SEMINARIES IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1849, the number of Colleges in the United States was 120

Under the direction of the Baptists,	12
Under that of the Episcopalians,	10
" " " Methodists,	12
" " " Roman Catholics,	13

And the remainder were divided, for the most part, between the Congregationalists and Presbyterians.

There were said to be at the same time 42 Theological Schools,

Baptist,	10
Congregational,	5
Dutch Reformed,	2
Lutheran,	3
Methodist,	1
Episcopalian,	8
Presbyterian,	11
Unitarian,	2

—Exchange paper.

PRACTICAL SERMONS.

To preach practical sermons upon virtues and vices, without inculcating those great Scripture truths of redemption, grace, &c., which alone can incite and enable us to forsake sin, and follow righteousness, what is it but to put together the wheels, and set the hands of a watch, forgetting the spring, which is to make them all go?—Horne.

THE SPRINGING OF BURIED SEED.

"Many years ago, Mr. Bird established a day-school in a village, where the pupils were taught to read the Bible. Our good brother may remember a young man, the son of the teacher of this school, who used to come occasionally to Beirût for his father's monthly stipend. That young man is now Yacobi-el-Hakim, formerly a juggler, slight-of-hand trickster, and given to much wine; but now he is a sober, steady man, and, as we hope, a true Christian, who dates his first religious impressions, and knowledge of the truth, from what he learned in Mr. Bird's school. To this man's influence may be traced the first enlightening of Tannûs Kerem, formerly a native assistant of our mission in Jerusalem, and now with the brethren of the Jews' Missionary Society in Safed. He also has a disciple named Dhahir Abud, in El-Khiyam; and Dhahir also has a disciple in one of his neighbours; and so the leaven is spreading. These two men, Yacobi and Dhahir, have a knowledge of Scripture which surprises as well as delights; and being naturally shrewd men, they have a power of argument which their adversaries cannot gainsay or resist. They are both physicians, and are in the habit of making long tours through Hauran, and the parts east of the Jordan, as far south as Kerek; and to those parts they have gone, and will continue to go, preaching the gospel of the kingdom. The results of this school of Mr. Bird are known only to Him who chooses the weak things of this world to confound the things which are mighty. To His name be the praise, and be ours the encouragement which these facts afford!"

PARENTAL TEACHING.

If parents would not trust a child upon the back of a wild horse without a bit or bridle, let them not permit him to go forth unskilled in self-government. If a child is passionate, teach him by gentle means to curb his temper. If he is greedy, cultivate liberality in him. If he is selfish, promote generosity. If he is sulky, charm him out of it by frankness and good humour. If he is indolent, accustom him to exertion, and train him so as to perform even onerous duties with alacrity. If pride comes in to make his obedience reluctant, subdue him by counsel or discipline. In short, give your children the habit of overcoming their besetting sins. Let them acquire from experience that confidence in themselves which gives security to the practised horseman, even on the back of a high-strung steed, and they will triumph over the difficulties and dangers which beset them in the path of life.

DILLWORTH'S SPELLING BOOK AND THE CATECHISM.

While in the city of Hartford, a few weeks since, I visited, with much gratification, the elegant building called, I think, the Wadsworth Athenæum. The library, the paintings, and various antiquities belonging to the Connecticut Historical Society, in one large apartment of that building, are particularly attractive.

Among the old books and the portraits of distinguished civilians and divines now passed away, is seen the venerable Dr. Robbins, the generous founder of that highly valuable library. He seems, indeed, as the presiding genius of the place. In dress and demeanor, as well as in courtesy of manners, he is a noble specimen of an age gone by. Bodily weakness and infirmity are coming over him, but if the visitor, won to conversation by his affable manners, alludes to anything belonging to the past—to the civil or ecclesiastical history of our country, he will open a vain of antiquarian lore of great richness—he will find himself delighted by an out-flow of treasured learning.

Many books and curiosities belonging to that historical collection, are worthy of distinct notice. But I was impressed by nothing so much as by an old spelling book which the Doctor drew forth from his choicest treasures as a most gratifying memento of the enlightened Christian views of our fathers on the subject of education, and also of their pious care to perpetuate the important alliance of learning with religion.

The spelling book was Dillworth's, one of very general, if not universal, use in the earlier days of New England. What attracted my attention in turning over the antiquated and badly printed leaves, was the discovery that it contained the Assembly's Catechism, as if that, of course, was to be used in the early training of children. This fact is important as indicating the character of the age and of the people. It shows that our noble ancestors regarded the instruction of Christianity as among the important elements of education. And it shows how New England—this fair land of intelligence, of morals, of religion, and of liberty, became what she has been and now is—it accounts for her unexampled prosperity, and for that spirit of enterprise, which, in so short a period, has extended her institutions, and her thrift, from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific.

Yes, Dillworth's Spelling Book, containing the Catechism, is among the items in our past history, which fully reveals the secret of our wonderful growth and elevation in all that can render society happy.

It is a conviction which it seems to me no thoughtful or enlightened man can avoid, that if religion, in the purity and power of its doctrines, as well as its moral precepts, had been wanting in the Puritan system of education, New England would have been wanting in those noble characteristics and attainments which now constitute her glory.

Nor let it be forgotten by the men of this generation, that the same mighty cause—the instruction of children as well as adults, in the life-giving doctrines of Christianity, which has carried our country forward to its present degree of prosperity and happiness, must be continued in full operation, or all will be lost—the gold will become dim, and the most fine gold will be changed.

And if, according to the design of our system of free schools, supported as these are by the contributions of all denominations, any distinct doctrinal inculcation must in a measure be excluded, it certainly becomes the duty of all who maintain the Puritan faith, to bring such doctrinal inculcation by means of the Catechism and faithful oral instruction more into their families, and at the same time to take the utmost pains, not only in bringing as many children as possible into the Sabbath-school, but in imbuing their minds when there, with that sound Christian knowledge that must always lie at the foundation of all true piety, all genuine morals, and all patriotism that is worthy of the name.—Puritan Recorder.

ANOTHER WARNING TO PROTESTANT PARENTS.

Many examples of the evil results of Protestant parents sending their children to schools taught by Romanists, have already been published. The Louisville Christian Advocate furnishes the following additional one:

Not very far from this city, there lives an opulent and distinguished Protestant family, celebrated alike for its hospitality and its wealth. The parents of this family, under the influence of the strange delusion which so commonly prevails, that Roman Catholic schools are the most learned and safe institutions among us for the education of youth, consigned, a year or two since, their lovely young daughter to the nuns and priests of a neighbouring seminary for her mental training. Believing that the pledge of the Principals of the school would be kept, that her religious sentiments and feelings would not be tampered with, they rested in the false security that all was right with their beloved child. A few weeks ago, she returned home from the seminary, sick unto death. The family physician who had been called in, announced to the distressed father and mother that their child must die. Then came the test of Roman Catholic fidelity in the keeping of Protestant pledges. The venerable minister of the family was proposed to the young lady as a spiritual comforter in her last hours, but, to the amazement of the family, the dying girl peremptorily refused his visitation, and demanded that a Roman Catholic priest should be sent for. She said she would receive the consolations of religion only from him, declaring, at the same time, that all else besides the Catholics were heretics, and were consigned to perdition. "Where did you hear that?" said the father. "I was taught it at the school," murmured the poor girl. The father bit his lips as the conviction of the truth flashed across his mind, but it was too late now, the deed was done, and could not be remedied. Under the circumstances, they were compelled to yield to the wishes of their daughter, and thus a Roman Catholic priest was introduced into the chamber of a dying Protestant girl, who, probably, was as well acquainted with the experimental religion of the Bible and the kingdom of heaven, as the horse he rode was with the paths of Egypt and the kingdom of the Pharaohs. Protestants, what think you of patronizing Catholic schools?

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Education. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to all the Honorary members every year.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The sum of Seventy-five dollars forms a scholarship to assist a student in the collegiate course, and the sum of One Hundred dollars in the theological course.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, AUGUST, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of Troy.
Waterford ch	$37 25
Presbytery of Albany.
Northampton ch	2 00
Presbytery of Elizabethtown.
Lamington ch	45 00
Presbytery of West Jersey.
Blackwoodtown ch	15 00
Presbytery of Raritan.
Milford ch	6 00
Presbytery of Carlisle.
Carlisle ch	83 20
Presbytery of Zanesville.
Brownsville ch	11 00
Presbytery of Fayetteville.
Antioch ch 6 65; Collection at Presbytery 39 95; Philadelphus ch 1 25 = 47 85, less exchange 47 cts	47 38
Presbytery of Oregon.
Clatsop ch	7 50
	$254 33
MISCELLANEOUS.
Rev Thos A Ogden, Natchez, Miss	30 00
	$284 33

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Presbytery of New York.
Brick ch "A Friend" for Parochial Schools	2000 00
Presbytery of New Brunswick.
Titusville ch	15 00
Presbytery of Newton.
Musconetcong Valley ch, for Parochial Schools	25 00
Total	$2324 33

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH, PA., AUGUST, 1854.

Presbytery of Blairsville.
Poke Run ch 15; Beulah ch 43 25	58 25
Presbytery of Redstone.
Raccoon ch	50 00
Presbytery of Washington.
West Liberty ch 25 43; West Union ch, to con Rev J FLEMING life mem 50; Wellsburg ch, by ten ladies to con Rev E QUILLAN life mem 50; East Buffalo ch 52 50	177 93
	$286 18
MISCELLANEOUS.
JAMES DONAGHY life mem	50 00
Total,	$336 18

J. S. LEECH, McALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, AUGUST, 1854.

Presbytery of Madison.
South Hanover ch additional	2 00
Presbytery of Upper Missouri.
Crooked River ch	10 00
Presbytery of Lexington.
Bethel ch	13 50
Presbytery of Ebenezer.
Richwood ch	3 00
Total,	$28 50
MISCELLANEOUS.
Rev Joseph Platt, Ind	25 00
	$53 50

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, New York, Sept. 13th, 1854.

India.—Our latest advices from India are, from Mynpurie, June 8th; Futtehpore, May 2d; Lahore, June 8th; Agra, June 12th; Ambala, June 24th; and from Allahabad, June 26th.

All of our letters speak of a season of unusually warm weather, but no sickness is mentioned in connection with any of the mission families. At Agra, the Boarding-schools had been somewhat interrupted by the prevalence of small-pox, but they were going on as usual, at the date of our letters. Teachers from this country are very much needed, to take the supervision of these schools, and the missionaries inquire whether such cannot be found, and sent out.

An interesting state of religious feeling exists in the little church at Lahore, and several hopeful converts have recently been received to its communion. But for a more full account of this work of grace, our readers are referred to a letter from Mr. Morrison, published in the present number of the Record. The Rev. Gopeenath Nundy sends a satisfactory report of his labours at Futtehpore, which we may insert in a future number.

China.—Our latest letters are from Shanghai, May 3d; from Ningpo, May 5th; and from Canton June 3d.

A serious disturbance had occurred at Ningpo, between the Portuguese and some Canton junkmen, which resulted in the death of one or two on both sides. At one time, their guns were pointed in the direction of Mr. Rankin's house, but were turned away, in consequence of the hoisting the American colours. Mr. Way says, "Our work at Ningpo is progressing, and we have never had so much encouragement to persevere and press onward, as during the past year. All the different missions have been blessed with additions to their churches, and in our own mission, the number of converts is now double that of last year." At Shanghai, missionary operations were a good deal disturbed by the unsettled state of public affairs. It was thought that the rebels, who were still in possession of the city, would soon have to surrender, or be starved to death. Some of these letters urge the importance of the Board's commencing a mission in Japan as soon as possible, and it may very probably be considered expedient to send out one or two of the brethren to explore the ground, and make preparatory arrangements, if encouragement should be offered, for the establishment of such a mission. The subject is under the consideration of the Committee.

Africa.—From the Liberia mission we have letters from Monrovia, July 9th; from Sinou, June 16th; and from the Corisco mission, June 20th.

In the July number of the Record, mention was made of the destructive fire at Corisco, by which the mission houses and property were destroyed; that Mrs. Clemens's attack of sickness had been greatly aggravated, in consequence of exposure to the night air, and her journey to the Gaboon. Through the favour of a merciful providence, her health has been entirely restored, and she had returned to Corisco, to resume her labours. We have not yet received full accounts of the results of the interview between the missionaries and the natives of the island, subsequent to the fire; but we understand that the latter engaged to rebuild their houses gratuitously, on the condition that they would continue their labours among them, and many were at work on the mission premises, at the time of our last dates, without charges. What will be done by the natives, however, will not go very far towards repairing the losses that have been incurred by the mission. It is probable that Mr. and Mrs. Mackey will visit the United States this autumn; partly with the view of recruiting their health, and partly for the purpose of getting some books printed in the Corisco language, for the use of their schools.

Indian Tribes.—We have intelligence from Tallahassee, August 8th; from Spencer, August 14th; from Wa-pa-nucka, July 19th; and from Grand Traverse, the 21st of August.

The most interesting item of intelligence we have from our mission stations among the Indians, is the work of grace going on among the Choctaws at Spencer; for a more full account of which our readers are referred to an article below.

Under the late treaty between the government and the Omahas, these Indians will be removed to a new location. Considerable changes must therefore be made in the arrangements of our mission. To aid in making these changes, the senior Secretary will be on his way before this number reaches our readers, to visit this mission, and the mission among the Iowas, which will be also seriously affected by the recent action of Congress in forming new territories.

Several teachers and others, most of them ladies, are expected to proceed about the 1st of this month, October, to join the Creek, Chickasaw, and Choctaw missions. They will probably be accompanied by Mr. Wilson, one of the Secretaries.

Chinese in California.—Mr. Speer writes from San Francisco, on the 14th of August, giving good accounts of the mission. Preaching, instruction in a school, and dispensary practice, were maintained; the latter by two physicians of the city, who kindly gave their attendance on two days of the week. The native church had been taken under the care of the Presbytery. Lai Sam taking his seat as an Elder in that body.

South America.—A letter has been received from Rev. Thomas L'Hombral, from Buenos-Ayres, of 5th July, in which he mentions that he had entered upon his public labours, with promising prospects of success. He had found a larger number of French Protestants in Buenos-Ayres than he expected, by all of whom he had been most cordially received. He speaks of having baptized a French girl, whom he had previously had under religious instruction for some time.

Missionaries to India.—The Rev. John Newton and his wife, Rev. George O. Barnes and his wife, Rev. Edward H. Leavitt, and two teachers, Miss Newton, and Miss Jamieson, embarked at Boston for Calcutta, on the 5th of September, in the barque Annie Bucknam. Mr. Newton is returning, with health in some degree improved, to his field of labour, leaving two of his sons in this country to be educated. Mr. Barnes is a son of the Rev. Dr. Barnes, of the Synod of Kentucky. Mr. Leavitt is a son of Judge Leavitt of the United States Court, Ohio, a respected elder of our Church. Miss Newton, and Miss Jamieson, are the daughters of our missionary brethren, who account it their privilege to rejoin their parents, and aid them in their work.

We commend this little company of the servants of Christ to the blessing of God, and ask that they may be remembered in the prayers of the churches.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

In our last number, the question was asked and considered, whether as a Church we were doing all for the spread of the gospel among the heathen nations of the earth, that the Saviour expected and required of us. In the present, we propose to inquire whether the Church, in this respect, is fulfilling the great purpose for which itself was instituted.

This purpose we take to be two-fold: 1st, to promote the spiritual welfare and salvation of its own members; and 2d, to make known the Christian salvation, so far as it is in her power, to the whole human race. In other words, the great work of the Christian Church is to lead men to Christ, and train them for heaven; and this work will not be completed, so long as there is a single human being on the face of the earth who has not heard of the name of the Saviour. The Church is not responsible for the conversion and salvation of men, but she is under bonds to the Saviour, to publish the gospel throughout the whole world.

As yet, this part of her work is scarcely begun. Profound darkness reigns over more than three-fourths of our globe, and as yet, not one out of ten of our fellow-men have acquired any definite knowledge of the way of salvation. To enlighten this ignorance, and bring the gospel in contact with the mind of the whole human race, is a work, we admit, of vast magnitude; but with the guarantee of Divine aid which is tendered to the Church, there is nothing in it either hopeless or impracticable.

But is our branch of the Christian Church addressing herself to this great work with becoming zeal? Is she fulfilling the great purpose for which she was instituted? Are the efforts she is putting forth, in connection with the Foreign Missionary enterprise, commensurate to the magnitude of the work, or the abundant resources which a benignant Providence is bestowing upon us, as a Church and people? Is the compact ecclesiastical organization of our Church, of which we are so proud, brought to bear with proper force upon the conversion of the world?

We ask not how faithfully she may be engaged in the discharge of her home duties. This, we admit, is her first, but by no means her only duty. Beyond our own borders, there are masses of our fellow-men, compared with which, the population of our own country is but a handful. Towards these, the Saviour has imposed duties and obligations upon us, which no motives of patriotism, or considerations of personal ease, can possibly exonerate. Whilst we are held responsible for the faithful discharge of our duties to our fellow-men immediately around us, we are not less responsible for the multitudes spread over other portions of the earth; and these responsibilities are not lessened, but greatly heightened, by the fact that these multitudes have never heard of the Saviour.

But what are we actually doing to enlighten and save these benighted nations of the earth? Have the ministers of the Church felt the responsibilities of their calling, in connection with this work, as they ought? The command of the Saviour, to go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature, was addressed to them in a special sense. Have they evinced a proper sense of the solemnity of this responsibility, by personal consecration to this work. Let facts speak for themselves.

In the Presbyterian Church, we have a ministry of more than 2200. Now, what portion of these are actually engaged in the Foreign Missionary work? The whole number on our missionary list is 56!

one about to every forty at home. Now, without starting any invidious comparisons between the Home and the Foreign work, for we regard one as but the extension of the other, we ask whether we are acting up to the example left us by the apostles and primitive Christians? Would this great disproportion in the distribution of labourers exist, if we were imbued with that same love for the souls of our perishing fellow-men, which caused the Saviour to lay down his life for them? But is it any better with the lay membership of the Church?

It has long been known, and generally understood, that private members of the Church may be useful in the missionary work. They are needed as teachers, colporteurs, catechists, and may be useful in many other ways. Calls for such are constantly sent home from all our missionary stations. But how are they responded to? Out of church membership of 225,000, the whole number who have given themselves up to the missionary work is about 100; or one to every 2250 in the churches! Again we ask, does this indicate a proper state of feeling among our people? Can the Church be expected to rise in all the majesty of beauty and power, which properly belongs to her, so long as there is so much apathy towards this great cause?

But have we any better proof of fidelity to the Saviour, in the pecuniary contributions that are made to this cause? The entire contributions to the cause of Foreign Missions the last year, from all our churches, including donations from individuals, and legacies, was less than $130,000. This is all that has been placed at the disposal of the Foreign Board; and with this amount, they are expected to furnish outfits for missionaries, pay their passages to distant countries, support them while engaged in their work, erect churches where they are needed, establish and maintain schools and seminaries, translate, print, and circulate the word of God, and other religious books, and various other expenses, inseparably connected with this great enterprise. But what has it cost the churches to raise this sum of money? It is scarcely an average of 60 cents to each member. Now, we do not hesitate to say, that the Church could, and if she felt as she ought, would raise, without injury to herself, or detriment to any home interest, not less than $1,000,000 annually for this great work. Five dollars to each member of the Church would more than do it; and whilst it is probable that there might be a few of our church members who could not give this much, we apprehend that there would be quite as many who could double that sum. And we greatly mistake the signs of the times, if we shall not soon be called, in the providence of God, to do this much, and even more, or turn our backs upon a plain duty, pointed out to us in the providence of God.

CHOCTAW MISSION.

AN INTERESTING WORK OF GRACE AMONG THE CHOCTAWS.

Letters have been received from Rev. Alexander Reid, of July 24th, August 7th and 10th, and one from Mr. George Ainslee, one of the teachers at Spencer, of the 10th of August, giving an account of a most interesting work of grace among the Choctaws, in the immediate vicinity of the Spencer Academy. A church was organized at Spencer on the 9th April, but comprised at first only the members of the mission family, and one or two Choctaw converts. About the same time, a protracted meeting was held at a place called Six Towns, within two or three miles of Spencer, which resulted in the awakening of more than thirty persons to a concern for the salvation of their souls. "Most of these," remarks Mr. Reid, "were heads of families; some were old persons, and others were young. I knew previously that the Spirit of God was at work on the hearts of these people, and I confidently expected to see some of them come out on the Lord's side, but not so many as actually professed concern for their salvation on this occasion." A weekly prayer-meeting was appointed, and was numerously attended, not only by those who were anxious about their souls, but by others, of both sexes, and of different ages. A second protracted meeting was appointed, for the 14th of July, which proved to be one of unusual interest and solemnity. Twenty-one persons of those who had previously professed conviction for sin, were baptized, and received to the church. Three others would have been received at the same time, but were prevented from being present by sickness. A still greater number were brought under deep conviction for sin, and the greater part of these were again heads of families, among whom were two very aged women.

A third meeting was appointed at Spencer, the first week of August. It commenced on Friday, and terminated on Monday morning. On this occasion, nineteen Choctaws, who gave satisfactory evidence of having passed from death to life, were received to the church, varying in ages from twelve or fourteen to ninety or a hundred years. On the same occasion, forty-eight children were baptized.

During these meetings, the general attendance was between three and four hundred, seventy-five of whom professed to be under conviction for sin, and of these, forty-six are regarded as hopeful converts, and have been received into the communion of the church. The school at Spencer was not in session during these meetings, but a few of the pupils were present, and we rejoice to know, that this work of grace is extending itself to them also, and we trust that many of them may be brought into the fold of Christ before this precious season passes away. Mr. Reid expresses himself under obligations to Rev. Messrs. Kingsbury, Hotchins, and Edwards, of the American Board of Foreign Missions, for assistance in conducting these meetings, and he earnestly calls upon Christians to pray for the continuance and the extension of this great and glorious work.

The following extract from Mr. Ainslee's letter will give further particulars in regard to this interesting work of grace.

"We have long mourned the absence of the Spirit in this place, and barrenness of the field we are so painfully labouring in; but God, in the rich outpouring of his Spirit, is now filling our mouth with laughter, and our tongue with singing. The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad. Truly the 126th Psalm contains our happy experience of God's dealings with us. Last Sabbath was communion Sabbath at Spencer, held after the manner of the big meetings of the country. Mr. Reid at this meeting baptized upwards of seventy persons, nineteen of them adults and young persons uniting for the first time with the church, and the rest were children of these, and of those who united at our former meeting, and of our own mission family—our dear little one among the rest. It was a deeply impressive sight to see household after household gathered before the desk, and dedicated by solemn vow to the service of God. Those who came before the session seeking admission to the church, gave very satisfactory evidence of a work of grace begun in the heart, and also seemed possessed of as much Christian knowledge as we could expect in present circumstances. Some of the cases were very striking.

During this meeting, eighteen or nineteen were added to the number of the enquirers. Every impression made by the Spirit seems, in this revival, to be permanent. We have not as yet a single case of transient excitement, but every case of conviction seems, by the blessing of God, to deepen into real and lasting conversion. The revival had not at this last meeting, nor before it, embraced a single member of our school, but we have, since the meeting, been filled with joy, by the conversion, as we trust, of two of our dear and most hopeful scholars. A few of my boys are staying with me (voluntarily, on their part, and very willingly on mine,) during vacation, for the purpose of pursuing their studies, in which they became very much interested during the last term. On Monday, after the meeting was closed, and all was quiet, A—— M——, whom I suppose you know by reputation, if you do not remember his personal appearance, was, while in his own room, deeply impressed with a sense of sin. He passed the remainder of the day, and that night, in deep agony. He is now rejoicing in the faith. I never witnessed a conversion where God wrought more plainly by his own sovereign power; for from first to last, human influence seemed to have nothing to do with it. A—— has very superior talents. His good conduct during last term was without exception, and he was the most advanced but one in the school. Another, and more recent case, is that of S—— F——, a younger boy, and less distinguished than A——. He is very bashful, and does not speak so freely of his feelings as A——, so we do not know so well the state of his mind, but so far as we can judge, he is the happy subject of the same grace."

INDIA: LODIANA MISSION.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. J. M. JAMIESON.

[Continued from page 142—August No.]

29*th. Theneswar.*—Was invited to dine last evening with Mr. Nasmith, assistant commissioner, and spent a pleasant hour with him. He is the only son of a Scotch Baronet, is a Presbyterian, and, I hope, a good Christian. He has been only six years in India, and is about to go home on furlough, to bring out his wife, who was obliged to return to her native land two years ago, by bad health. He called on me at my tent this morning, and seemed very friendly.

Distribution of books—Distillery licensed by government.

Have spent the most of this day in talking with crowds of people at my tent, and giving them books. Among the Brahmans there are many good readers, and it is to be hoped the books they have received to-day will not all be read in vain. A distiller, who pays to government 1000 Rupees annually, for license to make drunkards, complained to me, that, notwithstanding he pays so much for the privilege, the government had ruined him, by making the grand trunk road, leading from Calcutta to Peshawer, three miles from Theneswar, and thus depriving him of the opportunity of catching travellers. The Brahmans made the same complaint, and for the same reason. In passing the distillery, I stopped to see the native process in making sharp water. In a small thatched hut was a rude mud furnace, on which was a copper vessel, in the shape of a round tea-pot, and containing some ten gallons of fermented molasses and water. Resting on this was another similar vessel inverted. In one side of it was a small hole, into which the end of a long straight bamboo was inserted. The other end passed through a copper tube, fitted into a narrow-mouthed earthen vessel, which was sunk in black mud and water up to to the neck, to condense the vapour. This was the whole apparatus. I was offered a treat, but declined the favour, and exhorted the representative of Pluto to abandon his nefarious gains. He replied, how could it be wrong for him to do what the English government sanctioned, and for which he paid them so much?

Ladwa—Its size—How it came into the hands of the English.

30*th. Ladwa*—10 miles. Road good; country low, and covered with coarse, dry grass. This place contains about 18,000 inhabitants, and is a handsome, flourishing city. It was, a few years ago, the seat of a Rajahship, but now belongs to the Company. At the time of the Sikh war, the Rajah was detected plotting with his brethren for the overthrow of the British power in India, and as a reward for his fraternal prepossessions, was banished, with his family, for life, beyond the Black Water, and his country annexed. His former magnificent dwelling adds another to the long list of deserted palaces in Hindustan. The district is joined to that of Theneswar, and governed by the some authorities. There is a good bungalow in a park near the city, where an English officer occasionally resides. This, on account of a heavy rain which soaked my tent last night, and which has not yet ceased to threaten me with another deluge, I have taken possession of for the night.

A Brahman's views of the fate of his religion, and the prospects of Christianity.

Went to the bazar this morning and talked with large crowds of people in several places, and gave away a good many books. The watchman of the bungalow told me he was also a padre, and formerly made much by his profession, but that since the destruction of the Sikh power, his business had failed, and he was obliged to resort to secular employment. He attributes the loss of the Sikh empire entirely to the perfidy of the rulers, and says their glory and religion are for ever departed—that no proselyte can now join them, or ever will, and that the Christian religion is destined to fill the earth to the exclusion of all others. I gave him several Panjabi books, with which he was much pleased, and continued to read aloud in an adjoining room until after midnight.

A Brahman's views of the religious character of the English.

31*st*. Shāhbabad, 13 miles. Left Ladwa this afternoon, and rode to this place in the evening. My tents did not arrive until ten o'clock, P. M. I had to sit on the cold ground without shelter for several hours. My brother padre resumed his reading this morning, an hour before daylight, and told me he always spends that hour in devotional exercises. "But," said he, "do you English ever pray? I have seen many of your countrymen stopping at this bungalow, and never heard one of them praying." I told him, when alone, we attend to our devotions secretly, and do not make so much noise and show as he did last night and this morning. Still, I fear, in many cases, this poor devout man, in his way, might truly say the English never pray.

Preaching to a company of travellers.

After my arrival, went into a sarai, where a large number of travellers had stopped for the night, and commenced to address them on the journey of life, and night of death. We are all travellers, and the last night will soon overtake us. For what sarai are we bound? For the holy, there is a glorious sarai, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. But for the unholy, there is no admittance there. Christ is the way that leads to that happy place, and invites all to enter it through him. It can be approached by no other way. Here you only find rest for a night—there, everlasting rest.

Education in the Government school at Delhi—The Bible excluded, but the Shaster and Koran taught in a school supported by a Christian government.

After my address, a young Hindú came to me, and introduced himself as a late graduate of the Delhi Government College. If he is a good specimen of the scholars they make in that institution, those in the mission schools would not suffer in comparison. He was an interesting and smart young man, and had been seven years in the college; but the poor fellow had neither learned common politeness, nor much useful knowledge. His first questions were, "Gentleman, what is your name, and where are you going?" After giving him a civil answer, I asked him what he had learned. "O," said he, "I have read Shakspeare, Milton, and all the poetics and sciences." I gave him a simple question in algebra to solve, which he waived, with a flourish of the hand, as too easy for him. I then asked him how many States there were in the United States? He replied, "Seven." What city is the capital of that country? "Don't know, sir." Which is the longest river? The same reply. Did you ever read the Bible, or learn any thing of Christianity in the Delhi College? "No, sir; we were not allowed to do so by the professors, lest it should injure the attendance." And were the Shaster and the Koran excluded? "No! nothing but the Bible." Alas! that a government calling itself Christian, should thus degrade the word of God in the sight of the heathen. Here is a young idolater who has been taught seven years in an English college, and by baptized professors, in English science and literature, and yet is as ignorant of the most important of all knowledge as if there was no Bible. What an awful responsibility rests on that government, which, for sinister motives, proscribes the word of Jehovah in her schools.

Females of abandoned character in India.

February 1*st*.—Went to the bazar this morning, and had a large and attentive audience. Was met on the street by a gaily dressed and pretty, but disreputable female. She demanded a Persian book, and said she could read, but, on my handing her a suitable tract, she said she meant she could understand me, if I would read for her. This I declined doing, and directed my attention to the crowd which her accosting me had assembled. In my address, I dwelt on the evils the occasion suggested. The unhappy Magdalene said her doom was sealed; it was her fate to be lost; what could she do now? The majority of this unfortunate class of females in India, show, by their delicate features, and aristocratic appearance, that they once saw better days. Many of them are the young widows and wives of the better class of men, who have fallen from the paths of virtue, and abandoned themselves to a life of degradation. Every city and town abounds with them. "They are loud and stubborn, their feet abide not in their house."

Returned to Ambala—Concluding reflections.

Returned this evening twelve miles to Ambala, after being absent seventeen days, and found all as usual. My way led along the Grand Trunk Road the whole distance. It is a splendid wide Macadamized turnpike road, and raised some four feet above the level of the ground. The line of telegraph posts and wire, which is to connect Calcutta and Peshawer, follows its track, is nearly completed, and will be in operation in a few weeks. The natives say there will be a line of puppets fastened to the wires, which will carry the letters with the rapidity of lightning! It is expected the great Indian railroad will follow the same course in a few years. We hail these improvements as the harbingers of good to India. Ignorance and superstition must give way to the march of intellect and truth. Long established habits and customs must be broken up, and, with them, deep-rooted prejudices removed from the minds of her now prostrate millions.

In my itineration, my attention has been drawn to the inviting aspect of the field over which I have just travelled. It is the cradle of Hinduism, and the most sacred region in all this land of holy places. In a circle of 100 miles south of Ambala, are Patiálá, with a population of 80 or 100,000, Pohoa, Kyntal, Thaneswar, Ládwa, and Sháhabád, each containing from 15 to 20,000 inhabitants. Among these, Thaneswar and Pohoa are esteemed pre-eminently holy. They are chiefly inhabited by Brahmans, nearly all of whom are good readers, and intelligent; and they are the sites of very large annual fairs, which scarcely yield in importance to those held at Hurdwar. When will these important posts be occupied by the missionary of the cross? We hope the day is not far distant when we will be able to form out-stations at most of them, and place our native brethren over them, as at Jalandhar and Futtehpore.

LODIANA MISSION.

A LETTER FROM REV. J. H. MORRISON.

The following letter from Mr. Morrison, of June 8th, gives an interesting account of the state and prospects of the little church organized at Lahore in September last, and will be read with more than usual interest by all who love the missionary cause.

It is a very long time since I have been able to write anything to the Board. My stereotype excuse is my head; it is not strong enough to stand all the work that devolves on me. Mr. Forman's absence, too, for near four months, left an additional amount of duty requiring my attention. He will of course give you a full account of his work; of the very wide and effectual door of usefulness which has been opened to us, and of the means we are adopting to enable us to enter and occupy. During his absence, we have had much here to encourage us. We have had some cheering evidences of the presence of the Spirit among us, and some have been added to the church. Of the latter, one is the wife of Iwayat Masíh, whom I married and baptized about a year ago. She had been a prostitute, and they were at the time of his conversion, living in adultery; now they are our most encouraging and useful native Christians. Are not these truly miracles of grace? On the 21st of September last, we, with many doubts and fears, organized a little church of eight members. The little band has now increased to fifteen, of whom seven are actively engaged, as their principal business, in publishing the gospel, and this does not include either of the missionaries. Two have been sent to Ráwal Pindí; one is about going to Gáyánwála; two are engaged teaching a female school, and two are Scripture readers. One of the latter has the ministry in view. Besides, there are some other candidates for admission to the church, whom we hope to receive before long, and also some inquirers, of a hopeful character. We have rich and sweet encouragement, but we are feeble, and sore broken. We greatly need more helpers; and in despair of getting them from home, we are trying to secure the services of qualified Europeans here. This we are enabled to do, by the very liberal support we are receiving from the authorities here, both privately and official.

Mrs. Morrison has commenced a girls' school in the city. She commenced it in February, but at first could get no scholars. When we explained our wishes to the principal Maulaví in our school, he at once offered us a room in his house, and volunteered to aid in getting it up. This offer we accepted, expecting to pay him rent for his house, but he refuses positively all compensation; and still he and his wife exert themselves constantly, doing all they can to get scholars, and make the school popular and useful. He seems to be thoroughly convinced of the falsehood of Islam, and of the truth of Christianity, and earnestly desires that his wife may be taught the truth as it is in Jesus. His youngest son is a scholar in our English school, where very few long retain any real respect for their own religion. The Maulaví, with this son, and several of his scholars, attend our Sabbath services in Hindustani, and we hope his is exerting a decidedly good influence in the school. His wife is learning to read, and takes more interest in the prosperity of the school than many Christians. After having said this, I feel that I have not done her justice; for many professing Christians take so little interest in such operations, that to compare them with her, is as great injustice to her as disgrace to them. For her, and her husband, and children, as well as for this school, we need the earnest prayers of God's people. And have we not special encouragement to pray for those who take so much interest in the work of the Lord? If those who give a cup of cold water to a disciple, because he belongs to Christ, will certainly be rewarded, how much more when they exert themselves to help on the cause of Christ, and refuse any pecuniary recompense, and even spend of their own to help on the work; how much more, too, are we encouraged to pray that God would reward them with spiritual and eternal riches. In this school, Mrs. Morrison is aided also by the wife of Iwayat Masíh, (already mentioned,) whom she has taught to read, and who manifests more zeal in the service of Christ than I have seen in any native female in this country. She is a woman, too, of very superior mind, and learns very rapidly. May the Lord send us help soon, and bless our efforts to raise up labourers here, and to enlist in our work those who are mentally qualified for usefulness.

FURRUKHABAD MISSION.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REV. J. F. ULLMAN.

High-School at Furrukhabad.

I am glad to say, that our High-School, as well as the different branch or Bazar schools, of which I have three under my charge, are in a prosperous condition. As it is my firm conviction that the vernacular, and not the English, is the proper means of instructing natives, I have raised the vernacular department of the High-School considerably, without injuring, however, the English department; so that natives may give more and more up that mistaken idea, that in order to receive an education, they must first learn the English language. The number of the boys there at present are 270. I would have a larger number, if I did not give to religious instruction the first place, for many bigoted Mohammedans or Hindùs would send their children, if we would say nothing of Christ and Christianity. Yet we gain more and more influence over the people; partly by our teaching in schools, and partly by preaching. The latter, preaching, is not carried on so regularly as it ought to be, for since Mr. Seeley's departure in November, 1853, I had to take charge of the school, which naturally occupies much of my time. Yet it is carried on to some extent, and what I myself cannot do, our Catechist, Hanukh, and our two Readers, John Houston, and Robert Breckinridge, do.

The importance of a Female School in Furrukhabad.

There is one thing which I would bring once more to your notice. In the city of Furrukhabad, with its 80,000 inhabitants, there is no girls' school whatever. I have reason to believe, that if I had the proper means for it, I would succeed in establishing one in the very centre of the city. All the female children in this place grow up in ignorance and superstition, and a school for them, conducted by a female, would be the means of doing them a great deal of good. For $10 a month, I could keep up one with twenty children, and for $15, one with forty. Is there not a wealthy Christian friend, who, from the abundance the Lord has granted him, would give something, at least, for this purpose, or perhaps support it entirely? I do not want it at once, for I am not yet sure of success, having mountains of difficulties before me; but what I wish is merely the promise, that, if I should succeed in the effort, the monthly support would be sent. If I have this, I shall go to work at once, and try to establish a girls' school in Furrukhabad. Mrs. Ullman would take the superintendence of it. The school might be called after its supporter, or by any name selected for it, and I promise in return, to send an annual report of it regularly. There is another reason why I should like to have such a school. My wife, who at present has only very little opportunity of benefitting her sex in India, would then have a sphere of usefulness, which would make her happy. You see, it is a kind of selfishness, but at any rate, not a sinful one.

AGRA MISSION.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REV. E. WILLIAMS, MAY 2D, 1854.

After mentioning that the population of the North-western provinces had recently been ascertained to be about 30,000,000, that of the city of Agra at 150,000, that the telegraphic communication between Calcutta and Agra had been completed, he gives the following interesting account of a public controversy between the advocates of Christianity and Mohammedanism in Agra. An important object is gained for the cause of truth, when the advocates of error can be drawn into public debate. This the defenders of Mohammedanism would not have done in India a few years ago. But the people are becoming more enlightened, and they are more willing now than formerly to have the foundations of their religious systems thoroughly tried.

The most interesting event in connection with the cause of missions in Agra, has been a public debate of some of the points in controversy between Mohammedans and Christians, in which the Rev. Messrs. Pfauder and French, of the Church Missionary Society, and Maalvi Rahmat Allah of Delhi, and Wazeer Khan, a sub-assistant surgeon of this place, were the disputants. Mr. Pfauder, you probably know, has acquired great distinction in the Mohammedan controversy, having written several books in support of Christianity, which have obtained a wide circulation among Musulmans, in this country, and in Persia. These books have given rise to much discussion among them, and have called forth several answers. Not long ago, this Delhi Maalvi, Rahmat Allah, published an extended treatise in reply to Mr. Pfauder's Mizár ul Hagg, and three weeks since, he came to Agra, and challenged the same missionary to an oral discussion of the subjects of Islam and Christianity. The debate continued two days, two hours each day, and was largely attended by Mohammedans. I think there were three hundred of them present, including the highest native prop at the station, and all the munshis and native lawyers of standing. Several distinguished Englishmen were present; among whom I noticed Sir Henry Lawrence. I had drawn a pretty full account of the debate to send you, but Mr. Pfauder's report will be published in the English Missionary Journal, and you will see it. On the second day, the Maalvi and his friend chose to persist in asserting that a book which contains so many various readings as the New Testament contains, according to the admissions of its friends, must be very corrupt, and ought not to be quoted as an authority, with regard to the character and doctrines of Christ; that it is not the book which Mohammed mentioned respectfully in the Koran. It was thought useless to keep up the discussion longer. The Mohammedans claim a triumph, which they would doubtless have done, whatever might have been the course of the debate. It is here thought a very encouraging indication, that they are willing to debate in a friendly way. Wazeer Khan is a graduate of the English Medical School in Calcutta, and is well acquainted with our language. He had a frightful array of English books on his table, during the discussion; among others, Milner's End of Controversy, Ward's Variations of the Protestant Bible, &c.—books furnished him by Dr. Carli, Roman Catholic Bishop of Agra and Thibet—a curious fact.

But I must bring this long letter to a close. Mr. Scott is at Madras, and we do not look for him before the cold weather. It is a great pity that he could not have come on to Agra sooner. We need him much here.

SIAM: BANGKOK MISSION.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REV. S. MATTOON, MAY 8TH, 1854.

Discouragement in relation to a reinforcement of missionaries.

Since we last wrote, we have received Mr. W. Lowrie's letter of January 2d, which cheered our hearts by its sympathy, although he could give us no encouragement as to a speedy reinforcement. The call for labourers for every portion of both the Home and Foreign field is so great, that it certainly calls for earnest prayer, in reference to this want. We have just heard of the death of Mr. Porter of the Lodiana mission, and the return of Mr. Seeley to the United States, and the return of Mr. Wight of China. These, and other causes, will greatly weaken the missionary force at those important points, and we are constrained to feel, that though our wants are great, that in India, at least, their wants are more urgent and immediate. I hope that they may be greatly strengthened the present year, and that there may still be some for Siam.

There is no change in our circumstances or work, to be noticed at this time. Dr. House has been threatened with a return of fever, but is better again, and we hope that the danger is past. We have had considerable sickness among the pupils of the school —chiefly fevers—but the lives of all have been graciously spared, and nearly all are now able to attend to their regular duties. They have the waywardness of youth, associated with some of the vices so prevalent in a heathen land, but, upon the whole, are doing as well as we could expect. Mrs. Mattoon still visits the king's palace twice a week when able, and spends the most of the time in imparting religious truth. * * *

Arrival of Mormon missionaries.

One of the Mormon missionaries from Utah has arrived in Siam, and commenced his labours. What success he will find, remains to be seen. One or two others are, I believe, on their way to join him. Thus errorists compass sea and land to make one proselyte; manifesting a zeal worthy of the truth, and which ought to put to shame those who hold the truth as revealed in the word of God.

Cemetery for Protestants.

You ask for more details respecting our burial grounds, which I will give you, as far as I am able. During the first years of the residence of Protestant missionaries in Siam, the Europeans, for want of a better place, asked and gained permission to bury their dead in the grounds of the Portuguese Consulate; but the place was in every way an inappropriate one, being necessarily very near the consular residence, and the permission was withdrawn, a short time previous to our arrival in the country. Since that time, by the kindness of the Baptist mission, we have been permitted to use a small garden belonging to the Chinese church members. But this place, being private property, and small, was inconveniently located, not being easily accessible from the river. Europeans were not permitted to purchase and hold real estate, so that we could not procure a suitable place by purchase. The subject was frequently brought to the notice of the government, but without success, until the accession of the present king, when it was brought to his notice by the governor of Singapore. After many months' delay, the place mentioned in my previous letter was procured, and formally made over to the European residents as a Protestant burying ground. It was designated Protestant, because Romanists had long had places consecrated to the burial of their dead. The theory in this country is, that the king is the only landholder, and the custom, when he wishes land for temples, or other purposes, is to pay from the treasury the estimated value of the building, but nothing for the soil. In this case, however, the king paid from the Royal Treasury 800 ticals for the land, and then presented it to the European residents. The lot lies on the left bank of the river, about two miles below the town, and is about 160 feet broad on the river, and runs back about 750 feet, giving a river frontage, and sufficient depth to avoid the danger of the graves being injured by the washing away of the river's bank. We have raised sufficient money to defray the expense of laying a walk through the grounds, and to erect a small Sala, or Zayat, for shelter in case of rain at the time of a funeral. The grounds are now exposed to animals, &c., and much need to be enclosed by a wall; and indeed we were informed, at the time they were made over to us, that it was expected we would so enclose them, and otherwise improve them, so as to make them resemble cemeteries in America, and among European nations. The expense of a wall I should estimate at six or eight hundred dollars. Had we the means, it would be well, too, to have a small chapel, for the convenience of religious services in connection with the burial of our dead, though this last has not been agitated among us as yet, not having the means to build the wall even, which seemed more urgently needed. A small, plain chapel might be erected for perhaps four or five hundred dollars. I fear there may be difficulty in getting anything from government, from the fact that it is not national—not American, but Protestant—designed for all Europeans. It certainly would be no more than right that governments should interest themselves in reference to this subject, as those who occupy these grounds are often transient visitors, sailors, and others, from different European nations; often those from our national ships of war. Since our residence in Siam, more of this class have died than of any other class of foreigners. Two marines were buried here, during the visit of the last English Embassy. At the same time, little can be expected from this class, towards the expense of such grounds. If our government could do anything for this object, it would very much gratify the few Americans residing here.

CHINA: CANTON MISSION.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM DR. KERR.

In the good providence of God, 160 days brought us to Hong-Kong. Came to this place on Monday. Had a pleasant passage, and good health. Have seen but little of the mission yet, but enough to know that much has been done, and there is enough for us to do. We are much pleased with our associates; they are active and devoted. We have commenced the study of Chinese, and hope to make some progress, with the facilities we possess. Our opportunities are, doubtless, the very best. We found the friends here in good health, except Mrs. Happer, who is somewhat debilitated. She will go to Macao during the warm season, and we remain in her house during her absence. Mr. Preston has given you the particulars of our voyage and arrival, and it only remains for me to present my warmest regards to yourself and associates, and your families, and ask a special interest in your prayers. Mrs. Kerr wishes to be remembered to each one of you and your families.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REV. C. F. PRESTON.

Our good ship "Horatio," after a long passage of over 160 days, landed us safely at Hong-Kong last Friday evening. The Rev. Mr. Johnson came aboard very soon after dropping the anchor, and invited the missionaries to his house. His good lady was in very feeble health, so that on the next day we felt quite happy to accept an invitation from the Right Rev. G. Smith, Bishop of Victoria, to repair to St. Paul's College, until arrangements could be made to go to Canton. After spending a quiet and pleasant Sabbath, we succeeded in making all the necessary preparations early on Monday morning, to take passage on the regular steamer to Canton. We met with a hearty welcome from the many missionaries residing at this seat of superstition. Dr. Kerr and wife are at present with Dr. Happer, and I with Mr. French. No definite arrangements for the future are yet determined. The account of the voyage may be given in a few words. There were no events of especial interest. There was an extraordinary uniformity of good feeling, in all the intercourse of the passengers with each other and with the Captain. The time, I trust, was profitably spent in preparation for the great work upon which we are entering. The opportunities for calm reflection and quiet study, were of unspeakable value. I myself spent the most of my time in the study of the original Scriptures. We did not take up the Chinese, because there were a great many other subjects to which we could turn our attention to better advantage. In regard to the religious exercises, they were not entirely satisfactory to me. The weather was unfavourable much of the time, yet had the matter been in my hands, I should have had preaching many more times. We had prayers in the cabin every evening; preaching upon the Sabbath, not more than half a dozen times. In addition to this, Dr. Kerr and myself had quite an interesting Bible-

Class, consisting of the inmates of the forecastle. I explained to them the first three chapters of Mark. They always treated us with the profoundest respect, and gave strict attention. They even expressed in strong terms their gratitude for our attentions. Farther than this, we were not able to trace any good effects. Very little labour was performed, but God may bless that little to the instruction and conversion of some soul. I have not as yet formed any definite idea of the state of things, either in our mission, or in China. I will write to you again, after I emerge from the whirl of novel and strange impressions. What I feel most deeply now is a sense of utter desolation and weakness, without divine aid.

CHINA: NINGPO MISSION.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MRS. WAY.

The following letter from Mrs. Way, giving an account of her voyage, and safe arrival at Hong-Kong, will be read with interest, especially by a large circle of friends.

CANTON, May 16th, 1854.

After a long, and somewhat tedious voyage, the Ellen Foster brought us safely into port on the 6th instant. We set out in a gale, which continued with no abatement for seven successive days; after this we had prosperous sailing, till in the region of the Cape, where we were subject to frequent gales and baffling winds. Passing into the tropics again, we had almost constant calms, during which time the heat was scarcely supportable; but we have been mercifully brought through it all, and I trust that it was with grateful and thankful hearts that we set our feet again upon land.

I could not have had more pleasant and agreeable companions for such a long journey, than I found in Mr. and Mrs. Lord, and Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton; the latter couple, particularly, are lovely people, and lovely Christians; they were also exceedingly fond of children, and assisted me in many ways, in the care of my little charge. On our arrival at Hong-Kong, Mr. Johnson, of the Baptist Board, kindly took us all to his house, but as they were crowded there, and Mrs. Johnson in feeble health, I left them on Monday the 8th for Canton, under Dr. Parker's protection. Here I am spending a delightful visit with Dr. and Mrs. Happer, Mr. and Mrs. French, and have felt refreshed by seeing and hearing of their prosperity and encouragement in their work among this heathen people. Mrs. Happer appears a truly devoted missionary, and well qualified for her work; she is very happy in her little school of nine girls, and seems to have gained the confidence and respect of a large number of native females. The Horatio came into Hong-Kong on Friday the 12th, having had a voyage of nearly three weeks longer than ours. The chances of a long voyage to any ships sailing for China in November or December, are so certain, that I really wonder why it is so often attempted, while, by waiting a little later, winds and seasons are so much more favourable. Our new friends arrived in Canton yesterday, glad to get to their destination. Dr. and Mrs. Kerr are at Dr. Happer's, and Mr. Preston with Mr. French.

Mr. Way is waiting in Shanghai for me. He says affairs are quiet there just now. The rebels still hold the city. There had been some hard fighting there between the foreigners and the imperialists. Amoy has been retaken by the latter. My expectation is to leave this on the 18th, and embark the next day in the steamer for Shanghai. Captain Scudder of course took upon himself all the trouble of procuring our passage up. * * *

It is a sad thought to me that dear Mrs. Coulter is no more to be associated with us. We shall feel her loss greatly in Ningpo. Mr. Wight is also a great loss to the Shanghai mission.

CHINA: SHANGHAI MISSION.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REV. M. S. CULBERTSON.

Shanghai, May 4th, 1854.—We have reason to be deeply grateful that we are still permitted to live in security, in the midst of the disorders around us. Since the unhappy difficulty with foreigners, the imperial troops have kept very quiet. That severe lesson has no doubt increased our safety. The outrageous attack upon foreigners walking in the outskirts of the community—more general than I at first supposed—revealed a state of feeling on their part which might well alarm us for our safety. Decisive measures were obviously demanded, and the course taken may have been the wisest, though I cannot but regret that another day had not been allowed them to remove from their camps. Captain Pearson, of the ship Rose Standish, who was wounded, died on the 15th ultimo. His wife has gone home in the ship Jacob Bell, and is a pious woman, and a member of the Presbyterian church in Newburyport, Massachusetts. I preached on the Rose Standish one Sabbath, and her crew, of their own accord, handed me $5.00 as a donation.

* * * * *

Before this can reach you, you will have heard the news from Japan. Three ports are to be opened to commerce. I presume the provisions of the treaty are such that missionaries will not be excluded. I trust the gospel will soon find an entrance there. The hand of God, in the opening of this country, is too manifest to allow us to hesitate as to the duty of the Church to enter in with the message of salvation.

The insurgents seem to have met with some check in the North, but we know but little as to the extent of their reverses. They have, however, withdrawn some sixty miles further from Peking than they were before. In Ngan-Hway, they seem to have assumed the entire government of a large part, if not the whole, of the province.

The rebels still hold possession of Shanghai. It is reported, however, that their money is quite exhausted, and it seems probable they will be compelled ere long to yield. * * *

The letters from Ningpo herewith, will no doubt give you the particulars of an affray between the Portuguese sailors and Cantonese. The former murdered a Canton man, and the latter were bent on revenge. They had their cannon pointed at a lorcha lying near Mr. Rankin's house. The display of an American flag prevented their firing. Next day a fight took place, in which one Portuguese was killed. We have no apprehensions for the safety of the brethren there at present, and hope all will continue quiet.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

Extract of a letter from Rev. J. L. MACKEY, of the 7th of June, in relation to the affairs of that mission, and of the intended visit of himself and Mrs. Mackey to this country.

I presume, before the date of this sheet, Mr. and Mrs. Williams have reached New York, and you have heard of our loss by fire, and the consequent interruption of our missionary work. When they sailed, Mrs. Clemens was lying, extremely ill. To our great joy and comfort, the Lord has again raised her up. Two weeks ago, she was so well as to be able to walk out, and we expect soon to have her brought back to Corisco. Mrs. Mackey was with her a few weeks at Gaboon, brother Clemens having returned to take the supervision of the new building we are erecting. She is there now, with our friends of the Gaboon mission. If an opportunity occurs soon, she will come up in a vessel, if not, we expect to bring her in our boat. The rest of us here are all in our ordinary health at present. I have not been very well, and we have concluded that Mrs. Mackey and I return on a visit to America in the "Gem," which is expected to sail from this part of the coast for New York in July, or early in August. It was Mrs. Mackey's strong desire to stay behind, and endeavour to continue the girls' school, but we concluded that it would not be prudent for her to do so, on account of the precarious state of her health at times.

Had the affairs of our mission gone on uninterruptedly, we would not have thought it proper, merely on account of the present state of our health, to have suspended our labours to return to America; but it is probable we would, in the course of another year or less, have been compelled to give up and go, and the prospect is, that we would then do so at greater detriment to our mission than if we would go now. And, moreover, we are in much need of having printing done. I expect to take my interpreter along, and have this done while in America. Our fire robbed us of a vocabulary, containing several thousand words, which I had collected with much labour; besides translations, and different pieces I had written, and catechisms. I am hard at work trying to reproduce some of these now before we leave. I suppose this letter will not reach you much before the arrival of the "Gem," and on that account, even if I had time and strength, I need not write you any detailed account of the present state of our affairs. Brother McQueen has prepared an account of our various meetings and palavers with the people after the fire, and our preparations for rebuilding. We purchased sufficient boards from Captain Swan of the "Rodney Cass," to weatherboard a frame house, which we have in course of erection now. We are still living in one of the houses of our village, and which belongs to one of our people. In a month from the present time, the new house will be ready, we hope, for occupancy, if we meet with no detention or reverse. We are furnished with twelve or fourteen men daily, by the different head-men, who work for us at carrying and hewing logs gratis. They told us if we would build another mission house, they would build it themselves. Mr. McQueen expects shortly to resume his school, but we will not be able, for the present, to start the girls' school. I hope to consult with you on many matters regarding the prosecution of our work here, and its enlargement, when I see you. May we all be guided by wisdom from on high, in all we undertake, and in all we do.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOURNAL OF THE WIFE OF A MISSIONARY IN THE INTERIOR OF AFRICA.

[Continued from page 161.]

Our house, when we have built it, will be delightfully away from natives, so that I think if the whole town were in a blaze, we should not fear for ours. But these fires are not usual in Ibadan: there is a law, if the person who has been the means of producing such a calamity is found out, all he possesses is to be taken from him, and he put in prison; and this, not because it was felonious, but accidental. This seems cruel, but the result has been, that not a fire has happened here in five years; while in Abbeokuta they have them to a fearful extent—five or six times in a year. They are shockingly careless there about them.

May 26.—I have had many visitors this week, particularly women. Their tenderness over me is touching: if they see me hot, they will fan me; if I look tired, they want me to lie down. I have had much talk with them, through my little maid Susanna: they do indeed receive us with joy and gladness, and we have many regular attendants on Sunday. They are quite beginning to understand that it is a holy day with us; and I feel sure some are trying to give up Sunday occupation. One woman, who is very fond of me, was missing last Sunday: she came on Monday, and with tears in her eyes told me, "Too much work live in her house on Sunday: her hands were too full, and she could not get them out." I was just talking to some new visitors about Sunday: she sat down, and told them of all she had seen and heard, and begged them to come also. They promised, and left; when I lay down in my hammock, in the back piazza, very tired. The above-mentioned woman, on her way home, met four of her friends, and came back with them. They found me out in my resting-place. After talking a little with them, I rather wished them to go, when my old friend said she wished me not to speak another word, but rest; yet if they might sit down quietly, and look at me, they should like it. I mention this, to show their kind and respectful, and really polite way of speaking, and to describe their tender and affectionate feeling toward me, which must be seen to be fully known.

It has been a lovely, cool day, as it rained nearly all night, and for hours in the morning. The sun has not peeped out once, so that about three o'clock we went out, Mr. Kefer too, all on horseback. The town is built on a very steep and high hill: we wanted to get to the top, to see the extent of the town, and a wonderful sight it is—myriads of houses on every side. A queer and rugged pathway we had often to travel; but I have no fear now, with my good little horse. I used to be frightened to go up or down the hill at G——, near Mr. F——'s house, but I think I should smile at it now. We went also through different parts of the town, to various markets: they are a pretty sight, with their native productions, &c. But oh, the noise! We were surrounded all the way by hundreds, with open eyes and mouth. Some made music—music after their fashion—and sang, and shouted. Many who had visited us at our house were prepared with an extra welcome. Kolas were given me, and I might have had many things. We stayed a minute at one spot of ground, where my husband told us a sad story. A cruel chief once lived in a house we saw. One of his wives having committed a trifling offence, the rest of his wives were called out—at least many of them—and had to stand in a circle: he then cut off the offender's head, and made them all drink of her blood. My hand trembles as I write of such cruelty; but I could tell you of far more barbarous acts. We went to the son's house: the cruel father is dead. The son is not so bad. My husband pointed out a spot where an immense ditch had been dug, and kept open for dead bodies killed in this way. This cruel man was head chief—a perfect tyrant: no one could conquer him. His house was fortified. His own death was awful, like that of Herod, and more horrors than we have recorded in Scripture of Herod. But now the blessed gospel has entered this barbarous place, and what may it not effect? O God, send out thy light and thy truth! Good night, dear friends. I have written myself nervous, and yet this is only one thing among many.

May 29.—Another Sabbath has reached its close, and I like to write a few words, and think my dear friends will see them soon. We have had nice services: many people, and very attentive; and several having come for several Sundays, bringing new ones with them, is very encouraging. My husband has been talking this morning on the Pharisee and Publican; this afternoon on "Ye are bought with a price." We have now a nice little day-school. Some having come very regularly, I gave them blue shirts yesterday, and it was a pretty sight, this morning, to be greeted by nine blue boys. I have also now four children given me; but as our house is small, and they like to go home at the end of the day, we let them do so; but they are here early enough in the morning—a little boy and girl of Olumloyo's; a boy whose father has been quite an enemy of ours, but has come round to believe it is all right we say and do; and a little boy without parents, the brother of our schoolmaster: though he is so young, he has been nicely taught by his brother, and is quite a help in the school. Many more than I can take are ready and hoping to come to me when I get a "big house." I only wish you could take a peep at my little group. Two of the boys are really handsome: the youngest, Olumloyo's boy, wishes to be treated as the youngest, and likes to sit on my lap; and now and then he throws his little arms round my neck, and says all sorts of things I cannot understand. But there is the loving look of a simple-minded and affectionate child, and he calls me his iya (mother.)

I am sorry to say poor Mr. Kefer is in bed with a sharp attack of fever. We could not have our usual Sunday evening singing. Oh! this delightful rainy season! I do like it so much: the treat of feeling cool, and not being in a perspiration, is great indeed. Susanna is sitting by me, learning part of a hymn; the boys outside reading; and my poor husband lying on the bed, quite exhausted with his day's work. I must go and give him some quinine, for I am afraid he has a little fever. We have thought and talked of many of our dear friends this day. Oh, that a rich blessing may have been with us all—a Sabbath blessing! I may have a sigh now and then for a corner in St. Peter's—

——Oh! that my life were spent
In doing only all Thy righteous will;
That I might walk, on holiness intent
And every hour delight to love Thee still.

June 8—Nothing written since Sunday week, and now I must begin in good earnest. Last week I had to nurse both my dear husband and Mr. Kefer: they were quite ill with fever. I cannot say how thankful I am to be so well—tired enough I am by night: my children, and housekeeping, and visitors, keep me going all day. I almost fear for writing—drawing seems out of the question. However, as I get more and more used to it, I shall more cleverly manage my time. We know children are a great care and trouble at home, and can imagine that they would be rather more so in this country, having been under no control, and coming now into such a different life. Washing every morning, for instance, is passing strange to them—once or twice a week is the outside of what they think necessary: and why we want them ever to be quiet and silent is equally strange. They are beginning to comprehend that they must be at family prayers: nothing composes them so much as music. We always sing a hymn, with the harmonium, at prayers, with which they are delighted. But though decidedly a care, and no slight trouble, I would not for anything be without them: they will lose their wildness in time, and they are so affectionate! One child, whose name is Atrielle, the son of a great warrior, has a very high spirit, but a most loving heart. He often comes and throws his little arms round me—"My mother thou art!" but he is extremely passionate too. The other day he was beating a boy bigger than himself tremendously: I interfered, and he lifted up his hand at me: then I had to punish him. He only said he would go home. I said, "Very well, Atrielle, go: good bye for ever!" He burst into tears. "O no! O no! I will never leave my iya," and was quite inconsolable till received into favour. They are all happy enough, and are a real pleasure to us, and often rouse us a little, if we are inclined to be flat or weary. My needle, &c., comes into constant requisition; for if strings, buttons, &c., are not needing it, a ball bursts. I really think you would call me notable. I have two or three baskets under the sofa; one to contain playthings, another, pieces of rag, print, and bits of paper: one child wants to sew, another to cut paper, &c. We have erected a large shed, and covered it with palm leaves, as a temporary church, till we can get a new one. In it we have a day-school, and services on Sunday. It was very full both times last Sunday. The people sit on the ground, and are very attentive, on the whole, at least quiet. Sometimes they ask questions in the middle of the discourse, and appear much interested. Another time, if you ask them what they have heard, "they don't know, they did not hear."

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN AUGUST, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Albany—Ballston ch 31 33

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw ch, of which 5 for Corisco Mission 21. Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie 1st ch Sab sch to ed L Merrill Miller 25. Pby of Buffalo City—Black Rock ch mo con 12 58 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Florida ch mo con 11; Monroe ch 10 50. Pby of North River—Wappinger's Falls ch mo con coll's 19, Sab sch 3. Pby of Bedford—Croton Falls ch mo con 9 50. Pby of Long Island—Sag Harbor ch 65; Huntington ch, of which 45 20 mo con coll's 86 36. Pby of New York—Forty-second street ch mo con 13; Wallabout ch mo con 5 48; Madison Av ch mo con 20; Eighty-fourth street ch mo con 5; Nyack ch 8 05; New York 1st ch mo con 43 05, Mrs Andrew Reid 23 87; Williamsburg ch mo con July and August 46; Yorkville ch mo con 6 70, Sab sch to ed Mary Briant and John B Pinney 7 382 51

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Elizabethport ch ann coll 25. Pby of Passaic—Paterson 1st ch mo con colls 64; Newark 3d ch mo con 27 76, Sab sch, of which 6 33 to ed A Alexander at Spencer 14. Pby of New Brunswick—Bound Brook ch mo con 10; A friend for Siam 100, for India 100; New Brunswick, N J, Rev Dr Cogswell 25; Kingston ch, of which 5 from Sab sch 35; Titusville ch 20. Pby of West Jersey—Bridgeton 1st ch six mo's con colls 136; Cedarville ch 11; Cape May 1st ch 13 50; Woodbury ch 57. Pby of Newton—Musconetcong Valley ch 20. Pby of Susquehanna—Orwell ch 15. Pby of Luzerne—Kingston ch mo con 5; Summit Hill ch, for sup Rev R Lowrie 11 19, Sab sch 3 81 693 26

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Arch street ch, T V King 100; Crookville ch Sab sch to ed Margaret B Stedman in Canton 15. Pby of Donegal—Chestnut Level ch, Ladies benev soc 12. Pby of Baltimore—Bridge street ch Georgetown 65 58. Pby of Carlisle—Bedford ch 32 12. Pby of Huntingdon—Lewistown Pa, Samuel J Milliken 55 cents; Curwinsville ch 20. Pby of Northumberland—Lewisburg ch Sab sch 2 62 247 87

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Summit ch 16; Ebensburg ch 17. Pby of Redstone—Mount Pleasant ch 42 37. Pby of Ohio—Pittsburgh 2d ch, W W Wilson 52 84; Miller's Run ch 15 10 143 31

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—JOSEPH DONAGHY, to con self 1 m 30. Pby of New Lisbon—Salineville, Ohio, Miss LETTY WATSON, to con herself 1 m 50 80 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Hocking—Rutland ch, Cyrus Higley 14 40

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati 1st ch, four mo's con colls 24 66. Pby of Sidney—Piqua 1st ch 41 65 66

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison—Hanover ch mo con 4 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport—Lexington ch, to con Rev J W MCCLUSKEY 1 m 30 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Kaskaskia—Carlyle ch 8. Pby of Peoria—Peoria ch, two ladies to ed J C Smith 30; Canton ch 5; Salem ch 5. Pby of Rock River—Galena South ch juv soc to ed Hempstead Ripley 25. Pby of Chicago—Rockford 1st ch 8 50, Sab sch for sup of girls' school at Canton 1 50 83 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—West Point ch 4 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of Upper Missouri—Prairie ch 13 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch mo con 18 45. Pby of Ebenezer—Richwood ch 12 30 45

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Winchester—Mrs Susan C Balch 1; Charlestown ch 40 41 00

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Fayetteville—Philadelphus ch 7 75; Tirza ch 12; Buffalo ch 20 45; Rock Fish ch 4 71; Carthage ch, Rev Wm Hogshead 25; China Grove ch 9; Rock Fish Factory ch 4 36; Galatia ch 7 50; Ash Pole ch 19 10; St Paul's ch 25; Smyrna ch 18; Lumber Bridge ch 12 40; Antioch ch 12 10; Bethel ch 18 75; Centre ch 10 50; Wilmington ch, coloured members to aid in building church in Liberia for Uncle Simon Harrison 41 247 62

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.—Pby of Holston—Leesburg ch 40; Kincaid ch 4 44 00

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Pby of Florida—Monticello ch Sab sch to ed Hamilton Milliken 25 00

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.—Pby of Tuscaloosa—Gainesville ch 220. Pby of East Alabama—Montgomery ch Sab sch for sup of scholarship at Allahabad 25 245 00

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Louisiana—Prytanea street ch New Orleans, mo con 39 95; Carmel ch, missionary box at Parsonage 5 44 95

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Synodical collection 29 50. Pby of Chickasaw—Oxford ch fem benev soc, of which 25 to ed girl at Corisco, and 25 to restore mission buildings at Corisco 50 79 50

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.—Pby of Ouachita—El Dorado ch, D W Colmery 5. Pby of Indian—Boggy Depot ch 14 20 19 20

SYNOD OF THE PACIFIC.—Pby of Oregon—Clatsop ch 5 50.

Total from churches, $2,632 56

SEMINARIES AND COLLEGES.—Erskine College, S C, missionary soc for Shanghai Mission 30 00

LEGACIES.——, N C, Legacy of Wm Bonney, Sen, deceased 30 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—Chas McAuley, New York 20; Museum box 4 25; "I will," for translation of Jones' Catechism in China 2; Crew of "Rose Standish" at Shanghai 5; A friend for Mission in Siam 2; A lady for Corisco Mission 100; "———," for mission to the Chinese in California 5000; A friend 50; Friend to Foreign Missions 5; "D," Ashwood, Tenn 2 50; J H Rumpsfelt, New Orleans, for African mission 10 5200 75

Total receipts in August, $7,893 31

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—Amount previously contributed $9788 73
Lebanon ch Ind, Rev Jos Platte 10 00 9798 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS IN CLOTHING, &C.—Ladies of Steubenville 1st ch Ohio, one box clothing for Otoe and Omaha mission 60; Ladies of Chelsea ch N Y, one box clothing; Ladies of Scotchtown ch N Y, one box clothing for Spencer Academy 43 62; Ladies of Neshaminy ch Pa, one box clothing for Wa-pa-nucka school.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. B. M. Smith, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M.D. Treasurer.

☞ As frequent inquiries are made on this subject, we give the terms on which the Board of Publication ordinarily employs Colporteurs.

Wages $150 per annum. Equipage $50. All reasonable travelling expenses, together with charges for freight and postage, are defrayed by the Board.

READING FOR THE PEOPLE.

Let us be understood in the outset, that by "people" we do not designate a class, such as those to whom the term is often employed in aristocratical communities. We mean simply that large part of our population, constituting its bulk, who have not enjoyed the benefits of a liberal professional education, and whose tastes are, therefore, not necessarily literary. Merchants, farmers, tradesmen, mechanics, and labourers, and their wives and children, comprising some of the best specimens of integrity, honour, and uprightness, and who, by good strong sense, form the conservative element in our body politic, are the "people" we mean. And for such we must have reading which is adapted to their wants. In secular matters, various efforts have been made to present the great facts of science, the history and biography, the travels and romances, of excellent writers, with such peculiarities of style, or such embellishments of art, that the attention of persons not fond of reading may be attracted and fixed. And this is well. By books and pamphlets, and especially the periodical press, our people are well supplied with the most valuable, and often best selected, portions of useful knowledge.

Now the Church has also a duty to perform; and it is for this great purpose our Board was established. In its prosecution thus far, we have assurances that we enjoy, to a very gratifying degree, not only the confidence of our own branch of the Church, but that also of large numbers of the Christian community outside our pale. We believe this confidence can be retained, without involving any compromise of principle on our part. The kind of books demanded by the necessities of the religious reading community, are such as the bulk of our publications for adults offer. The following extract from the last report of the Board, is to the purpose.

"With the constantly increasing facilities for circulating our publications, we desire greatly to increase the number and variety of those on practical subjects, setting forth the duties and privileges of Christian life, and the admonitions and guides to the wayward and erring, which so greatly aid pastoral efforts to train God's sons and daughters for heaven, awaken the careless, warn the impenitent, and lead inquiring souls to Christ. We desire that the publications of the Church shall be a fair exposition of the teachings of her pulpits. We do not lose sight of the importance of supplying works on the doctrines and order of our Church, both for the instruction of our own people, and for removing the prejudices of ignorance, and correcting the misrepresentations of designing error. But we think it equally desirable all may be led to feel, that however much we seek to train men to be Presbyterians, in principle as well as profession, we equally desire to teach them to be Christians, intelligent in faith, and consistent in life. It is not only proper, but it is a most solemn duty resting on all conscientiously receiving our system of faith and order, to extend the knowledge of our principles, as the knowledge of what we believe God has taught. But our Church must do this, under higher, nobler motives, than the narrow-minded desire to propagate the peculiarities of a poor, petty party, in the contests of sectarianism. Calvinism, as a system, never comes so well prepared to carry conviction to the heart, as well as to the intellect, as when mingled, as the Bible mingles its propositions, with the great facts and doctrines of a common Christianity. Never does it appear so divinely authenticated, as when its consistency, as a scheme of doctrine, with the assured teachings of experimental religion, is unfolded to the mind: when all its soul-humbling, pride-subduing declarations are discovered to be in harmony with the awakening, convincing, and converting truths of the Divine Word, sealed by the power of the Divine Spirit. There is no Calvinism like the Calvinism of the cross. The great bulk of the soundest theology, the most discriminating exposition of Scripture, and especially the practical divinity, the theology for the fireside and the closet, which the world possesses, have been the contribution of Calvinistic minds and hearts. We owe it to the world, as the largest branch of the Presbyterian family; we owe it to the affiliated Churches, which hold so much in common with us, differing far less than agreeing; we owe it to ourselves, in justice to our principles, our history, and our hopes: above all, we owe it to our common Christianity, and the cause of a common King and Saviour, to reproduce and multiply books, which, eviscerated of Calvinism, lose half their power for permanent influence on man, to circulate to every corner of our land the truth, which waked a world from the stupor of a superstition centuries old, to imbue every mind accessible to our agency, with the knowledge of "the whole counsel of God." Thus shall we fulfil the design of those who founded this Institution; that for which it is more than ever needed; that in which it stands forth before the world, at once the exponent and representation of our Church and of the Bible, and that which forms the characteristic element of its constitution, when finally organized by the Assembly, to publish "approved works in support of the great principles of the Reformation," and "such, permanent and periodical, as are adapted to promote sound learning, and true religion."

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

We are not in the habit of presenting long extracts from our cotemporaries. But the importance of the topic presented in the following, which we take from the Southern Presbyterian, and the ability with which it is written, justify the expectation that our readers, who do not otherwise see it, will thank us, rather than ask any apology. We consider the article too good to be abridged by extracts. If all our weeklies would take similar ground, much would be done towards infusing into the public mind a better tone of sentiment on the important matter presented.

"We can scarcely conceive of a more responsible office than that of preparing books for children. Their credulity naturally leads them to believe whatever wears the semblance of plausibility, whilst, through the limited range of their knowledge, and their inexperience, they are unable to discriminate between truth and error. Their hearts, susceptible of every kind of impression, are even more tenacious—for this is human nature in its present state—of the bad than of the good.

"Books are written for others, which the authors themselves must know are evil in their tendencies. Such works are sought for and read because they are corrupt and corrupting. They are published because this, their character, will render them popular, and the authors will acquire fame, and the publishers and venders make money. But can the writer be found, or the publisher, so unscrupulous and cruel as to take advantage of the simplicity and trustfulness of children, by circulating among them books calculated to corrupt their moral sentiments, and prematurely plunge them into vice and ruin?

"We believe that few books are published for children with the design of doing them injury, either because the enormity of the crime appals wicked writers and unprincipled publishers, or because God exercises a special providence to prevent the poisoning of human society at its very springs. But whilst the design of the book may not be evil, its tendencies may be anything else than healthful to mind or morals. Of such works, we fear, there are many in circulation among the young.

"First, we may mention those which seek to teach a morality that is not founded on religion, nor pervaded by its spirit. Every attempt of this kind, whether made on behalf of the young or the old, we hold to be essentially infidel. It can only originate in the feeling that the sanctions of religion are not necessary to enforce the practice of our moral duties, and its tendency, so far as it may be successful, is to disparage and supersede the specific claims of the gospel. If children are instructed, or otherwise induced to believe, that they may be good, virtuous, and happy, without repentance for their sins and 'new hearts,' the work of God's Spirit, they no more than others will be inclined to seek Christ in the way the gospel requires all to do. On this ground the writings of Miss Edgeworth, once so popular, have been justly complained of. The author's motives seem always good, and her sentiments are rarely in the slightest degree objectionable; but religion in any shape that deserves the name, considered as a necessary element in the formation of a perfect character, or in the fulfilment of the duties of life, is left almost wholly out of view.

"Again, there is a class of books for children which are distinctively religious in their aim, but are constructed on the avowed plan of omitting all reference to some of the leading doctrines of the gospel, whilst other doctrines that are not excluded, are so diluted as to lose well nigh all their strength. This is done on the principle, as it is said, that 'milk,' not strong 'meat,' is the proper food for 'babes.' We admit the correctness of the principle. What we object to is, that the 'milk' itself is diluted. We wish our children to have pure milk—'the pure milk of the Word.'

"Further, the extent to which fiction is used in the preparation of religious books for children, is a great evil in our day. We are not unmindful that it is difficult to engage the attention of children to the contents of a book without the aid of a narrative, and we would not exclude all such as are purely fictitious. Better, indeed, that they be altogether fictitious or altogether real, and not, as may frequently be found, an incongruous or a deceptive mingling of both elements. And yet all must allow, that care should be exercised, that the use of fiction as a vehicle for conveying truth, be not so abused, that the interest of the mere story turns the mind from the instruction it is designed to impart. Any person who has kept pace in his observations with the character of the books issued of late years for children, can scarcely have failed to perceive, that the narrative has been growing more and more prominent, the story or plot more intricate, the descriptions more highly wrought, the whole scheme of the works verging more and more closely on the region of the romance, and partaking more largely of the spirit of the drama. This remark, we regret to say, applies to many of the books which are found in our Sunday-School libraries. The competition between the different publishing societies, naturally leads each one to seek to make its works popular, and books of this kind will be popular; they will be read—this is the evil of it—read to the neglect of a better class of works. The more 'story' there is in them, and the less 'dull instruction,' the more eagerly are they sought after, as every parent and Sabbath-school librarian well knows. It was a book of this type in regard to which a little girl nine years old remarked to us, one Sabbath afternoon, 'Why, here is a book I got this morning out of the Sunday-school library, and I have read it all through, and there isn't a speck of religion in it.' We doubt not the child was right. The case was even worse than that of a 'religious novel' which we read, upon a special recommendation, when a boy. The religion was carefully separated from the story, and put into chapters by itself, so that we found little trouble in passing over it, and no interruption to the continuous flow of the narrative. We have since seen many books for the 'Sunday reading' of children, in which all the religion was parenthetical.

"We shall not here speak of the influence of such works on the mind, nor inquire how far their perusal tends to excite and aggravate the appetite for works of fiction generally—that source of so many and so fearful evils in our country. It were a sad thing, if the very means we employ to instruct and interest our children in religion, should prepare the way for the entrance of a more frightful calamity than ignorance itself."

"Little care is ordinarily used in the selection of books to be put into the hands of children. For the most part they are presented as rewards for good conduct, or as presents on birth-days or other special occasions, and the parent or friend hastily looks around upon the crowded shelves of the bookstore, and takes such as, upon running the eye over the title page and illustrations, give a promise of pleasing the little ones for whom they are intended. They are good, indifferent, or bad, as it happens in each case.

"We have been led into this strain of remark by having placed in our hands a package of volumes recently issued by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, and a notice of which appears in another column. The more we see of the works published by the Board for the young, the more we are persuaded that its Editor and the Publishing Committee are impressed with a conviction of the responsibility resting upon them, and that they discharge their delicate trust with much discrimination and wisdom. They have allowed fiction to be used very sparingly, and it is always employed in such a way as to render it a vehicle for conveying sound instruction, which—the instruction, not the fiction, the gem, not the casket—is sought to be made the chief attraction of the book. If the Board shall adhere rigidly to the principles which have governed their selection hitherto, they will, in a few years more of prosperity in their work, furnish the Church with as many books as may be needed for the Sabbath-school, or private use, and all of a character worthy of the source from which they proceed, and safe and suitable for the class for whom they are intended. It is a matter of sincere gratitude, that there is a check to the evils resulting from the want of caution in selecting books for the young, in the wisdom and faithfulness of the men who are appointed to watch over the issues of this great fountain of religious knowledge to the Church. We trust they will never be seduced by the desire to render their books more popular, nor be driven by the stress of the competition which they may encounter, to recede from their high position of sending out no work, for young or old, which shall not be strictly and decidedly religious in sentiment, structure, and tendency."

CALVIN'S COMMENTARIES IN FRENCH.

It was announced some time ago, that through the liberality of a benevolent friend, means had been furnished the Board of Publication for publishing in French, Calvin's Commentary on the New Testament, for the use of Protestants in France and Switzerland. It is a remarkable and lamentable fact, that Calvin, the prince of commentators, is almost unknown to the religious public, and but little known even to the ministers and students, in his native and adopted countries. We have now the satisfaction to state, that the first volume of the work is actually published, and the second far advanced. It will consist of four volumes, royal octavo, of between 700 and 800 pages each. The Board have imported a few copies of the first volume, which will be sold at actual cost. The first volume costs $2.25. It is hoped that the succeeding volumes can be imported for $2.00, and perhaps $1.75. The last volume is to contain a glossary of obsolete words.

We give a specimen of the work: Matt. ix. 6.

Ha authorité en tèrre. Ceste puissance est bien autre que celle qui a esté donnée aux Apostres, et laquelle exercent aujourd'huy les Pasteurs de l'Eglise. Car en publiant la commission dont ils sont chargez, ils ne pardonnent pas les péchez, à proprement parler, mais plustost ils tesmoignent que les péchez sont pardonnez. Mais Christ par ces paroles ne se dit pas seulement ministre et tesmoin de ceste grâce, mais aussi autheur. Mais que veut dire ceste restriction et exception En terre? Car que nous proufitera-il d'avoir yci obtenu pardon, si cela n'est ratifié au ciel? Certes Christ a voulu dire, afin qu'il ne faille aller chercher bien loin la rémission des péchez, qu'en sa personne elle a esté présentée aux hommes, et comme mise en la main. Car sèlon que nous avons une inclination naturelle à desfiance, nous n'osons jamais nous asseurer que Dieu nous vueille estre propice, sinon que s'approchant bien près il se déclare familièrement à nous. Or pource que Christ est descendu en terre afin d'offrir en présence la grâce de Dieu aux hommes, il est dit qu'il pardonne les péchez visiblement: pource qu'en luy et par luy la volonté de Dieu a esté manifestée, laquelle auparavant estoit cachée par-dessus les nues selon le sens de la chair.

BOARD OF COLPORTAGE OF THE SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

We find in the "Presbyterian Banner" of September 9, the following notice of a most important part of Christian enterprise connected with our general operations. We cordially approve of the complimentary terms in which this Synod and its active and efficient services are represented by the Banner. And we trust the example, thus held up before our whole church, will be speedily imitated, and more than equalled in the results of similar efforts by other Presbyteries and Synods.

The Synod of Pittsburgh has always been distinguished for its firm adherence to the doctrines and order of the Presbyterian Church, and its willingness to engage in every good work having for its object the good of man, the promotion of true religion, and the glory of God. Hence a deep interest has been felt in the success of the Board of Publication ever since its establishment. Pastors and elders recognized the need of the sound doctrinal, experimental and historical works proposed to be published by the Board, and much pains was taken to secure their circulation among the people. But the want of some central place where all the publications might be obtained, and of some regularly constituted agency under the control of the church for their regular and systematic distribution, was felt to be a great want. Accordingly, as the Records show, the Synod, in the year 1847, established a Board of Colportage for the purpose of obtaining and keeping on hand, at the depository in the city of Pittsburgh, a full supply of the publications of the parent Board, and also for the prosecution of a vigorous system of colportage. Thus far the expectations of the friends of the enterprise—notwithstanding the difficulties encountered from various sources—have been more than realized.

During the second year, 1848, a contribution of $613 was received, and 6,725 volumes were distributed. In 1851 the contribution was $931, and the distribution 8,300 vols. In the sixth year, 1852, the contribution was $1,276, and the distribution 26,792. In 1852 the clear capital stock was $774, in 1853 it amounted to $2,950,87. The whole number of volumes distributed since the origin of the Board up to the last meeting of Synod has not been less than 80,000, together with a very large number of the tracts published by authority of our church.

During the year 1853 there was a large increase; 27,734 volumes were distributed principally within the bounds of the Synod of Pittsburgh and the Presbytery of New Lisbon. For that year the agency employed in distribution were the depository and the voluntary labours of 135 elders and others. This latter agency was suggested and set in operation by the devoted and lamented McCombs; and its complete success renders it worthy the consideration of Sessions, Presbyteries and Synods, that would disseminate the wholesome and scriptural literature of our church among their people.

The Synod in 1852 recommended the raising of a permanent business fund amounting to at least $5,000, from the different Presbyteries. A good part of this sum has been already paid in, and it is to be hoped that the remainder will soon be raised, that the usefulness of this Board may be still farther extended. Great good has already been accomplished by this instrumentality, and we sincerely trust that the two Synods into which the old Synod has been divided, will, in accordance with the recommendation of the General Assembly, unite harmoniously and energetically in sustaining and encouraging this institution through which so much may be done for the instruction and confirmation of the members of the church we love, and for the salvation of perishing men. We know that many of the brethren in that region will rejoice at the reduction—small as it may seem—in the price of many of the works intended for general circulation, and that they are anxious for an issue of cheap editions of many of the standard works of the Board so soon as the circumstances of the Board will permit. If all the Synods in our ecclesiastical connection would adopt something like the method pursued by the Synod of Pittsburgh, there is great reason to believe that much would be done to strengthen the faith of God's children, to make known the real doctrines we profess, to bring sinners to repentance, and to diffuse a healthful religious sentiment throughout the land.

PRESBYTERIAN ALMANAC FOR 1855.

We have now ready for orders a full supply of our Almanac, which we think will be found even more worthy of public favour than any of its predecessors. Besides a more convenient arrangement of the Calendar, we have presented some new and most valuable statistics, of both temporary and permanent value. All our families ought to have this Almanac, whatever other they procure. It gives, in a very succinct manner, a general view of our Church, and all its noble institutions, and supplies an agreeable variety of other matter, fully as useful as can be found in the same space elsewhere.

A HYMN TRACT.

Just published by the Board, price 5 cents,

DEVOTIONAL POETRY, OR HYMNS FOR THE CLOSET AND THE SOCIAL MEETING. Selected from the Psalms and Hymns approved by the General Assembly.

This tract contains 142 pieces of religious poetry, 20 of which are from the old version of the Psalms. It will be found especially useful in new settlements.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF AUGUST, 1854.

Presbytery of Londonderry.

Newbury 1st ch, Rev A G Vermilye, pastor 30, to con Deacon JOSEPH MORSS 30, to con Mr RUFUS SMITH 30, to con Mrs ELIZABETH CUSHING 30, to con Miss SARAH CALDWELL hon mems, and collections in the congregation 10—per James Caldwell $120 00

Presbytery of Albany.

Northampton ch, per Rev D Lyon, through B Miss 2 00

Presbytery of Connecticut.

Thompsonville ch, per Rev Dr Jos Harvey 7 00

Presbytery of New Brunswick.

First ch Newton, per Rev John Hall, D D 50; Titusville ch, per Rev J B Davis 10 60 00

Presbytery of Carlisle.

"A Young Lady" of Bedford ch, per Rev T K Davis 1 41

Presbytery of Richland.

Fredericktown ch addl to con Mrs FARIS hon mem, per Mr Wm Rankin Jr 2 00

Presbytery of Peoria.

New Washington ch, per Mr A Davidson 6 00

Presbytery of Rock River.

Andover ch, per Mr A Davidson 7 00

Presbytery of Fayetteville.

Antioch ch 2 65; Philadelphus ch 2 50—per J Martine 5 15

Presbytery of Nashville.

Shiloh ch, per Mr A Davidson 14 00

Presbytery of Tuscumbia.

Florence ch 30 to con Rev WM H MITCHELL hon mem, 30 to con ROBERT M PATTON hon mem, collection in the congregation 13—per W H Arnell, colporteur 73 00

Presbytery of Harmony.

Sumterville ch, from the "Ladies," to con their pastor, Rev D MCQUEEN, hon mem 30 00

Presbytery of Hopewell.

Clarksville ch, per R Campbell, Esq, through W Shear, Esq 3 55

Presbytery of Tuscaloosa.

Eutaw ch, Wm P Webb, per Mr Wm Rankin, Jr, Treas 5 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

From "F" of Albany, N Y, for publishing books for the Blind 2; from "two Ladies of his Bible Class," to con PAUL T JONES, Esq, hon mem 30 32 00

Total, $378 11

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

HISTORICAL NOTICES OF SYNODS AND PRESBYTERIES.

16. The Presbytery of Genesee River was formed by consolidating the Presbyteries of Steuben and Wyoming, at the stated meeting of the Synod of Buffalo, held at Bath, New York, August 16th, 1853, and held its first meeting at Warsaw, New York, September 27th, 1853.

17. The Presbytery of Logansport was constituted by the Synod of Indiana, out of parts of the Presbyteries of Crawfordsville, and Indianapolis. Held its first session in Logansport, on the first Thursday of April, 1836, at 2 o'clock, P. M. First Moderator, Rev. L. G. Bell. Presbyteries of Lake and Fort Wayne since formed out of it.

SYNODS.

3. The Synod of Northern Indiana was constituted by the General Assembly in 1843. First meeting in the city of Fort Wayne, October, 1843. Rev. John Wright, first Moderator.

Ecclesiastical Record.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. James Matthews and the Carlisle church, Kentucky, August 2d, by the Presbytery of Ebenezer.

Rev. B. M. Smith and the Staunton church, August 26th, by the Presbytery of Lexington. [This Presbyterial action was delayed, by the failure of the church to be represented at a former meeting.]

CALLS HAVE BEEN OFFERED TO

Rev. Dr. W. C. Anderson, by the church of Chillicothe, Ohio.

Rev. J. Woodbridge, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, by the church in Henderson, Kentucky.

Mr. C. W. Cooper, by the church of Pontiac, Michigan.

Rev. William Maclaren, of Franklin street church, New York, by the Pearl street church, Fall River City.

Mr. David M. James, late of the Theological Seminary, Princeton, to the church of Mount Olive, New Jersey.

Rev. A. H. Lackey, from the churches of Springfield and Mount Paran, Presbytery of Baltimore.

CALLS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED BY

Rev. J. L. Wilson, to the church of Jefferson, Indiana.

Rev. A. H. Lackey, to the churches of Springfield and Mount Paran, Presbytery of Baltimore.

Mr. O. Holmes Barnard, late of Princeton Seminary, to the First Presbyterian church in Yates, Orleans county, New York.

Rev. Luther Emerson, to the church of Shemariah, Lexington Presbytery.

Rev. W. Trimble, to the churches of Timber Ridge and Bethesda, Lexington Presbytery.

CALL DECLINED BY

Rev. Justus T. Umsted, of Keokuk, Iowa, to the North church, Philadelphia.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

July 27th, Rev. Charles White was ordained and installed pastor of Berryville church, Clarke county, Virginia, by the Presbytery of Winchester.

August 5th, Rev. J. D. Smith was installed pastor of Westminster church, Columbus, Ohio, by the Presbytery of Columbus.

July 23d, Rev. James B. Ramsay was installed pastor of the New Monmouth church, by the Presbytery of Lexington.

Rev. Robert H. Beattie was installed pastor of the Bethlehem church, by the Presbytery of North River, at a special meeting of that Presbytery, when the church was received under its care.

June 13th, Rev. Isaac N. Hays was installed pastor of the church of Middle Spring, by the Presbytery of Carlisle.

August 29th, Mr. James I. Smith was ordained as an Evangelist for the Copper regions of Lake Superior, by the Presbytery of Erie.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. John Rice Bowman, from Madison, Ga., to Eutaw, Ala.

Rev. T. D. King, from Montrose to Paulding, Miss.

Rev. B. F. Rawlins, from San Jose, Cal., to Towanda, Pa.

Rev. C. P. Jenning, from May's Lick, Ky., to Pleasant Ridge, Ill.

Rev. J. A. Rosseel, from Evans' Mills, N. Y., to Neenah, Wis.

Rev. M. T. Allen, from Ashville, N. C., to Fancy Hill, N. C.

Rev. C. S. Dod, from Holly Springs, Miss., to Jackson, Tenn.

Rev. S. D. Campbell, from Bainbridge, Ga., to Knox Hill, Fla.

Rev. A. H. Lackey, from Jersey Shore, Pa., to Harrisonville, Md.

Rev. J. N. Hays, from Hunterstown, Pa., to Shippensburgh, Pa.

Rev. Daniel Motzer, from Warrenton, Va., to Middlebrook, Md.

Rev. R. H. Beattie, from W. Milton to Salisbury Mills, N. Y.

Rev. B. M. Hobson, from Louisville, Ky., to Lexington, Mo.

Rev. G. W. McPhail, from Fredericksburg, Va., to Easton, Pa.

Rev. Thomas Alexander, from Bloomington, Ind., to Waco, Texas.

Rev. H. V. D. Nevius, from Dover Mills, Va., to Walnut Hill, Ky.

Rev. George C. Crowe, from Haynesville, Mo., to Prospect Hill, Mo.

Rev. Joseph Platt, from Lebanon to Vincennes, Ind.

Rev. John R. Hutchinson, from Oakland College, Miss., to Covington, La.

Rev. J. A. Clayton, from Tollsburg, Ky., to Waterford, Ala.

Rev. Jephtha Harrison, from Aberdeen, Miss., to Burlington, Iowa.

Rev. R. R. Evans, from Colliersville to Germantown, Tenn.

Rev. A. Ryors, D. D., from Madison, Ind., to Danville, Ky.

Rev. W. S. Plumer, D. D., from Baltimore, Md., to Alleghany City, Pa.

Rev. James Purviance, from Natchez to Oakland College, Miss.

Rev. C. J. Jones, from St. Louis, Mo., to New York City.

Rev. J. Woodbridge, from Baton Rouge, La., to Henderson, Ky.

Rev. J. B. Condit, from Walnut Hills, Ohio, to Elizabethtown, N. J.

DEATHS.

August 30th, Rev. Joel Huntington departed this life, at the residence of his brother, Rev. Dr. Huntington of Albany.

August 16th, Rev. Jesse W. Hume, recently pastor of Tallahassee church, Florida, at the residence of his mother-in-law, Mrs. E. B. Weakley, of Rutherford county, Tennessee.

August 14th, Rev. A. W. Boyd, of Allegheny Presbytery, near Tarentum, Allegheny county, Pennsylvania.

Recently, Rev. Frederick S. Ernst, Pastor of the church of Buhler's Plains, Louisiana.

September 6th, near Pittsburgh, the Rev. Robert Patterson, in the 82d year of his age.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. J. A. McClung declines the Presidency of South Hanover College.

Rev. James Purviance has accepted the Presidency of Oakland College, and Rev. Messrs. Doremus, Adams, and Moore, the Professorships to which they were severally elected.

Rev. Wm. E. Schenck has been elected Corresponding Secretary and General Agent of the Presbyterian Board of Publication.

Varieties.

THE NESTORIANS.—The Puritan Recorder states that the American missionaries have full liberty to preach to all the Nestorian churches in the Oroomiah district. The churches have been divested of their pictures, crosses, &c.; and all the objectionable portions of their liturgy, such as prayers of intercession to the Virgin, saints, &c., have been marked out, and are omitted in their devotions.

BIBLE COLPORTAGE IN TURKEY.—The British and Foreign Bible Society are sending Bibles and Testaments by thousands to Constantinople, in the various languages spoken by the belligerents. Among these are thousands of Testaments in the Russian, for the use of Russian soldiers, if they should be brought there as captives. Colporteurs are already diligently employed, and others are on their way to engage in the work.

OUT-DOOR PREACHING.—We understand that the Rev. Dr. Hanna, son-in-law of Dr. Chalmers, and his biographer, has recently preached twice at Hurlford to large audiences in the open air. The Bishop of Salisbury has inaugurated his Episcopate by preaching in the open air to a body of railway labourers.

ALTERATIONS IN THE PRAYER-BOOK.—There has been laid before the House of Commons a copy of the alterations proposed in the Book of Common Prayer by the bishops and others appointed by the Crown to revise the book in 1689. The alterations suggested by the Commissioners were no less than 598 in number. Many, though decidedly improvements, and quite unobjectionable, were merely of a verbal nature. One of the most notable of the changes proposed, was to add (on the great festivals) after the Ten Commandments a recital of the eight beatitudes, with a suitable response from the people. So far as the alterations suggested affected doctrine, the key to them will be found in the desire to conciliate objectors, and prevent the spread of dissent. The word "priest" was to be altered to "minister;" the Apocrypha was to be disused; those who scrupled kneeling at the sacrament were to be allowed to receive it in a pew in some posture of reverence; in baptism the sign of the cross was not to be made if the parties thought it sinful; the parents might upon occasion be the sponsers, and the words, "by baptism regenerate," were displaced by the single word "regenerate."—London Times.

FUND FOR SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS AND THEIR FAMILIES.

The following amounts have been received, since last report, viz:

From 2d church at Steubenville,	$15 00
" a Friend, through Rev. R. Happersett,	50 00
" church of Port Byron,	8 00
" 1st church at Freehold, N. J.	11 34
" Roswell church,	17 00
	$101 34

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treas. Trustees Gen. Assembly.

PHILADELPHIA, August 22d, 1854.

☞ Our subscribers who are in arrears are respectfully requested to send on their subscriptions, by mail or otherwise, before the close of the year.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Suggestions to Presbyteries and Churches, p. 166. Progress, p. 166. Good Fruits, p. 166. An Incident, p. 167. A Papist mistaking a Mass-Book for the Bible, p. 167. Oregon, p. 167. Prayer-Meetings and Revivals, p. 168. Revival, p. 168. Receipts, p. 168.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education: Encouraging Prospects, p. 169. Ministerial Skill, p. 169. Dr. Carey's Early Struggles, p. 169. School Teaching by Candidates for the Ministry, p. 170. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges: Quarterly Reports—Need of Funds, p. 170. Makemie College, Arkansas, p. 170. Effects of Bad Teaching, p. 170. Colleges and Theological Seminaries in the United States, p. 170. Practical Sermons, p. 170. The Springing of Buried Seed, p. 170. Parental Teaching, p. 171. Dillworth's Spelling-Book and the Catechism, p. 171. Another Warning to Protestant Parents, p. 171. Receipts, p. 171.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 172. The Presbyterian Church and Foreign Missions, p. 172. Choctaw Mission, p. 173. India: Lodiana Mission; Journal of the Rev. J. M. Jamieson, p. 173. Letter from the Rev. J. H. Morrison, p. 174. Furrukhabad Mission: Extract of a Letter from Rev. J. F. Ullman, p. 174. Agra Mission: Extract of a Letter from Rev. E. Williams, p. 175. Siam: Bankok Mission: Extract of a Letter from Rev. S. Mattoon, p. 175. China: Canton Mission: Extract of Letter from Dr. Kerr, p. 175. Extract of Letter from Rev. C. F. Preston, p. 175. Ningpo Mission: Extract of Letter from Mrs. Way, p. 176. Shanghai Mission: Extract of Letter from Rev. M. S. Culbertson, p. 176. Africa: Corisco Mission: Extract of Letter from Rev. J. L. Mackey, p. 176. Miscellaneous: Journal of the Wife of a Missionary in the Interior of Africa, p. 176. Receipts, p. 177.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Reading for the People, p. 178. Books for Children, p. 178. Calvin's Commentaries, in French, p. 179. Board of Colportage of the Synod of Pittsburgh, p. 179. Presbyterian Almanac, p. 179. A Hymn Tract, p. 179. Receipts, p. 179.

MISCELLANEOUS.—God's Special Providence, p. 165. At the Door, p. 165. Historical Notices of Presbyteries and Synods, p. 180. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 180. Varieties, p. 180.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME V. No. 11. | PHILADELPHIA, NOVEMBER, 1854. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

Now is the time to make efforts for increasing the circulation of the Record. Our subscribers are now 16,500. There are perhaps 150,000 families in our Church. Thus about one-ninth of these families only, are supplied with the Record. We know of a church of 300 members where not one copy of the Record is taken, except by the pastor. A little effort would put this matter right. Until our people know more of what is doing, they will not try to do more of what ought to be done. Unless the lists of new subscribers are sent in before the middle of December, there will be difficulty in supplying demands for the January number, which will be then put to press.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

THE SHINING PATH.

"The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."—PROV. iv. 18.

These are not only the words of the wisest man the world ever saw, but such as were given by inspiration of God.

The path. This is a figurative expression, and means a course of conduct, the Christian life. By the word just is not meant what the world so often embraces under it, a mere outward appearance of uprightness: but it is equivalent to the word as used by Paul when he says, "the just shall live by faith."

Taking it in this sense, we do not understand it to mean those who are wrapped up in the mantel of their own self-righteousness, who think they have sufficient strength within themselves to do all that God requires of them. On the contrary, we believe the inspired writer means by it those who have been redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, and who stand accepted on account of his righteousness imputed to them.

The path of the just shines. Christians are lights. Jesus said to his disciples, "Ye are the light of the world." Not that they are such by nature, for they have been called out "of darkness into his (God's) marvellous light." The light they possess is borrowed from Christ, the "Sun of Righteousness," the source of all light, both natural and spiritual; who said of himself, "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Again, they reflect this light. It is just as impossible for a person to be a true disciple of Christ, a child of God, and conceal the fact from the world, as it is for any natural luminary to shine upon it, without conveying to the eye of the beholder the rays of light.

The path of the just shines more and more. There are two reasons for this.

First, because the very nature of religion in the soul is progressive. It is compared to a grain of mustard seed, "which is the least of all seeds; but when it is grown, it becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof." It is like the all-pervading leaven, that ceaseth not to work until the whole lump is affected. It is like the growth of corn, in the progress of which we see first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear. Here it is compared to the influx of morning light, of which, at first, but a few feeble rays are visible above the horizon, but which increase both in number and strength, as the king of day rises majestically to his zenith.

Secondly, it shines more and more, because, as the natural sun shines upon the world, and chases away darkness and the morning mists, and imparts warmth, life, and vigour to the animal and vegetable part of creation, so Christ, the Sun of Righteousness, sends his illuminating, life-giving, and soul-cheering rays of spiritual light to the minds of his people, and chases away their mental and moral darkness, warms their affections, and enables them to run with alacrity the path of his commandments. Solomon's doctrine is not such as the world, and even Christians teach in our day. They would have us to believe that a man may be in the path of the just, born again, in the narrow way that leadeth to life, and after all go to perdition. They would have us to believe that the light of life placed in the soul by the hand of Omnipotence, may be extinguished by the first puff that comes from the unwholesome atmosphere of this world.

But Solomon is not inconsistent with the other inspired writers. David says, "They go from strength to strength, every one of them in Zion appeareth before God." Job says, "The righteous shall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands shall renew his strength." Paul is "confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in me, will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." John speaks the language of the Saviour, and says, "I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand."

It is true, however, that this increase of light, this Christian progress, is in proportion to the use of means. Where they are neglected, the graces languish, the heart grows cold, zeal abates, and the path is no longer like the shining light. Indeed, it often seems to be darkness. It would become such, if it were not for the love of Christ.

But this path shines not merely to Christians themselves. It may appear to them to be very dim. But as they use diligently the appointed means, and imitate Christ, their pattern, they grow in his image. Just as they seek the light of life, do they become the more emphatically the children of light, and the more conspicuous as such to the world. The world will take knowledge of them that they have been with Christ, and learned of him. Their vicious or immoral life will be reproved; they will be constrained to acknowledge that there is reality in the religion of Jesus, and God will be glorified.

But if we would have our path, like that of the just, to shine to ourselves and the world around us, we must study prayerfully the word of God, be attentive to prayer and meditation, as well as to the ministrations and ordinances of God's house. Let not the Christian who neglects these, expect to make progress in the divine life. As reasonably might he expect to live and increase in health and strength, while he neglects to eat the food which God has given for the preservation and growth of the body. Assimilation to the image of Christ is in proportion to the use of means, as before stated. "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened to you." "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me."

G. K. M.

From the New York Observer—Abridged.

HINTS TO A YOUNG MINISTER.

1. Be well acquainted with your own heart.

2. Prayer—prayer—prayer—the first, second, and third elements of the Christian life, should open, prolong, and conclude each day.

3. If the word of Christ dwell richly in you, that wealth will be respected by your people, and they will be enriched by it. Let them but see the gems of Scripture set gracefully in your discourses, and they will love them the more.

4. Read the Scriptures twice on the Sabbath in public, and each chapter three times in private; baptize it with prayer. Study emphasis, tone, spirit. Let the first be correct, the second natural, and the last congenial. If a passage be obscure, explain it, but let the explanation be concise, clear, and satisfactory. If something striking can be adduced in few words, give the audience the benefit of it, for it comes fresh from the living oracles.

5. Let your psalms and hymns be previously selected, carefully read in private, and their very spirit incorporated with the music of your soul while communing with God.

6. If misconduct call for rebuke, let it be in tenderness. Irritability in the pulpit is like the bearded thistle to the beauteous flower.

7. Visit your people—so many a day. Three visits a day for six days amount to 936 a year. When abroad, visit all in one neighbourhood.

8. Listen to no idle tales; seek not for men's opinions of yourself; but study to show yourself approved of God. Meddle not with matters out of your sphere. Abjure criticisms on persons. Some things that pain you must be let alone; for you can do no good by taking hold of them. You might as well take hold of a dog's ears.

9. Urbanity to all is a jewel. A kind word will work wonders, and it is easily bestowed. Call the children by their names. To the gentle sex be gentle, and you will win your way to their souls.

SENEX.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

RECEIPTS AND PAYMENTS OF THE BOARD.

Mission Rooms,
Philadelphia, Oct. 19, 1854.

For the information of the churches, we publish the following comparative semi-annual statement of the receipts and payments of the Board:

The receipts from April 1st, 1853, to October 1st, 1853, were as follows:

Office in Philadelphia,	$17,476 52
" " Louisville,	5,123 91
" " Pittsburgh,	2,686 59
	$25,287 02

The receipts from April 1st, 1854, to October 1st, 1854, were as follows:

Office in Philadelphia,	$17,935 42
" " Louisville,	5,169 13
" " Pittsburgh,	2,153 53
	$25,258 08

The payments from April 1st, 1853, to October 1st, 1853, were as follows:

Office in Philadelphia,	$17,747 99
" " Louisville,	7,597 69
" " Pittsburgh,	2,262 98
	$27,608 66

The payments from April 1st, 1854, to October 1st, 1854, were as follows:

Office in Philadelphia,	$24,625 15
" " Louisville,	6,747 18
" " Pittsburgh,	2,905 97
	$34,278 30

From the foregoing statement, it appears that our aggregate receipts for the last six months, as compared with the corresponding period of last year, were less by twenty-eight dollars and ninety-four cents; while our aggregate payments were more by six thousand six hundred and sixty-nine dollars and sixty-four cents.

These facts are sufficient to show, without comment, the necessity of prudence on the part of the Presbyteries in their applications for aid, and the indispensable necessity of increased contributions on the part of the churches.

G. W. Musgrave, Cor. Sec.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

CHURCH AT ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA.

As many of the readers of the Home and Foreign Record have contributed to the erection of this church, we think it due to them, through your columns, to make a statement of the success which has attended our efforts. This church was dedicated to the worship of God on the last Sabbath of August. The building is of brick, with a stone basement, with very little attempt at ornament, and is so arranged in its details as to present the most beautiful features of the Gothic style, to which it belongs; i. e., rigid economy in curtailing some of its first proposed points, seeming scarcely to have diminished the simple yet striking beauty of its appearance.

The main building has on either side four windows, in the pointed style, each fifteen feet high. The walls are surmounted by a well proportioned battlement. From each corner, angular pilasters project, to be surmounted by pinnacles, the points of which are at an elevation of 56 feet from the ground. The tower, which is in three sections, is 17 feet square at the base, and projects 10 feet without the main building; its corners are surmounted with pinnacles, 84 feet from the base. The central section has in the front a pointed window 25 feet high. Three rooms are finished in the basement, in which a parochial school is kept. These rooms are twelve feet high. There is a lecture room, not yet finished, 28 by 40 feet. The whole building, on the ground, is 45 by 75 feet; the audience room is 42½ by 62½ feet, and will seat 500 persons comfortably. The vestibule is enclosed within the tower, from which a flight of steps leads into the church, another into the basement, and a third into the gallery. The interior is finished with some ornament, and is neat and comfortable. Around the windows are sprung arched cornices of plaster paris, from the base of which they are carried out horizontally to the foot of a bracket, where it is supported by a corbiel, which is very tasteful; thence the bracket, in springing out into the ceiling, at a distance of seven feet from the wall, dies into a molding that surrounds the ceiling. Back of the pulpit are two cluster columns, between which is a slight recess, crowned by an arch; and into the brackets surmounting which on either side, the arched cornices continued from the sides of the building fall. The pulpit and gallery front are finished in a style in harmony with that of the building. The pews have a straight finish, and are capped with two members of black walnut, which contrast pleasantly with the white paint of the pulpit and ends of the seats.

The above is a very imperfect description of this church, but it may give some idea of its appearance to those who have aided in its erection. But that which will most interest our friends abroad, is the fact that we have dedicated this church free of debt. One week prior to the dedication, there was a debt upon us of ($1500,) fifteen hundred dollars. I called a meeting of the friends of the church, and stated to them that I was unwilling that we should enter our church for the worship of God, with a debt of 1500 dollars upon us, drawing interest at the rate of two per cent. per month, and proposed to pay one-tenth of this debt myself, if they would raise the other nine-tenths. A paper was started, and the amount subscribed in a short time. Although I have to borrow the money ($150) to pay my proportion, I rejoice in the privilege, and feel abundantly rewarded in the reflection that this our only church in Minnesota, is not only the best house of worship in the Territory, but there is no debt to embarrass it in the future.

We would here record our thanks to the God of Zion, who has enabled us in so short a time to accomplish so much and so well for this infant congregation. We heartily thank all those who have aided us in this enterprise, and pray that God may reward them. About four thousand dollars have been raised for this building abroad, and an equal amount has been raised here in St. Paul. It is not yet three years since we were sent here by the Board of Domestic Missions. One of our first objects was to erect a house of worship, and we have kept that steadily in view; the Lord has prospered our efforts, and our house is now finished, so far as we intend to finish it at present. It has cost over 8000 dollars, all of which is paid. The church is still small in its membership, numbering but 20. With God's blessing, we look now for a more rapid growth, and hope that this church may soon be able not only to sustain itself, but to pay back into the Board of Domestic Missions what we are now receiving at their hands.

It was thought by some that we undertook too much when we laid the foundation of our church, and some good friends advised us to put up a small building that would be less expensive. We have now no doubt but that our course was the proper one for us, and will be found to be so for all who are similarly situated. We have had less difficulty, I think, in obtaining means for the erection of this church, than we would have had in erecting one at less than half the cost. It was advised in the last General Assembly, to let people in the West build for themselves log churches, and remain in them until able to erect more costly ones. Although this advice came from a wise man, it is not good for the West. There was a time when such a course answered for the South-West, but that time is past. If it is good policy to build log houses for churches in western towns, I have only to say that such towns must be remote from navigable streams and rail roads. If the Presbyterian Church is to have a place among other churches in this New England of the West, she must take hold of Church Extension.

J. G. Riheldaffer.

A SUCCESSFUL MISSION.

July 17th, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Dear Sir—Nine months have passed since the date of my commission. During that time we have had a dedication, an organization, and an installation. It has been suggested, that probably a brief statement of our rise and progress would serve to encourage others. The first step, previous to any more public movement, was to appoint a neighbourhood prayer-meeting, which still continues to be held on the evening of every Sabbath, alternately at one of two or three private houses. This soon became very numerously attended, sometimes by as many as ninety or a hundred persons. These occasions often, particularly last winter, were remarkably solemn; and I am thankful to record that one young lady, a missionary's daughter, who has since joined this church on profession, considers that her full determination to serve the Lord was formed at such a meeting.

Our second step was to open a Sunday-school, which, with a corps of good teachers, and an ample library, has constantly attracted from fifty to seventy scholars, most of whom did not before attend elsewhere. Having been recently called to officiate at the funeral of a little child whose parents are French Roman Catholics, I was assured by them both that their intention is to worship hereafter with us. I have twice examined and addressed the children publicly, when they acquitted themselves well.

Almost simultaneously with the establishment of a Sunday-school, I threw open also my own doors for public worship, there being no hall or other building which could be engaged for the purpose, where for six months I preached the gospel once each Lord's day, to all who were willing to come and hear it. My auditors gradually increased in number, and the word was always listened to with marked attention. Having thus laboured until the meeting of our Presbytery in October last, I was then, at their request, made your missionary.

Two months later our new church was dedicated. It is "a beautiful structure," 30 by 69 feet in dimensions, exclusive of the tower and projections; tastefully frescoed, having a good bell, and occupying, in part, four city lots, where, with ordinary diligence and the divine blessing, it must acquire strength. As yet we are not self-sustaining, but begin at once to contribute, as you perceive from the enclosed. Our whole collection is $104. (The remainder will be forthcoming, should it not be handed over before this is sent.) About $7000 in all have been paid towards our own enterprise since its commencement, with the aid of some benevolent individuals in the city, of which amount considerably more than one-half is from those who hitherto had not been specially interested in our branch of the Presbyterian Church. Probably the Old-school body have never had an entirely new church added to their number at so little cost to themselves. Yet our position is fairly understood, and the letting of fifty pews within a week after the dedication, shows the movement to be popular.

I have just formed a Bible class, composed chiefly of young ladies, which promises to be very useful. Let me tell you of a poor woman from the North of Ireland, whose husband is a Roman Catholic and a deaf mute. She had not been in a church for twenty-one years, but now regularly attends ours. The first time she did nothing but weep. "It reminded her," she said, "so much of home." An English couple lately arrived here with a sick child, which died the next day. Being in great destitution, they and their dead were provided for. Both are now habitual attendants upon my ministry. The husband has become a diligent reader of his Bible, and his wife is rejoicing in hope. She expects to unite with us at our next communion. I cannot but feel, therefore, that this is a right undertaking, and that the Board have wisely resolved to sustain it. By the blessing of God, we have been able to accomplish something already for the cause of Christ and human salvation, although it is not yet five months that we have existed ecclesiastically, and notwithstanding I was led hither unwittingly at first. The past deserves to be reviewed with gratitude to the Infinite Source of all true prosperity, while the present and the future join to inspire a hopeful confidence in him. It is certainly a matter of rejoicing to see the public mind and the Church herself awakening in some degree to the great subject of extending Zion's borders, and planting in new places the standard of the gospel. Our work, however, is not done, when a house of worship has been completed, and the Christian ordinances purely established. It still remains for us to pray and labour in faith, looking above for the "increase." For

"If God succeeds not, all the cost
And pains to build the house are lost;
If God the city will not keep,
The wakeful guards as well may sleep."

Yours most truly, J. S. D.

DR. SPRING'S SERMON.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

My Dear Brother—Some kind friend sent me Dr. Spring's sermon, preached on the subject of Home Missions before our last General Assembly. That friend, whether the Doctor himself, or you yourself, or any other friend, has my humble and sincere thanks.

I received this treasure last week. Treasure I call it, for it is certainly, in my judgment at least, worth its weight, a thousand times told, of unalloyed gold, especially when considered in view of the grand subject it contemplates. "Paul's Argument for Home Missions," as the discourse is styled, is a tall performance from a tall man!

When I received it last week, I glanced over it hastily. It attracted me at once. I resolved to read it, every word, to my congregation on the ensuing Sabbath, should the assembly in attendance be large, and if not large, then to give notice that "Dr. Spring's preaching should (D. V.) be heard on Sabbath following."

The congregation was large, and respectable in appearance, and yesterday, for the first sermon, I read the discourse, every word of it, to the audience. Their attention appeared lively, and seemed rivetted all the time. Several expressed their gratification at the close of the benediction.

As to the sermon itself, it is one blaze of truth from beginning to end. It is clear, pure, simple, argumentative, irresistible! Like Luther's preaching, its words are "piercing thunderbolts."

The discourse closes with the amor patriæ, and with that true and dignified patriotism which is heaven descended, and in its character free from man worship, and the slavish adulations of political demagogues. My judgment is, that if this discourse was read in every congregation in our whole Zion, the result would be, as to funds, at least 25 per cent. advanced in the course of one year to the Board of Missions, whose correspondence you control.

For twenty years in this favoured land, I have preached, as occasion offered, the same, the very same doctrines on home missions, but, alas! in a very inferior manner. But I did as I could. The idea that the foreign field should have the first claim on the missionary benevolence of America, always appeared absurd to me. Foreign missions are the ecclesiastical colonization scheme of the Church. The home government must sustain its colonies. The home government must be competent to this, or must abandon its colonies. Its competency rests in the amplitude of its means at home. If foreign missions are to be vigorously sustained, the home department must be kept in healthful energy, always advancing; the latter must be the purse to draw from, when the former calls out Da pecuniam. Every newly organized church at home is an auxiliary to the strength which sustains foreign operations. The same principle is acted upon in commerce, in trade, in war, in national finances, and in territorial accessions. There must be sound capital at the fountain of affairs, or bankruptcy must ensue.

Onward! onward! my worthy brother, with the home missionary cause. Dr. Spring's sermon has made me like "a roe or a young hart on the mountains of Bether!" If it be the Lord's will, I wish the Doctor's sight may never grow dim, nor his hand tremble, nor his energy fail, until he arrives at the age of Moses! Deut. xxxiv. 7.

Truly yours in the blessed gospel, N. W.

MISSIONARY TRIALS.

October 3d, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Dear Brother—Six months have passed away since you heard from me, and hence this report must cover that period of time. I have now been one year in this place. In that time, I have seen much to encourage, and also many things to discourage. During the first part of the summer, our attendance upon preaching was good, our Sabbath-school had increased from about a dozen to seventy scholars, and Providence raised us up some excellent teachers. On the 4th of July we had a celebration that interested our children very much, and that passed off very pleasantly to all concerned in the welfare of our school. Our prayer-meeting had increased in interest and in numbers. During this state of things, I thought the Lord was going to cause our little vine to grow and be fruitful. But about the middle of July, the state of things was very much changed, and continues so up to the present time. This change has been brought about by sickness and death. We have had one of the most sickly seasons that has ever been witnessed in this region. About the middle of July, the dysentery broke out amongst us in its most malignant form. For three weeks, the deaths averaged twelve a week. At first, children principally were taken, but after some time, all ages and classes were attacked and taken. The infant of a few days, the blooming youth, the young man and young lady, the strong man and the aged mother, all have sickened and died. The dysentery has somewhat abated, but still, many are down yet with this disease. Since the warm weather abated, other diseases have set in. We have many cases of bilious fever, some cases of congestive, and some of typhoid fever. But the disease most prevalent of all is the ague, or "chills," as the people here call it. All these diseases have prevailed to such an extent, that we have not enough well people at times to take care of the sick. Whole households have been down at once in some instances. It is estimated that about 80 have died in the town and immediate neighbourhood, since the sickness commenced. This is a great mortality for a village containing about 1200 inhabitants. And still the sickness continues. It would be difficult indeed to find one family all well. Truly the Lord has laid his chastising hand heavily upon us. Many hearts are desolate, many hearts are sad; "a voice has been heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not."

The immediate effect of this visitation upon our little church has been desolating and discouraging. Our Sabbath-school has been almost broken up; our prayer-meeting is forsaken; and but very few are seen in the house of God on the Sabbath. So many are sick, and so many needed to attend upon the sick, that our ordinary services are very thinly attended indeed. It is the custom here to preach funeral sermons for all that die. So far as it has been in my power, I have endeavoured to conform to this custom, although, as you can easily imagine, it has given me much extra labour. On such occasions, we have generally had more to hear the gospel, and sometimes our house has been crowded with solemn and attentive audiences. I trust that at such times some good impressions have been made, and that the seed then sown will yet bear fruit. I have been here one year, and in that time I have preached twenty-four funeral sermons, besides making a number of addresses on funeral occasions, when it was not convenient to have a regular sermon. I have made it a rule, in preaching funeral sermons, to say but little about the dead—often nothing. I have preached to the living, or to those dead in trespasses and sins, and have endeavoured to present such truth as I supposed was adapted to make them alive again.

Since the sickly season commenced, I have visited the sick as much as my strength would permit, and as I supposed consistent with other duties. I trust that in this way I have done some good, but I have frequently had occasion to mourn, on leaving the houses of the sick, that so little opportunity has been afforded for imparting religious instruction. Some are opposed to religious conversation with the sick, supposing that it will only alarm them, and make their disease worse. On one occasion, I called to see an aged man, who was lying near his end, as was supposed, and began to address such words to him as I supposed adapted to his case, when I was peremptorily commanded to stop, by a friend of the sick man. "We don't want," said he, "to have his mind disturbed by such talk." The sick man and his friend were both Universalists. I thought of the inquiry once made to our Saviour, "Why art thou come to torment us before the time?"

But while I have thus at times been deprived the privilege of conversing freely with the sick, I have at other times had the way opened up by disease and death to impart spiritual instruction to persons that I could not have approached under other circumstances. I have sat down beside infidel parents—those who were avowedly such—while they mourned for departed children, and have talked freely to them of Jesus and his salvation—our need of these, and the hopes and consolations which they impart to such as believe; and I have been thanked for my visit, and invited to call again. I have entered, also, the tavern, where religion had often been the subject of ridicule, and which had often been the scene of mirth, and revelry, and profanity, and drunkenness, and I have there read God's word, made an address from these words, "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh," and prayed with the mourning and bereaved family. My experience here has taught me, that God can open up an entrance for his word and for his ministers, even in those places from which, at one time, they seemed to be entirely debarred.

To show the effect of the prevailing sickness on our congregation, I may mention, that some time ago I announced that the sacrament of the Lord's Supper would be administered there in two weeks from that time. When the time came, there were so many sick that we thought best to postpone the communion for a short time. After the weather changed, and the sickness seemed to abate some, we again announced that the ordinance of the Supper would be administered in two weeks. When the day came, we were in a worse condition than when the first day came that was announced. Our only elder was down upon a bed of sickness, and unable to attend with us, and but few others could come to the house of God. I concluded, however, that it would not be desirable to postpone the communion again, so I preached from the text, "Christ is all and in all," and I gave the symbols of the broken body and shed blood of our crucified Redeemer to sixteen of his professed people. We had no elder present to assist; our only one was absent by the dispensation of Providence; but I myself am an elder, and I took his place. I felt our little meeting to be very solemn. All, I think, could say, it is good to be here. Our circumstances made us feel our need and our dependence upon Christ; and with disease and death all around, eternity seemed to be very near.

My year's labours have closed, without seeing a single individual added to the church on examination. Over this state of things I mourn and feel humbled, and at times discouraged. But I am still trying to encourage myself in the Lord. My field is a peculiar one, and it may be some time before I see the fruit of my labour. There was but little good seed in the soil here when I came. It is mine to use the means, but I cannot convert souls. Perhaps you are ready to ask, How have you and your family fared amid abounding sickness and death? We have great reason for gratitude that we have been protected as we have, though we have not escaped disease. My family consists of myself and wife, and two children. We have all had the ague—our first introduction to this disease. I have, since I came here, frequently heard persons speak of this disease as though it were a light thing. But we did not find it such. It produces, for a time, extreme sickness, and is followed with great prostration. My chills were so ordered that I have been kept out of the pulpit only one Sabbath—the only one by sickness during the year. My wife has been the most afflicted. Her chills have been most numerous, and she has been the most debilitated. It is impossible in this region this season, to obtain help in the house. In consequence of this, I have had to go into the kitchen, and take a girl's place. I have cooked our meals, milked, churned, and dressed the butter. I have not yet gone to the wash-tub, but I do not know but I shall have to do so yet. In these things I have had a taste of missionary life. I would not murmur; if I can be of any benefit to the souls of men, I would cheerfully make the sacrifices that I am now making. I sometimes, however, fear that my wife will not have her health in this place.

I am your brother in Christ, W. E.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN NORTH CAROLINA.

July 18th, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

I herewith send you a report of my field of labour. In view of the many difficulties to be encountered, I feel grateful to the Lord of the harvest that success has crowned the labours of your humble missionary even beyond his expectations. One of our elders recently remarked that "the charge was in a better condition than it has been for twenty years."

My field is extensive and laborious. It is in the midst, not only of a "crooked and perverse" community, but also of strong sectarian prejudice against the doctrines of that "sect everywhere spoken against," and where stormy and periodical excitement is too often taken for the religion of Jesus.

In the village, soon after I came to this charge, not less than sixty were reported as joining the church at one meeting. But alas for the "fruits!" Not ten can now be found who walk with Christ. Our prospect was dark. The current was against us. We had but few members, mostly women and no elder. The only materials for an eldership removed about this time, which added greatly to our discouragement. My faith almost failed. Yet by patience and perseverance the Lord smiled on us; our cause began to brighten, our congregations to increase, our church to be more respected, and the current of public opinion to turn in our favour. Our membership has nearly doubled; we have an elder, and a more complete organization of the church, a good Bible-class, and a religious newspaper in almost every family. We have scattered extensively the books of our Board, and improved the music of our church, that noble yet much neglected part of public worship. I am grateful to the Lord for the deliverance of our church in the village from threatened oblivion, and for the pleasing prospect of future advancement.

Eight miles north is the church of B——, dilapidated by deaths and removals, and by the inroads of sister denominations, and also for want of a new house of worship, not having had one for fifty years. I am pleased to state to the Board that this church has now a new and commodious house of worship completed and paid for by the people themselves, and the usual results of better congregations, more interest in Zion, and cheering the hearts of Zion's friends have followed, besides silencing those who were ready to say, "What do these feeble Jews?" and who did say, after a few young people were carried off by excitement, "B—— church might as well shut her doors." Our membership has increased, our prospects have brightened, our doctrines are more respected, and where there was not a copy of a religious newspaper, we now have nearly twenty.

The blessing of the Lord rest on the Board of Missions in their arduous and multiplied labours, as also upon the great cause of Domestic Missions itself.

Yours truly, in the bonds of the gospel,

T. E. D.

PROGRESS.

October 9th, 1854.

Dear Sir—As another quarter's labour has closed, I hasten to inform you what the Lord is doing for us, through the instrumentality of your Board. Probably you are aware that all the churches in this vicinity are young. The first organization connected with your body was the church of ———, in 1844. About that time, Rev. Mr. ——— was commissioned to labour as a missionary in that field and the adjacent destitute places. As the fruit of that commission, two other churches have been organized, one at ———, the other at ——— Valley. In the stead of one, there are three labourers, with full amount of work, and fine prospects of future usefulness. In connection with the above mentioned fields, two other places are supplied with the preached word regularly on the Sabbath. In the stead of one, there are five respectable congregations for size, assemble every Sabbath for the worship of God, as the fruit of your first commission ten years ago. This surely is the Lord's doing, and is marvellous in our eyes. We feel that not only great things have been done for the region around, but particularly for this people. Our church was organized, May, 1847, with eighteen members. We have enjoyed no copious outpourings of the Holy Spirit, but there has been a gradual increase. Since my connection with this people, at every communion, additions have been made to our numbers. We feel that the Lord is with us, leading us in the right way. Pray for us, that we may enjoy his more immediate presence, and experience his power, in the conviction of many souls. The church feel greatly indebted to the Board for their timely aid, and are disposed to do what they can to relieve its burdens.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Missions.

Honorary Members have a right to sit in the meetings of the Board, and engage in their deliberations, but have no right to vote. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to them every year. Provided we have their address.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

To the Trustees of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of ———, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Missions of the said General Assembly, according to the provisions of their charter.

☞ Persons making bequests to the Board of Missions are requested to be careful in adopting the above form.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of September, 1854.

SONOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry.—Antrim ch	$6 38
Pby of Albany.—Carlisle ch, from JAMES BOUGHTON, addl to constitute himself an hon mem	25 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of North River.—Smithfield ch	11 50

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Passaic.—Morristown 1st ch 323 60; Morristown 2d ch 80	403 60
Pby of New Brunswick.—Squan Village ch	5 25
Pby of Susquehanna.—Wyalusing ch 8; Friendsville ch 2 14; Silver Lake ch 1 28; Towanda ch 2 58; Wyalusing 2d ch 3	17 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—North ch, Phila, (of which 30 in part to constitute S D POWEL an hon mem) 159; Penn ch Phila, from Miss Ellen Rose 20; A member of the Sixth ch Phila 100	279 00
Pby of Donegal.—Slateville ch 12 50; Chesnut Level ch 49 30; Little Britain ch 13 60; Chanceford ch in part 16	91 40
Pby of Huntingdon.—Huntingdon ch 100; Bellefonte ch 81	181 00
Pby of Northumberland.—Sunbury ch 29 19; Northumberland ch 12 81; Lycoming Centre ch 25; Buffalo ch 50	117 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore.—Annapolis ch	30 00
Pby of Carlisle.—Great Conewago ch 81, of which 50 to constitute Miss SARAH B MAJOR hon mem	81 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Zanesville.—Buffalo ch	35 00
Pby of Wooster.—Jackson ch 14; Northfield ch 2; Chippewa ch 2 25; Mount Hope ch 10 20	28 45

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake.—Rolling Prairie ch	11 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria.—Canton ch 5; Farmington ch 6 50; Brunswick ch 3 50	15 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Winnebago.—Depere ch	4 50

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Orange.—Hillsboro' ch Female Benevolent Society	50 00

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Brazos.—Houston ch	43 15
	$1430 23

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Lady, New York 25; John Brewster, Shirleysburg, Pa 50; Mrs M Simonton, Harrisburg, Pa 5; "S A S," Danville, Va 5; Daniel Fishburn and family, Waynesboro', Va 20; Ann C Guthrie 1; Mrs Hugh McClure 1; Missionary, Bible, Tract, and Education Society of Princeton Theological Seminary 14; Rev J Cogswell, D D, New Brunswick, N J 25; George Baird, Washington, Pa 20; Washington Literary Society of Chesnut Level Academy, Pa 3 60; A Burnett, Harrisburg, Pa 3	172 60

LEGACY.

Bequest of Rev John H Rittenhouse, dec'd, late of Washingtonville, Pa	15 00
Total,	$1617 83

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 box from the Ladies of Cedar Grove ch, Lancaster county, Pa, valued at	25 00
1 cask from the Ladies of Waterford ch, N Y, valued	97 00
	$122 00

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of September, 1854.

Pby of Troy.—Second street ch, Troy, N Y, for the Milwaukie church, Wisconsin	38 08
Pby of North River.—Smithfield ch	3 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Neshaminy ch, for 1st church Fort Winnebago, Wisconsin	55 00
Pby of New Castle.—Dover and Smyrna chs	15 00
Pby of Des Moines.—Fairfield ch	10 00
Pby of Orange.—Hillsboro' ch Female Benev Society	25 00
	$146 08

MISCELLANEOUS.

A balance from the Dutch Reformed church of North and Southampton, Pa, for the 1st church of Fort Winnebago, Wisconsin 2; John Stewart, Graceham, Md 5	7 00
Total,	$153 08

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of September, 1854.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone.—Sewickly ch	16 00
Pby of Blairsville.—Donegal ch 5 70; Saltsburg ch 37; Elderton ch 3 60; Ebenezer ch 26 72; Congruity ch 33; Gilgal ch 19 08, of which 2 50 from Mrs Caruthers; Rural Valley ch 26 75, of which 6 75 from the Young People's Missionary Society	151 85
Pby of Ohio.—Chartiers ch 17; Pittsburgh 1st ch, "A Friend" 1	18 00
Pby of Erie.—Georgetown ch	15 15
Pby of Beaver.—Mt Pleasant and Newport chs	12 27

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Washington ch annual and monthly colls	140 53
Total,	$353 80

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of September, 1854.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Sidney.—Bellefontaine ch in part 16 15; Urbana ch 30 82; West Liberty ch 20	66 97

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.—Jeffersonville ch bal 19 05; a Friend 73 cts, Mrs Fabrique, Corydon 50 cts; Livonia ch 16 60	36 88
Pby of Palestine.—Robinson ch 5; Martinsville ch 4; Hebron ch 10 10; Independence ch 6 50	25 60

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport.—Lafayette ch 17 60; a Friend 5	22 60
Pby of Crawfordsville.—Covington ch	25 50

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria.—Low Point ch	7 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Upper Missouri.—Ebenezer ch	7 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Transylvania.—Bethel ch	9 00
Pby of Ebenezer.—Washington ch 27; Sharon ch 10; Bethesda ch 32 25; 1st ch Covington 98 38	167 63

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion.—Milford Centre ch 17 50; Marysville ch 10; Buck Creek ch 46 30	73 80

MISCELLANEOUS.

Walnut ch Ind 2 75; Genoa and Coon Creek chs 5	7 75
Total,	$449 73

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. Van Rensselaer, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
Wm. Chester, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
James Wood, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
William Main, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

THE FIELD OF THE WORLD.

The open field for the living ministry was never so great as at the present time. Our own country, harvest-white with twenty-five millions of immortal souls, is inviting labourers everywhere. Not one of our 140 Presbyteries but needs several ministers at once to occupy accessible positions of promise, in addition to the 600 vacancies in our bounds. Our chief cities form, by themselves, immense missionary fields, whilst towns and villages, and country districts innumerable, cry out for help. The old States as well as the new States unite in the demand for ministers; New York pleading side by side with Oregon, and Virginia with California. Large numbers of almost unevangelized emigrants are crowding our shores, and the poor of different races we have always with us, to whom the Gospel is to be preached.

The foreign field stands in sight, like a problem which defies calculation. The Gentiles are ready to come to the brightness of Zion's rising. Asia, Africa, the Isles, the world at large, is inviting evangelistic movements on a scale hitherto unattempted, if not unthought of.

It is certain that the Church is most urgently and solemnly called upon, in divine providence, to augment her ministry at the present period, so importunate with opportunity.

MATERIALS FOR PREACHERS.

In an important sense, it does not belong to the church, but to God, to decide the question, who and how many shall become preachers of the gospel. He is the author of their regeneration; and when converted, it is his prerogative to call such as he pleases to the office of the gospel ministry. But there is also an important sense in which his people are responsible for the preparation of those materials out of which preachers are ordinarily called; and also for the proper direction of their minds to the question of personal duty with regard to this office. The materials for future ministers are generally found in the bosom of our churches; either as communicants, or in a state of ecclesiastical pupilage. Hence the churches may be properly appealed to on this subject; and if delinquent, they should be exhorted to employ scriptural means to bring young men into the sacred office. To the use or neglect of these means, may be ascribed, as we believe, in a great measure, the large difference between the number of candidates in different churches.

We could name one church which has been organized twenty-five years, and has furnished from her members twenty-five candidates; and a second, older and stronger than the other, which has furnished only two or three. The latter church too has enjoyed, as well as the former, some precious revivals of religion, and the additions to her communion have consisted of a good proportion of young men. But their attention seems not to have been called particularly to the subject of personal consecration to the ministry. As laymen, they are useful men; but many of them might have become acceptable and some of them able preachers. Can that Church give a satisfactory answer to the question why they are not preachers? We consider it a great privilege for a church to have constantly among her members one or more candidates; and if this should be made one of the objects for which she daily and weekly offered up her prayers, and should have its appropriate place in the instructions of the pulpit, we doubt whether she would remain long without enjoying this privilege.

RESISTING A CALL TO THE GOSPEL MINISTRY.

A well known minister, now deceased, informed the writer that he had received a letter from a friend to the following effect:—that he pursued a course of literary and classical studies with a view to the gospel ministry; but that under the influence of aspiring and ambitious feelings, fostered by worldly-minded and irreligious kindred, he was diverted from his purpose, and devoted himself to the study of law. He made gratifying proficiency in preparing for the legal profession, and had before him every reasonable prospect of success. But from the mement he determined to abandon the gospel ministry and study law, God appeared to forsake him; he lost his former spirit of prayer, and religious comfort departed from his breast. At length, under the pressure of strong conviction of duty, urged upon his conscience by an agent of the Board of Education, whom he heard preach, he was led to retrace his steps, and consecrate himself anew to the service of the Church, and to that sacred office to which, as he believed, he had once been called. The letter above referred to was written to inform his old friend of his decision, and to tell him, moreover, that its influence upon his piety and Christian enjoyment was almost instantaneous; that his communion with God was no longer intercepted (as before) by insurmountable barriers; his graces seemed to have a more vigorous growth, and his "peace was like a river."

Perhaps there are many young men in the Presbyterian Church, who, against the call of God, and their own convictions of duty, are turning away their minds from this high and holy vocation, to engage in some secular pursuit. If so, can they expect to be prospered? Especially, can they hope for "peace of conscience and joy in the Holy Ghost?" The path of duty is the only one in which a man can secure the Divine favour.

PRAY.

The calamity of few labourers in the midst of a plenteous harvest is specially noted in the Scriptures, and has A DIVINE PROVISION FOR ITS RELIEF. The necessity of prayer "to the Lord of the harvest," has been repeatedly, if not annually, held up to the view of the Church in the reports of the Board of Education. Indulgence is again asked for a few statements on this subject.

1. The first thing to be realized by faith is the solemn injunction of the Lord Jesus Christ in reference to this duty. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." The blessed Redeemer knew the means best suited to obtain the supply, and his eye turned upward to "his Father and our Father, to his God and our God." The Lord of the harvest, interested in its glorious ingathering, can alone command the resources to secure the work. It is "his harvest," not ours; and the labourers, in order to be of the right kind, must be of his sending alone. The duty of prayer in reference to so important a work might be readily inferred from the nature of the case, and the general obligations of the Church; but revelation adds its solemn and authoritative sanctions. Prayer for gospel labourers is made the special object of a divine command. The Church, in "going into all the world and preaching the gospel to every creature," is not left in uncertainty from whence, and by what agency, the workmen are to be obtained. Prayer is the revealed mode, prayer from compassionate hearts. "But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad as sheep having no shepherd. Then said he unto his disciples; The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." There is a divine logic in the language of Christ. The connection between the means and the end may be undiscerned, or be as "foolishness" in the judgment of the wise. But "the labourers are few:" "therefore pray" is the key that unlocks the desired treasures; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

2. Another fact is, that our Lord himself practised prayer in the calling and commissioning of his apostles. In Mark iii. 13, it is said, "and he goeth up into a mountain and calleth unto him whom he would; and they came unto him, and he ordained twelve that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach." There can be no doubt that prayer was importunately offered at this time, for Luke records the transaction as follows: "And it came to pass in those days that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples, and of them he chose twelve." Luke vi. 12, 13. The choice of the apostles on this occasion seems to have been preliminary to a more complete commission, which occurred a short time after, when they were sent out upon their work. The interest of this last commissioning is greatly increased by the fact that it occurred in immediate connection with the injunction to pray for more labourers, as is apparent on a comparison of the following passages; viz. Matt. ix. 38; x. 1; Mark vi. 7; Luke ix. 1. The command to pray was followed by the act of sending forth; and the glorious juxtaposition was as though he had said, "See my willingness as well as my power to answer your prayers."

If the last prayers of our Lord, as recorded in the 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th chapters of John, be attentively read, it will be seen that no inconsiderable part is employed in invoking blessings upon his apostles. Thus showing that the whole subject, both of calling and of qualifying ministers for their work, should be sanctified by earnest prayer.

3. Why, it may be asked, is prayer so necessary in providing ministers for the sanctuary? Among other reasons, because prayer brings the Church directly to God. The ministry, without a divine call, has always been and must be a curse. Those who enter upon this profession unsent are "blind leaders of the blind." Religion cannot flourish where young men are trained for the ministry as for a mere profession of secular emolument or distinction. It is essential to its spiritual character that God be recognized as selecting the men, and imparting their qualifications. The single passage in Matthew settles for ever the spiritual character of those who are to minister in sacred things; for it is made the subject of devout prayer to God, and is not to be determined on principles of carnal policy. Hence it is all-important that our people should be instructed to put forth supplications to the Lord of the harvest. Calvin says, "as no man will of himself become a sincere and faithful minister of the gospel, and as none discharge in a proper manner the office of teacher but those whom the Lord raises up and endows with the gifts of his Spirit, whenever we observe a scarcity of pastors, we must raise our eyes to him to afford the remedy." A declension from this duty will inevitably raise up multitudes of unsanctified ministers, such as now harass some of the churches of the Reformation. The two thoughts of the MINISTRY and of GOD, should go together in the common associations of prayer, and be inwrought into the devotional habits of the Church. God is the only true source of supply. He is the only author of the requisite gifts and graces. False views and sentiments will become current just in proportion as the gospel duty of prayer is intermitted; and an unsent, and of course an unqualified, ministry—always prompt to volunteer its unhallowed offices—will then invade and curse the Church.

4. Prayer cultivates the use of all the active means necessary for the increase of the ministry. The sovereignty of God does not exclude or supersede, but summons forth, the subordinate agencies of the Church. For example, can a ministry, praying for an increase of labourers to the Lord of the harvest, be otherwise than an instructing ministry? There is much ignorance, even in the most favoured part of the Church, on the subject of a call to the ministry, the wants of the world, the duty of consulting God in seeking a profession, and all the points bearing upon the true solution of the case. The vague notions of supernatural revelations, signs, and visions, which prevail among the ignorant in reference to regeneration, retain their hold, to no inconsiderable extent in reference to the ministerial call, even upon persons who are on general topics better informed. A praying ministry will use all other means providentially tending to secure the end, especially in wisely seeking out and watching over young men who seem to possess requisite qualifications for the office.

On the other hand, a praying people will in like manner do their full share in the use of scriptural means. They will consecrate and endeavour to train their children unto the Lord, setting before them a good example, and encouraging them to serve Christ in whatever way may seem best, at all cost and self-denial.

There can be no question that the neglect on the part of the Church to employ the instrumentalities which have an ordained connection with the increase of the ministry, is primarily and chiefly owing to our inadequate prayers. Where there is little or no prayer, there will be little or no pains and energy displayed in reference to a subject, which, if unattended to, will take no care of itself. The world will sweep away our young men into secular professions with a resistless and tyrannical power, unless counteracting influences are put forth in the name of the Redeemer. Prayer and efforts, faith and works, mutually co-operate. Let there be genuine prayer, and our Church will wakefully employ her sacred energies in bringing her youth to Christ and his ministry, and God will bless her with the success promised in his word.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

The following report of a parochial school will be read with interest—especially by those whose judgments are convinced of the wisdom and importance of establishing and sustaining such schools. Those who are in doubt concerning them as a general system, may here see an illustration of the manner in which the plan is found to operate, and its unquestionable value in certain localities, and under some circumstances. We do not plead for these schools where they are unnecessary; but in cases like this, who will say that a parochial school is not needed? And are there not many such places in our country? When we shall succeed in establishing them wherever they are clearly demanded, we shall have accomplished a great work.

Dear Sir—The first quarter of the second year of our parochial school is nearly expired; and the session of the church directed me to make a report to the Board, as to its progress and present condition.

This school, which was instituted rather by way of experiment, with much doubt as to the result, succeeded, during a great part of the first year of its existence, to a degree far surpassing our fondest expectations, as stated in one of our former reports, when the number of its scholars arose to about one hundred, including children of several denominations, who appeared to forget all their sectarian prejudices, which seemed clearly to indicate the hand of the Lord in the matter. We then hoped that the school would amply sustain itself during the second year, even on the low price to which, as deemed necessary, the tuition was reduced; but a sad reverse occurred before the year closed, occasioned by an arrangement of the city, made to render the district schools free schools, by means of public funds, and by direct taxation, which, as might have been expected, greatly reduced our school, so that the first year closed and the second year commenced under very unfavourable circumstances, having only a dozen or two of scholars: so that we feared that the school could not be sustained without further aid, on its reduced tuition, and it would not do to raise it now. Hence the session, hoping for a change for the better, again ventured, with the sanction of Presbytery, to solicit the continuance of your generous appropriation (of $100) for one year more, which was accordingly made and forwarded to you about the first of June, to which no reply has yet been received.

I can now report to you that our once faint hope as to a change for the better, has not been disappointed. The children are now leaving the district schools, which are virtually free, and returning to our parochial school, whose parents, either beginning to appreciate a religious education, or else discovering that they are learning but little or nothing in the irreligious, or at least non-religious district schools, send them back to us and pay for their tuition, rather than to send them free of charge where they receive but little or no good, not to say evil. Thus our school has raised again from almost nothing, in a few weeks, to more than half of its former number, which, as we hope, it will fully reach before the year closes. Its present number is fifty-five, which is weekly increasing. The school is conducted as formerly reported—opened and closed with prayer—the catechism daily taught—the Bible is a class-book, portions of which are daily memorized. In addition to their regular studies, and voluntarily, some twenty-eight or thirty have recited, and all at one time, the whole of the sermon on the mount; and some ten or twelve have thus recited the whole of the Epistle of James: yet their progress in their literary studies does not seem to be retarded in the least, but rather wonderfully promoted, which is very encouraging to their able and devoted teachers, and not less so to the session. But one blessing more is needed to crown its prosperity—that the salt of divine grace be cast, by the hand of the quickening Spirit, into this fountain; then streams will issue to make glad the city of God, for which we ask an interest in the prayers of your committee.

By order of session. ******

THE CHILDREN OF THE CHURCH.

We copy the following from an excellent address, delivered by appointment of the Presbytery of South Carolina at C———n, as published in the Southern Presbyterian of October 12th.

We doubt not that much of the efficiency of the ministry is lost by not heeding this counsel. Let a minister neglect the children of the church, and how can he be largely useful? If he be successful in leading the aged in the paths of piety to their final salvation, the altar fires must go out, and the oracle be dumb, in the next generation. From whom is the militant Church to enlist its recruits, and refill its wasted ranks, except from the young?

To us it always seems strange—unaccountably strange—that ministers and Christian parents do so little, and appear so unconcerned, about the training of the young; as if it were too insignificant an aim to pre-occupy the young mind, and by taking possession, to forestall the opposite competitor for the now developing affections. Oh! the fatal torpor which pervades vast ranks of the ministers and members of our Church on these points!

It is still more strange, that in the light of the covenant into which our children are introduced by baptism, involving the highest responsibilities of the ministry, by whom they are consecrated, and the parents, by whom they are offered, this fearful neglect is so visibly manifest!

Let the reader ask himself, both the minister and the parent, what has been done for these children of the Covenant. Have they been nurtured and trained for Christ? Have they been reminded affectionately, fervently, of their privileges, and corresponding responsibilities? Nay, rather, O parents, have you not encouraged them in the same worldly practices and forbidden pleasures in which other children indulge? Do you restrain and control them as children of the covenant? Alas! how crushing must be the reflection, when it comes amid the dying groans of despair from your child, that you neglected his soul, and left him to perish even at the foot of the very altar!

Can such parents wonder, if, after such neglect, and guilty violation of covenant obligation, such a deplorable end befalls their children?

But who does not know that the faithfulness of parents in this respect depends very much upon the ministry? Let a pastor sleep, and his people will slumber all about him. When, with all his soul, night and day, from house to house, in tears, he presses all his means to awaken parents and children, he will often mourn over the wastes which parental deficiency has caused, but woe to him IF HE SLEEPS.

How can a pastor baptize the child, under such vows and obligations, and solemn covenant principles, as are involved in the ordinance, and then recommit to parents the immortal being, to be treated as a child of the world by its parents, and to be forsaken of the only shepherd appointed to care for it? Can he escape blood-guiltiness? Can he excuse himself before God, or even the Church? Verily not. He is indeed in fearful peril of the doom of those who neither enter in themselves, nor suffer others.

But we call attention to the bearing these views have upon the ministry, as to the increase of candidates. Can we expect God to call even to the election of grace, much less to the office of the ministry, subjects from these covenant-breaking and ordinance-profaning circles? God may do it, as sometimes he may pour out his Spirit in the conviction of sinners, when the pastor and church are both asleep; but it is not his usual plan. If the ministry and the Church knew how much depended upon their faithfulness to the young, for the salvation of souls, and the raising up of a vastly increasing host of ministers, we should soon see a mighty stirring from one end of our land to the other.

But here is the article, and though short, we commend it to our readers.

Take heed to the children of the Church. Feed my lambs, says the Saviour. They are the hope of Zion. We affectionately urge upon you special attention to the baptized children of the Church. We do not generally sufficiently feel the great importance of this class of our hearers. We too often forget the children. If we do not really despise, we overlook these "little ones;" hence no special effort is made, no agony of prayer rises from the Church for their salvation; hence no suitable intellectual, moral, and religious education, is provided for them. With all sorrow, my brother, I say that our systems of education have an irreligious, if not an infidel tendency. We often commit our offspring, in the most tender and susceptible period of life, to the tuition of immoral and wicked men, and then wonder at the continued impiety of our children. This result is natural and necessary—flowing immediately from a pernicious education. Why were the three sons of the Rev. William Tennent chosen vessels, and able ministers of the New Testament? It was the blessing of God upon a religious education. But I cannot dwell. Permit the expression of my opinion, that in separating the Church and school-room, we have departed from wisdom.

Remember the children. Affectionately teach them the soul-stirring truths of religion; not as a dull, tiresome task, but as living, blessed, glorious realities. Talk to them tenderly, kindly. Give words of love to the child. Make him feel the strength and tenderness of your love to his soul. Pray with and for him, and his loving heart will soon be given to his loving Saviour.

RIGHT OF THE CHURCH TO EDUCATE.

The right of the Church to engage officially in the work of education, has been already argued in the Reports of the Board, and is the basis of all its operations. The subject is alluded to at the present time for the purpose of correcting some misapprehensions. 1. It has been inadvertently inferred that the claim of the Church to the right to educate, implies an exclusive right to educate. Such an inference, however, is not only believed to be illogical, but it is expressly disowned by the advocates of ecclesiastical supervision. A divine right is not necessarily an exclusive divine right. Parents have a divine right to educate; but this does not interfere with the rights of the Church on the one hand, or of the State on the other. So the Church has the right to take care of the poor, but not to the exclusion of State arrangements, and civil or private charities. All that the General Assembly has ever claimed, is the right to educate, as one of the parties in the great work—not the only party, and the exclusive party—but simply a party, and a true party.

2. Furthermore, it is a misapprehension to suppose that the maintenance of this right is equivalent to a determination everywhere to exercise it. There is a wide distinction between privilege and duty. It is the duty of the Church undoubtedly to see that all her youth have the opportunity of being trained up in the ways of piety and truth. But if adequate provisions already exist in the community, either through public or private institutions, the Church may wisely avail herself of such arrangements, as coming up to the measure of her obligations. Under such circumstances, there is no necessity for the exercise of her supreme, reserved prerogatives. This is the condition of things in some parts of our country, where the Shorter Catechism may be freely taught in the public schools. And even where religion cannot be introduced into the public schools, every church session may exercise its own Christian discretion as to the wisdom, policy, and practicability, of setting up a school of its own. Public considerations, in many cases, may prevail over all other interests, and lawfully exert a supremacy. Although the Assembly has maintained a right to educate, it has never enjoined the churches to put in practice their unquestionable privileges; nor has it ever thought of censuring any of its judicatories for not establishing schools or academies. The question whether, under all the circumstances, it is best for a session, or a Presbytery, or a Synod, to establish an institution of learning, is left to their own sound, Christian discretion. The right of education, and the duty or necessity of engaging in the work, are very different questions.

3. Furthermore, this right is not one that claims to compel parents to send their children to church institutions, even where such institutions are established. The liberty of private choice is unimpaired. Our members generally would probably patronize our own institutions, but if they prefer others under private or public management, they stand or fall to their own Master. The right of the Church to interpose her authority over parents, who send their children to Papal or infidel, or openly vicious institutions, will probably not be denied; but where the choice is simply between one suitable institution and another, even though one be the better, the parent has the right to choose in the fear of the Lord.

4. Furthermore, it is a mistake to suppose that the right of the Church to take part in education virtually depreciates all other agencies. This inference is only lawful on the assumption that the Church is either the only agency, or in all cases the best agency. The great principle, which the Assembly has always held forth, is that the Church need not interpose unless circumstances require it. There is no ultraism in this position. All institutions that are on a religious basis are fulfilling the aim of the Church in commencing her present policy; and instead of being depreciated, are practically exalted. The question as to the comparative security of funds under ecclesiastical or political management, is one that is open to discussion. But the mere fact of preference in favour of ecclesiastical supervision, need not and does not prevent co-operation with institutions, whose financial securities may be different. Their securities may be good, although not the best. The friends of Church supervision might complain with equal propriety that the friends of private corporations depreciate all other agencies in all possible circumstances. The truth is, however, that, whilst each class may have its own preferences, neither need depreciate the other, but both may cordially co-operate on different plans in promoting the same great end.

With these limitations and explanations, the right of the Church in education is conceived to be conservative in theory, and, practically, greatly conducive to the public good.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, IN SEPTEMBER, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of Hudson.
Hopewell ch	$11 00
Presbytery of North River.
Smithfield ch	5 00
Presbytery of Passaic.
Paterson 1st ch	41 00
Presbytery of Susquehanna.
Wyalusing 2d ch 3 50; Presbyterial collection 3 54	7 04
Presbytery of Philadelphia.
Penn ch, Miss Ellen Rose, 20; Westminster ch 12 07	32 07
Presbytery of New Castle.
White Clay Creek, Christiana, and Newark chs	24 00
Presbytery of Baltimore.
Annapolis ch	5 00
Presbytery of Carlisle.
Rocky Spring and St Thomas chs	30 00
Presbytery of Columbus.
Lancaster ch	15 00
Presbytery of Richland.
Ashland ch 40 25; Frederick ch 20 58; Waterford ch 5 32; Pleasant Hill ch 7	73 15
Presbytery of Wooster.
Jackson ch 9 55; Springfield ch 2; Lafayette ch 1	12 55
Presbytery of Findlay.
Lima ch, Ladies' sewing society of	5 00
Presbytery of Lake.
Rolling Prairie ch	6 00
	$266 81
LEGACY.
Miss Elizabeth Hunt of Pennington	10 00
REFUNDED.
T S O	30 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Missionary, Bible, Tract, and Education Society of Princeton Seminary, N J	16 00
John Brewster, Shirleysburg, Pa.	30 00
	$352 81

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Presbytery of Newton.
Fox Hill ch, (special)	4 00
Presbytery of Carlisle.
Mercersburgh ch, (special)	20 00
Total	$376 81

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH, PA., SEPTEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Blairsville.
Blairsville ch	$50 00
Presbytery of Washington.
Burgettstown ch 50; Pine Grove ch 10 67; West Alexander ch 62 50	123 17
	$173 17
MISCELLANEOUS.
ROBERT PATTERSON, to con hon mem	50 00
Mrs MARY DONANGHY, to con hon mem	50 00
Total,	$273 17

J. S. LEECH, McALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, SEPTEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of New Albany.
Livonia ch	$14 00
Presbytery of Louisville.
Chestnut street ch, Louisville	70 15
	$84 15

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, New York, Oct. 13th, 1854.

Indian Missions.—We have received letters from the Choctaw Mission to the 11th of September; Chickasaw, to September 1st; Seminole, August 9th; Creek, August 9th; Iowa, August 30th; Ottawa, to September 29th. The Seminole school closed its term with 27 pupils, of whom 19 were Seminoles, 9 boys, and 10 girls; five were Creeks, and three were children of the missionaries. Mr. Lilley says, "With some difficulties and disappointments, we have however had much to encourage us. Among some of them, considerable seriousness was manifest. They have all improved in their studies, and can all read except three, who have been with us but a short time." We regret to learn that Mrs. Lilley's health is quite feeble, and that they have met with another bereavement, in the death of one of their children.—In the manual labour boarding-school among the Ottawas, 28 boys and 20 girls had been under instruction. Three or four of the boys, impatient under the restraints of the school, had left it without leave; but the scholars generally, Mr. Dougherty says, "have been docile, obedient, attentive to their studies, and have made commendable improvement." Religious services are conducted in the school building for the Indians regularly on the Sabboth, and they are said to be "gradually improving in habits of sobriety, industry, and economy; and since they have got settled on their own land, they appear contented, and ambitious to improve."

We notice with some concern that the price of provisions, particularly of Indian corn, the principal kind of food, has greatly increased among the Chickasaws, so that the expenses of the boarding-school will be considerably heavier than they were during last year.

Missions in India.—We have received letters from Lahor, July 10; Lodiana, July 8; Ambala, July 8; Agra, July 10; Futtehgurh, to July 21; Allahabad, to July 26. A school at Gujuranwala, a town of 15,000 inhabitants, forty miles north of Lahor, had been commenced, and placed under the superintendence of the missionaries. One of the young men educated by them, Elisha Swift, was the head master, and eighty boys were scholars. The missionaries expected to visit this town occasionally, on preaching tours, and would then be able to look after the school.—The peaceful death of Miriam, a young native convert, is mentioned by Mrs. Porter at Lodiana. She desired to depart and to be with Christ.—Mr. Jamieson speaks of the continued ill health of his wife as likely to involve the painful necessity of their return to this country at no remote period. He writes also, that "One of the Pundits we have often met at Hardwar, came to see me a short time ago, and to my surprise, declared openly his disbelief in Hinduism, and his belief in Christianity. He is a promising man, of 26 years of age. I doubt not there are many other cases similar to his, and that time will reveal them. The Lord will bless his word, and fulfil his promises to his servants. O that we were all more awake to his glory, and could feel more that the conversion of the heathen to God is a great fact."—Mr. Ullman, at the request of some of the school boys, had "commenced a course of public lectures in Furrukhabad on the Bible as the word of God, and the genuineness of the Scriptures. All the boys of the higher classes in the school, the teachers, and whoever else wishes to be present, attend these lectures."—At Allahabad, two young persons were admitted to the church, one of whom is Thomas Janvier, a student in the mission college, and the other is a daughter of a man employed formerly in the printing office—both giving pleasing evidence of piety. Two of the members of the church had been called away by death, and also a man who had been a teacher in connection with one of the mission schools, though not a Christian by public profession, of whom Mr. Munnis says, "We hope he is now enjoying the rest which remaineth to the people of God." Of Ganesh, one of the departed church members, who was formerly employed on the press, Mr. Hay writes, "His general walk, and attendance at worship, indicated an intelligent and living faith. I hope he is among the ransomed of our Lord." And of Rebecca, wife of George Douglas, the other church member whose death is reported, Mr. Owen says, "When the fatal nature of the disease of which she died became known, she received the intelligence with entire calmness, saying it was better to depart and be with Christ. I visited her frequently, and believe she was ready to meet her Lord. . . . She was brought up in the orphan asylum, and the faithful instructions she received from Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Freeman, were blessed to the saving of her soul. How many kind friends at home, who have contributed to the support of this institution, may also have been instrumental in her salvation."

Mission in Siam.—A letter of the Rev. S. Mattoon, of June 3, has been received, which speaks of the missionaries being in usual health, but having nothing new to report in their circumstances or their work.

Missions in China.—We have received letters from Canton, to July 20; Shanghai, to July 14; and Ningpo, to July 8. We regret to learn that the health of Mrs. Happer had been for some time feeble, but it was hoped that rest and change of residence to Macao would be of service to her. She was accompanied to Macao by Mrs. Kerr, and by the scholars of her school, whose parents thus gave a gratifying proof of their confidence in the mission family. The new brethren, Mr. Preston and Dr. Kerr, had entered on the study of the language, and the latter on many professional labours among the natives. He says, "I have become somewhat acquainted with the operations of the mission, and am much gratified to see so many evidences of prosperity, and of the assiduity with which our associates have been engaged in the great work."

At the latest date, great disturbance and excitement prevailed on account of the city being attacked by the insurgents. Fighting was then going on, and much blood was shed. The missionary ladies had all left Canton for Macao, except Mrs. French, The foreign factories were guarded by foreign vessels and troops. Mr. French expresses the opinion confidently that the city will fall into the hands of the revolutionary party, and he adds, "foreigners have more to fear from fire and from a lawless rabble than anything else. I fear this state of confusion and anarchy will continue for a long time. Remember us continually in your prayers, and remember especially this down-trodden and wretched people." The boys' boarding and day-schools had been greatly reduced in numbers by these troubles. We trust that our missionary friends have been kept in safety by a kind Providence. Two American and one British war steamer were at anchor in the river, ready to receive foreigners on board in case of danger.

At Shanghai and Ningpo the mission families were well, and their labours were going on as usual. The insurgents still held possession of Shanghai. Mr. Culbertson gives news from Ningpo of three days' later date than our letters. An attack had been made by the Portuguese on the Cantonese, without any warning to other foreigners; and the missionaries would have been exposed to much peril if the Cantonese had not fled, as their guns would have swept the mission houses. The later accounts from the insurgents do not wear an encouraging aspect as to the religious views of the leaders. Mr. Culbertson's narrative of his visit to Nanking will be found on another page of this number of the Record, and will no doubt be read with great interest.

Mission to the Chinese in California.—The Rev. Mr. Speer, under date of September 15, mentions his being "oppressed with the variety and weight of the labours" imposed upon him, but says that his health is much better than it ever was in China.

Mission at Buenos Ayres.—Letters have been received from the Rev. T. L'Hombral to the 14th of August. Their general complexion is encouraging. He had commenced a French service in the North American chapel, kindly placed at his use for that purpose, which was well attended; and he had enjoyed the privilege of instructing, and afterwards admitting to the communion of the church, a young lady of Roman Catholic parentage. Much interest was manifested in his labours by the minister of the Scotch Presbyterian church, and also by the Methodist Episcopal minister of the chapel in which his French services were held. Mr. L'Hombral had found a few Protestant people amongst the French population, amounting to perhaps fifteen or twenty thousand souls.

Departure of Missionaries.—The Rev. Marcus M. Carleton and his wife sailed in the ship Jacob Bell, from this port for Singapore, on the 4th of October, on their way to the mission in Siam. Mr. Carleton is a member of the Presbytery of Connecticut. About the same time a party of missionary teachers and others set out for the Creek, Chickasaw, and Choctaw Missions, in company with Mr. Wilson, one of the Secretaries. As the stations of some of this company may be determined after reaching the Indian country, we omit for the present a particular notice of their several spheres of labour. All these missionary friends are commended to the blessing of God, and will be remembered, we hope, in the prayers of his people.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

In our last number, we considered the question whether our Church was engaged in the Foreign Missionary work in any measure proportionate to the resources and ability conferred upon her by the providence of God. In the present, we propose to inquire, whether the efforts she is making in the foreign field are in any way proportionate to the magnitude of the work to be done?

The great business of the Christian Church, as has been shown in a previous article, is to make known the unsearchable riches of Christ to the whole world. Are our present efforts, even in connection with those made by other branches of the Christian Church, likely to bring about this great result in any reasonable length of time, or at any period whatever? Passing by what is being done by other evangelical Churches, let us inquire what progress we are making ourselves towards enlightening the heathen world.

Among the Indian tribes we have seven missions, and occupy in all eleven stations. We have three missionaries to the Jews, two of whom are located in New York and its vicinity, and one in the city of Baltimore. We have a single missionary among the Chinese of California, and another for the Roman Catholic population of South America. In Western Africa we have two missions, on a line of sea-coast of more than 4000 miles, and in all, not more than eight or ten points where the gospel is statedly preached. In Northern India we have four missions, and occupy something like a dozen stations; and this is one of our oldest and most efficient enterprises. In Siam, we have a single mission; and with the exception of the tours that are occasionally made for the purpose of preaching the gospel, there is only one city in this kingdom where the glad news of salvation is statedly proclaimed. On the eastern shores of China, we have three missions, and our operations here are in great measure confined to the inhabitants of the three cities where those missions are located. A few thousand dollars are contributed to promote the cause of evangelical religion in Papal Europe, but in this portion of the world, it is not the aim of our Church at present to send missionaries from this country.

Now a single glance at this general outline of our missionary operations, shows that we have done little more than make a beginning at the great work assigned to us by the Head of the Church. We have fallen upon a few of the outposts of the adversary, but we have scarcely made any perceptible impression upon his great empire of darkness.

In Northern India, we occupy a few posts of great importance, and are strengthening our position near the valley of Cashmere, which may be regarded as one of the gateways to the vast regions of Central and Northern Asia; but as yet we have not the force sufficient to march into these vast kingdoms of heathenism. We have unfurled the gospel banner along the eastern shores of China, and are making the necessary preparations for a great conflict with the powers of darkness in these vast regions also; but as yet the heart of the country remains untouched. We have acquired a footing on the Western shores of Africa, and no serious or insuperable obstacle now exists to prevent our reaching into the very heart of that great country, except the want of an adequate missionary force. There has been no period in Europe, since the great Reformation of the fifteenth century, perhaps, when the prospects of the gospel were more encouraging, or when there were greater facilities for promoting the cause of evangelical religion, than the present. But all that has been done by us as a Church, in this interesting crisis, is the contribution of a few thousand dollars. In Brazil, there is at the present time frée toleration of Protestantism, and certain advantages are enjoyed for preaching the gospel, and circulating the word of God, but only a beginning of the work of evangelization has been made in that country. Other parts of the world, as Japan, Northern Africa, North-Western Asia, and various other regions, are about to be thrown open, where neither our own nor any other evangelical Churches have their representatives.

Now we ask, would these great desolations remain as they are, if we were imbued with the spirit of the apostles? Can we be satisfied to carry on the Foreign Missionary work so languidly, and on so small a scale, whilst there are such vast multitudes of our fellow-men perishing for lack of the gospel?

CHINA: SHANGHAI MISSION.

NARRATIVE OF A VISIT TO THE INSURGENTS AT NANKING, BY THE REV. M. S. CULBERTSON.

SHANGHAI, June 5th, 1854.

Having been invited by His Excellency, R. M. McLane, United States Minister to China, to accompany him to Nanking in the steam frigate Susquehanna, I gladly embraced the opportunity of visiting that famous city, and of seeing something of the new party now rising to power, in their own headquarters. We returned to this place yesterday, and I purpose now to give you some account of our voyage, and the results of our observations.

The Susquehanna left Wusung on Monday the 22d May, accompanied by the steam tug "Confucius." Proceeding slowly, in consequence of the difficulty of navigating so large a vessel in an unknown channel, we arrived at Chinkiang-fu on Thursday the 25th.

As the vessel was about to come to anchor, a shot was fired across her bows from one of the batteries on shore. A communication from Capt. Buchanan was immediately sent on shore, for the commandant of the place. Dr. Bridgman and myself accompanied the officers in charge of it. Landing at the battery, we found ourselves surrounded by a motley crowd of men and boys, whose unshorn and unshaven heads, not generally dressed in the neatest manner, gave them a rather unprepossessing appearance. We were requested to wait until word could be sent into the city. After waiting a long time, sheltered under a shed from the drenching rain, horses were brought, and we were conducted into the city, and to the residence of Wu, the present commandant. On hearing of our intention to visit Nanking, he very earnestly pressed upon us a request to wait until he could send word thither and receive a reply. In explanation of the shot fired, he merely said that it was not known to them whether we came as friends or enemies. In his written reply to Capt. Buchanan, an ample apology was made. Having finished our business, we returned as we went, on horseback.

The city is a scene of desolation and ruin. Within the walls, the houses have been in a great measure broken up, leaving nothing but the dilapidated shell. Many rooms were seen filled with broken tables, chairs, and cupboards. Indeed, the place is no longer anything more than a fort, valuable only as commanding the Imperial Canal. No labour was seen going on, except the manufacture of gunpowder and implements of war. Not a female was seen; the women and children who did not flee when the place was taken, having been sent to Nanking. The men and boys were taken into the army. The large suburbs without the walls have been totally destroyed by fire. The town of Kwachau, on the opposite side of the river, is now but a heap of ruins; not a house having escaped destruction.

Just below Chinkiang is Silver island, a place devoted to the service of Buddha. It is a round peak, rising very abruptly to the height of several hundred feet from the surface of the water. There are here a number of large and highly ornamented temples, which have not been injured, although the idols have been broken to pieces. Near to this island a large Imperial fleet lies at anchor. On the right bank of the river, on the tops of the distant hills south-west of the city, we could discern several Imperialist camps.

Just above the city is another island hill, called Golden island. Its summit is crowned with a tower of seven stories, and its sides and base were once covered with temples. The temples are now in ruins, and the materials are used for fortifications, which the insurgents are now constructing.

Nanking.

On Saturday morning we weighed anchor, and reached Nanking in the afternoon. A communication was immediately sent ashore, and delivered to an officer of rank, who promised to forward it to the authorities in the city. Large numbers of the insurgents soon crowded the decks of the steamers. They were from many different provinces, but chiefly those bordering on the Yang-tsz river. With many of them I was able to converse intelligibly, though with more or less difficulty. A considerable number were able to repeat the ten commandments, as given in their own books. Further than this, they seemed to have received but little instruction. They were frank, open, and friendly, and all seemed very cheerful and happy. The day was their Sabbath, and they seemed to observe it so far as to abstain from labour. In a long walk on shore, I saw no work going on where it was carried on next day. On our own vessel, it was thought best to pass the day quietly, and very few of the people from shore were allowed to come on board. When the reason was explained to them, they seemed fully to appreciate it, and went away with the greatest cheerfulness. They seemed greatly interested to know whether we worshipped T'ien-fu, the Heavenly Father, as they did, and were much pleased when told that we did. We inquired, then and afterwards, with equal interest, whether worship was rendered by them to any other than the Heavenly Father and Jesus, and invariably received a decided negative. The term T'ien-fu was the one used in conversation to designate the Deity, to the almost entire exclusion of every other term.

The situation of Nanking renders it in every way worthy of being the site of royal palaces, and the capital of the world's most populous empire. Standing on the bank of one of the noblest of rivers, which gives it direct communication with the sea, and access to a vast and densely peopled region of the greatest fertility, and rich in mineral resources, this cannot but become a splendid city, when the appliances of modern science shall be brought to bear upon the development of the mineral, commercial, and agricultural wealth of the country. The spot itself is one of great natural beauty. The city stands in a basin, surrounded on all sides by hills, around the base of which the walls are built. The walls are about twenty miles in circumference, and are some forty or fifty feet high. Only a small part of the space within the walls is occupied by the city proper, the remainder being cultivated fields.

That this is indeed destined to be the capital of China, there can scarcely be a doubt. Having established their head-quarters here, the insurgents are now sending out their armies in various directions to subdue the country, and everywhere these armies are successful. Peking, it is true, has not been taken, and may long hold out, but it is cut off from all communication with the southern provinces, except by sea, and the insurgents have command of the whole Yang-tsz river, from Chinkiang-fu to the province of Hupeh, if not further. They appoint officers, collect revenue, and make laws, for all the region bordering on the river, and the Imperialist armies are so far held in check, that they cannot molest them in the exercise of their authority.

Nanking is itself at present strictly a military camp. The insurgents appear to have appropriated for the public use the entire property of the place, and even the inhabitants themselves. The men and boys were enrolled in the army, while the women and children were quartered in companies in a separate part of the city. All are under military rule, and are compelled to do the work assigned them. They are therefore fed and clothed from the public stores, but they do not, it would seem, receive any wages. Some of the women, evidently belonging originally to the working class, were seen carrying rice into the city. A few well-dressed ladies were seen on horseback, riding like men. The streets in the women's quarter are used as thoroughfares by men and women alike. This segregation of the females is not to be regarded in any other light than as a temporary expedient to facilitate the enforcement of military discipline, and it is restricted to the army.

Nanking does not present the desolate, deserted appearance which was observed at Chinkiang-fu, yet many of the houses are empty, and their interior broken up. Many of the streets are wide, and they seem to be kept in a state of cleanliness not common in Chinese cities. I observed indeed generally signs of attention to personal cleanliness, and to the decencies of life, so commonly disregarded by their countrymen.

We did not obtain the privilege of free access to the city; our stay being very short, and the official communications not very satisfactory. The answer to Capt. Buchanan's communication was not received until Tuesday morning. Its character was such as to give some ground for apprehension that the new party will be brought into serious collision with foreign governments, if they succeed in obtaining the throne. There is nothing in it exhibiting hostility to foreigners, or inconsistent with a purpose to throw open the whole country to foreign commerce, but there are claims of universal supremacy, which will, if persisted in, prevent any foreign power from entering into treaty with them. They are the same claims which have always been made by the Tartar Emperors—claims which would prevent the exchange of ambassadors, and admit a minister from a foreign court only as a tribute bearer, coming to pay homage to the Lord of the World. The chief difference between the old and the new doctrine appears to be this, that the old Emperor claimed supremacy as the "Son of Heaven;" the new Ruler, as the "Brother of Jesus." In consequence of the language employed in this letter, Mr. McLane determined to leave the next day, and run some distance up the river. He requested me, however, to enter the city if possible, and in a friendly way, explain to any officer of rank I might fall in with, the object of our visit.

Having the address of an officer named Hu, from whom an informal note had been received, I set out to find his residence. The gate nearest the anchorage having been closed, I proceeded along the western face of the wall by a good paved road to the West gate. Here the guards said they had received no orders to admit me. The gateways are very high. The entrance is through an archway or tunnel, some forty or fifty feet long. Of these arches there are three in a direct line, separated by a considerable intervening space, and closed by heavy doors of great strength.

About half a mile further on is the "Water West gate," at which I was allowed to pass in. Walking through a very wide street about two miles, I reached another wall, probably that which separates the former Tartar quarter from the Chinese city. On inquiring for Hu, I was taken at once to his residence. Passing through several wide doors and open courts, I found myself in the reception hall. At the head of it sat Hu, dressed in his official robes of yellow silk, with a high cap covered with gilt ornaments. The attendants who conducted me in, kneeled before him. He seemed reserved and distant in his manner, and made but a single inquiry, asking for what object the steamers had come to Nanking. I explained at some length who we were. He listened in silence to what I had to say. I also handed to him some copies of Genesis, Exodus, and some of the Gospels and Acts, with a few tracts printed at Ningpo. These he received and laid aside. He then addressed himself to me with a rather haughty air, and an authoritative tone. He said that the "foreign brethren" did indeed worship the "Heavenly Father, and the Heavenly Elder Brother, Jesus," but were ignorant of the fact that their "Celestial King" was the brother of Jesus. He laid much stress upon this, and urged, on this ground, the necessity of our coming with suitable presents and tribute. He intimated, that having enlightened me on this point, he would expect compliance with the "ceremonials" of the "Celestial Dynasty." Having said a good deal on this subject, making sure as he went on, that I understood what he said, though I assured him that I did not understand his doctrine, he held an earnest consultation with an officer who sat by him, and two or three of his attendants. The two officers then called for horses, and left the room, without offering any explanation. I of course proposed to leave at once, but the attendants very decidedly objected; and, hoping to see more of my host, and perhaps obtain some books which the attendants said he would bring, I waited for his return. After waiting a long time in vain, the lateness of the hour reminded me that it was time to return to the ship, which was some seven miles distant. Under all the circumstances, I thought it best to return. I was satisfied, too, that Hu had gone to receive the orders of his superiors, and after so much had been said about "ceremonials," I would not have been surprised to have been called on to do homage, by kneeling or prostration, before the Eastern King, or perhaps the "Brother of Jesus" himself.

On making known my intention to leave, one of the attendants deliberately closed the door, placed himself before it, and gave me to understand that I could not depart until his master returned. Another, however, shortly offered to conduct me to another part of the building, and I then went to the street, and proceeded toward the city gate. The attendants opposed this very strenuously, and with a good deal of anger on the part of some of them, but they dared not use force. So far as their conduct might be regarded as an index to the feelings of their superiors, it certainly did not impress me very favourably. On reaching the city gate, no opposition was made to my leaving. A boat was there furnished me, and I returned to the ship.

On Tuesday morning we proceeded up the river. The day was pleasant, and we had a delightful sail through a rich and populous country. The right bank of the river is hilly; the left rather low and flat, with occasional hills some distance back from the river. The people were getting in their harvest, and could often be seen leaving their work, and running down to the bank of the river to see so strange a sight as two vessels running without sails, and at so rapid a rate, against a strong current. It was perhaps not less interesting to us than to them, for we were in waters never before disturbed by a foreign vessel, and we could not but anticipate as near at hand the day when this noble river shall be traversed by many steamers, richly freighted with the products of foreign lands, and of the fertile region through which it flows. The river is free from the difficulties which obstruct most of the rivers of our own land, and there are probably few streams in which the navigation is easier or less dangerous.

We lay at anchor during the night, and about noon arrived at the city of Wu-hu. This city is situated on the right bank of the river, about three hundred miles from its mouth, and sixty-five miles above Nanking, in the province of Ngan-hwui. It was visited by Lord Amherst's embassy in 1816, and is described as having at that time a population of over half a million, and carrying on an immense inland trade. It is beautifully situated on a wide bay formed by a bend of the river, and on the banks of a navigable branch river, which here flows into the Yang-tsz. Even before the steamer came to anchor, boats pulled alongside, with persons wishing to board her. The first boat brought some officers dressed in yellow satin. One of these was on his way to Hupeh, to attend to the collection of the revenue; another was going in the same direction for charcoal for the use of the "Celestial King;" and a third had charge of a raft of timber, which he was taking to Nanking, to be used in the erection of palaces for the parents of the five subordinate kings. While they were surveying the steamer, their boat, which was towed alongside, was swamped by the motion of the wheels, and three men in it narrowly escaped being drowned. All were eventually rescued.

Wu-hu is now in possession of the insurgents, and is guarded by a naval force anchored before it. Here, therefore, we had a specimen of the character of their rule in districts where it is not strictly military. The admiral received us in the most friendly manner, and furnished guides to accompany us wherever we wished to go. The people gathered in crowds to see the strangers, but stood in considerable awe of the police, who were armed with long bamboo whips, which they used very freely. In several instances respectable men, having some special object in view, fell on their knees in the streets before us and our guides. Here the great effort of the new rulers seems to be to induce the people to go on quietly with their business as before, only yielding obedience to the new regulations imposed. The titles of the officers are changed, but their functions are much the same, and the new regime, while stronger than the old, is equally arbitrary and despotic. During the contests between the two parties, a large portion of the city, both within and without the walls, was destroyed by fire. It was sad to pass through streets which had evidently been occupied by many buildings of the largest and most substantial class, but which now present nothing to view but tottering walls and heaps of rubbish. Even the countenances of the people passing through these desolate ruins seemed to wear an expression of sadness in harmony with the rest of the scene. Trade, however, is beginning to revive, and the people engage in their ordinary avocations. Here there is no separation of the males and females as at Nanking.

On Friday morning we left Wu-hu on our return to Shanghai, which we reached without difficulty or accident on Sabbath evening, passing Nanking and Chinkiang-fu without stopping.

It is to be regretted that the shortness of our stay rendered it impossible to obtain satisfactory and reliable information on many points of great public interest. It would not be just to infer from the character of our reception an intention to return to the former exclusive policy of the Tartar Emperors. It is not surprising that the chiefs are averse at present to the visits of foreign vessels, since they do not well understand their object, and cannot certainly know that they will not turn to the advantage of their enemies. Their independent tone is conclusive evidence, however, that their profession of Christianity has not been made with any view to conciliate foreign governments.

The opium trade, however, they are evidently resolved to destroy. Its use is prohibited, and there is every reason to believe that the prohibition is rigidly enforced. The use of tobacco, even, is not allowed, either to soldiers or people. Both these prohibitions seemed to be as effectually enforced at Wu-hu as at Nanking. The use of wine is not absolutely prohibited, and betel-nut seems to be freely allowed.

As to the religious features of this movement, we are still left in a great measure ignorant of the facts necessary for forming a reliable judgment. The spirit of fanaticism seems to be increasing with the success of their arms, and also the pride and arrogance of the chiefs. Since Hung Siu-tsiuen founds a claim to universal supremacy upon his assumption that he is the "Brother of Jesus," he must mean something more by that expression than the Scriptures authorize. However he may have been self-deluded, and however sincere he may have been in his adhesion to Christianity, this claim thus made gives ground to fear that he has not been taught of God.

His chief minister, Yang Siu-tsing, the Eastern King, has also assumed a title, which, if he knew what it meant, would stamp him with the guilt of the most horrid blasphemy. He calls himself "the Comforter, the Holy Divine Breath." The latter is the term used by Morrison to designate the Holy Ghost. I cannot see how any of the chiefs could have correct views of the doctrine of the Trinity, but their ignorance cannot excuse so gross a misappropriation of sacred terms.

All of the other kings have also thought it necessary to add to their dignity by the assumption of high-sounding titles. The following is part of an ode given out by the favour of "the Heavenly Father, the Heavenly Elder Brother, [Jesus] and the Heavenly King," [Hung Siu-tsiuen,] and ordered to be used by "all soldiers and people under heaven."

"Praise the Supreme Ruler, who is the Holy Heavenly Father, the only true God.
Praise the Heavenly Elder Brother, the Saviour of the world, who laid down his life for men.
Praise the Eastern King, the Holy Divine Breath, who atones for faults and saves men.
Praise the Western King, the rain teacher, an as high as heaven honourable man.
Praise the Southern King, the cloud teacher, an as high as heaven upright man.
Praise the Northern King, the thunder teacher, an as high as heaven benevolent man.
Praise the Assistant King, the lightning teacher, an as high as heaven righteous man."

The rest of the ode is in praise of the true doctrines, and is taken from a former publication, entitled "The Book of Religious Precepts." These titles are not to be understood as implying a claim to any control over the elements. They are intended merely for effect, and probably do not strike the Chinese as absurd, however we may regard them. Some officers of rank, of whom I inquired the meaning of the title "Brother of Jesus," as applied to Hung Siu-tsiuen, seemed as much puzzled by it as myself, and I therefore infer that he does not lay much stress upon it among his followers. They seemed not only not to understand it, but not to have even heard of it.

The worship enjoined is attended to three times daily, that is, before each meal. It consists of the chanting of a hymn, in which all join, remaining seated, and a short prayer, all kneeling. This is done with solemnity and reverence. I could see, however, little or no evidence of any just views of true religion. With so little opportunity of judging, it would be folly to affirm that none such exists; but I fear the number of spiritually enlightened men is small. I was told that there was occasional preaching, and was shown a large stage in the open field used for this purpose. The printing of the Scriptures is still carried on, and that of the Old Testament extends to Joshua, if not further.

The above facts tend to increase the fears, rather than the hopes, which have been entertained with regard to the immediate effect of this revolutionary movement. As to the eventual result, we cannot doubt for a moment. Whatever the character of the insurgent chiefs, and whatever errors they may have imbibed, the Lord will make use of them, in answer to the prayers of his people, to prepare the way for the triumph of the truth in this land. We may well hope, too, that the publication of the Bible, even though the motives be purely selfish, will accomplish good. It is still God's word, and will not return unto him void. If the chiefs are indeed mere impostors, they have made a great mistake. What imposture ever yet succeeded by encouraging the people to read the word of God? Impostors have ever been afraid of the Bible. I do not think, however, that the way is yet open for missionary efforts at Nanking.

INDIA: LODIANA MISSION.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. C. W. FORMAN.

Country north of Rawal Pindi.

My Dear Sir—Since I last wrote you, I have made a tour in the country to the north of Rawal Pindi, visiting a number of large towns and villages. As the gospel had probably not been preached in some of these towns before, the readers of the Record will no doubt be glad to see some account of my journey.

Nurpur, its appearance and situation—a Mohammedan devotee.

The first place I went to was Nurpúr (Full of Light). Arrived there about ten o'clock at night. My camels had not come, and I could get nothing but a little grass to spread on the ground for a bed. The night was cold; but it is well for those who are better off to be taught occasionally, how much the poor constantly suffer. In the morning I found the town I was in, though consisting of a few mud huts, was a sweet place, situated near a beautiful clear stream, surrounded by mountains. Among the trees, which were numerous, but small, I noticed the fig, the sycamore, the cyprus, the mulberry, &c. On the banks of the stream are several little mills turned by the current. Well, in this pretty place, a "Shih" (or descendant of Mohammed) is buried, and there is an annual mela held here, when Musálmans from this part of the country, together with thousands of Patáns from the North, are collected here. Numbers of faqirs live in the forest around the shrine, and divide the offerings. These are professional faqirs, who find their business a profitable one; but near the shrine I saw one who seemed to be extremely poor. He was lying on the flat stones, with a stone for a pillow; nothing around him but an old well-worn blanket, and nothing over him but two little mats supported on a few twigs, one end of which was fastened between the stones. He seemed to have almost nothing besides what I have mentioned, and told me the other faqirs were very angry with him for lying there, but the chief of them, who was better than the rest, gave him a little cake of bread every day; this was all he got regularly, but sometimes he received more. I asked him what he would do with some rupees if I should give them to him. He replied that some one would murder him and take them away, and that they would kill him for his old blanket, if it were not for the English rule; that formerly murder was committed for a mere trifle. The people of the village were Hindus, and listened pretty well; but the faqirs in the forest seemed to consider me an enemy to their profession. There is not an idol in the village, but the Hindus and Sikhs, who are only a class of Hindus, worship the Grunt, and the Musálmans render almost divine honour to the saint who is buried there.

Other Musalman Faqirs.

The next village was also on the side of the same mountain, and almost equally pretty. This place is considered holy by the Hindus, on account of some springs of water which gush out from the mountain into tanks which have been made to receive it. On the side of one of these tanks sat a faqir, who read me a lecture on the vanity of sublunary things, but his love of the world and excessive vanity were most manifest. He affected to treat me with great indifference; but when he saw I really felt no more respect for him than for any one in the crowd around, he was not a little desirous of attracting my notice. He was living very much as the Musalman faqir whom I have mentioned, but was better fed. On the other side of the tank was living another faqir in a hole four feet high, two broad, and six long. The most extraordinary specimen of this class of men here, was a young man who had not spoken for several years. He walks about with his head uncovered, a blanket round his body, eats when anybody gives him bread, sleeps when he happens to become sleepy, and spends the greater part of the night in wandering, and seems to take almost no notice of anything which goes on around him. Nothing is more remarkable in the character of this people than their excessive vanity. While sitting in a Hindu synagogue, (a place where their books are kept and religious instruction given,) I was told there was a learned Musálman who wished to have a discussion with me, but required me to come to him, which I declined. After being much persuaded by the people, he at last came near the house where I was talking to the Hindus, and sent me word he would not come in till I came out and conducted him in, which, of course, I was willing to do. In the afternoon I had a long discussion with him, but as he was from the Usafzái country, we could not understand each other very well. However, with the assistance of a villager to interpret, we got on pretty well. I addressed several large groups of people during the day I spent here.

Controversy with a Mohammedan.

At the next town I met with a Háfiz, (one who can repeat the whole Koran from memory,) who began a discussion with me on the plan of salvation. He contended that Mohammed was their Mediator; but when pressed with the difficulty that Mohammed was himself a sinner, and required a Mediator, he did not know what to reply. He then said all sin would be purged away in hell, at least from Musálmans. He denied that there would be any sin in hell, as there was no means of gratification. He had to admit that sin pertained to desire, and that the morality of an act depended partly upon the desire with which it was done, though he had said the Koran taught the contrary doctrine. When he became tired of being driven from one point to another, he at last found out that I did not believe in the Koran, and that it was wrong to talk to an infidel. I spent two days in this town, and before I left not a few of the people seemed to understand the truths and doctrines of our religion.

Preaching to Hindus—Process of spinning goats' hair.

One afternoon I sat for an hour in a Hindu Dharam Sala (synagogue), and addressed a large congregation almost without any interruption. One man seemed to be pleased with the doctrines I taught, and said he believed, having read upon the same subject from a book which he had got from me at Rawal Pindi. He showed me the book, and it appeared to have been well used. A number of the shop-keepers here employ their leisure in spinning goats' hair into twine for sack-cloth. The process is rather singular. They twine a large, loosely twined rope of hair around the left arm, which they draw out into a thread, and it is twisted with a spindle which they twirl with the right hand, and allow to descend towards the ground, twisting the thread by its descent. They earn in this way the trifling amount of one pice (three-fourths of a cent) a day. The goats in this part of the country are very pretty, and their hair, which is four or five inches long, hangs very gracefully. One old man was engaged thus, who said he was a hundred years old, had had three sons; one died of illness, one was killed by a tiger, and the third was still alive.

The town of Shah-ki-Deri—preaching Christ, the way of salvation—Mohammedan cruelty.

The next place where I stopped was Shah-ki-Deri, (the little tent of the Shah,) from the number of the descendants of Mohammed who live here. The people, who are Musálmans, are almost all cultivators, and I could only have an opportunity of addressing them in the afternoon, after they returned from their fields; but as they return in time for the afternoon prayer, (4 o'clock,) I had an hour or two to teach them. They were willing to listen. At one time a number of people got upon the house by which I was standing, not being able to get near enough to hear me. At another time I went into the Musjid (mosque), and a large crowd soon assembled there; but the qázi was a vulgar, impudent man, and I fear my labour here was not much more profitable than agreeable. When I spoke of the love manifested in the death of Christ, there was something Satanic in the scorn with which he replied. However, I went away with the satisfaction of knowing I had set forth the only way of life to a great number of immortal beings whom I must meet in judgment. To get to this place, I came through a pass which had been paved by one of the Delhi kings, two or three hundred years ago, and where, a few years ago, no man could safely pass, without a guard. It is shocking to think of the little regard the people had for the lives of one another. I have been told that one day a Musálman cultivator saw a very poor Hindu going along, and he said to himself, Why should that miserable object live? and so, taking his sword, he cut off his head. This done he went to his work. Again he thought, it is a pity that the body should be thrown away; and so he took it to his field to enrich the ground.

Hazara—its history and natural scenery—Crowds of attentive listeners to preaching of the gospel.

On the 29th of March I arrived at Hazárá or Haripúr, a place of greater note than any I had seen since leaving Rawal Pindi, though it is not so large as it once was. The mud wall has been broken down, and the town bears the appearance of having been larger. I mentioned this to a native, and he replied, that during the first war between the Sikhs and the British, when nearly the whole Sikh army were on the Sutlej, the people of the neighbourhood, to the number of 18,000, arose and attacked the city, which was defended by two regiments of Sikhs. The insurgents were beaten off after the city had been besieged twenty-five days, and the people had been reduced to the last extremity. But the army, receiving no pay, became discontented, and their general took a large bribe from the insurgents, who again returned, and abandoned the town, which was plundered, and almost destroyed. From that time it has been a place of much less importance. But the walls, which could not protect the city under the Sikh rule, are not necessary to its safety under English rule. Such is the difference between the two governments. The locality of this place is very pretty. Mountains in the distance all around; two mountain streams, large enough to turn small mills, several of which are on each of them, run through two of the principal streets, and on their banks are many trees. Around the city are pretty little groves of fruit-trees, mulberries, &c. In my march to this place, crossed the Hara, a branch of the Indus, a clear, beautiful little river, and still further on, passed a village almost surrounded by fruit-trees, and vines running over mulberry trees. From this place I returned, having been told that the mountains I saw on one side, ten miles distant, were beyond the Indus, and belonged to an independent chief, and those on another belonged to the king of Cashmere. In Hazárá, as everywhere else, I had large crowds of hearers, who attended well to what I said, but none seemed to care about their souls. Oh! said one man, many roads lead to one place; so we shall all get to heaven, but in different ways. But, I said, if we turn our backs towards the place to which we wish to go, and move in a different direction, how long will it take to reach it? Another man made the same remark, but when I told him I did not think we could ever reach heaven by marching every day towards hell, he had nothing to say in reply.

Idolatrous practices.

As I passed through the street this morning, an old Hindú was making his offering to the sun. He sat on the bank of the stream, and dipping a curiously shaped little vessel into the water, put a single seed into it, and then holding it up, poured the water out towards the object of his worship. This he repeated a number of times. Further on, several Sikh priests were sitting under a pipal tree, reading their holy book. Had a long conversation with them. While I sat there, several women came with their offerings to the Book. They prostrated themselves, kissed the ground, and opening one corner of the cloth they wear over the upper part of the body, they took out a little wheat flour or pulu, and put it down before the book. A few copper coins I saw had also been offered.

Journey along the valley of the Hano—Controversy with a Musalman.

The second day after leaving Hazara on my return, taking a different road, I passed through a large valley, so cut up by water rushing down from the mountains during the rains, as to be almost entirely unfit for cultivation. In some places, the entire surface of the ground had been swept away, and fields of wheat were growing from twelve to twenty feet below the original surface of the country, which was still marked by masses of earth to that height. I was compelled to dismount, and perform almost the whole march on foot, crossing a great many ravines, whose banks were almost perpendicular, and some of them thirty or forty feet high. Before I reached my tent, the sun was excessively hot. My tent was pitched on a hill overlooking the Hano, which is at this point a mountain torrent. In the afternoon I collected a few Musulmans, and began to preach to them, but they wished me to meet their Maulwi, who they said was a very learned man. They seemed to think he was so great and so learned a man, that there could be no danger in following him. When he came, I told him the people had said he was very learned, and asked him if he could explain the cause of an eclipse. He could not. Did he know anything about geography? No; he knew nothing but religion. I then asked him some questions on this subject, partly to show the people that he did not know everything, and partly to bring him and them to see the defects of the Musalman faith, and to open the way to set forth the superiority of the gospel. But he could not answer these questions either; became very restless, and proposed that we should go to the mosque. We went; but instead of entering, he went on, saying he had some business to attend to before evening prayers. I waited till he returned to prayers. He paused near the entrance, and called all the people away from me. I went towards him; he looked at me angrily, and said, "Do you wish to turn me from my religion? I wo'nt bear it." He did not wait for a reply, but entered the mosque, and began to conduct prayers. I remained on the outside, talking with some persons who had not gone in to say their prayers; but between the parts of the prayers, (five in number,) some one from within cried out, "Let all good Musalmans go home, and infidels remain to listen to him." The people seemed alarmed, but still hesitated. When those who had been engaged in worship (I am sorry to abuse such a word) came out, it was manifest that they were greatly excited. One man with a sword came up to me, as though he would do me some personal violence. I tried to convince them that I had done nothing from enmity, and nothing to excite their enmity. Before the Qázi came out, he sent me word that he would argue with me if I remained till another day. I replied, my arrangements were made for going, but afterwards consented. It was manifest though, that his only object was to get rid of me. Directly he passed me, mortified and angry. I begged him to pause, but he would not even notice me. The shout was again raised, "Let all good Musalmans go home, and infidels remain." I told them their Qázi was using the strongest possible arguments against their religion; for soldiers only leave a citadel when it begins to fall.

Continues his journey over the mountains—Bigotry of Mohammedans in this region.

The next day, having dismissed the bullocks which had been carrying my baggage for several days, and engaged mules to carry it over the mountains, set off before day-break. The mountain was very steep, and the road only a path winding around its sides. Had to walk much of the way; my horse being scarcely able to climb the mountain alone; but the nimble little mules, though heavily loaded, had but little difficulty either in the ascent or descent. Pitched my tent at a village of farmers and weavers. In the afternoon, a large crowd collected where I was talking with one of their religious guides. They were much incensed by my declaring that Mohammed was a sinner, which I proved from his death, and his own assertions—not mentioning his acts, lest I should give greater offence. They were exceedingly unreasonable and rude. A young man started to go to my tent with me, intending to go on to Rawal Pindi, to get medicine, but the people shouted to him to come back. What! they said, will you be a Christian?

Return to Rawal Pindi—Interesting case of a Sunday School scholar—Theft committed.

On the 2d of April, I came into Rawal Pindi again. The next day, when I was preaching in the Bazar, several soldiers of an Irish regiment passed by. After returning to my tent, one of them came in, and began to address me in a very humble but earnest manner. At first I did not understand him. He then said, "My heart goes out to you, sir. I know what you and the like of you have to suffer. I used to read accounts of these things when I was a Sunday-school scholar." I afterwards learned from him that his father was intemperate, and his mother a Roman Catholic. But he had been a Sunday-school scholar, and perhaps to this fact is to be attributed his interest in missions and in religion. This simple incident may be as cheering to some Sunday-school teacher as it was to me. Continued reading till almost midnight. Had just fallen asleep, when I was aroused by the sliding of my trunk on the ground. I sprang up; it was gone. I ran out crying thief! but it was too late; the night was dark, and neither trunk nor thief could be seen. Search was continued till morning, when the trunk, rifled of its principal contents, was found, broken in from top and bottom. My watch, which I brought from America, a gold pen sent to me by a friend, and a coat presented by another friend, were among the things missing.

Since my return to Rawal Pindi, I have preached almost every day to the people, but none seem disposed to give serious, earnest attention to what they hear. Sometimes even the Musalmans admit the truth and importance of what they are taught. May God be pleased to accept what has been done, and to grant those influences without which all will be in vain.

INDIA: ALLAHABAD MISSION.

REPORT OF THE SUB-STATION AT FUTTEHPORE.

The Rev. Gopeenath Nundy sends us the following account of his labours at Futtehpore, under date of May 2, 1854. Our readers will desire to see this statement of our native Christian brother just as he wrote it himself.

It is now more than a year since I am come here, and have taken charge of this branch mission; but I am extremely sorry that I have not hitherto written you a line, for which I cannot bring forward any excuse, except that since my arrival I had been excessively busy with different portions of my labour; but I trust in future I will be able to write oftener. I have no doubt you receive information with regard to our labours at Futtehpore, in our mission letters; still, a statement from me, I trust, will not be uninteresting or unacceptable.

Boys' School Department.

English Head Teacher, ————. English Second Teacher, Thomas Cone Spencer. English Monitor, Rogunauth (Brahumun). Hindi Teacher, Pundit Bunshidhur. Persian Linguist, Jomayal Auby. Persian Monitors, Ishory, Pershudz.

The school is daily opened and closed with prayers, when all the teachers, students, and servants, are made to attend. The hours for instruction are from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. The number of scholars in the roll is 187, but on account of constant marriages and festivals, the average attendance of boys is 90, and of Putwaris 50; total 140. Four different languages are taught, viz., English, Persian, Urdoo, and Hindi. Since the head teacher has left this, on account of ill health, I have to remain the whole day in the school, and perform his duty, in addition to the superintending of the whole school.

English Department.—1st class, boys 11. Their studies are, Bible—Old and New Testaments, Shorter Catechism, Goldsmith's Geography, use of the Globes, McPherson's Geography of Hindustan, History of India, Murray's Large Grammar, Playfair's Geometry, First Book, Composition—writing on paper, and translation from English into Hindustani, and Hindustani into English, and Vulgar Fractions. 2d class, boys 24. Their studies are, New Testament, English Reader No. 3, Clift's Geography, Woolloston's Grammar and Catechism, Writing and Cyphering. 3d class, boys 26. Their studies are English Reader No. 1, Catechism, and writing on slates.

Urdoo and Persian Department.—Boys 30. Their studies are, St. Luke's Gospel, Catechism, History of the Jews, and several Persian books, Writing and Cyphering.

Hindi Department.—Boys 32. Their studies are St. Luke's Gospel, Catechism and Substance of the Bible, Writing and Cyphering.

Putwari Department.—Putwaris 64. Their studies are New Testament in Hindi, Substance of the Bible, and Government Putwari Books, Writing and Cyphering.

An account of the Putwaris.

These Putwaris, or last mentioned class, are village record keepers. They are appointed by Government, and their business is, not only to keep records of their respective villages, but to collect revenues, and are held responsible to government for everything which is done in their respective villages. They are also called to bear witness when there may be disputes amongst Zamindars (land holders) and cultivators. These are grown up men; some of them are as old as fifty years. They are paid out of revenues, and each of them has under his charge about three villages. There are 13 Purganohs or grand divisions of Futtehpore, and 1613 villages; so there are about 538 Putwaris. These men have a great deal of authority over their respective villages, and I may say, without their knowledge scarcely anything is done in villages. According to one of the late orders of Government, that all these men should learn to read, write, and conduct all their business in Hindi language, of Nagri character, to which they were altogether unaccustomed, and consequently in each of the six Tuseldaries, (places where the revenues are kept under the care of a native officer,) schools were established. Here I must say that our good government, when it took the country, pledged that they were not to interfere directly with the religion of the country; yet this order will have a great tendency to facilitate the cause of our blessed religion; for hitherto there were no less than half a dozen of different characters for this Hindi language, and our Scriptures and tracts, which were principally published of Nagri characters, were not read without much difficulty; but now, as this will be the court language, our books will have free course. Praise be to God!

The Futtehpore Tusildary stands in front of our school-house, and prior to the establishment of the school at Tusildary, four Putwaris, who lived near the school-house premises, came to our school to be instructed in the language government required, and which was taught in our school. These men were ordered back by the Tusildar when the school under his care was established, but they expressed a desire to return to ours. When I mentioned this to our magistrate and collector, Mr. E——, who is a devoted Christian, he not only issued orders to allow them to come back, but as many of the others as chose to come to our school. The consequence was, that the government school was broken up, and our one was filled up with the whole number of Putwaris, about 50. The agreement I made with them was, that three hours of every day they were to read government books, and the other three our Scripture, attend prayer and Sabbath meetings. The breaking up of the government school was a great annoyance to the head native officer under whose immediate superintendance the school was, and he being a bigoted Mohammedan, and a great opposer to Christianity, tried his utmost to break up our schools; but thanks be to God, all his attempts were brought to nothing. This very man was appointed as an examiner, and when he came the other day, he was highly pleased to find the Putwaris passed examination to his entire satisfaction. He gave 16 of them, who were fit to conduct business in Nagri character, certificates of proficiency in the language, and I gave each a copy of the entire Hindi Testament, to carry it home, with a promise that they were to read it, and occasionally come to me for further instruction; and I am glad to say that some of them have already come, and showed what they had read. By this way we will send the gospel news through the whole district, and, indeed, we could not get better agents. The Agra Bible Society has very kindly furnished me with 150 copies of entire Hindi Testament, and I have no doubt they will give as many as I would require. Thanks be to His great and holy name.

Jail School Department.

Teacher, Kharaty (native Christian).

There were neither preaching nor teaching done in the jail before I came to Futtehpore and on my arrival here I mentioned to Mr. E——, our magistrate, the privilege I had at Futtehgurh jail in teaching and preaching to the prisoners; and this was known to the late Lieutenant-Governor, who very wisely though indirectly sanctioned it, and said as long as they were performed by me, being a native, and that judiciously, without raising any disturbance, I might be allowed to go on. Mr. E——, hearing this, at once agreed that I should do the same, and with his sanction, I commenced my labour in the jail. There are about 400 prisoners. Their secular reading is superintended by the magistrate, but the religious instructions are given by me. Their studies are, New Testament, both in Hindustani and in Hindi, Leinkuh ki tuhkih (search after true religion), Catechism, and different kinds of tracts, besides government books. There are three classes of prisoners; 1st, Those for debts. 2d, those for less crimes, exempt from labour, and 3d, those for greater crimes, with chains and labour. The time allotted for their reading is for the first two classes in the morning, and for the third, after 4 P. M., when they return from their labour. Those who are advanced in reading act as monitors under Kharaty. Their teacher and myself go three times in every week.

Girls' School Department.

Patroness, Mrs. Edmonstone. Superintendent, Mrs. Nundy. School Mistress, Mrs. Lucy Trissler.

This school has been established since November last. The prejudice of the people against sending their girls to the school has been, and still is, very strong. For the first two months there were not more than four girls, but I am glad to say that at present there are 36 names on the roll; daily average attendance, 28 girls. Their studies are, first class, St. John's Gospel in Hindi, and Catechism; second class, Hindi spelling book, and easy lessons; and third class, Primers. All of them learn common needle work. The school is opened and closed with prayers, same as the boys', and the hours of instruction are from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. Here I would say a word or two with regard to the establishment of this school. Both Mrs. Nundy and myself, ever since we have come here, contemplated to establish a school same as she had at Futtehgurh, but for want of means we were unable to do it. One day we mentioned this to our kind friend Mrs. E——, who kindly consented to lend her aid, and I am glad to say she takes a deep interest, and contributes for its support. May God give her long life, and may he raise many ladies like her for the good of the benighted females of this country.

Preaching department.

Catechist, Kasim Ali. Scripture Reader, W. H. Trissler.

Preaching is done more or less every day, either at Futtehpore bazar, or at Abernugur, or at some nearest villages. Two evenings in every week are spent in visiting, and preaching to respectable natives in their houses. Pundits and Maulwis, as well as wealthy people, are like the old Pharisees; they think it a degradation to their high rank, to stand along with common people in a bazar, or in a street, to hear the gospel, but they make little or no objection, if such were done in their houses; and I think every preacher of the gospel should devote a portion of his time in visiting the respectable class of people, as they have a very great influence over the common people. I have done so as much as time permitted, and am glad to say, that I always found a ready audience, with apparent respect to the religion I preached. We have also visited several Melahs, and itinerated in different villages in last cold season. The prisoners in our jail have had the privilege of hearing the gospel preached to them on every Sabbath morning. May God look down from above with mercy and kindness upon this degraded set of people, and bless the instructions imparted to them for the conversion of their souls, to the glory of his blessed name.

We have a small chapel built on our premises, and divine service is performed every Sabbath, both morning and afternoon, and on Wednesday night in Hindustani. Our congregation consists of, adult members, 12; of these, 11 are communicants. Infant members, 15. Enquirers, 3. Total, 30. The Putwaris, after attending the Bible class, which has been exclusively made for them, when a chapter from the Scripture is read and explained, go to one of the services of the Sabbath. Our Christian people have a separate Bible class. They also read a portion from the Scripture, with explanation, and learn the General Assembly's Catechism, and commit to memory hymns. Five infants have been admitted by holy baptism into the church of Christ, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper is administered every second month. May the blessed Spirit make us all lively, faithful, and zealous Christians, and teach us to trust upon Him who is the only preserver of this little flock, and to his name be all the honour, glory, and praise, both now and for evermore.

We have also established a Relief Society, for the benefit of indigent people, as well as for destitute travellers. There is a hospital in connection with this Society, where such people are sheltered, and supported by the Society's fund, but they receive medical aid and medicines from Government. About three hundred poor people are gathered every Saturday morning on our premises, and after preaching them the word of life, they are dismissed with about a seer of Ata (flour) each.

The following is a list of the names of contributors, with their monthly subscriptions:

	Boys' School.	Girls' School.	Relief Soc.
Mrs. Edmonstone,		20 Rs.
R. J. Tucker, Esq.	50 Rs.	5 "	50 Rs.
G. Edmonstone, Esq.	20 "		20 "
F. Wigram, Esq.	3 "	5 "	2 "
T. W. Seyers, Esq.			2 "
G. N. Nundy,			2 "

Besides these monthly subscriptions, I occasionally receive donations, both from them, as well as from friends at out-stations. I try my utmost not only to impress into their minds the importance of the thing that they should take interest in our schools, but to support them as Christians and rulers of the country, and I am glad to inform you that I have not yet found lack of funds. May our heavenly Father always raise friends to assist us in his blessed cause.

In last cold season, when we had public examination of our schools, the present Lieutenant-Governor, Honorable J. R. Colvin, when passing through the station, halted a day, and favoured us with his company, to see the examination; and though little was to be seen then, as the school was in its infancy, yet he seemed much pleased, especially with the progress which the Putwaris had made, and as a mark of approbation, he promised to give us the use of the school-house, which is a government property, and which he has since done; he also promised a set of maps for the school. The following is a copy of the letter which he wrote to me after he returned from the examination.

"Camp, Futtehpore, Dec. 13, 1853.

"My dear Gopeenath—Pray order up a set of maps of Scriptural Geography from Calcutta, and let them be regarded as a gift from me to your school, which I heartily hope may take good root, and prosper here. Maps of Palestine and the adjacent countries are, I think, to be had of G. C. Hay & Co. Cossitola. You can, after you have inquired about them, let Major Grant know the cost of buying them and bringing them up here. He will send the means to you. Very faithfully yours, J. R. Colvin. The Rev. Gopeenath Nundy."

He is a very excellent man, and takes a great interest in native education. May God make him a blessing to the country.

Now I must conclude; but before I do so, a word or two I must say as to the kindness shown us since our arrival here by the Allahabad brethren. They were never backward in giving us their good advice, at times of trouble and difficulty, and always ready to pray and sympathize with us in times of sickness and affliction.

And now may I beg you, and the members of the Committee, to send up their prayers to the throne of grace in behalf of this newly established branch mission, that He may send down his Holy Spirit upon each of the labourers, and make us all faithful in the discharge of our respective duties, and may he make us, feeble instruments as we are, to bring sinners to Jesus Christ. We have many trials and difficulties to overcome, but His grace is all-sufficient, and to his holy and blessed name be all honour and glory. My Christian and respectful regards to you, and all the members of the Committee.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

In September, 1854.

Synod of Albany.—Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 1st ch, to con Moses Pettingell, Mrs Mary H Pettingell, Miss Sarah Caldwell, William Pritchard, Mrs Elizabeth Cushing, Miss Phebe Harrod, Joseph Morss, and Samuel Todd 1 m's 250. Pby of Troy—Malta ch 8. Pby of Columbia—Jewett ch 8 266 00

Synod of Buffalo.—Pby of Michigan—Lyon ch, James S Roger 16 00

Synod of New York.—Pby of North River—Smithfield ch 6. Pby of Bedford—Croton Falls ch, Sab sch to ed Hy Thos Lee 12 50. Pby of New York—Wallabout ch mo con 14 19; Madison Aven ch mo con 30; Chelsea ch "a member" 20; Williamsburg ch mo con 25 17; Yorkville ch mo con 11 20; New York 1st ch ann coll in part 2000 2119 06

Synod of New Jersey.—Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch mo con 7 32. Pby of West Jersey—Camden ch 6 50. Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing ch 8; Canton ch 15; Towanda ch 3; Burlington ch 4; Friendsville ch 2; Silver Lake ch 1. Pby of Burlington—Mount Holly ch 30 76 82

Synod of Philadelphia.—Pby of Philadelphia—Kensington ch 23 50; Tenth ch mo con 58 92; Penn ch, Miss Ellen Rose 20; Second ch Sab sch miss soc to ed Eleanor Cuyler, Mary Rice, James Nassau, and William Dulty 100; Sixth ch "a member" 100; Port Richmond 1st ch Sab sch 6 31. Pby of Baltimore—Annapolis ch 25; Baltimore co, Md, 100. Pby of Carlisle—Silver Spring ch, A Cathcart 5; Tom's Creek and Piney ch, Margaret Stewart 4, Susan Row 2 50, Miss McKeekar 2 50, Barbara Hinters 1, Dr A Annan 5, Margaret Witherow 10, Stirling Gault 2, John Gault 1, Miss Horner 1, John Thompson 5, Silas Horner 5, James McAllister 2, Jacob Shewmoker 5, Smith Barr 2, Alex Horner 5, A lady friend 5, Miss Margaret Stewart 2. Pby of Northumberland—Rohrsburg ch fem miss soc 10 50 509 23

Synod of Pittsburgh.—Pby of Blairsville—Ligonier ch 12 30; Cross Roads ch 9 50. Pby of Redstone—Long Run ch 31 90; Connellsville ch 62; Dunlap's Creek ch 32 57; Greensburg ch 28. Pby of Ohio—Pittsburgh 1st ch "a member" 1 50; East Liberty ch Adonijah, bal to con Mrs Robert H Heberton, of Philadelphia 1 m 20 197 77

Synod of Wheeling.—Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 2d ch 3 66. Pby of New Lisbon—Liverpool ch 5; Rehoboth ch, ladies 10 18 66

Synod of Ohio.—Pby of Wooster—Canal Fulton ch 7 25; Sugar Creek ch 5 55; Jackson ch 16; Chippewa ch in part to con Andrew Elliott 1 m 20 75; Northfield ch 25 66; Springfield ch 15 90 11

Synod of Cincinnati.—Pby of Miami—Springfield ch, Infant Sab sch 10 00

Synod of Indiana.—Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 4; New Washington ch 13 50. Pby of Indianapolis—Shiloh 1st ch 2 57. Pby of Palestine—Palestine ch 7 27 07

Synod of Northern Indiana.—Pby of Logansport—Peru 2d ch 11. Pby of Crawfordsville—New Hope ch 5 16 00

Synod of Illinois.—Pby of Peoria—Farmington ch 11 50; Middleport ch 11. Pby of Chicago—Genoa and Coon Creek ch 2 24 50

Synod of Iowa.—Pby of Cedar—Muscatine 1st ch 20 00

Synod of Kentucky.—Pby of Louisville—First ch mo con 23 75; Second ch mo con 12 40; Mulberry ch 29 35 65 50

Synod of Virginia.—Pby of West Hanover—College ch mo con 43 57, Robert C Anderson 2 50; Finney Wood ch 34 13; Blue Stone ch 10. Pby of East Hanover—Richmond 2d ch mo con 27. Pby of Montgomery—Salem ch ann coll 65 75 182 95

Synod of North Carolina.—Pby of Orange—Hillsboro' ch 18 70. Pby of Fayetteville—Wimington ch juv soc 10 25 28 95

Synod of Alabama.—Pby of Tuscaloosa—Pleasant Ridge ch 21 10; Gainesville ch Sab sch to ed J L Kirkpatrick at Corisco 4 90 26 00

Synod of Mississippi.—Pby of Louisiana—New Orleans 2d ch Sab sch to ed John A Steele 23 75; New Orleans 1st ch mo cons 50, Sab sch to ed William Gardiner, Andrew Brown, George H Shepherd, Joanna Lloyd, Eliza Smith, and Cynthia Bunce Perlee 150 223 75

Synod of Texas.—Pby of Brazos—Houston ch 43 15, Sab sch to ed Miller Texas at Ningpo 40 83 15

Total from churches, $4,001 52

Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church.—Rec'd from Treasurer of Synod for sup of Messrs Campbell, Caldwell, and Woodside in Northern India 900 00

Legacies.—Merrittstown, Pa, Legacy of Miss Caroline Johnston 25; Washingtonville, Pa, bequest of Rev John H Rittenhouse 15 40 00

Miscellaneous.—An Old Presbyterian 25; White Deer Valley, Pa, Charles A Luiberg for church in Favale 5, and for Bible distribution in Italy 5; New York, a Lady 75; A B S, a mite in support of the Master's cause 20; Source unknown 15; Harrisburg, Pa, Mrs Martha Simonton 5, N Burnett 2; Shirleysburg, Pa, John Brewster 80; Chatham Run, Pa, John Hamilton 5; A reader of the Presbyterian Banner 5 242 00

Total receipts in August, $5,183 52

Special Contributions for the Waldenses.—Amount previously reported, $9798 73
New Berlin, Pa, Master Bruce Adams 1; Columbia City, Ind, Mrs Ruth Walker 2 3 00 9801 73

WM. RANKIN, Jr., Treasurer.

Donations in Clothing, &c.—Ladies of Rehoboth ch Ohio, one box clothing 57 65; Pleasant Prairie ch Ill, Ladies, one box clothing 20; New York Friends, one box clothing; Female For Miss Soc of Deerfield ch, Ohio, one barrel clothing to con Mrs Sally A Lazarus 1 m 78

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Letters relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to Walter Lowrie, Esq., the Rev. John C. Lowrie, or the Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

Letters relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to William Rankin, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

Payments of Moneys for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

Boxes of Clothing, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

The Foreign Missionary is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

Overland Letters.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

Form of Bequest.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. W. E. Schenck, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M.D. Treasurer.

RESIGNATION OF THE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

At a meeting of the Board, held August 15, 1854, the following communication was received from the Rev. B. M. Smith:

Office of the Board of Publication,
August 14, 1854.

To the Rev. President and Members of the Presbyterian Board of Publication:

Christian Brethren:—It is with sincere reluctance and deep regret that I tender to you the resignation of my office of Corresponding Secretary, to take effect on the last day of October next.

By a most solemn and afflictive dispensation of Divine Providence, the Union Theological Seminary was deprived, last spring, of one of its most eminent and accomplished Professors, the lamented Rev. Dr. Sampson. At a meeting of the Electoral College of that Institution, in June last, I was unanimously and cordially invited to fill the vacancy thus unexpectedly made. Of course, this event could not have been contemplated when I entered on your service. It has been as unexpected by us all, as unsought by myself.

From leading ministers and elders of all the Presbyteries constituting the two Synods which are concerned in the management of the Seminary, I am assured that this election has found a cordial response in all the churches in that part of the country. The exigencies of the Institution, in the opinion of its wisest and most judicious friends, most urgently require that the vacancy in its chairs of instruction, should be promptly and properly filled. However truly unworthy I feel myself, to be entrusted with this solemn and responsible office, those who have called me to it, most earnestly press on me the duty of acceptance, on their confident conviction that, humanly speaking, no other available means of supplying the place are within their power. Others whom I have consulted, who fully appreciate the claims of the Board, also express their persuasion that they should yield to the interests of the Seminary.

For these, and similar considerations, after earnest prayer for Divine guidance, I have reached the conclusion, with as much clearness as can be reasonably expected in this world of ignorance and mistake, that I ought to accept the service to which I have been called.

I desired to make the announcement of this purpose to you at an earlier period, but was prevented by the failure of the Board to hold a meeting in July. The interests of the Seminary seemed to require some public intimation of my intentions before the time for the present meeting. This decision has cost me a severe struggle. I deeply feel my obligations to you for the confidence with which you have honoured me, and the indulgence with which you have tolerated my poor services. I never so highly appreciated the importance of the post I occupy. I have found its duties, however onerous and responsible, exceedingly consonant with my tastes, and in their performance, have enjoyed, beyond my merits, the co-operation and sympathies of many of our most honoured and useful men in other parts of the Church, as well as of those with whom I have been officially connected.

In the proposed change, I have no personal interests to promote. Were my feelings alone consulted, I would prefer, above all other positions, as the chief joy of my heart, the pastoral office among my beloved people. But I humbly trust, that He who has so clearly called me from them and from you, will give grace for all the duties required, and make my highest earthly happiness the result of a conscientious effort to follow the indications of His wise and holy providence.

With the assurances of my cordial and fraternal regard, I am, in Christian bonds, yours truly,

B. M. Smith.

On motion, the resignation of Mr. Smith was accepted, and the Rev. Dr. Musgrave, Judge Jones, and Mr. J. P. Engles, were appointed a Committee to prepare a minute on the subject, and report at the next meeting of the Board. Accordingly, the following minute was reported at the next meeting, September 19, adopted and ordered to be put on the minutes, and a copy sent to Mr. Smith:

Whereas, The Rev. Benjamin M. Smith, in consequence of his acceptance of a Professorship in the Union Theological Seminary, to which he had been elected by the Synods of Virginia and North Carolina, has tendered to the Board of Publication his resignation of the office of Corresponding Secretary and General Agent, which resignation has been accepted; therefore,

Resolved, That while this Board regret the loss of an able and diligent officer, they have felt it to be their duty, under the circumstances, to accept his resignation.

Resolved, That the faithful and efficient services of the late Secretary, were highly appreciated by us, and are entitled to the thanks, not only of the Board, but of the whole Church, which is so deeply interested in the spread of a sound and healthful literature.

Resolved, That the gentlemanly and Christian deportment of Mr. Smith while among us, has secured our highest respect and esteem, and he has our best wishes and most earnest prayers for his happiness and usefulness in the sphere in which Providence has placed him.

G. W. Musgrave,
Joel Jones,
J. P. Engles.

NEW CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

At the same meeting, the Rev. W. E. Schenck was duly elected Corresponding Secretary and General Agent of the Board, and is expected to enter on the duties of his office on the 1st of November.

The retiring Secretary will be pardoned by the readers of the Record, a brief expression of a few thoughts suggested on this occasion.

For nearly a year he has endeavoured, from month to month, to fill these pages with such thoughts as might awaken a zealous co-operation in the work of the Board, on the part of those who perused them. He feels truly grateful for such opportunities of communicating to so many minds the important suggestions which the progress of the work of the Board has called forth. For any expressions which, in the hurry of composition, may have been used, calculated to mislead any, or wound the feelings of the most sensitive, he begs pardon, and earnestly prays that every good thought and suggestive statement, may be more and more abundantly blessed.

He retires from the service of the Board with a deepened conviction of the vast importance of the work assigned it, both to our Church and country. With spared health and moral capacity for the service, he would most cheerfully have continued at his post, had not the plain leadings of Providence pointed his way to another sphere of labour. He bespeaks for his successor in these brief and pleasant editorial duties, the kind indulgence and candid estimates which he has been permitted to enjoy, and trusts that the readers of the Record may be multiplied more and more, and their interest and zeal in this important department of usefulness, increase with its increasing necessity for our growing population. Commending his readers to the blessing of a gracious God, and humbly asking their prayers for him in the field of service to which he goes, he affectionately bids them farewell.

B. M. S.

SYSTEMATIC BENEVOLENCE.

Though this subject is one of general interest, in its relations to all our Boards, and the progress of Christian enterprises throughout our whole Church, yet it is matter of special interest to the Board of Publication, to note that the action of the last Assembly, and the circular sent to the Presbyteries last winter, have, together, secured from many Presbyteries evidences of a new and zealous concern for promoting our enterprise. Resolutions recognising the claims of this Board to the contributions of our churches, towards sustaining its colporteurs, have been passed, with great cordiality and unanimity, and the action of the last Assembly on "Systematic Benevolence" has been recognised as proper, and made the basis for such arrangements on the subject as, we trust, will be productive of great and permanent increase of our income. It is only necessary for church courts and pastors to take proper action on the matter, to secure a liberal response from our people. We believe no pastor ever appeals in vain to his people, in behalf of any proper cause of Christian benevolence.

A GOOD OLD BOOK.

There is lying before us an old book, with which is connected a most interesting history, strikingly illustrating several important truths relative to the enterprise of book distribution. We have space for but a few of the most prominent facts.

In the year 18—, a gentleman and lady travelling in P——— county, Virginia, stopped during the heat of the day at a well known tavern in that part of the country. Their host was an open-hearted, kind, and honest man, but notoriously careless of divine things—a neglecter of the sanctuary, and entirely indifferent on all religious subjects. To entertain herself during the hours of rest, the lady asked him for some book to read. He apologized for his slender supply, while he handed her this old volume and a few others. The book lacks a title-page, table of contents, some forty or fifty pages of the beginning, and we know not how many of the end. It purports, however, so far as can be seen, to be a compendious treatise of the great truths of the gospel, basing very fervent and earnest exhortations on clear and forcible summaries of doctrinal instruction. Thus, the original righteousness and happiness of man, and his fallen state; the method of recovery, as well as its necessity; the work of Christ, his humiliation and exaltation; faith, regeneration, the office of the Spirit, with collateral and subordinate topics, occupy the larger part of the work. It seems to consist of four parts, or books. The topics mentioned are treated in three of them, and the fourth, which is defective, treats of the Church and the ordinances, and practices of religion. After reading the book till ready to set out on her journey, the lady begged to buy it. Her host declined, and offered as a reason that it had belonged to his mother. The lady then asked him to promise to read it; to which he assented, remarking that he had made that promise to his mother, but had never kept it. For sometime after his guests left him, he continued to neglect the old book. However, on a Sabbath when his home was quiet, and time was heavy on his hands, he undertook to fulfil his long-neglected promise. But, as may well be supposed, such a man found such a book anything but interesting. He persevered, dosing and weary as he was. Presently some of its statements arrested his attention; he became a little interested, but not enough to secure, at that time, perseverance in reading, though enough to bring him back to the undertaking in a week or ten days. He now began to question the truth of the startling statements he read; then to attempt to verify the frequent references to Scripture. This, he often said, gave him no little trouble, by reason of his profound ignorance of even the order of the books of the Bible. However, he could not give up. His soul was touched. He began to see and feel that he was just the sinner there described. One perusal did not satisfy him. He gave the book another. But he was cautious that no one should see him reading it. In the course of a few weeks he had found his interest in the book transferred to the Bible, to whose contents its perusal had now introduced him. The more he studied the sacred page the deeper grew his distress, till he was led to prayer, and to a sincere and cordial resting on Christ for salvation.

Meanwhile, he had sought no counsel, communicated with no one, and though not himself knowing how to express the truth in words, was, by his conduct, a changed man. He now sought the house of God, and his neighbours were all surprised one morning to see him appear in a Methodist chapel in his vicinity. He said he never retained the text, but the substance of the sermon was such a description of the great change, as may be often heard from any evangelical pulpit. After the service he sought the minister, and began to tell his coincidence of views with what had been preached. He was still entirely ignorant of the terms for describing a conversion to God; and while joyfully sensible of a most humbled, trusting, and prayerful frame of mind, made no pretension to be a convert. The minister, however, soon discovered that the inquirer had been taught of God, and gladly welcomed him as one born from above, showing him how his experience justified the declaration of a belief, that he had been brought into a state of salvation.

The subject of this narrative still lives, a consistent and cheerful Christian, and most peculiarly and strongly attached to the great doctrines of grace. He values his "old book" most highly, and barely permits it to go out of his possession. Many efforts have been made to find a duplicate, but unsuccessfully.

Our readers can draw their own inferences. We do not pretend to say that similar results will follow every book we put in circulation; and yet, we thus see, how seed may lie buried long, and yet spring up and bear fruit. Let us not be weary in well-doing, but aim at all times to be about the Master's business. The few hours spent by the lady at the tavern, were perhaps regarded as mere leisure time, charged with no special duty, and the few words she addressed to her host cost her but little effort, and yet, humanly speaking, to these providences, apparently so unimportant, results are to be ascribed which eternity alone can fully reveal. Let us be instant, in season and out of season, and sow our bread by many waters.

NEED OF SABBATH-SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

The following extract from a letter of one labouring among great destitutions, forcibly appeals to those who wish to do good. The Board can find scores and hundreds of such opportunities for donations of libraries, which may be the seed of churches over our great Western, as well as other destitutions.

"Our Sabbath-school does not flourish quite as well as formerly. This, perhaps, is owing, in a great measure, to the want of a more extensive library. We are not able, at present, to purchase such a library as we need. The books we now have are out of date, having been read over and over again, until the children have lost their relish for them. I find it impossible to influence a child, or an adult, to love the Bible or any good book in which he does not feel deeply concerned."

CONGREGATIONAL LIBRARIES.

From an early period in the history of the Board, a great and proper importance has been attached to the enterprise of supplying our congregations with libraries. Repeated action of our ecclesiastical courts, from the highest to the lowest, has set this matter frequently before our people. One of our agents in the South, Rev. Mr. Baird, has most zealously urged it on the attention of the churches in that region. The Board, it is true, cannot afford to employ agents for the exclusive work of inducing congregations to avail themselves of the facilities afforded for forming libraries. But they rejoice to know that an awakening spirit in this matter is any where and by any means excited. The true way of effecting this object is for each pastor to undertake this work in his own charge. We present below an extract from a letter recently received from a pastor in South Carolina, which furnishes an example of what one zealous and enterprising man may effect. And it is encouraging to notice the blessing which has followed his judicious enterprise.

"There is one thing that is of great importance to many of our congregations, which you will permit me to mention; it is congregational libraries. I think all congregations ought to have them. When I came here in January last, the two congregations to which I preach had no congregational libraries. But seeing the great necessity of something of the kind, I made an effort, and we have obtained a library for each church; each library contains about 150 volumes. Although these books are generally small, yet it is astonishing with what eagerness they are read. The Great Supper, African Preacher, Miller on Presbyterianism, John Barr, and Dickinson's Five Points, with others too tedious to mention, are among the readable books. There are several persons who are serious, and who will probably unite with the church soon, that read these books with great interest. Many read now who had never been accustomed to read religious works. There are several advantages arising from congregational libraries; one is, that it enables the poor to read many books that they cannot purchase; and another advantage, it prepares the way for our colporteurs; for the more people read, the more they wish to read. More than this, those libraries diffuse light which may be sanctified to the salvation of souls."

A minister in North Carolina, who also ministers to two congregations, writes:

"I proposed to my congregations to raise $100 each, for the purchase of the Minister's, the Congregational, and the Sabbath-school Libraries, which they have done."

This will give to each congregation nearly 350 volumes, which will not suffer in comparison with those of any publishing house or society in the country.

OUR DOCTRINAL BOOKS VALUED.

A colporteur in Ohio thus writes:

In general, I have found the people anxious to obtain a supply of the standard doctrinal works, and sensible of the importance of doctrinal knowledge. The churches are generally feeble, and in some instances have strong opposition to encounter, from opposers of the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church, who too often misrepresent them, and excite the prejudices of the uninformed portion of the community. To these churches, the visits of your colporteur have been seasonable, and truly welcome. Our members have found it impossible to obtain works on disputed points for themselves and for their families heretofore, excepting in a few churches, visited within a few years. In one instance, an aged mother, seeing Dr. Miller's Tract on Baptism, remarked, "If I could only have obtained this before my daughter was led away by the Campbellites! but now it is too late." With my opportunity, the past summer, of observing the influence of a few sound doctrinal works, and of careful instruction on doctrinal subjects, on the youth thus blessed with faithful and judicious Christian parents, I have felt the necessity of endeavouring to reach every one of our families with my invaluable treasure, and striving to impress upon the minds of all, the importance of being rooted and grounded in the great truths of the gospel.

Sometimes a Christian mother, having a careless husband, or being a widow, or otherwise placed in limited circumstances, has selected a volume which she had not quite the means to pay for, and I have granted the balance. In other cases, families have been found, in connection with the Church, destitute of doctrinal works, and having but few religious books, without means to pay for them at the time of my visit, and I have left such a work as seemed to be adapted to their wants.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS ANECDOTES, with others of a more general description. By John Whitecross. Revised by the Editor of the Board. 2 vols. 12mo, pp. 163, 175. Price 75 cents.

Mr. Whitecross is a veteran in anecdote. These appear to have been the leavings of his former selections, and yet they are by no means to be regarded as dross. On the contrary, they are peculiarly striking and appropriate for the various subjects they are designed to illustrate, and will entertain and instruct those especially who have little time for much continuous reading.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Bedford.
Mount Kisco ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr, Treas	$6 50
Presbytery of New Brunswick.
2d ch Trenton, Rev A D White 14; Pennington ch, per Rev George Hale 16	30 00
Presbytery of West Jersey.
Blackwoodtown ch, Rev J Burtt, per J Livermore 14; 1st ch Bridgeton, Rev S B Jones, D D 80, of which 30 is to con Miss M K ELMER hon mem	94 00
Presbytery of Susquehanna.
Towanda ch, per Rev Julius Foster, through Bd of Missions	3 00
Presbytery of Philadelphia.
From the Juvenile Missionary Society of the 9th ch, per Archibald Little, Treas	21 80
Presbytery of Donegal.
Chanceford ch, Rev J Farquhar	5 87
Presbytery of Baltimore.
Annapolis ch, per J Ridout, M D, through Bd of Missions	5 00
Presbytery of Washington.
Third ch Wheeling, Rev Edgar Woods	17 00
Presbytery of Richland.
Frederick ch, per Rev John M Faris, Treasurer, through Bd of Education	1 75
Presbytery of Wooster.
Jackson ch 6 67; Northfield ch 5—per L Flattery, Treas, through Bd of Missions	11 67
Presbytery of New Albany.
1st ch New Albany, Rev J M Stevenson	3 00
Presbytery of Montgomery.
Salem ch Va, per G Hannah	25 00
Presbytery of Nashville.
Harpeth ch 6 65; Mount Vernon ch 5; New Bethel ch 7 25, Rev John W Ogden 1 10	20 00
Presbytery of Tuscumbia.
Courtland ch in part 5; Somerville ch 13—per Rev A Penland Treas	18 00
Presbytery of Harmony.
Bennettsville ch, Rev A D Campbell, in full to con Dr JAMES N ALFORD hon mem	10 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Rev R W Condit and wife in part (first payment) to con their son, R A Condit hon mem	10 00
Total,	$288 50

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

NOTE.—The collection of $50, acknowledged in the Record, from Rev. John Hall, D. D., from 1st Church, Trenton, (misprinted Newton,) is to make him an honorary member of the Board of Publication.

HISTORICAL NOTICES OF SYNODS AND PRESBYTERIES.

18. Lake Presbytery was organized by the Synod of Indiana out of the Presbytery of Logansport, on the 8th of September, 1842, and held its first meeting at South Bend, the 10th of January, 1843. The original members were Rev. Benjamin Ogden, W. K. Marshall, Alfred Briant, and J. C. Brown, with the churches of La Porte, South Bend, Valparaiso, Constantine, Sumption's Prairie, Benton, Haw Patch, and Plymouth. Its territory embraced Lake, Porter, La Porte, Stark, St. Joseph's, Marshall, Elkhart, La Grange, and Steuben counties, in Indiana, and all the State of Michigan lying west of a line running north from the termination of the boundary line between Ohio and Indiana.

19. The Presbytery of Eastern Texas was formed by the Synod of Mississippi, out of the Presbytery of Brazos, in November, 1850. It held its first meeting at Marshall, the fourth Tuesday in January, 1851. It consisted of four ministers, Rev. P. W. Warriner, Rev. John M. Becton, Rev. Wm. H. Singeltary, and Rev. M. W. Staples.

20. The Presbytery of Rock River was set off from the Presbytery of Schuyler by the Synod of Illinois, consisting of seven ministers, and having under its care ten churches. Held its first meeting at Galena, April 1st, 1847, at 7 o'clock, P. M. Was opened with a sermon by the Rev. George Stebbins, and was moderated by Rev. Samuel Clelland.

Ecclesiastical Record.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. James Purviance and Carmel church, Miss.

Rev. J. E. C. Doremus and the church at Jackson, La.

Rev. Theodorick Pryor has resigned the charge of the Third Presbyterian Church, Baltimore.

Rev. E. F. Chester has resigned the charge of the Rock Run and Yellow Creek churches, near Freeport, Ill.

Rev. J. E. Davidson has resigned the pastoral charge at Minden, La., on account of ill health.

August 18th, Rev. J. Harrison, D. D., and the Aberdeen church, Miss.

Rev. Charles Thayer and Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

Rev. M. W. Staples has resigned the pastoral charge of the Marshall and Golden Rule churches, Texas, on account of ill health.

Rev. William Finney has resigned his charge at Churchville, Md.

Rev. John Dickey has resigned his charge of the churches of Landisburg, Buffalo, and Bloomfield, on account of ill health.

Rev. R. Curran and the church at Manor Hill, Pa.

Rev. David Robinson and the church at Mill Creek.

Rev. S. T. Wilson and the church of Camden Mills, Ill.

CALLS HAVE BEEN OFFERED TO

Rev. B. H. Williams, Pine Ridge, Miss., by the church in Vicksburg.

Mr. Joseph G. Symmes, late of Princeton Seminary, by the church at Madison, Indiana.

Rev. J. T. Hempstead, late of Princeton Seminary, by the church of Minden, La.

Rev. Robert Davidson, D. D., of New Brunswick, N. J., by the Central Presbyterian Church, Allegheny City.

Rev. J. M. Kirkpatrick, of Powhatan, Va., by the Danville church, Va.

Rev. M. A. Sackett, by the church of Walnut Hills, near Cincinnati.

Rev. W. L. McCalla to the Assembly Church, St. Louis, Missouri.

CALLS HAVE BEEN ACCEPTED BY

Rev. Benjamin M. Hobson, late of Louisville, Ky, to the church of Lexington, Mo.

Rev. Henry Mandeville, D. D., of Albany, to the Government street church, Mobile, Alabama.

Rev. J. Franklin Ford to the church of Shrevesport, La. (for all his time, having formerly served that church half his time.)

Mr. W. G. Marsh to the congregations of Canfield and Rehoboth, New Lisbon Presbytery.

Mr. Robert T. Drake to the Lebanon church, Ohio.

Rev. F. H. L. Laird, to the Bloomington church, Ind.

Rev. J. G. Fackler, to the church of Liberty City, Mo.

Mr. Edward Yeomans, to the Warrior Run church, Pa.

Rev. N. O. Patterson, from the Washington church, Pa.

Rev. B. H. Williams, to the church of Vicksburg, Miss.

Rev. S. T. Wilson to the First Presbyterian Church of Rock Island, Ill.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

September 4, the Rev. F. A. Shearer was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church, Iowa City.

September 9, Mr. Samuel Hodge was ordained as an Evangelist by the Presbytery of Montgomery.

September 17, Rev. Nathaniel West, Jr., was installed pastor of the Central Church, Cincinnati, by the Presbytery of Cincinnati.

September 1, Mr. J. H. Burns was ordained by the Oxford Presbytery, with a view to his service as a missionary among the Western Indians.

June 22, Rev. J. J. Carrell was installed pastor of the Groveland church by the Presbytery of Genesee River.

September 28, Mr. Wm. M. Blackburn was ordained to the work of the ministry by the Presbytery of Lake.

October 4, Mr. James W. Haund was ordained to the work of the gospel ministry, and installed at Canal Fulton, Ohio.

October 4, Mr. Wm. H. Lester was installed pastor of the church of West Alexander, by the Presbytery of Washington. They also ordained Mr. C. Braddock as an Evangelist.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. E. F. Chester, from Freeport, Ill., to Spring Arbour, Mich.

Rev. Edward Kennedy, from Brentsville, Va., to Visalia, Tulasec county, California.

Rev. H. M. Parsons, from McEwensville, Pa., to Glen's Falls, N. Y.

Rev. A. A. James, from Spartanburg, S. C., to Jonesville, S. C.

Rev. J. G. Reaser, from Canfield, O., to Danville, Ky.

Rev. T. T. Smith, from Zanesfield, O., to Hennipen, Ill.

Rev. C. K. Thompson, from Crawfordsville to Darlington, Ind.

Rev. Samuel Hodge, from Pattensburg to Abingdon, Va.

Rev. S. W. Watkins, from New Store to Farmville, Va.

Rev. J. R. Ramsay, from Chestnut Level to Slate Hill, York county, Pa.

Rev. J. P. Carter, from Sweetair to Shawsville, Md.

Rev. J. P. Vandyke, from Ripley, O., to Frankfort, Ind.

Rev. James A. Lyon, from St. Louis, Mo., to Columbus, Miss.

Rev. A. B. Clark, from Ligonier, Pa., to Altoona, Pa.

Rev. Robert Cruikshank, from Bellport, L. I., to Stillwater, N. Y.

Rev. H. M. Blackburn, from Valparaiso, Ind., to Three Rivers, Michigan.

Rev. W. W. Colmery, from Hayesville, Ohio, to New Albany, Ind.

Rev. H. R. Wilson, D. D., from Bridgeton, N. J., to Sewickly, Pa.

Rev. J. W. Hall, D. D., from Dayton, Ohio, to Miami University.

Rev. S. T. Wilson, from Camden Mills to Rock Island, Ill.

Rev. B. Phillips, from Juneau to Mineral Point, Wis.

Rev. B. M. Smith, from Philadelphia to Hampden Sidney, Va.

DEATHS.

August 31st, the Rev. John Wright, at Delphi, Indiana, in the 79th year of his age.

Rev. Benjamin Burroughs, of the Presbytery of Georgia.

Rev. Jehiel Talmage, of the Presbytery of Newton, at the house of his son, Rev. P. S. Talmage, on Tuesday, September 26th, aged 69 years.

Varieties.

THE REV. DR. DUFF.—It is with unfeigned regret that we have to intimate the serious illness of this devoted missionary. It is well known that he was purposing to return to Calcutta in the course of this season, and had retired for a little to Great Malvern, in the hope of recruiting his strength before returning to the East. It appears, however, that the result of a thorough medical examination has been the detection of very serious ailments. Congestion on the brain, inflammation in some of the membranes, and other affections, have been detected—the result of long continued and exhausting labours, and rendering it unsafe or impossible for Dr. Duff to return to India in less than a year or eighteen months. In the meantime, his medical advisers give it as their opinion, that he must seek a more genial climate than ours for the approaching winter; and we presume that in the course of a few weeks at farthest, he will proceed to some mild, sanitary station abroad.

It has not been our lot as journalists to convey more sad intelligence than this to the churches. The serious illness of one so honoured, so devoted, and blessed in his labours, brings a solemn warning to all; and yet the whole has not been told. We understand that another of the devoted missionaries of the Free Church, now in this country, is placed in similar circumstances. Mr. Braidwood, from Madras, was making arrangements to proceed in November once more to the scene of his labours. He had gone to Arran to re-invigorate his health as far as possible, prior to his departure, but was seized by fever about a month ago; and, though convalescent, little hope is entertained that he will be able to return this season to Madras. Warning thus added to warning, may well fix men's thoughts upon the great field, as well as the afflicted, exhausted labourers, and draw forth the prayer, "Help, Lord, for the godly man faileth."—Edinburgh Witness.

DEATH OF REV. J. G. PIKE.—Rev. J. G. Pike expired suddenly on Monday afternoon, at his residence in Derby, where, for forty-four years, he was the devoted and successful pastor of the Baptist church meeting in St. Mary's Gate Chapel. His hand was arrested, apparently in the gentlest possible manner, by the resistless hand of death. He was found seated at his library-table, his head resting upon the desk, his spectacles undisturbed, and the pen still in his hand. Both the position and the occupation were in singular conformity to the habits of this laborious minister of Christ. His writings, especially his invaluable "Persuasives to Early Piety," have had a very extensive circulation, both in England and in America, and have been useful almost beyond precedent. In addition to the exemplary discharge of the duties of the pastorate, in connection with one of the largest Nonconformist churches in the midland counties, Mr. Pike had acted as the zealous secretary of the General Baptist Missionary Society from its formation. He was also, in later years, one of the secretaries of the Derby and Derbyshire Bible Society.—Patriot.

PROTESTANT CHAPEL AT ROME.—Rev. E. D. G. Prime was among the passengers in the Collins steamer "Pacific," last Saturday, for Liverpool. Mr. Prime goes out to proceed to Rome, to take charge of the American Protestant Chapel in that city, which is connected with the American Legation, Mr. Cass being the Minister Resident. This chapel has been sustained for some years by the American and Foreign Christian Union, and has been the means of great usefulness and enjoyment to our countrymen who visit the "Eternal City." During the last winter and spring, the chapel was sometimes so crowded that people were obliged to go away for want of room. The sacraments of the Church are frequently administered, and opportunities offered for free and delightful interchange of sentiment among Protestant Christians.—Observer.

☞ Our subscribers who are in arrears are respectfully requested to send on their subscriptions, by mail or otherwise, before the close of the year.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Receipts and Payments of the Board, p. 182. Church at St. Paul, Minnesota, p. 182. A Successful Mission, p. 182. Dr. Spring's Sermon, p. 183. Missionary Trials, p. 183. From a Missionary in North Carolina, p. 183. Progress, p. 184. Receipts, p. 184.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education: The Field of the World, p. 185. Materials for Preachers, p. 185. Resisting a Call to the Gospel Ministry, p. 185. Pray, p. 185. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges: Parochial Schools, p. 186. The Children of the Church, p. 186. Right of the Church to Educate, p. 187. Receipts, p. 187.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 188. The Presbyterian Church and Foreign Missions, p. 188. China: Shanghai Mission: Narrative of a Visit to the Insurgents at Nanking, by the Rev. M. S. Culbertson, p. 189. India: Lodiana Mision: Journal of the Rev. C. W. Forman, p. 190. Allahabad Mission: Report of the Out-Station at Futtehpore, p. 192. Receipts, p. 193.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Resignation of the Corresponding Secretary, p. 194. New Corresponding Secretary, p. 194. A good old Book, p. 194. Need of Sabbath-School Libraries, p. 195. Congregational Libraries, p. 195. Our Doctrinal Books Valued, p. 195. Moral and Religious Anecdotes, p. 195. Receipts, p. 195.

MISCELLANEOUS.—To our Friends, p. 181. The Shining Path, p. 181. Hints to a Young Minister, p. 181. Historical Notices of Presbyteries and Synods, p. 196. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 196. Varieties, p. 196.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME V. No. 12. | PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER, 1854. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

BENEFITS OF "HARD TIMES."

We take the following from the Presbyterian Herald, published at Louisville, Kentucky. It contains much important and seasonable truth, admirably expressed. We hope it will be read attentively, and its suggestions carefully laid to heart.

It is an old adage, that "it is an ill wind which blows nobody any good." It is the part of true wisdom to extract as much good as possible out of the ills which surround us. The busy bee, like a wise philosopher, not unfrequently draws his sweetest stores from that which poisons other animals. The cry of "hard times" reaches our ears on every side. It is the topic of conversation, the theme of discussion, and the subject of lamentation, in almost every circle that we enter. To a people like ours, many of whom regard money as the chief good in this life, the soother of all its sorrows, and the healer of all its maladies, the present state of affairs appears a sad one indeed. They can say with one of old, "Ye have taken away our gods, and what have we left?" But those who believe that there are higher interests of society to be looked after and cared for, than those which relate simply to dollars and dimes, will not regard the present condition of this country as one of unmixed evil. The tightening up of the money market will cause many a heart to ache, and many a head to lie upon a sleepless pillow, and will bring distress and sadness into many a worthy family, and so far it will be a real evil; but it does not necessarily follow that it will be succeeded by no real blessings, to even those who are thus caused to suffer by it. There are hearts which can only be made better by sadness, and heads which can only be made wiser by such an experience as that which we are now considering. The affliction, for the present, is not joyous but grievous, nevertheless afterwards it shall yield the fruits of righteousness to those who may be properly exercised by it. What, then, are some of the blessings which we may hope will flow from this state of things?

One is, that the excessive greed of gain will receive a check in the hearts of the people, and they will be brought to feel that there are other interests than those which relate to dollars and cents, which ought to be looked after. "The love of money is the root of all evil," said an inspired writer. He did not mean to assert that it was the germenant principle of all the sin that is committed in our world, for that would not be true, but that all kinds of sin grow out of it. It leads men to break all the commands of God. It is a passion which can never be satisfied. "He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver." The more a man gets, the more he wants. As his possessions expand, his desires expand along with them. The only way to cure the passion for gold in his heart, is to cease to feed it. It was upon this principle that the Saviour said, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven." By a rich man he meant, not simply one who had riches, but one who loved them. Such an one, continuing to be rich, could not be saved, because the passion in his heart could only be cured by taking his riches from him. As a poor man, he might be saved, because the taking his riches from him would extinguish the love of them in his heart, but as a rich man, he never could. Whilst men who love money inordinately are successful in securing it, it is almost an absolute impossibility to turn their attention to other and higher interests. Almost the only argument that can then be brought to bear upon their hearts to induce them to seek heaven, is that its streets are paved with gold, and its harps made of the same precious metal. But let the tide turn against them, and their possessions be swept away from them, and let them begin to agitate the question, not how shall we become rich, but how shall we make a living for ourselves and families, and then come to them with the hopes and promises of the gospel, and they will listen to your message with a different ear from that which they gave you before. Genuine revivals of religion are few and far between when the world goes prosperously with every one. The love of money and the love of God cannot reign in the same heart as its master-passion. One or the other will be driven out.

Another benefit of "the hard times" will be, that they will test the characters of men, and develope the principles by which they are actuated. Many a man is honest, in the world's esteem, and even in his own, until the hour of trial comes, and he finds himself besieged by powerful temptations to be otherwise. "My brethren," said the apostle James, "count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations, knowing that the trying of your faith worketh patience." There is but small credit due to a man for being honest, when he has little temptation to be otherwise, or for paying his debts, when he makes no sacrifice of personal comfort in so doing; but let him be brought into narrow straits, where his own comfort and that of his family must be sacrificed or his debts remain unpaid, and advantage be taken of the technicalities of the law to prevent force being employed to secure the payment, and then will be the time for the exhibition of the principles upon which he acts. If he is honest and fair in his dealings under such circumstances, his character shines forth with a double splendour, and he is truly the "noblest work of God"—an honest man. What are called "tight times," usually make many revelations that astonish the community, and even sometimes astonish the men themselves who are unmasked by them. Virtue, like gold, is worth but little until it has been thrown into the crucible, and passed the ordeal of trial which tests its value.

We remark further, that the recurrence of such times is important to develope the benevolence of the community. God has, for wise purposes, left many great and important interests to be taken care of by the benevolence of his people. The poor, we are told, are always to dwell in the land. We are always to have them with us. The great schemes which have been devised for the amelioration of the moral and spiritual maladies of our race, have been left to be executed by the spontaneous charities of Christian men and women. In proportion as the amount of money in the community lessens, do the wants of the poor and the necessities of these benevolent institutions increase. As good men's means of giving are cut off, the calls upon them to give, multiply. They frequently become restive under these multiplied calls, and reject them with almost a spirit of bitterness towards those who make them, but it is unwise and unchristian in them to do so. God is thereby testing their grace of benevolence, and giving them an opportunity to cultivate it which they could not have had under other circumstances. There is but little credit due to giving when it costs the donor no sacrifice. The widow's mite was a greater and more acceptable gift in the sight of God than the costly treasures of the rich, because it was all her living, whilst their donations were made from their superfluous possessions. He who gave to the poor and to the spread of the gospel one year ago, out of his abundance, and received but little blessing for it, because it was from his abundance, may this year draw down a far richer blessing upon his head, by giving to these causes out of his poverty, and by making personal sacrifices to enable him to do it.

The only other benefit we notice as growing out of the present state of things, is the wholesome check which it may be expected to give to the habits of reckless extravagance and costly living, which were growing up with such fearful rapidity all over the country. Splendid equipages, costly furniture, and elegant apparel, were the things which were most eagerly sought after and worshipped by the masses of people who were able, or fancied themselves able, to afford them. To procure these, they would rack their brains, incur debts, and spend many sleepless nights, that they might outshine their neighbours, and rival them in their splendour. The adornment of the mind, and the cultivation of the soul, were often wholly lost sight of in the effort to set off to the best advantage the casket which contained it. They found themselves and their families estimated in the community, not by the amount of intellectual and moral worth which they possessed, but by the splendour of the houses in which they lived, the elegance of the dresses which they wore, and the costliness of the carriages in which they rode. But the revulsion has come. They are now perplexed to know how to pay the debts contracted for these things, and to procure the substantial comforts of life for themselves and families. Necessity will compel them to curtail many extravagances in which they have hitherto indulged. When they have been cut off from these, it is to be hoped that at least the more sensible part of the community will see and be cured of the folly of seeking their happiness in them, and return to the good old republican simplicity of our fathers.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

NEBRASKA AND KANSAS.

We are obliged to our correspondent for the suggestions contained in the following communication. It is very desirable that suitable men should speedily enter those new Territories, and the Board would gladly aid in sending such, if their services can be secured. Will not some of our ministers turn their attention to those destitute but highly important fields? Let them read the following, and then prayerfully ask, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Let me call your attention to another subject. Is the Board making any effort to extend the gospel to Nebraska and Kansas? It seems to me, our Church is called to the work of planting the gospel in those Territories; especially in the latter. Kansas is destined to be among the greatest States in the Union. The tide of immigration now flows into it with unprecedented rapidity. Many of our people will go thither from the South and West, and it seems to me, the Board ought to have faithful, experienced, and conservative men in the field, to gather them into churches at the outset. More good can be done by such men within the next year than in the three years following. I spent sixteen years of my life as a missionary in the new settlements of the West, and know from experience that it is a vast advantage to be first in preaching and laying the foundation of churches among the settlers. Positions and influences can be gained in the beginning of a town or settlement, that never can be secured at a subsequent time. You will excuse me for throwing before your mind these suggestions. I have been strongly impressed, during the past season, with the importance of this subject, and am desirous to know your views upon it. If the pecuniary means can be supplied, I have no doubt but that men of the right stamp could be found to engage in the enterprise.

A. T. R.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

CROWNS OF REJOICING.

Sweet and wholesome thoughts are suggested by the affectionate and endearing appellations which the apostle Paul applies to Christians: "My brethren, dearly beloved and longed for; my joy and crown; my dearly beloved." "What is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye, in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ, at his coming? for ye are our glory and joy." What tenderness, what love, what confidence, what deference, too, are breathed from his very heart in these expressions! They bring to view the delightful and exalted fellowship that this faithful minister of Christ had with Christ's people; they also demonstrate the hope which he entertained that this fellowship would be continued in the world of glory; they assure us that he not only rejoiced in seeing them partakers of divine grace, but also anticipated a higher joy and glory with them in heaven. As a good husbandman, he takes pleasure in looking over his golden fields, and in looking forward to his well filled garners.

Such elevated sentiments are accessible to every minister of Jesus Christ, and in some measure, to every Christian. They are attained by the cultivation of brotherly affection, and by a noble zeal for the salvation of sinners. Love and labour are what we require, to assimilate us to the noble apostle. Then will renewed souls become our "dearly beloved," and our "crowns of rejoicing." The Scriptures assure us that they who turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever. Those who are saved by their efforts, or their instrumentality, shall be crowns of their rejoicing in the day of the Lord Jesus.

This is a healthful stimulus to exertion for the ingathering of souls. This affords encouragement in the work of missions. By the divine blessing, many are, through this instrumentality, added to the Church, of such as shall be saved; and they will be crowns of rejoicing to those who have laboured, and prayed, and contributed for this precious interest of the Redeemer's cause. Yes, many whom they never had the opportunity of addressing as their "dearly beloved," will be their "crowns of rejoicing" in the day of the Lord Jesus. He who, from love to Christ, gives his prayers and exertions to this work of saving sinners, is laying up, at the same time, "glory and joy" for himself; and when he meets in heaven those who are saved by his means, he can greet them with a livelier and purer pleasure than he can who coldly shakes his head, when solicited to co-operate in the same benevolent work.

"Crowns!" "Crowns of rejoicing!" What attractions, of more than magnet power, to draw young men into the ministry! Rich reversions, to stimulate the zeal, to reward the toil, to offset the sacrifices and sorrows of the labourer in Christ's cause!

J. F. M.

REVIVAL PROGRESSING.

November 1st, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Rev. and Dear Brother—The time has again rolled around when it becomes me to give some account of my labours. In the all-abounding goodness of God, my health has been preserved; and it is my privilege to say, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped me." My labours have been continued without interruption at the several points embraced in my field, and the encouraging state of things which it was my privilege to report three months since still continues. Our church at S—— has been greatly revived and strengthened. The season of revival that commenced in July still continues, and cases of awakening and conversion continue to occur almost daily. During the prevalence of this state of things, our meetings have been characterized by the most perfect order and decorum. No commotion, no boisterous excitement has been manifested by the anxious, but the falling tear, and the heaving groans of a troubled heart, have borne testimony to the deep emotions of the soul. Pray for us, my dear brother, that God may continue to bless my poor labours here, and that sinners in multitudes may be brought to experience the preciousness of a Saviour's love.

Since my last report, I have preached 65 sermons, administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper in three of my churches, baptized 17 infants, attended two prayer-meetings and sundry inquiry-meetings weekly, and made something over 100 visits.

When I entered upon this field of labour a year ago, it was almost with a feeling of despondency—all was dark and cheerless. At an early period, however, some tokens for good began to be manifest; these continued and increased, until our hearts have been made to rejoice, on beholding the stately steppings of Jehovah in his sanctuary.

I remain, Rev. and dear brother, yours in Christ,

C. M. S.

P. S.—I should have stated, in the proper place, that during the current year, 74 persons have been added to the several churches embraced in my charge on examination, and 8 by letter; making an increase of 82 members.

GOOD RESULTS—AN INVITING FIELD.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Yesterday closed my labours in this field. I have been here more than five years. During this time I have preached more than 700 sermons, attended nearly 70 funerals, and 30 marriages. I found one church organized, of about 20 members; I leave two churches, one of 20, and the other of 26 members. There is a house of worship being erected by one of these churches, which will cost 17 or 1800 dollars when completed; for which the church and society have raised about 11 or 1200 dollars.

On looking back over the five years of labour, I regret that I have been able to do no more in the cause of my Divine Master; and still I am thankful that I have been the instrument of doing so much. My labour has been missionary labour; my field has been a large one, and my labours have been severe. But God has given me strength to lay the foundations for at least two strong Presbyterian churches, and may God, in his good providence, send a man to build up the Church of the living God in this region. My ride on the Sabbath is too much for my constitution. I feel myself called upon to seek a field where my labours will be more confined. Such a field I have found at ——, in this State, where I expect to commence my labours next Sabbath. Let me say, before closing this letter, that I now look forward to the time when these churches will be self-sustaining. The region is a fine agricultural region. The churches are located in thriving villages, and as soon as they can build comfortable houses of worship, they will be able to begin to pay back the benefactions they have so freely received from the Board of Domestic Missions. Indeed, in this respect they are even now doing nobly for them. Last year, besides what they paid to other objects, they paid into the treasury for this object the sum of about $32—per our agent, Rev. H. M. Robertson. In taking leave of this field of labour, I pray God to bless my humble endeavours to advance his cause in this region; and I cannot resist the impression that there have been scattered seeds of truth, which will germinate, and in due time ripen into an abundant harvest. Yours truly,

B. P.

ENCOURAGING.

The state of religion in the churches, while not so prosperous as a faithful minister of Christ could wish, yet it has in it much to encourage the heart and strengthen the hands. For some two or three years previous to the commencement of my labours among them, they had been in a great measure sheep without a shepherd; two or three times in a year a sermon from a supply, and then destitute for months. The fault was in some measure their own, in not being careful to have a representative in the semi-annual meetings of the Presbytery. As a matter of course, the enemy was busy with them, as error in almost every shape and form surrounded them. Some were for a time drawn aside from the old paths, but paused and reflected, and the Lord brought them back. Since I commenced preaching among them, there is a steady increase of the attendance upon the means of grace. The meeting-houses are well filled; outwardly, at least, a deep and serious attention to the preached word; and if the apparently anxious countenance, the smothered sigh, and falling tear, are indications of the heart being touched, then I trust the Spirit of God is working in both churches. I have recently closed communion seasons in both churches. They were interesting seasons. I felt, and I think some of the people felt that the Lord was with us. Five persons (three on examination, and two on certificate,) were added to the church at W——; four persons (two on examination, and two on certificate,) were added to the church at C——. We must not despise the day of small things, but consider these drops of mercy the precursors of a more plentiful shower. J. W. K.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Missions.

Honorary Members have a right to sit in the meetings of the Board, and engage in their deliberations, but have no right to vote. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to them every year. Provided we have their address.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

To the Trustees of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of ——, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Missions of the said General Assembly, according to the provisions of their charter.

☞ Persons making bequests to the Board of Missions re requested to be careful in adopting the above form.

WASHINGTON CHURCH EDIFICE.

Received at the Office of the Board of Missions, Philadelphia, for the church edifice to be erected at Washington City, D. C., since the last acknowledgment in the May number of the Home and Foreign Record.

Pby of Newton.—Danville ch	$1 38
Pby of East Hanover—Norfolk ch	25 76
Pby of Nashville.—Nashville 1st ch 44; Nashville 2d ch 29; Gallatin and Shiloh chs 40; Hermitage ch 30; Harpeth ch 10; Smyrna ch 15 75; Clarksville ch 107, Rev J W Ogden 1	263 63
Rev P E Bishop of Chester, South Carolina	16 00
	$306 77

TABLE

Showing the amount of money contributed to the Board of Missions from April 1st, 1852 to April 1st, 1853, by the Presbyteries and Synods in connection with the office in Philadelphia, and the amount paid in return to them by the Board for the support of their missionaries.

SYNODS.	PRESBYTERIES.	Number of Ministers.	Number of Churches.	Number of Church Members.	Contributed to the Board.	Received from the Board.
ALBANY,	Londonderry,	26	11	1,809	$ 165 00
	Troy,	13	12	1,857	987 38	$ 168 75
	Albany,	39	28	4,383	898 68	444 78
	Columbia,	4	3	213	86 10	75 00
	Mohawk,	6	4	342	25 00	265 97
		88	58	8,604	2,162 16	954 50
BUFFALO,	Ogdensburg,	7	7	732	132 50	128 33
	Steuben,	7	7	483	139 24	257 08
	Wyoming,	12	8	570	97 24
	Buffalo City,	11	10	865	209 74	361 53
	Michigan,	8	14	511	37 00	416 67
	Rochester City,	8	10	1,263	223 50	175 00
		53	56	4,424	839 22	1,338 61
NEW YORK,	Hudson,	17	18	1,988	331 28	225 40
	North River,	16	13	1,043	216 81	200 00
	Bedford,	17	16	1,248	424 27	129 93
	Long Island,	21	20	2,695	224 52	267 50
	New York,	36	26	5,867	10,363 70	1200 41
	New York 2d,	17	8	1,460	756 49	250 00
	Connecticut,	9	3	327	43 09	281 11
		133	104	14,628	12,360 16	2,554 35
NEW JERSEY,	Elizabethtown, }	20	15	2,877	1,068 93 }	528 76
	Passaic, }	17	14	2,635	330 66 }
	New Brunswick,	45	28	5,128	783 90	211 42
	West Jersey,	19	18	1,820	621 02	745 82
	Newton,	26	22	3,191	392 93	208 73
	Raritan,	11	16	1,997	173 00	162 50
	Susquehanna,	17	21	786	130 35	502 00
	Luzerne,	14	19	1,293	228 89	984 91
	Burlington,	6	9	470	35 02	232 79
		175	162	20,197	3,744 70	3,576 93
PHILADELPHIA,	Philadelphia,	39	27	5,819	3,482 47	1,113 88
	Philadelphia 2d,	23	24	2,622	469 50	706 88
	New Castle,	23	24	3,080	505 09	386 11
	Donegal,	18	26	2,755	261 21	95 83
	Baltimore,	35	29	2,645	1,930 28	1,554 36
	Carlisle,	34	44	4,549	1,156 29	243 61
	Huntingdon,	33	42	5,650	991 22	312 50
	Northumberland,	21	35	2,999	637 01	265 28
	Eastern Shore,	6	7	321	58 25	168 75
		232	258	29,840	9,491 32	4,847 20
PITTSBURGH,	Blairsville,	34	51	5,023	783 29	111 67
	Redstone,	20	33	2,889	516 53	321 87
	Ohio,	47	36	5,386	1,433 75	648 61
	Allegheny,	16	30	2,746	258 87	6 25
	Beaver,	18	22	2,520	247 67	50 00
	Erie,	11	26	1,747	98 35	388 75
	Clarion,	8	22	1,826	215 88	284 36
		154	220	22,137	3,554 34	1,811 51
WHEELING,	Washington,	29	41	4,961	1,221 70	54 72
	St. Clairsville,	16	29	1,980	331 22	425 51
	Steubenville,	17	31	2,690	278 75	157 50
	New Lisbon,	15	25	1,975	250 76	108 33
		77	126	11,606	2,082 48	746 06
OHIO,	Columbus,	13	23	1,220	297 27	82 00
	Marion,	16	33	1,647	42 17	413 33
	Zanesville,	17	29	2,359	102 26	358 44
	Richland,	18	32	2,343	312 76	132 22
	Wooster,	9	15	1,121	85 51	77 07
	Coshocton,	10	22	1,508	139 23	57 29
	Hocking,	7	14	689	46 12	506 11
		90	168	10,887	1,025 32	1,626 46
NORTH'N INDIANA.†	Logansport,	10	19	853	211 37	670 82
	Lake,	6	12	564	87 60	804 17
	Fort Wayne,	13	28	1,016	51 99	576 32
		29	59	2,433	350 96	2,051 31
WISCONSIN,	Dane,	9	10	291	24 05	1,085 83
	Milwaukie,	8	8	214	24 00	1,124 78
	Winnebago,	9	10	237	31 32	999 09
		26	28	742	79 37	3,159 70
VIRGINIA,	Greenbrier,	12	21	1,655	129 70	265 68
	Lexington,	20	29	2,752	549 06	146 94
	Winchester,	22	29	1,673	347 89	622 28
	West Hanover,	38	45	2,415	572 68	387 50
	East Hanover,*	15	15	1,587	434 57	700 00
	Montgomery,	15	22	1,332	164 21	294 58
		122	161	11,414	2,198 11	2,416 98
N. CAROLINA,	Orange,	29	47	2,480	759 99	431 65
	Fayetteville,	22	54	2,139	346 56	18 61
	Concord,	32	61	5,796	644 32	442 91
		83	162	10,415	1,750 87	893 17
S. CAROLINA,	Bethel,	15	23	2,318	228 65	329 44
	Harmony,	25	30	3,907	300 00
		40	53	6,225	528 65	329 44
GEORGIA,	Georgia,	11	9	247	234 98	150 00
	Hopewell,	27	30	1,336	957 75	306 25
	Flint River,	17	42	1,684	471 42	250 55
	Florida,	9	14	429		100 00
	Cherokee,	15	29	1,202	50 00	300 00
		79	124	4,898	1,714 15	1,106 80
THE PACIFIC,	Oregon,	3	2	Not given.	25 67	991 67

* This Presbytery has a separate Treasury; and having had a balance on hand at the commencement of the year, paid its own missionaries, and was not a charge upon the Board, as the figures indicate.

TABLE

Showing the amount of money contributed to the Board of Missions from April 1st, 1853 to April 1st, 1854, by the Presbyteries and Synods in connection with the office in Philadelphia, and the amount paid in return to them by the Board, for the support of their missionaries.

SYNODS.	PRESBYTERIES.	Number of Ministers.	Number of Churches.	Number of Church Members.	Contributed to the Board.	Received from the Board.
ALBANY,	Londonderry,	26	10	1,537	$ 227 10
	Troy,	15	15	1,900	1,414 05	$ 200 00
	Albany,	44	28	3,606	1,152 88	650 00
	Columbia,	3	3	198	51 00
	Mohawk,	8	5	652	9 00	225 00
		96	61	7,893	2,854 03	1,075 00
BUFFALO,	Ogdensburg,	8	7	761	161 00	100 00
	Genesee River,	16	13	1,058	431 28	282 08
	Buffalo City,	13	10	965	215 88	442 06
	Michigan,	7	14	478	27 75	566 67
	Rochester City,	13	13	1,800	202 53	83 40
		57	57	5,062	1,038 44	1,474 21
NEW YORK,	Hudson,	20	18	1,750	263 72	70 35
	North River,	17	13	1,142	306 80	100 00
	Bedford,	17	17	1,306	429 56	282 57
	Long Island,	19	22	2,015	221 00	342 22
	New York,	44	30	6,606	10,991 74	1,949 29
	New York 2d,	16	8	1,256	1,200 37	802 78
	Connecticut,	9	3	242	22 00	338 46
		142	111	14,317	13,435 19	3,885 67
NEW JERSEY,	Elizabethtown,	18	17	2,857	658 03	164 78
	Passaic,	19	14	2,603	597 38	293 19
	New Brunswick,	45	28	4,676	985 42	232 63
	West Jersey,	21	18	1,905	574 10	661 80
	Newton,	22	23	3,037	486 22	370 40
	Raritan,	10	16	1,992	288 31	170 00
	Susquehanna,	14	20	732	117 35	610 82
	Luzerne,	16	20	1,413	374 18	850 95
	Burlington,	6	9	470	200 53	350 00
		171	165	19,685	4,281 52	3,704 57
PHILADELPHIA.	Philadelphia,	39	31	6,809	2,641 99	1,739 58
	Philadelphia 2d,	22	24	2,142	561 69	698 73
	New Castle,	23	24	3,071	895 27	468 33
	Donegal,	20	26	2,705	385 55	95 83
	Baltimore,	35	32	2,690	1,722 32	1,965 41
	Carlisle,	33	44	4,741	1,642 76	323 33
	Huntingdon,	31	42	5,890	1,718 90	83 33
	Northumberland,	21	34	2,961	363 10	414 57
	Eastern Shore,	6	7	333	139 70	125 00
		230	264	31,342	10,071 28	5,914 11
PITTSBURGH,	Blairsville,	35	51	6,165	864 52	173 46
	Redstone,	21	33	2,913	506 08	309 58
	Ohio,	34	30	4,598	1,479 41	388 89
	Allegheny,	15	28	2,619	321 27	129 20
	Beaver,	16	15	1,804	298 71	56 25
	Erie,	14	27	1,770	152 21	424 16
	Clarion,	7	21	1,936	218 77	242 21
	Allegheny City,*	17	15	2,042
		159	220	23,752	3,840 97	1,723 75
WHEELING,	Washington,	28	41	5,152	1,377 49	568 89
	St. Clairsville,	14	30	1,962	313 37	125 27
	Steubenville,	18	31	2,770	387 31	125 00
	New Lisbon,	14	27	2,103	246 83	50 27
		74	129	11,987	2,325 00	869 43
OHIO,	Columbus,	16	22	1,166	245 77	203 00
	Marion,	15	33	1,663	133 55	375 47
	Zanesville,	20	29	2,515	143 52	152 08
	Richland,	17	32	2,324	284 18	3 19
	Wooster,	11	17	1,133	154 83	729 58
	Coshocton,	8	22	1,417	113 60	23 05
	Hocking,	6	14	713	32 53	300 00
		93	169	10,931	1,107 98	1,786 37
NORTH'N INDIANA,†	Logansport,	10	20	932	132 59	569 88
	Lake,	8	14	657	174 91	844 68
	Fort Wayne,	11	29	1,069	44 82	651 91
		29	63	2,658	352 32	2,066 37
WISCONSIN,	Dane,	9	11	333	35 40	745 83
	Milwaukie,	9	7	193	60 00	897 00
	Winnebago,	10	11	270	74 39	1,527 36
		28	29	796	169 79	3,170 19
VIRGINIA,	Greenbrier,	12	22	1,569	105 62	514 35
	Lexington,	24	29	2,968	417 95	159 17
	Winchester,	22	32	1,842	623 49	385 62
	West Hanover,	42	45	2,442	667 36	309 37
	East Hanover,	14	14	1,381	643 98	983 33
	Montgomery,	16	22	1,323	75 76	200 00
		130	164	11,525	2,534 15	2,551 84
N. CAROLINA,	Orange,	27	47	2,381	695 11	430 90
	Fayetteville,	25	52	2,042	285 66	81 39
	Concord,	30	63	6,364	819 85	495 83
		82	162	10,787	1,800 61	1,008 12
S. CAROLINA,	South Carolina,	26	47	2,820	37 50	37 50
	Bethel,	16	24	2,451	162 65	189 58
	Harmony,	22	31	3,987	158 70
		64	102	9,258	358 85	227 08
GEORGIA,	Georgia,	10	7	230	329 42	573 94
	Hopewell,	21	30	1,598	482 58	50 00
	Flint River,	16	42	1,801	503 86	107 78
	Florida,	13	17	686	59 10	162 50
	Cherokee,	16	33	1,262	107 00	303 33
		77	129	5,577	1,481 96	1,197 55
THE PACIFIC,	California,	4	3	175	83 60	500 00
	Oregon,	3	2		48 30	1,786 66
		7	5	175	131 90	2,286 66

* Allegheny City Presbytery having been set off from the Presbyteries of Ohio, Allegheny, and Beaver, its contributions to, and receipts from the Board, are embraced in those Presbyteries.

† Only part of the Synod of Northern Indiana is in connection with the office at Philadelphia, and only that part is included in these Tables.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of October, 1854.

SONOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry.—Antrim ch $20 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Caledonia ch 61; Warsaw ch 34 25; Scottsville 1st ch 12 54; Oakland ch 10 117 79

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of North River.—Newburg First ch ann collection 68 74, and mon collections 34 26 103 00
Pby of Bedford.—South Salem ch, a widow's donation 7 25; Croton Falls ch 4 50; Patterson ch 26 44; Yorktown ch 8; North Salem ch 6 50; Rye ch, from G D Craigen 25 77 69
Pby of Long Island.—Sag Harbour ch 57 45; East Hampton ch 35; Raynor and Roslyn chs 8 60; Rev Ezra King and family, Miller's Place, L I, an household offering, viz.: Rev Ezra King 10, Thomas and Nancy King 2, Noah T and Lydia Ann Swezey 4, Caleb H and Deborah King 2, Ezra S and Sarah King 2, Joseph N and Theresa King 2, Elisha E and Catharine King 2, Hannah Y Rowland 2, Maria E King 5=31 132 25
Pby of New York.—Greenbush ch 2 00
Pby of Connecticut.—Hartford ch 10 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of New Brunswick.—Princeton First ch 100; Village ch Freehold 45; Kingston ch 29; Shrewsbury ch 12 186 00
Pby of West Jersey.—Woodbury ch 65; May's Landing ch 29; Second ch Cape May co 2 44 96 44
Pby of Newton.—Newton ch 70 50, of which 50 to constitute Rev MYRON BARRET an hon mem; Mansfield ch 40; Musconetcong ch 20; Belvidere ch 50; Smithfield ch 5; Shawnee ch 5 12; Hardwick ch 25; Marksboro' ch 23 30; Fox Hill ch 10; Mansfield ch, from a member 25 273 92
Pby of Raritan.—Pleasant Grove and Lower German Valley chs 10 00
Pby of Susquehanna.—Warren ch 5 00
Pby of Luzerne.—Mauch Chunk ch 13 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Central ch, Phila, ann collection in part 64 97; Tenth ch, Phila, from Mrs Murphey 5 69 97
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Allen Township ch 45; Doylestown ch 14; Phœnixville ch 5; Catasauqua ch 10; Bristol ch 10 84 00
Pby of New Castle.—Lower West Nottingham ch 67; Penningtonville ch 5; Fagg's Manor ch, from R N Brown 5; Forks of Brandywine ch 29 50, of which 14 25 from the Female Missionary Society, 13 75 monthly collections, and 1 50 from Miss C Ralston's Sab school class 106 50
Pby of Donegal.—Slateville ch 12 69; Chanceford ch addl 2 14 69
Pby of Huntingdon.—West Kishacoquillas ch, to constitute JAMES CAMPBELL, Senr, and JOHN FLEMING hon mems 103 50; Middle Tuscarora ch 62; Lewistown ch 15 04; One-half of a Presbyterial collection at Academia 12 12 192 66
Pby of Northumberland.—Washington ch 35; Jersey Shore ch 18 42 53 42

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore.—Bethel ch 20, of which 3 50 from the Pastor's children; Madison street ch, Balt 2 31; Govane chapel 5; Ellicott's Mills ch 42 69 31
Pby of Carlisle.—Greencastle ch 42 35; Tom's Creek and Piney Creek chs, from Margaret Stewart 4 46 35
Pby of Winchester.—Lewinsville ch 23 25

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Wheeling Third ch 30 31

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Richland.—Hayesville ch 4; East Union ch 6; Milwood ch 4 14 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport.—Logansport ch 57 28
Synodical collection, to constitute Rev WILLIAM Y ALLEN an hon mem 71 12

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane.—Richland ch 2 15
Pby of Winnebago.—Plover ch 2 12

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Iowa.—West Point ch 5 00

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Lexington.—Hebron ch additional 16 65; Union ch, from the Ladies' Missionary Society 4; Harrisonburg ch 5 25 45

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Knoxville.—Knoxville ch 43 63

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Bethel.—Purity ch 20; Catholic ch 44; Olivet ch 8 72 00

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.

Pby of Hopewell.—Clarksville ch 11 81

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Western Texas.—Lavaca ch 17 00

$2059 31

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs Margaret Sanderson, Milton, Pa 10; Miss Jane R Wilson, Shippensburg, Pa 5; Rev S D Campbell, Knox Hill, Fla, in part to constitute himself an hon mem 25; A Friend 2; Two Friends, near Springfield, Ill 10; Thos Bayles, Brooklyn, N Y 20; Miss Mary Ann Barkbryott 50 cents; G M 60; "Sarah," Vernon, Ind 10; J C B 5; A B, 1500, of which 500 for California 1647 50

LEGACIES.

Legacy of Miss Fanny Stebbins, dec'd, of Patterson, New York 100; Estate of Sarah A Bonnel, dec'd 50 150 00

Total, $3856 81

Received from the Treasurer at Pittsburgh, October collections, $1194 66
Less expenses and bad notes, 19 68 1174 98

$5031 79

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 barrel from the Ladies of Antrim ch N Y, valued at $33 00
1 box from the Female Sewing Society of the congregation of Alexandria, Pa, valued at 72 94
1 box from the Ladies' Sewing Society of Bucyrus ch, Ohio, valued at 47 37
1 box from the Ladies' Missionary Society of Upper Octorara ch, Pa, valued at 110 78
1 barrel from the Ladies of Jewett, Green co, N Y, valued at 59 72
1 box from the Ladies of Little Falls ch, N Y, value not given.
1 box from the Ladies of Williamsburgh ch N Y, valued at 130 00
1 box from the Ladies of Warrior Run, Pa, valued at 30 26
1 box from the Ladies of Goshen ch, N Y, valued at 91 50
1 box from the Ladies of the sewing circle of Amwell 2d ch, N J, valued at 26 75
1 box from the Ladies of Astoria ch, N Y, value not given.
1 box from the Ladies of Flemington ch, N J, value not given.

$602 32

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of October, 1854.

Pby of Troy.—Troy Second ch $30 14
Pby of Rochester City.—Port Byron ch, for the 1st ch Fort Winnebago at Portage City, Wis 15 00
Pby of Bedford.—South Salem ch, for the 1st ch Fort Winnebago at Portage City, Wis 100 00
Pby of New York.—Greenbush ch 1 00
Pby of Newton.—Mansfield ch 25 00
Pby of Baltimore.—Govane chapel 5 00
Pby of Lexington.—Harrisonburg ch 2 00

$178 14

MISCELLANEOUS.

A B 1000; G M 25; A Friend, for the Tabernacle ch Buffalo City 200; Mrs R Platt, North Castle, N Y 5; Rev S H McDonald, Bellville, Pa 4 1234 00

Total, $1412 14

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of October, 1854.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Unity ch 50; New Alexandria ch 21; Union ch 6 16; Ebensburg ch 12; Summit ch 6; Murraysville ch 17 89; Bethel ch 15; Curry's Run ch 10; Poke Run ch 60; Blairsville ch 41 09 239 14
Pby of Allegheny.—Plain Grove ch 26 37; Centreville ch (Fem Miss Soc 14) 21 38 47 75
Pby of Ohio.—Alleghany City 1st ch (for 1853) 156 90; Miller's Run ch 15 11; Hopewell ch 6 68 178 69
Pby of Beaver.—Little Beaver ch, Fem Miss Soc, 20; Unity ch 11 75 31 75
Pby of Clarion.—New Rehoboth ch 18 35; Clarion ch 30; Callansburg ch 21; Concord ch 8 10 77 45
Pby of Redstone.—McKeesport ch 47; Brownsville ch 20 67 00
Pby of Erie.—Evansburg ch, a lady 1 50

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Upper Buffalo ch 60; Burgettstown ch 18 10 78 10
Pby of St. Clairsville.—Crab Apple ch 24; Woodsfield ch 3 43; Concord ch 16; Beallsville ch 8 30; Nottingham ch 30; Wheeling Valley ch 14 30; Birmingham ch 2; Powhattan ch 3; Pipe Creek ch 5; Wegee ch 6 112 03
Pby of New Lisbon.—Alliance ch 6 25

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Hocking.—Alexandria ch 10 00

LEGACIES.

Bequest of Mrs Mary Hanna, Harrison co, Ohio, per Rev W Annan 10; Bequest of Miss Hannah A Horner, per W Mercer, executor, less State Tax 285 295 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

ROBERT PATTERSON, Esq., Burgettstown, to constitute self hon mem 50 00

Total, $1194 66

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

CLOTHING.

Ladies of Unity ch, Beaver Presbytery, a box valued at 19 50
Ladies of Rehoboth ch a box valued at 50 00
Ladies of Canfield ch " " 50 51

$120 11

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of October, 1854.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Cincinnati.—Walnut Hill ch 31 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.—Miss Mary Ann Lindsley, New Albany 50 00
Pby of Palestine.—Wabash ch 5; Pleasant Prairie ch 6 35 11 35

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Crawfordsville.—Jefferson ch 14 00
Pby of Muncie.—Winchester ch 6 75

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia.—Chester ch 8 00
Pby of Rock River.—Savannah ch 5; Galena ch 107 04 112 04

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar.—Centre ch 8 35

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Missouri.—Rev S Scott 4 00
Pby of St. Louis.—Mrs Lyon, St Louis 4 50, Dr Finley 10, Rev Mr Blackwell 2 75, St Charles 10, Coulter Goodrich 1, A F and Caroline Pack, St Louis 7 50; Dardenne ch 2, a friend to missions 2 50 40 25
Pby of Potosi.—Apple Creek 1st ch 12 85; White Water ch 16 30; Pleasant Hill ch 16 45 15

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.—Mrs Stevens, Louisville 20 00
Pby of Muhlenburg.—Greenville ch 6; Mount Zion ch 2, Rev A S Howsley 5 13 00
Pby of Transylvania.—Harrodsburgh ch bal 36, Peter R Dunn, McAfee, Ky 10; New Providence ch 18 50 64 50
Pby of West Lexington.—Nicholsville ch in part 60; Pisgah ch 10; 2d ch Lexington mo con colls 40 80 110 80
Pby of Ebenezer.—Presbyterial collection of fall meeting 12 20

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.

Pby of Mississippi.—Lake Providence and Pecan Grove chs 43 50

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Brazos.—Galveston ch 40, D D Atchison 60 100 00
Pby of Western Texas.—Presbyterial collection 38 25

Total, $733 14

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. VAN RENSSELAER, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
WM. CHESTER, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
JAMES WOOD, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

AN APPEAL TO YOUNG MEN.

A writer in the Christian Intelligencer, (a Reformed Dutch paper,) states that the new class in the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick has only five students. After some appropriate remarks on this discouraging circumstance, he makes the following earnest appeal to the young men of that communion, concerning their duty with reference to the gospel ministry. It is no less applicable to this class of communicants in other churches than to that; and we bespeak for it a serious and prayerful perusal by all our pious youth.

Now, young men of the Christian Church, and especially young men of our own denomination, can you allow this sad and desolate state of things to continue? Can you allow this stigma and suspicion to rest upon the Church, and particularly that class to which you belong? Can you see missions languishing, and churches at home shepherdless for want of zeal on your part? Shall the ministry not only fail to keep up with the wants of the world, but even with the calls of the Church? Shall we longer behold the sad spectacle which our Church presents, with its twenty or thirty vacant pulpits, and its decaying and abandoned missions? Shall it be said that out of over three hundred congregations, and nearly forty thousand communicants, only FIVE can be found in a year to dedicate themselves to the Christian ministry? Shall the Church call upon you in vain, pointing to her wandering flocks and untended sheep-folds? Nay, shall the voice of your Saviour in vain echo from Calvary, "Take up thy cross and follow me?"

This is an earnest age, a "steel-toned era." The sluggard, the lukewarm, the hypocrite, cannot breathe in this air. Every man in these days must have a life-purpose, and "whatever his hands find to do, must do it with his might;" and let it not be said in these things "the children of the world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." Shall the philosopher and the reformer, the trader and the discoverer, move with an energy almost superhuman, and an earnestness well nigh terrific, while the Christian loiters in indolence, or draws back in reluctance? Ye cannot serve God and Mammon. If you have a purpose it must be one or the other, and to that must be consecrated all your soul and strength. This is no time, in these wise and busy days, to glide languidly down the river of life between banks of beauty and beneath skies of blue; it is the time of steamships, and storms, and ocean billows. Old earth is beginning to feel the thrill of a new life, and to start forward along the path of a new and nobler destiny. And it is for the Church to take the helm of future history and fill her sails with the breath of human progress.

With such a destiny and such a hope before us, can the Christian youth fail to be animated by a high and sacred ambition, an ambition to increase not his own but his Master's glory? For the joy set before him, Jesus, our Saviour, endured the cross, despising the shame; and shall we, who have the same joy before us, refuse to win it by the infinitely lighter toil demanded of us? Where, then, in view of such a mission, is all your young men's eagerness of heart? where all your boasted nineteenth century enterprise? where, especially the grace of God sanctifying them both? Up, then with a spirit equal to the future! Remember the shortness of life, but especially the objects and meaning of life. Scorn to weigh for a moment the spangled vanities of wealth, or the baubles of ambition, with the regeneration of humanity and the commission and co-labour with Christ, and go forward with clear, hopeful, and courageous heart, to "the help of the Lord against the mighty," and "him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out!"

SUPERVISION OF CANDIDATES.

The Stated Clerk of one of our Presbyteries writes to the Board of Education as follows:

"I will say that this Presbytery have been endeavouring to exercise a kind and careful supervision over all their candidates throughout their entire course; requiring them to appear personally at regular periods, twice every year; or, if a personal attendance would seriously interfere with their course of study, or from any cause be impracticable, or highly inconvenient, then to report in writing, stating where they have been, and how employed, during the preceding six months. I believe this plan commends itself to the members of the Presbytery, and to the churches, and is pleasing to the young brethren themselves."

The above plan we regard not only as judicious, but highly important. There is no part of our educational work in which the honour of religion is so much concerned as in the choice of worthy candidates, and in their maintaining, throughout their whole course of preparation, such a deportment as will place their characters above reproach. To secure this, requires satisfactory testimonials and a careful examination at first, and after that, such a kind, pastoral supervision as appears to be practised by the above Presbytery.

Candidates for the ministry, like other Christians, have imperfections, which need to be guarded against, and when exhibited, to be rectified. Fraternal and faithful intercourse with them by their Professors, and free conversations at short intervals by their Presbyteries, will go far to prevent those indiscretions to which they are liable, or the repetition of them, if they have occurred. These interviews will also improve their Christian graces, and increase their capabilities for future usefulness in the gospel ministry. We earnestly commend this subject to the attention of all our Presbyteries.

FEELING IN PREACHING.

The public speaker who would cause his hearers to feel, must himself feel. In no department of public speaking is this truth so important as in that of the Christian ministry. The seat of religion is in the affections; and revealed truth makes its appeal through the intellect to the heart. The truths of the gospel are adapted not only to interest the feelings, but deeply and intensely to stir them. One of the secrets of success in the ministry, undoubtedly is to have the heart of the preacher deeply affected by the truths he would impress upon his hearers. The intense emotion with which he was accustomed to preach the truths of the gospel, made the eloquence of the great Samuel Davies so irresistible. He mentions in his Diary preaching a sermon on Deut. x. 13, which he had previously preached with great satisfaction and prospect of success, and says, "But alas, I have lost that spirit with which it was at first delivered. The materials of the sermon were very solemn, and nothing appears to me a more unnatural incongruity, than to speak the most solemn things with a trifling spirit. Indeed, the incongruity appeared to me so great, that I was obliged to omit sundry things, though written before me in my notes, for want of a heart to express them with suitable tenderness and fervor."

Speaking of another sermon, he says, "Through the great mercy of God, my heart was passionately affected with the subject; and what tended not a little to increase my affection, was my observing the venerable Gilbert Tennent weeping beside me in the pulpit. Spiritual poverty appeared very amiable and charming to me."

It is not excitement simply or chiefly that a preacher needs, but feelings which are awakened by the truths uttered, and corresponding with them. How necessary, then, that the Spirit which dictated those truths should dwell richly in the hearts of the men who are called to preach them.—St. Louis Presbyterian.

THE DANGER OF UNNECESSARY DELAY IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY.

Postponing Christian duty beyond what circumstances absolutely require, is sometimes the cause of serious evil. A young gentleman, well known to the writer, graduated at one of our colleges, having in view the gospel ministry. Needing additional funds to enable him to pursue his theological studies, he engaged in teaching, not long after which he married, studied law, entered the arena of political preferment, and became a member of the Legislature. Every circumstance seemed to promise a prosperous and brilliant career. By his marriage he obtained a handsome worldly fortune; and his talents and eloquence would soon have given him a high rank as a statesman. Whether his conscience upbraided him for turning aside from his original purpose we are not informed. But Divine Providence interposed, and by a series of domestic afflictions checked his political aspirations, revived his Christian graces, turned his mind again to theological studies, and made him, in due time, a minister of the gospel.

Cases may occur in which young men commence a course of classical study for the purpose of preparing for the sacred office, without a Divine call. Such persons, upon ascertaining this fact, ought to change their purpose, and engage in some other pursuit. But for one who is conscious of having received a call, to allow himself to be diverted from this object, or even to postpone unduly his preparation for it, must be displeasing to God, and he may expect to be chastised in some form or other for his neglect of duty.

Hence the importance of watchfulness and prayer with reference to this matter, that we may understand the indications of Divine Providence, and be preserved from those counter influences which may tempt us not to follow those indications. If it is God's will that a man should engage in some secular pursuit, he may grow in grace, enjoy the comforts of religion, and be useful to society, while prosecuting his business, as well as though he were performing those duties which belong to the clerical office. But if he is called to this office, he cannot turn aside from it without peril. "Necessity is laid upon me," says the apostle Paul, "yea, woe be unto me, if I preach not the gospel."

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.

A correspondent of the Southern Presbyterian writes as follows:

The subject of educating young men for the gospel ministry, was one of absorbing interest. The neglect of proper family training was greatly deplored. There was a longing after a return of those days of our fathers, in which religious training of households, was a matter in which conscience did its part—when the Bible and the Catechism were the indispensables, and the Sabbath-day was a day sacred to God, and to the "commanding" of households, that they should walk in his ways. And although North Carolina has a University which is the pride of her citizens, and which ranks deservedly as a literary and scientific institution, with the first institutions of all our land, there seemed to be but one feeling on the part of the Synod—that they could not look to it as the source of the future ministry—they must have one in which the claims of God and his Church should at all times be paramount over those of worldly promotion! Hence they resolved on the founding of a Presbyterian Institution of the highest order—pledging abundant means for its full endowment. Whether this will be the present "Davidson," or a new modelling of it, is not determined. If it can be made "the Institution," it will be done; if not, another site and another model will be presented, for the end they are determined to accomplish.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION
IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

THE PIOUS TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

"I know Abraham that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment, that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him."

The beneficial effect of Abraham's conduct towards his family may be seen in the piety of Isaac, Lot, and Eliezer, to say nothing of Ishmael, concerning whose piety the evidence is less clear, though some things are recorded of him in Scripture which are not found elsewhere in the Bible, except in connection with pious men. But the piety of the other three is placed beyond doubt, and it is equally clear that this was brought about by the instrumentality of faithful religious training. The words above quoted are explicit on this point; and they appear to have been recorded in order to furnish an instructive lesson to us. Do parents and heads of families desire to secure for their households this most precious of all social blessings, viz., a brotherhood of devotional, obedient, and virtuous inmates? here is a model for their imitation. Let them adopt the same course as was pursued by Abraham, and with the same diligence and fidelity, and for aught we can see, the result will be the same in their case as it was in his.

But the effect of his conduct did not stop with his own family. God was pleased to connect it with the fulfilment of his promise that he would make of him a great and mighty nation, and that in his seed all families of the earth should be blessed. Abraham's faithfulness to his household was the first link in that chain of mercy which would reach down from generation to generation, to the end of time; securing to his natural seed distinguished social and political blessings, and to his spiritual seed, i. e., to Christ and his Church, the ultimate supremacy of the whole earth. "I know Abraham that he will command his children," &c., "that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him."

Here, likewise, is an encouraging motive for parental faithfulness. Christian parents now on the stage form a link in that chain of connection which, if preserved unbroken by the faithful discharge of family duties, will transmit the true religion through their children and descendants to the millennium. Let parents seek for themselves and their posterity this distinguished honour.

From the Presbyterian.

THE EDUCATION QUESTION.

This subject was discussed with much interest and ability, at the late meeting of the Synod of New Jersey. The writer took no part in that discussion; but would like now to present a few thoughts in view of the whole subject.

1st. There is, after all, a substantial agreement between the opposing parties on this question, so far at least as our Synod is concerned; and it is only as each regards the other as occupying extreme ground, (a position disavowed alike by each,) that there is any room for contention. Those who are opposed to ecclesiastical action in the establishment and government of educational institutions, seem to think that its advocates claim for the courts of the Church a power above and independent of the parents, as though they could either take the education of their children out of the hands of their parents, or at least compel them to patronize such institutions as the Church may establish. Those in favour of such action, on the other hand, seem to regard their opponents as denying that the Church has any power to act at all in this matter in her organized capacity.

Now, the truth is, that these extreme views are distinctly disavowed on both sides. We admit, say the first—all must admit that the parents are, both by their natural relation and by divine appointment, the first guardians of their children. No Church or State can deprive them of this right, or release them from the responsibilities connected with it. On the other hand, it is also admitted that the Church has a right to take part in this great work where the parents neglect their duty, or are unable to perform it without her help, or where her own interests demand her action; that the Church has a right to establish schools and colleges on heathen ground, all admit.

These admissions, it seems to the writer, place the parties on the same platform, namely, that the Church may and ought to act where there is a demand for her services. About this there can be no dispute. If she may do it in India, she may in California; if in California, she may in any other State or country. It is then purely a local question, to be decided by the circumstances of the case, whether an institution of learning is demanded in any particular place. If it is, she ought, if possible, to establish it; if it is not, let all her energies be given to her spiritual work.

2. But who shall decide whether an institution is demanded here or there? And if it is demanded, who shall act in trying to establish it? Shall it be the members of the Church in their individual capacity, or the courts of the Church in their official capacity? Here is, as I suppose, the true ground of the debate. One speaker on our floor, as we understood him, denied expressly that the courts of the Church have any authority to act in the matter, contending that it must be left to the individual members of the Church. The Church may act, but the Church courts have nothing to do with it.

Now, on this point we have several remarks to make. The first is, that the thing may be done in either way. Private members may combine, undoubtedly, if they choose, and establish a Christian institution for the education of their children; or the courts of the Church, the representatives of the people, (for this is our idea of a Church court,) may act for their constituents. And if the private members do not, or cannot act, it becomes clearly the duty of the courts to act for them. In so doing, they do not supersede the parents, or constrain them against their will, but only act for them in that which they would not, or could not do alone. To deny that they have this right, is to contradict what is universally admitted as to schools among the heathen. If, then, it may be done in either way, it becomes purely again a question to be determined by circumstances, in which way it shall be attempted in any given instance. It is not at all a question of principle, but of expediency. In which way can it be most easily and efficiently done?

And here comes in our second remark, i. e. that the example of the Presbyterian Church, and indeed of every Christian denomination of the land, for the last fifty years, is decidedly in favour of ecclesiastical action as the easiest and best way, where the thing is to be done. There have been very few, if any denominational institutions established within the last half century except by ecclesiastical action? Is not this a significant fact? Is the common judgment and practice of the sober, enlightened Christian community of this country worth nothing on this point? Nay, we go further, and venture a third remark here, i. e. that it is utterly impossible now to found a Christian college in any part of our widely extended country, on the principle of private Christian association. It cannot be done in any State of the Union by the Presbyterians who are scattered over it, nor by any other denomination, without the judicatories of the Church. Would any of the opponents of ecclesiastical action themselves think now of trying to start a new college on the principle of private co-operation? We think not. To say, therefore, that our judicatories must not act, is simply to say that Presbyterians will have no more colleges. We venture to say that there never will be another established as Princeton and Jefferson were; not that these institutions have worked badly, or are unworthy of confidence. By no means. They have done and are doing a noble work. They are just as worthy of confidence as any colleges in the land, under whatever regimen they may be. But what could be done when they were founded cannot be done now. The circumstances of the country, and public opinion on this point are vastly changed. And for any man now to set out to raise a Presbyterian college without the action of the courts of the Church, is simply to make himself ridiculous.

These, as we understand them, are the general views and principles of our Church; and the General Assembly, feeling the unspeakable importance of Christian education, has in effect, according to these common views and principles, advised all her inferior courts to consider whether any action towards the erection of schools, academies, or colleges, is demanded within their bounds, thus leaving it to those who are on the ground, the immediate representatives of the churches concerned, to decide what is to be done, and in what way. And just here comes in the work of our Board of Education. When the local judicatories, or the private members of the Church, through them, (for this, we contend, is the true view of our Church courts,) have decided that something ought to be done in a particular place, they call for her help. She is directed by the Assembly to give it, to the extent of her ability. In performing this work all must bid her God speed.

R.

RELIGION A PART OF EDUCATION.

The following remarks of Lord John Russell at the British and Foreign School Society, (which we copy from an English paper,) show what importance he attaches to the use of the Holy Scriptures in secular education.

Lord John Russell spoke very strongly on the necessity of mingling religion with education:

"I could not but be struck with the answer of one of the boys at the examination to-day, when he was asked for what purpose the Holy Scriptures were given to mankind, and he answered, 'To be the guide of our conduct in life.' Well, now, what an imperfect, what a lame system must that be which proposes, either by State assistance or voluntary effort, to educate the great body of the people of this country, and yet leaves out the knowledge of that which is to guide our conduct in life! Can any omission be more unwise, or more fatal to the object we have in view? because it is not a matter upon which we can say, 'This is what you are to be taught at school, but you will be taught other and more important things elsewhere.' The children who receive only secular instruction will conclude most naturally that they have the sum and substance of that which is most necessary for them. That they might attend religious instruction elsewhere is no doubt possible; but when you consider the time that is taken up at school, and the occupations of the various ministers of religion, you will see that it is hardly possible in practice, that in one place children should receive an adequate secular instruction, and that in another place they should find a minister of religion capable of giving them the whole of the instruction which is required for their religious education. If that is the case, and if it is so important that their conduct in life should be regulated, will you give them moral instruction apart from the Bible—apart from any religious sanction? That, again, appears to me to be an equally unwise and an equally fatal course; because, if these precepts of morality, these rules for the guidance of their conduct, have a divine sanction, it ought to be revealed to them, and the counsel of God should not be withheld. I should be sorry that, whether it be by the State or by voluntary societies, such a mistake should be made by those who are educated, as to think that their education was complete, unless they had received religious instruction; or that religious instruction was something separate and professional, belonging only to certain persons who were endowed by the State, or were ministers of Dissenting communions, and were alone enabled to deal with the matter of religion."

VOCAL MUSIC IN SCHOOLS.

Music is like all other studies, it does require active, persevering, and continued effort; and where music is taught in the day school, every pupil should continue the study and practice of it as long as he attends school. Nothing tends more to produce happy and kind feelings. We cannot sing with, or listen to the voices of those we love, without increasing our attachment. It tends to produce habits of order, both physical and mental. Music is often found to stimulate the mind when dull, and awakes and excites to action in other pursuits. Vocal music should become a regular branch of education, that the talents and voices which God has given us may be better cultivated and brought out. All have organs to produce musical sounds, and if cultivated and improved in early life, nearly or quite all may learn to sing. Vocal music should be generally cultivated as conducive to health. Dr. Rush remarks on this point, that vocal music is not only an accomplishment, but a means of preserving health: he particularly insists that vocal music should not be neglected in the education of the young. I here introduce a fact, says he, which has been suggested to me by my profession, that is, the exercise of the organs of the breast by singing, contributes very much to defend them from those diseases to which the climate and other causes expose them.

The Germans are seldom afflicted with consumption, nor have I ever known of more than one instance of the spitting of blood among them. This is in part occasioned by the strength which their lungs acquire by exercising them frequently in vocal music, which constitutes an essential branch of their education. Singing tends to expand the chest, and thus increase the activity and power of the vital organs. Let vocal music be introduced into our schools as one of the important branches of education, and the time will not be far distant when all will be able to sing from a knowledge of the rules of music. Instead of the imitation, or rote singer, will be found the ready reader of music.—Watchman and Reflector.

BEAUTIFUL SIMILE.

The pious Jonathan Edwards describes a Christian as being like "such a little flower as we see in the spring of the year, low and humble on the ground; opening its bosom to receive the pleasant beams of the sun's glory; rejoicing, as it were, in a calm of rapture; diffusing around a sweet fragrance; standing peacefully and lowly in the midst of other flowers." The world may think nothing of the little flower—they may not even notice it; but, nevertheless, it will be diffusing around sweet fragrance upon all who dwell within its lowly sphere.

RELIGIOUS ENTHUSIASM.

The term expressive of contempt varies with the age and country. Paul was called mad in the judgment-hall of Cesarea. A man with the devotedness of Paul would, in the court of Charles II. have been called a Puritan; in a conclave of High Churchmen he would be called a Methodist; in our tasteful and literary circles, he would be called a fanatic; in a party of ecclesiastics, where coldness passes for rationality, he would be called an enthusiast; and in private life, where secularity and indifference form the tame and undeviating features of almost every company, he would, if altogether a Christian, be spoken of as a man whose wrong-headed peculiarities rendered him a very odd and unnatural exception to the general character of the species.—Dr. Chalmers.

FORMS.

A man may look at a pane of glass, or through it, or both. Let all earthly things be unto thee as glass, to see heaven through. Religious ceremonies should be pure glass, not dyed in the gorgeous crimsons and purples, blues and greens, of the drapery of saints and saintesses.—Coleridge.

Zeal without knowledge is like haste to a man in the dark.—Newton.

No man dare ask of God so much as he is ready to give.—Luther.

IMPORTANT TRUTHS.

In a work lately published by Lieber on civil liberty and self-government, he says, "There is no right without a parallel duty; no liberty, without the supremacy of law; no high destiny, without earnest perseverance; no greatness, without self-denial."

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Education. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to all the Honorary members every year.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The sum of Seventy-five dollars forms a scholarship to assist a student in the collegiate course, and the sum of One Hundred dollars in the theological course.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, IN OCTOBER, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of Albany.

Amsterdam Village ch 47; Tribes Hill ch 5 62 — $52 62

Presbytery of Hudson.

Deer Park ch 8; Florida ch 20 — 28 00

Presbytery of North River.

Marlboro ch — 5 50

Presbytery of Bedford.

South Salem ch — 38 58

Presbytery of New York.

Williamsburgh 2d ch 53 08; Greenbush ch 1; Brooklyn 2d ch 85 16 — 139 24

Presbytery of Elizabethtown.

Pluckamin ch 21 50, Mr Elias Brown 5 — 26 50

Presbytery of West Jersey.

Brick ch Cedarville — 11 51

Presbytery of Newton.

Newton ch, to con Rev MYRON BASSET life mem — 55 75

Presbytery of Raritan.

Pleasant Valley and Lower German Valley chs — 5 00

Presbytery of Susquehanna.

Towanda ch — 5 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

10th ch Phila, collection in part 188 80, Wm E Dubois 20, "55 N Front st" 5, H Campbell 5, M Patterson 20, M P McArthur 25; Charles T Beck 20, J R Snowden 5, C B Penrose 5, Mrs Gurdel 2, Moses Johnson 75, W D Bell 50, S A Mercer 10=430 80, less collecting 2 — 428 80

Presbytery of Philadelphia 2d.

Catasauqua ch — 6 00

Presbytery of Baltimore.

Govane chapel — 1 69

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Upper Path Valley ch — 18 54

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Spring Creek ch 52 75; Sinking Creek ch in part 33 50, less 3 bad=30 50 — 83 25

Presbytery of Richland.

Waterford ch 1; Frederick ch 8 — 9 00

Presbytery of Cincinnati.

7th ch Cincinnati 84 58; Cheviot ch 6 22=90 80, less premium on draft 1 13 — 89 67

Presbytery of Peoria.

Canton ch — 5 00

Presbytery of Lexington.

Mount Carmel ch 17; New Monmouth ch 17 50; Windy Cove ch 10 25; Lebanon ch 9; New Providence ch 37; Staunton ch 27; Tinkling Spring ch 40; Shemariah ch 7; Harrisonburg ch 4 — 168 75

Presbytery of Montgomery.

Falling Spring ch — 27 00

$1205 40

LEGACY.

Estate of Samuel Smith, Esq, of West Middletown, Pa, per Jas Thompson, Esq, Executor, 250, less five per cent. inheritance tax, and one per cent. premium on check=14 87 — 235 13

REFUNDED.

H W S — 20 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Miss Jane R Wilson, Shippensburgh, Pa 5; GEO JOHNSON, Esq, Boston, Mass, to con himself and Mr CHARLES EVERETT JOHNSON life members 100; Mrs Emily Evans, dec'd, Allegheny City 20 — 125 00

$1585 53

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Presbytery of Genesee River.

Warsaw ch (special) — 44 60

Presbytery of Newton.

Mansfield ch (special) — 30 00

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Big Spring ch — 50 75

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bellefonte, Pa, Female Education Society for Scholarship in Carrol College — 170 00

Total — $1880 88

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH, PA., IN OCTOBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Cherry Tree ch 20; Salem ch 10 — $30 00

Presbytery of Redstone.

Laurel Hill ch — 23 07

Presbytery of Allegheny City.

First ch Allegheny City 86 35; Sharpsburg ch 21 55 — 107 90

Presbytery of Washington.

Cove ch 20; Paris ch 37 50; West Union ch 7; West Liberty ch 2 25; Mill Creek ch 16 20; Fairview ch 73 89; Frankford ch 25. Lower Ten Mile ch 17; Mt Prospect ch 34 35; Ten persons of West Liberty ch, to constitute JOHN MAXWELL hon mem 50 — 283 19

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Cadiz ch — 34 85

Presbytery of Steubenville.

Springfield ch 25; Bacon Ridge ch 25; Island Creek ch 75 — 125 00

Presbytery of New Lisbon.

Deerfield ch — 17 00

$621 01

Less $8 bad; Discount 3 50 — 11 50

$609 51

LEGACIES.

Patterson Estate 50; Estate of Hannah A Horner, per Wm Mercer, Executor 300, less 5 per cent inheritance tax 15=285 — 335 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

John Ewing 5; Wm Ewing 5; Mrs Wm Ewing 5; James Moody 2 50 — 17 50

Total, — $962 01

J. S. LEECH, MCALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, IN OCTOBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Indianapolis, additional — $6 00

Presbytery of Mississippi.

Lake Providence and Pecan Grove ch — 30 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Col Blake, Indianapolis — 25 00

$61 00

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, New York, Nov. 13th, 1854.

Indian Missions.—Letters have been received from the Creek Mission, October 13; from the Choctaw Mission, October 12; from the Chickasaw Mission, October 12; from the Seminole Mission, to October 3; from the Iowa Mission, to October 17; from the Omaha Mission to October 26. Generally, the mission families were enjoying usual health. We note as of special interest some degree of serious feeling on religion among the Seminoles. Messrs. Loughridge and Templeton, of the Creek Mission, had preached at Oak Ridge on Saturday and Sabbath, as they returned from the meeting of Synod. Mr. Lilley writes that "a large number were present; the services were solemn and interesting, and the people attentive. Two were received into the church on profession of their faith; two others were examined by the session, but their admission was deferred. We trust the Lord is beginning a good work among the Seminoles." For information concerning the Iowa and Omaha Missions, see the report of a visit to those missions by one of the Secretaries, which will be found in another column.

India.—Our advices are dated at Lahor, August 18; Lodiana, to August 19; Saharunpur, to August —; Agra, to September 1; Mynpurie, August 19; Futtehpore, August 8; Allahabad, August 21. The missionaries were permitted to receive two members into the church at Lodiana, and four at Saharunpur. Two other applicants for admission at the latter station were deferred, concerning one of whom Mr. Campbell writes as follows: "He is a very interesting character, and the most sincere and satisfactory person of his class I have met in India. He has spent the greatest part of his life as a religious mendicant. Some ten years ago he received from us a number of religious tracts, which he read carefully and then returned, receiving others, and meeting us from time to time at the Hardwar fair, &c. He thus learned the way of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. Some months ago he came to a decision, and resolved to embrace and profess Christianity, and to renounce Hinduism. His examination was very satisfactory, and was fully sustained, but wishing to avoid all appearance of haste, we deferred his baptism for three months longer."—Mr. and Mrs. Scott reached their station at Agra on the 29th of August.—Mr. Nundy reports a spirit of inquiry among the people at Futtehpore, and mentions the case of a young Hindu who had been giving much attention to Christian instruction, whose friends had persecuted him on that account, and confined him in a house, to prevent his having intercourse with the missionaries. Mr. Nundy says there are also other inquirers. We regret to learn that he has been called to mourn over the loss of his youngest daughter, an affliction which he feels very deeply, but appears to bear with Christian resignation.

Mission to the Chinese in California.—A letter from Mr. Speer, of October 13, has been received, which mentions his being on a visit to "the mining country towards the south," to seek the salvation of the Chinese in those parts.

Arrivals of Missionaries.—A notice of the arrival of the Rev. Joseph Warren and family, of the Agra Mission, was inadvertently omitted at the proper time. They reached this port on the 19th of August, after an absence of about sixteen years, on a visit partly for health, and partly to make arrangements for the education of their children.—The arrival of the "Joshua Bates" at Hongkong is reported in the newspapers—the ship in which Mr. and Mrs. R. Lowrie were passengers. Our letters from them were despatched from Anjier, within a few weeks sail of China, at which time they were well, and their voyage had been a pleasant one.

VISIT TO THE OMAHA AND IOWA MISSIONS, BY WALTER LOWRIE, ESQ., ONE OF THE SECRETARIES OF THE BOARD.

Left home at 5 A. M., September 18th, 1854. Reached Chicago by railroad on the 20th, and St. Louis on the 21st; thence by steamboat 600 miles to St. Joseph's, and by stage 150 miles to Bellevue, arriving at the Omaha Mission on the 29th September. From St. Josephs, had the company, in the stage, of G. W. Moneypenny, Esq., Commissioner of Indian affairs.

The Mission Premises.

By the late treaty, 640 acres were granted to the Board, to include the improvements belonging to the mission. Spent some time with Messrs. Hamilton and Irwin in examining and deciding on the best form to take this grant. The whole lies on the second bank of the river, about 50 feet above high water mark, a quarter of a mile from the river. Nothing can be more beautiful than the prospect. The valley of the Missouri for twenty miles, lies before it on the east, and the valley of the Platte, which river is nine miles distant, comes in from the south. A company of gentlemen has been formed to lay out a city, and have made pre-emption claims all round the mission grant. But the mission property is by far the most eligible place for the site of the city. The land on the north and the west is broken and hilly; the east is a low bottom, which is overflowed in high water; to the south, the same plateau on which the mission stands extends for ten miles, spreading out for six or eight miles from east to west. The great value of the 640 acres consists in their covering the entire front of the plateau next the river.

I had several interviews with the agent of the Bellevue company, but we could come to no agreement to act in concert in laying out a town.

Bellevue City.

This is the name which this company has given to their embryo city. There is little doubt that with proper management a respectable town may be built up here. Two circumstances may give it such a start as at no distant day will increase its size to that of a respectable city. 1st. Should the railroad from Rock Island on the Mississippi, now making across the State of Iowa towards the Pacific, cross the Missouri river at this point, it would bring such a current of travel and trade as would require a large city to meet their growing wants. The Missouri river, from St. Louis to this point, is a great and noble stream. It is navigable, except when obstructed by ice, the whole year, and for steamboats of a large size. 2d. The selection of this point for the seat of government of Nebraska territory. This, in a new country, would much promote the prosperity of the town at its commencement.

It is clearly the duty of the Board to realize to its fullest extent, for the benefit of the poor Indian tribes in the territory, the property that has been thus providentially placed under their direction. There are three modes in which this may be done. 1st. Sell the whole property for a given sum, say $50,000, payable one-third down, and the balance in one and two years, with interest. The property is no longer needed as a mission station, as the tribe will be settled from 50 to 70 miles distant. 2d. Divide the given sum into 50 or 100 shares, sell one-half or two-thirds of these shares, and let the purchasers come in as joint owners, according to the share or shares held by each. 3d. Let the Board at once lay out a town, and sell the lots to individuals as may be wanted.

In either the second or third mode, an agent would be required to attend to the details of the business. Neither the missionaries nor the secretaries of the Board, with their present duties, could take the charge of this interest. The compensation of the agent would be paid, of course, from the proceeds of the sales.

Several gentlemen in Oregon, and St. Joseph's, Missouri, who had been on the ground, informed me that they would take a number of shares at once, if the second plan were adopted.

Buildings and Farm.

The mission house is of hewed logs, two stories high, under a good roof. The main building is 64 by 28 feet. Two wings extend back, each 18 by 28 feet. Fifty scholars, and the mission families, are well accommodated in it. The out-houses consist of a mill-house, wash-house, workshop, house for the farming tools, gears, &c. The horse-mill is the best I have ever seen. The whole space required is but 16 by 12. Two horses walk upon an endless railroad, elevated at one end about four degrees, and which passes over two rollers, like a band. With perfect ease, they grind three bushels an hour. The entire cost was $300. About 140 acres are under fence, and this year the crops have been most abundant, especially the corn, of which they will have some 800 bushels more than they need. Wheat, potatoes, turnips, ruta baga, beets, pumpkins, tomatoes, &c., &c., all abundant. Although this property may realize a large sum, I felt sorry that we had to remove the mission. Everything about the farm is in good order, and these productive fields would with little labour have supplied all their wants but clothing and groceries. With all this abundance, there has been no rain here since June.

The School of the Omahas.

I gave the school as careful an examination as my other engagements would permit. I found it in a prosperous condition. One of the boys is now a young man, and five of the girls are young women. At this mission, none of the scholars have joined the church, but the larger ones are deeply serious, and their conduct and deportment, their manners and intelligence, would compare favourably with those of their own age anywhere. The smaller scholars of both sexes are quite promising; and if they are continued in the school, the best results will follow. At present there are in the school 10 Omahas, 3 Ottoes, 16 Pawnees, 6 Sioux, 4 Blackfeet, 3 Puncahs—26 boys, and 16 girls. These children from the different tribes may yet be a great blessing to their degraded relatives.

The Pawnees.

Between two and three hundred Pawnees, men, women, and children, had just come to Bellevue to receive from the government a present of provisions, blankets, &c. They camped on the prairie, close to the mission fence. They were a poor, ragged looking set, the most so of any Indians I had ever seen. The whole day, numbers of them were round the pump, in the mission compound getting water, and carrying to their camp. The contrast between them and the Pawnee mission scholars was so great, that but for the admitted fact, they could not be believed to be of the same people. On the one side were almost naked savages, on the other, civilized youth and children. I drew the attention of the Commissioner to the difference, but he said it had struck him at once, and but for such evidence, such a change seemed impossible. On the 30th September he held a council with them, under some trees near the mission-house. They all, men, women, and children, attended; the chiefs in the inner circle. A dozen speeches were made by the chiefs, which were answered by the Commissioner. The chiefs were unusually eloquent and fluent. One old chief, rising six feet in height, had more gestures than any man I ever heard speak. He as far exceeded Dr. Duff in this respect, as he exceeds common men. The Commissioner finally said to them, that this being Saturday, to-morrow would be the Lord's day, on which he did no business; but if they wished to make a treaty, he would meet them on Monday for that purpose. As it was too late for him to cross the river, he stayed at the mission till Monday. It was then found, that owing to a rumour that a party of Sioux was marching to attack their village, the Pawnees had left, excepting a few chiefs, who remained to see the Commissioner. They agreed to go to Washington to make the treaty.

Sabbath, October 1st.—At the mission, the bell rings every morning at 5 A. M., and prayers and breakfast are at 6 A. M. At 7 A. M., Mr. Dillett, the teacher, has Sabbath school. When I went into the school, one of the Pawnee chiefs was crouching down beside two of the Pawnee boys, who were reading the New Testament to him, and translating it, and getting him to pronounce the words in English. The boys were much amused at his mistakes, but I told them not to laugh at him, but explain to him the words, as well as they could.

At 9 A. M., the mission families and the scholars met in the school-room, and after singing, reading the Scriptures, and prayer by Mr. Hamilton, I spoke to them for half an hour. The Commissioner then made them a very feeling and appropriate address; reminding the scholars of their privileges; comparing their condition with the poor ragged Indians encamped beside the mission. He noticed with approbation the propriety of their deportment, both during divine worship, and while at their usual employments, and encouraged them to persevere, and by the blessing of God, they might yet be the means of elevating their poor degraded kinsfolk. Several Pawnee chiefs were present, and gave fixed attention, but they could not understand a word.

At 3 P. M. Mr. Irwin preached an excellent sermon, from the words, "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" His remarks to the scholars were very solemn, and many of them were in tears. At all the exercises, the singing was very good. Most of the girls have good voices.

At 7 P. M. we all met again, it being the evening of the monthly concert. Short addresses were made by the Commissioner, Messrs. Hamilton, Irwin, and myself. It was an interesting season to us all.

It was a remarkable providence that brought the Commissioner and myself thus together on mission ground, without previous concert. We both noticed it, and were thankful for it. He is deeply affected with the condition of the Indians, and though on a small scale, he saw the salutary working of the system of boarding schools for their benefit. We parted on Monday, and he returned to Washington, through Iowa and Wisconsin, passing through New York a few days before I got home.

Location of the Omahas.

This is not yet decided on, and it was one part of the business of the Commissioner to effect it. It is a difficult question, and it was found that sufficient examinations had not been made to enable him to decide it now. I conversed freely with him, and with the chiefs, in regard to it. My wish was that they should not go more than thirty miles further up the Missouri; but the chiefs said they had been over the ground, and they would not reach good timber land nearer than fifty miles, and that at seventy miles there was a most suitable place, where the Aoway river joined the Missouri, and if they could be protected from the Sioux, they would prefer going there. The decision was finally postponed till next spring.

Visit to the Iowa Mission.

I had now been four days and a half at the Omaha mission, and having finished all I could do at present, on Wednesday the 4th of October, Mr. Irwin and myself bade a feeling adieu to all the inmates of the mission, and at 7 A. M. set out for the Iowa mission. Mr. Irwin had brought up with him a light two horse wagon, on easy springs, and we travelled with much comfort, and at small expense. The distance is 140 miles, and we reached the mission on the third day at 5 P. M.

The Mission Property at Iowa.

By the Iowa treaty, 320 acres were granted to the Board, to include the improvements, and 160 acres of wood land, to be selected on any part of the Iowa purchase. By the Sac treaty, 160 acres were granted, to be selected on the Sac purchase, not exceeding two miles from the mission. Our first work was to satisfy ourselves of the most suitable lines for each of these grants. The 320 acre tract is exceedingly valuable. The lines on the south and north will be a mile in length, and on the east and west half a mile. On the east end, 150 acres are under fence, of which 50 acres form a pasture field, and 50 acres more may be fenced, leaving more than 100 acres on the west end, now a grove of young but rapidly growing timber. We selected the 160 acres on the Sac grant, and found it also to be equally valuable. It embraces more than 100 acres of timbered land, with a limestone quarry, and every appearance of a coal bank. We did not select the other 160 acres of woodland, but we visited Wolf's Grove, three miles distant, which we found most valuable also. Here we can locate the 160 acres, but we must take it by sectional lines, and hence must wait till the public surveys are run. The mission farm, the Sac grant, and Wolf's Grove, form a triangle, between two and three miles apart. Between them is a body of prairie land, of the very best quality, of several thousand acres. The mission is but four miles from the river, and the whole region is land of the best quality. Their crop of corn, wheat, &c., is very large, and they will have some 800 bushels to sell.

Mission Buildings.

The school-house is 116 feet long, 36 feet wide, and three stories high. The lower story is of stone, the second and third of brick. The building will easily accommodate 100 scholars, with the mission families. By adding a kitchen as a separate building, and finishing the attic, it will be large enough for 125 scholars.

The barn, stables, and horse-mill, with more than 1000 bushels of corn, were burnt a few years ago, and these have not yet been rebuilt.

The plan of the Indian bureau is to have the children from the Iowas, and the Sacs, sent to this school. These would probably number—Sacs, 25; Iowas, 50=75. There would then be room for twenty-five from the tribes who have no schools or missionaries. From four such tribes, there are now nine most promising children in the school; viz., 5 Sioux, 2 Blackfeet, 1 Cheyenne, 1 Pawnee. By a little effort, others could be obtained. With these roomy and permanent buildings, this rich and productive farm, no place could be found more eligible. The objection made heretofore, exists no longer—that the school was in the midst of a worthless tribe, and the other tribes could not trust their children among them. The Iowa district is now eight miles distant, and within a year and a half, every part round the mission will be taken up and occupied by a white population.

The School of the Iowas.

I gave the school a careful examination, and was pleased and encouraged with the result. The children here, as well as among the Omahas, appear to have no difficulty with the English aspirates. In the southern tribes, the tendency is to use d for th. Their reading and spelling were very good, and they have no difficulty in learning to write. They are well advanced in grammar, are greatly interested in geography, but are slow, and many of them dull, in learning arithmetic. In committing to memory portions of Scripture, Psalms and Hymns, and the Shorter Catechism, they excel any school I ever visited. One girl about eleven years of age, had committed to memory the whole of the 119th Psalm; one boy had learned the first fourteen Psalms: I heard him recite four of them, but had not time to hear more. The larger scholars recited the Shorter Catechism without missing a word, and all who could read at all, were going through the whole. At this school also are five girls just becoming young women. Three of them are consistent members of the church. There is a young man named Kirwan Murray, a former pupil of the school, of the most pleasing and promising manners and deportment. He is industrious, and is now working at the agency, where he receives $16 a month and his boarding. He lodges, and spends his Sabbaths at the mission. The ten girls, at the two schools, would compare favourably with respectable white girls anywhere. They have had the best training, under Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Irwin. Most of them are orphans, and have no home but the mission. The smaller boys and girls are exceedingly promising children. The school consists of 31 Iowas, 4 Sacs, 5 Sioux, 2 Blackfeet, 1 Cheyenne =23 boys, and 20 girls.

Talks with the Chiefs.

Three of the chiefs, and some eight or ten other Indians, have not yet removed to their reservations. They were very anxious to talk with me, and took up more of my time than I could well spare. Wolf, the principal chief, and some others, called on Saturday morning, and after spending two hours with them, I told them I could not stay longer then. He proposed then to come on to-morrow. I told him that was the Sabbath, and I could not meet them. Wolf said he thought I might, as my talks were "good Sabbath day talks." I appointed them to meet me at No-Heart's house on Monday, and on that day remained two hours with them. This did not satisfy them, and in the evening they all came to the mission.

I gave them much good advice, and encouraged them in view of their altered prospects. Urged them to give up all drinking of spirituous liquors, and to come together for the worship of God on the Sabbath, at their new homes, where Mr. Irwin would go over and preach to them. I pointed out the importance of the school to them; that they could now see for themselves, that their children were like white men and white women, after being in the school. I remonstrated strongly with them for taking away the boys, when they were but half taught; that even last week, when Mr. Irwin was away, four boys were taken home to work, and that these must be brought back at once. I pointed them to Kirwan and the girls, telling them that if they had kept their children in the school from the first, they might now have fifty or more educated young men and women, who would have protected them from the frauds of the white man. Wolf promised faithfully that the four boys should be brought back at once. He spoke feelingly of his own neglect in not controlling his own two boys; they did not like the confinement of the school, and he let them do as they pleased, and now, instead of being white men like Kirwan, they were going about with blankets on.

They then got me to write down what they wished to have done with part of their money, to be read to their grandfather the President, or their father the Commissioner; all which I did, and we parted in much good humour on their part.

Sabbath, October 8th.—The bell rings here every morning at 5 A. M., and breakfast and prayers are at 6 A. M., Sabbath-school at 7. At 9 A. M., all assembled in the large room, and I gave the scholars a long talk, and a few words to the mission families. At 3 P. M., Mr. Irwin preached; some of the families from the agency being present. At the earnest request of Mr. Irwin, at 7 P. M. I went over all our missions, noticing all the schools, and the manners of the different nations. Here also we spent a profitable Sabbath.

Return Home.

I had now spent two and a half busy days, besides the Sabbath, and at 7 A. M. on Tuesday, October 10th, set out for St. Joseph's, twenty-five miles distant. All the mission families and the scholars had assembled in the chapel, and I bade them farewell, shaking hands with them all. Mr. Irwin went with me in his little wagon to St. Joseph's, but returned part of the way home the same day. On the 11th, I took the steamer for St. Louis; and on the 19th reached home, truly thankful to God for his preserving care over me in this long journey. I had not received a word from home till my return.

INDIA: ALLAHABAD MISSION.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. L. G. HAY.

Bridge of boats—Jhusi—Talking with a large crowd at Sydabad—The Sabbath.

December 9th, 1853.—Having sent forward our tents, we left Allahabad this morning, crossed the bridge over the Ganges, and joined our camp at Jhúsi. This bridge consists of a double track, each wide enough for a single carriage, laid across native boats, which are secured in the stream by heavy anchors at each end. There seems to be no law about "keeping to the right" or left. We met heavy carts on either track, and were compelled twice to cross the beam which separates them—a feat that threatened to bring our progress in the carriage to a hasty termination. The half mile of plank road on this side is much better than quicksand, but not the best of corduroy. Was disappointed in making my intended visit to the bazar. Had some talk with some stragglers by the roadside; one of them (of the shepherd caste) told me there were about 3000 people in Jhúsi, and several temples—one of them having cost a lac (100,000) of rupees. He was very ignorant, and "lame from his birth," reminding me of the class of people who so often received blessings from Christ. He acknowledged Bhagwán (God) as the creator, and true object of worship, but his notions of Bhagwán were very confused.

December 10th. Sydabad.—Started early, but a troublesome horse prevented our reaching camp till about 11 o'clock. In the afternoon, Mirza (catechist) went with me to the bazar. We took our station near a large well, close by the side of this great thoroughfare—the Grand Trunk Road—and spent about two hours talking with a large crowd of attentive and respectful listeners. They frequently assented to what was said. Among them were several Brahmans, but none seemed disposed to dispute. Several questions were proposed by them, intended as a sort of reply, such as, "Is not this the Kali Yug, (the bad age,) in which nothing good can be done?" and others similar to this. In illustration of the blessings brought by Christianity, Mirzá gave them a very vivid account of my ancestral history; telling them of the cruel rites practised by the Druids, &c. The Hindus seem much more disposed to admit and understand the doctrine of Christ's incarnation than the Musalmans; the latter utterly deny its possibility.

December 11th. Sabbath.—Delightful rest; if it had no other end than the physical welfare of men, it would be worthy of universal observance. We were glad to enjoy it, both for this and its higher purpose. At 10 o'clock, we had service in one of the tents, calling in all our camp servants. Mirzá gave an excellent commentary on the parable of Dives and Lazarus, to which I added some remarks, showing the danger and responsibility of those servants who could hear the gospel, and would not, and of those who heard, and yet did not regard instruction. In the evening, Mirzá went to the bazar alone—a severe cold, aggravated by exposure to the sun yesterday, rendered me quite unfit to go out.

Conversation with a Brahman—Objection from unworthy conduct of Christians—No comfort in idol worship—Discussion with a Pandit.

December 12th. Barode.—Enjoyed our drive and walk in the keen morning air. Arriving early, I walked over to a small bungalow, usually occupied by a Road-Sergeant, but empty just now. It was surrounded by a nice garden, out of which some tomatoes were gathered and given me by the man in charge of the premises. While looking over the garden, we came to some carrots. "These," said my conductor, "we can't eat." (He was a Brahman—Pádri Sáhib—as he told me, after learning who I was.) And why not? I asked. "Because it is not our custom—forbidden in our sacred books," he replied. This led to a long conversation, in which we were joined by an intelligent Munshi, employed in this road service. Among other things, the Brahman asked me if I would hinder a man from killing a cow. I replied, "If from mere cruelty, yes; if for food, no." "Well," said he, "we worship the cow, and you English kill it;" to which I replied, by showing the great difference between rational and irrational animals; the propriety of God's creating some animals for food; and finally, that if he would not destroy life at all, he must stop drinking water. Seeming unable to answer the views advanced, he asked the Munshi to talk with me, who began by proposing a very common objection to Christianity, and very difficult to meet satisfactorily. He said, "Some Christians are oppressors, some dishonest, some drunkards," &c., &c., all of which is unfortunately too true here, as elsewhere. I explained as I could, the difference between nominal and true Christians, and this led to a discussion about the depravity of the heart. He admitted that all men were sinners, but still thought they could perform some meritorious actions, else how could they obtain good hereafter? This brought us to the very heart of the subject—the necessity of some sin-offering for us—and here I appealed to their own experience. Have you any Saviour? Do you find any comfort in idol worship, &c.? They answered, no. I explained the great salvation by the cross—told them how much comfort they might enjoy, if they would only understand and receive Christ. The old Brahman said, "Well, your religion will fill this land; it is spreading abroad, and will finally be victorious over all"—a very common expression among them. May Christ give these two lost ones the spirit of true inquirers.

In the afternoon, we spent an hour or two in the village. Nothing can exceed the assurance of some of these Pandits. One of them was very earnest in defence of his favourite deity—Ram—from the charge of wickedness, which Mirza brought against him. The Pandit did not hesitate to use a little falsehood; but the crowd were too familiar with Ram's history to be deceived, and while Mirzá went on to expose the Pandit's statement, the crowd applauded with great glee. Foiled in this attempt to divert attention from the scriptural truth Mirzá was proclaiming, the Pandit abruptly asked one of their sneering questions: "We know there is a Hindu religion, and a Musalman one, but where did this Christian religion come from—how old is it?" I took up his question, and improved the opportunity to rehearse the inspired account of creation, the fall, &c., showing that our religion began then; it was the only true one, because it contained not one single wicked or impure precept, while all false religions did contain such things, his own among the number. We were descendants of the same first parents, needed a common Saviour, and any religion that cut up the human race into castes, making the one divine, and the other not fit to be saved, (as the Hindu system does,) must be wrong—unlike God, and unfit for man. The Pandit was much vexed, seeing the crowd so attentive, and apparently assenting. He relieved himself by giving me a little flattery, and then quietly slipped off.

Wells built for merit—Bold thieves—Religiousness of the Hindus—The native catechist's replies—Christian ideas gaining ground.

December 13th. Gopeegunj.—Came ten miles this morning, reaching our camp a little after sunrise. The keen morning air is most exhilarating. No climate can surpass that of India at this season of the year. The long exhausting hot season we have lately passed through seems like a dream—scarcely possible in the same hemisphere with the present one. Have observed a great many handsomely built tanks and wells all along the road, built by various wealthy natives, to acquire merit; certainly the most laudable Hindu form of securing that object. In a country where scarcely any rain falls during eight months of the year, a large tank, which supplies water for drinking, bathing, and for irrigation, is naturally regarded as one of the highest types of public blessings.

Found our camp pitched at the lower end of the village, just where a branch road leads off to Mirzapoor. This is quite a large place, containing a number of superior native dwellings, the property of several wealthy sugar factors, who carry on an extensive business here. The house of the Thánadár (the chief of police) is peculiarly well built. The present incumbent has held the office for a long time, which may account for the fact that Gopeegunj is so noted for its bad character—full of thieves. Even the camps of the Lieutenant-Governor and of the Governor-General were visited by these light-fingered gentry. In addition to the two night watchmen usually supplied, they gave us here two of the permanent police officers of a superior grade. In the afternoon, went into the bazar, and had a very long discussion. Never was so much impressed with the conviction that the Hindus are a very religious people; always ready to talk and dispute on the subject, and generally more or less informed of the theological and historical facts of their creeds. Religion is to a Hindu what politics is to a Frenchman—(or an American)—the grand absorbent of all his thoughts. The lowest Qúli, earning two or three cents a day, can tell you something of Mahadeo, or Káli, or other objects of worship. The chief points of dispute to-day were the personality of God, and the propriety of worshipping him alone. They at once admitted Ishwar as the sole creator, but are so filled with pantheistic views of this Being, that they can scarcely appreciate the question, "Why do you not worship God directly—why forget him, and worship his works?" Mirza was very happy in his replies to several who insisted on the excellence of their favourite deities. Quoting from their own books, he convicted Rám of weakness, Krishna of vileness, &c., and then asked how it was possible that such gods could help others, seeing they could not help themselves? Two of our hearers were very contentious. Foiled repeatedly, they went on proposing fresh questions; none of them, however, beyond the region of sophistry, with which Satan seems to have completely saturated this people. I was glad to see that the crowd saw and felt the truth generally, and, when returning from the Thánná, we passed the spot where we had been talking, a crowd was still there, discussing the truths they had heard. I feel satisfied that Christian ideas are gradually taking hold of the Hindu mind, far and wide, and that these bazar talks are not a mere waste of words. Would that God, in his power, would melt the hearts of this people.

Instances of daring theft—Discussions in the bazar—The aged man's sad reflection.

December 14th. Máharajgunj.—Too unwell to go to the bazar to-day. Our camp is in a grove near the Dák Bungalow, where, a few years since, Major Sleeman, the present resident at Lucknow, pitched his tents, and was robbed during the night of over 500 rupees. The natives say he caused fourteen men to be arrested and imprisoned—some of the chief officers among them—and soon recovered his property. Last year a gentleman, encamped very near us, was robbed of about the same sum, although he had two guns and three dogs. He declined employing the usual native watchmen, who in turn, I have no doubt, robbed him, for this violation of custom.

December 15th. Mirza Murád.—Felt quite well to-day. Went to the bazar; was almost nonplussed by the cool impudence of a Pandit. We were evidently not far from Benares, the seat of Hindu learning and self-importance. The crowd at first were determined to ridicule everything said; some of them began to use very vile language. I stopped this at once; and after the Pandit had gratified his vanity by quoting Sanscrit verse for a short time, manifestly designing to break up our conference, I quietly asked him if he was able to answer the charge brought against Rám, i. e., that he had been guilty of falsehood. He tried to evade the question in various ways, asking who Christ was, &c., but I held him to the point, causing Mirzá to repeat the extracts from their own books—insisted on a plain answer, yes or no—did Rám tell a falsehood or not? This was rather close work; the poor fellow's impudence was rapidly changing into confusion, when his friends told him he had better not say anything about Rám—better let that alone. This was followed up by some farther exposure of the wickedness of their deities, and the gross contradictions of their sacred books—insisting on categorical answers. Of course he could give none, and Mirza, following up our advantage with some light sarcasm, soon won the crowd, and led them to give more respectful attention. Several times the officious Pandit tried to lure us off the ground; but as we were not in the mood to go, we stayed as long, and talked as pointedly as we liked. The Pandit left us after a time, and we had the pleasure of talking to a few who seemed really interested. I spoke some time about the excellent teaching of the Bible, and its good results, urging them to seek for themselves its consolations and blessings. One old man said, "Well, this is all very good, but I can't read; how can I ever learn from your Bible; I am too old now." And so, alas! it seems; thousands of these people just get a glimpse of a purer bliss than any in their religion, but ten thousand influences draw them back to perdition.

December 16th. Benares.—Came into the city this morning. Met a kindly welcome in the family of a friend.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

LETTER FROM THE REV. W. SPEER.

Sickness among the Chinese in San Francisco.

Wednesday, September 13th, makes our nineteenth semi-weekly prescribing day at the dispensary. It was opened two months ago yesterday, the 12th. The success has been all that could have been desired. The number of patients of whom regular account has been taken is 187, beside many more to whom medicine has been distributed at the various company's houses and elsewhere. Some, probably, have died; none have, however, been reported to us. Most of the patients have been benefitted, and not a few have come back well to return their thanks.

Of the whole number of cases registered, 144 have been scorbutic. The large emigration of Chinese during the present summer has led to the employment of old decayed hulks for passenger ships, several of which have been over a hundred days on the way. Some have been crowded to twice their capacity, and have been ill supplied with provisions and water. The poor Chinese, after paying three times the ordinary passage-money, have suffered horribly. On one vessel, their food for a month was a coarse, indigestible substance, manufactured from the roots of a tree, commonly used by them for starch. Of the passengers by the "Libertad," numbering about 520, one-fourth died. Some of these, from improper medical treatment and exposure, are suffering yet. From the "Exchange," carrying perhaps an equal number, we had at the dispensary near seventy applicants for relief. The scurvy developed itself in various ways, of which the most peculiar were oedematous enlargements of various parts of the body, and effusions about the lungs and heart, extreme debility, pains in the bones, cough, constipation, and, in several cases, deafness and ringing in the ears. One amaurotic case seemed to be connected with this affection; these and the last mentioned symptoms being possibly produced by the prostration and exhaustion of the individuals. Many have had plentiful raised, dry, encrusted eruptions; but none that I have seen, the livid blotches that commonly characterize the disease among whites. Nor have there been more than one or two from whom there have been any kind of bloody discharges. In nearly all these cases the disease has readily yielded to the ordinary mild antiscorbutic remedies, followed occasionally by some vegetable tonic.

It will be seen from these particulars, that the reports in the newspapers of the city of the existence of cholera or contagious fevers among the Chinese, have been incorrect. The deaths, which have sometimes amounted to eight or ten a day, were chiefly among those who persisted in taking their own medicines, or who were improperly treated by others.

The good done has been considerable. Nearly all the Chinese have been shut out, for various reasons, from the public hospitals, and doubtless the lives of not a few have been saved. Patients have in numerous cases come back to inform us of their recovery, express their gratitude, and bid us goodbye before leaving for the mines. The opportunity has not been lost for imparting Christian instruction. Tracts have been distributed, and they have been pointed to the Great Physician. Some have promised to "worship Jesus" up in the mines, and when they come down, to attend preaching here. May God follow these purposes with his grace, that some may be brought to give their hearts to him!

The theatrical company of twenty-two, returned, by way of Panama, through the liberality of some of our Christian friends in New York, met with many misfortunes. They were robbed of part of their clothing and baggage on the Isthmus; some of them lost everything; they were wet by the rains and mud, and they seem to have been abused by the natives. They came on board the steamer without provision to meet the cold and storms which were encountered on her progress up. More than half were sick, when she arrived, with Panama fever. One died; one is yet in the city hospital, very ill; the remainder, after receiving clothing, blankets, and money, (the proceeds mostly of a draught to the amount of $125, from New York, through the Rev. E. W. Syle,) have recovered health and strength. Several are at present at the mines. They have desired me to express their great gratitude to those who befriended them in New York.

The remaining cases treated at the dispensary have been as follows; rheumatism, 6; dyspepsia, 2; affections of the skin, 3; coughs and consumption, 7; injuries, 2; ophthalmic diseases, 8; miscellaneous, 4.

The mission owes much for whatever good may be done by the dispensary, to the medical counsels of Drs. H. P. Coon and William O. Ayres, both Christian brethren, connected with Presbyterian churches in this city, who have taken almost the sole responsibility of prescribing. We are indebted to Mr. Samuel Adams, druggist, for affording us the necessary medicines at cost rates, by which we have been saved much trouble and expense.

There has been an unusual amount of sickness among the Chinese resident population, within the past few weeks. Some of them have been endeavouring to get up a hospital on a small scale, for the benefit of their own people. It is as yet doubtful whether they will so far yield their old prejudices and fears as to employ an American physician. However, I have insisted upon it with their most influential men, and there are some who see the propriety of giving up notions of medicine not unlike those of our ancestors five hundred years ago.

This letter may close with an extract from my journal of a few days since.

September 5.—This evening I was distressed to hear of the sudden death of a Chinese friend, Pau Chong. He was a man of about forty-five years of age, much esteemed among his people for his honesty, kind-heartedness, and sincerity. He was one of my earliest and warmest friends in California. A few months after my arrival here, he proposed to have me made a sort of chief for the Chinese in the State. He was often an attendant at school and church. To the preaching of the word he listened with docility and respect; and in occasional conversations on his own obligations to the Saviour, he told me he sometimes read the Scriptures and prayed in secret. Last year, in accordance with his wish, I gave him the key of our chapel that he might find there the needful retirement and quiet for these purposes. Poor Pau Chong! He was hurried away suddenly, perhaps before he knew his danger. He did not send for me during his sickness. Where has his spirit gone? I do not know a heathen Chinese for whom I have felt a more cordial regard. Oh, it is a sad thing to fear that he had never made his salvation secure. And yet, God is merciful; and I cannot but indulge a hope that poor Pau Chong is not among the lost.

MISSION AMONG ROMANISTS.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS OF THE REV. T. L'HOMBRAL.

Preaching in French—Ignorance of Protestantism—Arrival of a French Priest—Encouragement.

[Writing from Buenos Ayres, August 2, 1854, Mr. L'Hombral says:]—I have been preaching in French for these four Sundays past, and I feel much encouraged. The first Sunday, we had about seventy persons; on the second, one hundred; on the third, seventy; on Sunday last, forty-five. Evidently, there were among the attendants many Papists, for I know in Buenos Ayres only forty-three Protestants, children and women included. The North American chapel has been put at my disposal.

Many of the Europeans and natives being ignorant of what a Protestant is, I have thought it proper to show it to them all at once, and I have got printed, and somewhat circulated in town, the little tract of whichI send you a few copies. "Why," say some of these benighted people, after reading it, "the Protestants are Christians as well as ourselves!" You will remember that one of the tactics of the Romish priests for keeping unto them the people, is to say that we are not Christians. My opinion is, that before long I shall have an opportunity of showing them that Protestants are not exactly Christians like themselves; for, a few weeks before my arrival here, a French Romish priest came to Buenos Ayres, and I understand that he intends to form a church, and open a school, under the patronage of the Bishop. Of course, he will preach against the Protestants, and I shall attend to his sayings.

Among the Protestants who attend our meeting, there are three who give me a particular pleasure by their attendance. They are very respectable men, and much respected in the community. I hope they will be the means, under God's blessing, to bring others of the same stamp to the throne of grace. I feel very much, however, that I need the blessing of God. Many times my entreaties to think of the life to come, and the Saviour, are responded to by coldness or indifference. "We have come to America to make our business," say they sometimes to me. "Yes, my friends, and it is because of my knowing so, that I entreat you to think of your everlasting destiny. Do you not think your eternal life, or eternal death, worth your consideration?". "You are right sir; well, we shall see." And some of them squeeze my hand earnestly, when I leave and give them adieu.

Further notice of the Priest—"The kingdom of God cometh not with observation"—Preaching on the parable of the Prodigal Son.

[Writing again on the 14th of August, Mr. L'Hombral adds:]—Our Christian worship is conducted as heretofore. I feel deeply our need of the blessing and assistance of God, for the building of a church here.

In my last letter, I mentioned to you a Papist priest, and his endeavours to build a church of his persuasion. You will see by the Nacional of the 8th of August, which I send to you along with this letter, how great are, humanly speaking, the chances of his success. He has before him a rather well disposed population of about ten thousand souls; he presents himself, if not with great talents, at least with the confidence that gives the assurance of success; then, he is backed by the Bishop of Buenos Ayres, and el Senor Dr. Garcia, Provisor y Vicario Capitular; by el Senor Dr. Aguero, Rector del Colejio Ecclesiastico; by el Senor Dr. Palacios, Secretario General de la Curia. The four above-mentioned gentlemen are to preside, and attend to the inauguration of los oficios religiosos, which is to take place in the magnificent basilic of la calle de la Merced to-morrow, August 15th. There is to be a fine choir, formed, as I understand, with the singers del theatro de la Victoria, one of the two theatres of this place, etc., etc. Evidently, our modest Christian worship is likely to be thrown in the dark. But I say to myself that our Christian Church here is in its cradle, and that the apostles, when they began the evangelization of the world, had not recourse to showy means. Again, if God is for us, in vain will high standing individuals be against us. Now, God will be with us, if, through our Lord's intercession, we implore upon our work the heavenly blessing. This I do every day, and every day I feel confident that, with God's assistance, we may soon have an organized French Christian Reformed church in Buenos Ayres. The inauguration de los oficios religiosos, has not yet taken place, and some of the knowing put on their smiles. What will they not do, when perceiving the whole purport of their showy songs!

The little "Service de l'Eglise Chretienne Reformée" is of great use to us. Our people are delighted with the Commandments of God, the Confession of Sins, the Lord's Prayer, the symbol of the apostles. "The little book brings me back to my early years," say they sometimes one to another. Early happy years! Yesterday I preached on the parable of the Prodigal Son. The early happy years of our life were brought to our remembrance. Many tears were shed in our modest assembly; many sighs were fetched; many in our little flock acknowledged in the silence of their hearts that, like the prodigal son, they had gone far, very far, from home, for getting rid of the paternal authority. Like the prodigal son, we soon got astray; we gave ourselves up to evil; we plunged in depravity and misery, deep, deep, even to the unconsciousness of our own state. However, through the holy book actually before us, the Holy Ghost enlightened us on our state. We had it in horror. Our thoughts, our mind, our heart, all the powers of our being, fled towards the fireside. We hastened to the merciful Father. "Yes, Father, we have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and are no more worthy to be called thy sons."

First fruits of the Mission.

We add to Mr. L'Hombral's report an interesting notice of his work taken from the Missionary Magazine of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose chapel, the North American, at Buenos Ayres, is kindly granted to our missionary for his French services. The following paragraphs are from the pen of Mr. Lore, the Methodist chaplain.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper on Sabbath morning was marked by an unusual circumstance, which greatly added to the interest of the service. The Rev. Mr. L'Hombral, a French Protestant, sent here by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in the United States, had, according to their custom in the French Church, prepared for the Lord's Supper a young lady, and solicited the privilege of admitting her to that ordinance with us. This, of course, was readily granted. She kneeled with us at our Lord's table, and received for the first time the emblems of her Saviour's love, from the hands of a French pastor, addressed in her own language. The young lady had been brought up, I believe, a Roman Catholic, and is the first fruit of the French Protestant Mission in Buenos Ayres.

Brother L'Hombral has preached for me once in English, the first time he ever attempted to preach in that language; and he also had our church last Sabbath afternoon, to preach to the French. It was his first appointment, and the attendance was certainly encouraging. There were some eighty persons present. He has found among the French between thirty and forty professing Protestantism. I am favourably impressed with his mission; I think it will succeed. It is a field, however, that will require toil, sacrifice, and perseverance. There are thousands of Frenchmen here; some estimate the number as high as twenty thousand; unfortunately, however, a Roman Catholic French abbé has just arrived, the first French clergyman of any importance who has ever been here. His primary object, however, is to establish an ecclesiastical college for the education of priests; yet he will be apt, I presume, to look after brother L'Hombral's operations.

EVANGELICAL SOCIETY OF GENEVA.

Notices of the Twenty-Third year's labours.

We have lately received the Annual Report of the Geneva Evangelical Society for the year ending in June last. Its important work appears to be enjoying the favour of the great Head of the Church. We observe that twenty-six different posts are occupied, and thirteen ministers, eight evangelists, twelve teachers, acting also as evangelists, and four female teachers are employed in the foreign evangelization, that is, mainly in different parts of France. Twenty-seven colporteurs were employed during a number of months, circulating the sacred Scriptures in thirteen departments in France, in Algiers, and in Switzerland. Twenty-eight students were under instruction, of whom seventeen were in the School of Theology, and five in the preparatory School—composed of nine Waldensians, seven French, five Swiss, four Genevese, one German and one English. A school for young ladies is also under the direction of the Society, having thirty-five pupils. The receipts of the year were 126,171 francs. A considerable portion of this sum was contributed by Christian friends in Great Britain; and we are glad to see that our own country and church occupy a place in the acknowledgment of donations to the amount of over 20,000 francs—of which, upwards of 15,000 were contributed by the Board, and the rest by a respected member of our Church. We do not perceive any acknowledgments of donations from other sources in this country.

We insert now some extracts from this Report, as translated by a young French gentleman.

Notices of new stations in France.

New stations have been formed at several important places. Concerning three of these we can give you some accounts this year.

Poitou on one side and Marseilles on the other have been visited by our colporteurs, and are again in their hands. Poitou is the residence of a numerous protestant population, who are very destitute of the means of support; awakening from their long sleep, they began to ask for pastors and instructors for many towns and cities. We have been able to take but a little step in that great field, but if we had the necessary means the work we hope would advance rapidly.

Marseilles, that great city, is very nearly all Catholic, and will require besides the official Protestant clergy, who work with ardour, a great number of evangelists. This city will furnish as well by its stationary population, as by the numerous strangers that a sea port attracts, a very extensive field for the spread of the Word. We have complied with the calls which were made to us in stationing there a faithful and active minister.

Savoy, a country which is almost ours by its proximity, and which is open at last to the knowledge of the Scriptures; we have placed a pastor there, a brother, who by his faith and zeal, as well as by his prudence and experience, unites the qualities particularly necessary to this difficult station. He had been last summer, in charge of the duties of d'Aix-les Banis.

The work of Evangelization hindered but not prevented.

The difficulties which hinder the free preaching of the Gospel in France, and which were adverted to in our last report, have not yet been removed; but if the agents of the Societies of France have been often victims of those difficulties, ours have not been disturbed to the same degree. In Saintonge, the proceedings begun last year had the effect in two stations of interdicting meetings of more than twenty persons, when not held in churches. In the department of Saône et Loire, Mr. Getaz, evangelist, had been even obliged to suspend, during many months, worship in the church of Branges, notwithstanding that this church was built and consecrated to the Lord more than twenty years ago, and that worship had been celebrated since that time.

A search had been made at Mr. C's house under the pretext that he distributed remedies contrary to the laws. In the Drôme, at Hostan, the school of the young ladies has been shut. A suit was commenced against Mr. Verner, for an unauthorized meeting at St. Julien en Quint, but it has been abandoned.

Such are the vexations by which our work is sometimes stopped. These vexations are deplorable, on account of the principle on which they are committed, which annihilates liberty of worship, and is always threatening for the future. But thanks to our Lord, they have not much disturbed our work this year, and everywhere these vexations have been overruled to promote the zeal and the life of the Christians.

Notices of the work of Evangelization in Saintonge.

The evangelization of Saintonge, without offering this year results as striking as that in other countries, has, notwithstanding, presented some interesting incidents, and gives us good hopes for the future.

In some parts of the department of Charente Inférieur, the preaching was subjected, some months before our last meeting, to obstacles; the other part of the department has not been disturbed. As was to be expected, the same differences are presented in the spiritual results. The part where the obstacles were most numerous, is where more life is found, more souls who rise from their sleep; the part where liberty is greatest is the one where sleep is most profound.

The consequences which were to be expected in the beginning, have not followed these difficulties. After the suits against the minister, Mr. Chapiot, a judicial inquiry took place, and the truth had sprung forth. All the charges against him fell to the ground, with the exception of a meeting held without authority; this accusation was answered by showing that the use of the place for worship had been authorized in 1844. The magistrates attested Mr. Chapiot's respectable character, and knowing the Christian end of his work, abandoned the prosecution, but forbade him to preach except in churches, or at meetings of less than twenty persons.

Mr. Saujon, evangelist, has been subject to similar restraints. A similar order had obliged our brethren to multiply greatly the services, which might be called family worship, as these were not interdicted to them, in places where the pulpits of the national churches were closed against them. Notwithstanding that a great number of the neighbouring pastors sympathize with our work, there have been some others who have shown a hostility, and who have seized the opportunity of administrative difficulties to shut their pulpits against our evangelists.

Here, as in most cases of that kind, the attacks have turned to the profit of spiritual life. The evangelical pastors gave to our friends the most positive tokens of their brotherly affection; their pulpits were open to them, and the numerous listeners bore witness by their presence at the preaching of our agents, to their wish to see the Divine Word proclaimed with full liberty.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MRS. JANVIER.

The following account of the last illness and death of Mrs. Janvier, which occurred on the 5th of May, will be read with painful interest by many. It is from the pen of the Rev. A Rudolph.

The intelligence which this letter brings you will no doubt make your heart sad; though this afflictive providence will not entirely take you by surprise, as you, as well as we, have been for a long time prepared for it.

Our dear sister in the Lord, Mrs. Janvier, has entered into her rest; and how delightful must have been that change to her, after so long and so severe suffering. Since January last, her little remaining strength had greatly declined, and she had become very feeble. I scarcely could hope, that she might be spared to see the hills once more. During the last month she seemed, however, to get a little more strength, and as her stay in the hills during the last three summers had been so greatly blessed, and no doubt had been the means of prolonging her days so far, it seemed advisable to remove her there again, though certainly we all considered it a risk to do so. And yet the risk in letting her stay here during the summer, seemed to be a still greater one. Brother Janvier started with her on the 24th of last month; she seemed then stronger than she had been for some time, and we little thought that we would soon have to lay her in her last resting-place. She got on very well, and without feeling much the effects of the journey, until they reached Kassauli, but the fatigues of the journey through the hills to Simla seem to have been too much for her weak and worn-out frame. After reaching Simla, (which was on the 1st,) she suffered much from palpitation of the heart, and consequent quick breathing. On Thursday, the 4th, this increased to a very distressing degree. Still, Mr. Janvier had so often seen her in this state, that he did not think her in special danger, but hoped that rest, and the remedies usual in such cases, would afford relief. A kind medical friend was in attendance, and prescribed what her case seemed to require. It was however of no avail. Other things were tried, but with equally little success. The symptoms continued unabated, with consequent prostration of strength, and hourly increase of danger. At length, in the evening, as a last resort, a composing draught was given, which had the effect of allaying the excitement, and procuring the weary sufferer a little rest. She then slept quietly for two or three hours, waking at intervals to ask for drink, &c., and expressing great satisfaction and thankfulness at having at length obtained relief. Nature was however exhausted, and between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, Mr. Janvier saw that the last change was coming on. A few moments served to close the scene, and the spirit departed, to enter, as we hope and believe, the abodes of the redeemed.

While formerly her mind had been much beclouded by doubts and fears, the merciful Saviour permitted her, the last day before her death, not only to look with calmness and composure, but with comfort, at the prospect before her. She told her husband that the Lord had brought her to Simla to die; thus evidently realizing the position she was in. Again she said, "Can it be that I am treading the verge of Jordan?" When she was told that the Lord had done all things well, she replied, "Yes, and it will be well." Many comfortable passages of Scripture and parts of hymns occurred to her mind during the day, such as, "I cast my sins on Jesus," "Jesus, thy blood and righteousness," etc., and she expressed her hope that the Saviour had accepted her. This was of course very comforting to our poor afflicted brother, who had long been wishing and praying that the Lord would make her more sensible of her acceptance with him. She seemed to be conscious almost to the last, having spoken quite distinctly only a few minutes before her departure.

It would perhaps ill accord with her simplicity of mind and unassuming character, if I were to say much in praise of her many virtues, that won for her so many friends. She was much beloved by those that knew her, and her death will make many a heart sad. Her naturally sweet and pleasant countenance had received a new impress by her long continued disease, which made her sometimes look sad, but which nevertheless added new interest to her appearance. She seemed to me a most patient sufferer, that felt deeply her affliction, and yet knew how to bear it with composure and submission.

Mr. Janvier brought her remains down to Lodiana, and on the day before yesterday, in the morning, we buried her in the little graveyard in the mission premises, there to rest till the great morn of the resurrection, when they shall be invigorated with new activity. Her spirit, we have reason to hope, is in the tender hands of the blessed Jesus, who knows how to comfort, and how to make infinitely happy.

Our dear brother feels deeply the loss he has sustained. Their union was a happy one; such a separation must have created a blank in the heart that nothing can fill—nothing but the Saviour; and our brother does not mourn as those who have no hope. He knows the only, the blessed Comforter, and to him he goes.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN OCTOBER, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 2d ch mo con 31. Pby of Albany—Schenectady ch 188; Princetown ch 46; Johnstown ch, to con PETER M EWING, DAVID MILLER, and PHILIP YANNEY l m's 93. Pby of Mohawk—Oneida Depot ch 10 368 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Ogdensburg—Ogdensburg, N Y, "a friend to missions" 5 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—West Town ch 27 17; Hamptonburg ch 17 43, less 7 for Foreign Missionary; Centreville ch 24. Pby of North River—Cold Spring ch mo con 10; Marlborough ch 4 50; Newburg ch 33 28, Sab sch 38. Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch, S S Myrick 4; Patterson ch 9 60; Yorktown ch 4 30; North Salem ch 11; Rye ch, G D Craigin 25; White Plains ch 39 88. Pby of Long Island—East Hampton ch 61 74; Southampton ch, Shiniecock Indian Sab sch for Choctaw mission 1 11; Islip and Huntington chs 24. Pby of New York—New York First ch ann coll addl 500, mo con 115 45, Sab sch to ed W W Phillips 6 25, Miss L Jaudon's class to ed Fanny Phillips 6 25, Teachers to ed James Donaldson and Sarah C Dow 12 50, Young Ladies to ed Mary K Lowrie 12 50, Mrs Lowrie's class to ed girl at Canton 6 25, Infant Sab sch to ed Walter Lowrie at Spencer 6 25; Madison Av ch mo con 35 50; Greenbush ch 2; Chelsea ch mo con 11 50; Brooklyn 1st ch mo con 17 32; Forty-second st ch mo con 23 15, Sab sch, Mrs Hepburn's class to ed girl at Canton 12 50; Newtown ch 38 50; Jamaica ch 50; Yorkville ch mo con 7 80. 2d Pby of New York—Sing Sing ch, of which 15 from Sab sch 150. Pby of Connecticut—Hartford ch 10 1351 73

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Perth Amboy ch Sab sch to ed Wm Crowell at Iowa Mission 25; Rahway 2d ch in part to con Rev GEORGE S MOTT l d 50. Pby of Passaic—Morristown 1st ch 104. Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 1st ch 26; Squan Village ch 6 50. Pby of West Jersey—Camden ch 6; Cedarville ch fem miss soc 20 50; Cape Island ch 11 25. Pby of Newton—Harmony ch 5; Belvidere ch 50; Lower Mount Bethel ch 50. Pby of Raritan—Pleasant Grove and Lower German Valley ch 15. Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing ch 4 79; Warren ch 5. Pby of Luzerne—Mauch Chunk ch 30; Summit Hill ch, of which 3 15 from Sab sch 12 28. Pby of Burlington—Burlington ch Sab sch to ed T L Cuyler 25 446 32

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Crookville ch Sab sch 5; Philadelphia 7th ch mo con coll's 79 51, Sab sch 32 91; Tenth ch mo con 49 10; South-Western ch 7; Treydiffen ch 40. 2d Pby of Philadelphia—Allen township ch 45; Catasauque ch 10; Holmesburg ch 15. Pby of New Castle—Red Clay Creek ch 27 50; Lower Brandywine ch 6 50; Fagg's Manor ch, R W Brown 5; Doe Run and Coatesville chs 38; Octorara ch Sab sch 17 16. Pby of Donegal—Slate Ridge ch 37; Middle Octorara ch 23. Pby of Baltimore—Bethel ch, family of Christian H Bessler 10; Madison st ch 2 31; Govane Chapel 5; Ellicott's Mills ch Sab sch 8. Pby of Carlisle—Millersburg ch 25. Pby of Huntingdon—Lick Run ch 22; Williamsburg ch 80 25; Clearfield ch 16 09; West Kishacoquillas ch addl 1; Sinking Creek and Spring Creek chs 268 77; Lower Tuscarora ch 228; Lewistown ch 25 27; Presbyterial coll 12 13. Pby of Northumberland—Great Island ch in part 61; Mooresburg ch fem miss soc 9 1211 50

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Strongstown ch 1 25; Fairfield ch 12 74; Pine Run ch 15; Leechburg ch 10; Sab sch 3; Mechanicsburg ch 7; Cherry Run ch 4; Warren ch 6 05; Boiling Spring ch, Mrs Jane McLaughlin 10; Elder's Ridge ch 10 34; West Lebanon ch 5 90. Pby of Redstone—Brownsville ch 20; Rehoboth ch 48; Dunlap's Creek ch 1 50; Laurel Hill ch fem miss soc 22 88; Tyrone ch 8 22; Round Hill ch 10 75. Pby of Ohio—Bethel ch, to con MATTHEW MOORE l m 30; Miller's Run ch 23 50; Chartiers ch 11 25; Long Island ch, children of James H Hamilton 4 20, John S Hamilton, Jr (a little boy) 50 cents. Pby of Alleghany—Plain Grove fem miss soc 56; Portersville ch 10. Pby of Beaver—Little Beaver ch 40; West Middlesex ch 14 91; Unity ch 25 67; Pulaski ch fem miss soc 15. Pby of Erie—Franklin ch 24 10, Sab sch to ed Samuel Miller Eaton 6 25. Pby of Clarion—Callensburg ch fem miss soc 26 25; Concord ch fem miss soc 11 12; Bethesda ch fem miss soc 13 50; Rockland ch 5. Pby of Alleghany City—Alleghany City 1st ch, of which 49 66 from Sab sch 225 66, less 10 for Foreign Missionary 729 54

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Wheeling 3d ch 20 30; Burghettstown ch, ROBERT PATTERSON, to con self l m 30. Pby of Steubenville—East Springfield, O, Rev John Knox to ed Joseph Knox at Canton 15; Corinth ch 20. Pby of New Lisbon—Yellow Creek ch 49 45; Poland ch 27 79 162 54

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville, O, R Winter 10. Pby of Richland—Frederick ch, fem miss soc bal 4 93, children's colls 3 54; Perrysville ch 11; Loudonville ch 1; Hayesville ch 4; Hopewell ch 8; Orange ch 8. Pby of Hocking—Alexander ch 11 61 47

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Miami—Muddy Run ch 29 20. Pby of Cincinnati—First ch, of which 6 64 mo con 38 17; Fifth ch ann coll 15 05, mo con 8 26; Walnut Hills 1st ch 31; Springfield ch 22 84. Pby of Oxford—Oxford 3d ch, Mr Wolfe and daughter 5 each, 10. Pby of Sidney—Logansville and Degraff ch 5. Pby of Findlay—Harmony ch 7 166 52

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Vincennes—Princeton ch 8 30. Pby of Madison—Hanover ch mo con 6; Pleasant Township ch 11; Madison 1st ch 136 20. Pby of Indianapolis—Shelby co, Ind, J M G 2; Franklin ch 37. Pby of White Water—Bath ch bal 5; Rushville ch Sab sch 1 36. Pby of Palestine—Palestine ch 5 211 36

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport—Tipton ch 10. Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch, of which 10 from Sab sch in part to con Rev J O BROWN l d 82 55; Salem ch 7 56; Tassinong ch 3 55 103 65

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Schuyler—Macomb ch, to con Mrs OLIVE P STEWART l m 35; Pope's River ch 13; Monmouth ch 41 20. Pby of Peoria—French Grove ch 10. Pby of Rock River—Galena South ch 107 04 206 24

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Milwaukee—Milwaukee ch, Sab sch to ed John M Buchanan 10; Plover ch 2 12 12 12

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—West Point ch 6. Pby of Cedar—Iowa City ch 20; Du Buque ch mo con colls 75; High Prairie ch 2 45 103 45

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of Missouri—Millersburg ch 5. Pby of St Louis—Pine st ch, mo con colls 25 90, Sab sch 8 35; Carondelet ch, Mrs Dr Goodrich 1; Central ch Sab sch to ed S J P Anderson and Anne McEllery 25; St Louis, Mo, Mrs Lyon 4 50, Angus and Theodore Lyon 50 cts each, A F and Caroline Peck 2 50. Pby of Potosi—White Water ch 22 40 95 65

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—Second ch mo con 27 10; Chestnut st ch mo con 18 80. Pby of Transylvania—New Providence ch 7; McAfee, Ky, Peter R Dunn 10. Pby of West Lexington—Lexington 2d ch ann coll 250, mo con colls 40 80; Lexington 1st ch mo con colls 27 60. Pby of Ebenezer—Presbyterial coll 12 20 393 50

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Lexington—Harrisonburg ch 5; Augusta ch Sab sch 1; Union ch ladies' miss soc 25; Rocky Spring ch 4 75; New Providence ch, coloured members for African Missions 15 25. Pby of Winchester—Lewinsville ch 10. Pby of Montgomery—Big Lick ch 24 25; High Bridge ch 15; Covington ch 10; Falling Spring ch 16 45; Mountain Union ch 12 138 70

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Fayetteville—Mineral Spring ch 5; Bensalem ch 10 15 00

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.—Pby of Knoxville—Knoxville ch 40 08

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Mississippi—Lake Providence and Pecan Grove chs 48 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Chickasaw—Presbyterial coll in Zion ch 54; Waterford ch 8 55; Hope ch 5; Centre ch 5. Pby of Memphis—Salem ch 8 30 80 85

SYNOD OF TEXAS.—Pby of Western Texas—Lavaca ch 10 00

Total from churches, $5,961 73

LEGACIES.—Biloxi, Mi, Legacy of Donaldson C Murphy dec'd 559 41; Chatham, N J, Estate of Sarah A Bonnell dec'd 50; West Middletown, Pa, Legacy of Samuel Smith dec'd 470 25; Worth, Pa, Interest on bequest of Mrs Sarah Marquis dec'd 6; Pittsburg, Pa, Estate of Thomas Patterson dec'd 50 1135 (6

Less expense on acc't Corwine Estate 2 00 1133 66

MISCELLANEOUS.—N Y, Rev F G Clark 2; Miss Mary Ann Barhydt 50 cts; Proceeds of Gold Watch 80; B 36 cts; James Williams of Iowa Mission 10; Two Ladies 1000; N Y, S J Beebe 50; J E Manning 2; Norristown, Pa, 1st ch 50; Shippensburg, Pa, Miss Jane R Wilson 5; Honey Grove 5; A friend 5 1219 86

Total receipts in October, $8315 25

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS IN CLOTHING, &C.—Ladies of Lawrence ch, N J, one box clothing for Chickasaw Mission 69 30; One box clothing for Chippewa Mission, of which 25 62 from Ladies' miss soc of Frederickton ch, O, and 5 25 from fem miss soc of Waterford ch, O; Ladies of Beach Spring ch, O, one box clothing 36 69; Ladies of Concord and Pleasantville ch, Pa., one box clothing for Chippewa Mission 122 32; N Y, A Lady, 18 garments; N Y, Ladies 32 garments; Ladies of Vienna 1st ch, N Y, one box clothing 54 50; Ladies of Pequea ch, Pa, one box clothing for Otoe and Omaha Mission 63 62; Ladies of Middletown Point 1st ch, N J, one barrel clothing for do. 28 88.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, the appointment of colporteurs, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. W. E. Schenck, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. Joseph P. Engles, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. Mitchell, M.D. Treasurer.

NEW CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

At a meeting of the Board of Publication held on the 19th of September last, the Rev. William E. Schenck was elected Corresponding Secretary, and on the 1st day of November entered upon the duties of that office. Mr. Schenck was for several years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Princeton, New Jersey, but more recently has been for two and a half years labouring as Superintendent of Church Extension in the city of Philadelphia. At a meeting of the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery of Philadelphia held on Friday, October 13th, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, in view of Mr. Schenck's resignation of his office of Superintendent, with a view to his acceptance of the Secretaryship of the Board of Publication:

Resolved, That this Committee bear unfeigned testimony to the industry, fidelity, and ability with which the duties of Superintendent of the work of Church Extension have been performed by the Rev. William E. Schenck, and that in the peculiar circumstances of difficulty with which the work has been surrounded since his incumbency, he has accomplished all that it was in the power of those qualities to secure.

Resolved, That while we rejoice that his services have been secured to the Church at large, in a position of wider exertion and usefulness, we yield him up with sincere regret, and tender him our heartiest wishes that his health and happiness may be continued, and his labours blessed in his new sphere by the Great Head of the Church.

Matthew Newkirk, Chairman.
William R. Hanson, Secretary.
John M. Harper, Treasurer.

TO ALL OUR PASTORS.

265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, November, 1854.

Fathers and Brethren:

In entering, a few days ago, upon the work to which the Board of Publication has called me, my attention was almost immediately arrested by the fact that the Colportage Fund of the Board is not only quite exhausted, but is at this time more than $6000 in arrears. It is true, the Board has just passed through that season of the year in which its expenditures continue large, while its receipts are smallest, and that it now has before it the season in which its receipts are usually largest. Nevertheless, judging from the receipts of the years past, and their variations, unless those receipts are considerably increased during the next few months above those of previous winters, the spring will find this fund still in arrears. At the same time, the pastors of some of our wealthiest churches in the cities are warning the Board, that owing to the "hardness of the times," their contributions for every good cause are now considerably smaller than in former years. Encouraged by resolutions of the General Assembly, as well as by the evidently growing interest of the churches in the colporteur enterprise, and still more by the manifest smiles of God, and help of his blessed Spirit vouchsafed to the colporteurs in their labours of love, the Board have sought to put forth into the field an increased force of these devoted men. Accordingly, during the last six months the number of colporteurs in commission is considerably larger than in any preceding half year. Moreover, applications are weekly coming in from pastors, Presbyteries, Synods, and other sources, for the appointment of additional men to this work. Meanwhile, God, in his good providence, is also remarkably furnishing suitable men, and making them willing to enter upon this self-denying service.

Fathers and brethren! In these interesting circumstances of emergency, what is to be done? Are there any among you who will say: Recall some of these labourers from their blessed work? Are there any who will even say: Refuse to commission any more colporteurs for a time? We believe there is not one among you who is willing to say this.

We must appeal to you then, and we wish to do it both affectionately and respectfully, but earnestly, in the name of our common Lord and Master, to do what in each one of you lies, to help in making up the arrearages now due, and yet more, in helping us to such enlarged means, that we may be able to send forth yet many more labourers into the wide and inviting field. The present sad and unexampled scarcity of gospel ministers, is one among many reasons, urgently calling upon the Church at this time to do so. As has been forcibly said, "the colporteur is no substitute for the gospel minister, but he is an excellent and most desirable substitute for nothing." Help us then, we beseech you, to send forth colporteurs among the swelling millions of our population. Help us to send them far and wide over all the destitutions of the land. Within the past six months, the Board has had one hundred and fifty-seven colporteurs scattered throughout twenty-seven States of the Union, as well as in Nova Scotia and Canada, and one in India. But the way is abundantly open for a far wider employment of this powerful agency for good, whenever the churches shall put it in the the power of the Board to employ it more widely.

The Board is now employing scarcely any formal agency for the collection of funds. The General Assembly in May last indirectly approved this course in its resolutions, while by its action on the subject of systematic benevolence, it commended to all its pastors and churches a better way. The Corresponding Secretary is cordially willing and anxious to aid pastors in the presentation of the claims of the Board on Christian benevolence, whenever the interests of the Board, or special providences may seem to call for such aid. But it is evident that he can, in the round of the year, present those claims in at most but a small fraction of the churches, and ordinarily those within a limited distance of the office. Besides which, it is believed to be, as a general rule, best for the permanent and growing interests of the Board that every pastor should make it a part of his fixed plan to inform himself thoroughly respecting the operations and claims of the Board, and then himself present the cause to his people. Congregations will commonly prefer to hear the exposition of a scheme of Christian charity from the lips of their own beloved pastor, and will commonly respond to it more liberally and cheerfully when he asks their aid for it, than when that aid is asked by another. It is right that it should be so. We appeal, then, to every one of our nearly two thousand pastors, who has not by his action already anticipated our request, to carry this cause before his people on the earliest suitable Sabbath, and, having obtained their contribution, to forward it as soon as convenient thereafter, to the treasury of the Board. Very respectfully, your fellow-labourer for Christ,

WILLIAM E. SCHENCK,
Cor. Sec'y of Board of Publication.

RESULTS LOOKED FOR.

The Rev. B. M. Smith, the retiring Secretary, has within a few weeks past visited a large number of Synods and Presbyteries, and brought earnestly to their attention the claims and need of the Board of Publication. Wherever he went, he seems to have been received with great kindness, and his appeals listened to with marked interest. Resolutions were adopted by nearly all the bodies before which he appeared, expressive of attachment to the Board, and of warm desire and fixed purpose to aid in enlarging its ability, and thus promoting its usefulness. We will hope that the ministers and elders, when returned to their own homes and charges, will not forget those appeals and resolutions. They will see by an article in this number of the Record, that the Board is now greatly in need of their help. We shall anxiously watch for the practical evidence of the sincerity, heartiness, and permanency of that goodwill expressed in their resolves, to be exhibited in the future action of the individuals composing those bodies. Let each minister and elder now exert himself for our help, and we shall soon be able to report that the present arrearages are fully made up, and that we can without delay press onward in our important work.

GRATIFYING TESTIMONY.

The Synod of Philadelphia, at its recent sessions in Easton, after hearing an address from the Rev. B. M. Smith, late Corresponding Secretary of the Board, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That the Synod believes that much of the prosperity of our Church is to be ascribed to the agency of the Assembly's Board of Publication, and cherishes with the deepest interest this branch of effort, as a most efficient means in counteracting error, feeding the flock of Christ, and extending the Church.

Resolved, 2. That it be earnestly recommended that every congregation within our bounds be required by its Presbytery especially to report its diligence in contributing to the aid of the Boards of the Church.

We fully believe the important truth set forth in the first of these resolutions. Other bodies of Christians throughout the land are likewise observing this fact, as may be learned from their various religious papers. Is it not lamentable, then, that so many of our own ministers and churches should be found doing nothing to give increased power to this "efficient means in counteracting error, feeding the flock of Christ, and extending the Church?"

THE BOOKS OF THE BOARD.

It is gratifying to find that there are increasing numbers, who, after a careful scrutiny of the publications of the Board, are ready to express, in strong terms, their conviction of the value and usefulness of those publications. In the Presbyterian Banner of October 28th, may be found a genial and well-written communication under the superscription "Is it partial?" The writer, who is evidently a person of observation as well as of cultivation, remarks that he was reared in another denomination whose views of Old-school Presbyterianism were anything but favourable. On careful examination, however, he has become satisfied of the "predominant excellence" of the Old-school Presbyterian Church. One of the four or five reasons he gives for this conviction is as follows:

"Where is the denomination that publishes so many good books as the Old-school Church? Surely her Board of Publication deserves much credit for sending forth the whole truth in an unmutilated form from her press. Where is there any other denominational press, that gives to the world the truth as taught by the Holy Spirit, and preached by the inspired apostles, touching the great and holy doctrines of distinguishing grace, as does that of this Board. Their motto is, 'Let there be light' on all the doctrines of inspiration, given to all men, everywhere. Neither does the matter of their books falsify this motto. Unlike other so-called religious societies, they have no skimmer to remove the cream from the milk of God's word lest it be unpalatable to carnal appetites, but they send it to the world in all its unskimmed, undiluted purity. Hence, those who drink it are strong and healthy, able to face and refute self-righteous pretenders, whose lungs are inflated with 'every wind of doctrine.' This Board publishes an author as he is; and every book in their catalogue is a volume of truth; and it is our deliberate conviction that this Board is doing more this day for true, evangelical Christianity, than any other publication society on earth. This may not be so evident in the Eastern as in the Western States, but let any one note the influence of these books in our western churches, where they are extensively circulated and read, and he will at once be convinced of the truth of the above statement. The 'P. B. P.' is a blessing to the Church and the world."

The last number of "The Covenanter," a monthly magazine devoted to the principles of the "Reformed Presbyterian Church," contains the following paragraph:

"Those who wish to replenish their libraries with some of the best works, from the most solid tomes of theology, to the small tract or volume for children's use—with meat for the strong or milk for babes—should send for the 'Alphabetical and Descriptive Catalogues' of the Presbyterian Board, addressing Mr. J. P. Engles, 265 Chestnut street, and make their selections. Those who wish to know the history and the plans of this Board, will find them in a small pamphlet entitled 'Principles and Plans of the Board of Publication of the Presbyterian Church.' We have looked over the latter with interest. It shows how schemes of extensive usefulness may take their rise from small beginnings, and that 'the day of small things' is not to be despised."

With few exceptions, the books and tracts issued by the Board of Publication are such as can be fully approved by all the Calvinistic branches of the Presbyterian family. And they are all offered to them on precisely the same moderate terms as to those in our own connection, the ministers and licentiates of other connections having the same per centage deducted from their bills for purchases. It rejoices the Board to be instrumental in any degree in helping to furnish a Christian literature for our brethren of other denominations as well as for ourselves. Whatever advantages we propose to ourselves as a denomination to derive from the issues of the Board, we cordially invite them to share freely with us.

Either or both of the pamphlets referred to in the above paragraph from "The Covenanter," willat once be sent to any person applying for them.

A RIGHT START.

The new Synod of Allegheny recently held its first meeting, at which, after adopting resolutions expressive of its lively interest in the operations of the Board of Foreign Missions, the following resolutions, reported by the Rev. J. V. Reynolds, were also adopted:

Resolved, That the Synod of Allegheny, at this its first meeting, desires to declare emphatically its firm and ardent attachment to all the several other Boards of our Church, as well as to that of Foreign Missions; our confidence in the wisdom of the plan of their organization, and the zeal and prudence with which their operations are conducted.

Resolved, That our Presbyteries and churches are all invited to celebrate the organization of this Synod, by the manifestation of a new diligence and increased liberality in our great benevolent operations; and in an engrossing testimony, by practical proofs, of their growing love for the cause of their Redeemer, as sought to be promoted by the instrumentality of these Boards.

This is looking in the right direction. We have seldom seen resolutions more admirably drawn up. And we confidently anticipate, from the past history of the churches composing that Synod, that they will not prove to be empty and barren words.

The Synod of Pittsburgh, heretofore comprising also the churches of the new Synod of Allegheny, has a chartered Board of Colportage of its own. Through this Board, the Synod obtains and pays its own colporteurs, purchasing its books and tracts from the Board of Publication. At the recent sessions, an arrangement was entered into by which the two Synods will henceforth have an equal share in the control and management of this Board of Colportage. We wish them a hearty God-speed in their labours of love and usefulness.

FOREIGN CIRCULATION.

We rejoice in the hope that the truths of God's word as disseminated in the publications of the Board, are yet to go forth far more widely than they have hitherto done. While these publications are carrying instruction and comfort and hope to thousands upon thousands in our own land, they are equally well adapted to bless millions in other lands. Already the books of the Board are beginning to find a ready sale, which is steadily increasing, in various parts of Hindostan. An order has just been received for a supply for Agra, where already considerable numbers of them have been sold and distributed. A letter has also just reached us from Rev. J. L. Scott, accompanying a note from an excellent elder in the church at Lodiana, suggesting that as soon as may be, a constant supply of the publications of the Board should be kept on hand in that city. This latter note is accompanied with pleasant offers of pecuniary aid in carrying out the arrangement. In reply, an assortment of books and tracts will speedily be forwarded to Lodiana. We trust the time is not far distant when the way will be open for full supplies of these publications to go forth to all our mission stations in every quarter of the world. And we would suggest to the benevolent that here is a most promising channel opened for their charities. How much might be accomplished by some of these excellent books placed for circulation in the families of our missionaries, or distributed among the children and youth of the mission schools!

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

The Board has recently issued a number of books for children. Some of these are republications from British works, while others are of American authorship. They have been selected with the greatest care, and may safely challenge a comparison with any books of the same class published in this country. We are gratified to see that they have elicited strong expressions of approval from many of the religious newspapers, and what is even better, they decidedly find favour with the young people, for whom they were intended. We have heard very strong expressions of gratification from some little folks that we are well acquainted with, and of earnest desire to have more of the same sort. Diligent efforts are now making to enlarge the number of our publications suitable for children, and especially for Sabbath-schools. The greatest care will be taken to make these issues of our press not only interesting but instructive. It is our great aim, not merely to please, but to "feed the lambs" of Christ's flock, and to persuade them trustingly to follow the gracious Shepherd into the green pastures of his grace.

Before the end of the present month, the Christmas holidays will have arrived, when it is the custom of many parents and others to make presents to their children and little friends. We respectfully suggest that among the publications of the Board may be found books suitable for presents not only to children and youth, but to persons of every age; and in beauty of material, typography and binding, some of its publications are unsurpassed.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

WHAT IS CALVINISM? or the Confession of Faith in Harmony with the Bible and Common Sense; in a series of Dialogues between a Presbyterian Minister and a young convert. By the Rev. William D. Smith, D. D. Presbyterian Board of Publication. 18mo. pp. 260. Price 30 and 35 cents.

This is a seasonable and able work, which we doubt not is destined to be widely useful. Its author, the Rev. Dr. W. D. Smith, served the Church of Christ successively as a pastor, as a missionary among the Indians, as an editor of a religious paper, and as a teacher of youth. At the time of his death, which occurred in the year 1848, he was a Professor in "Anderson's Collegiate Institute," at New Albany, Indiana. The training of Dr. Smith, and the points in which he came in contact with his fellowmen, were therefore precisely such as best enabled him to understand their difficulties respecting the Calvinistic tenets, and at the same time to remove them. Hence there is nothing in this volume that is fine-spun, theoretical, and abstractly scholastic. He takes up precisely such objections as every Presbyterian minister has found existing in the minds of plain, but thinking people, and answers them in a direct, familiar, and most satisfactory manner. The great doctrines of the decrees of God, election, original sin, free grace, good works, inability, effectual calling, free will, perseverance, &c., as well as some things connected with the government and history of the Presbyterian Church, are so presented, that no one, be his position or religious education what it may, can well read the volume without advantage. For every minister, ruling elder, or church member, who may at times be called by circumstances and duty to defend the doctrines of his own Church, it presents a storehouse of instruction, argument, and illustration, which he ought to possess.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF OCTOBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Troy.
Cambridge ch, per Rev Isaac O Fillmore	$10 00
Presbytery of Passaic.
Newark 3d ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr, Treas	92 68
Presbytery of New Brunswick.
Cranberry 2d ch, per Rev James W Blythe	27 00
Presbytery of New Castle.
Fagg's Manor ch, Rev A Hamilton	37 00
Presbytery of Carlisle.
Miss Jane R Wilson, per Rev H R Wilson, D D	5 00
Presbytery of Washington.
Wellsburg ch, per Rev E Quillin 13; Forks of Wheeling ch, per Rev James Hervey, D. D. 25	38 00
Presbytery of White Water.
Cornersville ch, per Rev Wm Pelan (in part)	17 00
Presbytery of Palestine.
Palestine ch, per Rev J Crozier	12 60
Presbytery of Peoria.
Bloomington ch, per Rev F N Ewing	81 50
Presbytery of Hopewell.
Milledgeville ch, per A M Nesbit, Esq	31 22
Presbytery of South Alabama.
Mount Pleasant ch, per Wm H Arnell, colporteur	10 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
From the Estate of Samuel Smith, deceased, per James Thompson, one of the Executors of the Estate	235 13
Total,	$597 13

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

LICENSURES.

Messrs. J. H. McMullin and Robert McMullin, brothers, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, Oct. 4.

Mr. A. R. Hamilton by the Presbytery of Washington.

CALLS.

Rev. Robert Davidson, D. D., has declined a call from the Central Church in Allegheny City, Pa.

Rev. John Armstrong has accepted a call from the church in Hazleton, Pa.

Rev. W. C. Anderson, D. D., has accepted a call to the church at Chillicothe, Ohio.

Rev. W. M. Ferguson, of the Presbytery of Zanesville, has received a call to the church at Washington, in the same Presbytery.

Rev. F. R. Harbaugh, of the Presbytery of New Brunswick, has accepted a call to the 1st church at Burlington, New Jersey,

Rev. J. P. Safford, of Richmond, Va., has received a call to the church at Frankfort, Ky.

Rev. D. L. Gray, of Raleigh, Tenn., has received a call to the churches of Bolivar and Mount Bethany in Tennessee.

Rev. J. B. Crowe, of Carrollton, Ky., has accepted a call to the church at Crawfordsville, Ind.

Rev. C. P. Jennings has accepted a call to the Second Church of Burlington, Iowa.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Rev. Elliott E. Swift was installed by the Presbytery of Beaver as pastor of the church at New Castle, Pa., Sept. 27th.

Rev. D. M. James, late of Princeton Seminary, was ordained and installed, by the Presbytery of Passaic, as pastor of the church at Mount Olive, N. J., Oct. 3d.

Rev. R. S. Goodman was installed pastor of the First Church of Coldwater, Michigan, by the Presbytery of Marshall, Oct. 17th.

Rev. Ebenezer Newhall was installed at Litchfield, N. H., by the Presbytery of Londonderry, Sept. 27th.

Rev. Heman R. Timlow was ordained and installed pastor of the First Church in Dunkirk, N. Y., Oct. 4th.

Rev. C. B. P. Martin was recently ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of Flint River.

Rev. Charles W. Cooper was ordained and installed pastor of the Presbyterian church of Pontiac, Michigan, by the Presbytery of Michigan, Oct. 25th.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. William Scribner and the church at Bridesburg, by the 2d Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Rev. Willis Lord, D. D., and the Seventh Church in Cincinnati, by the Presbytery of Cincinnati, Oct. 17th.

Rev. William Simonton and the churches of Northumberland and Sunbury, by the Presbytery of Northumberland, at its stated meeting in October last.

DEATHS.

Rev. James M. Allen, late of Goochland county, Va., and at the time of his death Agent for the Virginia Bible Society.

Rev. E. R. Ware, pastor of the churches of Montevallo and Centreville in the Presbytery of South Alabama, Sept. 19th.

Rev. J. N. Cowan, of the Presbytery of South Carolina, at the residence of his father-in law in Abbeville District, South Carolina.

Rev. Isaac A. Ogden, of the Presbytery of Miami, at Muncie, Ohio, Sept. 15th, in his 71st year.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. George W. Burroughs, of the Second Presbytery of Philadelphia, to Waterloo, Seneca county, New York.

Rev. Robert H. Chapman, D. D., from Talladega, Ala., to Asheville, N. C.

Rev. Robert Irwin, from Mount Pleasant, Iowa, to Muncie, Indiana.

Rev. Richard Curran, from West Barree to Pottstown, Montgomery county, Pa.

Rev. William Perkins, from West Liberty, Ohio, to Oxford, Ohio.

Rev. William Wiley, D. D., of Newark, Ohio, to Port Gibson, Miss.

Rev. S. D. Campbell, of Bainbridge, Ga., to Knox Hill, Florida.

Rev. William Simonton, from Sunbury, Pa., to Williamsport, Pa.

Rev. James H. Baird, from Rushville, Indiana, to Toledo, Ohio.

Rev. David Longmore, D. D., to Gloucester City, N. J.

Rev. John R. Agnew, from Pittsburgh, Pa., to Fork Meeting House, Baltimore county, Maryland.

Rev. Thomas H. Alderdice, from Worthington, Indiana, to Scaffold Prairie, Indiana.

Rev. James Coe, from Hopkinsville, Ohio, to Blue Ball, Butler county, Ohio.

Rev. Richard Westbrook, from Burlington, N. J., to Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev. J. M. Kirkpatrick, from Smith's Cross Roads to Danville, Va.

Rev. William B. Stewart, from Govanstown to Baltimore, Md.

Rev. Edwin Town, from Salisbury, Md., to May's Landing, Atlantic county, N. J.

Rev. E. Wurtz, from Ashwood Landing, Ala., to Grand Gulf, Miss.

Rev. L. G. Gaines, from Mount Carmel, Ohio, to Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rev. John Armstrong, from Platte City, Mo., to Hazleton, Pa.

Rev. W. H. Roane, from Monticello to Ashwood, La.

Rev. James A. Stirratt, from Marysville, Ohio, to Point Prescott, Wis.

Rev. T. S. Withrow, from Hartwood to Washington, Va.

Rev. D. F. McFarland, from Brunswick to Glenwood, Ill.

Rev. Israel Price, from Feedspring to Annapolis, Ohio.

Rev. P. W. Warriner, from Sabinetown to New Danville, Texas.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. David Magill, at present supplying the Union Church, Philadelphia, was received by the Presbytery of Philadelphia as a foreign minister on probation, Oct. 4th.

Rev. J. B. Adger, D. D., of Pendleton, South Carolina, has been invited to assume the Presidency of Davidson College, North Carolina.

Rev. Thomas L. Janeway, D. D., has been elected Superintendent of Church Extension by the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Rev. William Bannard, pastor of the Madison Avenue Church, New York, has been appointed by the Presbytery of New York its Secretary of Church Extension, to continue at the same time holding his pastoral charge.

Rev. William S. Plumer, D. D., was inaugurated as Professor of Theology in the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, October 20th.

Rev. Alexander T. McGill, D. D., was inaugurated as Professor of Pastoral Theology, Church Government, and the Composition and Delivery of Sermons, in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, on the 12th of September.

Rev. William L. Breckinridge, D. D., has been again elected to the Presidency of Westminster College, Missouri.

Varieties.

THE WALDENSIAN CHURCHES.—The Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel delivered an address respecting the state of the Waldensian churches, which he said he had lately visited. He described a meeting of the Vaudois churches recently held on a mountain of St. Martin, called Balsille, in commemoration of a signal defeat gained in that locality by their ancestors, a band of only 800 men, over many thousands of French soldiers sent to subdue them by Louis XIV. The meeting was summoned by the Vaudois Christian Union, which was composed of 200 men, and was formed after the same manner as the Young Men's Christian Association of London, being composed of Dissenters and Vaudois churchmen. Many of the pious dissenters were the result of a visit paid to the Vaudois by Felix Neff, one of the most godly servants of Christ who ever lived. The nation had fallen into neglect and irreligion, and Neff's efforts were at first treated with contempt. He touched, however, the hearts of a few who held religious meetings for prayer and other purposes in their cottages, until they numbered about 200. When he (Mr. Noel) visited the churches, about seventeen years ago, the prayer meetings exposed those who met in them to contempt, derision, and persecution; but at the present time they were in perfect peace, and associated with the churchmen of the Valleys in thorough fraternization. The meeting on the Balsille was attended by no less than 3000 persons, who promptly, though with great effort, responded to the call of the Vaudois Christian Union, showing the increased influence possessed by that body. When Neff visited the Valleys in 1826, he did not find a single congenial, evangelical pastor; but at the late meeting nearly all the Vaudois pastors attended, and expressed their pleasure at the efforts made to promote the gospel, and their satisfaction at witnessing so much Christian union amongst the brethren. The great majority of the pastors now preach Christ, not perhaps with great force, but with faithfulness.

THE "PILGRIM'S PROGRESS" IN THE LANGUAGES OF INDIA.—A new and beautiful edition of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, in Marathi, 250 pages 12mo., has been printed, during the last year, under the editorial care of the Rev. R. Nesbit. This is particularly valued by the native Christians, who peruse it both with profit and delight. This work has already been translated into various Indian tongues, and it is interesting to consider that in this way the number of those who are edified, encouraged, and warned by the tinker of Elstow and his humble pilgrim, are constantly increasing from generation to generation.—Oriental Christian Spectator.

THE SABBATH.—Sabbath observance is happily making progress in Germany. The meetings of the County Lieutenantcy in Prussia have been altered by the supreme authority from Sundays to week-days. The consistory of the province of Brandenburg have made a collection of ordinances relating to the Sabbath-day, and require the authorities and pastors to see that they are observed.

The Kirchentag, or General Assembly of the German Churches, has just held its yearly session at Frankfort, which has not witnessed such a gathering of visitors from all parts of Germany since the memorable convention of the National Assembly in 1848. The Kirchentag comprises all the Protestant communities of Germany in connection with the State, including the Lutheran, the Reformed, and the United Churches. The Assembly, on this occasion, consisted of 1615 enrolled members, entitled to take part in the deliberations, several hundreds of members not enrolled, and upwards of 2000 auditors. A spirit of brotherly communion and of devotional solemnity appears to have pervaded the Convention. The principal topics discussed were the proper use of the Bible—the question of Infant Baptism—and the relation of the Church to the civil power on the subject of Divorce. One of the most important results of this Kirchentag is that a general congress or deputation from all the Bible Societies of Europe will be held at the next annual Assembly.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARIES.—The Theological Seminary at Danville, Kentucky, has opened under very favourable auspices, having thirty-six students in attendance. This is highly encouraging for so young an institution.

We also understand that the New Albany Seminary has been re-opened, and that seventeen students are in attendance.

☞ Our subscribers who are in arrears are respectfully requested to send on their subscriptions, by mail or otherwise, before the close of the year.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Nebraska and Kansas, p. 198. Crowns of Rejoicing, p. 198. Revival Progressing, p. 198. Good Results, p. 198. Encouraging, p. 198. Table of Contributions, p. 199. Receipts, p. 200.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education: Appeal to Young Men, p. 201. Supervision of Candidates, p. 201. Feeling in Preaching, p. 201. Danger of Delay, p. 201. Synod of North Carolina, p. 201. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges: Pious Training of Children, p. 202. Education Question, p. 202. Religion a part of Education, p. 202. Vocal Music in Schools, p. 203. Beautiful Simile, p. 203. Religious Enthusiasm, p. 203. Receipts, p. 203.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 204. Visit to the Omaha and Iowa Missions, p. 204. India: Allahabad Mission: Journal of the Rev. L. G. Hay, p. 206. Mission to the Chinese in California: Letter from the Rev. W. Speer, p. 207. Missions among Romanists: Extracts from Letters of the Rev. T. L'Hombral, p. 207. Evangelical Society of Geneva, p. 208. Obituary Notice of Mrs. Janvier, p. 208. Receipts, p. 209.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—New Corresponding Secretary, p. 210. Circular to Pastors, p. 210. Gratifying Testimony, p. 210. Results looked for, p. 210. Books of the Board, p. 210. Right Start, p. 211. Foreign Circulation, p. 211. Books for Children, p. 211. New Publications, p. 211. Receipts, p. 211.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Benefits of "Hard Times," p. 197. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 212. Varieties, p. 212.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

In the United States of America.

BEING

THE ORGAN OF THE BOARDS OF MISSIONS, EDUCATION, FOREIGN MISSIONS AND PUBLICATION.

Vol. VI.—1855.

Philadelphia:

PUBLICATION HOUSE, 265 CHESTNUT STREET.

TERMS.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

ADDRESS.—"Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE.—In Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at office of delivery.

PACKAGES of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The following action was taken at the General Assembly held in Cincinnati, in 1850, in regard to the "Home and Foreign Record."

Resolved, As the action of the last General Assembly has resulted in the establishment of the "Home and Foreign Record," that paper is hereby recommended, and the Ministers and Churches are urged to exert themselves to place it in every family, as the organ, indirectly, of the Church, on many important subjects.

In the Assembly held in Philadelphia, in 1853, it was

Resolved, That it be recommended to all our pastors to endeavour to increase the circulation of the "Home and Foreign Record," the organ of the Boards of the Church, in order that our churches may be better acquainted with their respective plans and operations, and be induced to contribute more liberally towards their support.

And in the Assembly held at Nashville, Tennessee, in 1855, it was

Resolved, That our Ministers and Elders be earnestly exhorted to secure a wider circulation to the "Home and Foreign Record," now published at so reduced a price as to make it accessible to the poorest members of our Church.

INDEX

TO THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD, 1855.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Abstract of Annual Report, 98.
Acknowledgment, 156.
Annual Report, 2, 98.
Attention to the Young, 139.
Benevolence, the Fruit of Revivals, 2.
Border States, a want of, 203.
Brown, Rev. Allen H., Report of, 82.
California, Ministers needed in, 50.
Catechetical Instruction, 51.
Church Extension, 99, 155, 171, 188.
Churches receiving Aid should endeavour to become self-sustaining and contributing, 18.
Effect of Delinquency, 138.
Exemplary Sabbath-school, 203.
Extract from a Report of a Missionary in the West, 138.
Farewell from a Missionary, 99.
Financial Agent, The Church as a, 51.
———— Condition in November, 202.
Fiscal Year, End of, 186.
Florida, Wants of, 2.
———, Report from a Missionary in, 35.
Funds, Need of, 202.
General Assembly, Resolutions, &c. 99, 154.
Gray, Mrs. J. L., "The Home Missionary," by, 66.
Happersett, Visit of the Rev. R., Associate Secretary of the Board of Missions, to Minnesota Territory and a portion of Wisconsin, 170, 187.
Huntington, The late Rev. Joel, 18.
Illinois, Report from a Missionary in, 264.
Importance of Presbyterial Vigilance and Activity, 34.
Interesting Conversions, 138.
———— Details, 66.
Iowa, Report of a Missionary in, 172.
Joyful Dedication, 138.
Kansas, 82.
Large Missionary Field, Advantage of a, 4.
Maryland, Report from a Missionary in, 35.
Meetings of the Board, 34, 50, 82, 99.
Minnesota, Loud Call from, 66.
Missionary on the Frontier, 51.
New Church at Memphis, Mo., 19.
New Jersey, Report of Itinerant Missionary in, 82.
New York, Report from Missionary in, 35.
Ohio, Interesting Sketch of a Church in, 3.
——, Report of Missionaries in, 20, 83.
Oregon, Report from Missionaries in, 67, 83.
Pennsylvania, Report of a Missionary in, 139.
Pray for the Missionaries, 3.
Presbyterial meeting, Good result, 3.
Providential Event improved, 3.
Receipts, 4, 20, 36, 52, 67, 84, 100, 140, 156, 172, 188, 204.
Refreshing from on High, 139.
Resolutions of General Assembly, 99, 154.
Revivals, 51.
South Carolina, Report of Missionary in, 172.
Southern Aid Society, 154, 186.
Special Reports of Missionaries, 19, 34.
Success of an Important Mission, 139.
Table of Receipts and Expenditure, 155.
Tennessee, Reports from Missionaries in, 138.
Texas, Reports from Missionaries in, 34, 52, 83.
Treasury, State of the, 186, 202.
Virginia, Report of a Missionary in, 139.
Want of the Border, 203.
Western Churches, 188.
Wisconsin, Report from a Missionary in, 34.
Worthy of Imitation, 82.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Action of General Assembly, 131.
Aid to Candidates, 157.
Alexander College, Iowa, 23, 207.
————, Dr. and the Catechism, 87.
Annual Report, Abstract of, 101.
———————— A Paragraph Struck out, 102.
Aranama College, 190.
Attractions of the Ministry, 205.
Austin College, Texas, 38.
Baptized Children of the Church, 143.
Benefits of Sabbath-Schools, 159.
Best Sign of a Call to the Ministry, 141.
Bethany Presbyterial Academy, N. Y., 55.
Bible, The, 7; in Colleges, 86; in Public Schools, 158, 207.
Call to Young Men, 22.
—— the Ministry, 141.
Calvin, Character of, by Bancroft, 174.
Candidates and Funds, 205.
"Candidates" for the Ministry, 189.
Carroll College, Wisconsin, 23.
Catholicism, How we must meet it, 76.
Centre College, 190.
Child and Pastor, 37.
Child's Best Inheritance, 174.
Choice of Pursuit in Life, 142, 189.
Christian Liberality, 158.
Cincinnati, Synodical College of Synod of, 206.
Comparative Safety of College Life, 142.
Consciences, 103.
Covenant Blessings, 173.
Dartmouth College, N. H., 54.
D'Aubigné, Dr. Merle, Speech of, 7.
Davidson College, N. C., 190.
Davies, Rev. Samuel, Description of, 158.
Delaware, Ohio, Female College, 86.
Des Peres Institute, Mo., 38.
Dialogue between a Young Man and the Lord of the Harvest, 173.
Education is Fortune, 175.
————, The first Principle in, 70.
Encouraging Facts, 189.
Example Worthy of Imitation, 205.
Faith Tried and Rewarded, 39.
Florence Female Academy, 22.
Formation of Character, 175.
Fort Wayne Male and Female Academies, 23, 158.
Four Good Habits, 174.
Free Church of Scotland, 141.
Geneseo Academy, N. Y., 38.
German Parochial Schools in New York, 158.
"Give me a faithful Heart," 159.
Grain of Corn and the Penny, 143.
Greensboro Female College, 23.
Greenville Presbyterial Academy, 206.
Griffin, Georgia, Female College at, 23.
Hamilton College, N. Y., 54.
Hanover College, 6, 54, 206.
Harvard College, 190.
Hints to Candidates, 37, 54, 141, 189, 205.
Independence v. Gratuities, 69.
Increase of Candidates, 157.
———— the Ministry, 5.
———— Candidates in the South, 5.
Jefferson College, Pa., 54.
Jesuit Training, 191.
Kaskaskia Presbyterial Academy, 142.
Lafayette College, Pa., 54, 206.
Learn of Me, 70.
Letter to a Son in College, 102.
Live for God, 174.
Luther, Sketch of, 174.
————'s Lineal Descendants, 174.
McDowell, Rev. Dr. John, 37.
Macdonough College, 6.
Marengo Collegiate Institute, Ill., 38.
Miami University, 54, 191.
Miller Academy, under the care of the Zanesville Presbytery, 206.
Ministers' Sons and the Ministry, 53, 69.
Ministry, Increase of, 5.
————, Consecration to the, 5.
Mothers, A Word to, 103.
Mother's Religious Influence, 174.
Music in the Family, 143.
"My Times are in Thy Hand," 158.
Nashville, Synod of, Female High School, 22.
New Brunswick, Action of the Synod of, 159.
New Candidates, 141.
New Jersey, College of, 54.
Noble Example, 22.
North-Western Convention, 6.
Nott, Rev. Dr., on the Pastoral Office, 157.
"Not to Myself Alone," 173.
Oglethorpe University, 22, 54.
Our Children, 207.
Our Theological Seminaries in the South, 103.
Oxford Female College, 206.
Paducah, Presbyterial Academy, 142, 206.
Parochial Schools, 55, 207.
————————, Five Thousand Dollars for, 38.
Paternal Affection, 175.
Pennsylvania University, 54.
Perseverance, 7.
Pious Poor and the Gospel Ministry, 85.
—— Training, 174.
Pontotoc Female Collegiate Institute, 87.
Prayer for Colleges, 38.
———— more Ministers, 37.
Preaching by Unlicensed Students, 189.
———— Christ, 6.
Proper Training of Candidates, 85.
Presbyterial Academies, 191.
Receipts, 7, 23, 39, 55, 71, 87, 103, 143, 159, 175, 191, 207.
Revival in the University of Mississippi, 7.
Reward of Diligence, 39.
Rock River Presbyterial Academy, 86.
Rutgers' College, N. J., 54.
Sabbath-Schools, Benefits of, 159.
Scotland's Debt to John Knox, 175.
Self-Sacrifice, 70.
Special Prayer, 21.
Statistics of Theological Students, 53, 70.
Synod of South Carolina on the Oglethorpe University, 22.
Talladega Female Institute, 22.
Teacher, The Work of, 190.
Towanda Academy, Pa., 38.
Treasury, State of, 102, 173.
Union College, N. Y., 54.
Valuable Thoughts, 7.
Van Rensselaer Academy, Mo., 23.
Wabash College, Indiana, 54.
Wan Reapers, The, 6.
Washington College, Tenn., 55.
Washington College, Pa., 6, 54.
Waveland Presbyterial Academy, 158.
Westminster College, Mo., 22, 206.
White Water Presbyterial Academy, 86, 206.
Williams College, Mass., 54.
Youthful Neglect, 143.
Zion Seminary, Miss., 22.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Afghans, Mission for the, 208.
Africa. Corisco Mission, 9, 105, 209.
———. Mission of the Church Missionary Society in Eastern Africa, 60, 75.
Annual Meeting of the Board, 88.
——— Report of the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, 11.
——— Report of the Executive Committee, 113.
Belgium, Prospects of Religion there, 74.
California, Mission to the Chinese in, 72, 193.
Call for a Missionary, 192.
China. Ningpo Mission, 11, 44, 57, 106, 146, 210.
Chinese Companies in California, 72.
Circular Letters to Churches, 8, 192.
——— in favour of the Waldenses, 56.
Clemens, Letter from the Rev. William, 105.
Corisco, Health of, 105.
Duff, Dr., on Foreign Missions, 91.
Europe. Missions among Romanists, 9, 58, 90.
Example worthy of Imitation, 165.
France, Progress of the Gospel in, 90, 91.
Geneva, Evangelical Society of, 107.
Hardwar Fair, An account of, by the Rev. Charles W. Forman, 178.
India. Allahabad Mission, 209.
India. Furrukhabad Mission, 146, 163, 195.
——— Lodiana Mission, 28, 58, 89, 146, 178.
Indian Missions. Chickasaw Mission, 145.
——— ——— Choctaw Mission, 145, 208.
——— ——— Creek Mission, 108.
——— ——— Seminole Mission, 89.
Journal of a Tour to Illobey and the River Muni, by the Rev. J. L. Mackey, 9.
——— of the Rev. Henry V. Rankin, 11, 44, 57, 106.
——— of a Tour through the Indian Country, by the Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, 24, 40.
——— of the Rev. J. M. Jamieson, 28, 58.
——— of the Rev. W. H. Templeton among the Seminole Indians, 108.
——— of a Tour from Ambala to Lahor, by the Rev. J. H. Orbison, 146.
——— of the Rev. A. P. Martin, 146, 210.
——— of the Rev. Julius F. Ulmann, 163.
Lowrie, Walter, Esq., Visit to the Indian Missions in Kansas, Nebraska, and on Lake Michigan, 160, 177.
Mackay, Rev. Mr., Speech of, in the General Assembly of the Free Church of Scotland, 179.
Mackey, Rev. James L., Extracts from his Address delivered in Madison Avenue Church, N. Y. in regard to the Corisco Mission, 209.
Missionary Experience, 144.
Nundy, Letter from the Rev. Gopee Nauth, 209.
Old Calabar, 147.
Orbison, Rev. J. H., Letter from, in relation to the last hours of Mrs. Orbison, 178.
Our Indian Tribes, 11.
Polynesia: Report of the Eleventh Missionary Voyage to the New Hebrides and New Caledonia Groups and Savage Island, 210.
Receipts, 13, 29, 45, 61, 76, 92, 109, 149, 165, 181, 197, 213.
Recent Intelligence, 8, 24, 40, 56, 72, 88, 104, 144, 160, 176, 192, 208.
Reid, Rev. Alexander, Letters from, 89, 145.
——, Rev. A., Report of Spencer Academy, 208.
Reply to Governor Bigler's Message by the Chinese in California, 73.
South America. Letters from the Rev. Thomas L'Hombral, 59, 108.
Spain, Efforts for its Evangelization, 92.
Spencer Academy, 89, 208.
Ulmann, Rev. J. F., Letter from, 195.
Waldensian Church, 56, 176.
Yoruba Mission, 180, 196, 212.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

Alexander's "Counsels to the Young," 167.
Almanac for 1856, 182, 215.
Annual Report, Abstract of, 110, 150.
Appointment of an Agent, 62.
Best Society, 182.
Books asked for Liberia, 14.
——— of the Board, 166, 199.
——— for India, 198.
California, 62.
Call for a Library, 30.
"Chamber of Sickness," 47.
Cheap books, 167.
Colportage in Canada, 166.
——— in the South, 62.
——— Fund, 14, 30, 198.
——— among the Children, 150.
Colporteurs not merely Book Pedlars, 15.
——— Wanted, 198.
Colporteur's Joys, 47.
——— Opinion of the Work, 47.
Contributing Churches, 14.
Contributions for our Columns, 166.
Distribution Fund, 111.
Donation Fund, 14.
Eastman, Rev. John C., Death of, 182.
Favourable Notice of the Board, 14.
First Fruits, 167.
Foreign Correspondence, 78.
General Assembly, Action of, on Publication, 110.
Gift for a Sabbath-school, 183.
Good Word from Abroad, 94.
Good Example, 111.
"Here is My Heart," 183.
Hidden Bible and Hidden Saint, 46.
Honorary Membership, 30.
Hopeful Conversion, 46.
Importance of the Colporteur Enterprise, 78.
Impressions of Canada, 198.
Influence of Good Books, 78.
Iowa, Letter from a Colporteur in, 31.
Lake Superior Region, Colporteur wanted for, 198.
Leila Ada, 95.
Londonderry Presbytery, 151.
Ministry and Colportage, 94.
New Brunswick, Letters from, 31, 47.
Noble Gift, 150.
Notices of New Books, 15, 31, 47, 63, 78, 95, 167, 183, 199, 215.
Nova Scotia, 150, 166.
Ohio, Letter from a Colporteur in, 78.
Oregon, Colportage in, 182.
Our Books in Tennessee, 30.
Our Books in Illinois, 183.
Patton, John R., Obituary Notice of, 95.
Pennsylvania, Letter from a Colporteur in, 31.
Poor Student, Value of a Library to, 151.
Proposal to Sabbath-schools, 150.
Psalmodist in Aiken's Character Notes, 46.
Quarter of an Hour with a Bad Book, 151.
Receipts, 15, 31, 47, 63, 78, 95, 111, 151, 167, 183, 199.
Reformed Dutch Church, Board of Publication of, 151.
Responses to Calls, 62, 166.
Responsibility, 63.
Rice, Rev. John H., his appointment, 62; resignation, 182.
Sabbath-school Visitor, 14, 167.
Shorter Catechism in German, 151.
Southern Synods, 14.
Statistics of the Board of Publication, 94.
Students as Colporteurs, 30, 182.
Terms of Sale, 166.
Texas, Appeal from, 46.
Tracts, Usefulness of, 166.
True Wisdom and Sound Policy, 46.
Value of Good Books in Hospitals, 182.
Vermont, Letter from a Colporteur in, 46.
Visit to Six Synods, 214.
——— the South, 62, 110.
What are you Giving? 166.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Affliction, 153.
Alas! Where are my Sheaves? 33.
Benevolent Agencies a Double Blessing, 17.
Bible, The, 33.
Christian, The, 137.
Church Debts, 153.
Church Extension Committee, 201.
Circulation of the Record, 201.
Come to Jesus, 17.
Co-operation of the Wife, 33.
Crucifixion of the Heart, 153.
Daughter of Abraham, 81.
Divine Decrees and Human Freedom, 65.
Early Associations, 17.
Ecclesiastical Record, 16, 32, 48, 64, 80, 96, 112, 152, 168, 184, 200, 216.
Effective Preaching, 169.
Eldership, The, 137.
Example for Subscribers, 17.
Fearful Curse, 49.
Fact about the Catechism, 153.
Family, The, 153.
God of my Mother, 17.
"Go scatter the Seed," 185.
Grain of Corn and the Penny, 1.
Historical Notices of Synods and Presbyteries, 80.
Home and Foreign Record, 1, 65, 201.
Illustrations, 33.
Is Religion beautiful? 153.
Jealousy among Ministers, 186.
Learn of Me, 33.
Leila Ada, 81.
Little by little, 1.
My own Work, 169.
Nothing to do, 33.
Report on Systematic Benevolence, 97.
"Right must win," 153.
Rules for Home Education, 65.
Sanctified Afflictions, 1.
Scriptures always fresh, 33.
Somebody is praying for me, 33.
State of Grace, 49.
Sustain your Pastor, 185.
Triumph of Piety, 169.
Varieties, 16, 32, 48, 64, 96, 112, 152, 168, 184, 200.
Watch and Pray, 49.
Watch! Watch! Mother, 169.
Why should I give? 137.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME VI. No. 1. | PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY, 1855. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

NEW VOLUME OF THE RECORD.

With the present number we begin a new volume of the Record. We rejoice in the many commendations received from various parts of the Church, and will endeavour, with divine help, to make it more and more interesting and complete, as the organ of the Boards, in communicating information respecting their operations, and in endeavouring to infuse the spirit of Christian philanthropy into its readers.

The number of copies of the Record issued at the close of the past year was 16,500. What addition has been made to this at the beginning of this new year we are not yet able to state. The increase in circulation during the year 1854 was 5,500. It is, however, to be deeply lamented, that after all the efforts made, only about one-ninth of the Presbyterian families in our connection should be supplied with it. The price, as may be seen by referring to the last page, has within the past year been very considerably reduced.

Is it not possible for pastors, elders, and private church members, in their several spheres of action, to do something now, at the beginning of a new volume, towards increasing the number of subscribers?

THE GRAIN OF CORN AND THE PENNY.

A grain of corn an infant's hand
May plant upon an inch of land,
Whence twenty stalks may spring, and yield
Enough to stock a little field.
The harvest of that field might then
Be multiplied to ten times ten,
Which, sown thrice more, would furnish bread,
Wherewith an army might be fed.

A penny is a little thing,
Which e'en the poor man's child may fling
Into the treasury of Heaven,
And make it worth as much as seven.
As seven! nay, worth its weight in gold,
And that increased a millionfold;
For, lo! a penny tract, if well
Applied, may save a soul from hell.
That soul can scarce be saved alone;
It must, it will, its bliss make known.
"Come," it will cry, "and you shall see
What great things God hath done for me!"
Hundreds that joyful sound may hear—
Hear with the heart as well as ear;
And these to thousands more proclaim
Salvation in the "Only Name;"
Till every tongue and tribe shall call
On "Jesus" as the Lord of all!

—James Montgomery.

LITTLE BY LITTLE.

From the window near which I now write, I saw some time ago, several workman clearing away the rubbish from a vacant lot over the way. Then others came who, spadeful by spadeful, dug deep foundations. Presently the masons began their work. Click! click! click! Incessantly their hammers were going. One rude stone after another was fitted and adjusted in the solid walls, which soon began to rise above the level of the ground. Then the brick-laying began. Brick after brick! brick after brick!—so the wall rises. Now they have reached the second story, and now the third. Still the same quiet and gradual process is going on. Brick upon brick! Brick upon brick! Now they have reached the fourth story, and now the fifth. I look from my window this morning, and the house is enclosed and completed. There it stands! an extensive and imposing five-story edifice, towering far up, and capable of affording ample accommodations for purposes of trade or residence.

I cannot help thinking as I look at that house. It was but as yesterday that it was begun, yet there it stands, completed. How was it put there? Little by little. There was no miracle wrought. No giant's strength was applied to it. No Hercules laboured upon it. Plain, common men did all the work. Brick upon brick! They toiled patiently and steadily, but always doing their work little by little. Now look at it.—How astonishing a result has come from those many little bits of labour, well planned and perseveringly performed.

But stay. I look at other builders, and I see results quite as wonderful. The successful tradesman, the eminent physician, the distinguished lawyer, the illustrious statesman, how were their names and fortunes built up? Not by mushroom growth, but brick upon brick. A settled plan—a fixed and comprehensive purpose to begin with. Then a little to-day, a little to-morrow, a little every day. A steady, earnest, judicious, persevering industry. Thus was built up the splendid fortune, the extensive practice, the illustrious name.

I look further. I see other builders, in the Church of Christ. I see an eminent minister of the gospel, not long since gone to his rest. His fame for piety, and usefulness, and learning, are wide as the Christian world. He stood in the first rank of the preachers of the gospel. Volume after volume came forth from his exhaustless mind and his untiring hand. Millions of pages of his undying thoughts have been scattered in various languages through many lands. What a glorious reputation did he build up! What an enviable work of usefulness did he do! How was it done? Brick upon brick! Little by little! A well settled plan of life, a steady industry, an untiring perseverance, something well done every day—and behold the edifice!

I looked into the dwelling of an aged and eminent saint. The sweet perfume of holiness filled the dwelling. All venerated, all praised, all loved him. He seemed to live ever on the verge of heaven. His converse was with God and Jesus. He looked by faith on things unseen. His piety shone forth in every word and work. How was this blessed character formed? Not by the transformation of a day or year did this sinful man acquire it. Little by little! One application to the blood of cleansing, then another. One temptation resisted, then another. One besetting sin conquered, then another. One little act of piety, and then another. Little by little. By persevering industry, by steady effort, that blessed character was with God's help formed.

I looked beyond the boundaries of life and time. I saw the redeemed clustered around the throne of the glorified Jesus. Among the hosts were some excelling other saints, whose robes were of transcendent whiteness, whose crowns were of peculiar weight and lustre, whose songs were of more exquisite melody, whose joys surpassed even the ordinary joys of heaven. O, wondrous exaltation in happiness and glory! Whence came it? By what miracle thus lifted above the multitudes of the fallen and redeemed ones? By a miracle of grace, truly. All, all, from first to last, of grace. Yet, through grace, little by little. A settled heavenward aim, a steady, daily, persevering struggle thitherward. A little good done to-day, a little more to-morrow, a little every day. Not the fortuitous gain of a day, of an hour, not the sudden and unaccountable result of some extraordinary conjunction of outward circumstances, but the faithful occupation, day by day, of the five, the two, or the one talent committed to them by their Lord.

Builders for time! Builders in time for eternity! Despise not the little things of life, its little opportunities, its little gains, its little temptations, its little sins, its little calls to usefulness. Let your plans be well laid, both for time and for eternity. Be ever found adding one little to another. Lay one brick on another, daily, assiduously, perseveringly, and when the magnificent castles in dreamland, for which others despise your unpretending, plodding round of daily exertion shall have clean vanished and gone, your building will stand forth in sight of men and angels, firm, capacious, and beautiful for ever.

W. E. S.

SANCTIFIED AFFLICTIONS.

BY REV. J. F. M'LAREN.

When smiles each landscape under cloudless skies,
And every field in summer beauty lies,
No higher we our eyes incline to raise,
Content on glories of the earth to gaze;
But when the clouds of autumn darkly frown,
When earth is chill, and field and wood are brown,
We upward turn our unaccustomed sight
To note the barriers of our wonted light:
There broken clouds of ever varying blue
Attract our eye, and pass our vision through
To upper skies, more brilliant, deep, and clear
Than shine in other seasons of the year.

Even thus the Christian, tranced in worldly joys,
On low and transient things his mind employs,
Binds down to earth aspiring hopes and love,
Forgetful of his own bright home, above.
But sorrow's hallowed touch dissolves the charm,
And grief to conscience gives a just alarm;
His trembling hands from earth their hold release,
His humbled spirit looks above for peace;
And thus the "light afflictions" of his lot
Restore his thoughts to heaven, too long forgot,
And, viewed by faith, conduct his aided sight
To upper worlds of pure eternal light.

PITTSBURGH, October 17.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Mission Rooms,
Philadelphia, December 13th, 1854.

To the Stated Clerks of Presbyteries.

Rev. and Dear Brethren—We will send, by mail, a package containing four or five copies of the Annual Report of the Board of Missions, addressed to the Stated Clerks of Presbyteries. As all the ministers have been supplied, we respectfully request that the copies now forwarded may be circulated among the Ruling Elders and other influential lay members of the Church. Will the brethren, for the sake of the cause, please attend to this matter, and make as judicious a distribution of the copies sent to them as possible?

G. W. MUSGRAVE, Cor. Sec.

BENEVOLENCE THE FRUIT OF REVIVALS.

The connection between the spiritual state of the churches and their active benevolence is often observed by God's servants. Some churches receive no special manifestations of God's favour, because they do not exercise the grace of benevolence as they could and ought. Others bring the tithes into God's storehouse and the windows of heaven are opened, and the Almighty pours them out a blessing so abundant that there is not room enough to receive it! And when churches are revived by the outpouring of the Spirit, how cheerfully, gratefully, and liberally do they contribute towards the support and diffusion of the Gospel!

December 4th, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D.D.

Rev. and Dear Sir—The last quarter of my second year in the service of the Board has just closed. During the last three months I have visited nineteen churches—thirteen in the Presbytery of Newcastle, two in the Presbytery of Donegal, one in the Second Presbytery of Philadelphia, one in the Presbytery of New Brunswick, one in the Presbytery of Northumberland, and one in the Presbytery of Carlisle. In ten of these churches series of meetings have been held, in some of which there were obvious indications of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit in the edification of Christians, the hopeful conversion of sinners, and an enlarged spirit of benevolence in aid of the cause of Missions. The contributions from the churches above named, this year, will be in advance of what they were last year. They will be, I think, at least $1200. The cause is a growing one in the affections of God's people; and as the Lord prospers the churches, they will "have a mind for the work." The church in Waynesburgh under the pastoral care of the Rev. W. W. Latta, has frequently enjoyed refreshing seasons from the presence of the Lord. A goodly number have of late asked, "What shall we do to be saved?" And this year, as well as last year, their gift to the Board is a noble one, for a church but a few years old as a self-sustaining church. A few miles to the west of Waynesburg is the church of "Cedar Grove," with its neat and beautiful edifice, its parsonage, and parochial high-school, erected on a commanding eminence in the village of Churchtown, mainly through the generous devotion to the cause of sound learning and sound Presbyterianism by Mrs. J——. Mrs. J—— is a descendant of the Rev. Mr. Carmichael, whose name will be cherished in fond remembrance, as a minister and patriot, worthy of the high place he held in the esteem and confidence of General Washington. This pastoral charge, under the care of Dr. Leaman, gave the Board this year a generous donation. We had a very pleasant meeting of four days at Penningtonville, one of our missionary churches, under the pastoral care of Rev. J. Latta. Brother L. is doing a good work in that growing village. A neat and commodious house has been erected, and nearly paid for. A growing congregation is being gathered, and the time is not far distant when this church will pay back with interest the loans of the Board to aid it onward to place and power as a self-sustaining church. The meetings held at brother J. Dickey's, Oxford, Lower W. Nottingham, and Port Deposit, Second Church of Lancaster, and Columbia, were not without tokens of a growing interest in the cause of vital religion and missions. The large and flourishing female school at Oxford is doing a great and good work for the church and the country, in the cause of Christian education. The pastors in all that region are working men. They help each other. Their series of meetings in days gone by, (the days of the founders and fathers of their churches,) were eminently seasons of "refreshing from the presence of the Lord." They are so still. But little is known abroad of what the Lord has done, year after year, at Brandywine, Octorara, Fagg's Manor, New London, and other places, where not only in the days of the Blairs, Tennents, and Whitefield, but often since, precious revivals of religion have been enjoyed. These dear brethren have reason to "thank God and take courage," and hope for still larger and brighter displays of God's rich and abounding grace.

You have seen, in the papers, brief notices of the work of God at Whiteclay Creek, Head of Christiana, and Newark, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Mr. Vallandigham. Two of those churches—Whiteclay Creek and Christiana—are amongst the oldest in that part of the country. The younger Tennent, Charles, was pastor of Whiteclay Creek for twelve years. During the revival of 1739 and '40, that church shared largely in the remarkable effusion that brought so many thousands to penitence and prayer in this country and England. Dr. Alexander gives a brief but interesting account of that revival at Whiteclay Creek, in his book, "The Log College." The other church, Christiana, was under the pastoral care of Rev. George Gillespie, who was settled over it in 1713. His remains lie in the graveyard in the midst of hundreds who for forty-seven years sat under his able and faithful ministry. There, too, in that earthly homestead of the sainted dead, are the remains of his successors in the pastoral office over these venerable churches, McCrea and Russell, each of whom served the Lord in the pastorate over that people twenty-seven years. On these two old churches, and their sister church in Newark, (or rather, I should say, their infant granddaughter, for the church in Newark is but of recent origin,) God's Spirit has been poured out in marked and marvellous power. The work has extended to Newark college and its large grammar school, and will cause, I doubt not, many hearts to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. A work of preparation amongst the people of these churches had been going on silently but steadily, under pastoral supervision, many days and weeks before the special series of meetings commenced. There was marked solemnity in the house on the first day of the meeting. It increased by little and little, until the drops became a shower, and then a flood, sweeping in resistless course over hill and dale, town and country. The people of God, the elders, the aged fathers and mothers in Israel, the young in the church, the Professors in the college and grammar school—"all were of one accord" with God's ministers in their efforts to bring souls to Christ. Two inquiry meetings were held each day, and the number steadily increased, until more than two hundred were awakened. Amongst the subjects of this work are persons of all ages and conditions in life. The great majority are the children of the church. Amongst the number are several descendants of the old pastor Gillespie—one of them a student of college, called after his great-great-grandfather, George Gillespie. Two are daughters of deceased ministers, and amongst the students three are sons of ministers, and ten are sons of Presbyterian elders.

P. S.—The last of the series of meetings alluded to was held week before last at Danville. It was a deeply interesting meeting. Their new house of worship, one of the most commodious and beautiful buildings I have ever seen, was dedicated to God two weeks ago. Dr. Plumer preached the dedication sermon, to a crowded and deeply interested audience. The special series of meetings commenced on "Thanksgiving day." Brother Halliday, formerly pastor of the church, preached an appropriate and impressive sermon on the morning of that day. The meetings were kept up until Monday night. There were obvious tokens of deep and growing solemnity in the church. Nearly all the pews in the church are taken. The town is a growing one; and judging from the rapid increase of population, this large and flourishing church will, ere long, have to send out a colony to lay the foundation of another house for God in their vicinity. This church has given $100 this year to the Board, and will soon add $100 more. For the three succeeding Sabbaths I have appointments in the Presbytery of Huntingdon.

D. M'K.

WANTS OF FLORIDA.

We commend the following statements, respecting the wants of Florida, to our ministerial brethren who would like to settle in the South. There are great destitutions in various portions of the South and South-West, and many promising fields, which ought to be occupied. Will not some of the brethren turn their attention to those sections? By writing to the Stated Clerks of Presbyteries, a more particular description of vacant churches and missionary fields could be readily obtained.

November 13, 1854.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Rev. and Dear Sir—Having returned last week from the interior of the State, whither I had gone to attend the meeting of Florida Presbytery, appointed to be held at Micanopy on the 25th ult., I think it proper to anticipate a little the date of my quarterly report, and make to you a brief statement of matters which fell under my observation during that visit.

Micanopy is an inland village eighty miles west of St. Augustine, and at a distance of fifty miles west of Patalka, an important commercial town of 600 souls. In the opposite direction from us, the nearest Presbyterian church to Micanopy is that situated in Madison, Florida, the pastor of which, Dr. Auld, I had the pleasure of meeting and labouring with during my absence. In all this wide district of East Florida, I am at present the only resident Presbyterian minister; brother Sproull of Jacksonville having recently intimated to his little flock that it was very doubtful whether he should return to them from the North, where he has been on business connected with their interests. At Patalka, as I went on to Presbytery, a strong desire was expressed to have the regular preaching of the gospel by one of our ministers, and I thought it proper to spend the Sabbath there on my return. Dr. Auld and myself were the only members of Presbytery in attendance at Micanopy; but although we could not "constitute," we had liberty to preach, of which we availed ourselves to some extent. Dr. Auld had come on four days previously by appointment to preach the gospel, and there was a good deal of pleasant interest manifested in the meetings which he had held. I gave him some assistance, and his preaching continued one week longer, with good success. There being no church edifice in the place, the Masons had kindly offered their pleasant lodge-room, which was crowded with an intelligent and very attentive congregation day after day. The immediate vicinity of Micanopy is a very valuable section for the planter, and the population which has recently settled there is of a very superior class, in regard to intelligence, morality, and wealth. Twelve months since, a Presbyterian church was organized in the little village with a dozen members; they are now upwards of thirty strong; seventeen persons having been received in connection with these services, and of these, ten were admitted by profession. A very good feeling was manifested towards our Church by the community in general, and in several other places we are invited by those not members of any denomination to establish our ministry.

About Alligator there is an important and growing population; the village contains about 4500 souls. There is ample and remunerating occupation for a minister at Alligator and Newnansville, (25 miles south.) Some correspondence they have had in the endeavour to secure a clergyman, but as yet without success. At Micanopy, the plan is—and their confident expectation—to obtain for themselves the exclusive services of a minister; and this I trust they will be able to do, as they have members and pecuniary ability beyond any other point in East Florida.

Returning from Micanopy, I came by way of Orange Springs to Patalka. At Orange Spa, there is an eligible retreat for invalids in winter, which is 25 miles west of Patalka; there is a very large hotel, and some private residences are now erecting within a few hundred yards of the Spring. There is no church, but the services of one of our ministers would be welcomed by the residents. Twenty-five miles south of this point is Ocala, a thriving village of about 500 inhabitants, where the "East Florida Seminary" has recently been established by the Legislature. There are but two or three Presbyterians in this village. I was not able to visit it. At Patalka, a very large congregation assembled in the court-house (a very rude building) on the first Sabbath of the month. Judge Forward remarked that he had never seen so many people met together there for worship, and it was pleasant to preach to so attentive a congregation. Our second service was interrupted by the arrival of two or three steamboats from Jacksonville; for one class of business people in Florida, or rather trading with Florida, the Sabbath is still the favourite day of arrival and departure. On the Saturday preceding, I had called upon the eight or ten Presbyterians residing in Patalka, and but for the absence of one or two gentlemen, it would have probably been deemed expedient to organize a church.

Let me in a word sum up what appears to me now desirable and practicable—if the Board will—for East Florida, in the way of missionaries. Micanopy will take care of itself; Alligator and Newnansville may require some assistance for the time being; Orange Spa, which is 25 miles distant both from Patalka and Ocala, strikes us as the point at which a minister might be located with greatest advantage to those three places, at each of which he could preach one-third of his time; or otherwise, bestow one-half of it on Patalka, where friends think they could pay his board, or do that which is equivalent. In the present state of Patalka, I regard it as undoubtedly true, that the first-comer of character and talent will gather up a very respectable congregation. It is a new community, and to my mind, of more promising materials than Jacksonville, where religion seems to have made very slight impression on the body of the people. Of similar promise is Alligator. With great regard, truly yours in the gospel, J. H. M.

For the Home and Foreign Record.

PRAY FOR THE MISSIONARIES.

The ministers of Christ, in Apostolic times, often and earnestly entreated the people of God to pray for them. Their labours were arduous, their dangers great, their difficulties many, and they felt deeply their need of constant supplies of God's grace and favour. Hence they set a high value upon the prayers of the people in their behalf. They knew, too, that to pray for the interest and advancement of the cause of Christ would make the people more devoted to it, and more decided in its promotion. If there was a scarcity of ministers, the people must pray; if the missionary of the cross was exposed to danger from unreasonable and ungodly men, the people must interpose their prayers as his shield; if specially difficult enterprises were undertaken, prayer must be offered for the agent; if persecution and wrong were endured, prayer must be offered for the sufferer.

Peter, a faithful missionary, was in prison, and exposed to mortal peril, not for any fault of his, but because it was gratifying to his enemies. The prominent, assiduous, and successful apostle, who had preached to tens of thousands, and brought thousands in a day to the feet of Jesus, could ill be spared from the work; so prayer was made without ceasing for Peter. A prayer-meeting was held at a private house: it was largely attended; it probably kept in more than an hour. While the people were praying, Peter in his cell, heavily chained and closely guarded, was quietly sleeping—the sleep that God gives to his beloved. His friends, his enemies, and himself expected the next day to be his last. But there came to that city an angel of God; he entered the wards of the prison, he roused the sleeping apostle, and led him forth, through iron doors and gates, into the street of the city, and the astonished prisoner found himself in that praying circle, in the house of Mary, the mother of Mark, before it was dismissed.

Who does not see a close connection between the prayers of the people and the release of the apostle, and his resumption of his work? How quickly God answered their prayers—how kindly did he let them see, free and safe among them, the subject of their supplications.

Is the Lord's hand shortened, that it cannot save now? Does not the missionary, in these hard times, specially need God's care and goodness? Hard toil, severe exposure, privation, sickness, discouragements, fall to his lot. He needs and he desires the prayers of God's people. It is good to be specific in our supplications, to have something to pray for, to have an errand at the Throne of Grace. And if we sympathize with our brethren, if we take interest in the cause of Christ, we will not be at a loss for such an errand, we will pray for the missionary.

J. F. M.

A PROVIDENTIAL EVENT IMPROVED.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Rev. and Dear Brother—I have the pleasure to forward to you a brief statement of my labours. I have not been prevented, in a single instance, from fulfilling my engagements in my mission field, although my labours have been more laborious and more numerous than at any former period since my appointment to this field.

The occupation of K—— as a district, containing three additional preaching stations, and adding ten miles to the twenty-eight miles hitherto travelled, increased my labours in preaching, as well as exposed me more to the weather. The Lord has thus far brought me in safety, my health is good at present, and the prospect of permanent good being accomplished through your agent in this large field more encouraging than at any former period since I first occupied it.

In this report I shall dwell more in describing the prospects and condition of the K—— district, than that of the older parts of the field.

Last autumn I was invited to preach the funeral sermon of an aged man in the K—— settlement, a Mr. ———. He had been brought up in the society of ———. He continued until his death in that connection. His wife was brought up in the Presbyterian Church, but having no opportunity of uniting with the Church of her fathers, there being no Presbyterian church in these parts, she remained unconnected with any church, for the reason that she could not unite with any of the other churches which had been organized near to her.

My first introduction to Mrs. ——— and her family, and residents of the township, was when I preached her husband's funeral sermon. The way being opened in God's providence, I have continued to preach regularly since that time in the settlement, preaching for some time at E—— school-house, the people giving good attendance to the preaching of the word. The inhabitants of C——, a village just starting into existence, about two miles from the former place, invited me to make their village a preaching station. I have preached there during the past winter, with much encouragement of success. The settlement was first commenced about thirty-five years since. Several of the early settlers were brought up in the Presbyterian Church, and as soon as I commenced to preach among them, began to talk about having a church organized. This is about soon to be realized. After much conference, the people favourable to the establishment of a Presbyterian church, have proposed to unite with the E—— church, provided the members of that little church are satisfied to change the location of the E—— church to the K—— district. This plan entirely meets my wishes, as it will unite five preaching stations into one, and will give the prospect of forming a strong congregation, at no very distant period, which will be a self-sustaining church. Several of the oldest and most respectable and influential members of the settlement, have given in their names to me as candidates for church membership. An eligible site has been obtained for a church and graveyard, in the very centre of the district on which all are united.

Yours in Christ, affectionately, J. W.

PRESBYTERIAL MEETING—GOOD RESULT.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Dear Sir—The report I now send you was due a month ago. It was delayed in hope that I might have more cheering news to report, since the meeting of our Presbytery at this place. It commenced its session on the 8th ult. We had an exceedingly pleasant meeting—session holding over Sabbath. All the brethren were with us at the communion, and I hope the Great Shepherd was not absent. We were greatly refreshed and encouraged, though the blessing did not extend to the world, as we had hoped it would—only three additions to the church. It is the first regular meeting of Presbytery which has been held in our town, and I cannot but think that the effect has been highly beneficial to our little church and the community. They see what Presbyterianism is in its practical operations. I am sure we have suffered greatly in this region, from being misunderstood. The people have not seen enough of Presbyterianism to know that it is not rank Antinomianism, as it is often represented as being, by those who pretend to "know all about it," "were raised in the Presbyterian Church themselves." They are learning that Calvinism may be held and taught by men who have not horns and cloven feet, but by men who seem to be Christians. And I am sure that the more the people know of our system in its history and its operation, the more favourably are they inclined to it; and so we are gaining ground in all this region, gaining rapidly, especially our branch of the Presbyterian Church.

Pray for us. And may great grace be on you from the Lord of the harvest! Yours in Christ,

H. L. V.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN OHIO.

Interesting Historical Sketch.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Dear Sir—The B——— church resolved, on last Monday, to raise two hundred and fifty dollars for half of my time. In absence of other matter, I will give you a short history of this church.

Just ten years ago I came to this place, and commenced my labours in this field. To this portion of the field, (B——— and vicinity,) I have given half my labours. I preached eighteen months before we attempted an organization. Only two members of the Presbyterian Church were found here when I came. But not despising the day of small things, we went to work, and I feel that the Lord worked with us. On the 29th day of May in the year 1846, we effected an organization with eleven members. Since that time there has been added to this church thirty on certificate, and sixty-three on examination and profession of their faith, making in all one hundred and four. Of this number eight have died, and I trust have gone to join "the general assembly and church of the first-born in heaven," and sixteen have been dismissed by letter, leaving at the present time eighty members in full communion. I have baptized fifty children, and received thirty baptized children, making in all eighty. Of this number two have been transferred to the list of full communicants, both of whom, we trust, now rest in glory. Three have died, and eighteen have been dismissed by letter, leaving at present fifty-seven. Nearly all this number are children under thirteen years of age.

The same season that this church was organized, we built a neat, substantial brick house for worship, thirty-four feet by forty-six, mounted with a neat cupola and a good bell.

The first year that I preached here, the people in this vicinity raised forty-six dollars for my support; the next year about eighty, the third about one hundred, and thus they gradually increased from year to year, until now they can raise two hundred and fifty dollars. This church is now self-sustaining. For the year upon which we have just entered, the H——— church alone has asked for aid, and it is with hearts full of unfeigned gratitude and affection, that we, the B——— church, would take our leave of the Board.

To our little church your Board has been as a foster parent. To us you extended the helping, nourishing hand, while we were in our infancy. You helped us to creep, then to stand, then to walk, as it were. And since we can stand and move without further aid from you, we would tender our heartfelt thanks for all the aid and council received at your hand. We trust that this church will never forget to pray for the prosperity of your Board, and that she will ever remember it in her contributions. This little church has for the last few years made the regular quarterly contributions to the four Boards, which have averaged about seventy dollars per annum.

When we consider the condition of this field ten years ago—(an old settlement filled with all kinds of isms)—the difficulties we had to encounter, the strong current of prejudice we had to stem, and the scarcity of the Presbyterian element, we feel that "the Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad:" and while we would not withdraw our gratitude or thanks which we have tendered to your Board, yet we would let our deeper gratitude, and our more devout thanks, go beyond, and rise above, to Him, the King and Head of Zion, who has prospered you, and through you, in part, has blessed and prospered us. Whoever may have planted, or whoever may have watered, the increase is of the Lord, and to him be all the honour and glory.

W. M. R.

ADVANTAGE OF A LARGE MISSIONARY FIELD.

Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.

Rev. and Dear Brother—The second quarter of my missionary year closed yesterday, and it becomes my duty to report to you my labours and prospects in the extensive field I now occupy. My health has been uniformly good, and my labours unremitted, except two Sabbaths, on which I was absent for the purpose of moving my family from the State of ———. I continue, ordinarily, to preach three times on the Sabbath, at two or three points. As I before remarked, my field embraces five churches and preaching stations, which it seems desirable to retain, with the hope of gathering prosperous churches ere long. This, by the favour of the Great Head of the Church, we ought to expect.

At R———, our prospects are quite encouraging, though everything is to be done. Our communicants number only fifteen. We shall have an accession of three on the 10th inst., one of whom was an elder many years in one of our influential churches. Another large family will move in in October. R——— is becoming an important place, and its population is increasing with considerable rapidity. It would be quite desirable to have preaching half the time, instead of once a month in our church. But the succeeding six months will afford a better opportunity of judging as to the future.

I am much pleased with my field, and am far more favourably impressed than formerly with the value of enlarged fields in our new and sparsely settled districts. Though an individual church may be better served by the whole time of a minister, yet the same minister may vastly enlarge his amount of usefulness by extending his supervision over several feeble churches. It is, I think, the worst state of society when all religious ordinances are wanting. Poor religious instruction, though it be mixed with some error, is, in general, better than none; but it is my opinion, that a wise and active missionary may extend his influence over one or two counties so effectually as to check the main current of error, and do much towards directing the public mind aright. Pardon these speculations: you, dear brother, have well considered all such subjects.

I feel the need of much wisdom; and especially I feel the need of God's presence, and his blessing on my poor endeavours. We are all equally needy here. May the Lord pour his grace upon his people, revive their drooping graces, encourage their labours, and make them accepted in the Beloved.

Fraternally yours, H. C.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of November, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Troy.—Lansingburg ch	97 00
Pby of Albany.—Albany 1st ch 68 13, and from Mr Stephen J Rider 10=73 13 (making, with 135 42 in April last, 213 55 for the years 1853 and 1854); Windsor ch 16; Northampton ch 5	99 13
Pby of Columbia.—Jewett ch, Ladies' Benevolent Society	13 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Caledonia ch, balance 5, and from Dr McPherson 12 50	17 50
Pby of Buffalo City.—Pendleton and Wheatfield chs 13 31; Black Rock ch 10	23 31
Pby of Rochester City.—Rochester 3d ch 126 27; Pickleville ch 15 44	141 71

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson.—Goodwill ch 50; Hamptonburg ch 45	95 00
Pby of North River.—Rondout ch	100 00
Pby of Bedford.—White Plains ch 40 90; Mount Kisco ch 26; Bedford ch 52	118 90
Pby of Long Island.—Southampton ch	67 00
Pby of New York.—Chelsea ch 107; Ainslie st ch Williamsburg 19 37; Bridgeport ch Conn 38 88; Yorkville ch in part to const Rev J B Pinney an hon mem 40	205 25
Pby of New York 2d.—Staunton st ch N Y City	10 44

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown.—Elizabethtown 1st ch 300, of which 40 from the Sab school in part to sustain a missionary of the Board; Plainfield ch 10	310 00
Pby of Passaic.—Rev James Denton, Mendham, N J	10 00
Pby of New Brunswick.—New Brunswick 1st ch 250; Trenton 1st ch 200; "A Friend of the Cause" 100; Elizabethport ch 32; Cranberry 2d ch 42	624 00
Pby of West Jersey.—Cedarville ch, from a lady	5 00
Pby of Newton.—Greenwich ch 95; Harmony ch 50	145 00
Pby of Susquehanna.—Canton ch	6 00
Pby of Luzerne.—Scranton ch	60 00
Pby of Burlington.—Mount Holly 1st ch in part	10 78

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Central ch Phila, addl from J Sibley 25, Thos Beaver 20, J V Cowell 10, Jas Wray 10, J H Campbell 5, (less 50 cts for collecting,)=69 50; Spring Garden ch Phila in part, cash collection 31 36, from "Q" 20, Rev Dr McDowell 10, John Hocker 5, Jacob Lukens 5, Jas Spear 1, Mrs M M Henderson 1=73 36; Tenth ch Phila in part, cash collection 201, from Moses Johnson 25, S Mercer 20, Miss Hoge 10, Hon R C Grier 10, H Campbell 5, C B Penrose 5, J R Snowden 5, W L Mactier 5, J McMillan 5, A B Cummings 5, W R Wendell 5, Jas Imbrie 5, A D C 2 50=308 50	451 36
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Neshaminy ch	63 50
Pby of Donegal.—Waynesburg ch	128 00
Pby of Huntingdon.—Alexandria ch	84 75

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Carlisle.—Petersburg ch 24 55, of which 9 29 from the Female Missionary Society; Silver Spring ch, bequest of Margaret McCormick dec'd 100; Chambersburg ch 120 35; Fayetteville ch 15; Hagerstown ch 23; Carlisle ch 112, of which 20 from Jas Hamilton Esq, bal to const Andrew Blair an hon mem	394 90

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Harmony ch	4 50
Pby of Redstone.—Morgantown ch	19 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Wheeling 4th ch 60; West Union ch 24 75; Sistersville ch 6 50	91 25
Pby of Steubenville.—Steubenville 2d ch, of which 50 to constitute an honorary membership	60 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake.—Crown Point ch	3 00

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Montgomery.—Rock Spring ch	5 00

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Orange.—Cross Roads ch 6; Bethlehem ch 17; Milton ch 72 71; Harmony ch 2; Spring Garden ch 9; Buffalo ch 12 81; Madison ch 17 50; Chapel Hill ch 60; Bethesda ch 12; Red House ch 10 38; Bethel ch 6; Shiloh ch 20; Hawfields ch 14 50; Raleigh ch 106; Yanceyville ch 39 33, Mrs Sarah H Gray 25, Mrs Letitia H Foster 2 50, Mrs Jiggette 5; Presbyterial collection at Spring Hill 90=527 73; Newburn ch 30	557 73

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.

Pby of Cherokee.—Roswell ch 30; Dalton ch 20	50 00

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.

Pby of Red River.—Shreveport ch	50 00

SYNOD OF THE PACIFIC.

Pby of Oregon.—Clatsop ch	3 00
	$4125 01

MISCELLANEOUS.

An old Presbyterian 15; L A S 2 50; John Wright, Auburn, N Y 5; A Family Missionary Society, through the Editors of the Presbyterian 5; Gen R S Brown, Bethlehem, Pa 5; Mrs Mary Smith, Adams Mills, Ohio 10; Interest 212 19	254 69

LEGACIES.

Legacy in part of John Gilcrest, dec'd, of Washington co, Pa, per Treasurer of the Gen Assembly 400; One-half of a Legacy of Margaret Maris, dec'd of Mercersburg, Pa, through the Treasurer of the Gen Assembly 47 50; Legacy in part of Samuel Smith, dec'd, of New Middletown, Pa, 500, less State tax 25=475	922 50
Total,	$5302 20

Received from the Treasurer at Pittsburg, balance in his hands October, 1st, 1854	$2135 60
November collections	193 42
Less discount and expenses	3 81	=189 61
		2325 21
		$7627 41

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

2 boxes from the Ladies of Astoria ch, N Y, value not given.
1 box from the Ladies of Trenton 3d ch, valued at	$156 00

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of November, 1854.

Pby of Bedford.—Bedford ch, for Mineral Point ch, Wis	$50 00
Pby of Philadelphia.—Tenth ch Phila, addl from S Mercer	20 00
Pby of Carlisle.—Chambersburg ch	30 00
Pby of Kaskaskia.—Pleasant Ridge ch 3 54; Chester ch 4 80	8 34

MISCELLANEOUS.

John Wright, Auburn, N Y	5 00
Total,	$113 34

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of November, 1854.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Clarion.—Brookville ch	23 90
Pby of Beaver.—North Sewickley ch 2; Slippery Rock ch 9 39	11 39
Pby of Blairsville.—Gilgal ch	7 50
Pby of Ohio.—West Elizabeth ch 12; Lebanon ch 23	35 00
Pby of Erie.—Gravel Run ch	9 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of New Lisbon.—Pleasant Valley ch	5 73
Pby of Washington.—Cross Creek ch	79 40

MISCELLANEOUS.

John Anderson, Esq, Scrubgrass ch 1 50; Andrew Christy, Esq, Concord ch 20	21 50
Total,	$193 42

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

Ladies of Uniontown ch, a box valued at	50 08
Ladies of West Greenville ch, a box valued at	44 11
	$94 19

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of November, 1854.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Findley.—Truro ch 2 37; Ladies' Sewing Society Lima ch 5	7 37

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.—George Zinck, Utica ch	5 00
Pby of Vincennes.—Union ch	6 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Schuyler.—Westminster ch	25 00
Pby of Rock River.—Freeport ch	7 50
Pby of Peoria.—Washington ch	6 00
Pby of Chicago.—1st ch Rockford	8 00
Synodical collection	15 57

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Des Moines.—Fairfield ch	15 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Palmyra.—Memphis ch	12 50

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.—Bardstown ch in part 47 65; Cane Run ch in part 4 20; Walnut st ch Louisville, in part 118 20; Dr Wm J Morton, Mulberry ch, for sup of Rev J T Umsted 50; Big Spring ch in part 25 45; Pennsylvania Run ch in part 3 50; Shiloh and Olivet chs 63 80; Shelbyville ch 65, Female Miss Soc Shelbyville ch 58	435 80
Pby of West Lexington.—Versailles ch balance	3 00
Pby of Paducah.—Union Point ch	2 00

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.

Pby of Arkansas.—Batesville ch 19 50, Batesville ch Sab school 8; Walnut Grove ch, in part to const Rev W K Talbot hon mem 15	42 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

B B Hutton's donation, Clarinda, Iowa	4 00
Total,	$595 24

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. Van Rensselaer, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
Wm. Chester, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
James Wood, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
William Main, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

INCREASE OF THE MINISTRY.

A Convention of Presbyterian ministers and elders held at Galena, Illinois, in November, (of which a further notice will be given in a subsequent page,) adopted the following excellent paper on the

INCREASE OF THE MINISTRY.

On this subject the following was adopted:

This convention, contemplating the vast and crying destitution of our Synods, cannot but feel most deeply the necessity which is laid upon us and upon the churches to pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth more labourers into his harvest. The rapid increase of our population by immigration is multiplying our destitute places on every hand, and rendering the calls for more labourers more numerous and most pressing. At the same time, we are met by the mournful and solemn truth that the number of candidates for the ministry has not increased, at least in equal proportion, for some years past.

We believe, therefore, that it is the duty of the ministry,

1. To make continual prayer, especially in the public prayers of the sanctuary, for an increase of the ministry.

2. To instruct their people in the duty of consecrating their children to God, that he may, by his grace and Spirit, fit and qualify them for this work.

3. To seek out young men of piety and talents, and endeavour to bring them to the consideration of the question, whether God has not called them to this work.

4. Since it seems that one reason of our destitution arises from the want of an adequate support of the ministry, it is their evident duty, in the language of the last General Assembly, laying aside all false delicacy, "to instruct their people in regard to the duty of an adequate support of the Gospel;" and further, when a minister cannot be thus supported by his people, a full and sufficient sum should be requested of the Board of Missions, to enable him to live and support his family comfortably.

"Resolved, That we consider it contrary to the spirit of our constitution for candidates for the ministry to place themselves under the care of Presbyteries to which they do not, in the language of the Book, 'most naturally belong,' as many of our young men now do, who go to our Theological Seminaries, and are licensed by Presbyteries there; and we will exert ourselves in our several Presbyteries to correct this which we consider an injurious custom."

This convention would also express their gratitude to God for opening such a door of usefulness as his providence has set before them, among the German population of our Synods, and that he has permitted us to welcome a few faithful labourers into this interesting portion of our field. Here especially there arises the Macedonian cry, "come over and help us!" And yet here also darkness hangs over us. Where are the labourers to enter into this field, white even now for the harvest?

The German, Irish, Welch, Swedish, and Norwegian population is rapidly increasing in different parts of our great valley, and the manifest providence of God in bringing them to our shores, and placing them in our midst, where we can extend to them the blessings of a pure Gospel, call upon us to use every possible effort to afford them the preached word, and especially to pray that the Lord of the harvest would raise up labourers for this peculiarly arduous and difficult field.

INCREASE OF CANDIDATES IN THE SOUTH.

Several letters recently received from a correspondent in Georgia, contain a number of cheering facts on this subject. At the late meeting of the Synod of Georgia, unusual interest was awakened among the members, and resolutions adopted to employ additional means to call the talents and piety of the Church, to a larger extent than heretofore, into the service of the gospel ministry. This spirit appears also to have extended to the young men; a considerable number of whom are reported to be seriously considering the question of personal duty, or as being already decided to devote themselves to the sacred office. For this we feel truly grateful; and we earnestly pray that not a few of our young men in every part of the Church will inquire with docile and obedient spirits, "Lord, what wilt thou have us to do?" In another article will be found some excellent remarks bearing on this point, which we recommend to the attention of the reader, and especially to young men. And in connection with those remarks on "Consecration to the Ministry," consider also the following, from a correspondent of the Puritan Recorder.

YOUNG MEN, THINK!

The world is before you. You have your place in it, and your work for it, to choose. Your time in it is short, and the impress you shall leave upon it will soon be determined.

What will you try to effect for our world? Something, or nothing? Will you strive to increase the light of knowledge in it? or will you be content to let the darkness of ignorance continue or increase around you? Will you endeavour to make the region where you shall reside grow purer and more healthful for souls dwelling there, or help to make it more full of moral corruption and poison to its inhabitants? Shall your aim be to save, or to ruin your friends?

Where will you use your energies? Look over the field. China is before you, with its three hundred and fifty million people. India is open to you, and a hundred million souls await the teachings of Christianity; but they perish rapidly, while those teachings slowly come. The Great West calls for ten thousand labourers, for its enlightenment, purification, and salvation. Many a smaller field, yet large and full of promise, calls for the help of good-doing young men. In which of the many places needing your influence shall your efforts be applied? Think, young man, think: for vast results, of weal or woe, may await your choice.

Sit down and think. When those hands of yours shall be cold in the grave, what will you wish you had done with them? When ten thousand years shall have rolled by, what will you wish you had done with those hands?

CONSECRATION TO THE MINISTRY.

It is evidently the duty of somebody to do the specific work of preaching the gospel, in the sense of making it the great and cardinal business of life. The Church cannot live, much less increase, without this agency. God has ordained it for the diffusion of his truth, and the perfecting of his saints. He calls upon somebody, by his providence and his grace, to undertake the work; to relinquish all other pursuits, and devote life to this single business; and on the score of usefulness, no other vocation presents such intensely powerful inducements.

In respect to this service, the practical question to be settled is this: Who shall apply the call to himself? Who shall regard himself as required to consecrate his life to the Christian ministry? The response of the aged is that they are too far advanced in life to engage in such a work; they must serve Christ as laymen, but not as public criers of his word. Men in business take the same view, thinking it practically too late for them become preachers of the gospel. Their sphere is alrsady fixed; they have families to support; and the idea of ten or twelve years' study in preparing for the ministry is out of the question. It is a remarkable case, if a man at the age of thirty or forty with only a common education, shall ever reach the ministry to any effect. One cannot, without the intervention of a miracle, quit the plough, or the counting-room, and go directly to the pulpit. Hence, the call for this service presses upon the young; and here it must press, in order to be seasonably heard and practically executed. For a rule, it addresses this class only.

What then is this call? If analyzed in the consciousness of the subject, it is, first, a simple suggestion—a mere process of thought on the subject—a turning of the mind's eye in the direction of the ministry, so as to raise the question of duty; secondly, an impression, or some effect upon the heart springing from the exercise of thought; thirdly, a sense of duty, a conviction of conscience more or less distinct, that the individual ought to devote his life in this way; and finally, in the last stage of the mental movement, a desire awakened to preach the glorious gospel of the blessed God. Such is the inner call to the ministry; and it may be equally real in any of its stages—as real when a simple suggestion as when it becomes a permanent desire. It may be dismissed too, as God himself may be; but the subject is one of so much consequence, that it ought not to be dismissed until after the most serious and prayerful consideration. A variety of practical questions will naturally be suggested to one who has turned his thoughts to the claims of the Christian ministry upon his personal service. Are there wants of the Church and the world to be supplied? Does the providence of God show that he is needed? Is there anything to be done which he can better do as a minister than as a layman? Has he a respectable degree of natural gifts, that will pay for cultivation to be used in the pulpit? Is the door open; or if not, may it be opened by proper effort on his part? Due attention to such points will aid a young man in judging of the workings of his own mind, and finally determining the question whether God has called him to preach the gospel. He is not to expect some miraculous manifestation of the Divine will: rather let him study the moral signs of God within him, and the providential signs of the same God without him, and thus discover to what his Maker is pointing as the future vocation of his life.

We have the strong impression that the Church contains at this moment many pious young men, who are purposing to live and die as laymen, but who nevertheless ought to consecrate themselves to the ministry of the word. They have had the call—all the call that God ordinarily gives—all that is necessary to mark the line of duty; but they have not hitherto responded to it. They have good natural talent; they have piety; they have faciltiies; they have thought on the subject; they are yet in the flower of youth, with ample time to prepare themselves for the work; and yet their plan of life is arranged for a secular calling. They intend to be merchants, or lawyers, or physicians, but not pastors or evangelists in this world of darkness and sin. God wants them for this service, but they do not wish to engage in it; their plan is already fixed, and they have no definite purpose of changing it. We confess some solicitude for the present as well as the future interests of Christ's kingdom, as we contemplate the urgent demand for more ministers on the one hand, and on the other, the prevalent indisposition of young men to give themselves to this work. It must be that there are more calls than responses. It must be that very many are in the plain and obvious neglect of duty, by not consecrating themselves to the gospel ministry. Parents are doubtless much at fault on this subject; churches, in their treatment of young men, are not doing their duty to themselves or the Master; and then these young men, strongly bribed by the influence of worldly motives, overlook the evidence within them and without them, that God wants them for his special service. Our earnest hope is, that at no distant day something will be done to induce a far greater number of young men to enter the ranks of spiritual reapers, and aid in gathering the harvest of the world. That there is a call for them, there can be no doubt. Who will respond to it? Who will apply it to himself? Who will say to the Master, "Here, Lord, am I; send me?" Oh that there were such a moral conscientiousness, universal, deep, and all-pervading, that every young man wanted for this service might be seasonably secured, and then thoroughly trained for the work.—New York Evangelist.

THE WAN REAPERS.

BY MRS. EMILY C. JUDSON, BURMAH.

I came from a land where a beautiful light
Is slow creeping o'er hill-top and vale;
Where broad is the field, and the harvest is white,
But the reapers are haggard and pale.

All wasted and worn with their wearisome toil,
Still they pause not, that brave little band,
Though soon their low pillows must be the strange soil
Of that distant and grave-dotted strand:

For dangers uncounted are clustering there;
The pestilence stalks uncontrolled;
Strange poisons are borne on the soft, languid air,
And lurk in each leaf's fragrant fold.

There the rose never blooms on fair woman's wan cheek,
But there's beautiful light in her eye,
And the smile that she wears is so loving and meek,
None can doubt it comes down from the sky.

There the strong man is bowed in his youth's golden prime,
But he cheerily sings at his toil,
For he thinks of his sheaves and the garnering-time
Of the glorious Lord of the soil.

And ever they turn, that brave, wan little band,
A long, wistful gaze on the West—
"Do they come, do they come from that dear distant land,
That land of the lovely and blest?

"Do they come, do they come? Oh, we're feeble and wan,
And we're passing like shadows away;
But the harvest is white, and lo! yonder the dawn!
For labourers—for labourers we pray!"—Macedonian.

PREACHING CHRIST.

There are some excellent thoughts in the following admirable article from the gifted pen of Richard Cecil. No comment we are capable of inditing can add to their appropriateness and force.

We preach Christ crucified. 1 Cor. i. 23.

Christ is God's great ordinance. Nothing ever has been done, or will be done to purpose, but so far as he is held forth with simplicity. All the lines must centre in him. I feel this in my own experience, and therefore I govern my ministry by it; but then this is to be done according to the analogy of my faith—not ignorantly, absurdly, and falsely. I doubt not, indeed, but that excess on this side is less pernicious than excess on the other; because God will bless his own special ordinance, though partially understood and partially exhibited.

There are many weighty reasons for rendering Christ prominent in our ministry.

1. Christ cheers the prospect. Everything connected with him has light and gladness thrown around it. I look out of my window; the scene is scowling, dark, and frigid—forbidding. I shudder; my heart is chilled. But let the sun break from the cloud—I can feel; I can act; I can spring.

2. God descending and dwelling with man, is a truth so infinitely grand that it must absorb all others. "You are his attendants. Well, but the KING! There he is—the KING!"

3. Out of Christ, God is not intelligible, much less amiable. Such men as Clarke and Abernethy talk sublime nonsense. A sick woman said to me, "Sir, I have no notion of God. I can form no notion of him. You talk to me about him, but I cannot get a single idea that seems to contain anything." But you know how to conceive of Jesus Christ as a man. God comes down to you in him, full of kindness and condescension. "Ah, sir, that gives me something to lay hold on. There I can rest. I understand God in his Son. But if God is not intelligible out of Christ, much less is he amiable, though I ought to feel him so. He is an object of horror and aversion to me, corrupted as I am. I fear; I tremble; I resist; I hate; I rebel."

4. A preacher may pursue his topic without being led by it to Christ. A man who is accustomed to investigate topics is in danger. He takes up his topic and pursues it. At length, Jesus Christ becomes his topic, and then he pursues that. If he cannot so feel and think as to bend all subjects naturally and gracefully to Christ, he must seek his remedy in selecting such as are more evangelical.

5. God puts peculiar honour on the preaching of Christ crucified. A philosopher may philosophize his hearers, but the preaching of Christ must convert them. John the Baptist will make his hearers tremble; but if the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he, let him exhibit that peculiar feature of his superiority—Jesus Christ. Men may preach Christ ignorantly—absurdly; yet God will give it efficacy, because he is determined to magnify his own ordinance.

6. God seems, in the doctrine of the cross, to design the destruction of man's pride. Even the murderer and the adulterer sometimes become subjects of the grace of the gospel, because the murderer and adulterer are more easily convinced and humbled; but the man of virtue is seldom reached, because the man of virtue disdains to descend. "Remember me," said a dying malefactor. "God, I thank thee," condemned a proud Pharisee.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

EDUCATIONAL INTELLIGENCE.

The following action with regard to colleges was had by the Synod of Illinois at their late annual meeting

MCDONOUGH COLLEGE.

The Committee on the Report of the Trustees of McDonough College, made their report, which was accepted and adopted, as follows:

1. "That Synod have heard with pleasure the annual report of McDonough College, and rejoice in the success which has attended the effort in building up the institution, and express their regret that any hinderance in its endowment should have been experienced.

2. "That Synod commend the institution to the patronage of the people of our State, and to the kind consideration of our churches, for the completion of its endowment.

3. "That Synod appoint the following persons as members of the Board of Trustees: Messrs. T. S. Vail, H. J. Coe, and John Means."

A NEW COLLEGE PROPOSED.

Overture No. 4 was taken up, being from the Presbytery of Sangamon, on the subject of a Synodical College.

A motion was made indefinitely to postpone the subject, which after extended discussion was lost.

The consideration of the report of the Committee of Bills and Overtures on this subject was resumed, amended, and adopted, and is as follows:

"WHEREAS, the citizens of Peoria, by their committee, did, in October, 1853, present to the Synod of Illinois a liberal subscription for the endowment of a college to be located at Peoria, on the condition that said college shall be the College of the Synod of Illinois; and whereas said proposal was not then consummated, but kindly returned, with strong hope that the delay would not prevent the endowment of the college at Peoria, and that said college would yet receive all that encouragement and aid from Synod that its friends desired: therefore Resolved, 1st, "That ——— be a committee to revisit Peoria at as early a day as their discretion will warrant, to endeavour to revive there the interest, promise, and effort that were manifested last year, and to increase the same for a Synodical College, with the understanding, however, that such a charter shall be obtained as shall secure to this Synod the control of the contemplated institution; and the committee are instructed to inform the people of Peoria that Synod will use its best efforts to assist in the endowment of said college.

2d, "If the committee, or a majority of them, after visiting Peoria, shall judge it wise to visit any other city or town in said State, to which they may be invited for the above purpose, they are empowered to do so.

3d, "If the committee of conference shall deem it best, they are at liberty to appoint one or more of their number to be an executive committee.

4th, "The committee are directed to meet immediately on the adjournment of Synod, and afterwards on their own adjournment, and to make report of their doings at the next meeting of Synod."

Messrs. J. Smith, D. D., R. P. Farris, A. Coffee, R. V. Dodge, J. L. Griswold, J. Reynolds, and F. N. Ewing, were appointed the above committee.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE.

The papers report the following as having been passed by the Synod of Ohio.

The Rev. Dr. Scott and the Rev. J. J. Brownson of the Synod of Wheeling, presented the subject of Presbyterial Collegiate Education, in reference particularly to the interests of Washington College, Pennsylvania, and resolutions were passed approving the effort to raise a sufficient fund within our bounds to endow a Professorship in that institution; subject, however, to withdrawment, should this Synod establish a college of their own at any time hereafter.

HANOVER COLLEGE.

The Synod of Northern Indiana adopted the following resolutions concerning Hanover College.

1. Synod heartily rejoice in the present prosperity and flattering prospects of this institution, and devoutly express thanks to the Great Head of the Church for the signal evidences of his favour toward it, in the large accession of students, the delightful religious influences that seem to prevail amongst them, and for a full and thoroughly competent corps of Professors.

2. That we confess our unabated confidence in the Professors, and trust that the Great Head of the Church will direct to the selection of a proper person to fill the important position of President of said institution.

3. In view of the pressing need of funds, both for the support of the Professors and for the completion of the new college edifice, Synod heartily recommend it to the confidence and pecuniary aid of all our churches, and urge them to raise special collections for this purpose.

THE NORTH-WESTERN CONVENTION.

The Convention of Presbyterian Ministers and Elders in the North-West, assembled according to adjournment in the South Presbyterian church in Galena, November 1, 1854, and was opened with a sermon by Rev. J. C. Brown of Indiana, after which the Convention was called to order by Rev. H. J. Coe of Galena.

EDUCATION.

On the subject of education, the following paper was adopted:

This Convention believes the cause of Christian education to be one of vital importance to the interests of religion in our country; and since the heart is naturally averse to acquiring or retaining the knowledge of God, there is the more special need of continuous and prayerful efforts, from the earliest dawn of intelligence through the whole course of education, to instil into the mind the great and saving truths of God's holy word. In this Christian training of the young, we believe the Church at the present day to be greatly deficient, and that especially in this great North-Western valley, where every form of error and scepticism is arrayed against the truth, and both secretly and openly endeavouring to undermine the faith and destroy the hopes of the Christian, the Church is called upon to arouse herself to greater watchfulness and diligence in this work, and to put forth all her energies, relying upon the strength and grace of her adorable Head, to save the young from the insidious approaches of error, scepticism, and formalism.

The principles which should guide our efforts in this work may be briefly stated as follows:

1. In order that a healthful moral and religious influence may be exerted in our common schools, all Christians ought to unite their efforts to introduce and preserve the Bible as a text-book in them, and to secure moral and pious teachers, who shall exert a happy religious influence in such schools.

2. Inasmuch as it is found by experience that that amount of religious instruction which we deem essential cannot as a general rule be obtained in our common schools, it is the duty of the Church to provide additional means for the education of her children.

We believe every church where it is practicable should have its parochial school—especially every Presbytery one or more Presbyterial Academies for boys, and Female Seminaries for girls, where the young of both sexes can have the opportunity of obtaining the elements of a thorough education, under the influence and in connection with daily instruction in the truths of God's word.

And that the usual course of education for young men may be completed under the same hallowed influences, we believe that colleges should be established under ecclesiastical control in such localities as not to interfere with each other, in which the Bible and the standards of our Church should be text-books, and that to the support of these institutions, parochial, academical, and collegiate, the educational energies of our Church should be undividedly directed.

3. This Convention highly approves of the enlarged basis on which the Board of Education have acted for the last few years in giving aid and encouragement to parochial, academical, and collegiate institutions, established on truly Christian principles, as well as that of aiding young men who are preparing for the ministry, and we feel it important that this branch of benevolence should be more liberally sustained by the churches.

"Resolved, That we will individually exert ourselves in our several Presbyteries to secure the establishment of one or more Male and Female Academies, in accordance with the principles before stated."

REVIVAL IN THE UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. Dr. Waddell, one of the Professors, communicates the gratifying intelligence that a precious revival of religion has been enjoyed both in the village (Oxford) and in the University; as the fruit of which fifty have made a profession of religion. Of the converts, one is an accomplished and valued Professor, and thirty-two or three are students of the University. Concerning the University, he adds the following, viz.

In our University we have now not less than seventy-five professors of religion out of one hundred and forty students. In our senior class, numbering twenty-eight, there are nineteen professors of religion, of whom twelve or thirteen have the ministry in view. One of the graduates of this institution who has long been undecided as to his duty, was during this meeting brought to the determination to devote himself to the service of the Lord in the ministry, and will go on immediately to Danville to pursue his theological studies. A fact worthy to be mentioned as full of encouragement, is that our Sabbath-school and Bible class have been wonderfully blessed in this revival.

PERSEVERANCE.

Let not the failure of your first efforts deter you. Alexander Bethune's first effort for print was a contribution to the "Amethyst;" but the lady at whose request he wrote it, advised him not to send it. He wrote an article for "Blackwood," and it was declined. A host of others have tried, and they have failed; but where there has been a firm and settled purpose to succeed, they have tried, and tried, and tried again, and in the end they have been successful.

Let not the unfavourable opinion of others deter you. Xenocrates was a disciple of Plato, and a fellow-student with Aristotle. Plato used to call Xenocrates "a dull ass that needed the spur," and Aristotle "a mettlesome horse that needed the curb." When, after the death of Plato, the Chair of Instruction in the Academy was vacant, the choice of a successor lay between Aristotle and Xenocrates; the honour was conferred upon Xenocrates.

"If it should please God," said a father once, "to take away one of my children, I hope it will be my son Isaac," as he looked upon him as the most unpromising. That child became the truly eminent Dr. Isaac Barrow. Such was the character of Sheridan in his earliest days, that his mother regarded him as "the dullest and most hopeless of her sons." In spite of the unfavourable opinion which others had formed of these men, they rose, and so may you. Be as resolute, be as diligent, be as patient, be as persevering as they were, and success will as certainly put its seal upon your efforts as upon theirs.—Coll. Mag.

SPEECH OF D'AUBIGNE.

At the close of an eloquent speech at the opening of a College in Ireland, Dr. Merle D'Aubigne spoke as follows:

Shall I express to you a last wish? Shall I tell you of my thoughts as I journeyed towards you? I see a new era opening upon the human race. The great Anti-Christian powers are decaying. Islamism is hanging over a gulf; India begins to shake at the presence of the cross; China itself pronounces the name of Jesus Christ. The command is thus addressed to the churches to take possession of the ends of the earth in the name of the Prince of Peace. Who will respond to this appeal? Will it be the Roman Catholic Church? Let us listen for a moment to the answer of the Roman Catholic. "One is stupified," says a distinguished writer in Paris, "to see how much more powerful the Protestant nations are than the Catholic. England and the United States, both Protestant powers, have assumed, on an unexampled scale, dominion over boundless countries, all densely populated. Has, then," he says, "Catholic civilization nothing to do but go down to the grave?" He consoles himself by adding—"Catholic civilization is retreating, but it is not altered"—a poor consolation, my dear friends.

We must then look to Protestant nations for a response to the appeal for the conversion of the world. Again, who will do so among you? Shall it be Rationalists? Rationalism never sent out a single missionary. Shall traditional Christianity do it? The baggage with which it is encumbered would impede its march, while the external materialistic rites with which it is associated would render it impossible that it could be an engine of reformation. To you, then, evangelical, true, Protestant Christians—to you who submit to the two great principles of obedience and inquiry—to you all eyes must look for a response to the appeal.

THE BIBLE.

The Bible bears on its summit the hues of the highest heaven, yet it is at the same time the Bible of the poor and lowly; furnishes a staff for the aged, a pillow for the widow and the fatherless, solace for the sick, light for the dying, and balm for the sorrowing.

VALUABLE THOUGHTS.

Do not rest without success in your ministry. Success is the rule, under a living ministry; want of it is the exception.

We must have the taste of the manna in our mouth, "milk and honey" under our tongue, else we cannot tell of its sweetness.

Preaching experimentally is the life and soul of preaching. Men love sermons that come to their business and bosoms.—Job Orton.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, IN NOVEMBER, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of Londonderry.

1st ch Newburyport	$120 00

Presbytery of Albany.

1st ch Broadalbin 10; Albany 1st ch 158 62, Stephen J Rider 5=163 62	173 62

Presbytery of Mohawk.

Oneida Depot ch	9 00

Presbytery of Rochester City.

Port Byron ch	10 00

Presbytery of New York.

Madison Avenue ch 55; Rutgers st ch 103 95	158 95

Presbytery of New York 2d.

Peekskill ch	35 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

10th ch, G B Gaskill 5, Miss Hoge 10, C MacAllister 100, A B Cumming 5, Wm Agnew 5=125; Ladies' Education Society of 2d ch 75; Central ch collection in part 86 29; Juvenile Missionary Society of the 9th ch Phila 20	306 29

Presbytery of Philadelphia 2d.

Neshaminy ch	44 00

Presbytery of Northumberland.

Lewisburg ch	66 04

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Harmony ch	4 50

Presbytery of Washington.

Fourth ch Wheeling	50 00

Presbytery of Richland.

Waterford ch	1 50

Presbytery of Crawfordsville.

North Salem ch, paid Candidate	30 00

Presbytery of Peoria.

Brunswick ch 7, less discount 50 cts	6 50

Presbytery of Chicago.

Willow Creek ch 13 87, less discount 1	12 87

Presbytery of Greenbrier.

Kanawha Salines	25 00

Presbytery of West Hanover.

South Plains ch	15 00

Presbytery of Orange.

Cross Roads ch 3; Bethel ch 10; Spring Garden ch 22 50; Raleigh ch 89 50; Shiloh ch 13; Clarksville ch 57 50; Yanceyville ch 38; Hillsboro ch 30 80; Harmony ch 2; New Hope ch 6. Madison ch 12 25; Greensboro ch 55 30; Mrs Sarah H Gray 25; Mrs Letitia H Foster 2 50; Ann Smith, Legacy 32	399 35

Presbytery of Oregon.

Clatsop ch	6 50

REFUNDED.

"P"	76 25

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev W Townley, Crown Point, Ind 3; "A B," New York 1000; John Wright, Auburn, N Y 2	1005 00
	$2555 37

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Presbytery of Londonderry.

Ladies of Whitefield Circle of the First Presbyterian ch Newburyport, Mass, third annual payment for a scholarship in Carroll College, Wis	$100 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

"A B," New York	2000 00
Total,	$4655 37

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, IN NOVEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Columbus.

Truro ch	$2 60

Presbytery of Chickasaw.

Hope ch	17 00
"Bethany ch, Indiana, in part"	1 00
	$20 60

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH, PA., IN NOVEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Salem ch 12 75; East Union ch 3	$15 75

Presbytery of Beaver.

North Sewickly ch	1 00

Presbytery of Clarion.

Bethel ch	12 50

Presbytery of Washington.

Cross Creek ch in part	37 62

Presbytery of Steubenville.

1st ch Steubenville 182; Two Bridges ch 36; Wellsville ch 15 45; Gilgal ch 7	240 45
Total,	$307 32

J. S. LEECH, McALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Education. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to all the Honorary members every year.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The sum of Seventy-five dollars forms a scholarship to assist a student in the collegiate course, and the sum of One Hundred dollars in the theological course.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, New York, Dec. 13th, 1854.

India.—Letters have been received, dated at Ambala to September 20; Agra, September 20; Mynpurie, September 18; Futtehgurh, September 18; Futtehpore, September 8; Allahabad, September 18. We learn with much regret that Mrs. Orbison was considered to be in much danger from pulmonary disease unexpectedly developed, but we hope the next letters may contain more encouraging accounts. Mrs. Walsh had been compelled to visit the hills for her health. The return of Mr. Jamieson on account of his wife's health was postponed, though she was but little better. At Ambala, one of the native communicants had been suspended from church fellowship for unworthy conduct. At Mynpurie, the mission buildings had been much injured by heavy rains, requiring, in Mr. Freeman's opinion, some $300 to put them in repair. With these exceptions, the news of these letters is generally encouraging. Arrangements were in progress for opening another school at Ambala, to be supported by European friends at that station. At Agra, Mr. Scott writes, "The attendance at church is on the increase, so that the house is generally pretty well filled." Mr. Scott gives an interesting little narrative, which shows the happy influence exerted by the church and school. "A young girl from F—— was sent to our Female Seminary. While in it she connected herself with the church, having become hopefully pious. She has lately been married to a young man, who last Sunday was made a deacon of the church; and she expresses her purpose, as soon as she is settled in her new home, to commence a school for native females. She is intelligent, and much attached to the mission. Another female, a member of our congregation, has a school of about forty Catholic children, which she has carried on heretofore without any aid. Mr. Fullerton visits the school. I hope we may in time have many such schools." The Rev. Gopeenath Nundy mentions the admission of a native woman to the church at Futtehpore. Several references are made in these letters to a late Minute of the government on the subject of education. Its provisions are considered to be very liberal for India. Mr. Hay writes concerning this act—"It provides for a comprehensive system of education, for universities and common schools, which are to be open to all ranks and colours; the odious claims of caste are utterly ignored. . . Government teachers are now allowed, expressly, to give Bible instruction to any of their scholars who may wish it, out of school hours, but such instruction is not a subject of examination by the visitor appointed by government; . . . a great advance on the exclusive spirit of former educational arrangements in this country. Another liberal feature in this Minute is its provision for grants-in-aid to any public school—Christian, Hindu, or Mohammedan. There is but one condition annexed—such school must charge something for tuition. As missionary schools do not usually charge anything, their availing themselves of these grants will involve a change of policy."

Siam.—The Rev. S. Mattoon, writing on the 11th of July, says, "We are in usual health, and have nothing new to report regarding our labours or their results."

China.—Our letters are dated at Canton, September 9; Shanghai, August 18; and Ningpo, to August 1. Mrs. Happer's health, we are glad to learn, was much better, but she would remain at Macao during the winter, having the girls' school under her charge. The parents of the scholars are quite willing to have them remain at Macao. Seventeen of the boys have returned to the school in Canton; the panic among the people on account of the attack of the Insurgents having somewhat subsided. Conflicts were of almost daily occurrence between the military force of the city and the Insurgents in the neighbourhood, and the country around is spoken of as in a state of deplorable anarchy. At Shanghai, public affairs continue to be in a wretched state. The mission house near the city was much injured by the explosion of a mine laid by the Imperialists. Mr. Culbertson was still engaged in the translation of the Scriptures. We have received fuller accounts of the difficulties at Ningpo in July between the Portuguese and the Cantonese. The unexpected arrival of the United States ship "Powhattan" at Chinhai was of great service to our missionary friends. "A company of marines," Mr. Nevius writes, "and a field-piece were sent up, which with about fifty sailors remained with us till we had received satisfactory assurances from the Portuguese that they would be careful not to endanger the lives and property of Americans, and that they would give us timely notice of their movements in future. During the progress of this affair, the Portuguese endeavoured to identify themselves with us, and involve us in their difficulties; but they have not succeeded in this, and the disturbance has no doubt been overruled to teach the people the difference between foreigners of different nations, and to increase their confidence in us.

Mr. Nevius gives an interesting account of a few tracts which had been given by Dr. McCartee to two strangers in one of his audiences a few months before. One of them was the Secretary of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, living at Hang Chow, a city 300 miles from Ningpo. Soon afterwards a request came, through the Mayor of Ningpo, for more books to be sent to Hang Chow. Two of the publications sent were reprinted there, exciting much interest. Recently one of the Baptist missionaries met with a man from Hang Chow, who professed to have been converted by reading one of these reprinted tracts, and who was expected to unite with the Baptist church in Ningpo. Mr. Nevius adds, "It is probable that the Secretary desired to prove to the people that our doctrines are different from those of the Quangsi insurgents. However this may be, Christ is preached, and therein we rejoice. A field of usefulness is here opened before us as wide and promising as we could desire. In this field much seed has been already sown. We need, above all things, the blessing of God to accompany our labours." Mr. and Mrs. R. Lowrie left Hong Kong for Shanghai in the Joshua Bates, on the 6th of September.

Africa—Corisco Mission.—The Rev. J. L. Mackey and wife, of the Corisco Mission, arrived at this port on the 26th of November. Mr. Mackey's health has received benefit from the voyage, and he expects to be able after some time to return to his station. In the meanwhile, he wishes to carry some elementary works in the Benga language through the press. The health of Mrs. Mackey continues to be good. The missionaries at Corisco were all well when Mr. Mackey left the island. They were rebuilding the mission houses, and the general prospects of the Mission continued to be encouraging.

Indian Missions.—Letters have been received from the Chippewa Mission, October 31; Omaha and Otoe, to November 27; Iowa, November 9; Creek, to November 8; Choctaw, October 26. We refer to these letters chiefly to mention that they contain generally good accounts of the health and work of the missionaries. We have also received letters from the Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, Secretary, at different stages of his journey, and expect his return to the Mission House about the time this number of the Record will be published. He had been prospered on his long journey, and enjoyed the opportunity of full conference with the members of the Creek, Seminole, Chickasaw, and Choctaw Missions, besides preaching on the subject of Missions at St. Louis, New Orleans, and other places. He speaks of his visit as one of great interest to himself, as we doubt not it was to the missionaries; and it will we trust prove of much advantage to the missionary work.

A CIRCULAR LETTER TO MINISTERS.

We insert in our columns the following letter. It was sent by mail at the time of its date to each pastor and stated supply, and to the session of each vacant church, of which the post-office address was known. We regret to learn that in some cases it failed to reach the brethren to whom it was addressed. Of those who received, it, moreover, some were constrained to lay it aside for a time, intending to take it up at an early day, which the pressure of various causes may have still postponed. Its being reprinted here may be of use to them, as well as to the lay readers of the Record. The far greater part of the collections for the Board will be made in the ensuing four months. If there should be a falling off in these collections, it will be seriously embarrassing to the missionary work. But we do not yield to despondency; our faith in the self-denial and liberality of God's people is not shaken by the financial troubles of these days. Christians will remember at such a time where it is best to lay up their treasures. Some will give more, because others must give less. What we earnestly desire is a common, general effort, according to every one's ability, not only to support, but to enlarge our labours for evangelizing the nations—especially in view of the wonderful events now in progress. With such a contribution from each of our congregations, there can be no doubt that the receipts of the Board for the current year would far exceed the amount asked for in this letter.

Mission House, New York, August 24, 1854.

Rev. and Dear Sir—We address you on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Board of Foreign Missions, and desire to place before you and the congregation of which you are the minister, the following brief statements, to which we ask your kind attention. We address you frankly, as having as deep and tender an interest in the cause of Foreign Missions as the members of the Committee, or the missionaries themselves, seeing it is the common cause of Christ and his Church.

The condition of the various missions of the Board, as described in the last Annual Report, you will have been gratified to see, was in general most satisfactory and encouraging. Since the Report was prepared several months have passed, in which events have occurred both afflicting and rejoicing to those who have the interests of the missionary cause at heart. The removal by death of such devoted women as Mrs. Reid of the Choctaw Mission, and Mrs. Janvier of the Lodiana Mission; the return of such labourers as Mr. and Mrs. Wight and Mrs. Coulter, of the missions in China, and Messrs. Wilson and Williams, and Mrs. Williams, of the missions in Africa, on account of health, though some of them will be able to resume their chosen work; the loss of the mission premises by fire on the Island of Corisco, are dispensations trying to the faith of the Church. They call for humble submission to the will of God, and should lead the members of our body to consider wherefore it is that these afflictions have been sent. If our churches are led thereby to the exercise of greater dependence on the grace of God, and greater fidelity in his service, the issue of these chastisements will be happy, both to themselves and to those who are the objects of their Christian benevolence.

On the other hand, most of our missionary brethren have been permitted to go forward in their usual duties. Their preaching, instruction in schools, and employment of the press, have not been interrupted, and their labours continue to be made effectual to the salvation of some souls. A wide door and effectual is still set before them among the Indians, Africans, Hindus, Siamese, and Chinese; while some of the Jews amongst us, and many of the Romanists in foreign countries, are also brought more or less under the influence of the Gospel by means of our missions. We cannot but believe that a good and great work for God and for the salvation of vast multitudes is now commenced in these missions, and we would take every proper occasion of asking for them and for the brethren connected with them an earnest and frequent remembrance by the people of God in their prayers, both in private and in the sanctuary.

The calls of Providence for missionary labours in many countries heretofore destitute of the Gospel are truly remarkable. There is a loud call for more labourers, especially in Africa, India, and China, those main seats of heathenism and its dreadful evils; while the eye of the Church should be watchful for opportunities of sending missionaries into new fields which appear to be opening for their entrance, as in South America and Japan. The prayers of the Church should be offered with increasing importunity for more missionaries. Many more are greatly needed at this present hour. We are grateful to be able to mention, in connection with this, that a goodly number of labourers are on the point of going forth to different missions. The Rev. Messrs. Newton (returning to his field) and Barnes and their wives, the Rev. E. H. Leavitt, and two female teachers, who count it their privilege to join their parents in the missionary work, will probably be on their way to India before this letter reaches you; the Rev. M. M. Carleton and his wife expect to sail for Siam by the first good ship; the Rev. J. H. Burns, and fifteen male and female teachers and assistants, have either gone, or will go in a few weeks, if the Lord will, to labour at different stations among the Indian tribes. For these missionary friends we would ask an interest in your prayers.

In regard to financial matters, you will expect a clear statement, which may be given in a few words. The current expenses for the missions will not be less than they were last year, when they amounted to the sum of $173,185. In addition to these, a sum of $6000 will be required to repair the heavy losses sustained by fire at Corisco, and a considerable sum will be required for sending forth the new labourers. Besides, at several places enlarged efforts are called for in the existing plans, and the Board should be in possession of funds to take advantage of such new channels of influence as may be opened. It is obvious, therefore, that an aggregate sum of not less than $200,000 should be in the Treasury of the Board before the 1st of next May. Of this amount, $23,000 may be expected from the Indian School funds; $9000 from the Bible and Tract Societies, for printing the Scriptures and Religious Tracts; about $2500 from the Reformed Presbyterian Church, towards the expenses of the stations at Saharunpur and Dehra; leaving $165,500 as the sum to be raised from church and monthly concert collections, individual donations, and legacies. On the source last enumerated, that of bequests, of course no calculation can be made; nor is it safe to rely to any great extent on private donations, though in many instances these are noble gifts, and fraught with the purest piety of our communion. The main dependence of this cause must ever be on the collections of the churches, in whatever form they may be made. To this source we chiefly look for the means of carrying on the Missionary work.

Now, just at this point, dear brother, do we ask your help. There is not a single agent appointed to plead for this cause in the whole bounds of our Church. Various reasons have led to this non-employment of agents this year—one of which is the desire to co-operate in giving the fullest scope to the action of the last General Assembly on the subject of systematic benevolence. That action contemplated, as its leading feature, the responsibility of ministers and sessions in having collections duly made in their congregations. We need not enter here on the great importance of this subject, though we would respectfully mention again for consideration the plan suggested in a circular of the Committee a year ago—that of each Presbytery, in cases where it seems to be expedient, appointing one of its own members to take the oversight of the collections for this object. He could, if a man of some experience and energy, by correspondence, occasional exchanges, and fraternal influence, be of great service in strengthening the hands of his brethren in this work; and any expenses thereby incurred the Committee would cheerfully defray, as a proper charge to the account of voluntary agents. But neither on this point would we now dwell; the important fact which we are anxious to bring before your mind, dear brother, is just this—that this cause, with all its precious and momentous interests, looks to you as its main agent in the congregation over which the God of missions has placed you. We feel sure it will not look to you in vain. It is for millions of our fellow-men perishing in their sins that we ask your help. It is for a widely-extended and most important system of missionary labours, with which are connected many of our respected and beloved brethren in the ministry, and other members of our churches, who have left all for Christ, and are now living in the dark places of the earth, that we ask the sympathy and co-operation of God's people in your charge. It is for Christ himself and his blessed kingdom, which is righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost, so all-important to ourselves and to our fallen world, that we would solicit your influence with your congregation in the furtherance of this cause. And we would respectfully suggest the importance of taking as early a day as may be best to lay before them the Foreign Missions of our Church, and to ask their prayers and pecuniary offerings in aid of this work.

On behalf of the Executive Committee, we are with Christian regards, yours very truly,

William W. Phillips, Chairman.

Walter Lowrie, Secretary.

MISSIONS AMONG ROMANISTS.

LETTER OF A CORRESPONDENT IN PARIS: NOVEMBER 1, 1854.

Rev. and Dear Sir—A week ago I have undertaken a little journey for visiting and evangelizing the station of our Central Protestant Society in Normandie. A brief account of this evangelical excursion I will try give to you.

Some months ago you received from me a translation of a letter written by our agent in St. Oportune, (Eure,) after his going out from prison in Bernory. You have admired the faithfulness, the courage, and the love of this true servant of the Lord, who, imprisoned for the cause of the gospel, did not care for anything except to proclaim the grace of Christ to his fellow-prisoners. Since that time, the work of God has made great progress in the neighbourhood. One village, the name of which is Fumechon, (three miles from St. Oportune,) has been awakened by the preaching of the gospel. Three hundred of its inhabitants, and among them the most influential men, have declared their intention to embrace the Protestant faith. As a proof of their sincerity, they have begun to build, at their own expense, a chapel which will cost five thousand francs, ($1000.) All those people are simple peasants, who have no money, and who live from the fruits of their fields. The chapel is almost finished; it is strongly built, and needs only a roof. We hope it will be dedicated to the Lord next month.

We spoke at length to those people, and were surprised to find them so decided, and so advanced in the knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus. Some months ago they were all poor papists, living in darkness, knowing nothing of religion except priests and nuns. But now they have rejected all Romish superstition, and are decided to grow in the knowledge of Christ, and to walk according to his word. After a prayer, we left them full of joy and courage, and firmly resolute to hold fast their evangelical profession, and not to be turned away from the path in which they are now walking. This village of Fumechon is also a new conquest made lately from the Church of Rome.

The village of St. Oportune, notwithstanding the persecutions against its faithful evangelist, Mr. Jerémie Bois, is always persevering and growing in the true religion. When my two fellow-ministers of the gospel, Rev. L. Verner and H. Passmer, and myself arrived among them, it was quite late, (8 o'clock in the evening;) the weather was dark, rainy, and stormy; it was with the greatest difficulty that one could go out and find the way. Notwithstanding that, the chapel was soon filled; old and young, men, women, and children were present, and during two long hours they listened with the greatest attention to the preaching of the gospel, which we announced to them, all three of us, one after the other. During the threefold preaching, which, with the prayers and singing, lasted at least two hours and a half, we saw not a single eye sleeping. It is wonderful how well they sing the praise of the Lord; their teacher and his wife deserve in this respect, as well as in others, the most marked praise. In hearing this new congregation of proselytes singing hymns, you would think that it is an old Protestant church.

In Elbeny the chapel is always filled, and no room is to be found, at the time of the service. The school is containing 150 children, and there is besides an adult class of 80 persons learning to read, in order to have access to the word of God. All these people were Roman Catholics some years ago. It is an admirable, rejoicing, and wonderful work!

In L——, near M——, we learned lately that an American gentleman has founded a manufactory of Indian-rubber. He is employing 300 workmen, the most of them French Roman Catholics, but thirty of them are Americans. They live without the preaching of the gospel, and are deprived of all means of grace. Mr. H. would have a minister of the gospel for the thirty American Protestants who are in his factory, and he hopes that some other of his workmen would join them in hearing the word of God. He has offered 500 francs yearly to our Society, if we could send to him a minister. But this sum is insufficient. The expenses for the salary of a minister and the accommodation of a chapel, would be yearly at least 2500 francs; that is, $500. Do you think, dear sir, that one could find in the United States money for that purpose.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

JOURNAL OF A TOUR TO ILLOBEY AND THE RIVER MUNI, BY REV. J. L. MACKEY.

For some time we have had in view a tour to Illobey and the people living about the mouth of the Muni. The object we had in view was to preach to the people, and to extend our acquaintance among them. Only a small number of those living around Corisco bay and on the rivers emptying into it, have ever heard the gospel. The circumstances of our mission since its commencement have always been such, that no one connected with it could make visits frequently to the main land, and it has only been on such tours as we undertook, mainly for the purpose of exploration, that we have been able heretofore to proclaim the word of life at other places than on Corisco.

Around the Corisco bay, on the two islands of Illobey, and on the banks of the Muni, there are numerous small towns, any of which, except those high up the Muni, can be reached from Corisco in five or six hours' sail. At Cape St. John, the northern point of the bay, there are a few Benga towns, and at Cape Esterias, the southern point, there is a large settlement of the same tribe, half as numerous, perhaps, as the population of the island of Corisco. Among the last mentioned there is a French Roman Catholic mission. It is manned by one priest, one lay assistant, and two sisters of charity, and is a branch of the Jesuit mission in Gaboon. The land bordering on the Corisco bay and river Muni, is inhabited by as many as eight distinct tribes. Only a small part of each of these have their towns near the water; of course the main body of each tribe extends back into the country, and some of them are very much scattered and broken, so that towns and settlements of tribes, speaking different languages, are found intermingled.

June 1st, 1854.—Having made preparations to be absent from Corisco about a week, brother McQueen and I set out about 11 A. M., expecting to reach Noye, on the north-east shore of the bay, to spend the night. We sailed out round the north-west of Corisco in our mission boat, with a light but favourable breeze. About three o'clock in the afternoon we passed a few miles to the north-west of the islands of Illobey, and reached the end of our first day's journey at 4 P. M. Noye is a town belonging to the Bélengi tribe, and is situated close to the sea beach. It had never been visited by any one from our mission before. I had, however, at Corisco, formed an acquaintance with Ibappi, the head-man, and had promised to visit him. The town is small, and wretched looking in every respect, containing, when all the people are at home, not over forty or forty-five persons. We found that most of the people were now absent, far in the bush, as we were told, collecting India rubber, and would not be back during our stay.

Ibappi received us in a very friendly manner, and presented us a kid and some plantains for our table. He gave us the choice of two houses for our occupancy during our stay. The one we took, which of course we considered the best, and which was quite the largest in the town, was only fifteen feet long and twelve wide, all in one apartment. The furniture consisted of four permanent benches made along the four walls, their legs being sticks driven into the ground, the top part consisting of sticks tied across these, and covered first with split bamboo, then with mats. These serve the occupants for seats and lounges during the day, and for beds at night. Beside these permanent benches were sundry stools, cut out of solid blocks of wood. The floor had never received any preparation, and the sandy soil which composed it had by frequent trampling become loose and dry, to a depth of several inches. There was no need of windows, as the openings which time had made in the walls and roof admitted light enough, and in case of rain we feared would admit much more than light. Some pieces of bark fastened together, which stood at the side of the house during the day, were used at night to keep the goats from passing where men and women went in and out during the day. This house we chose for our lodging place during our stay, being the head-man's house, and the best in the town.

Soon after our arrival we had requested Ibappi to send to the neighbouring towns and invite the people to come to his house and hear the word of God, after dark. When our supper was over it was growing dark, and we found our town rapidly gaining people, and our house was soon packed to its utmost capacity. We understood from them that they could all hear the Benga language, though their own is essentially different. They listened attentively to the word preached in Benga, but in answering any questions asked them, they used altogether their own language; this we had some difficulty in getting interpreted, as our Corisco men did not understand Belengi very well. They seemed to be more communicative in regard to their superstitions than some of the other tribes which I have visited, perhaps because they have seen fewer white men and been less laughed at. They told us they had a name for God, Njambi, but that they had no such knowledge of his character as we had been giving them. They said they knew he was invisible. I asked them how they knew then that there was a God. After some consultation, and an apparent reluctance on the part of some of them to reply, Ibappi answered, that a tradition came down to them from their fathers, that a long time ago there was a total eclipse of the sun, so that it was quite dark during the day, and it was discovered then that there was an opening in the centre of the sky, through which a being was looking down upon the earth. This being they supposed was God. I never had heard of this tradition before, but I afterwards learned that it was believed among the Bengas, and by all the surrounding tribes. So far as I could learn from them, they had no idea of the soul surviving the body, or of anything better than annihilation at death.

The Belengi tribe is large, and is considered by the Bengas a people more skilled in war and hunting than any other tribe near them. They are numerous, but it would be difficult to make any correct estimate of their number. When we inquired of them about their number, they told us they knew all the towns, but did not know how many people they contained, and we counted while they named one hundred and twenty-seven towns. There are no doubt more than that number occupied by the tribe, but they would not average, judging from the specimens we saw, one hundred persons to a town. The whole number of the tribe may be 12,000, or between that and 15,000.

2d, Friday.—This morning we visited a neighbouring town, from which most of our hearers came last night; the name of its head-man is Ewudo. We found it a larger town, and much better built than the one in which we passed the night.

About 10 A. M. we started in our boat for the Muni. We had no wind, so that our boatmen were obliged to pull at their oars. We kept along close to the shore until we reached the northern point at the mouth of the river. The surf was breaking heavily on the beach, and we passed along outside of it, without making any attempt to land. The shore is very beautiful, and near the mouth of the river rises into bluffs of considerable height. We saw several towns belonging to the Dibwe tribe, but did not stop at any of them. We crossed the river at its mouth, which is only about a mile wide, and reached Ukáká, a cluster of towns on the south side, about noon. This is a beautiful situation, and has a population, in a circuit of half a mile, of several hundred. We had intended to spend a day here, and visit among the people, and preach to them, but we found the towns almost deserted; some were absent trading, some in the bush procuring the articles of trade, and some at their farms. We collected together a small congregation of fifteen or twenty persons, which seemed to be the greater part of those who were at home, and several of these were there from Gaboon and Corisco for purposes of trade.

After the services were over, we determined, on account of the fewness of the people at home, to ascend the river that afternoon to Botika, about fifteen miles. We were under weigh again about 3 P. M., with a favourable breeze, and our sail up the river was quite delightful. Though only about a mile wide at its mouth, the river expands into a kind of bay, four, or perhaps five miles wide, a short distance above, and it again narrows to three-fourths of a mile at Botika, the point to which we were shaping our course. The north shore is hilly, and quite picturesque; many towns are situated along near the water's edge, almost covered from the sight with the light green plantain leaves which surround and overhang all the houses. We saw the ruins of one town which was burnt here a few months ago, by a man-of-war's boat, on account of the people robbing a French vessel which was wrecked opposite their town. The south side of the river is low, and bordered with mangrove, and has neither the picturesque nor inviting look that the north side has. For more than twelve miles it is entirely destitute of inhabitants.

In about two hours' sail we reached Botika. This is the name of the south side of the river where it narrows, and there are twelve or fourteen towns scattered along an extent of two miles or more, and which collectively take the same name. The hills back of the towns rise to a height of three or four hundred feet. From the towns the islands of Illobey are in full view, and both shores of the river to its mouth, as well as those of the north branch, or Kongni, which unites with the Muni on the opposite side. The whole view is one of great beauty. The towns are not large, but contain collectively six hundred people or more. Before dark came on we visited several of them, and asked the people to come and hear us preach at night; but we did not succeed in getting a very large congregation together. There was, however, good attention given and interest manifested during the speaking; but at the conclusion, when we engaged in prayer, the women became terrified, and fled precipitately out of the house. There is always danger of this, when the people have not heard us before; we have, therefore, always been careful, as we were on the present occasion, to explain the nature of prayer before we engage in it. The people are very much afraid of enchantments and witchcraft, and in order to prevent their fears from arising, we speak to them of the duty of prayer, and the presence of God, and of his willingness to hear and answer what his people ask.

We had a much larger and more comfortable house to lodge in to-night than we had last night, and we would have had a quiet and comfortable night's rest, had it not been for a most uproarious and deafening noise, which was kept up with drumming and shouting, at a neighbouring town during the whole night. We learned on inquiry that the noise was made on account of the birth of a child a short time previous in the town, which had five fingers on each hand. The people supposed that this event portended some unusual interference of evil spirits among them, and they kept up this noise during the night to frighten them from the town.

3d, Saturday.—We concluded to return to Illobey and spend the Sabbath. As the tide was not favourable until after eight o'clock, we occupied the morning in taking a more minute survey of the Botika towns. The inhabitants belong partly to the Mbiko and partly to the Boha tribe, speaking languages which are analogous, but not the same.

This point would be the most favourable for the establishment of a station in connection with our mission on the river. Besides the population of the place, there are numerous towns on the opposite bank, which could be reached by boat or canoe in one or two hours. The distance from Corisco is not over thirty-five miles, and the passage either way can be made in seven or eight hours with the ordinary winds which prevail.

About 8 o'clock A. M. we started for Illobey, but as the wind proved unfavourable, our boatmen were compelled to pull at the oars until we passed out of the mouth of the river. After stopping a couple of hours on board a French vessel, where a dinner was kindly provided for us, we reached Illobey about four o'clock in the afternoon.

The two islands of Illobey lie directly opposite the mouth of the Muni, and about five miles from it. They are separated by a small strait of half a mile in width. The larger is three or four miles in circuit; the smaller, about one mile. There are eleven small towns on the two islands, nine of which are on the larger one. The inhabitants are all Bengas, and number perhaps four hundred persons. They have been almost clamorous for a missionary, ever since we settled on Corisco, and it seems to be a general expectation among them, that the first missionary who settles off Corisco will take up his abode among them. The importance of occupying these islands cannot for a moment be questioned. There is constant communication between them and the river. The inhabitants of these islands alone would be but a small part of the people to which access could be had; and there is no doubt of their being equally healthy with Corisco. The opposition of the people, and their expectation of soon having an American missionary among them, have prevented the French from establishing a station here. I trust it will not be long until our force is so augmented that we will be able to establish a station here, and one also at Botika.

4th, Sabbath.—We had made appointments yesterday for preaching at two places on large Illobey this morning, and also for a service at night. All were pretty well attended by both men and women, and apparent interest was manifested. They were held in the largest houses in the most centrally situated towns. I have never known an African refuse the use of his house when it was requested as a place of meeting for religious services.

At the close of the various meetings which we have held, an opportunity was given to those present to ask questions. Some of the questions which were asked on these occasions led to conversations and explanations, but most of them have been trifling and frivolous; exhibiting but little reflection or thought, and extremely little desire to know more of the great salvation which we preached. The minds of the people are very dark. They are not accustomed to reflect. Though they always give respectful attention to the word spoken, it is precious little that they seem to retain in one hearing. They need to have the word preached again and again to them. They will listen to the most startling truths respecting their sinfulness, their condition in the sight of a just and holy God, of death, the judgment, and eternity; and in personal conversation they will tell the missionary that they believe all they have heard him say; but it is amazing to find how very little they know of what has been spoken to them, and how slight the impression made upon their hearts. It becomes the missionary who would instruct them to use the greatest plainness and simplicity of speech, to exercise untiring patience and perseverance, and to depend for success entirely on the influence of God's Spirit. May his divine blessing attend the seed which has been sown during this short tour, and cause it to spring up to his own honour and glory, and to his name shall be all the praise.

5th, Monday.—Early this morning we prepared to start for our home in Corisco; making our tour shorter by about two days than we had intended when we started. This was on account of our finding so few people at home at the towns which we visited on the river.

Soon after the sun had risen we were under sail. We found the sea very rough, in consequence of the strong southerly wind which was now beginning to prevail—the harbinger of the dry season. The strong wind, and the high sea that was running, made it appear rather dangerous for our little craft. We however reached Corisco in safety about 10 A. M., finding those we had left behind all in good health.

CHINA: NINGPO MISSION.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. HENRY V. RANKIN.

1854.—On the 1st of January we were privileged in receiving to our little church another disciple, a teacher in the boys' school, named Ze. He has for some time been an applicant, and has exerted a good influence in the important post he occupies. Including Ze, seen-sang, the present number of native communicants is fourteen.

January 29th.—To-day is the Chinese New-Year. The shops are all closed, and the people give themselves up to their usual visiting, which continues several days. The quiet streets, where you meet with scarcely any but men dressed in their best apparel, indicate that it is a Sabbath; but, alas! not that of the Christian. The temples, even the smallest, are open, and incense is burning everywhere before the idols. More extensive idolatry may this day be witnessed than at any other time of the year. Hoping to do some good, I went to the most frequented temple in the city, when I realized this as I had never before. Men and women of every class and age were pressing in, bringing incense sticks, which they lighted, and then bowed before the senseless idols; and little boys, also, whose reverent conduct showed how well trained they had been from childhood in such abominations. This is not to be wondered at, when their mothers appeared to be the most devout worshippers of all. Some of the scholars who were present, seemed evidently ashamed at what they knew to be delusion, but the force of custom is too strong to be resisted. Some avoided me when attempting to speak with them on the subject, probably on that very account. I was convinced that little good could be done in such a place; though what I had witnessed made a strong impression upon my mind, and excited a deeper solicitude that the time may be hastened when these abominations shall cease. It is a melancholy fact, though accordant with all human experience, that constant contact with heathenism tends to blunt the sensibilities; and the missionary needs to be very watchful, lest he pass by with unconcern scenes which upon his first arrival greatly shocked him.

March 5th.—One of Miss Aldersey's former pupils, named Sing-a-foh, who has been recently married, was baptized to day: also the wife and only child of Lu-seen-sang, thus bringing a whole family into church membership. To the husband and father it was a joyful occasion. He has been suffering for some time under a disease which affected his mind; but during this gloomy season he did not lose his interest in religious matters, but looked forward with great pleasure to this day. On the Chinese New-Year, when offerings are so generally made to idols, he said with emphasis that he had a precious offering he was about to make to the true God—alluding to his son, whom he intended to present in the ordinance of baptism. May the rich blessing of God be sought for by his people upon this Christian family, the first instance in Ningpo when all the members have been baptized. Lu seen-sang has a defect in his eyes, one of which is blind. This affliction, he the other day remarked, was the primary means which God made use of in his conversion; for having some ten years ago heard of Dr. McCartee's skill in diseases of the eye, he had recourse to him, and thus to a more general acquaintance with foreigners, and a knowledge of the truth they preached. By agreement of the mission last month, he and Dzing Shih-neaou have been formed into a theological class under the care of two of our number, with a view to their being employed as assistants.

The month of March brought trials to me, at least, of more than ordinary nature. Our endeared associates, Mr. and Mrs. Wight, with whom we came to China, and Mrs. Coulter, with whom we came up the coast, have, with their families, been obliged to return home: the season has, moreover, been peculiarly trying, and in consequence, my own family have had more than usual physical weakness: and after many years of exemption, I have just learned that death has come, and severed fond ties that bound me to the home of my youth. Separated though he widely is from that home, the missionary can never forget the loved ones whom he has left behind. That far off home is an object of many prayers, and the subject of many refreshing thoughts, too, for we know that though we have left it, we can never be forgotten there. Yet how painfully are we reminded that one by one these beloved ones with us are passing away, and that there really is only one home, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. There may we all be gathered when our work is done!

Mr. and Mrs. Nevius reached us on the 26th of March, after a long six months' voyage. How cheering to welcome these new labourers into this vast harvest field!

Ling-yiu, the oldest and most promising of the school boys, who was baptized a year ago, has just finished his time at the school, and by action of the mission, has been taken into the theological class, and made assistant teacher, also, in the city day-school.

April 17th.—A good deal of excitement has been occasioned among us by a fracas between the Canton men and Portuguese. The latter in their coasting vessels, called lorchas, frequently come to this port. A number of these vessels are at present in the river, one (No. 18) directly in front of my house. The Canton men, who man four or five well armed junks, are in the employ of the Taou-tai, for the protection of the city in this time of general convulsion in the empire. They are pirates by profession, though in consideration of good pay, (a measure adopted in all ages by this government,) they have returned to their allegiance. In coming up the river for this purpose some time since, they could not, however, resist their natural impulse to lay hold upon a heavily loaded sugar junk, and carry off the spoil. Their vessels are lying off the Salt Gate, nearly opposite our houses; and there they seem to keep up a continual merry-making. Their leader has been made an officer of considerable rank. Day before yesterday one of them was stabbed and thrown into the river by some Portuguese belonging to lorcha No. 18, who were crossing in a ferry-boat with him. The comrades of the murdered man, upon hearing it, were highly incensed, and preparations were at once made to fire into the lorcha. Lying as they were in direct range with our house, the effect of their firing would have been disastrous to our lives and property; and in order to prevent it the American flag was raised. This step, as it afterwards appeared, had the desired effect, though evidently at the sacrifice of their revengeful feelings. On the following day, the murderers not having been, according to their demand, given up, the Canton men, to the number of a hundred, armed themselves, and rushed towards the Portuguese quarters on shore, where, upon meeting a slight resistance, they killed or badly wounded two or three men. The Portuguese consul took refuge on a small English vessel in the river. Both parties are much to blame in the matter, and they are alike obnoxious to the Ningpo people.

At Shanghai there has recently been a serious conflict between the foreigners and the imperialist army, on account of the aggressions of the latter; which resulted in the foreigners shelling their camp, and driving them off. These disturbances are a great hinderance to our work, but they doubtless add to the security of foreigners in China.

April 27th.—Accompanied Miss Aldersey to a village five miles from Ningpo, where Sing-a-san, one of her former pupils, resides. She was married a year or so ago, but has endured brutal treatment from her husband; and the visit of her kind teacher, with two of the pious girls in her school, deeply affected her. There is reason to hope that she is a child of God. Leaving them together, I went to the centre of the village, and, on invitation, sat down in a store, where I soon had a goodly number of people collected, to whom, for about two hours I conversed on religious matters. They showed me every attention, and seemed unwilling to let me go. I there met the first Albino I have seen in China.

May 7th.—In the absence of the pastor, I baptized another of Miss Aldersey's pupils, a young widow named Ne-a-tsea, who was received by the session of the church some time since, but has since been conducted away by her relatives to prevent her baptism. She returned to Miss Aldersey's house the other day, though her mother still continues a bitter opposition. Indeed it was feared that she might attend the service, and be a source of trouble to us. She was not, however. This young woman is a marked trophy of grace; being naturally possessed of a proud, stubborn spirit, which made her a very disagreeable pupil. Miss Aldersey says she had to keep her at arm's length, to have as little to do with her as possible. But her heart has been subdued by the grace of God, and her whole character seems changed. This change has taken place in Miss Aldersey's family, by whom she has been employed much of the time since she finished her course as a pupil. One on seeing her may indeed say, What hath God wrought!

From Amoy we hear of a wonderful work of grace going on, not only in the city, but in a market town fifteen miles off. Twenty or thirty have been baptized of late, and there are a number more of applicants. Among other remarkable cases of conversion were two old opium smokers—one for thirty-one years—who have entirely given up the drug. I have never before heard of a similar case. Our dear brother Doty writes us the full details, though the "Missionary Herald" will doubtless contain more than I could copy from his letter. He writes, "Read the 126th Psalm, and you will have the expression of our feelings as relates to the Lord's working among us." What a wonder-working God is ours! His promises are sure: "If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful: he cannot deny himself." The truth is thus gradually spreading from these few points along the coast. O that Christians may be stimulated with renewed faith to pray for China.

The Gospel by Mark in the colloquial has been finished at the press; and now we have the four Evangelists, with two of the Epistles, in this form. One of the clearest indications of the value of the romanized colloquial is the relish with which our converts generally receive them. Several of them have voluntarily spoken of the increased enjoyment they impart in the study of the Scriptures. Miss Aldersey has adopted the plan to send a band of her pious and more serious pupils two by two, to instruct through this medium the females in families where she is acquainted. I believe that all who use it to any extent in teaching, are every year more fully convinced of its increasing usefulness.

OUR INDIAN TRIBES.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.

We have read this document with great interest. It is too long for our columns, nor can we give a satisfactory abridgment of it. It will be found in many of the weekly newspapers, however, and we hope it will be carefully read by multitudes of the upright and thinking men of the country. It surely deserves their consideration, for it describes the relations of our government with the original inhabitants of this land—relations in which every American citizen has a personal responsibility. Especially is such a document of great interest to the Christian community, as it throws much light on the various causes which promote or hinder the evangelization of those who alone can be truly spoken of as American heathen.

This Report contains a great amount of information concerning the political condition of various tribes, with valuable notices in some cases of their moral and social state. A vast and mostly a sad procession thus passes under our view. It embraces the Six Nations in New York; the Ottawas and Chippewas in Michigan; the Stockbridge, the Oneida, and the Chippewa bands in Wisconsin; the Menominees, the Chippewas, the Winnebagoes, and the Sioux, in Minnesota; the Omahas, Otoes, Missourias, Sacs, Fox, Iowas, Kickapoos, Delawares, Shawnees, Kaskaskias, Peorias, Weas, Piankeshaws, and Miamis, in Kansas and Nebraska—with all of whom treaty arrangements were effected last year, securing the cession of nearly 15,000,000 of acres of land to the United States; the Sioux, Gros Ventres, Arickarees, Mandans, in the Upper Missouri country; the Apaches, Kioways, Osages, Pawnees—but though our list is not half completed, we must leave it unfinished. Our readers will refer to the Report itself for satisfactory details. We merely add in this place that its statements respecting the partially civilized Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, and Chickasaws, continue to be on the whole encouraging; while the Indians in Texas and in California are spoken of in more hopeful terms than in former years. A number of the Indian tribes are reported as in a starving condition—the Cheyennes, Arapahoes, and Sioux, on the Upper Missouri, on account of the rapidly diminishing supply of buffalo. Some of the smaller and half civilized tribes, west of the State of Missouri, have lost their crops, to a large extent, by reason of the drought, and will be saved from much suffering only through their annuities, which the government will wisely expend for their relief.

The fact just mentioned suggests the most gratifying feature of this document—the clear evidence which it everywhere furnishes of two things: first, that the general policy of the government of our country towards the Indians is humane; and second, that the higher executive officers entrusted with the charge of the greatly extended and important affairs of the Indian Department are men of integrity. It is well for the poor Indians that they are. Numerous and powerful are the selfish and unprincipled persons, who are watching to take every advantage of these tribes—especially of those who are receiving annuities in exchange for their lands. The Report gives an example of the conduct of some of these swindling white men—in reference to the Menominees, by which three individuals would have put upwards of $200,000 into their own pockets! We wish our space would allow the insertion of the whole story. Thanks to the vigilance and integrity of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, this scheme of villany was frustrated. In connection with this, we quote the following extract from the Report, which we sincerely trust will receive, as it surely deserves, the favourable consideration of our National Councils:

"This transaction among the Menominees has not been referred to as an isolated case, but as a sample of a class, and illustrative of the outrageous and iniquitous attempts of unscrupulous white men to enrich themselves out of the funds of the Indians. The pecuniary losses to the latter comprise only a minor portion of the injurious concomitants and results of such attempts. The Indians—particularly the chiefs and leading men—are frequently bribed and otherwise corrupted and demoralized, in order to obtain their assent to being defrauded, while the agents and others connected with the Indian service do not always escape the prevailing contamination. Among the Menominees the fatal tendency and effect of such occurrences may be seen in the intemperate and demoralized habits and condition of Osh-Kosh, principal chief, and many others of the tribe.

"But the evil is a general and growing one, formidable in its combinations and alarming in its results, and therefore requiring the speedy application of the most radical and effectual remedy. All executory contracts of every kind and description, made by Indian tribes or bands, with claim agents, attorneys, traders, or other persons, should be declared by law null and void, and an agent, interpreter, or other person, employed in, or in any way connected with the Indian service, guilty of participation in transactions of the kind referred to, should be instantly dismissed and expelled from the Indian country; and all such attempts to injure and defraud the Indians, by whomsoever made or participated in, should be penal offences, punishable by fine and imprisonment. We have now penal laws to protect the Indians in the secure and unmolested possession of their lands, and also from demoralization by the introduction of liquor into their country; and the obligation is equally strong to protect them in a similar manner from the wrongs and injuries of such attempts to obtain possession of their funds.

"In this connection I deem it appropriate to respectfully remark, that where, as is sometimes the case, laws are passed providing for the payment of large sums of money for alleged obligations arising in this branch of the public service, without the department having an opportunity of examining into, or passing upon, the accounts and other evidences of such claims, the effect is to deprive it of that salutary control over the important interests committed to its charge, which is so necessary to a successful administration of its affairs; and it cannot, and should not, in such cases, be held responsible for the consequences."

The difficulties which hinder the civilization of the Indians, are numerous and discouraging. Their living in the wilderness, their aversion to labour, their debased condition—which is wonderful in a race capable of such noble character as is sometimes displayed, their wars with neighbouring tribes, their proneness to fall victims to the whiskey trader, their intercourse with other unprincipled white and negro people, and latterly their unsettled state in many tribes, from the streams of emigrants passing through their old hunting-grounds and the influx of new settlers, with their "pre-emption claims," and their high-sounding names of great cities—on paper. Amongst these, we regret to find one projected under circumstances by no means creditable to the parties concerned in it. Sure we are, that but very few, we hope no others, of the officers of our army, could have acted in the way here described. And we are glad to see that these lawless proceedings meet with no favour.

"As heretofore reported to you, an association of persons has undertaken to appropriate to their own use a portion of the land ceded by the Delawares, fronting on the Missouri river, and south of Fort Leavenworth, have laid out a city thereon, and actually had a public sale of the lots of the same on the 9th and 10th of October last. These unlawful proceedings have not only taken place under the eyes of the military officers stationed at the fort, but two of them are said to be members of the association, and have been active agents in this discreditable business. Encouraged by these proceedings, and prompted by those engaged in them, other persons have gone on other portions of the tract ceded by the Delawares in trust to the United States, and pretend to have made, and are now making such "claims" as they assert will vest in them the lawful right to enter the land at the minimum price under the pre-emption law of July 22, 1854.

"It is well understood that these parties can acquire no title to the lands thus "claimed." They must be sold at public sale to the highest bidder, and the stipulations of the treaty complied with in good faith; and the government should at once interpose its authority, and expel all who are trespassing on the Delaware cession. The effect has already been injurious to the peace of the Delawares, and it is due to them that such prompt and unmistakable action be had as will assure them that the United States will keep its faith. The Indians should, under no circumstances, be permitted to become dispirited, or to lose confidence in the public authorities; for if they do, all efforts to civilize them or to improve their condition, must be unavailing. Procrastination or delay in this case will induce others to trespass on the similar cessions made by the Iowas and Kaskaskias and others, if not upon the homes reserved by these and other Indians."

This is one of the discouraging things in the condition of the Indians—their being thus "pushed out of the way," in defiance of right, by selfish men, whose only argument is—they are the stronger. But this too shall have an end. And the case of these poor children of the forest, these true natives of the country, must not be considered hopeless. Striking examples of the civilization of some tribes, through Christian agency, should rebuke our want of faith in the elevation of other tribes. The gospel has lost none of its power to civilize the savage; and the kind Providence that often precedes the gospel is at work, as we confidently hope, for the good of these poor remnants of a once powerful race. It will cheer all good men to read the just and humane sentiments expressed in this Report—a document laid before our national Congress, with the approbation of the Secretary of the Interior, and under the sanction of our Chief Magistrate. In illustration of this, we make room for another extract, referring to the condition of the Indians in Kansas:

"In view of the facts above stated, I am constrained to submit a few suggestions in relation to the emigrated tribes in Kansas Territory, who, by the policy of the government, adopted more than thirty years ago, and reluctantly acquiesced in by them, were removed to and became inhabitants of the country now embraced in this territory. Already many of them have ceded, and it is expected that others will cede, the larger portion of their lands to the United States for the use and occupation of our citizens. The faith of the nation was pledged in the most solemn form before these tribes removed to the region west of the Mississippi, that they should have the undisputed possession and control of the country, and that the tracts assigned to them therein should be their permanent homes. It was called the "Indian Territory," and the intercourse act made it unlawful for white men to go into it, except on a license obtained, and for special purposes; and, in this secluded home, it was believed the efforts of the government and the philanthropist to civilize the red man, would be more successful than ever before. Such was not the case, however. Our population advanced rapidly to the line which was to be the barrier, and with the emigration consequent upon our acquisitions from Mexico, and the organization of our new Territories, necessarily subjected the Indians to that kind of contact with the whites which was sure to entail on them the vices, while deprived of the good influences of civilization.

"In the recent negotiations for their lands, the Indians dwelt upon the former pledges and promises made to them, and were averse, generally, to the surrender of any portion of their country. They said that they were to have the land "as long as grass grew or water run," and they feared the result if they should consent to yield any part of their possessions. When they did consent to sell, it was only on the condition that each tribe should retain a portion of their tract as a permanent home. All were unitedly and firmly opposed to another removal. So fixed and settled was this idea, that propositions clearly for their interest were rejected by them.

"The residences of the tribes who have recently ceded their lands should, therefore, be considered (subject in a few cases to a contraction of limits) as permanently fixed. Already the white population is occupying the lands between and adjacent to the Indian Reservation, and even going west of and beyond them; and at no distant day all the country immediately to the west of the reserves, which is worth occupying, will have been taken up; and then the current of population, until within a few years flowing only from the East, will come sweeping like an avalanche from the Pacific coast, almost overwhelming the indigenous Indians in its approaches. It is therefore in my judgment clear, beyond doubt or question, that the emigrated tribes in Kansas Territory are permanently there—there to be thoroughly civilized, and to become a constituent portion of the population, or there to be destroyed and exterminated. What a spectacle for the view of the statesman, philanthropist, Christian!—a subject for the most profound consideration and reflection. With reservations dotting the eastern portion of the territory, there they stand, the representatives and remnants of tribes once as powerful and dreaded as they are now weak and dispirited. By alternate persuasion and force, some of these tribes have been removed step by step, from mountain to valley, and from river to plain, until they have been pushed half way across the continent. They can go no further; on the ground they now occupy, the crisis must be met, and their future fate determined. Among them may be found the educated, civilized, and converted Indian, the benighted and inveterate heathen, and every intermediate grade. But there they are, and as they are, with outstanding obligations, in their behalf, of the most solemn and imperative character, voluntarily assumed by the government. Their condition is a critical one; such as to entitle them not only to the justice of the government, but to the most profound sympathy of the people. Extermination may be their fate, but not of necessity. By a union of good influences and proper effort, I believe they may and will be saved, and their complete civilization effected.

"Be that as it may, however, the duty of the government is, in my opinion, plain. It should fulfil, with the greatest promptness and fidelity, every treaty stipulation with these Indians; frown down, at the first dawning, any and every attempt to corrupt them; see that their ample annuities are directed faithfully to their education and improvement, and not made the means of their destruction; incessantly resist the efforts of the selfish and heartless men, who, by specious plans and devices, for their own gain, may seek to distract and divide them; require diligence, energy, and integrity, in the administration of their affairs, by the agents who may be entrusted with their interests and welfare; and visit the severest penalties of the law on all who may violate its salutary provisions in relation to them. Let these things be done, the co-operation of the civil officers, magistrates, and good citizens of the territory secured, and the most active efforts of the friends of the benevolent institutions now existing among them brought into exercise for their moral culture, and by harmonious and constant effort and action, a change may, and it is believed will, be brought about, and Kansas become distinguished as a land in which the complete and thorough civilization of the red man was worked out and accomplished."

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN NOVEMBER, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Albany—Albany 2d ch 293 43

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Genesse River—Wyoming ch 45; Caledonia ch, Duncan McPherson 12 50. Pby of Rochester City—East Bethany ch 18; Rochester 3d ch, Bible class in Sab sch to ed Cyrns in Northern India 22. Pby of Michigan—Plymouth 1st ch 13; Orion and Indepedence chs 14 124 50

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Bedford—Croton Falls ch mo con 9; Florida ch mo con 12; Bedford ch Sab sch ann thank-offering 24; Port Chester ch, of which 2 15 from Edward Sniffin (a little boy) 26 15. Pby of Long Island—Middletown ch to con Rev. F. T. DRAKE 1 m 42. Pby of New York—Ainslie st ch, Williamsburg, 13 12; Wallabout ch mo con 8 14; Forty-second st ch mo con 17; Yorkville ch mo con 5 78; Madison Avenue ch mo con 20; Bridgeport ch, Conn, ten mos con colls 68 58; New York First ch ann col addl 277, mo con 143 10; Chelsea ch mo con 27 50; Rutger street ch mo con colls 90 01; Brooklyn 1st ch mo con 6 37; Grand street ch, "a member" 25; Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth street ch mo con, October and November 53 24. 2d Pby of New York—Sing Sing ch, M C W 3; Scotch ch mo con, September and October 155, H A Kerr 10 1035 99

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Westfield 1st ch 20; Plainfield ch 18 60, Miss Jane Van Der Veer for scholarship at Allahabad 12, Sab sch for Bond Scholarship 6. Pby of New Brunswick—Bound Brook ch mo con 10; New Brunswick 2d ch 53, "———" a friend 200. Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch Sab sch to ed John M Sherrerd at Spencer Academy 10 329 60

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch mo con 63 51, Moyamensing Sab sch to ed Achung at Canton 25; Central ch James Bayles 50; Sixth ch mo con colls 175 50. 2d Pby of Philadelphia—Neshaminy ch 55. Pby of Baltimore—Govanne Chapel, thanksgiving offering 10. Pby of Carlisle—Monaghan ch 14 75; Paxton ch 41 50; Hagerstown ch 36 70; Silver Spring ch 150, Rev Geo Morris 100; Cumberland ch 60 47. Pby of Huntingdon—Pine Grove ch, of which 29 from sewing soc 51; Spruce Creek 2d ch 23; Hollidaysburg ch Ladies to ed David McKinney 25. Pby of Northumberland—Bloomsburgg ch addl 32, fem miss soc to con Mrs. SARAH JANE MILLER of Turbitsville, Pa, 1 m 36 50. Pby of Eastern Shore—Monokin ch 5 953 63

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Harmony ch 4 50; Harrisville ch 10 51; Congruity ch 20; Indiana ch bal to con Rev A MCELWAINE 1 d 53 65. Pby of Ohio—Miller's Run ch 10; Bethany ch 45 78; Pby of Allegheny—Middlesex ch, Jno Anderson 1 50, Ladies miss soc 6 25; Concord ch 31 31; Pleasant Valley ch 9; Gravel Run ch 5. Pby of Beaver—North Sewickley ch 15 30. Pby of Clarion—Brookville ch Sab sch 8; Richland ch Sab sch 6 12 226 92

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Cross Creek ch 64 75; Mount Prospect ch Sab sch 10; Weeling 4th ch 50. Pby of Steubenville—Still Fork ch 5; Steubenville 2d ch 21 50. Pby of St. Clairsville—Crab Apple ch Sab sch ann coll 12. Pby of New Lisbon—Long Run ch 22 35 185 60

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Circleville ch, of which 2 33 from Sab sch 24 65. Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville, O, Robert Winter. Pby of Richland—Frederick ch, of which 5 from purse of Mrs Elizabeth Wallace, deceased 62 80, less one spurious dollar, bal to con R B BROWN 1 m, and to con E B HILLIS 1 m; Ashland ch in part 37; Waterford ch in part 6 20 149 65

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—West Union ch 12. Pby of Cincinnati—Seventh ch Sab sch quarterly coll 23 53; Bethel ch 9 23. Pby of Oxford—Harrison ch 15. Pby of Findlay—Truro ch 3 30 63 06

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison—Hanover ch mo con 5 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Synodical collection 15 57

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Des Moines—Fairfield ch 5 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch mo con 22 33; Second ch mo con 10 45; Mulberry ch 1; Shelbyville ch mo con 20. Pby of Muhlenburg—Greenville ch 5. Pby of Transylvania—Pisgah ch, Rev J C Barnes, D D 1; Danville, Ky, S B C 10; ———, Ky, Elizabeth Scott to ed girl at Wapanucka 5. Pby of Ebenezer—Maysville ch 80, Sab sch for Martha Ryan scholarship 25 179 78

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Lexington—Waynesburgh, Va, Daniel Fishburne and family and others 26 75

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Ovange—Cross Roads ch 3; Bethlehem ch 18; Buffaloe ch 15; Milch 72 70; Chapel Hill ch 52 10; Harmony ch 2; Madison ch 25 37; Bethesda ch 7; Clarkesville ch 76; Spring Garden ch 18; Shiloh ch 20; Hawfield's ch 14 50; Raleigh ch 172; Yancyville ch 39 33; Mrs Sarah H Gray 25, Mrs Letitia H Foster 2 50, Mrs Jiggetts 5 567 50

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.—Pby of Tuscumbia—Union Spring ch 5; Courtland ch 1 42 6 42

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—Agricola 100. Pby of South Carolina—Rock ch, of which 3 25 from coloured members 66 03; Rocky River ch 12, J B Strickland deceased 20, Ladies sewing soc 3 90; Midway ch 5; Little River (Abb) 5; Bethia ch 6 50, Mrs M Simpson 2, Mrs Donah 1; Nazareth ch 20 35; Hopewell ch (Keo) 86 35; Providence ch 25; Mount Bethel ch 15 25; Laurens C H ch 15 35; North Pacolet ch 3 10; Antioch ch 5 60; Mount Zion ch 1; Broadway ch 3; Hopewell ch 5; Lebanon ch 22 50, Mrs Reid 5; Carmel ch 5; Pickens, C H, Rev W W McWhorter 3; Spartenburg C H ch 17 76, Mrs Boyd 1; Gilder's Creek ch 14 25; Warrior's Creek ch 3; Upper Long Cane ch 105 55; Anderson ch 3; Mount Calvary ch 6 20; Good Hope ch 25 40; Greenville ch 23 63; Friendship ch 13, Mrs M Simpson 2, a lady 1; Little River ch 7; Liberty Spring ch 15 30; Little Mountain ch, Greenwood ladies sewing soc 10; Aveleigh ch 12; Willington ch mo con 20. Pby of Bethel—Bullock's Creek ch 10; Yorkville ch Sab sch 4; Allison Creek ch 9; Shiloh ch 7; Fair Forest ch 12. Pby of Harmony—Camden ch 93 69; Mount Zion ch 8; Concord ch 7. Pby of Charleston—Charleston 2d ch mo con colls 64 90; Moore fund for African Missions 44; Wilton ch mo con colls 38 50; James' Island ch mo con colls 40, Ladies sewing soc 31, Rev J Douglass 40; Columbia 1st ch 49 11; Anson street ch 47 1224 22

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Burke and Bath fem for mission soc for Agra Mission 32; Juv miss soc of Richmond Bath 23; anonymous 5. Pby of Georgia—Jonesville ch mo con 14 62; Flemington ch mo con colls 23 38; Hinesville ch, two ladies 10; Savannah ch mo con colls 73 32, Juv miss soc 11 46. Pby of Hopewell—Augusta ch ann coll 254 50, mo con colls 147 80, fem miss soc 60; Milledgeville ch mo con colls 47 63; Lexington ch mo con colls 40 05; Mt Zion ch mo con 14 50; Clarkesville ch mo con colls 28 15. Pby of Flint River—Newman ch 41 55, Ladies benev soc 5 80, family of Rev J Y Alexander 5, Miss Mary Ann Alexander to ed J Y Alexander 5; Atlanta ch 10; Emmau's ch 10; Zebulon ch 3; Greenville ch 4; Fairview ch 10; Americus ch 10 70; Mt Tabor ch 14 88, Rev J R McCartee 5; Alcovia ch 3 65; Muscogee ch 17; Long Cane ch 5 50; Ephesus ch 15 05; Ebenezer ch 5; Pachitla ch 35; Columbus ch 181 84; Smyrna ch 6; Philadelphia ch 5; Fellowship ch 3 50; Griffin ch 30; Bethany ch 30; La grange ch 33 15. Pby of Cherokee—Rome ch 85; Sardis ch 5; Dahlonega ch 5 55; Roswell ch 76 45; Marietta ch 51; Mars Hill ch 10 1514 03

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.—Pby of Talladega—New Harmony ch 15; Mt Pisgah ch 8; Hatchet Creek ch 10; Mardisville ch 17 50 00

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Mississippi—Port Gibson ch 5 00

SYNOD OF TEXAS.—Pby of Brazos—Columbia ch Sab sch for Conoley Sholarship at Lodiana 7 50

SYNOD OF CALIFORNIA.—Pby of Oregon—Clatsop ch 11 30

Total from churches, $6,980 45

LEGACIES.—"———" Ga, Bequest of Miss Isabella McRee, deceased, 50; Washington Co, Pa, Legacy in part of John Gilcrest, deceased, 400; Mercersburgh, Pa, Legacy of Margaret Morris, deceased, 47 50; York, S C, Estate of John Blair, deceased, 103; Mechanicsburgh, Pa, Legacy of Margaret McCormick 100; Cold Spring, O, Legacy of Mrs. Mary Hannah 10 710 50

SEMINARIES.—Oglethorpe Univ Ga Miss Asso for sup of Hulassi Roy 30; Princeton, N J, Theo Sem Miss Bible and Tr Soc 70 100 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—N Y Asso Ref Pres ch Twenty-eighth street for China and to con their Pastor, Rev ALEXANDER CLEMENTS 1 m 30; Adams Mills, O, Mrs Mary Smith 5; Philad'a, Pa, E F Backus 250; An Old Presbyterian 25; Auburn, N Y, John Wright 5; L A S 2 50; Bethlehem, Pa, General R S Brown 5; A friend of Missions in Indiana 12 64 335 14

Total receipts in November, $8126 09

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—Amount previously ackow'ed, $9801 73
Newnan ch, Ga, fem benev soc 10; Neshaminy ch, Pa, 13; Clatsop ch, Oregon, Sylvanus Condit 5 28 00 $9829 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS IN CLOTHING, &C.—Ladies of Bennington ch, Mich, one box clothing for Chickasaw Mission; Ladies of Clarksville ch, Pa, one box clothing for Chippewa and Ottowa Mission at Grand Traverse, Mich, 39 50; Miss Asso of Hopewell ch, Pa, one box clothing 63 32; Fem Miss Asso of Coitsville ch, Pa, one box clothing 53 56; Fem Miss soc Pulaski ch, Pa, one box clothing 60; Ladies of Plainfield ch, N J, three quilts for Spencer Academy; Sab sch children of 1st Asso Ref Pres ch, Philadelphia, one package of clothing for Elizabeth Dales and Maria Lansing at Wapanucka; Ladies of Lancaster ch, O, one box of clothing 54 48

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, JR. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. WILLIAM E. SCHENCK, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. WINTHROP SARGENT, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. JOSEPH P. ENGLES, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. ENGLES, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. MITCHELL, M.D. Treasurer.

THE COLPORTAGE FUND.

Since the issue of the circular contained in the Record for December, respecting the condition and necessities of this fund, some very cheering and substantial responses have been made thereto. Still these are very far from being as general as we could wish, or as the state of the case demands. We venture, therefore, again to invite the attention of pastors and churches to the following simple statement of facts.

1. The Board has since the first day of April last had a considerably larger number of colporteurs in the field, than ever before in a corresponding portion of the year.

2. Applicants are every week coming forward to seek for commissions as colporteurs, while pastors, Presbyteries, and Synods, far and near, are earnestly soliciting the appointment of colporteurs for their various localities.

3. The field for such labours is rapidly increasing in extent.

4. Our colporteurs are receiving not only a cordial welcome from their fellow-men, but manifest approbation, co-operation, and success from the Holy Spirit.

5. Despite all the efforts of the Board, a deficiency of some $6000 has occurred in its colportage fund, which arrearages are now in imminent danger of being increased, owing to the hardness of the times, and the diminution of the collections in some of our larger and wealthier churches.

Thus far the Board has gone forward in faith to appoint every applicant for a commission, who seemed to them to possess the right spirit and qualifications, or who presented satisfactory testimonials. We shall continue to do so until the contrary becomes indisputably the course of duty. Yet we cannot help sometimes feeling a painful apprehension that we may be compelled, unless the churches shall come up more generally to our help, to limit, if not to lessen the number of these faithful, devoted, and efficient labourers in the Lord's vineyard.

Will not our brethren in the ministry, and all who love the Lord Jesus Christ and his cause, consider seriously these facts, and then each one inquire solemnly, Is there not something I can do towards driving away all danger of so injurious and painful a necessity?

CONTRIBUTING CHURCHES.

It is proposed to append to the next Annual Report of the Board of Publication a list of the churches, with the sum contributed to the Board by each one of them. In order that we may make the list as complete as possible, and thus give to the Church a full and fair exhibit of what she is doing in this department of Christian effort, we would earnestly request all Synodical and Presbyterial Committees on Colportage to send us in good season, lists of all contributions which may have been paid into their hands. We also earnestly request the pastors and sessions of churches which may yet take collections for the Board, to forward them to the Treasury as soon afterwards as practicable.

It will be borne in mind that the financial year of this Board closes on the 31st day of March, and all contributions to be credited in this year must be received by that day.

THE DONATION FUND.

A number of pious persons in different parts of the Presbyterian Church have for years past been accustomed to deposit in the treasury of the Board various sums of money, to be used in making donations of its publications, wherever, in the judgment of the Board, such donations might be needed, and would promise to be useful. During the past year, the Board was in this way enabled to give away its publications to the value of nearly two thousand five hundred dollars. These grants were made as follows:

To Sabbath-Schools,	2,535	volumes.
" Naval and Military Stations and to Ships of War,	142	"
" Humane Institutions,	60	"
" Literary and Theological Institutions,	226	"
" Ministers,	850	"
" Feeble churches,	1,376	"
" Individuals for Gratuitous Distribution,	1,328	"
Total number of volumes given away,	6,517

Besides this, there were also given 381,032 pages of tracts.

We greatly regret to say that this Donation Fund also is now entirely exhausted. Meanwhile, however, the Board have continued to make some small grants, in anticipation of contributions to the fund, until it is now overdrawn about $150. We trust that a bare statement of the fact is all that is necessary to call forth assistance in this direction. How could a Christian more usefully bestow a portion of what he wished to devote to the spread of the truth, and to gladdening the souls of his needy fellowmen?

In order that our readers may see something of the nature of the calls for aid, and of the grants made from this fund, we append a single specimen.

BOOKS ASKED FOR LIBERIA.

An appeal has just been received for a grant of books and Sabbath-school Visitors for Liberia. The writer is a young coloured man who has been for the greater part of two years a pupil in the "Alexander High School." He returned to this country for the purpose of taking his mother and her family back with him to the land of his adoption. He says:

"I write to acquaint you with the wants of our Sabbath-school in Monrovia, together with other wants. In our Sabbath-school we have a great many children, and do not get a Sabbath-school paper from any source. Among one dozen children we cannot raise one dozen hymn books. These are some of our wants. As for other books, we have none, except the Bibles belonging to the High School. Dear sir, will you not be so kind as to do something for us? If you can and will secure for us a few hymn books, I beg that you will forward them. If your kindness will send us the Sabbath-school Visitor, or any other paper, please direct to the Presbyterian Sabbath-school, Monrovia. May God incline the hearts of his people to centre more of their efforts in Liberia, for she is destined, under God, to civilize and christianize the whole continent of Africa."

In answer, the Board has sent a box of Sabbath-school books, including hymn books, and copies of the Sabbath-school Visitor. Should they safely reach their destination, they will, we humbly trust, carry light to many minds, and joy to many hearts.

THE SABBATH-SCHOOL VISITOR.

The Sabbath-school Visitor is now entered upon a new volume, but it is not too late for new subscribers to send in their names. The popularity and success of this little paper has been astonishing. We deeply regret to see, however, that its subscription list has not been increasing, as it should have been, within the last year. In all that ought to commend such a paper to the notice and patronage of Presbyterian Christians, it is admirable and excellent. It is edited with care, fidelity, and ability. In typography and pictorial illustrations it is highly attractive. In religious instruction and sentiment, it is rich and scriptural, as well as highly interesting. And the whole tone of the paper is well adapted to aid parents, Sabbath-school teachers, and pastors, in forming the minds of children to a correct, enlarged, generous, and spiritual type of religion, in which they shall be firmly attached to their own Presbyterian Church, without bigotry or illiberality towards any who love the Lord Jesus, whatever may be their name or connection.

We submit the question to the consideration of pastors, elders, and Sabbath-school superintendents and teachers—Can you not now, in the beginning of the year, obtain a list of new subscribers among your youthful charges, and send it to us soon?

THE SOUTHERN SYNODS.

We are much gratified to hear of increasing attachment and confidence manifested in regard to the Board of Publication by the several Synods of the Southern States. The Rev. Washington Baird, who has for some time been labouring as its agent in those States, has recently attended meetings of the Synods of North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia. He was received with great kindness by each of these bodies; his expositions of the plans, the efforts, and the necessities of the Board, were listened to with marked interest; and discussions of considerable length, but of most friendly tone, occurred thereon. Resolutions were adopted in each of the three Synods, urging the churches and pastors within their bounds to co-operate with the Board in promoting the great ends of its formation. In a letter recently received, Mr. Baird says: "The Board and its operations certainly were never held in so high estimation as they are at present, in all the fields I have yet passed over." This intelligence from our agent is truly delightful and encouraging. As our brethren of the Southern Synods feel thus cordial, and have expressed this feeling in their united resolutions, we commend to their kind attention the statement contained in this number of the Record respecting our Colportage Fund, and trust that in this our time of need they will, as soon as practicable, embody and forward to our treasury a yet more substantial evidence of their lively interest in our operations and necessities.

FAVOURABLE NOTICE OF THE BOARD.

We extract the following from the "Reform Banner," published in Hamilton, Canada West.

PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, Philadelphia.—This Board has been in existence some seventeen years. Its sixteenth Report has been handed to us by Mr. Caldwell, the Board's colporteur. The perusal of this Report has deepened our hitherto favourable impression of the character and usefulness of the Board. We regard it as one of the great bulwarks of Christianity in the United States. The ceaseless torrents of German and French literature which have been inundating this country during the last quarter of a century, rendered it imperatively necessary on the part of the Christian community to adopt such measures as might effectually arrest, if not destroy the pestilent influence of such productions. It is plain that the object could not be successfully accomplished by any united effort on the part of all the Evangelical Churches, while each denomination acting separately and for itself, and issuing a religious literature which every thinking man within its pale could honestly endorse, might give its weight in favour of the great cause of truth, and the general tone of religious sentiment, in all the Churches, would by such means tell powerfully against the growing power of atheism and infidelity.

The efforts put forth in this way by the Presbyterian Body in the United States have been eminently successful.

The style of books issued by the Board whose Report is before us, is such as to be in eminent use in the domestic, Sabbath-school, and Congregational library.

The Board is exclusively under the control of the Old-school Assembly, so that many of their issues are Scottish reprints, whose orthodoxy is beyond all suspicion.

OUR COLPORTEURS NOT MERELY BOOK PEDLERS.

We fear that those who are visited by our colporteurs sometimes entertain the notion that they are sent out merely to sell books. It is possible that even some ministers of the gospel may have fallen into this mistake. It is also possible that some of our colporteurs may have so performed their mission as to excite or confirm this mistaken view. We would be sorry indeed to have this idea extensively entertained, for nothing can be more contrary to the truth. We are indeed anxious to have our colporteurs sell as many books as possible, for we fully believe that in general a book purchased will be more carefully read and preserved than one that has been received as a gift. Besides, every book sold procures the means for sending forth another. Nevertheless, our colporteurs are all fully authorized to give away a volume here and there, wherever, in their judgment, it is important for them to do so. They are also invariably enjoined never to forget that they go forth for the great object of disseminating the truths drawn from God's word. They are taught that the great and primary object of their mission is, to bring that truth, by word of mouth as well as by the printed page, into contact with as many immortal souls as possible. In order that this point may be clearly set before the entire Church, we subjoin an extract from our printed "Instructions for Colporteurs," a copy of which is placed for his guidance in the hands of every colporteur appointed by the Board of Publication, before he begins his work:

In going out as a colporteur, you are not to regard yourself as a mere vender of books. This, it is true, is an important part of your work, and these books, it is hoped, will do great good long after your labours are over; but you must recollect that few persons enjoy such access to the people at their own homes and individually, and with such themes for profitable conversation, as are afforded you; and you should not fail to improve them, so that your visits may be, with the divine blessing, a source of comfort and encouragement to the people of God, and the means of unspeakable good to those in their sins. Indeed, some of the most venerable and judicious men in our Church, regard the missionary aspect of this work as its most influential one; and certainly none can tell the good you may accomplish in going from house to house, talking and praying with the people, especially when you leave a book or tract to preach when you are gone.

In destitute neighbourhoods, it might sometimes be practicable to assemble the people at a schoolhouse or some other public place, and read to them from some one of the most practical books. Great good was done in this way in the days of the first Presbyterians in Virginia, and great good is now doing in this way by the Bible readers of Ireland.

The following, taken from the same "Instructions," will also show the temper and spirit with which the Board is anxious to have all its colporteurs engage in this department of labour:

In a work requiring you to go from house to house, and to encounter almost every variety of character, great prudence, patience, and perseverance will be necessary. Industry and energy are also indispensable; above all, however, a pious, humble heart, filled with a love for God's service, and a sense of dependence on his grace, and accustomed constantly to seek from him wisdom and strength, is the most important qualification, in order to comfort and success in this work. With this you may hope for great good as the result of your labours; good to others and good to yourself; good to your own particular church and to the world at large; good which you may both see and rejoice in on earth, and good you may never know on earth, but which shall fill your heart with everlasting joy, in the world to come. The colporteur enterprise constitutes one of the most important agencies of the day, and in this great country, and whilst the wicked one is so industrious in disseminating evil, all the diligence you can give will be needed, and no effort should be spared, that you may show yourself "a workman who needeth not to be ashamed."

From these extracts all can judge of the aims and wishes of the Board in this matter, and will see that if any impression has been made in any quarter that our colporteurs were regarded by the Board as merely venders of books, or that they were to regard themselves as such, this impression is entirely erroneous.

As a body, we believe our present corps of colporteurs to be an humble, devoted, assiduous, unwearied set of men, whose hearts are full of love for their perishing fellow-men, and whose minds are intent on bringing to them the words of eternal life. They are commissioned only upon what is deemed satisfactory evidence of their possessing this spirit, as well as other needful qualifications. Among so great a number, many of whom are accepted on the recommendation of pastors or of Presbyteries at a distance, it is of course impossible to avoid occasional false estimates, and consequent disappointments. These are, however, we rejoice to say, of comparatively rare occurrence, and whenever the Board becomes aware of the unfitness of any man for this service, remedial measures are always promptly adopted.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

Fear not, and Rest in Christ. Presbyterian Board of Publication. Philadelphia. 32mo, pp. 64. Price 5, 10, and 15 cents.

This little volume consists of two tracts, each of which is an admirable accompaniment for the other. "Fear not," the first of these, is fervent, simple, and affectionate in its endeavours to remove the awakened soul's distrust of God, by opposing His promises to all its timorous objections. The other, "Rest in Christ," is a similar attempt to confirm the soul in a believing repose upon the Lamb of God. Together they will go forth, we trust, to carry light, and hope, and peace, to many a trembling but repenting seeker after life eternal.

The Youth's Casket of Gems and Pearls, selected and arranged by the Editor. Philadelphia, Presbyterian Board of Publication. 16mo, square, pp. 127. Price 25 and 30 cents.

The Child's Cabinet of things both rare and useful, collected and arranged by the Editor. 16mo, square, pp. 128. Price 25 and 30 cents.

These are a couple of little volumes which are destined, unless we are greatly mistaken, to be very popular with the young people, for whom they were designed. They are composed of short and interesting tales and sketches, interspersed with an occasional piece of poetry, and illustrated each with a number of attractive pictures. Each piece will be found to have, not only its interest, but its instruction and its religious profit for the reader. The number of books on the Board's catalogue adapted to the use of children and youth is rapidly increasing.

A Warning Cry from Niagara. By the author of "Come to Jesus," "It is I," &c. Philadelphia, Presbyterian Board of Publication. 16mo, pp. 42. Price 10 cents.

Two years ago a man was one morning discovered on a stump in the very midst of the roaring rapids of Niagara, and but a few yards above the mighty plunge of the river. An immense concourse soon gathered on the banks of the river and the bridge above, and all day watched with intense anxiety the almost superhuman exertions put forth for his rescue. The author of this little volume has seized upon this thrilling incident, and in a highly skilful and impressive manner has used it to illustrate the awful danger of the unconverted sinner, and the power and love of the divine Deliverer. The book cannot fail to do good. We commend it to any who wish to give to an unconverted friend, young or old, a little volume that may arouse him to see the danger of sin, and impel him to flee to Jesus Christ.

The Boat, and The Drowned Officer. By Charlotte Elizabeth. Philadelphia, Presbyterian Board of Publication. 32mo, pp. 36. Price 10 cents.

This is another excellent little book for juvenile reading. The name of the gifted and popular authoress is a sufficient guaranty to all who may buy it, that they will find the two stories contained in it both interesting and profitable.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Albany.
Albany 1st ch, from Mr Stephen J Rider, per Rev Dr Campbell	10 00
Presbytery of Hudson.
Deer Park ch, Mt Hope, per Rev Luther Little	7 00
Presbytery of Bedford.
North Salem ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr	10 00
Presbytery of New York.
Greenbush ch 1; Jersey City 1st ch 100 81, per Wm Rankin, Jr; Brooklyn 1st ch 225 02, per Geo L Sampson	326 83
Presbytery of Elizabethtown.
Rahway ch, to con Mrs Isabella Mott hon mem, per Wm Rankin, Jr 30; Plainfield ch, per Jas Mackean 10	40 00
Presbytery of Baltimore.
Ellicott's Mills ch, per Rev C Hntington	5 00
Presbytery of Blairsville.
Harmony ch, per Rev J H Kirkpatrick	4 50
Presbytery of Washington.
4th ch Wheeling 40; Allen Grove ch 4 50 per Rev Alfred Paul, Treas; Hookstown ch, per Jas J Brownson 25 87	70 37
Presbytery of Peoria.
Canton ch, per J Blackadore	5 00
Presbytery of Orange.
Springhill ch 29; Harmony ch 2; New Hope ch 5; Yanceyville ch 39 33, Mrs Sarah H Gray 25, per Jesse H Lindsay, Treas; Cross Roads ch 3; Spring Garden ch 23 65; Buffalo ch 14 55, Mrs Letitia H Foster 2 50, Mrs Jiggette 5, Rev G C Gregg hon mem 30; Rev Wm Banks hon mem 30—per Rev W Baird	214 03
Presbytery of Concord.
Charlotte ch, per Rev Cyrus Johnston	153 50
MISCELLANEOUS.
"G M," per Wm Rankin, Jr 25; John Wright, Auburn, N Y 1; Miss Ann Whitehall, Marietta, Lancaster co, Pa 10; An unknown friend 5; from "Q," Spring Garden ch 10; J F 12 cts	51 12
Total,	$897 35

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

LICENSURES.

Mr. W. L. Lyons, by the Presbytery of Schuyler.

Mr. J. A. Brown, by the Presbytery of Blairsville, November 2d, 1854.

Mr. J. M. Alexander, by the Presbytery of Chickasaw.

CALLS.

Rev. J. Jones Smyth has accepted a call to Greensboro, North Carolina.

Rev. D. Steele has accepted a call to Galena, Illinois.

Rev. Joseph T. Smith, D. D., of Baltimore, has received a call to the North church, Philadelphia.

Prof. William M. Scott of Danville, Kentucky, has received and declined a call to San Francisco, California.

Rev. R. H. Byers of Palestine, Texas, has received a call to the Henderson and Gum Spring churches, Texas.

Rev. M. G. Knight has accepted a call to the Cherry Spring and Georgetown churches, Kentucky.

Rev. Alexander Boyd has accepted a call to the church of Solon, Iowa.

Rev. A. S. McMaster of Mount Jackson, Pennsylvania, has accepted a call to the church at Poland, Ohio.

Rev. John G. Fackler of Jefferson City, has accepted a call to Liberty, Missouri.

Rev. James C. Watson, D. D., of Kingston, New Jersey, has been called to Milton, Pennsylvania.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Rev. C. W. Hodge was ordained and installed pastor of the new Presbwterian church (Ainslee street) Williamsburg, New York, by the Presbytery of New York, on the 5th ult.

Rev. Henry B. Chapin, City Missionary, was ordained by the Presbytery of New York on the 29th of October.

Rev. H. G. Richards was ordained and installed at Ebenezer, South Carolina, by the Presbytery of Bethel, recently.

Rev. Thomas Dinsmore was installed at Desmoines by the Presbytery of Desmoines, October 11th.

Rev. Andrew Kolb was recently ordained by the Presbytery of Cedar as an Evangelist.

Rev. J. G. Symmes was ordained and installed pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Madison, Ohio, by the Presbytery of Madison, on the 3d of October.

Rev. ——— Clark was installed at Altoona, Pennsylvania, by the Presbytery of Huntington, November 14th.

Rev. John M. Geary was ordained by the Presbytery of Louisiana, October 22d.

Rev. J. M. Worrall was installed over the 1st church of Covington, Kentucky, November 6th.

Rev. Matthew B. Patterson was installed over the Washington Presbyterian church, White Deer, Pennsylvania, October 14th.

Rev. Andrew Barr was installed over the Truro church, Ohio, November 11th.

Rev. Fields Bradshaw was installed pastor of Oak Grove church by the Presbytery of Tuskaloosa, November 1st.

Rev. J. H. Alexander was ordained by the Presbytery of Tuskaloosa in October.

Rev. B. M. Hobson was installed pastor of Lexington church, Missouri, by the Presbytery of Upper Missouri, November 5th.

Rev. Ephraim K. Lynn was installed pastor of Urbana church, Illinois, November 11th.

Rev. Samuel C. Logan was installed at Constantine, Michigan, November 23d.

Rev. Elijah R. Craven has been installed over the 3d church at Newark, New Jersey, by the Presbytery of Passaic.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. William V. Wilson and the 2d church, Petersburg, Virginia.

Rev. J. M. Kirkpatrick and the Powhatan church, Virginia.

Rev. J. D. Dudley and the Crookville church, Pennsylvania.

Rev. E. B. Raffensperger and the church at Urbana, Ohio.

Rev. J. Weatherby and the Wilmington church, by the Presbytery of Chickasaw.

Rev. J. C. Watson, D. D., and the church at Kingston, New Jersey.

Rev. James McDougall and the church at Huntington, Long Island.

DEATHS.

Rev. William C. Scott, late pastor of the church at Farmville, Virginia, on the 21st of November.

Rev. Archibald Smith of Philadelphus, North Carolina.

Rev. Ichabod S. Spencer, D. D., pastor of the 2d church in Brooklyn, New York, November 24th, in the 57th year of his age.

Rev. Dion C. Pharr of the Presbytery of Montgomery, and resident at Covington, Virginia.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. L. G. Gaines, from Mount Carmel, Ohio, to Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rev. W. H. Roanes, from Monticello, Louisiana, to Ashwood Landing, Louisiana.

Rev. R. G. Thompson, from Roscoe, Illinois, to Beloit, Wisconsin.

Rev. J. D. Dudley, from Crookville, Pennsylvania, to Ford's Depot, Virginia.

Rev. T. S. C. Smith, from Havre de Grace to Bel Air, Maryland.

Rev. E. B. Raffensperger, from Urbana, Ohio, to Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Rev. John White, to Warrenham, Bradford county, Pennsylvania.

Rev. M. B. Patterson, to White Deer, Lycoming county, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Andrew Barr, from Danville, Pennsylvania, to Columbus, Ohio.

Rev. Lowman Hawes to Waukesha, Wisconsin.

Rev. Alexander Beattie, from Grand Lake, Arkansas, to Three Creeks, Union county, Arkansas.

Rev. L. G. Bell, from Fairfield, Iowa, to Sidney, Fremont county, Iowa.

Rev. Paulus W. Meiss to Lansing, Iowa.

Rev. W. A. Scott, D. D., from New Orleans to San Francisco.

Rev. J. C. Watson, D. D., from Kingston, New Jersey, to Milton, Pennsylvania.

Rev. B. H. Williams, from Natchez to Vicksburg, Mississippi.

Rev. J. N. Carothers, from Buena Vista to Houlka, Chickasaw county, Mississippi.

Rev. James R. Baird, from White Plains, North Carolina, to Clay Hill, York District, South Carolina.

Rev. J. C. Baldwin, from Dry Creek, Mississippi, to Natchez, Mississippi.

Rev. M. W. Staples, from Marshall, Texas, to Beloit, Wisconsin.

Rev. W. D. McKinley, from Mount Morris to Tuscarora, New York.

Rev. Willis Lord, D. D., from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Fairfield, Connecticut.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. William T. Catto has been engaged to preach for six months for the First African church, Philadelphia.

The Second Presbytery of New York have erased the name of Rev. John P. Lundy from its roll.

The Chickasaw Presbytery has erased the name of Rev. W. E. Chittenden from its roll.

Rev. H. R. Lewis of the Cumberland Presbyterian, was received by the Presbytery of Sangamon a short time since.

Rev. Paulus W. Meiss, a minister of the German Reformed Church, was recently received by the Presbytery of Cedar.

Rev. C. C. Van Arsdale, D. D., late associate pastor of the Bleecker street R. D. church, New York, has been invited to supply for some months the pulpit of Rev. Dr. Scott's church in New Orleans.

Rev. William L. Breckinridge, D. D., of Louisville, has a second time declined the Presidency of Fulton College, Missouri.

Rev. Drs. Thornwell and Palmer have been elected to Professorships in the Theological Seminary at Columbia, South Carolina, in which election the Synods of Georgia and South Carolina concur.

Varieties.

Dedication of Central Church, Brooklyn.—The new and beautiful church edifice erected by the Central Presbyterian Church in Schermerhorn street was dedicated to Almighty God last Sabbath day. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Rockwell, preached the morning sermon, and the Rev. Dr. Paine of the New York Observer delivered the dedicatory address. Rev. Dr. Potts preached in the afternoon, and Rev. Dr. Krebs in the evening. The edifice is built of brick, in the Grecian style of architecture, and is capable of containing a congregation of about 1200 persons. The pastor is a talented young man. His services are much appreciated; and it is certain that before long his church will be well attended.

Oahu College.—The Sandwich Islands, a little cluster in the midst of the Pacific, which, within the memory of the middle-aged among us, were inhabited only by savage tribes of heathen, are now christianized and civilized, and have recently added to their institutions of learning a regularly organized college. The President, Edward G. Beckwith, was inaugurated on the 25th of September. Behold the fruits of persevering missionary labours!

Corner Stone Laid.—On Saturday afternoon, 28th November, the corner stone of a new Presbyterian church was laid, with appropriate ceremonies, at Swartswood, Sussex county, New Jersey, in the Presbytery of Newton.

Synod of Philadelphia.—The Minutes of the late meeting of the Synod of Philadelphia are now published. There were present, 68 ministers and 22 elders. The Synod comprises the following:

Presbyteries.	Ministers.	Churches.	Licentiates.	Candidates.
Philadelphia,	42	31	10	18
Philadelphia 2d,	21	24	4	10
New Castle,	22	24	1	9
Donegal,	21	26	2	3
Huntingdon,	32	42	5	17
Northumberland,	21	34	4	7
Total,	159	181	26	64

There were received during the last year, on certificate, 16 Ministers and 4 Licentiates; and 10 Ministers and 6 Licentiates were dismissed. Four ministerial members were removed by death. There were four ministerial ordinations, and ten licensures.

FUND FOR SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS AND THEIR FAMILIES.

The following amounts have been received, since last report, viz:

From the church at Roswell,	$28 00
" a member of the Mississippi Presbytery,	2 50
" Rev. Edward Wurtz of Ashwood Landing, Louisiana,	2 00
" the Female Benevolent Society of Hillsborough church, North Carolina,	25 00
" East Springfield church, Ohio,	14 00
" the West, per Dr. Leyburn,	5 00
	$76 50

Geo. H. Van Gelder,
Treas. Trustees Gen. Assembly.

Philadelphia, December 1st, 1854.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

Postage, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

Board of Domestic Missions.—Benevolence the Fruit of Revivals, p. 2. Wants of Florida, p. 2. Pray for the Missionaries, p. 3. A Providential Event Improved, p. 3. A Good Result, p. 3. Interesting Historical Sketch, p. 3. Advantage of a Large Mission Field, p. 4. Receipts, p. 4.

Board of Education.—I. Ministerial Education: Increase of the Ministry, p. 5. Increase of Candidates in the South, p. 5. Consecration to the Ministry, p. 5. The Wan Reapers, p. 6. Preaching Christ, p. 6. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges: Educational Intelligence, p. 6. The North-Western Convention, p. 6. Perseverance, p. 7. Speech of D'Aubigné, p. 7. The Bible, p. 7. Valuable Thoughts, p. 7. Receipts, p. 7.

Board of Foreign Missions.—Recent Intelligence, p. 8. Circular Letter to Ministers, p. 8. Missions among Romanists: Letter of a Correspondent in Paris, p. 9. Africa: Corisco Mission: Journal of a Tour to Illobey and the River Muni, by Rev. J. L. Mackey, p. 9. China: Ningpo Mission: Journal of the Rev. Henry V. Rankin, p. 11. Our Indian Tribes, p. 11. Receipts, p. 13.

Board of Publication.—The Colportage Fund, p. 14. Contributing Churches, p. 14. The Donation Fund, p. 14. The Sabbath-School Visitor, p. 14. The Southern Synods, p. 14. Favourable Notice of the Board, p. 14. Colporteurs not Pedlers, p. 15. Notices of New Books, p. 15. Receipts, p. 15.

Miscellaneous.—New Volume of the Record, p. 1. The Grain of Corn and the Penny, p. 1. Little by Little, p. 1. Sanctified Afflictions, p. 1. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 16. Varieties, p. 16.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME VI. No. 2. | PHILADELPHIA, FEBRUARY, 1855. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

COME TO JESUS.

Who is willing to go to the Saviour? He has graciously said, "Him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out." May every reader of this article be able to respond to the voice that cries "Come," in the spirit and resolve of the following lines:

Just as I am—without one plea,
But that thy blood was shed for me,
And that thou bid'st me come to thee!
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—and waiting not
To rid my soul of one dark spot—
To thee whose blood can cleanse each spot,
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—though tossed about
With many a conflict, many a doubt,
With fears within, and wars without—
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—poor, wretched, blind;
Sight, riches, healing of the mind,
Yea, all I need, in thee I find—
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—thou wilt receive,
Wilt welcome, pardon, cleanse, relieve,
Because thy promise I believe—
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—thy love unknown
Has broken every barrier down;
Now to be thine, yea, thine alone—
O Lamb of God, I come!

AN EXAMPLE FOR SUBSCRIBERS.

The following letter was recently received:

"To the Editor of the Home and Foreign Record.

"Dear Sir—Inclosed I send you a dollar to pay for the Record for the year 1855, for ——— and myself. Our times make it hard to get along, and I have had to give up taking the ——— Magazine, and a political paper, but I hope I shall never see the time when I shall be so poor that I cannot give fifty cents a year for the Record. If we have any love to the dear Saviour, we surely will delight more to hear of his kingdom prospering in the world than of any other subject. The prosperity of Zion will be our chief joy. Yours with sincere respect,

* * *"

We commend the sentiments of this letter to all our readers. Would that they could reach the eyes of those thousands of Presbyterian Christians who can find so little in the Record to relish that they neither subscribe for it nor read it.

A DILEMMA TO BE FEARED.

A short time ago, says a pastor, I tried to make my people see under what embarrassment many professors would find themselves on arriving at heaven. I supposed that a crowd of glorified spirits would gather around the new comer, to learn what was doing for the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom, but that many of them would be as ignorant of these matters as they were of what was passing in the moon. "But were there no papers published to give you information on this subject?" "Yes, but we did not feel interest enough to take them." "Had you no monthly concert, where intelligence was communicated, and prayer offered for the conversion of the world?" "Such a meeting was held, almost at our door, but we were never in the habit of attending it."

Could Christians only look at this matter now as they will see it in the light of eternity, I believe that our monthly concerts would be our most crowded meetings, and the annual receipts of the Board would soon reach half a million dollars.—Journal of Missions.

EARLY ASSOCIATIONS.

The following is one among a thousand incidents which might be mentioned to show the permanency and value of early religious training. Let mothers be encouraged by it to sow the good seed diligently in the minds of their little children.

A Presbyterian minister of the United States, American by birth, but of Scottish parentage, happening to be in the city of New Orleans, was requested to visit an old Scottish soldier who had wandered thither, and having been attacked by the yellow fever, was conveyed to the hospital in a dying state. On announcing his errand, the sick soldier told him, in a surly tone, that he desired none of his visits; that he knew how to die without a priest. The minister replied that he was no priest, but a Presbyterian clergyman, come to read to him the word of God, and to speak of that eternity to which he seemed drawing near. The Scot doggedly refused all conversation, and after lingering a few minutes, the minister was reluctantly compelled to take his leave. Next day, however, he called again, thinking the reflections of the man on his own rudeness might secure a better reception on a second visit. But the soldier's tone and manners were equally rude and repulsive. He turned himself in bed with his face toward the wall, as if determined to hear nothing and relent nothing. As a last effort to gain attention, he bethought himself of the hymn well known in Scotland, the composition, as it is supposed, of David Dickson of Irvine, one of the worthies of Scotland:

"O mother dear, Jerusalem,
When shall I come to thee?
When shall my sorrows have an end?
Thy joys when shall I see?"

This hymn his mother had taught him to sing, when a child, to the tune of Dundee. He began to hum his mother's hymn, to his mother's tune. The soldier listened for a few moments in silence; but gradually turning himself round, his countenance relaxed, and with the tear in his eye, he inquired, "Who taught you that?"

"My mother," said the minister.

"And so did mine," replied the now softening and relenting soldier, whose heart was melted by the recollections of infancy, and who was now prepared to give a willing ear to the man who had found the key to his Scottish heart.

BENEVOLENT AGENCIES A DOUBLE BLESSING.

There is a light in which benevolent agencies are seen to hold a highly important relation to the prosperity of Zion, and to the well-being of our country. The overflowing prosperity of the people in every branch of industry is accompanied with perils of no ordinary magnitude to morals and religion. Avarice, and pride, and luxury, come in its train. Worldliness creeps in and shuts the door of the closet. Habits of devotion yield to the claims of business. The daily newspaper takes the place of the Bible and the book of devotion. Time becomes too valuable to spend in personal Christian toils. Money-getting and money-keeping become the absorbing pursuits of life.

Against these tendencies of our times powerful barriers are needed. This threatening evil needs to be converted into a blessing. Prosperous engagements should have an object higher than self-gratification—nobler than worldly ends. Broad channels need to be opened through which the increasing wealth of our country may flow forth in blessings on the dying world. In this view, the agent of a benevolent society is twice a benefactor—opening up to the prosperous Christian a way in which his temptation may be turned into a means of grace, unfolding the principles and presenting the motives for systematic, scriptural charity, and at the same time providing for the diffusion of that gospel for the poor, without which worldly prosperity is as insecure as it is selfish. An agent's visit is therefore both kind and needful to the rich, and those on the road of wealth. The scriptural views of stewardship and of the dangers of wealth fully warrants this idea, and the importance and dignity of benevolent agencies.—Messenger.

GOD OF MY MOTHER.

Rev. Charles Morgan of East Troy, Wisconsin, in giving an account of a religious revival in that place, says:

"An infidel of talent and respectability, under the power of truth, bowed upon his knees and cried in agony: 'God of my mother, have mercy on me!'"

His mother is a devoted Christian in the State of New York.

"God of my mother!" How much is revealed in that simple exclamation; how conclusively it proves that this man had a mother, whose faithfulness left its impress upon his soul too deep to be obliterated by time and sin!

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

CHURCHES RECEIVING AID SHOULD ENDEAVOUR TO BECOME SELF-SUSTAINING AND CONTRIBUTING.

It is manifestly the duty of the churches to sustain the gospel among themselves, without the aid of others, when they are able to do so; and such churches cannot apply for any assistance from the missionary fund, without great injury to themselves and injustice to others, who really need the funds which they unnecessarily absorb. Every church, therefore, before making application for missionary aid, ought seriously to inquire whether they cannot support the gospel themselves, and should make every reasonable arrangement and effort to do so, if they can. If they are unable wholly to support a pastor themselves, they should unite, if practicable, with some neighbouring church, and raise as much as possible among themselves, and then ask for only so much aid from the Board as is indispensable for the comfortable maintenance of a minister. After receiving such assistance, they should endeavour to become, as fast and as fully as practicable, a self-sustaining church. No church should content itself with receiving support from the Board, without making constant and vigorous efforts to dispense with it gradually and entirely.

Some churches have continued to receive the same amount of aid from the Board for many years, and in some cases the amount has not only not been diminished, but has been actually increased! It is believed that some at least of these churches might have become self-sustaining long ago, if suitable measures had been employed, and that others would soon become self-sustaining, and even contributing churches, if they were properly induced to do their duty. Will not the officers of the churches take this matter in hand, and endeavour to get the people to do what they can for themselves? Let them seriously consider how many churches more feeble than their own require assistance, and what immense destitutions there are in our country, which are yet to be supplied with the preaching of the gospel. These remarks apply, of course, only to those churches which are able to do more than they are now doing towards the support of the gospel, and not to those which are doing as much as they can. The Board have no desire to discourage applications for assistance by those who really need it, nor would they withhold aid from any church, however long they may have been receiving it, while it is really required, and they have the means to furnish it. All that is intended, and what we would with all possible earnestness insist upon, is that every church should do as much as they can for the support of the gospel among themselves, and should endeavour to become, as fast and as fully as practicable, a self-sustaining and contributing church. This would not only prove a blessing to themselves, but would also promote the interests of the Redeemer's kingdom throughout our land.

THE LATE REV. JOEL HUNTINGTON.

We give below an extract or two from a discourse of the Rev. J. A. Savage, D. D., President of Carroll College, Wisconsin. It was preached in the church in Waukesha, of which the Rev. Joel Huntington had been for more than two years the stated supply, and shortly after his death. It gives a brief outline of the early history and short career of one of the most faithful and promising missionaries of this Board—one who was eminently fitted for his field of labour, and whose influence was felt, and will be for a long time, throughout that wide field.

"My first acquaintance with Mr. Huntington was formed in Wisconsin, whither he came about two years ago, as the selected field of his ministerial labours, having just completed his theological course at that school of the prophets, presided over for so many years, and with such signal success, by the late venerated Archibald Alexander, the lineaments of whose clerical character are traceable so visibly in the lives and usefulness of great numbers now embodied in the Presbyterian ministry of our land.

"By his fond relations I have been put in possession of the following incidents of his earlier history, which cannot fail to be interesting and instructive to all who read them, especially to the student who is struggling to fit himself for usefulness in the world by the culture of his moral and intellectual nature, amid the discouragements which so frequently throng the pathway of the young aspirant after moral and intellectual attainments—amid privations and the absence of the means apparently necessary for their prosecution:—Joel was the fourth and youngest son of Charles and Martha Huntington, and was born in the village of Chittenango, Madison county, New York, on the 22d of October, 1822. About the age of ten he began the study of the ancient languages in the Polytechnic, at Chittenango, under the Rev. Dr. W. H. Campbell, now Professor of Biblical Criticism in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Dutch Church, at New Brunswick, New Jersey, who, although then quite a young man, was distinguished both as a teacher of the classics and a preacher of the gospel.

"At the close of his first year, his studies were interrupted by the closing of the school in his native village, and the inability of his father to send him from home. In 1834 or 1835, yet a lad of twelve or thirteen years, he spent a few months in the Academy at Schenectady, then under the care of his eldest brother.

"With these very limited advantages for laying the foundation of a liberal education, young Huntington made such progress, that on his father's subsequent removal to a farm in Columbus, Chenango county, New York, he was enabled to pursue the studies, preparatory for College, without an instructor, at odd times, of an evening or on a rainy day, with ardour and success, while no agricultural duty was neglected, or carelessly or languidly performed. He seemed to be equally zealous in any employment which rightly devolved upon him, and no hired labourer could outstrip him in haying or harvesting. His family for years took it for granted that he would be a farmer; but his quiet way and uninterrupted cheerfulness deceived them with regard to his wishes and aims. Saying little or nothing about his future prospects, he devoted all his leisure hours to the cultivation of his mind. Furnished with books by his elder brothers, and following the prescribed course of study, his reading was by no means so desultory and unprofitable as it often is under like circumstances; on the contrary, in the languages and mathematics, almost as exact and systematic as it could have been in the best regulated school. Poverty, however, obliged him to remain on the farm till he was twenty-three or four years of age, when, by taking a room and boarding himself at the least possible expense, he was enabled to finish his preparation for college at an excellent Academy in the village of Manlius, six miles west of Chittenango, his native place. He entered junior class, in Union College, in 1846, and from the outset maintained the highest standing for scholarship and character. During his junior year, March 5th, 1837, he made a profession of religion, uniting with the Third Presbyterian Church of Albany, of which his elder brother, Rev. Dr. E. A. Huntington was pastor. But he is believed before this to have entertained a hope in Christ, and for many years previous to have had his heart set upon the ministry of reconciliation.

"After graduating in 1848, he was elected to a tutorship in his Alma Mater, and spent a year in that office. In 1849 he entered the Seminary at Princeton, where he was no less distinguished for his zeal and success in study, than he had been in his under-graduate course. During the winter of his second year in the Seminary, he was licensed by the Presbytery of Albany, and was employed during his subsequent vacation to preach in vacant churches within the bounds of that Presbytery. The church in Kingsborough, from which the venerable Dr. Elisha Yale was about retiring, became deeply interested in him, and formally invited him to become their pastor at the close of his theological course. But when that time arrived, the finger of Providence pointed him westward, and the short remainder of his life was devoted to the religious and educational interests of Wisconsin.

"For the first few months after his arrival in Wisconsin, he supplied the pulpit of the North Church, in Milwaukee, during the temporary absence of their pastor, Rev. J. M. Buchanan, to whose young, intelligent, and rising congregation, he commended himself as their pastor's true yoke-fellow. Mr. Buchanan having returned, after a transient sojourn at the East, and the Presbyterian church of Waukesha being unsupplied, in consequence of the then recent removal of their first and cherished minister, Rev. A. L. Lindsley, Mr. Huntington, still only a licentiate, was cordially greeted and secured as their stated supply, and subsequently was ordained in the midst of us by the Presbytery of Milwaukee, and here received his first official investiture for that work to which he had early consecrated his talents, energies, and life—the holy work of the gospel ministry, for which he seemed to us so richly qualified, and in which, during his short career, he proved himself 'a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.' To those of us who waited on his ministry, it was evident that, if his life were prolonged and his health preserved, the good providence of God in him had bestowed upon Waukesha and Wisconsin a rich and inestimable treasure, from which we might justly hope to be gathered fruits that in all time to come would highly enrich the heritage of God and the social institutions of our rising State, as yet in their infancy.

"At a meeting of the Synod of Wisconsin, in October, 1853, he was appointed to take the temporary oversight of Carroll College, whose presiding officer was necessarily called to spend the winter at the East, in the prosecution of its endowment. The Synod contemplated the supply of his pulpit in this arrangement, and provided for it to the best of their ability. But there were times when this provision failed, and Mr. Huntington was frequently put upon the necessity, as he deemed it, of discharging the double duty of teacher during the week, and minister on the Sabbath—a responsibility, under the circumstances of his position, too onerous for any one man. The functions of each were, however, promptly, ably, and acceptably performed, and every anticipated exigency met, apparently without any permanent injury to his physical energies, which had been thus overtasked for a season of six months, until the return of the Principal of the Institution, whose place he had been supplying. The annual examination of the pupils was to take place in the following July, the close of the collegiate year; and having become deeply interested in their progress, he preferred to retain the supervision of their studies to the close of the year—a gratification no less to his pupils than himself, in which he was indulged, the Principal supplying his pulpit, and giving him what aid he might call for in the recitation room. The examination transpired on the 17th, 18th, and 19th of July, and, as conducted mainly by himself and Mr. Bean, his associate and assistant teacher in Mathematics, gave universal satisfaction, as being highly creditable to both teachers and pupils. On the evening of the 19th, apparently in as good health as usual, and with more than his wonted cheerfulness, he took his departure from us on a visit to his surviving parent and relatives, and to attend the commencement exercises of his Alma Mater, which were this year rendered additionally attractive and interesting to all her alumni, by reason of its being the fiftieth or semi-centennial anniversary of her universally venerated President and Patron's connection with it. He reached his father's residence in Chittenango, in safety, on Saturday, the 22d of July, from whence the last missive, I presume, that his pen ever inscribed, was sent us, informing us of his safe arrival, and suggestive of his anticipated enjoyment of the coming anniversary. The following Sabbath and Monday (July 23 and 24) he spent with his father and dear friends, whose affectionate greetings he had made such haste to enjoy; and on Tuesday, the 25th, he left the domestic circle for Schenectady, where, on the next day, the 26th, with the multitude of kindred spirits assembled from all parts of our land, he participated, with much zest, in the moral and intellectual festivities of the last anniversary of that venerable institution, endeared to him by so many hallowed associations, rendered memorable in her annals by the incident to which I have already alluded. From these intellectually exhilarating scenes he passed over to Albany, in company with his elder brother, to spend a few days in the bosom of his family, and on the following Sabbath supplied his pulpit the entire day, which proved to be the completion of his ministerial work.

"Rev. Dr. E. A. Huntington, at whose residence he expired on the morning of the 12th of August, thus sketches, in one of his recent letters, the closing scenes of his life:—'Although apparently fatigued by a long journey, and worn thin with long toil in the pulpit and class room, no alarm about his health was excited either in himself or his friends. But on the evening of Sunday, July 30th, after having twice preached in his brother's pulpit, he was suddenly taken ill with cholera, and at noon the next day was supposed to be dying. Never, in perfect health, did he exhibit more composure, or fuller confidence in the Redeemer. His sinfulness appeared to him exceeding sinful; but for that very reason he rejoiced in the righteousness of Christ. After a few hours his disease yielded, and on Tuesday, and for two or three days in succession, strong hopes were entertained of his recovery. But soon his brain began to be affected. He was subsequently neither deranged nor in a torpor, but seemed to be in a waking dream till Saturday, August 12th, when he sank to sleep in Jesus, so calmly that it was impossible to distinguish when he ceased to breathe. The pallor that overspread his countenance was the first indication that his spirit had taken its flight.'

"Mysterious Providence! To-day, when both he and we had been fondly looking forth to a re-union and a re-entrance upon his cherished work among us, we are here to contemplate the severance of those ties that bound us together, and to sorrow that we shall see his face no more. 'The silver cord is loosed, the golden bowl broken, the pitcher broken at the fountain, and the wheel at the cistern.' 'And I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth, yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours, and their works do follow them.' Sadness and sorrow sit brooding on our faces, and a grief that human sympathy alone cannot heal is festering about our hearts, as we contemplate his sudden removal from the midst of us, with no prospect of his return, or aught that can compensate for the loss which we feel. Yet none of us doubts that to him the exchange of worlds has been a happy one; and while we think of him as the tenant of the tomb, his body only occupies the narrow house; its recent moral and spiritual occupant, which so endeared to us his bodily presence, we doubt not, luxuriates with the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven—in the rich enjoyment of the Christian's inheritance; and standing, in fancy, over the spot where his precious dust reposes, we seem to hear the utterance of the Saviour's voice, 'I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die.' Blessed hope! What can more thoroughly cheer us amid such a gloom, and bid us more submissively resign ourselves to the Divine will under such providential bereavements? * * * * *

"Who that knew him would not feel the glow of indignation at the slightest attempt to attach suspicion to the character of Joel Huntington, or asperse his memory? And who doubts that as oft as his image shall be recalled in all time to come, however distant, we shall contemplate the vision with a pleasing satisfaction, and love to linger around the moral virtues that adorned him, and scattered the richness of their hallowed savour amid all the associations in which, while living, he mingled? To whom, among all our fellows, rather than to him, can we attach the Saviour's designation of Nathaniel, when he said of him, 'Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile?' His natural talents, decidedly above mediocrity, commanded our respect. His acquirements and erudition as a scholar secured for him a reputation among the friends of literature. His ample qualifications for the ministry, especially his acquaintance with the sacred text, and his skill in rightly dividing the word of truth, won for him an enviable prospective eminence among his brethren. But we all, without distinction, loved him for the purity of his character, the righteousness of his life, and the principles of truth and integrity which protruded themselves so visibly from every thought to which he gave utterance, and every act of his life that came under our inspection. How did he exemplify that apostolic injunction, so lamentably overlooked by many of us, who profess to follow the same divine teachings, 'Owe no man anything, but to love one another'? In him seemed to blend harmoniously all those elements of character, the memory of which we love to cherish and perpetuate, which, when it seems to be analyzed, will be found to derive its main excellences from the fact, that Christian principles regulated and controlled the whole man, who like the Master whom he served, in his measure will be cherished in our recollections as 'a man approved of God, who went about doing good.'"

Office of the Board of Missions,
No. 265 Chestnut Street,
Philadelphia, February, 1855.

Rev. and Dear Brother—The period is again approaching when we shall be called upon to render to the General Assembly a report of the operations of the Board of Missions throughout the year, and as the results of the labours of our brethren in the missionary field must, necessarily, occupy a prominent place in that report, we forward to you the annexed form of a Special Report, which contains the various items on which the General Assembly desires information. Will you be so good, therefore, as not only to give us some information on each item introduced, but also make that information as full and as accurate as may be in your power. We would ask it as a special favour, that you pay particular regard to statistical information, and should you be in possession of any interesting facts connected with your missionary work, that you would insert them under the head of "General Remarks." Your report will, of course, include the amount of labour performed under the appointment of the Board, from the first of March, 1854, or, if appointed since that time, from the date of your commission.

As it will require some time to reduce into one, the numerous reports furnished by our missionaries, we earnestly request you, after filling up the blanks and completing your annexed Special Report up to the first of March, 1855, or to the end of your commission if it should close sooner, to return it immediately after date, in an envelope, to the Secretary of the Board at Philadelphia. Your punctuality in this matter will greatly oblige us.

Grace, Mercy, and Peace be multiplied unto you in our LORD. Sincerely and affectionately yours,

G. W. Musgrave, Cor. Sec.

☞ You will please not introduce into your Special Report any other business than that which properly belongs to it. Otherwise in the press of engagements in the office, it may be overlooked. And should your quarter's salary be due at the time that you are forwarding your Special Report, do not expect payment on that report; but make a separate report for the quarter, and you will not be omitted in the regular payments of the office.

SPECIAL REPORT.

Months of labour performed under commission from the Board, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Number of Congregations and Missionary Stations supplied between March 1st, 1854, and March 1st, 1855.

Names of do.

Within the bounds of what Presbytery.

Churches organized between March 1st, 1854, and March 1st, 1855, and names of same.

Houses of worship erected or finished during the same time. State whether erected or finished.

Number of Families regularly attending your ministrations.

Number of Sabbath Schools in operation (not Union Schools) between March 1st, 1854, and March 1st, 1855.

Number of Teachers in do. during the same time.
Do. Scholars in do. do. do. do.
Catechetical and Bible Classes do. do. do.
Number of Learners in do. do. do. do.
Number of Sermons preached do. do. do.
Is the Monthly Concert observed?
Have you weekly Prayer-Meetings?
Number of Family Visits.
Observance of the Sabbath, whether good, bad, or indifferent, please answer under one of the three heads.

State of the population, whether increasing, diminishing, or stationary, please answer under one of the three heads.

Attendance on public religious services, whether good, bad, or indifferent, please answer under one of the three heads.

Number of Baptisms between March 1st, 1854, and March 1st, 1855.

Additions on Examination during the same time.
Additions on Certificate do. do. do.
Total in Communion, on the 1st of March 1855.
Religious Instruction of Coloured population.
Number of Coloured Communicants.
Temperance cause.

Amount paid over to the Board of Domestic Missions, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Amount paid over to the Church Extension Fund, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Amount paid over to the Board of Education, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Amount paid over to the Board of Foreign Missions, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Amount paid over to the Board of Publication, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Amount paid to other objects not including salary, from March 1st, 1854, to March 1st, 1855.

Are your collections for the different benevolent schemes of the Church reduced to a system, and what is it?

What amount of Salary do your people pay towards your support, in addition to what the Board gives?

Has your Church become self-sustaining this year?

What prospect of your Church becoming a self-sustaining church?

☞ Name and Post Office address (in full.)

P. S.—Are you in want of Clothing? If so, what family have you? Be particular to give height, age, sex, and general size of each member. Give plain and full directions how Boxes shall be sent.

☞ Please return this Report immediately after the 1st of March. Reports received after the 26th of March cannot be included in our Annual Statistical Table.

NEW CHURCH AT MEMPHIS, MO.

Rev. and Dear Sir—With devout gratitude to the great Head of the Church, and with feelings of inexpressible pleasure, I communicate to you the intelligence relative to the progress of our beloved Zion in this region of country. Our church edifice in this place was solemnly dedicated to the worship of the triune Jehovah on last Sabbath, the 10th inst. The dedication sermon was preached by Rev. James C. Sharon, of St. Francisville, from Luke vii. 5: "For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue." The house is a neat frame, 30 by 40 feet, and when well seated will accommodate this community for many years. This is the only Presbyterian church in this whole region of country; and I know of no Presbyterian minister in any of the counties west of this; and I find Presbyterians settled in almost every neighbourhood. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few."

When we look around and see how God in his infinite mercy and goodness has blessed and prospered us, we are ready to exclaim with the inspired Psalmist, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." Surely God has blessed and prospered this little vine.

The Presbyterian church in this place (Memphis) was organized in May, 1845, by the Rev. Joseph Anderson. From the time of its organization until within the last year, they have never enjoyed the stated preaching of the Gospel by the ministry of their own denomination. But during that long period of time, though surrounded with many difficulties, very many sore trials they were compelled to pass through, many severe afflictions were laid upon them, yet sustained by the grace of him who said, "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom," they remained firm and steadfast to the precious doctrines of our beloved Church; and during those days of darkness and trial, they waited patiently until God in his good providence would send them one who would go in and out before them, and break unto them the bread of life. During the last year God has mercifully blessed the little church, increased it in numbers, and I trust in holiness. The church has grown from twelve to thirty, and we are led to believe that it is a vine of our Heavenly Father's own planting; and while we bless his holy name for what he has done, we trust we feel more and more the force of that precious truth taught by our blessed Saviour to his disciples, "Without me ye can do nothing." O, that our God would continue to bless his people, "till he establish and make Jerusalem a praise in the earth." H. P. S. W.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN OHIO.

January 3d, 1855.

Rev. and Dear Brother—

It becomes my duty to report to you an account of my labours during the last quarter of the year that has just closed. And in doing so, I feel that much gratitude is due to our Heavenly Father for health and the innumerable blessings with which he has cheered me in the performance of my work. I have not been prevented from filling any of my appointments, and attending to all ordinary duties. In relation to the religious condition of my field, there are some encouraging indications. I believe that no time has there been a more general attendance on the Sabbath day in both churches, than for the last quarter, or a more marked attention to the word preached. I administered the Lord's supper in the Union church, a few Sabbaths since, which was a season of some interest to that church. There were six additions, and throughout the exercises on that occasion there was a marked solemnity on the part of professors, and thoughtfulness with the impenitent. Though the weather was rather unfavourable, the house in which we worship, a large school-house, was insufficient to accommodate those in attendance—illustrating very forcibly the necessity of having our house, which is under way, completed. Indeed if that house, which is large for a country church, had been finished, it would have been filled on the occasion. It is now enclosed; but unless aid can be obtained in the spring, it cannot be completed, without incurring a debt which would be exceedingly embarrassing. J. M. C.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Missions.

Honorary Members have a right to sit in the meetings of the Board, and engage in their deliberations, but have no right to vote. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to them every year. Provided we have their address.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

To the Trustees of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of———, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Missions of the said General Assembly, according to the provisions of their charter.

☞ Persons making bequests to the Board of Missions are requested to be careful in adopting the above form.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of December, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry.—Antrim ch addl	$14 00
Pby of Albany.—Ballston ch 27 76; Amsterdam Village ch 42 75; Ballston Spa ch 14	84 51

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Moscow ch	8 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson.—Hamptonburg ch addl 2; Hopewell ch 21 58; Monticello ch and Sab school 6; Scotchtown ch 66	95 58
Pby of North River.—Hughsonville ch 20; Smithfield ch, from Rev G W Todd in part to constitute himself an hon member 30	50 00
Pby of Bedford.—Croton Falls ch 8; South Salem ch Female Charitable Society 16 50	24 50
Pby of New York.—Fifth Avenue and 19th st ch N Y 2703 46; Brick ch N Y, collection 803 88, and from a Friend to Missions 500=1303 88; Grand st ch N Y 165 50; Jamaica ch 6 53; Williamsburg ch Sab school 38	4217 37

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown.—Baskingridge ch	30 00
Pby of New Brunswick.—Squan Village ch	11 00
Pby of West Jersey.—Bridgeton 1st ch 263 25, of which 50 to con J HOWARD NIXON an hon mem and 56 50 from the Ladies' Missionary Society; Camden ch in part 45; Salem ch 17 12	325 37
Pby of Newton.—German Valley ch 34 25, less 4 50 paid to Home and Foreign Record=29 75	29 75
Pby of Luzerne.—Wilkesbarre ch 50; Summit Hill ch 15 34, of which 5 from S and 5 from N	65 34
Pby of Burlington.—Mount Holly 1st ch addl 16 50; Columbus ch 6 13	22 63

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Spring Garden ch Phila addl from Alex Hewitt 5, Mrs J Evans 1, Sarah Stinefet 1, A Friend 1=8; Ninth ch Phila 63 82, of which 22 76 from the Juvenile Missionary Society; Kensington ch 42 30, and from the Sab school 28 25=70 55, of which 50 to constitute WILLIAM GRAHAM an hon mem; Tenth ch Phila addl from Morris Patterson 25; Arch street ch Phila, collection 104 20, from Thomas Earp 30, F V Krug 25, G W McClelland 25, R T Shepherd 20, Wm C Baker 20, Isaac F Baker 20, W C C 20, Howell Evans 20, B A Fahnestock 10, John Wiegand 10, D P Riesch 10, E C Krug 10, B M Jones 10, T W Baker 10, W S Stewart 10, Henry Sloan 10, Jas H Orne 10, John Constable 10, A H G 10, Curwin Stoddart 10, Thomas W Woodward 5, George Cookman 5, Wm T Snodgrass 5, J W Throckmorton 5, Wm W Muzzey 5, Mrs John Tucker 5, Mrs Mary Dorsey 5, C C French 5, C D Richie 5, E Kirkpatrick 5, Mrs Jane Mulhollan 5, Miss Mulhollan 5, J R Eckfeldt 5, J B 5, Mrs J B 5, J J Burke 2 50, E S Young 2 50, Edw Schreiver 2 50, Galusha H Johnson 1, R S Hubbard 1, J H Southworth 1, Mrs Jane Katz 1, Master J N Strickland 1=491 70	659 07
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Bridesburg ch	10 50
Pby of New Castle.—Upper Octorara ch 30 68; Benevolent Fund of the New London Congregation 48	78 68
Pby of Donegal.—Cedar Grove ch, of which 50 to constitute Rev JOHN LEAMAN an hon mem	72 02
Pby of Huntingdon.—Fruit Hill ch, to constitute Rev J J HAMILTON an hon mem 50; Mount Pleasant ch in part 6	56 00
Pby of Northumberland.—Nippenose ch 5; Chatham Run ch 5	10 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore.—Baltimore 5th ch	40 64
Pby of Winchester.—Alexandria 1st ch 20; Winchester ch 50 18; Front Royal ch 15; "Flat Run ch, Orange co, Va 10 36"	95 54

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Blairsville.—Appleby Manor ch	10 00
Pby of Beaver.—Sharon and Brookfield chs	8 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Richland.—Jeromeville ch	5 25

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport.—Oxford ch	8 60
Pby of Fort Wayne.—Bluffton, New Lancaster, and Pleasant Ridge chs	12 50

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Rock River.—Princeton 1st ch	14 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane.—Vernon ch	3 00

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

Pby of Knoxville.—Lebanon ch 8 20; Pleasant Forest ch 9 45; Knoxville ch 12 35	30 00

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pby of Bethel.—Fair Forest ch	10 00

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.

Pby of Florida.—Mrs D A Cook, Albany, Ga	5 00
Pby of Cherokee.—Roswell ch additional	18 00
	$6124 85

MISCELLANEOUS.

E F Backus, Esq, Phila 100; Interest on Permanent Missionary Fund, per Treasurer of the Gen Assembly 395 41; Missionary, Bible, Tract, and Education Society of Princeton Theological Seminary 50; Mrs Irwin of Shippensburg, Pa 5; John Stewart, Graceham, Md 5; Family Missionary Society of T A Godfrey, Tremont, Pa 4; A Friend in Mercer st ch New York city 5; "First Fruits" 10; "Yours, &c," Harrisburg, Pa 5; Edwin Reese, Auburn, Ala 5; John Haswell, West Troy, N Y 25	609 41
	$6734 26
Received from the Treasurer at Pittsburgh, December collections $889 56
Less expenses 56 64	832 91
Total,	$7567 18

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 box from the Ladies of Ewing ch, N J, valued at	$30 00
1 " " " Port Byron ch, "	48 00
1 " " " the 6th ch, Phila, "	100 00
1 " " " McConnellsburg ch, Pa, valued at	115 00
1 box from the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of Pittsburgh, Pa, value not given.
1 box from the Ladies of the North Presbyterian ch, Phila, valued, with freight, at	80 00
1 box from donors unknown, supposed to be from Centre co, Pa, valued at	65 08

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of December, 1854.

Pby of Luzerne.—Wilkesbarre ch	10 00
Pby of New Castle.—Benevolent Fund of the New London congregation	10 00
Pby of Iowa.—Middletown ch	10 00
Pby of Florida.—Mrs D A Cook, Albany, Ga	5 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs Charlotte F Kirk, Fishkill, N Y, for Forrestville ch Pa 25; Sab school, District No. 12, Waterloo, Albany co, N Y, connected with Chesterville Dutch Reformed church 4	29 00
Total,	$64 00

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of December, 1854.

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Zanesville.—Pleasant Hill ch 20; Norwich ch 14	34 00
Pby of Coshocton.—Unity ch	30 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Wheeling 1st ch monthly coll	49 95

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone.—Mt Pleasant ch 38 15; Tent ch 29 30	67 45
Pby of Allegheny.—Slate Lick ch 23 13; Tarentum ch 17 67	40 80
Pby of Blairsville.—Ligonier ch 15; Beulah ch 41	56 00
Pby of Ohio.—Sewickley ch 36 25; Raccoon ch 51 11; Bethel ch bal to con ROBERT FIFE an hon mem and in part to constitute David Wilson an hon mem 32; Pittsburgh 1st ch 352 42; Pittsburgh 2d ch in part 139 58	611 36
Total,	$889 56

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

Ladies of Monongahela City ch, a box valued at	$60 00

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of December, 1854.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe.—Rocky Spring ch 7; Marshall ch 2 18; Chillicothe ch 78	87 18
Pby of Cincinnati.—4th ch Cincinnati mon con coll 3 89; 7th ch Cincinnati 77	80 89
Pby of Oxford.—Harmony ch	6 50
Pby of Findlay.—Covington ch	4 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Muncie.—Winchester ch	37 50

SYONOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria.—Middleport ch 4; Mackinaw ch 5	9 00
Pby of Schuyler.—Presbyterial coll of Schuyler	7 50
Pby of Chicago.—North Presbyterian ch Chicago, bal	32 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar.—Andrew ch	4 20

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.—Pennsylvania Run ch 10 75; Walnut st ch Louisville addl 1 50; Pisgah ch 3 50	15 75
Pby of Ebenezer.—Paris ch in part 47 50; J M Preston, Burlington ch 50	97 50
Pby of Muhlenburg.—Mt Zion ch 3; South Carrollton ch 9	12 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.

Pby of Memphis.—Mount Carmel ch 72; Salem ch 21 50; Germantown ch 17 50	111 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

East Hopewell ch, Ind 6; Mrs Ezra How, Weston, Ky 1; Collections by Rev Robert Irwin, Ind 2 50	9 50
Total,	$514 52

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. VAN RENSSELAER, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
WM. CHESTER, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
JAMES WOOD, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

SPECIAL PRAYER.

LAST THURSDAY OF FEBRUARY.

For several successive years the last Thursday of February has been observed by many of our churches as a day of special prayer for the increase of candidates for the gospel ministry and for schools and colleges. The resolution of the last General Assembly is in the following words:

"Resolved, That the last Thursday of February next be recommended as a day of special prayer and public instruction on Christian education, and especially with reference to the necessity of an enlargement of the ministerial resources of the Church, and of an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon our congregations."

The importance of the objects embraced in this resolution will doubtless be acknowledged by all. They ought to form a part of our devotions in the closet, the family, and the house of God; particularly the increase of candidates for the gospel ministry, and to this end, the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on our congregations, schools, and colleges. If united prayer for these objects should ascend up every Sabbath day from all our churches, who can doubt that God, who "hears prayer," will in due time bestow the desired blessing?

There is also abundant encouragement for the observance of the day specially set apart by the Assembly and by other ecclesiastical bodies, as a concert of prayer for these objects. While God's people were yet speaking, he has heard them; and has commenced reviving his work in several instances before the close of the day on which this concert was held. Why should not all our churches observe this season; and in connection with earnest and united prayer, enjoy the further benefit of "public instruction on Christian education, &c.," recommended by the Assembly as the topic of discourse on that occasion?

By referring to the Circulars prepared for this concert in 1852, '53, and '54, which are published in the Appendix to the Annual Reports of the Board of Education for those years, our brethren in the ministry will find statistics of college students, of candidates for the ministry, &c., in sufficient number and fulness, to furnish materials for their use the present year. We respectfully refer them to those Circulars, not deeming it necessary to repeat the statistics at this time.

The closing paragraph of the Circular for 1854, contains these words: "Brethren in the ministry and in the eldership; fathers and mothers at the heads of households; pious youth ready to enter upon the active scenes of life; this subject has solemn responsibilities to us all." To these several classes we propose to address ourselves on the present occasion.

1. To our brethren in the ministry and in the eldership. American colleges had their origin, not in State legislation, nor in the voluntary associations of irreligious men, but in the zeal, faith, prayer, and self-denying benevolence of God's people, and especially of his ministers. Though many of the State Legislatures have since engaged in this work, yet even now, much the larger number of our colleges are directly or indirectly under the care of the Church, and are dependent on her for their support and prosperity. Many of our ministers and ruling elders, and other prominent members, have aided in their establishment, and belong to their Boards of trust. They elect their Faculties, arrange their course of study, and are responsible for the moral and religious influences which are exerted over the students. Upon the Professors falls more immediately the responsibility last named; but the trustees are responsible for the character of the Professors whom they appoint; and the Church, through her judicatories, or the public sentiment she creates, controls the trustees. In some one of these relations, therefore, the Church is responsible for the character of these institutions; and she is under imperative obligations to use her influence to secure in all our schools, academies, and colleges, not only a thorough course of intellectual culture, but also of moral and religious training. Especially is this duty incumbent on those who enjoy the honour of an official connection with these institutions.

To this end the Professors and teachers should be pious; and they should be required to educate the moral faculties of their students as regularly and diligently as their intellectual. This is an essential part of "Christian education," the faithful attention to which is a scriptural preparation for successful prayer for the Divine blessing. The divorcing of secular learning from religious instruction, and the confining of collegiate studies to the former, are inconsistent with the nature of man; do not provide for his most important necessities, and will be a serious obstacle to the enjoyment of God's favour. Acceptable prayer involves the use of other appropriate means; and hence while the Church offers her prayers for schools and colleges, she has a right to expect that her ministers and elders, and others who may share with them in the honour of being the guardians of these institutions, shall provide for them those appliances which are requisite to protect the students from vice and temptation, and imbue them with virtue and religion.

2. Will Christian parents permit us to remind them, that the present is a suitable occasion for making the inquiry, whether their daily example and influence over their children are such as are adapted to bring them to the saving knowledge of Christ? Whether they pray with and for them? Whether they teach them the doctrines and duties of our holy religion, and solemnly and earnestly impress upon their minds the importance of early piety? Need it be said that these duties should be no more neglected than providing for their physical wants? "Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?" If they are at school, special care should be taken to have them enjoy these privileges during their vacations; and when they are absent, these exercises should be compensated, as far as practicable, by frequent and pious correspondence.

Especially should parents pray for their absent children. God can as easily answer our petitions in behalf of distant friends as of those that are present. He has often heard such prayers under the circumstances now supposed. Revivals in colleges have sometimes been traced to the earnest prayers of parents in their families and closets for the conversion of their sons in those institutions. If our children are piously dedicated to the Lord's service, and then devoutly and believingly prayed for, we have scriptural ground for believing that God will call them into his service, and qualify them by his grace for performing its duties. Hence we may consider those colleges as highly favoured, a large number of whose students are the sons of pious and praying parents. We rejoice that there are now so many such institutions in our country; and we trust that the fathers and mothers in the Church will remember them in their daily devotions.

3. We also address pious youth, and particularly those who are students in our high-schools and colleges. The responsibility resting upon you with regard to this matter is truly solemn. Do not permit your studies to quench the flame of your devotions. Besides daily secret prayer, attend meetings for social prayer; and particularly those which have for their special object the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the academies or colleges of which you are members. Show also by your deportment at other times, that you are sincere, conscientious, and consistent Christians. The savour of your piety will thus be felt in a twofold way; viz., by the answers which God will graciously vouchsafe to your prayers, and by the direct influence of your holy example on your fellow-students.

In conclusion, we will notice two or three of the beneficial results of the course now recommended. One is the increase of candidates for the gospel ministry. For this we are to look largely to the students in our academies and colleges. Hence, if God shall be pleased to pour out his Spirit on these institutions, the piety of many students who are already professors of religion will be so quickened as to bring them to a different decision on this momentous question, from that to which they had previously come, when their zeal for Christ and his cause was more feeble. And many more who may become subjects of renewing grace, will doubtless devote themselves to the high and holy vocation of preaching the Gospel. The increase of candidates during the last and present years, under the care of the Board of Education, is in a great measure the fruit of revivals of religion in our schools and colleges; and should these institutions continue to be blessed with such precious visitations from on high, the number of candidates will be doubled in a few years. What a powerful incentive is this to earnest prayer for the conversion of the youth who are congregated at these seats of learning.

Another result would be the sending forth from our colleges a large amount of sanctified talent for the other learned professions, and for places of honour and influence in the various offices connected with the administration of justice and with civil government. Revivals in colleges have already produced many such men, whose brilliant intellects have shone with a brighter lustre, and whose official positions have been so many radiant points from which have been diffused a more benign and healthful influence through society, from their having, when students in college, enjoyed this highest of all God's favours, the bestowment of his renewing grace. To pray and labour, therefore, for the spiritual good of our literary institutions, are virtually to pray and labour for the good of our country.

A third result will be the general religious prosperity of our churches. A spirit of prayer for colleges cannot exist without a desire for the conversion of souls around us; and revivals in colleges are seldom confined to the college walls. The news of a converted son or brother conveys a thrill of joy to a whole family, and kindles on the domestic altar a purer and more ardent flame of devotion. And the visits of these students to their unconverted friends are often blessed of God to their awakening and conversion. Youth are naturally fervent; and when this fervour receives a pious direction, and manifests itself in earnest expostulation with brothers and sisters and other relatives, it possesses a force which it is not easy to resist.

But our main reliance must be on the power of the Holy Ghost, without which no human agency can effectually move and subdue the stony heart. And here we have ample encouragement for prayer, both in behalf of our schools and colleges, and of our churches and congregations. The same kind of praying which will avail for the former, will avail also for the latter. They are not to be separated in our minds from each other, in such a sense as that we should pray for the one and not the other. They stand so related to each other as to exert a reciprocal influence, and to make it of equal importance to pray for both. Let the guardians and patrons of our academies and colleges provide for their spiritual necessities with the same pious care that they provide for the religious instruction of their children in the family, and the preaching of the gospel in the congregation; and in all their prayers for the latter let them pray also for the former. These institutions will then in return send back influences and agencies, which by the Divine blessing will impart spiritual life and salvation to thousands of precious souls.

A CALL TO YOUNG MEN.

"Wo is me, if I preach not the gospel."—1 Corinthians ix. 10.

It is a heavenly theme;
I hear a voice divine—no idle dream—
Calling to duty and to self-denial,
In face of many a stern and bitter trial,
Reverberating when the day is bright,
Chiding, when earthly pleasures round me rise;
Soothing, when sorrows fill my weeping eyes.
Go, preach the gospel, fly to every land;
Obey the risen Saviour's last command.

It comes with accent clear,
Like heavenly music to the listening ear,
With sweetest emphasis of love appealing
To conscious duty and to Christian feeling;
Or comes with trembling accent sad and low,
Like distant echoes from a world of woe,
Of millions perishing through lack of vision,
Chiding my unbelief and indecision.
Go, preach the gospel, fly to every land;
Obey the risen Saviour's last command.

And I must answer true—
Full many an obstacle will rise in view;
Affection's voice will tempt me to forbear,
And softer labours to my hand prepare.
But no! a bleeding Saviour's love hath found me;
His everlasting arms have sweetly bound me;
I'll gladly follow where he leads the way,
Nor think of danger while I hear him say,
Go, preach the gospel, fly to every land;
Obey the risen Saviour's last command.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

The Christian Intelligencer states that the Consistory of the Collegiate Churches (Dutch Reformed) in New York, has given the sum of $35,000 to the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick. What Church or individual will give the like sum, or one-half or one-fourth of it, to our Seminary at Columbia? Whatever grounds of complaint we may have against our Northern brethren in some particulars, we cannot deny to them a degree of liberality in the support of their institutions of learning and religion to which we cannot lay any just claim. In other, and we must think better days, we shared in their benefactions. We cannot hope to do so any longer without a great, we fear almost impracticable, change of feeling between the two sections of the country. We are thrown upon our unaided resources for the accomplishment of all good works among ourselves. Perhaps it is best for us that it is thus. Our resources are not inadequate to our wants, if they can be made available. Is it not time to cease from every species of objurgation and strife, at best fruitless, and in our case especially hurtful, inasmuch as it directs our energies from the great enterprises which stand connected with our prosperity and advancement—cease from a warfare against others, and set ourselves diligently to work that we may build up the kingdom of Christ at home?

Who will imitate the noble example above noticed? —Southern Presbyterian.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION
IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

THE SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA ON THE OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY.

The Committee to whom were referred the letter of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of Oglethorpe University, and the report of the Committee on the endowment, beg leave to report, for the consideration of the Synod, the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That this Synod rejoices in the continued and increasing usefulness of the Oglethorpe University, and especially in the fact that it has so often been visited with revivals of religion, and that so large a number of its graduates have been honoured by Christ, our Head, with a call to the ministry of reconciliation.

2. Resolved, That while this Synod sympathizes with the College in all its struggles, and with the Faculty in their privations, we do not think it expedient, at this time, to embark in new efforts for its endowment, as the churches have all been so recently solicited in its behalf, and there still remain collections to be made, before the Carolina Professorship can be regarded as complete and secure; and because, also, this Synod at its last sessions resolved upon the foundation of a fourth professorship in the Theological Seminary, which will require all its present ability to accomplish.

3. Resolved, That the Committee on the Oglethorpe Endowment be instructed to use all diligence in the collection of the outstanding notes as far as practicable; and that of the remnant of the subscriptions and assessments, they be authorized to pay Professor Lane $1500 for the present year, and as soon as the debt to the permanent fund can be replaced, the entire proceeds of the endowment be appropriated to his support.

The Synod of Alabama also took action on the same subject, and resolved to raise $8000 towards a fourth professorship, with the understanding that the Synods of South Carolina and Georgia raise each the same amount. May the Lord prosper them in this undertaking!

SYNODICAL FEMALE HIGH SCHOOL OF THE SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.

A very interesting communication has been received from the Rev. W. H. Mitchell of Florence, Alabama, informing us of an important educational movement in that town, transferring the Florence Female Academy to the Synod, with its buildings, valued at $10,000, and a pledge to raise $10,000 more by the citizens of that place. The following, taken from the Presbyterian Herald, contains a statement of the principal facts in the case, and a wish to engage the services of a Principal for the Institution.

Florence Female Academy.—The Board of Aldermen of the city of Florence, Alabama, and the Trustees of the Female Academy located in that place, have each conveyed to the Synod of Nashville said Academy and all its buildings, on condition that the Synod shall establish therein a Female High School. The buildings are estimated at $10,000, and the citizens are raising $10,000 additional to enlarge and beautify the present structure. The Synod has been called to meet in Nashville on the 10th of January, to receive and ratify these donations. They wish to have the names and testimonials of a Principal and two assistants before that time, to take charge of the Institution. A gentleman of experience and popular manners is desired for the post of Principal, and one acquainted with the manners and habits of the people in the general region from which the patronage will come, would be preferred. A salary of $1500 can probably be guaranteed to the Principal the first year. Letters addressed to Rev. W. H. Mitchell, Florence, will receive attention.

TALLADEGA FEMALE INSTITUTE.

This Institution has been tendered to the Synod of Alabama, and a Committee appointed to report at the next meeting of Synod. The following is the offer of the Board of Trustees:

Talladega, October 13, 1854.

To the Moderator of the Synod of Alabama.

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Presbyterian Collegiate Female Institute, of this place, it was resolved unanimously, that the undersigned, being the regularly elected officers, and legally constituted representatives of the above mentioned Institution, do hereby propose to convey to the Synod of Alabama, all right, title, and claim, vested in us, (which is clear and undisputed,) to the lot, buildings, library, chemical and philosophical apparatus, mineral and geological specimens, musical instruments, desks, seats, stoves, lamps, &c., belonging to, and constituting the property of, the Institution, which, at a moderate estimate, we believe to be worth not less than fifteen thousand dollars; ten thousand of which has been paid in, or is in our possession in available assets, now due, and which can be cashed in a short time. The other five thousand dollars is in the shape of a loan to us, by an individual, without limit of time, so long as the interest is paid annually, until the principal is all paid.

In the event Synod should fail, for twelve months at any time, to maintain on the property a school of the order above mentioned, then the property, with all its above-mentioned appurtenances, shall revert to us again.

It may not be amiss for us to state, that the Institution closed its fifth scholastic year in July last, in a very prosperous condition, with about eighty-five pupils, principally from Presbyterian families, and in the advanced classes of the Institution. And that our principal object in the above proposition to Synod is, that the Institution may be thereby enabled to extend the inestimable benefits of a Christian education to the rising generation throughout our Synod, by securing a liberal patronage from every church in its bounds.

Very respectfully your brethren in Christ Jesus,

L. E. Parsons, James Isbell, A. White, J. C. Knox, A. Cunningham, Wm. B. M'Clellan, Thomas M. Cameron.

ZION SEMINARY, MISSISSIPPI.

We are happy to learn that the Rev. A. R. Graves, Principal of this Seminary, has succeeded in obtaining competent associates, both in the Male and Female Departments, and that the prospects of the institution were never more encouraging than at present. The total number of pupils on the roll is 129. It is a very important institution for that section of our country.

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE, MISSOURI.

Several communications of recent date show that the patrons of this Institution are prosecuting this work with diligence and success. The catalogue and course of studies exhibit an encouraging roll of students; and the programme of studies, if faithfully carried out, will make the college an invaluable blessing to the citizens of Missouri. They hope to complete the endowment during the next year. We trust they will be successful.

ALEXANDER COLLEGE, IOWA.

The annual report of the President of this infant college, received at the office of the Board of Education, exhibits much zeal and energy on the part of its friends, in getting this Institution under way. Thus far they have succeeded as well as they had reason to expect. Their great desideratum is an endowment. An agent has been appointed for raising funds; but in this season of pecuniary pressure, he must not be disappointed nor discouraged if he meets with unusual obstacles. The location is said to be eligible, and its prospective usefulness very great. We commend it to the prayers and benefactions of all who seek the diffusion of a sound literature and evangelical religion in that new but growing State.

CARROLL COLLEGE, WISCONSIN.

A letter from the President contains the gratifying intelligence that this Institution is steadily advancing in the number of students; the number of students being more than doubled since last year; and that some additions are making to the endowment fund. They have an agent now engaged in this work, and he meets with encouraging success.

VAN RENSSELAER ACADEMY, MISSOURI.

This institution is represented as being in a prosperous condition. There was unusual seriousness among the pupils previous to the Christmas vacation; and since their return, this state of things appears to continue. Prayer-meetings are well attended and very solemn. May the Lord make those dear youth the trophies of his grace.

MALE AND FEMALE ACADEMIES AT FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

The Reports from these two Institutions continue to be favourable. The number of pupils in the former is 66; in the latter, 54. Daily devotional exercises and recitations from the Bible have been kept up, and occasional singing. This also will be daily hereafter. The last report asks, "Will any good friend to liberal and Christian education present us a small apparatus? There is nothing of this kind in all this region, and while we actually need it, we should be greatly advanced in reputation by the possession of it." Who will give a favourable response to this request?

FEMALE COLLEGE AT GRIFFIN, GEORGIA.

We publish in another column the advertisement of this institution, and are able to say, from a personal acquaintance with President Martin, and the place in which it is located, that its advantages are by no means overrated by the Secretary of the Board of Trustees. President Martin seems to be one of those whom Providence has raised up and especially endowed for the office of a teacher; and having devoted his life to the employment, has exhibited a zeal and ability in the discharge of his duties which have given him a reputation surpassed by that of no man of equal age in the South. As it respects health, and exemption from all influences unfavourable to mental and moral improvement, we know not where parents could find greater security than in the city—for such we believe it is called—in which the college is situated. The pupils board in private families, of which the size of the place affords a sufficient number of a desirable character, to offer ample accommodations for a considerable advance on the very encouraging number (over a hundred) of the past session. The religious influence pervading the institution is good; not obtrusively or offensively sectarian, yet—as we understand it—distinctively Presbyterian. The college has been established by the Synod of Georgia, as one of the two noble enterprises of the body, to secure to the daughters of the Church and State the amplest means of obtaining a thorough education, consonant in all respects with their position in society, and their duties and responsibilities in life. —Southern Presbyterian.

GREENSBORO' FEMALE COLLEGE.

Exercises will be resumed on Tuesday, January 3d, 1854.

FACULTY.

Rev. I. S. K. Axson, President, and Instructor in Mental and Moral Science.

Mr. J. R. Blake, Professor of Mathematics and Natural Science.

Mr. Benjamin P. Lanneau, Professor of Vocal and Instrumental Music.

Miss Anna M. Olcott, Instructress in Mathematics and English Branches.

Miss A. P. Hamilton, Instructress in English Branches.

Miss Anna M. Lyman, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental Music.

Boarding, in private families, at $12 per month.

Dec. 7

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Education. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to all the Honorary members every year.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The sum of Seventy-five dollars forms a scholarship to assist a student in the collegiate course, and the sum of One Hundred dollars in the theological course.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, IN DECEMBER, 1854.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Presbytery of Londonderry.

2d ch Newburyport 34; Antrim ch addl 14 — $48 00

Presbytery of Troy.

1st ch Stillwater — 37 00

Presbytery of Albany.

Windsor ch 14; Ballston Centre ch 13 38 — 27 38

Presbytery of Buffalo City.

1st ch East Aurora — 6 00

Presbytery of North River.

Newburgh ch, Thanksgiving collection — 18 54

Presbytery of Bedford.

South East Centre ch — 14 75

Presbytery of Long Island.

Bridge Hampton ch — 23 00

Presbytery of New York.

Newtown ch 33; 1st ch New York 1600 — 1633 00

Presbytery of Passaic.

Newark 3d ch — 144 35

Presbytery of West Jersey.

Salem ch — 21 62

Presbytery of Newton.

Hackettstown ch — 36 04

Presbytery of Raritan.

1st and 2d chs of Amwell — 22 00

Presbytery of Luzerne.

Wilkesbarre ch — 30 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Central ch, J Boyles 10; 6th ch, Samuel Beatty addl 1; 10th ch, Benjamin Orne 4 — 15 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia 2d.

Newtown ch — 6 75

Presbytery of New Castle.

New London ch, Benevolent Fund of — 40 00

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Waynesburg and Newton Hamilton ch 180, less discount 8 — 172 00

Presbytery of Washington.

Washington ch — 55 41

Presbytery of Richland.

Waterford ch addl 50 cts; Frederick ch addl 50 cts — 1 00

Presbytery of Crawfordsville.

Eugene ch — 3 00

Presbytery of Des Moines.

Washington ch — 6 00

Presbytery of Peoria.

1st ch Peoria 38; 1st ch Farmington 10 — 48 00

Presbytery of West Hanover.

1st ch Lynchburg — 23 53

Presbytery of Montgomery.

Salem ch — 60 50

Presbytery of Fayetteville.

Wilmington ch — 5 00

Presbytery of Hopewell.

Millegeville ch, collected by Mr Nesbit, Treasurer 21 90, R M Orme, Dr White, Wm G Robinson, A M Nesbit, Wm Turk, and Col McKinley, each 10, Mrs Nichols 5, Cash 5=70 towards an annual scholarship — 91 90

Presbytery of Florida.

Mrs D A Cook of Albany, Georgia — 5 00

Presbytery of Louisiana.

Carmel ch, Ladies Sewing Society of, special — 120 00

$2714 77

REFUNDED.

R D 38 75; J D C 75, less exchange 1 12 — 112 63

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs Botts' Female Presbyterian Education Society of Petersburg, Va 100; Mrs Irwin, Shippensburgh, Pa 5; F S Newcomer, M D, Indianapolis, Ind 5; Miss A De F Allen of Westernville, N Y 50 cts; Rev S S Laws, Fulton, Mo 8 25; Danville, Ky, Prem. on draft sent 6; Mrs C N Doty Mifflintown, Pa 5; Rev G S Woodhull 5; C P W, bal to con WILLIAM DODDS, Low Point, Ill, hon mem 30; Two Friends, A and B, New York 1000; Mr George Baird, Washington, Pa 22 — 1186 75

$4014 15

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &C.

Presbytery of Genesee River.

Tuscarora ch 15; Portageville ch 10 — 25 00

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Alexandria ch, special — 48 25

Presbytery of Carlisle.

Ladies of Rev James Harper's ch, Shippensburg, on account scholarship in Carroll College, Wis — 116 02

Presbytery of Winnebago.

First ch Fort Winnebago, special — 50 00

Total, $4253 42

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURGH, PA., IN DECEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Steubenville.

First ch Steubenville — $36 00

J. S. LEECH, MCALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, IN DECEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Indianapolis.

Franklin ch — $23 00

Presbytery of Chicago.

North Presbyterian ch Chicago — 145 00

Presbytery of Louisville.

Mr Ezra Howe 1; Pennsylvania Run ch 1 — 2 00

$170 00

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, New York, Jan. 13th, 1855.

Africa.—Our latest dates are from Corisco, October 7th, and from Monrovia the 10th of November. At the former place the missionaries were enjoying good health, and were actively engaged in getting their houses rebuilt. The school had been reopened, and most of their missionary labours were going on as formerly.

The church at Monrovia had received an accession of twelve members, and there seemed to be an interesting state of religious feeling among the congregation at large. Mr. James had suffered a good deal from sickness, but was better at the date of our letters.

Indian Missions.—The latest intelligence from these missions are, from Tallahassee, November 29th; Chickasaw Mission, December 5th; Iowa and Sac, December 18th; Omaha and Otoe, 21st December; Choctaw, December 18th; and from the Chippewa, 30th November. The schools among the Chippewas are well attended, and there seems to be a growing desire among the tribe to have their children educated. The committee have received applications from three separate villages to establish schools among them; and this they would gladly do, if they had suitable men and the necessary funds.

From Spencer Academy we receive intelligence of the hopeful conversion of a young man in that institution, who promises to be very useful.

The mission family, as also the pupils at Wapanucka, are in the enjoyment of excellent health. One of the young ladies who has recently been united to that institution as a teacher, writes in the following very cheerful strain: "As I have been here only four weeks, I am not prepared to write much yet. I will merely speak of my present feelings and impressions. Satisfied that I am now where the Lord would have me be, I am in a happy, peaceful, light-hearted, and thankful frame of mind all the day long. Not a cloud yet, not one of those difficulties I anticipated. . . . . I have much to encourage me—think I enjoy the love and confidence of my children. They evidently try to please me, &c."

At Tallahassee there had been a good deal of sickness, and we have received the afflictive intelligence of the death of a pious and most excellent Indian girl, connected with that institution, by the name of Grace Leeds. Mr. Loughridge speaks in commendatory terms of the zeal and energy of the young ladies who have recently joined that institution, and represents the school as being carried on with increased efficiency. The school at Bellevue among the Omahas contains a number of Pawnee and Sioux scholars; these have been transferred to the school among the Iowas. This measure will make it practicable to receive a larger number of Omahas in the school at Bellevue.

China.—We have letters from Shanghai, October 3d; Ningpo, September 18th; and Canton, October 24th. Rev. Reuben Lowrie and his wife arrived at Shanghai on the 2d of October, having had a long, but in other respects pleasant voyage; and they expressed themselves under many obligations to the captain and officers of the ship for their kindness. The fate of Shanghai is apparently as far from being settled as it was a year ago. Mr. Culbertson remarks: "The rebels still hold out, though much reduced in number, and also, it would seem, in pecuniary means. For a time there was an almost total cessation of fighting, but it has now begun again with renewed vigour. It is impossible to say how long it will be before we can occupy our house at the south gate, and we are still in the dark as to the immediate necessity of building." At Ningpo the mission families were all in the enjoyment of good health, with the exception of Mr. Quarterman, who had found it necessary to go to Shanghai for a change of air.

Our letters from Canton communicate the intelligence of the failure of the health of Mrs. Happer, and the opinion of the mission that it would be necessary for Dr. Happer to return with her to this country at an early period.

Mr. Preston was at Macao the early part of October, but was expecting to return to Canton in a few days, to take charge of the school that will be left vacant by the absence of Dr. Happer; and the female school under the care of Mrs. Happer will be turned over to the care of Mrs. French.

Siam.—Letters have been received from Bankok as late as the 6th October. Speaking of their labours there, Mr. Mattoon remarks: "We are going on with our daily work, but can speak of nothing particularly encouraging, unless it be a large increase, for a week or two past, in the number of those calling for books. If we could persuade ourselves that it indicated an increasing desire to know and obey the truth, we should indeed rejoice; but we fear in most cases it is only to gratify curiosity or the love of acquisition, that leads them to take anything that is given away. The present increase may be owing to temporary causes, and may not continue. But we would rejoice at every opportunity of making known the gospel, looking to God for his blessing upon his own truth. That the distribution of books, whatever be the motives of those who receive them, results in extending the knowledge of the gospel, we know, for we make it a prerequisite to receiving a second book, that some account of the first should be given. And many in this way have read our entire catalogue of books." The mission family were in good health, and they were greatly pleased to hear that a missionary and his wife (Mr. and Mrs. Charlton) had been designated to that station.

India.—The latest intelligence from our missions in India are, Allahabad, November 6th; Agra, November 8th; Futtehgurh, November 6th; Mynpurie, October 1st; Saharanpur, October 18th; and Lahor, October 17th. At Agra the missionaries were generally well, and their missionary labours were going on as usual. Our letter from Futtehgurh says, "We have two very interesting inquirers here at present—one of whom is a Moulwee from Lucknow, and is, I trust, a sincere one. The other was sent here by Mr. Scott, to escape the persecution of his friends. I trust the hopes that have been raised by these men may not be frustrated, but my experience teaches me to be cautious." At Allahabad the missionaries were all well, and the only item of interest that has been reported is the organization of a new church at Futtehpoor.

Mention is made in our letter from Mynpurie, of a newspaper that had been put in circulation in the Bengalee language by a wealthy native of Calcutta, intended for circulation among females, inculcating the duties of social life, and advocating the cause of female education.

The missionaries at Saharanpur were all enjoying good health, and we learn through the same source that those at Lodiana were also well. The little church that was organized at Lahore, a little more than a year ago, with eight members, now numbers seventeen. Of these, eight are engaged in missionary labour, either as teachers or catechists, and two are candidates for the gospel ministry.

INDIAN MISSIONS.

JOURNAL OF A TOUR THROUGH THE INDIAN COUNTRY, BY REV. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, SECRETARY OF THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Our missionary party, consisting of Mr. A. Campbell Falconer, Mr. Elias Golde and wife, Miss Anna Ogden, Misses Elizabeth and Naomi Diament, Miss Mary Price, and myself, left New York on Monday evening the 2d of October, and arrived at St. Louis on Friday following. At Buffalo we were joined by Miss Margaret Davidson, at Chicago by Rev. J. F. Burns and Miss Mary J. Thayer, and at St. Louis by Miss F. K. Thompson, making our whole party twelve.

Finding it uncertain when we would be able to reach Jefferson City by a steamboat, in consequence of the lowness of the water, we engaged an extra coach to take nine of our party as far as Springfield, Missouri, and secured seats for three others in the mail coach, all to leave on Monday morning.

Sabbath evening, according to a previous arrangement with the ministerial brethren of the place, a general meeting was held in Dr. Rice's church, when I had the opportunity of introducing our missionary party to the friends of missions in that city, and of presenting the cause of Foreign Missions to a large and apparently interested assembly.

We left St. Louis on Monday morning, and reached Jefferson City, the capital of the State of Missouri, the next afternoon, and were unexpectedly detained here twenty-four hours, for the want of a suitable coach to take us on.

The whole of our party arrived at Springfield on Saturday; those in the extra in the forenoon, and those in the mail coach in the afternoon; having travelled three hundred miles in five days. This was the most fatiguing part of our journey, as we had to travel night and day, but all kept in good spirits, and we had not a single case of serious sickness. The coaches were better, and the roads were not so bad as we had anticipated. Our drivers, too, though men of coarse exterior and unpolished manners, were always kind and accommodating, and faithfully transmitted from one to the other the injunction of the proprietors in St. Louis, "not to swear in the presence of the ladies, and to keep the coach right side up."

On Monday morning we parted with Mr. Falconer and Miss Davidson, who took the mail coach for Fayetteville and Van Buren, being their most direct way to Spencer Academy, the station to which they had been designated. For the rest of our party we hired a buggy and a Jersey wagon, and got a common wagon to take our baggage.

We left Springfield on Tuesday morning, and without any incident of special interest, arrived at Mayesville, a small village on the dividing line between the State of Arkansas and the Cherokee country, on Friday afternoon; having travelled from twenty-five to thirty-five miles a day. Here we got our first view of Indians; and it will always be a painful reminiscence, that the first we saw were an intoxicated party of men and women. The Cherokees are not allowed to use or traffic in ardent spirits in their own country, but here they may come and indulge to any extent they please.

Moravian Missionary Station.

We proceeded five miles farther the same afternoon, and stayed at Mr. Mack's, a Moravian missionary from North Carolina stationed at this place. We were kindly received and entertained, and it was very refreshing to us all to be in a Christian family, and to be assembled once more around a family altar. As we stayed but a single night, we had little or no opportunity of making ourselves acquainted with the affairs of this mission; but from the Christian spirit evinced by Mr. Mack and his family, we have no doubt that their influence is felt for good. A Christian church has been organized in connection with this station, but the number of church members is not yet very considerable.

We left Mr. Mack's on Saturday morning, and hoped to have reached Park Hill, the station occupied by the venerable Samuel Worcester of the American Board, the same evening, but we found the road so difficult that we did not make more than half the distance. We were glad, however, to have the opportunity of spending the Sabbath quietly at another Moravian station called "New Spring Place." This is their principal station in the country, and is occupied by Rev. Messrs. Bishop and Farewell, the former from Pennsylvania, and the latter from Salem, North Carolina, and their families. We were received with a great deal of cordiality here also, and could not have found a more quiet or pleasant place to spend the Sabbath. They have a school and a church on the mission premises. We had no opportunity to examine the former, but it afforded us all great pleasure to have the opportunity of worshipping with a small but interesting assembly of Indian converts, brought to the knowledge of the Saviour by the labours of these faithful missionaries. I would most gladly have been a hearer on this occasion, especially as I had never before been in an Indian assembly, and scarcely knew in what terms to address them, so as to reach their comprehension. But I was hardly allowed any option in the matter. Judge Hicks, an aged Cherokee, and for many years a very consistent and upright member of the church, was engaged as my interpreter. I had heard of him, however, as being somewhat eccentric, and one peculiarity among others was, that he could never be drawn into conversation by a stranger. I felt like experimenting upon this trait of character, and when introduced, remarked, that I had heard of him before I came to his country. He took off his hat, and passing his fingers through his grey hairs, simply replied, that "he had now been a long time in the world." His manner as interpreter was equally peculiar. He kept his seat in one corner of the pulpit, and interpreted readily and accurately everything that was said, but with as little apparent emotion as if he had been a statue of marble. I tried to rouse him from this monotonous mood, by turning to him and inquiring if he comprehended what I said. He took not the slightest notice of my interrogatory, but simply interpreted what I had said. The attention of the audience, too, at first was anything but satisfactory. Every eye seemed to be intently fixed upon the floor, and if it had not been for a tear I detected stealing down a cheek here and there, I would have concluded that my preaching was wholly unsuited to their circumstances. I was told after we came out of church, however, that this was their invariable manner, of which I had abundant proof in my future intercourse with them. In this respect the Indians and the Africans are antipodes; the latter always fond of displaying their emotions, and the former as studiously careful to conceal them.

On Saturday night one of our hired horses was stolen, and we suspected very strongly, by a Cherokee who passed us in the afternoon, but who was unknown to the people in the neighbourhood, from the description we were able to give of his person. The driver spent most of the Sabbath in a vain search for his lost property, and continued it on Monday, but with what success we never learned. The brethren at New Spring Place kindly loaned us a couple of horses and procured us a driver to take us as far as Park Hill. I purchased a horse here, and commenced horseback travelling, which I did not relinquish until I had finished my tour in the Indian country.

Talequa the Capital of the Cherokee country.

We parted with these Christian friends, grateful for the kindness we had experienced at their hands, and with pleasant recollections of the social and religious intercourse we had been permitted to have with them. After a journey of five or six hours over a broken wooded country, we reached Talequa, the capital of the Cherokee country. It is a village of not more than eight hundred or a thousand inhabitants perhaps, but is handsome and neater in its general appearance than any village we had seen to the west of St. Louis. It is of a quadrangular form, enclosing a beautiful wooded square of an acre or more. The houses are large and commodious, and are either of brick or neatly framed and painted, and generally of two stories high. As we rode up there was a large number of persons assembled in the public square, some sitting, some standing, and others reclining on blankets spread on the ground, listening to a paper that some one was reading from a platform in the public square. After alighting and ordering dinner, Mr. Burns and I went to the place to hear what was being read. It proved to be a memorial addressed to Congress, requesting the abandonment of Fort Gibson as a military post in the Cherokee country. It was read first in English, and then translated into Cherokee. We heard only a few of the concluding paragraphs, but these left the impression upon our minds that it was a document worthy to be laid before any deliberative assembly in the world, and we were both struck with the very happy manner in which it was read. The author, we afterwards learned, had been a student of Princeton college. While in Talequa, I was introduced to John Ross, the chief of the Cherokee nation; and although I had but a few minutes conversation with him, I received the most favourable impression of his character, as a man of general intelligence, and as one deeply interested in the welfare of his nation. He gave me a cordial invitation to visit him at his own house, but my engagements were such that I could not comply with his request.

We left Talequa at 3 o'clock P. M., with the view of spending the night at Park Hill. At the distance of a mile or more from the village, we passed the buildings of the Cherokee High School for boys, and soon after came to the Female Seminary, where we stopped an hour or more, and had a pleasant interview with the teachers and others connected with the institution. We were conducted through the building, and had an opportunity to see its internal arrangements; but as the school was not in session at the time, we could form no idea of the progress which the pupils were making from personal observation. But from what we learned from others, and what we would infer of the efficiency of the teachers from our short acquaintance with them, we have no doubt the institution is in a flourishing condition. It is said that the Male Seminary is also conducted with equally as much efficiency. The Cherokees feel very proud of these seminaries, and do not like to have them confounded with the missionary institutions of the country. The buildings are of brick, of square form, two stories high, surrounded on two sides with pillars, and present something of an imposing appearance. They are intended to accommodate sixty pupils each, and this is the number in attendance at the present time. The country around Talequa is exceedingly beautiful, and there are a few houses in the vicinity that would not appear to disadvantage in any part of the United States. John Ross, I understood, lives in a fine house, surrounded by a garden of beautiful flowers and every variety of shrubbery. I was sorry I had not time to visit him at his own house.

Mission station at Park Hill—Fort Gibson.

We reached Mr. Worcester's residence about dark, and were welcomed with true cordiality. Mr. Worcester has been engaged in the missionary work about thirty years, and may be regarded as the father of the Cherokee mission. He has never visited his native State since he first entered upon the missionary work, and if I remember aright, he has never seen a rail-car. Besides preaching the gospel statedly in a church near his own dwelling, and in other parts of the country as he has opportunity and strength, he is laboriously engaged in translating the Scriptures into the Cherokee language. Mrs. Worcester has also been long engaged in the missionary work, but was in very infirm health at the time we were there. We sat up until after midnight, talking over matters pertaining to the Redeemer's kingdom, and I shall always remember this interview with grateful feelings, especially that I was permitted to speak words of comfort and encouragement to these veteran servants of the Lord Jesus.

The horses that were furnished by our Moravian brethren were returned, and others were kindly loaned us by Mr. Worcester and Rev. Stephen Foreman to take us to Tallahassee. We had on this occasion a Cherokee for our driver, but he was so unskilful that I assumed the reins myself, and drove most of the forenoon. I was glad, however, to surrender them to a young man who accompanied us to Tallahassee, and once more mounted on horseback, which was much more to my liking. We reached Fort Gibson about 2 o'clock P. M., after a pleasant ride of twenty-five miles over alternate prairies and wooded land. Fort Gibson consists almost entirely of wooden buildings, but has a beautiful situation, and with its neat white-washed outbuildings and fences, makes quite an imposing appearance. Our road lay immediately through the enclosure, but we made no stop. We crossed successively the Neosho and the Verdigris rivers, both so low that we forded them without the least difficulty. After crossing these rivers we entered the Creek country, and we were soon aware that we were among a different people from those with whom we had become familiar in the last four or five days' travel. If the Creeks live in smaller houses, have fewer educated men among them, and make less pretension to civilization than the Cherokees, they are more industrious, and give stronger and more unequivocal proofs of real thrift in their well cultivated farms, and in the abundance of live stock which may be seen about their farms. The Indians here, however, as in all other parts of the country, avoid living near the highway, and no one gets a proper idea either of their population or improvements, by simply passing through their country.

Mission at Tallahassee.

We reached Tallahassee about sunset, and were so heartily welcomed by the mission family there, that we soon forgot all the toil and fatigue of our long journey. Three of the young ladies, Miss Price and the Misses Diament, as also Mr. Golde and his wife, had been designated to this station, and they of course looked upon this, their new home, and the scene of their future labours, with peculiar interest. We were glad to find the mission family in the enjoyment of good health, and all cheerfully engaged in the performance of their varied duties.

The Seminary building at Tallahassee is a brick edifice one hundred feet long and forty wide, is three stories high, and is surmounted by a neat belfry of corresponding size and height. It stands in a pleasant oak grove, is surrounded by a neat fence of palings; and in a part of the country where there are but few houses except log huts, it presents quite a stately appearance, and is altogether worthy of the great object for which it was founded. It is intended to accommodate eighty pupils, besides the mission families, and this is the number in attendance at the present time, one-half of whom are females. This institution is supported in a large measure by funds devoted to the purpose by the Creek Council. The pupils are selected by a Board of Trustees appointed for this purpose, and none can enter the institution except with their concurrence. The present session commenced the week before our arrival, and the Trustees met the day after, for the purpose of filling up some six or eight vacancies that had occurred in the school. I was glad of this, as it gave me the opportunity of seeing a good many of the leading men of the nation, whom I would not otherwise have met. On this occasion the number of applicants was twice as many as the vacancies. Some of these had come twenty, others thirty, and a few even forty miles, accompanied by one or the other of their parents, with the view of urging their claims with the Trustees. Three benches were placed in the centre of the room where the Trustees met, and the applicants were seated upon these to see who would be chosen. The Trustees, all of whom spoke English, discussed the claims of each candidate with the utmost freedom, but were not understood either by the parents or the children. In every case a formal vote was taken. If favourable, it seldom failed to kindle a smile on the countenance of both child and parent; but if otherwise, the feeling of disappointment was equally manifest. One was rejected because she was under the age required by law for admission; another was rejected because he had been in the school once before, and ran away as soon as he got a new suit of clothes; and a third was declined because he was known to be so turbulent that it was not believed that he could live in peace with the rest of the boys.

After the examination, the Trustees were conducted through the whole building, inspecting the school rooms, sleeping apartments, dining room, &c. All of them seemed highly pleased with the general arrangements of the establishment and the efficiency with which the school was conducted, and with these views I heartily concur. I was particularly pleased with the rules that were enforced in the dining-room. The boys and girls enter from opposite sides of the house, and are seated at five different tables, at the head of each of which there is a teacher or some other member of the mission family, who presides, and sees that they conduct themselves with propriety. When all are seated and become perfectly quiet, a blessing is asked in such a manner that every individual in the room may hear it. Family worship is conducted in the dining-room after the morning and evening meals; and on one or the other of these occasions, every individual in the room except the very smallest children, are required to repeat a verse of Scripture, which prolongs the whole exercise of family worship to more than half an hour.

The principal part of the children are still in the elementary parts of their education, but their progress in study is decidedly encouraging. Most of them can read both English and Muskogee fluently and write intelligibly, and a good many are familiar with Arithmetic, Geography, and have some knowledge of English Grammar. I brought away with me a good many specimens of their composition, and they are such as would be creditable to children of similar ages anywhere. But with nothing was I more favourably impressed than the quiet and orderly deportment of the children, both in and out of school, the cleanliness of their persons, and their cheerful and intelligent countenances. The fact is, this institution is laying the foundation of a better state of society among the Creeks, social, intellectual, and religious, than anything they have ever before known; and it is very gratifying to perceive that the people themselves are beginning to appreciate its importance, and feel more desirous than ever to have their children enjoy the benefits of education. In former years the Creeks became decidedly opposed to all missionary operations, and required the few missionaries who were living among them at the time to leave the country. The judicious and conciliatory course pursued by Mr. Loughridge after he settled among them, produced an entire change in their views and feelings, so that none of the Indian tribes at the present time are more open to religious influences than they. They have not so much cultivation as the Choctaws and Cherokees, but they are more industrious, and their future prospects are quite as flattering as either.

The institution at Tallahassee was commenced and is still carried on under the general superintendence of Mr. Loughridge, who is eminently qualified by his executive talents, his conciliatory manners, and decided piety, for so responsible a trust. Besides the general superintendence of the school, he is engaged in the study of the language and in preparing translations, and preaches extensively to the people in the surrounding country. Mrs. Loughridge was formerly principal of the Cherokee Female High School, and conducted it with decided efficiency. Her presence is an important acquisition to the institution at Tallahassee. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson have heretofore sustained almost the whole labour of teaching, and his health has suffered in consequence. The reinforcement of teachers which they have now received will lighten their labours, and the school, no doubt, will be conducted hereafter with still greater efficiency. Mrs. Reid and Miss Thompson, the former as superintendent of domestic affairs, and the latter as superintendent of the girls out of school, have contributed largely to the general welfare of the Seminary.

Kowetah.

On Thursday morning I set out on horseback to visit the station at Kowetah, which is sixteen miles north-west of Tallahassee. I was accompanied by one of the boys of the school by the name of Pleasant Porter, and I found him in every respect a very pleasant boy. Our road, with the exception of a mile at either end, lay through an open and beautiful prairie. Herds of cows and droves of horses were seen grazing in every direction, but there were no signs of human habitations, except along the edge of the woods which skirted the prairie on either side. We reached Kowetah about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and found the mission family well and all glad to see us. In the afternoon Mr. Templeton and I rode through the neighbourhood and called at the houses of several Indian families, most of whom belonged to the church at Kowetah. This was a pleasing duty. It gave me the opportunity of seeing more of the Indians at their own homes, and of becoming acquainted with the character and external circumstances of those that were members of the church; and I had the opportunity, likewise, of speaking words of comfort and consolation to these simple-hearted disciples of the Redeemer. Most of them were living in comfortable circumstances, and as far as I could judge from my very transient intercourse with them, they were living as it became the disciples of Christ.

As I had only one night to spend at Kowetah, Mr. Templeton made arrangements for me to preach in the school house at candle light; and when the hour arrived, the people were called together by the blowing of a horn, which is a very general custom in the Indian country. The audience was not very large, but I preached to those who were there with great comfort to myself, and, I trust, not without profit to them. I had an excellent interpreter in a young man by the name of Winslett, who was educated at Tallahassee, and who has been received under the care of the Creek Presbytery, with the view of qualifying himself for the ministry. He acted in the same capacity at Tallahassee several times afterwards, and I am not aware that I ever met with one better qualified for this kind of service. He seems to be a truly pious and conscientious young man, fond of study, and very desirous of preaching the gospel, but met with some reverses a short time since which threatened to disappoint these hopes. These difficulties will be removed, however, and I trust he will be permitted to preach, and became a great blessing to his countrymen.

The school at Kowetah contains upwards of thirty boarding scholars, about one-fourth of whom are girls, and is conducted on the same general plan with that at Tallahassee. It is taught by Miss Stanislaus, who is herself a converted Indian girl. Miss Workman taught this school several years, and very efficiently, but her health having failed, she found it necessary to give up teaching, and has since devoted her time to the superintendence of domestic affairs.

Return to Tallahassee.

Mr. Templeton accompanied me on my return to Tallahassee the next day. The wind was in our faces as we passed over the prairie, and the minute particles of dust that got lodged in my eyes so inflamed them that I could not use them for reading or writing for ten days afterwards.

On our arrival we found that our baggage wagon had arrived, and were not a little surprised to find that Mr. Allan had also arrived from Wapanucka, for the purpose of accompanying us to that place. He left home expecting to meet us at the Seminole mission, which is not more than fifty miles from Wapanucka; but not meeting us there, he rode a hundred miles farther to Tallahassee.

Much of the next day (Saturday) was spent in fitting up an old wagon to take our trunks and a part of the remainder of our company to Wapanucka. It looked very much like one of Adams & Co.'s old express wagons that I had seen in New York, but Mr. Loughridge insisted that it was new when it came to him, which may have been the case, but its lustre was all gone, and I felt very doubtful about its ability to take us a hundred and fifty miles, and especially as a part of that distance would be through a country without a road. I preached on Saturday evening to the mission family and such persons from the neighbourhood as could be brought together by the blowing of a horn.

On Sabbath I addressed the children of the Sabbath-school in the morning, and afterwards preached to a promiscuous audience from the words, "Go ye into all the world," &c. Mr. Burns preached in the afternoon. We had good audiences both parts of the day.

Journey from Tallahassee to the Seminole Mission.

On Monday morning, 30th October, we bid adieu to these dear Christian friends, and set out on our journey to the Seminole Mission. It was a trial to separate from friends who had endeared themselves to us in so many ways, and especially those who had been our fellow travellers for four weeks. No doubt they felt as much, perhaps more, when they saw us turn our backs on them and ride off. Miss Thompson, Mr. Allan, and I were mounted on horseback, whilst Mr. Burns, Miss Thayer, and Miss Ogden, took their seats in the wagon along with the trunks.

Mr. Loughridge accompanied us on horseback as far as the Creek agency. Two miles from Tallahassee we forded the Arkansas river, which, though navigable for steamboats at most seasons of the year, was not now more than knee-deep to our horses. The sand was so deep and soft, however, that it was with some difficulty that the horses could get the wagon across. At the Creek agency we exchanged our wagon for another that was larger and stronger, and in every way better suited to our wants, but without springs.

It was twelve o'clock before we got away from this place, it having been necessary for us to purchase Indian blankets, hatchets, cooking utensils, and provisions for camping out, in case it became necessary.

We had proceeded but a short way before we entered a prairie, which seemed to spread out indefinitely before us. High hills, like graceful waves, spread around us in every direction, and almost made us fancy that we were on the bosom of a great ocean. In other places isolated hills of conical form rose up before us, and for a time it was hard for us to realize that they were not the work of art. Those of us who were on horseback climbed up to the top of one of the highest of these, known as the "Chimney Mountain." We supposed it was three hundred feet high, and found the summit covered with large masses of loose brown sand-stone. The view from this eminence was extensive, and one of the richest and most varied I ever saw. Indeed, it was worth a long journey to see it. The surrounding prairie was clothed in its autumnal garb, but the interminable variety in the outlines of the hills and ranges of hills, which stretched out in every direction, not unlike the troubled surface of the ocean after a gale, presented one of the most singular and interesting landscape views I have ever seen.

We reached Elk Creek about dark, and put up at the house of a widow woman (Indian) by the name of Ward. She had a grown daughter that had been educated at one of the missionary stations in the Cherokee country, who is unmarried, and lives with her mother. The house appropriated to our use, and the only one they had to offer, except another of similar size which was used for a kitchen, was a log cabin twelve feet square by actual measurement; a small space for a party of six! But we preferred this to camping out. We had a good supper, and were thankful for the opportunity of uniting with this little Indian family in evening worship. A large bed in one corner of this little cabin afforded a comparatively comfortable place of lodging for the ladies, whilst a buffalo skin spread on a floor of split boards, with carpet bags and valises for pillows, served as a bed for the gentlemen. It was the first time I had ever tested the good qualities of a buffalo skin, but it was not the last. We had an owl serenade to put us to sleep, and a wolf reveille to rouse us from our slumbers in the morning.

Tuesday, October 31st.—We commenced our journey as soon as we got breakfast. Our next stage was thirty-five miles, and for the most part over prairies, nearly as extensive and quite as beautiful as those we had passed the day before. About 2 o'clock P. M. we crossed the North Fork, a noble river in the winter and spring seasons, but so low at this time that we forded it without the least difficulty. On the north side we saw a large number of white emigrants on their way to Texas. They had halted for the purpose of feeding their horses; and whilst the women were engaged in preparing their dinners, the men were gathered in groups under shade trees and were playing cards.

Those of us on horseback out-travelled the wagon, and towards sunset we ascended a high range of prairie hills, from the summit of which we could just discern our fellow-travellers, as they wended their way over the prairie in the dusk of the evening. We had some fears that they would not get over these hills, for they were both rocky and precipitous. Mr. Allan was with them, however, and as he was an experienced traveller, we knew he would manage to get them along if any one could; so we rode on in the hope of getting to the house where we were to lodge and have supper prepared by the time of their arrival. It became dark, however, and we were not without apprehensions that we might miss the house. The sound of a cow-bell assured us that we were not far off, and very soon we found a path which led to the place. The proprietor could speak no English, but Mr. Hay of the Baptist mission, whose station is near this place, and who happened to be here at the time, came forward and introduced himself, and assured us that we had found the right place, and the only one in ten miles where we could be accommodated. The rest of the party came up in less than an hour, and found the supper already prepared. We had a more commodious house than the one where we stayed the night before, and all were provided with comfortable lodgings, for which, however, we were charged pretty roundly the next morning.

Wednesday, November 1st.—We were now forty-five miles from Oakridge, the station among the Seminoles. This was a longer stage than our wagon could possibly make in one day, but as we were all desirous of reaching Wapanucka by Saturday night, and as I wanted to spend at least one whole day at the Seminole mission, I determined to leave the wagon behind, and make one day's journey of it. Miss Thompson rode a spirited horse, and she thought she could perform the journey too, and greatly preferred this to spending the night at an intermediate Indian house, where the accommodations were known to be very poor. I was glad to have her company, but was afraid it might be too great a trial of her strength; but as she had some experience in this kind of travelling, and was confident of her ability to endure the fatigue, I yielded. We got the minutest directions about the road from Mr. Allan and others, and made them point out also the general course we were to travel. We set off by 8 o'clock A. M., leaving Mr. Allan to settle our bill on as reasonable terms as possible. We had gone but a short way when we took a wrong road, notwithstanding all the directions we had received. We inquired at a house near the road, and got directions that would have set us right, if we had not made a second mistake, which led us still farther from the right course. I came to the conclusion then, that it was not safe for a stranger to travel in any part of the Indian country without a guide, on account of the endless number of roads or bridle paths (for they are little else) which intersect the country in every possible direction. My subsequent experience led me to conclude that a pocket compass, where you could be sure of your general course, was preferable even to an experienced guide.

Singular House.

On our way we passed a singular looking house, of circular form, with a high peaked roof, without windows, and with a low doorway not more than three or four feet high, and, so far as we could see, without any inhabitants. Had I passed it in Africa, I would have concluded at once that it was a house devoted to Devil-worship. We afterwards learned that it was a sort of district court house, where the people assembled in cold weather to consult on matters of public interest.

A beautiful Prairie.

Towards noon we passed over a prairie of exceeding beauty. At one time we found ourselves enclosed by an amphitheatre of prairie hills, surpassing in beauty anything of the kind we had previously seen. We were so much captivated by the beauty of the scenery and the singularity of our position in this mountain enclosure, that we forgot for a time that we were out of our way, and had a very long ride before us. On emerging from this enchanting place, we entered a wooded country, and felt sure that we would soon come to houses, where we could get information about the road. But in this we were disappointed. We rode for more than two hours, over one of the worst roads I have ever travelled, without any signs of a human habitation. The whole country seemed to be one mass of loose flint stone, and it was with the utmost difficulty that our horses could keep their feet. About two o'clock in the afternoon we came up with a party of Indians gathering pecan nuts near the roadside. None of them could speak English, but we learned by signs that there was a white man living on the road about four miles ahead of us, who could give the required information. We dismounted here about ten minutes to rest our horses, and to partake of simple lunch which we had brought along with us.

A New-Yorker in the Indian Country.

In less than an hour we rode up to a log house, which seemed to be used as a store, and a white man, in the costume of the country, came out and gave us a friendly salutation. From him we learned that we had gone about five miles out of our way; that by striking across the country in a south-westerly direction, we would reach the main road at the distance of ten miles. He gave us the name of a respectable Indian living near the place where we would intersect the main road, and where we could stay that night, in case we could not reach Oakridge, which was still distant more than twenty miles, and the sun not more than two hours high. The English name of this Indian was "Big Kane," which I taxed myself to remember, whilst Miss Thompson took charge of his Indian name, so that we might have a clue to direct our inquiries, in case we got lost the second time. I felt some curiosity to know how our informant had found his way to this distant part of the world, and felt himself so much at home in these Indian woods, and asked him how it was. He replied that he had got there "by degrees;" and no doubt, if he lives long enough, he will reach California in the same way. He is only one of hundreds of white men who may be found scattered over the Indian country. Most of them have married Indian wives, and are, to all intents and purposes, thoroughly identified with the Indian country. Many of them are good and excellent men, and have the general welfare of the country at heart; but others come here only to wring money out of these poor Indians, and return to the States to live, provided they do not lose all relish for more refined society.

Interview with Big Kane.

As the greater part of our way back to the main road lay over a prairie, we followed the general course pointed out to us, instead of trying to follow any particular path. Our horses were in good spirits, and in an hour and a half we intersected the main road just at the point where we had aimed. We rode up to the gate in front of Big Kane's house, and he had the civility to come out and meet us. Contrary to what I inferred from his name, he was a man of very diminutive stature, and was attired in anything but a dignified costume. By a mistake that was perfectly natural, but wholly unintentional, I inquired if his name was "Little Kane," at which he drew back as if offended, until Miss Thompson made the amende honorable by calling out his Indian name. Strangers travelling in the Indian country would do well to learn the names of the principal men, especially those from whom they have to ask favours; and I found it well also to learn and use their terms of salutation. They have been greatly wronged by white men, and every thing ought to be done to soothe their wounded feelings. Big Kane could speak but little English, but by the use of signs we learned that we were not more than ten or twelve miles from Mr. Lilley's. We asked for a drink of water, and it was brought to us in a clean white bowl, and was as delightful as any we ever drank.

In perplexity about the right road.

It was now nearly night, but as neither of us was fatigued, and our horses seemed to be in fine spirits, we determined to go on; so bidding adieu to our kind Indian friend, we put our horses once more on the road. We crossed a small stream near by, and as we ascended the hill on the opposite side, we entered the prairie, over which we were to travel until we came within a mile of Mr. Lilley's. The sun was setting behind a range of prairie hills in front of us, and afforded us a rich and gorgeous sight. The moon shone out brightly as the sun sank behind the hills, the air was cool and refreshing, and our horses, seeming to sympathize with the exhilaration of their riders, set off in full gallop. With the exception of the pain I was enduring from the inflamed state of my eyes, I do not know that I ever enjoyed a ride more. Miss Thompson, from having been engaged in missionary work for some years, was able to give me much information about the country, and among other things related the story of a missionary party who, a few years previously, had been compelled to wander about in the Creek country all night; not being able to find the house which they were in search of. Whether this story was suggested by apprehensions that had arisen in her mind about our finding the way to Mr. Lilley's, I do not know. We had reason very soon to fear that this might be the case. About 8 o'clock we came up to the point of wooded land stretching out into the prairie, where we confidently expected to find a path that would lead us to Mr. Lilley's, and sure enough we found one, but we had not followed it more than a quarter of a mile when it almost disappeared, and we felt sure this was not the right one. We came back to the main road, and before we had gone far we found another bridle path leading in the same direction. We followed this about the same distance, and came to a deep ravine, which we did not think it safe to attempt to cross in the night. We retraced our steps the second time, and now we began to entertain apprehensions that we might be placed in the same trying position with the party just referred to; and the prospect of wandering in the woods all night was rendered anything but cheering, by the screaming of owls and the howling of wolves, with which the woods were resounding at the time.

It was not long, however, before we found the third path, which was much more promising than either of the others we had tried. This led through thick woods and over deep ravines, which we would have been afraid to cross at night, if we had not discerned wagon tracks before us. After having rode more than a mile, the corner of a log house revealed itself in a clump of oak trees, and very soon after we had indubitable evidence that it was the Mission house. We dismounted with light hearts, but so worn and stiff that we could scarcely walk.

We had been in our saddles thirteen hours, had rode more than fifty miles, and some of the way over an excessively bad road. I need scarcely add that the family were very glad to see us, and we were equally glad to find them all well. A night's rest relieved us of all fatigue, and we could have been ready for another journey the next morning, if it had been necessary.

Seminole Mission.

The station at Oakridge is under the general superintendence of Mr. John Lilley, a very estimable layman of the Presbyterian Church. He not only teaches the school at this place, but holds religious meetings for the Seminoles whenever he can get them together, and superintends the affairs of the station. Mrs. Lilley has the charge of the children, especially the girls, when they are out of school, and attends to the domestic concerns of the station. They are assisted by John D. Bemo, a converted Seminole, and his wife, a Creek, who was educated at Tallahassee.

The mission house is a large log building, of two stories, and is intended to accommodate about thirty pupils, besides the two mission families. The number of pupils in the school at present is twenty-eight, and about one-third of these are girls.

I spent most of the forenoon in examining the school, in making inquiries about the condition of the Seminoles generally, and in considering plans by which the general interests of the mission might be promoted. The progress of the children in their studies was entirely satisfactory, and there is every reason to believe that this mission, limited in its operations as it is, is exciting a very salutary influence upon this whole tribe, and may be the means of rescuing them from utter extinction as a people. Two young men give good evidence of having been regenerated by the grace of God, and have been received into the church; and others, both in and out of the school, it is believed, are inquiring what they must do to be saved.

The rest of our party arrived about noon, and really seemed more fatigued than those of us who had travelled the whole distance in one day. At candle light I preached to the mission family and such others as happened to be present. Our visit here was short, but it was pleasant and refreshing to ourselves, and I trust not less so to those we found there.

(To be continued.)

INDIA: LODIANA MISSION.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. J. M. JAMIESON.

Missionary itinerating—Native servants—Road and appearance of the country—Bazar visited—Evening reflections.

Nagal, January 18th, 1854.—Each member of our mission is required, if possible, to spend some part of every cold season in itinerating. This is the only time that the climate of this country will permit us to visit places remote from our homes, and to engage in out-door labour. Some go on long journeys, and make known the gospel where the name of the Saviour was never before proclaimed; others confine themselves to the towns and villages adjoining their stations. Much might be said in favour of either plan; I give the preference to the latter. Every mission station ought to be a central point, from which would go out ever-widening circles of influence. Our Saviour commanded the apostles to tarry in Jerusalem until they should be baptized by the Holy Ghost; and after his glory had arisen upon them, and a mighty impulse had been given to the little band of disciples by the addition of three thousand souls to their number, they were commanded to become his witnesses unto the uttermost parts of the earth. With these views of itinerating, I left home this morning, and rode eight miles to this place. * * * My attendants have left their homes and their families in the coldest season of the year, to accompany me for a few weeks, exposed to sharp frost and chilling winds by night on the shelterless ground, and the burning sun by day, for a compensation of about six cents each per diem; and yet a more civil and cheerful set of fellows I have never seen.

The road from Ambala to this place leads directly south, and is very good. It was made by the British government some twelve years ago, from the former place to Kytal, when that Raja-ship lapsed to them. The distance between the two places is thirty-six miles. The country through which I travelled today is very beautiful and fertile. Trees of the richest foliage and most graceful shape, skirt the roads and fields, line the horizon with their deep green, and cover the numerous villages with their grateful shade. Green waving fields of wheat and barley stretch away in the distance as far as the eye can reach. Flax and various kinds of pulse, in blossom, add beauty to the scene, and fill the air with their sweetness.

After dinner, went into the bazar, and spoke to about twenty persons on the sin of idolatry. All listened attentively, and confessed it was wrong, but then it was their religion, and what could they do? Found only one reader, to whom I gave some books. Only three shops in the village.

Returned to my tent late in the evening. Here I sit all alone in my canvass house. And yet I am not alone. I feel the presence of Him who is everywhere present. Here lies before me his holy word. It tells me, "He is not far from every one of us." "Thy right hand upholdeth me." To him I commit myself and those dear ones from whom I am separated for a little season.

Conversation with a Sikh chief, who doubted his own existence—Discussion with a Maulavi.

19*th*.—Went to the bazar this morning, and talked an hour to a small audience of civil, but ignorant men. One of them, during my whole address, remained stripping the fibres of hemp, and another making it into ropes. I asked them how they expected to be saved. They replied, by worshipping the cow.

While I was telling them of Jesus, a Sikh sirdar, accompanied by a small retinue of gaily dressed men and women, going to a wedding, came to me. He asserted that the spirit of God and of man was the same. I asked him if God was omniscient? Yes. Is your spirit omniscient? No. Then there is a difference. Again, is God holy? Yes. Are you holy? No. There is another difference. He acknowledged he had not viewed the subject in this light before. But, said he, all is illusion, which God has created for his own amusement. We only imagine we exist. I asked him if he doubted his own existence; he said, Yes. Well, what is it that doubts? The fact that you doubt proves that something exists within you that doubts. But besides this, we all act as if we really believed that we do exist. Having exhorted him to prepare to meet his God, I returned to my tent.

After breakfast, had my tents and goods sent off to Shahmalabad, seven miles, and soon followed myself. Road good; one unbroken field of wheat almost the whole distance.

Met a Maulavi at the entrance to the bazar, and asked him if he would accept a book. He declined. Read the twelfth chapter of Romans, and expounded a few verses of it. The Maulavi made the usual objections to the doctrine of salvation through Christ, and defended the claims of Mohammed. I asked him if he believed the Koran to be the word of God. He replied in the affirmative. "Then whatever is contrary to it must be false." Yes. "But the hudees [tradition] and the Koran are contradictory. The former states that Mohammed declined to perform miracles, when desired thus to confirm his divine mission, as Moses and the other prophets did, and acknowledged that he had no power to do mighty works. The latter ascribes to him thousands of stupendous miracles; which is true?" He challenged me to produce from the Koran one passage in support of my position. I pointed out at least half a dozen. He had the candour to confess I had read to him out of the true translation of the Koran, but could not reconcile the palpable discord between it and the hudees. He asserted that God does not punish those for their sins who believe on Mohammed. I referred him to Heb. xii. 6, and to the experience of the best of men. While thus engaged in conversation, the hour of sunset arrived, and the Maulavi was hurried off to prayers by the crowd, and reproved for talking with me. Spent the evening quietly in my little tent, and felt some freedom in praying for the deluded people of this village. How pure, how holy, how peaceable and reasonable, is the religion of Christ, compared with those of the false prophet and Brahman.

Bowrak and Papoa—Hindu legends.

20*th*.—Rode seven miles this morning to Bowrak —some rain on the way; grain not so good. Talked to a few people in the bazar, about the way of salvation. Met with few readers. Heard many complaints against the British Government; no remission of tax on account of drought or destruction of crops; the Hindu and Mohammedan governments were more paternal. What a grumbling creature is man! Preached in the bazar this evening, to an attentive audience of Hindus, and gave away some books.

21*st*.—Pahoa, six miles. Road bad, country low, and covered with a high coarse kind of grass, like that of our prairies—patches of luxuriant wheat to be seen here and there among the grass; soil apparently fertile, but wants an American plough to break it up.

Reached this place about eight o'clock, and found my tent pitched in a beautiful garden. Near me is a magnificent palace, half native and half English in style. It was built by the late Rajah of Kyntal, about twelve years ago, and now belongs to his only remaining Rani, who at present lives in the fort of Pahoa, and is a pensioner of the British Government. She receives about $700 per mensem.

The city is a very ancient one, but not large. It owes its celebrity to being a place of pilgrimage. It is called Pritudak by the Brahmans, in memory of Pritu Raja, who is said to have founded it on the place of his birth. He was the fifth monarch of the Solar dynasty in the second age, and is said to have taught men to cultivate the earth. It is situate on the left bank of the sacred river Jaraswati, which rises in the mountains northeast of Ambala, and runs westward, until it is lost in the sands of the great desert. According to the Hindus, it continues its course under ground, until it joins the Ganges and Jumna at Allahabad. The city is within the bounds of kurukchhetr, the scene of the great battle between the Kurus and Pandus, in the commencement of the present age, and in which Krishn figured so largely. The battle-field is said to be triangular in shape, the largest side being thirty-five miles in length. In the area of this small region there are reckoned no less than 360 sacred bathing-places, which are visited by pilgrims from all parts of India. It was regarding these that the above mentioned war originated. Valmiki, the great epic poet of the Hindus, has, in the Mahabharat, or history of the war, so exaggerated the number of elephants and warriors engaged in the battle, that the former alone could not stand side by side in the given space!

It appears evident, from the fact of all the most celebrated bathing places of the Hindus being in this part of India, that their first colony from Scythia settled in the country about the Jaraswati, and thence spread over Hindustan. Should some Layard come to India, and excavate the ruins of the most ancient and renowned cities in this cradle of Hinduism, discoveries might be made which would throw much light on their early history.

[To be continued.]

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN DECEMBER, 1854.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Cambridge 1st ch to con Dr JOHN L CAMPBELL, WILLIAM HOLDEN, JAMES ELLIS, and Mrs SAMUEL CROSBY l m's 120. Pby of Albany—Johnstown ch to con Rev WASHINGTON FROTHINGHAM, VIRTUS BALCH, and CHARLES W LIVINGSTON l m's 87; Carlisle ch 9 60; Ballston Spa ch 35, less 2 50 for Foreign Missionary, E W Lee for Corisco Mission 5. Pby of Columbia—Jewett ch, James Smith 4 258 10

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Ogdensburg—Morristown ch 8. Pby of Rochester City—Parma and Greece ch 10, less 1 for Record. Pby of Buffalo City—East Aurora ch 7 24 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Deer Park ch mo con colls 16. Pby of North River—Hughsonville ch mo con colls 20; Newburg ch 34 44, Mrs Scott, Mrs Tyler, Mrs Chambers, and Mrs Mailler, to ed Hetty Chambers 20; Jefferson, N Y, Rev W J McCord 1 50. Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch 33 56, Ladies, in addition to clothing valued at 86, to con Mrs ANSON PARDEE, Mrs ELIZABETH LAWRENCE, and Mrs LEONARD B TODD l m's 4; Mt Kisco ch, Mrs M H Greene 5; Rye ch 43. Pby of New York—First ch N Y, ann coll, addl 179, mo con 154 52; Madison Avenue ch mo con 20; Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth St ch mo con 23 58; Williamsburg ch, three mos con colls 71 56; Chelsea ch Sab sch, for sup of Bazar School in India 13; Rutgers St ch, Mrs Noah Smith 5; Brooklyn 2d ch, David Moffat 25; Eighty-fourth St ch mo con 7 25; Yorkville ch mo con 5 34; Brooklyn 1st ch ann coll 338 04, mo con 56 84, less 12 for Foreign Missionary, Sab sch for 1852 and 1853, to ed M W Jacobus and Anna Finley Sanford in India 100. 2d Pby of New York—Scotch ch, Robert Carter and Brothers 100, Sab sch for Spencer Academy 117 57, 1382 20

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Rahway 1st ch, of which 30 from fem soc for Jewish Mission and to con Mrs HANNAH MARIA COOK l m 100. Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch ann coll 223 75, mo con colls 30 13. Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 1st ch 10; Lawrence ch mo con colls 39 17. Pby of West Jersey—Salem ch 32. Pby of Raritan—Clinton ch, Ladies Miss soc to con their Pastor, Rev JOHN MCNAIR l m 30. Pby of Luzerne—Newton ch 10; Wilkesbarre ch 50; Summit Hill ch, N 1 55, Sab sch 3 11 529 71

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Chester ch Sab sch to ed Margaret B Stedman 10; Tenth ch mo con 23 17; Westminster ch mo con 13 78; Second ch, C H 5. 2d Pby of Philadelphia—Germantown 1st ch, of which 29 42 mo con colls 158 38; Abington ch, of which 10 from juv miss soc for sup of Rev W A P Martin's daily school at Ningpo 180, less 6 for Foreign Missionary; Bridesburg ch 10. Pby of New Castle—Upper Octorara ch, of which 5 from A Brown, and 3 07 from Sab sch 38 75; Port Deposit ch, Miss R E 10. Pby of Baltimore—Bethel ch 12; Fork Meeting House 7; Franklin St ch mo con 55 72; Broadway ch 45; Aisquith St ch 34 80; Fourth ch Ladies' sewing soc to ed Abby Purviance, George Dugan Purviance, and John Purviance 75; Taneytown ch 91 80, young ladies of Thornton Seminary to ed Robert Bellville 32 65, Sab sch 1 80, mo con 3 75. Pby of Carlisle—McConnellsburg ch 65; Gettysburg ch 53; Bequest of Rev M E Johnston, deceased 25, Rev Robert Johnston 5, Julia H and George M Johnston, his children 2, in all 32, to con ROBERT EDWARD JOHNSTON 1 m. Pby of Huntingdon—Alexandria ch 14 25; Little Aughwick ch 50. Pby of Northumberland—Jersey Shore ch 19 87 1036 72

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Appleby Manor ch 6 40; Boiling Spring ch 6; Congruity ch 26 33; Armagh ch 10. Pby of Redstone—Mt Pleasant ch 11. Pby of Beaver—Neshanock ch 28; New Castle ch 32 60. Pby of Erie—Cool Spring ch 3, Miss Mary Smith, to send Bibles to China 10. Pby of Alleghany City—Alleghany City ch Sab sch to ed Archibald Meharg Marshall 13 146 33

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Washington ch, young ladies for miss soc to con MARY A WISHART, ELLEN ACHESON, and MARY STEVENS l m's 90; Wheeling 1st ch 49 95. Pby of New Lisbon—New Salem ch 22 11 162 06

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Lancaster ch ann coll 39 24, mo con coll 33 57, Sab sch 4 61, in all 77 42, less 5 for Foreign Missionary. Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville ch Sab sch to sup bazar school in India 20; Hebron ch 9; Newark 1st ch Sab sch 10. Pby of Richland—Mt Vernon ch in part to con WILLIAM SHANNON and D C MONTGOMERY l m's 45 66; Sharon ch 15; Clear Fork ch 10; Chesterville ch 16; Harmony ch 9; Hayesville ch 13; Waterford ch 2 50; Ashland ch 75 cts; Frederick ch 46 cts 223 79

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Miami—Honey Creek ch 10 50. Pby of Cincinnati—Somerset ch 10 09; Cincinnati 7th ch Sab sch quarterly coll's 20 50. Pby of Oxford—College Corner ch 22; Harrison ch 10 73 09

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison—Hanover ch mo con 5 06. Pby of White Water—Mt Carmel ch 16 21 06

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport—West Union ch Sab sch 6. Pby of Lake—Crown Point ch 3. Pby of Fort Wayne—Fort Wayne 1st ch mo con coll's 87 50, Sab sch to ed boy at Futtehgurh and girl in China 14 84 111 64

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Schuyler—Presbyterial coll 7 50. Pby of Rock River—Princeton 1st ch mo con 8 15 50

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Winnebago—Depere ch 3, Steven's Point Miss Station 1 77 4 77

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—Davenport ch, of which 30 to con Rev J D MASON l m 65; Le Claire ch 11 76 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Weston, Ky, Mrs Ezra Howe 1. Pby of Louisville—Second ch mo con 5 40; Pisgah ch, Mrs Walker 1. Pby of Ebenezer—Washington ch 30; Frankfort ch 95 50, less 12 for Foreign Missionary; Bethesda ch, Mrs R S B 6 126 90

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Winchester—Winchester ch 80 10; Falling Water ch 48; Salem ch 5; Alexandria 1st ch 70. Pby of West Hanover—Farmville ch 50; South Plains ch 18 73; Yancey's Mills, Va, miss box of Rev S W Blain's family 4 80. Pby of East Hanover—Nottoway ch 33; Richmond 1st ch mo con 15 75 325 38

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Orange—Hillsboro' ch Sab sch for Indian missions 7 50

SYNOD OF GEORGIA.—Synodical coll at Macon 46. Pby of Hopewell—Milledgeville ch mo con colls 56 03. Pby of Florida—Albany, Ga, Mrs D A Cook 5 107 03

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.—Synodical coll 125 25. Pby of South Alabama—Belvidere ch 11. Pby of Tuscaloosa—Bethesda ch 25 35; Bethel ch 50 30; Livingston ch 38 50 250 40

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Louisiana—Lafayette Square ch, New Orleans 100 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Chickasaw—College ch 15. Pby of Memphis—Mt Carmel ch Sab sch 15 40 30 40

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.—Pby of Arkansas—Little Rock ch 29 00

Total from churches, $5041 58

MISCELLANEOUS.—Children of Ellesdie School 11; 1st Assoc Ref'd Pby'n ch, Philadelphia, Sab sch to ed Elizabeth Dales and Maria Lansing at Wa-pa-nucka 25; A friend, Mercer st ch N Y 10; Robert L Kennedy for sup of Rev C F Preston, Canton, 150; Edwin Reese, Auburn, Ala, 5; M B H, Williamsburg, 1; L 2; Harrisburg, Pa, 5; A stranger 1; Philip Kinsey, N J, 8; Mrs Irwin, Shippensburg, Pa, 5; Mrs Charlotte F Kirk, Fishkill, N Y, balance to con her husband, Rev W H KIRK, l d 50; Mrs C N Doty Mifflinburg, Pa, 10 283 00

Total receipts in December, $5324 38

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—
Amount previously ackow'ed, $9829 73
South Salem ch, N Y 50 00 $9879 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS OF CLOTHING, &C.—Ladies of South Salem ch, N Y, two bundles of clothing for Corisco mission 86.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. WILLIAM E. SCHENCK, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. WINTHROP SARGENT, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. JOSEPH P. ENGLES, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. ENGLES, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. MITCHELL, M. D. Treasurer.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP.

A contribution of Thirty Dollars from any individual entitles the donor to a handsomely engraved certificate of honorary membership, and to the privilege of thenceforth drawing annually one dollar's worth of the publications of the Board. By a donation of that sum a congregation may also make its pastor an honorary member, thus affording him a pleasing proof of its respect and affection; while the money paid will send forth the colporteur to bless the destitute and needy with the words of divine truth.

COLPORTAGE FUND.

On the 1st day of November last, the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication was in arrears a little over $6000. Between that day and the first of January a little over $3000 were paid into the fund. On the 1st of January, however, another quarter's salary fell due to most of our numerous colporteurs, which increased the arrearages again to about $7000.

We rejoice to say, that a number of churches which have never in any former year taken a collection for this fund, have recently sent in very considerable sums as the result of first efforts. We are also encouraged by our correspondence to hope that many other churches, which have never yet sent contributions to the Board, are now laying their plans for an enlarged and "systematic benevolence," which will comprehend this as well as our other Boards.

It cannot be too distinctly understood that our colporteur department cannot depend for assistance upon our publishing and sales' department. To facilitate the sale of its books, the Board requires their prices to be fixed as low as is consistent with the support of the Institution, and such enlargement of its business as the growing wants of the church and the country may require. No aid can therefore be drawn from the publishing department. Our only reliance in conducting and extending the colporteur enterprise is on the contributions of the churches.

Will not pastors and sessions throughout the church consider the present necessities of this fund, and adopt measures to secure and send us speedy aid from ther respective churches?

We would again remind all that the financial year of this Board closes on the 31st day of March, and that no contribution can be acknowledged in its next Annual Report which is not forwarded to the Treasury before that day.

STUDENTS AS COLPORTEURS.

We have been much gratified in receiving very recently, a number of applications from students connected with one of our most important colleges, to be employed as colporteurs during their approaching vacation. In every case, where satisfactory evidence was afforded of their piety and other qualifications for the work, they have been very cheerfully commissioned. They will return to their studies, we hope and trust, after a vacation thus employed in going about and doing good after the example of their divine Master, with recruited physical energies, with an increased practical acquaintance with men and human nature, and especially with an increased love for souls, and a more elevated and fervent piety. May God's blessing go with them as they go, and richly follow all their endeavours to promote a Saviour's glory in the salvation of the perishing.

As the season of the year approaches when vacations occur in many of our literary and theological institutions, we trust that many of their students will feel impelled to engage in the colportage work. Notwithstanding its present great need of funds, the Board of Publication will gladly commission as many as may be willing to go, and will furnish them with interesting and needy fields for their pious labours.

CALL FOR A LIBRARY—WHO WILL ANSWER IT?

The following petition for a donation of books was a few days ago received from a feeble church in one of our Western States.

"REV. WILLIAM E. SCHENCK.

"Dear Sir—We, the elders and members of the Presbyterian church at ———, do hereby most earnestly petition the Board of Publication, through you, to give us a library of the books of the Board. We are few in number, but we are Presbyterians, and would read with avidity and great delight the books, if in your wisdom and generosity you think proper to notice our earnest request."

This petition is signed by the elders, as well as a number of other members, both male and female, of the little church. It is also accompanied by a letter from one of our missionaries, who had preached for them two or three Sabbaths in passing through that country. He says:

"I have known the people of this church more than twenty years. They have always been a people distinguished for piety and orthodoxy, yet they are a poor people, have never had a pastor, and not many supplies, except occasional missionaries. I have been three days preaching to them; they pay truly good attention; are serious and well-behaved, and I know of no means more likely to do them good than a good library. I have noticed that our poorest churches read your books best, and I feel assured that the members of this church will read them thoroughly, if you donate them. Here is a loud call to you. You cannot do more good perhaps anywhere, than right here."

Who among the thousands of our Israel will send us the means of responding favourably to this petition from the little church in the West? Since the last number of the Record was issued, we have had some generous contributions to our donation fund; but the drafts upon it are many, and it is still most desirable to receive more such contributions. Who will assume the privilege and pleasure of sending out the library, so modestly, yet so earnestly asked for? May some one be found to "remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."

EXPOSURE AND HEALTH OF COLPORTEURS.

Our colporteurs do not always enjoy fair weather and easy times. They are not without their rich enjoyments and precious blessings if they are men of the right spirit, but they cannot go happily or usefully through the colportage work, unless they are ready to "endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ." Now and then young men seek for commissions as colporteurs, full of enthusiasm and romantic expectations; but so soon as they face the realities of the service, their courage gives way, and they are glad to relinquish the undertaking.

Not many months ago, a young man was appointed by the Board as colporteur for a particular region of country in one of our Western States. He reached his designated field of labour, and entered on his work, but within one week resigned his commission and withdrew. The reason he assigned was that he could not endure the wet, either over head or under foot, and he thought the region was not dry enough to suit his constitution.

We have since received a letter from a gentleman at whose house this colporteur made his head quarters, from which we give an extract, observing that the value of the opinion expressed is largely increased by the fact that the writer is not only an active and zealous elder of a Presbyterian church, but also a physician of eminence. We commend his opinion to the attention not only of colporteurs, but of all our candidates for the ministry. He says:

"The truth is, Mr. —— is hypochondriac, and is ruining himself by his dieting and care of himself. One or two years faithfully spent as colporteur, after throwing away all his rules of dieting, &c., would be the making of him. Thus it is that more of our young men destroy themselves by their care of themselves and want of exercise, than are worn out by the hardships of service. If more of them had to get their education by working part of the time to support themselves the other part, we would have more efficient men. As it is, many of them are physically worth nothing when ready for the work. A man who can only go at the colportage work in a nice top buggy, is not fit for it, in this region at any rate. It must be one who is willing to work any way, so he but works, and one who can bear to get cold, and damp, and hungry, and tired too."

We rejoice in believing that the great body of the Board's colporteurs are both able and cheerfully willing to endure all such things for the sake of Christ, and of immortal souls. And we would welcome to our ranks many more, who are like-minded.

OUR BOOKS IN TENNESSEE.

A letter has been recently received from an active and highly esteemed clergyman in Tennessee, from which we make the following extract.

"REV. W. E. SCHENCK, Cor. Sec.

"Dear Brother—Our last Presbytery appeared to feel a deeper interest for the Board of Publication than I have before witnessed, and requested all our ministers to take up collections in their churches in aid of the Board. I intend to use my best exertions to procure funds from my missionary churches, for after the preaching of the Gospel, no work is more important.

"If the Board could have witnessed the joy those little books imparted to the children of my churches, it would have made their hearts glad, and they could not have withheld their tears of gratitude to God for the privilege of making so many bright faces happy. I am sure there will be much fruit gathered from the bread cast upon the waters."

We thank the brother for the rich pleasure his letter has afforded us, and we take courage to go on, labouring hopefully to scatter these blessed volumes more and more widely.

The excellent books published by the Board for children are receiving commendations from all quarters. How many a parent might bestow an unspeakable blessing on his children by purchasing the set, and placing them on the family book shelves. And how many a pastor or Sabbath-school superintendent might make "many bright faces happy," by taking measures, like our worthy brother in Tennessee, to place them in the Sabbath-school library.

FROM A COLPORTEUR IN IOWA.

The following extract from a letter of one of our colporteurs in Iowa, will give the readers of the Record a glimpse of the nature of colportage labours in the West.

"I have visited twelve counties of this State as a colporteur, some of them but slightly, and others more thoroughly. I have visited fifteen of the seventeen churches of our Presbytery, and in most cases visited all the families I could find belonging to those churches. I have made it a point to call on all the families of our denomination, yet I have by no means slighted others. I suppose I might safely say that one-half of my sales were to those not of our own church, and I have perhaps given away more to those of other denominations.

"I spent some time last week and the week before within the bounds of the church of ——. I attended meeting on the Sabbath, but on account of the severe cold weather there was no preaching. The congregation not having a house to worship in, have met in the court-house. We held a prayer meeting for a short time, and separated. At the house of Dr. ——, where I was stopping, I found a young man labouring under deep conviction, and apparently desiring to converse on the subject of his soul's salvation. O, that I were more capable of giving instruction to the anxious inquirer! I talked with him for some time, and found him intelligent and sound in doctrine, believing the promises of God, but doubting his own sincerity, which was perhaps one of God's methods of humbling him more, and showing him the danger of self-confidence. He was made the object of special prayer by his own request, and as we parted I gave him the tract entitled "Christ's gracious Invitation." We knew not then whether we should ever meet again until the last day; but next Wednesday evening, at a prayer meeting—(O, the preciousness of prayer meetings!)—he was present, having walked about four miles to attend. It was not a cold, dry, and formal prayer meeting. God's children seemed stirred up. The prayers seemed fervent, and I trust were prevalent through the Redeemer's name. After prayer meeting was over, I had again some conversation with my young friend. I found him more comfortable in his feelings, hoping yet trembling. After a few words of counsel and encouragement, I bade him farewell, and next morning I left the neighbourhood. But I have not forgotten him, nor many others, who, when grasping the parting hand, after but a brief interview, have earnestly requested to be remembered in my prayers, which same favour I earnestly ask of you, my brother, and of all the friends of the humble, but I trust not altogether useless colporteur."

FROM A COLPORTEUR IN PENNSYLVANIA.

A colporteur who has been actively and usefully at work in Western Pennsylvania, thus writes:

"The books are well received wherever they have the means to purchase. I have myself also been very kindly received wherever I have been, and have been urged to call again soon. I leave a tract wherever I go. I spent one week, which was a precious week to me. I scarcely left a house after conversation and prayer, without having some person weep, and often follow me to the door, saying, 'Pray for me.' In one instance a mother and three daughters and a grandfather saw they had not any hope in Christ. They wished me to pray with and for them. I left all of them in tears."

FROM A COLPORTEUR IN THE PROVINCE OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

We have reason to be rejoiced and encouraged at the increasing popularity and usefulness of the publications of the Board in the British Provinces. A colporteur sending us a report of large sales in New Brunswick, writes as follows:

"The books have been well received. On returning over districts in which they have been before distributed, I have seen many encouraging evidences of their good effects. I may just mention one case, that of a man who was a Universalist, to whom I sold 'James' Anxious Inquirer' and 'Christ Crucified.' He seems now to be hopefully changed. I have conversed and prayed frequently with him, and I trust it is the Spirit's work."

NOTICES OF NEW BOOKS.

MARY SEARCHING FOR JESUS. By Rev. James Drummond. Philadelphia, Presbyterian Board of Publication. 18mo, pp. 32.

This is an interesting little work, founded upon Luke ii. 40–52, and makes an ingenious use of Mary's search for her son Jesus, and final discovery of him in the temple, to press home upon its readers the all-important duty of seeking and finding Jesus as a Saviour.

PSALMS AND HYMNS. Miniature edition, in 64mo, pearl type. Prices: plain sheep, 30 cents; arabesque, 35 cents; do. gilt, 45 cents; tucks, gilt, 60 cents; imitation Turkey, 65 cents; Turkey, gilt, 90 cents; Turkey, one clasp, $1 50.

The former miniature edition of the book of Psalms and Hymns having been found objectionable because of the exceeding smallness and indistinctness of its type, this new edition, which is free from those objections, and in every respect superior, has just been issued at the prices above stated. To those especially who may have occasion for a pocket hymn book, this one will be a very great convenience.

PICTURE SKETCHES. Philadelphia. Quarto, 42 pages. Price $1 50.

This is a very interesting book of pictures, got out in a very attractive style. It is well fitted to adorn a parlour table, and to give both entertainment and instruction to especially the younger members of the family. It contains two hundred and sixteen choice wood engravings on tinted paper, and is handsomely bound. The number of copies issued is limited; and as no future edition of it can appear, those who may desire to procure it will do well to order it without delay.

MEMOIRS OF REV. WALTER M. LOWRIE, Missionary to China. Edited by his Father. Presbyterian Board of Publication. 12mo, pp. 485. Price 70 cts.

This is an abridgement of the larger memoir of this devoted missionary, which was published shortly after his death. Thousands will rejoice to learn that such a condensed memorial of this martyr missionary has been issued by the Board. The Church of Christ in these latter days has perhaps produced few choicer and lovelier spirits than was that of Walter M. Lowrie. Although cut off from life by the hand of violence when in only his twenty-ninth year, he lived long enough to do great good, and long will he continue to speak, although dead. His sentiments and his example, as they are embalmed in this volume, by parental affection, yet with characteristic modesty, will continue to live and have their influence through all coming time. We shall recur to this volume again in a future number of the Record.

AN HISTORICAL TEXT-BOOK AND ATLAS OF BIBLICAL GEOGRAPHY. By Lyman Coleman. Philadelphia, Presbyterian Board of Publication. Large 8vo, pp. 319. Price $1.50.

Dr. Coleman is doing a great and good work for the Church of Christ by his publications. They tend to make the sacred Scriptures more intelligible and interesting to all who will take the pains to study them. We have not yet had time to give much examination to the work whose title is given above, but it seems to give renewed proofs of Dr. Coleman's well-known learning, ability, and research. It appears to contain a full, thorough, and interesting exhibition of Biblical Geography, arranged after a very easy and convenient method, and illustrated by seven coloured maps of the countries oftenest mentioned in the Bible. These maps impart to the volume great value. The author seems, in the preparation both of the maps and of the chapters, to have made a careful and learned examination of all the more recent works on this subject, both American and European.

We would heartily commend this work to all Sabbath schools and Bible classes, fully believing that if they would carefully study it, they would find the Bible invested with new interest, and in many passages with new meaning and beauty.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP.

A donation of Thirty Dollars at any one time constitutes the donor, or any person whom he may designate, an Honorary Member of the Board of Publication. Honorary Members receive an elegantly engraved certificate of membership, and are entitled to draw one dollar's worth of children's books or tracts annually, provided they are called for during the year in which they become due.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION DURING THE MONTH OF DECEMBER, 1854.

Presbytery of Genesee River.
Warsaw ch, per Rev Stuart Mitchell	$13 50
Presbytery of Michigan.
Pontiac ch, per Rev C W Cooper	6 00
Presbytery of Long Island.
East Hampton ch, per Rev Stephen L Mershon	33 00
Presbytery of New York.
Jamaica 1st ch, per Rev P D Oakey 51 43; 1st ch Brooklyn, per Geo L Simpson, in the acknowledgments for November it was erroneously stated 225 02—it should have been 255 02—difference now acknowledged 30	81 43
Presbytery of Elizabethtown.
Rahway 1st ch, per Rev S S Sheddan	30 00
Presbytery of New Brunswick.
New Brunswick 1st ch, per Rev R Davidson 132; Allentown ch, per Rev Henry Perkins 15	147 00
Presbytery of West Jersey.
Cedarville ch, per David Whitaker	8 62
Presbytery of Luzerne.
Wilkesbarre ch, per Rev J Dorrance	10 00
Presbytery of Philadelphia.
Seventh ch, per Mr F A Bokee	220 25
Presbytery of New Castle.
Fagg Manor ch, R Brown 5; Benevolent Fund of the New London congregation, Rev R P Du Bois per Mr Jas McDowell 10	15 00
Presbytery of Carlisle.
Bedford ch, per Rev Thos K Davis	37 25
Presbytery of Washington.
Cross Roads ch, per John Duncan	20 00
Presbytery of Cincinnati.
Pleasant Ridge ch 8 09; Hopewell ch 6 30; Bloomingburg ch 6 75; John Woolf, Oxford 5; H J Conaway, Milton Mills 3—per John D Thorpe	29 14
Presbytery of Palestine.
Charleston ch, per Rev H I Venable	14 64
Presbytery of Crawfordsville.
Eugene ch, per Rev S L Crosby	3 00
Presbytery of Chicago.
Willow Creek ch, per Jas Pickens, Jr	7 31
Presbytery of Des Moines.
Washington ch, B P Baldwin, Treas	7 50
Presbytery of Ebenezer.
Washington ch, Rev J H Condit	16 00
Presbytery of Concord.
Sharon ch, per Rev C K Caldwell	8 00
Presbytery of South Alabama.
Flat Creek ch, from Mr Hugh McCaskell to con Mrs ISABELLA MCCASKELL hon mem, per Rev H A Smith	30 00
Presbytery of Florida.
Albany, Ga, from Mrs D A Cook, per Rev S D Campbell	5 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Mrs Irwin, Shippensburg, Pa 5; John Allen, to con his daughter hon mem 30; Mrs P A Matthews, Wyoming, N Y, in full 15; "S" 20; "A M B" 10, per Rev S C Hepburn, and from a "Friend" 1500 for Colporteur Fund, 500 for Distribution Fund	2080 00
Total,	$2822 64

A. W. MITCHELL, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

LICENSURES.

Rev. John A. Brown, by the Presbytery of Blairsville, October 4th, 1854.

CALLS.

Rev. S. M. Anderson has received a call to Long Run church, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Allen McFarland has accepted a call from the church at Brookville, Indiana.

Rev. Thomas R. Welsh has received a call to the churches of Georgetown and Cherry Spring, Kentucky.

Rev. Levi H. Christian has received a unanimous call to the church at Hamilton, Ohio.

Rev. A. L. Bloodgood has accepted a call to the North State Street church at Rochester, New York.

Rev. J. S. Montgomery has accepted a call to the church at Yazoo City, Mississippi.

Rev. J. W. Sherwood has accepted a call to the church at Washington, North Carolina.

Rev. J. P. Safford, late of Richmond, Virginia, has accepted a call to Frankfort, Kentucky.

Rev. Thomas Stuart Smith has received a call from the church at Franklinville, Maryland.

Rev. William S. Plumer, D. D., has received a unanimous call to become pastor of the Central church at Allegheny City, in connection with his Professorship.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Rev. T. W. Irwin was ordained by the Presbytery of Central Texas, October 27th, 1854.

Rev. J. H. Alexander, having been ordained in October last, was installed pastor of the churches of Union and Elizabeth, Alabama, by the Presbytery of Tuscaloosa, November 18th, 1854.

Rev. George C. Crowe was ordained as an Evangelist by the Presbytery of Upper Missouri, November 5th, 1854.

Rev. Fields Bradshaw was installed pastor of Oak Grove church by the Presbytery of Alabama, November 1st, 1854.

Rev. William McCandlish was installed pastor of the Westminster church at Quincy, Illinois, October 8th, 1854.

Rev. W. W. Trimble was installed pastor of Timber Ridge church, Virginia, October 20th, 1854.

Rev. Luther Emerson was installed pastor of the Shemariah church, Augusta county, Virginia, November 25th, 1854.

Rev. Albert B. Clark was installed pastor of the church at Altoona, Pennsylvania, by the Presbytery of Huntington, November 14th, 1854.

Rev. F. B. Dinsmore was installed pastor of Unity church, Virginia Grove, Iowa, November 25th, 1854.

Rev. William Cathcart was ordained and installed pastor of La Grange church, Indiana, November 23d, 1854.

Rev. Edward D. Yeomans was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Warrior Run, Pennsylvania, November 30th, 1854, by the Presbytery of Northumberland.

Rev. John B. Stewart was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Wooster, Ohio, by the Presbytery of Wooster, November 14th, 1854.

Rev. Hillary Moseley was ordained as an Evangelist by the Presbytery of Mississippi, November 25th, 1854.

Rev. Joseph Mateer was ordained and installed pastor of the churches of Leatherwood and Licking, by the Presbytery of Clarion, November 5th, 1854.

Rev. James C. Watson, D. D., was installed pastor of the church at Milton, Pennsylvania, December 16th, 1854.

THE PASTORAL RELATION HAS BEEN DISSOLVED BETWEEN

Rev. James Cameron and the Fall and Ellison churches, by the Presbytery of Schuyler.

DEATH.

Rev. John E. Davidson, of the Presbytery of Red River, and pastor of the church at Minden, Louisiana.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS CHANGED.

Rev. Ahab Jenks, from Delaware, Ohio, to Lane Station, Illinois.

Rev. Robert Conover, from North Salem, Indiana, to Spring Dale, Ohio.

Rev. William Young, from Steubenville, Ohio, to Kenton, Ohio.

Rev. James Matthews, from Carlisle to Danville, Kentucky.

Rev. A. W. Sproull to Jacksonville, Florida.

Rev. B. Leffler from Picknerville to Lawrenceville, Illinois.

Rev. H. Blackwell, from Flint Hill, Missouri, to Juliet, Lawrence county, Indiana.

Rev. J. M. Sherwood, from Greensboro to Washington, North Carolina.

Rev. William A. Rankin to Newcastle, Delaware.

Rev. J. M. Alexander, from Tocopola, Mississippi, to Carrollville, Mississippi.

Rev. James Cameron to Macomb, Illinois.

Rev. W. H. Crane, from Quincy, Gadsden county, Florida, to Bainbridge, Decatur county, Georgia.

Rev. Lyman B. Crittenden to Fairfield, Iowa.

Rev. W. B. Harshe to Pentonsport, Iowa.

Rev. J. E. Marquis, from Kenton, Ohio, to Mansfield, Ohio.

Rev. J. C. Baldwin to Natchez, Mississippi.

Rev. M. W. Staples, from Marshall, Texas, to Beloit, Wisconsin.

Rev. J. R. Smith, from Perrysville to Pittsburg.

Rev. A. K. Beattie to Three Creeks, Union county, Arkansas.

Rev. D. Monfort, from Decatur, Illinois, to Macomb, Illinois.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. Harrison W. Ellis has been suspended from the ministry by the Presbytery of Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

Rev. Symmes C. Henry, D. D., pastor of the First church of Cranbury, New Jersey, has been elected President of Hanover College, Indiana, but has declined the appointment.

Rev. J. B. Adger, D. D., has declined the Presidency of Davidson College, North Carolina.

Rev. James W. Dale of Chester, Pennsylvania, has been elected Superintendent of Church Extension for the Presbytery of Philadelphia. Mr. Dale has accepted the appointment and entered upon that work, retaining, however, his pastoral relation.

Varieties.

Semi-Centennary Sermon.—The Rev. Dr. John McDowell having completed fifty years as a pastor, preached on the 31st of December last, a semi-centennary sermon in the Spring Garden church, Philadelphia. The discourse occupied both parts of the day, and contained a review of the speaker's ministry. Many of the facts set forth were of highest interest. The growth of the Presbyterian Church at large during Dr. McDowell's ministry, as was made to appear by statistical statements, is truly astonishing.

Theological Seminary, Princeton.—By the catalogue of this Seminary, just published, we find the following to be the state of the classes:—Resident Graduates, 6; First Class, 42; Second Class, 33; Third Class, 34—Total, 115. As compared with last year, there is a diminution from the States of Delaware, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, Ohio, Tennessee, and Virginia, amounting in the aggregate to 16; and an increase from Alabama, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Pennsylvania, amounting to 24. The total reported last year was 108, and the year before 120.

In the Western Theological Seminary, we learn that there are in the several classes 49 students; in New Albany, 20; in Danville, 39.

Rev. Dr. Musgrave.—We understand that the Rev. Dr. Musgrave, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Missions, is now on an official tour, and will, before his return, visit Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Charleston, &c. We trust that his visit to the brethren and churches will prove both pleasant and useful.

Calvary Church, San Francisco.—The San Francisco Evening News of the 30th ult., speaking of the new church erecting in that city for the Rev. Dr. Scott, says:—"This church, our readers already know, is to be under the pastoral charge of the Rev. Dr. W. A. Scott, who is now en route for San Francisco. It will be one of the most beautiful and commodious in the city. Its whole cost, together with the cost of the lot upon which it stands, will approximate to $60,000—all of which has to be paid, by the conditions upon which Dr. Scott accepted the call, before he goes into it. The church will be all finished, it is expected, by the 15th proximo."

A Interesting Season in Bellefontaine Church.—Brother Raffensperger writes under date of 25th inst., "I commenced a series of meetings last Thursday evening, preparatory to our communion, yesterday. Brother Kennedy, of Sandusky, assisted me on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Yesterday, we received into the church 14 members, 13 by examination, and 1 by certificate. The interest still continues.

Revival.—The church in Altoona, Pennsylvania, has lately enjoyed a season of refreshing, having twenty-five members added to the communion. Several other persons were known to be serious inquirers, and additions are yet anticipated.

Use of Money.—The sums of money freely spent in concerts are really amazing. Let the sums raised by Mr. Barnum be given as an example. The receipts for Jenny Lind's ninety-five concerts were $712,161.34. For the first two, not included in the above, $28,067.08. Total amount of receipts, $740,228.42. After a mutual and amicable adjustment between Mr. Barnum and Miss Lind, each received the following amount of the above—Miss Lind received $176,675.09, and Mr. Barnum's portion was $535,486.25.

Thus it is that the world estimates its amusements. How long will it be before the Church shall be honoured by the world? It is time she should now be honoured. We do not ask wealth for our indefatigable ministry, nor do they ask it; but we ask it to send the gospel to the perishing millions of heathendom. Let Christians just compare the receipts that any worldly institution will receive with the poor pittance that is given every year for the support of the gospel.—Presbyterian Banner.

FUND FOR SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS AND THEIR FAMILIES.

The following amounts have been received, since last report, viz:

From	the Second Street church of Troy, New York, Dr. Halley,	$25 32
"	the Second church, Philadelphia,	95 00
"	the First church, New Lisbon, Ohio,	26 60
"	Mr. Samuel Beatty,	1 00
		$147 92

Geo. H. Van Gelder,
Treas. Trustees Gen. Assembly.

Philadelphia, January 16th, 1855.

JANUARY NUMBER FOR 1855.

We are unable to supply several orders we have received for the January number. Postmasters and others who have copies not wanted will oblige by returning them.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, and Publication, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at 25 cents a year; and all Churches of less than fifty families, at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, post paid, "Home and Foreign Record, 265 Chestnut St., Philadelphia."

Postage, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Charleston, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

CONTENTS.

Board of Domestic Missions.—Churches receiving aid should endeavour to become self-sustaining and contributing, p. 18. The late Rev. Joel Huntington, p. 18. Special Reports, p. 19. New Presbyterian Church, Memphis, Missouri, p. 19. From a Missionary in Ohio, p. 20. Receipts, p. 20.

Board of Education.—I. Ministerial Education: Special Prayer, p. 21. A Call to Young Men, p. 22. A Noble Example, p. 22. II. Christian Education in Schools and Colleges: The Synod of South Carolina on the Oglethorpe University, p. 22. Synodical Female High School of the Synod of Nashville, p. 22. Talladega Female Institute, p. 22. Zion Seminary, Mississippi, p. 22. Westminster College, Missouri, p. 22. Alexander College, Iowa, p. 23. Carroll College, Wisconsin, p. 23. Van Rensselaer Academy, Missouri, p. 23. Male and Female Academies at Fort Wayne, Indiana, p. 23. Greensboro Female College, p. 23. Receipts, p. 23.

Board of Foreign Missions.—Recent Intelligence, p. 24. Indian Missions: Journal of a Tour through the Indian Country, by Rev. J. Leighton Wilson, p. 24. India: Lodiana Mission: Journal of the Rev. J. M. Jamieson, p. 28. Receipts, p. 29.

Board of Publication.—Honorary Membership, p. 30. Colportage Fund, p. 30. Students as Colporteurs, p. 30. Call for a Library—Who will answer it? p. 30. Exposure and Health of Colporteurs, p. 30. Our Books in Tennessee, p. 30. From a Colporteur in Iowa, p. 31. From a Colporteur in Pennsylvania, p. 31. From a Colporteur in New Brunswick, p. 31. Notices of New Books, p. 31. Receipts, p. 31.

Miscellaneous.—Come to Jesus, p. 17. An Example for Subscribers, p. 17. A Dilemma to be feared, p. 17. Early Associations, p. 17. Benevolent Agencies a Double Blessing, p. 17. God of my Mother, p. 17. Ecclesiastical Record, p. 32. Varieties, p. 32.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME VI. No. 3. | PHILADELPHIA, MARCH, 1855. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

From the New York Evangelist.

NOTHING TO DO.

A young lady, while on a sick bed, often remarked she had nothing to live for—"had nothing to do." Many of her friends regarded such expressions as sure indications of true submission to God and his providence. The writer's reflections were different.

Nothing to do! A soul to save,
For which his blood the Saviour gave,
And dearest, dying friends you have;
And naught to do!

Nothing to do! O, look again;
The world is full of woe and pain;
Darkness and sin in triumph reign;
The blest are few!

Nothing to do! Yea, you must die;
Your soul to God's tribunal fly;
In vain the summons you deny.
Is your work done?

O, look again within your heart;
Have you with Jesus any part?
Pray Him to you more grace t' impart
To follow Him.

O, come to Christ, repent, believe;
The Spirit's unction now receive;
In faith and love your service give
To Jesus' cause.

Then will the world new aspects wear;
Your final home will not be here;
Most cheerfully the cross you'll bear,
And strive for heaven.

L. B. W.

ALAS, WHERE ARE MY SHEAVES?

Not in your hands, my brother, for he that soweth is not always he that carries away the grain rejoicing; but perhaps still in the hearts of those who have caught up some single thought dropped by you in the pulpit or from the teacher's seat. See nothing now you may, but that is no reason why much there may not yet be seen. The preacher's insufficiency is the Master's opportunity. And study these words from one who has felt as you feel: "Be faithful in labour, and then be patient in waiting for the result alone. God often sees fit to delay. Success would often intoxicate us, so God wills that it should at first be dealt out very sparingly to us. O, it is hard to toil, and meet no smile of approbation—no token of regard from the heavenly Master! But it is a duty. God tries our faith by keeping us in suspense. Jeremiah says: 'It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait;' David waited as those that wait for the morning, and Isaiah was almost discouraged by waiting. To learn to wait is as hard as to learn to labour; but 'the Lord is good to those who wait for him,' and believe the prophet was right when he said so, and he will be good to you, messenger of his word. Only be faithful, and be assured the blessing will come sooner or later. If not on earth, from the heights of heaven you will look down upon it, and see the harvest which you have sown, and the result of your long and patient toil.—Christian Treasury.

THE BIBLE.

My little son is by my side; the book that he best loves is in his hand; he knows by heart its simple and affecting stories. Every day he learns a lesson from it, and comes and stands by my side to recite it. To-day his lesson is, "This is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another."

"Who commands this, my son?"

"God," he answers reverently.

"And can you do this?" smoothing the sunny curls from his brow.

"'Ask, and ye shall receive, seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened.' 'God will work in me to will and to do of his own good pleasure,'" he says in a low tone.

"Will God do all? have you nothing to do, my boy?"

"'Strive to enter in at the strait gate; for many shall seek to enter in, and shall not be able.'" His cheeks glow, and he looks earnestly up; it was his verse for yesterday.

I kissed him with a prayer in my heart. Thou hast learned more important truth in thy little nursery, my son, than all the wisdom of the world. Do this, and life's great end will be answered. Without this, there is nothing in the whole earth worth having.—Lutheran Observer.

SOMEBODY IS PRAYING FOR ME.

Yes, anxious pastor, you may be assured of that. You must not think that you are wholly and totally forgotten. Many forget you, who once remembered you at the throne of grace. They have forgotten their own sins, and wants, and dangers. Yea, they have forgotten their Saviour, and it is not strange, therefore, that they have forgotten you. But all have not forsaken you. A few if not the many, carry your wants and burdens on the heart of their most tender love, to the throne of grace. The whirl of business, or the love of pleasure, may have swept your work, and your wants and sorrows, from the minds of even many of the disciples. But cheer up. That poor widow—that obscure saint is little known to the world, with great burdens and wants of her own—yet there is a place in her heart for you. In her humble dwelling, your name is dear. You have fed her and comforted her, in your ministrations when you knew it not. And her humble gratitude seeks to repay the debt, by asking the richest of Heaven's blessings upon your person and your work. Precious are those prayers. How many evils they have averted! How many blessings procured!

"Somebody is praying for me." Yes, the Hearer of the poor widow's prayer is himself doing it. Have you not seen that splendid gem in the casket of divine truth, "He ever liveth to make intercession for us." He forget his anxious ministers! He cease intercession for them! And such intercession! No. He is at all times a sweet savor unto God, in behalf of all his servants. Cheer up; you are not forgotten. Nor let your despondency lead you to forget, that there are those on earth, and One all-prevalent in heaven, who remember you. Wherefore, comfort thyself in this matter, and give thyself anew to thy work.—Presbyterian Advocate.

THE SCRIPTURES ALWAYS FRESH.

Can this be said of any other book? The venerable Dr. Woods, in addressing the students at Andover, said that when he commenced his duties as Professor of Theology, he feared that the frequency with which he should have to pass over the same portions of Scripture, would abate the interest in his own mind in reading them; but after more than fifty years of study, it was his experience that with every class his interest increased.

LEARN OF ME.

How good it is for us we have such a pattern, and are permitted to follow in his blessed steps. We might despair under the best directions of reaching heaven, if we had no one to lead the way. But in following Jesus, we cannot err. He will direct us in the path we should go, and guide us with his eye. Blessed Saviour, let me look continually unto thee. Let me never withdraw from thy company, or seek another leader. Keep me, O keep me, under the shadow of thy wing, and receive me finally into thine everlasting kingdom!

CO-OPERATION OF THE WIFE.

No man ever prospered in the world without the co-operation of his wife. If she unites in mutual endeavours, or rewards his labours with an endearing smile, with what confidence will he resort to his merchandize or his farm, fly over lands, sail upon seas, meet difficulty and encounter danger, if he knows that he is not spending his strength in vain, but that his labour will be rewarded by the sweets of home! Solicitude and disappointment enter the history of every man's life, and he is but half provided for this voyage who finds but an associate for happy hours, while for his months of darkness and distress no sympathizing partner is prepared.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

God's children are like stars, that shine brightest in the darkest night; like gold, that is brighter for the furnace; like incense, that becomes fragrant by burning; like the chamomile plant, that grows fastest when trampled on.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Business Officers of the Board.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. G. W. Musgrave, D. D.
Assistant Secretary—Rev. R. Happersett.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.
Address, Mission Rooms, 265 Chestnut st. Philadelphia.
Letters relating to Missionary appointments, and other operations of the Board, including Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary.
Donations and Subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:
J. D. Williams, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.
William Rankin, Jr. Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

MEETING OF THE BOARD.

The Board held their monthly meeting on Monday, the 12th inst. The Vice-President, the Rev. John McDowell, D.D., presided, in the absence of the President.

After the transaction of the ordinary business, "the Corresponding Secretary made a very satisfactory and gratifying statement respecting his tour to the South and South-West." After communicating the results of his mission, and the information he had acquired respecting the missionary wants of those sections of our Church, the Secretary stated that he was everywhere greeted by the brethren with expressions of attachment to the Board, and desires to co-operate more efficiently with it. Dr. Musgrave also expressed his warmest gratitude for the hospitality and kindness which had been shown him personally, as the representative of the Board, and declared that he had returned to the office not only highly gratified with his tour, but greatly encouraged in his work.

NOTICE.

Special Reports.—Treasuries.—Thanks.

The form of a Special Report has been sent to each of our missionaries, in sufficient time for the brethren to return them answered by the 26th of March. If any of the circulars should miscarry, the brethren may avail themselves of the form which was published in the last (February) number of the Home and Foreign Record. As it is very desirable that reports should be received from all our missionaries, in time to incorporate, in the Annual Report, the statistical information desired by the General Assembly, we earnestly request the brethren to be prompt and punctual in making out and returning their special reports. Reports received after the 26th of March, cannot be included in our Annual Statistical Table.

We would respectfully and kindly request the Treasurers to send their reports complete up to the 1st of April, immediately after that date. A delay of a few days only, on their part, subjects us to serious inconvenience.

Churches desirous of having their contributions acknowledged in the Report of the year, will forward them in season to reach the office before the 1st of April, at which time our fiscal year terminates.

In this connection we desire to express the hearty thanks of the Board to all who have aided us in carrying on the important work committed to our care. The Board have reason to be grateful for the liberal assistance afforded them, notwithstanding the great pecuniary pressure of the times, and feel encouraged to go forward with confidence and hope. We know that the cause is dear to God, and increasingly dear to the Church, and that with his favour and the active co-operation of his people, it must continue to prosper.

IMPORTANCE OF PRESBYTERIAL VIGILANCE AND ACTIVITY.

If the Presbyteries would more generally see to it that collections are taken up in all the churches, the annual receipts of the Board would be greatly augmented, and their ability to aid in the support of the missionaries and to extend the boundaries of the Church would be correspondingly increased. The Presbyteries observe that many churches under their care report no collections for the Board, although this duty is obviously obligatory and urgently necessary, and has been repeatedly and earnestly enjoined by the General Assembly, and yet in many cases no inquiry is instituted into the cause of such remissness, nor are the delinquents ever brought to an account for their neglect of duty. If the Presbyteries would universally attend to this matter as they ought, much of this evil might be reformed. Let every delinquent church be solemnly called to an account and properly urged by the Presbytery to take up an annual collection for the Board, and many who have never given anything will hereafter contribute. Until the Presbyteries generally act upon this subject, and act systematically and habitually, there will be but little improvement on the part of delinquent churches. The appeals of the Board, the earnest injunctions of the Assembly, the crying necessities of our missionaries, the immense destitutions of our country, the imperative commands of our divine Redeemer, will still continue to be unheeded! Will not the Presbyteries exert their authority and influence with the churches under their care, who have hitherto neglected this duty, to induce them to aid in the support of this cause?

There are other respects in which the Presbyteries can and ought to co-operate with the Board in carrying forward the missionary work. In some cases, we have no doubt, churches now assisted by the missionary fund could, and therefore ought to, sustain their pastors themselves, without aid from others. Ought not the Presbyteries to inquire more particularly into the actual ability of the churches to support their pastors when they apply for missionary aid? Could they not, in some cases, induce them to become self-sustaining? and thereby increase the ability of the Board to help those who really need assistance, and to send missionaries into fields that are as yet entirely destitute. The money that could thus be saved from one part of the vineyard might be advantageously expended in other parts of the great field, and made, with the blessing of God, to yield an immense harvest of good; while the moral effect of self-sustentation upon the churches themselves would be exceedingly happy.

In many other cases we have reason to believe that with suitable effort on the part of the Presbyteries, the churches, although not able themselves to sustain their pastors wholly, would do much more for their support than they are now doing. Ought not the Presbyteries more generally to inquire into this matter when the churches apply for missionary aid? Ought they to recommend any appropriation until they are satisfied that the amount asked for is actually needed? Ought they to recommend the same appropriation from year to year, and for many years in succession, without instituting a rigid inquiry into the pecuniary ability of the congregation, or employing some measures, when necessary, to induce the people to contribute more liberally towards the support of their pastor?

If even the same amount of aid from the Board is required to be continued, yet the salary of the pastor may have been inadequate with such assistance, and an increase be necessary in order to his comfortable support. Our wish is not merely to prevent, as far as possible, all unnecessary expenditure of the missionary fund, but also to provide for the adequate support of our missionaries, whose comfort and usefulness are often abridged from the want of it. If the Presbyteries would direct their Committees on Missions to visit all their missionary churches once a year, and to exert their influence with them to induce them to contribute more liberally towards the support of the gospel, many churches would require less assistance from the Board, and their pastors would be far better sustained than they now are. This is a matter of very great importance, and can, in many instances, be effected only by the Presbyteries. The churches themselves will seldom act upon their own motion, and their pastors generally feel such a delicacy in speaking to their people about their own support, that they will continue to suffer in silence, rather than speak out.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN WISCONSIN.

Rev. Dr. Musgrave:

Dear Brother—Since my last quarterly report we have, by divine help, completed the house of God.

In reviewing the incipient, progressive, and finishing stages of this enterprise, I am constrained to exclaim, that it is owing entirely to the help obtained from God that we have succeeded.

It appears in the retrospect, that, had I not, on the very first Sabbath of my preaching to this people made the public worship of Jehovah, and the necessity, desirableness, and importance of a suitable house of worship the subject of discourse, I might have lost the most favorable opportunity for presenting the subject. It is attributable entirely to the grace of God that my mind was prayerfully directed to that subject at the commencement of my labours. Sure I am, from my present knowledge of the state of this community, that, had this enterprise been delayed a few months only, it would have had, so far as human beings can judge, insurmountable obstacles in the way of its progress.

And here, dear Sir, allow me to say, for the benefit and encouragement of other missionaries that may come to the north-west, as soon after entering your field, as you learn, by observation and consultation with judicious persons, that the greatest good of the community requires the speedy erection of a house for the worship of the Most High, hesitate not to enter prayerfully, wisely, prudently, and energetically upon the accomplishment of the work. Missionaries now, in this extensive field, mourn that they did not direct their first efforts to the erection of churches; they now see that they have lost the best opportunity for putting forth the most successful efforts. In some instances other denominations have preoccupied the ground, and thus rendered the efforts of our denomination unavailing. In other cases prejudices have been originated, and fostered, which cannot be easily removed or counteracted. Besides, the most direct way to increase the congregation is to furnish them with a convenient and inviting house. My congregation has increased nearly one-half since we entered our new house of worship, notwithstanding strenuous efforts, on the part of some, to prevent the occupation of rented seats. More than two-thirds of the pews have been rented in a few weeks; and what seems a little remarkable, is that some have taken seats that never went to meeting in the school-house to hear preaching by any denomination.

If your unworthy servant has been instrumental of no other good, during the short time he has been in this new field, so recently occupied by the Menominee Indians, he trusts the convenient, though very plain house, that has been completed, may, under God, prove to be a long-continued blessing to the people.

Yours, in the bonds of the gospel, A. G.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN TEXAS.

December 1st, 1854.

Dear Brother—This report closes the second year of my missionary labour in this new State. During the twelve months past, there has been much to gladden the heart, and also many remembrances that bring sadness and sorrow. But such is life. Every missionary field has its own peculiarities, its encouragements, and its discouragements. My time has been divided between two churches and one station. On my first arrival in ———, I found an organization and six members. Now we have upon our roll twenty-nine members; also a beautiful church, 32 by 50 feet, completed, at a cost of about $2800—a union Sabbath-school, numbering about fifty-five regular scholars, a weekly prayer-meeting, and preaching twice a month. Although greatly prospered externally, yet it is with sorrow that we must confess our membership has not been as much increased as last year; but feebly we have sown the seed, and we trust that God will yet bring forth fruit to his honour and glory. The attendance is good, and we are much encouraged to pray for a better time.

In ——— I found a perfect void, so far as Presbyterianism is concerned, but I organized, and we have since enrolled eighteen members. A union Sunday-school, embracing about sixty scholars, is going on encouragingly. I preach in the Court-House once a month. The attendance is unprecedented in that town, and strict attention. Now and then one comes out professing to be on the Lord's side.

The present membership of my churches extends over sixty miles north and south, being too great an extent of territory for one person to occupy, as there are many points that I cannot reach at all. My nearest brethren are forty, fifty, and eighty miles. There is sufficient work in this field for several preachers. In accordance with an injunction laid upon each minister by our Presbytery, I have brought the subject of ministerial support before my people as honestly, plainly, and scripturally as possible, hoping and praying that they may be more efficient in this matter.

There has been a Presbyterian paper taken in almost every family in our churches. I have also scattered many of the excellent books of our Board of Publication, especially the Great Supper, that noble and practical exposition of the much hated doctrines of our Church. I have also supplied a number of Sabbath-schools with the American Sunday-School Union's publications. We are encouraged; Presbyterianism is gradually overcoming every opposition, and soon it will triumph. In general the health has been good on this field, but some have fallen around us. Two of the members from the church in ——— have been taken home. In August, the strongest and sweetest tie that bound my soul to earth and time was severed. God had need of my dear, devoted wife near by his throne, and in the midst of youth and influence he called her pure spirit away to his own paradise. Although her time was short—dying in her nineteenth year, yet her life was a living epistle, and her death was a glorious triumph. We were all bereft, and our hearts were desolate, but He did it "who doeth all things well." And then in October, a noble young man, with the dew of youth fresh upon his brow, fell with the yellow fever in H———. But he, too, died in triumph, and now both are happy in a Saviour's love, in the Church triumphant. Our prayer is, that we who are left may be faithful unto the end, and that when God calls, like the dear departed, we may die in peace, and his name shall have all the praise. May His richest blessings rest upon you all, and upon the missionary cause generally.

Truly yours in gospel bonds, R. F. B.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN NEW YORK.

Dear Brother—I am happy to say that our church is still rapidly filling up, and that we hope in the course of the next month to be able to worship in the main auditory. Our room below is filled every Sabbath, leaving but a few vacant seats. There have been a few cases of awakening and conversion. Two weeks ago two of our young ladies left for the Choctaw mission as teachers; an interesting account of the farewell services you will find in the Observer. This is the first fruits of our church for the missionary field, but I think it will not be the last. A deep interest has been awakened by the departure of these devoted young Christians for their new field of labour. And we feel as if new ties had been thrown about us and the missionary cause. As to our financial matters we shall have a hard struggle I suppose for a while. Then we will have a heavy debt upon us, which will require time and strong efforts to reduce. Yet, I trust we shall be able to work through it all. God has led us along thus far, often by a way that we knew not, yet always safely. I think if some of our rich men could see the field which we are cultivating, they would have aided us. Yet with all our poverty we have got along, and are able to say, "the Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

I sincerely hope we shall, ere long, be able to refund with interest, all we have received from you. We have learned to love the Board of Missions for its generous and long-continued sympathy with us, and to appreciate the noble work which it is doing.

May the Lord yet give you many more abundant tokens of his favour, in using you as the instrument in building up his church, and extending his kingdom.

Truly yours,

J. E. R.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN MARYLAND.

December 29th, 1854.

Dear Sir—At the close of the present quarter, I make my report. Still I have cause to thank the Lord for his continued goodness. Health has been granted me, and facilities for doing some good in Christ's cause. I lament that I have not done more, and yet I feel, that time and labour have not been wholly thrown away. My meetings have been punctually kept up, and have been well attended. Seriousness, I think I may safely say, has characterized them all; and we have some evidence that the Lord has manifested amongst us his gracious presence, and the saving influence of his Spirit. I have been averaging three times preaching on the Sabbath; on the whole preaching to between seven and eight hundred hearers. Family visitation I have carefully attended to, being well convinced, that a principal influence is derived from this source. I visit about fifteen families weekly, taking tracts with me, and conversing personally with all with whom I meet. This means of promoting religion, I have long since found to be a most efficient means of success, and I think the Lord is with me in these visits. Our Sabbath-schools have done well, though for a few months now, the country schools will intermit on account of the roads, many of the children coming from a distance. I think there is a general interest awakened in this county in the Sabbath-school cause, more than ever before was known. The public are thoroughly convinced of the utility of Sunday-schools, and we have repeatedly witnessed Sabbath-school scholars being brought to a saving knowledge of the Saviour. I have steadily urged upon teachers and scholars both, the necessity of vital religion as the ultimate object of all our instruction in these schools. Family religion in the way of family prayers, and parental influence in behalf of Christ, I have tried uniformly to inculcate upon the people. Early in the Spring our Sabbath-schools (five in number) will begin again, I believe, with renewed diligence. Our Bible operations form a prominent effort in Christian zeal here, and are undoubtedly accomplishing a good deal. Attention is drawn to the reading of the Bible, and I believe Bible knowledge is likely to prevail among the people. A correct understanding of the Bible, I insist upon as essential to the true way of salvation. Formerly, and even still, great ignorance has been here respecting the plain, important fundamental doctrines of the gospel, and I trust Bible-reading will remedy this ruinous ignorance. I think I stated in my last report, that one family in ten had been found destitute of the Bible, and that our agent had been well received by the people. We shall still continue our Bible labours until the entire county be supplied. In one section of my preaching appointments, the inhabitants have lately erected and are now finishing a large stone building, suitable for a church and primary school. Two years ago, I began there with a very small meeting, twenty or twenty-five, and those inattentive; the neighbourhood was careless about attending preaching, intemperance prevailed to a dreadful degree. But I have laboured along, looking steadfastly to the Lord for success. Praying, and hoping against hope, I have persevered on. Now, the house will not hold the congregation; good order prevails; solemnity marks the meetings, and several have given evidence of conversion. At last the people have put up the new stone building, and I humbly trust, that souls are in it to be led to the Saviour, and that the influence of the meetings will be felt all through the neighbourhood. Intemperance has very much lessened, and indications show that the Lord intends good for that people. My appointments (six besides ———, where I preach every other Sabbath night,) are well sustained by the attendance, and interest of the people. Brother T—— was with us at our sacramental meeting at ———. His services much interested the people there; there was a case of serious conviction of a Catholic, who since has been attending meeting. Had the weather permitted, we should have protracted the meeting several days. It was however a solemn and interesting occasion, and I trust has left a salutary impression. We have many reasons to be encouraged in this region, although some hinderances exist; such, for instance, chiefly as the ignorance of the people respecting Bible truth; yet this is giving way, and no doubt our circulation of the Bible in every family, and in many instances among individuals, will fully, by the blessing of God, obviate this. Lately I met a family without a Bible. The head of the family could not read, and therefore said he did not want a Bible. I told him to get one, and have his neighbours read it to him. No, he said if he could read he would have it. I went onward in the road, and had gotten but a short distance, when he came running after me, saying he must have the Bible, and would get it read to him. A man lately got Bibles of me for his children, and I urged upon him the duty of accompanying his presents with prayer, that God would save his children. I have some hope that the hearts of these people are somewhat drawn to prayer, and if the Lord will only stir up their souls unitedly to pray, I shall then look for the reviving influence of his Holy Spirit. I am endeavouring to get the Bible introduced into Primary Schools, as a reading-book, and am meeting with some success in this respect. I pray and long for a general revival to take place in this region. I keep this object constantly in view; I believe I have a number of faithful Christians also engaged in prayer, and in desire for this; and hope, nay, believe our prayers will not be in vain. The season just now is somewhat unfavourable, the roads being pretty bad; still I am enabled to hold the meetings punctually at the various points. The coming Spring, I look for an increase in hearers, and in religious influence. A few days since a hopeless drunkard applied to our Society (Sons of Temperance,) and yesterday another lost inebriate told me he wished to join us. Without boasting, I may say that we have reformed some very hopeless cases of intemperance. A few weeks since I called to see a young lawyer, almost ruined. I faithfully warned him, told him of his danger, urged him to seek the Saviour, both on his own account, as well as that of others. He listened attentively. Soon after he came to see me; and shortly after applied for admission to our Temperance Society. At the same time, the Editor of the paper here joined us. Thus we are strengthening a little; I have no doubt of the ultimate success of the gospel in this place, and county. Present manifestations show, that the people are willing to hear the good word of life, and that labours among them are not in vain. In fact, I never put forth any effort, without confidently expecting some degree of success from it. May the Lord in his abounding mercy visit us, and glorify his name here in the ingathering of many precious, perishing souls.

Yours truly, in Christ,

T. G.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN EAST FLORIDA.

February 5th, 1855.

My Dear Brother—The time has again arrived for me to inform you of another quarter's labours in this every day more and more interesting field. I feel that God has not sent me here for nought—but that we shall yet, through the blessing of God, have a church firmly established and self-sustaining. Since my return to this field, I have preached twice on Sabbath, and kept up a weekly prayer-meeting, which is but thinly attended; nevertheless, a few devoted hearts meet there. We have not been able at times to accommodate the audiences who have come up to the sanctuary of God on the Sabbath; and our only fear now is that we will not be able for some time to come. Within the last quarter a house of very neat proportions has been enclosed, but unless some interest in the rapid spread of our Master's cause comes up to our aid, we fear it must remain as it now is for many months to come. Our communion season was one of very great refreshing to God's own, and we cannot but hope that a salutary impression was made upon the minds and hearts of some who were mere spectators.

Yours, fraternally, A. W. S.

NAMES OF CHRISTIANS.

The Scriptures give four names to Christians, taken from the four cardinal graces so essential to man's salvation:—Saints, for their holiness; Believers, for their faith; Brethren, for their love; Disciples, for their knowledge.—Fuller.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Missions.

Honorary Members have a right to sit in the meetings of the Board, and engage in their deliberations, but have no right to vote. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to them every year. Provided we have their address.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

To the Trustees of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and to their successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of———, or I devise a certain messuage, and tract of land, &c., to be held by the said Trustees, and their successors for ever, to and for the uses, and under the direction of the said Board of Missions of the said General Assembly, according to the provisions of their charter.

☞ Persons making bequests to the Board of Missions are requested to be careful in adopting the above form.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

TREASURY AT PHILADELPHIA.

Receipts into the Treasury of the Board of Missions during the month of January, 1855.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Troy.—Second st ch Troy 280; Waterford ch 180; Second ch Troy, of which 50 from HARVEY CHURCH to constitute himself an hon mem 110 55	$570 55

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River.—Scottsville 1st ch addl	5 00
Pby of Buffalo City.—Buffalo Central ch	61 75
Pby of Michigan.—Freemont ch 5 50; Oakland ch 2	7 50

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson.—Deer Park ch	10 00
Pby of North River.—Wappinger's Creek ch 15; Marlboro ch, from P O B Fowler 10, Thos D Bloomer 1	26 00
Pby of Bedford.—North Salem ch 5 78; Red Mills ch, from S S Myrick 5; Rye ch 15	25 78
Pby of New York.—Rutgers st ch N Y, from the Female Domestic Missionary Association	102 87
Pby of New York 2d.—Delhi ch	11 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown.—Rahway 1st ch 70; Liberty Corner ch 23; Sab sch of First ch Elizabethtown addl, towards supporting a Missionary 35; Westfield ch 37; Lamington ch 53 75	218 75
Pby of Passaic.—Connecticut Farms ch	41 00
Pby of New Brunswick.—Freehold ch	46 73
Pby of West Jersey.—Greenwich ch 50; Blackwoodtown ch 17	67 00
Pby of Raritan.—Amwell 1st ch	24 00
Pby of Susquehanna.—Wysox ch	25 00
Pby of Luzerne.—Tunkhannock ch 7 50; Kingston ch 7 50	15 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia.—Second ch Phila, from Mrs Field 5; Arch st ch Phila addl, from Rev Dr Leyburn 20, from Mrs Leyburn 5, and from W Wallace 20; Central ch Phila addl, from Miss Elizabeth King 1; North ch Phila, from a member 15	66 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d.—Slatington ch, from Robert McDowell 10; Chestnut Hill ch 80; Port Richmond ch 5 10	95 10
Pby of New Castle.—Zion ch	20 50
Pby of Huntingdon.—Hollidaysburg ch to const Mrs JANE JUNKIN, Mrs ELIZA JANE MCCORMICK, JAMES SMITH, THOS B MOORE, and JOHN LYLE hon mems (16 27 from the Sab sch)	251 12

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore.—Bladensburg ch 7; Madison st ch Balt 2 10; F st ch Washington, Youths' Missionary Society 15 11, and Ladies' Missionary Society balance to const Rev P D GURLEY an hon mem 30; Second ch Balt 138; Frederick ch 51; Baltimore First ch 900	1143 21
Pby of Carlisle.—Cumberland ch 105; Shippensburg ch to const Rev JAMES HARPER and JOHN RESIDE hon mems 100	205 00
Pby of Winchester.—Fredericksburg ch 9 50; Winchester ch, from a member 100	109 50
Pby of Eastern Shore.—Snow Hill and Pitt's Creek chs 20; Monokin ch, from a Lady 10	30 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington.—Wellsburg ch	23 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Richland.—Orange ch 7 75; Hopewell ch 6	13 75

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake.—Laporte 1st ch 12 50; Bethel ch 5; Rolling Prairie ch 10; Sumption's Prairie ch 14	41 50
Pby of Fort Wayne.—Hawpatch ch 2; Albion ch 5	7 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane.—Westminster ch, Mineral Point 15; Oakland ch 12	27 00
Pby of Winnebago.—Depere ch addl 17 50; Winnebago Rapids ch (Neenah) 9 10	26 60

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Greenbrier.—Point Pleasant ch 10; Mrs Narcissa R Martin 5, E W Martin 5	20 00
Pby of Lexington.—Bensalem ch	8 00
Pby of Montgomery.—From the Treasurer of Presbytery 285; Big Lick ch 15	300 00
	$3645 21

MISCELLANEOUS.

Littleton Kirkpatrick, Esq, New Brunswick, N J 150; Messrs J & J S Heacock, Kingsboro', N Y 100; Mrs Jane Rose, Phila 40, of which 20 for Kansas; "Cash" 5; "Unknown" 25; Rev W J McCord, Jefferson, N Y 1; Female Domestic Missionary Society of Princeton, N J 20; Rev R McCachren, Newville, Pa 5; John C Baldwin, Esq, Natchez, Miss 20; Rev J R Graham, Winchester, Va 3; John Newton, Orange Hill, Fla 5, in part to const self hon mem; Prof Rev R P Dunn, Providence, R I 24; "An American" per Rev Dr McKinney 5	403 00
	$4048 21
Received from the Treasurer at Pittsburgh, January collections $449 20
Less expenses 7 03	442 17
Total,	$4490 38

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

1 box from Ladies of Bound Brook ch, N J, valued at	$61 50
1 box from Ladies' Missionary Society of F st ch, Washington, D C, valued at	45 25
1 box from Ladies of Jersey City ch, N J, valued at	61 50
1 box from Ladies' Missionary Society of Alexandria 1st ch, Va, valued at	53 07
1 box from Ladies of Central ch, Allegheny City, Pa, valued at	150 00

☞ The box acknowledged in last Record from unknown donors, valued at $65 08, should have been from the Branch Sewing Circle of Spring Creek church, Pa.

CHURCH EXTENSION FUND.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia, during the month of January, 1855.

Pby of Genesee River.—Scottsville ch	$10 50
Pby of North River.—Smithfield ch	13 00
Pby of Bedford.—North Salem ch	5 00
Pby of Kaskaskia.—Sugar Creek ch	17 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev W J McCord, Jefferson, N Y	1 00
Total,	$46 50

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

WASHINGTON CHURCH EDIFICE.

Received at the office of the Board of Missions, Philadelphia, for the church edifice to be erected at Washington City, D. C., since the last acknowledgment, in December Record.

Pby of Bedford.—North Salem ch	$4 00
Pby of New York.—Bridgeport ch, Conn	14 84
Pby of Newton.—Upper Mount Bethel ch	5 00
Total,	$23 84

TREASURY AT PITTSBURGH.

Receipts into the Treasury at Pittsburgh, Pa., during the month of January, 1855.

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Ohio.—Mingo ch 27 50; Pittsburgh 2d ch addl 16; Centre ch, Male Association 37, Female 15=52; Lebanon ch addl 7	102 50
Pby of Clarion.—Bethesda ch 9 06; Licking ch 9 34; Bethlehem ch 2 97; Middle Creek ch 2 97	24 34
Pby of Beaver.—Beaver Falls ch	14 00
Pby of Blairsville.—Glade Run ch	9 70
Pby of Allegheny.—Butler ch 30; Harrisville ch 12; Slate Lick ch 2 50; Freeport ch 12 40; Sharpsburg ch 22 50; Centre ch 15; Union ch (less discount on uncurrent note) 7 70	102 10
Pby of Redstone.—Uniontown ch	25 60
Pby of Erie.—Meadville ch 40; Fairview ch 9 77, and Sturgeonville ch 7 23=17, bal to const Mrs MARY JANE REED an hon mem	57 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of New Lisbon.—Canfield ch	12 05
Pby of Washington.—Mt Prospect ch, in part to const David R Campbell hon mem	39 62

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion.—Delaware ch 20 96; Radnor ch 10	30 96

MISCELLANEOUS.

David Hough, Esq, (less discount on uncurrent note)	31 33
Total,	$449 20

J. D. WILLIAMS, Treasurer.

MISSIONARY CLOTHING.

Ladies of Salem ch, Ohio, a box valued at	47 64
" Cadiz ch, Ohio, " "	54 54
" Gilgal ch, Pa, " "	30 00
	$132 18

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of January, 1855.

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Miami.—Monroe ch 23 50, Rev James Coe 10; Franklin ch 17 80; 1st ch Dayton 60 78, Ladies' Miss Soc of 1st ch Dayton 20	132 08
Pby of Sidney.—Mr L B Pope, Hill Grove ch 20, Hill Grove ch 1 50; Urbana ch 8 50	30 00
Pby of Maumee.—Union ch	1 50
Pby of Findlay.—Lima ch	20 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany.—Utica ch 3 25; 1st ch New Albany 157 30, Sab sch of 1st ch New Albany 30, Mrs Mary Lindsley, New Albany 40	230 55
Pby of Vincennes.—Princeton ch	13 00
Pby of Madison.—1st ch Madison 62 30; Pleasant Township ch 9 15	71 45
Pby of Indianapolis.—Knightstown ch 4; Bloomington ch 21 13	25 13
Pby of White Water.—Greensburg ch 22 45; Richmond ch 25 18; Mt Hope ch 6	53 63
Pby of Palestine.—Palestine ch, mo con coll 5; Wabash ch 4	9 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Muncie.—1st ch Indianapolis	120 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Schuyler.—Bennington ch 3; Oquawka ch 5 10; Camp Creek ch 13; Pleasant Prairie ch 2; Fountain Green ch 13; Hopewell ch 25	61 10
Pby of Rock River.—Albany ch 5; Andover ch 7 50	12 50

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar.—Tipton ch 16 17; Scotch Grove ch 8; Bethel ch 7; Linn Grove ch 8	39 17
Pby of Des Moines.—Fairfield ch	10 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville.—Mulberry ch ann coll 94 25; Shiloh and Olivet ch 9 75; Walnut st ch Louisville 1; Robert Selby, 2d ch Louisville 10	115 00
Pby of Muhlenburg.—Master Conrad Lubiet Henderson	1 00
Pby of Transylvania.—Richmond ch 42 60; Columbia ch 5 10; Mrs Nancy Kilgore, Glasgow ch 2 50	50 20
Pby of West Lexington.—Bethel ch 55 50; Nicholasville ch addl 25 25; 1st ch Lexington in part 74 75; Second ch Lexington in part 106 50; A Lady in Georgetown ch 2	264 00
Pby of Ebenezer.—Paris ch bal 25; Elizaville ch 15	40 00
Pby of Paducah.—Marion ch	5 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.

Pby of Memphis.—Portersville ch 23; German Town ch 7 50	30 50

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS.

Pby of Arkansas.—Little Rock ch	20 00

SYNOD OF TEXAS.

Pby of Western Texas.—Bethany ch	3 00
Total	$1357 81

LEGACY.

Bequest of T Wallace, dec'd, of Mayslick, Ky	125 83

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs C G, Smithland, Ky	1 50
Total,	$1485 14

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

PRESBYTERIAN EDUCATION ROOMS,
No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Business Officers of the Board.

C. VAN RENSSELAER, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
WM. CHESTER, D. D., Asso. Sec'y. and General Agent.
JAMES WOOD, D. D., Associate Corresponding Secretary.
WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 265 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 265 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

THE CHILD AND THE PASTOR.

The Rev. John McDowell, D. D., of Philadelphia, in his semi-centenary discourse, just issued from the press, has given some notices of his early religious training, which we transfer to the Record for the benefit of those who may not enjoy the opportunity of reading the sermon. We commend the extract to the special attention of Christian parents, who may learn from this instance what has often been illustrated by other similar examples, that God ordinarily calls his ministers from among those whose parents have piously devoted them to the Lord and trained them up to know and serve him. Dr. McDowell has been fifty years in the pastoral office, twenty-eight and a half at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, twelve and a half in the Central Church, Philadelphia, and nine in the Spring Garden Church, where he now preaches. And though he is in the seventy-fifth year of his age, he possesses to appearance both the physical and mental vigour of his youth. God has greatly blessed and honoured him in his ministry. Among the many interesting reminiscences contained in his discourse, the following are peculiarly valuable as being a kind of "Ebenezer," a memorial of devout gratitude to the Redeemer, who has crowned his labours with so much success. "The whole number of members added to the communion of the three churches during my ministry among them, has been, on examination 1207, and on certificate 731; making a total of members added under my ministry 1938." If parents educate their children in a religious manner, they have a scriptural warrant for expecting to see them in due time pious and useful. They may not all be called to preach the gospel, but they will become in some capacity, "vessels unto honour, sanctified and meet for the Master's use, and prepared unto every good work."

"My pious parents early dedicated me to God in the ordinance of baptism, in the Presbyterian church of Lamington, New Jersey, to which they belonged; and agreeably to their baptismal vows, endeavoured to bring me up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. From my earliest years I was blessed with the important privilege of family worship; and was brought up with a strict regard to the Sabbath, and to attendance on public worship. Sabbath evening, after the public worsbip of the day, was always devoted to religious family instruction, such as reciting the Catechism, by the children; repeating the texts, and giving an account of the sermons we had heard; and hearing remarks from our parents calculated to instruct us, and impress divine truth upon our minds.

"And here allow me to remark—if Sabbath evenings were now more generally spent in this way, by heads of families, I believe it would be a great blessing to their children, and to the Church, and the community. With regard to our invaluable Catechism, through the faithfulness and diligence of my pious mother, repeating them to me, before I could read, I knew them all by the time I was five years old. For the instruction, and at the same time the encouragement, of pious parents, I would say—to this early training, by the blessing of God upon it, I owe very much of what has been good and useful, in a religious respect, in my life since.

"At the early age of eleven years, my mind became deeply impressed with a sense of my sinfulness, guilt, and need of salvation; and after a time of much distress and anxiety, the Saviour, as I fondly hope, was pleased to reveal himself to me as able and willing to save; and I was enabled cordially to accept him, and put my trust in him, and devote myself to him. And here let me say to the youth of my audience, that, while I have great reason to be humbled, and mourn that I have not lived nearer to God, and done more for his glory, I have never regretted that I commenced a religious life so early.

"Directly after I found peace in believing in Christ, and had a discovery of his loveliness, I earnestly desired to become a minister of the gospel, that I might preach Christ to others, and tell them of his loveliness, and persuade them also to love him. The prospect of having my desires realized was small. There was no classical school near, where I could pursue the necessary studies. My father was unwilling to incur the expense of sending me from home; and there were, at that day, no education societies from which I could obtain assistance. For several years, my daily, sincere, and earnest prayer was, that God would open a door for me to receive an education, that I might become a minister of the gospel.

"At length, when I was fifteen years old, a classical school was opened about two miles from my father's residence, and I became a scholar. This school continued until I had finished my course of study preparatory to entering College, and soon after closed. The opening and continuance of that school, as far as I was concerned, I have often viewed with thankfulness, as a signal answer to prayer."

PRAYER FOR MORE MINISTERS.

The Rev. John Angell James published last year an earnest and stirring appeal, entitled "The Church's Prayer for a more adequate supply of Ministers." We make the following extracts from the paper:

"The whole matter of the ministry seems by common consent to be all but excluded from our prayers. True, our brethren pray at our prayer-meetings for their own ministers, and sometimes not only with earnestness, but with adulation. But how strangely they forget the ministry at large! Or, if they pray for those who are already engaged in the work, how rarely they pray for a greater supply of labourers! How small a space of our united supplication is devoted to our Colleges, either to the students or the professors! If ever there was a time when the people of God should lie down upon their faces, imploring with all the importunity, boldness, and perseverance of faith, for a larger supply of ministers, each full of the Holy Ghost, as was Barnabas and Paul, it is the period that is now passing over us. And yet the Lord's people are silent; or, if not silent, satisfy themselves with a few formal, lukewarm petitions, destitute alike of faith and fervour.

"I will, for a moment, advert to the kind of ministers we must pray for. This may be known from the work they have to do—to gather in the harvest of souls to Christ and to heaven. We want harvest men for harvest work; men that can and will do this; men that thoroughly understand the great work of saving souls, and who will give themselves to the work. It would be a poor recommendation of a labourer for the harvest field that he was a good tradesman, or that he was a good scholar, or well read in history, if, at the same time, he did not know how to reap. His work is specific, it is to gather in the harvest, and his qualification must be appropriate. So it must be with ministers of the gospel.

"They are described as labourers, not as loiterers; and as labourers in this work of gathering in the harvest. A man may be very busy, very diligent, really very hard-working, but if he is not busy, diligent, and hard-working in reaping and gathering in the harvest, he is not the kind of man we should pray far. The work of the Christian ministry is as specific as the work of the reapers in the corn-field; and if he is not fit for this work, what business has he to be there?

"For such labourers the Church must lift up a general, loud, importunate, and persevering cry; and just for these two reasons—the immensity of the harvest, and the paucity of the labourers. If we saw a vast breadth of wheat spreading out before us, and only here and there a solitary labourer, though, perhaps, there were scores of loiterers and idlers sitting under the hedge, or stalking about with their sickles under their arm, we should involuntarily exclaim, 'The harvest will perish for want of labourers to collect it.' Such, friends, such is the scene presented by the spiritual harvest.

"In conclusion, I return to the subject of prayer, and most earnestly call upon all who feel interested in the welfare of our own denomination in particular—in the prosperity of the universal church, or in the conversion of the world to Christ: upon all who own subjection to the Redeemer's commands or sympathizes with him in the desires of his immaculate and loving heart; upon all who see the connection of an adequate and efficient ministry with the support and advancement of Christ's kingdom in our world,—to consider from henceforth more deeply, solemnly, and practically than before the necessity and importance of believing, importunate, and persevering prayer for the Lord to send more labourers into the harvest. It is with small hope of much effect, as regards either ministers or their flocks in general, that I send forth this paper. Alas! alas! we are all too busy to pray. We can find time and inclination for anything rather than this. And yet, is not prayer the very lock of our strength, the secret of our success? Let us begin a new era in the history of religious activities, which, without being attended with any decay of zeal and liberality, shall be characterized by a spirit of deep devotion and earnest supplication. Let the past be characterized as it may by coldness and neglect, neither the present nor the future ought or need to be, on that or any other account, similarly distinguished. Let the end of averseness to prayer be now come, and a wrestling spirit begin its mighty power and prevalence with God."

HINTS TO CANDIDATES.

THE SOUL'S PROGRESS.—There is not, in my opinion, says Addison, a more pleasing and triumphant consideration in religion, than this—of the perpetual progress which the soul makes toward the perfection of its nature without ever arriving at a period in it. To look upon the soul as going on from strength to strength—to consider that she is to shine for ever with new accessions of glory, and brighten to all eternity—that she will be still adding virtue to virtue, and knowledge to knowledge—carries in it something wonderfully agreeable to that ambition which is natural to the mind of man. Nay, it must be a prospect pleasing to God himself, to see his creation for ever beautifying in his eyes, and drawing nearer to him by greater degrees of resemblance.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.—Wholesome sentiment is rain, which makes the fields of daily life fresh and odorous.

That state of life is most happy wherein superfluities are not required, and necessaries are not wanting.

You cannot fathom your mind. There is a well of thought there which has no bottom. The more you draw from it the more clear and plentiful it will be.

IDLENESS.—Said the distinguished Lord Chatham to his son, "I would have inscribed on the curtains of your bed and the walls of your chamber, 'If you do not rise early, you can make progress in nothing. If you do not set apart your hours of reading, if you suffer yourself or any one else to break in upon them, your days will slip through your hands unprofitable and frivolous, and unenjoyed by yourself.'"

EVIL THOUGHTS.—Have a care of evil thoughts. Oh the mischief they have done in the world! Bad thoughts come first, bad words follow after, and bad deeds bring up the close. Strive against them! Watch against them! Pray against them! They prepare the way for the enemy:—

> Bad thoughts is a thief! He plays his part;
> Creeps through the window of the heart;
> And, if he once his way can win,
> He lets a hundred robbers in.

How to Preach.—Jenkyn, the biographer of Baxter, says:

"In preaching, Baxter's heart burned within him; and while he was speaking, a live coal from the altar fired his sermons with seraphic fervor. Into his pulpit he brought the whole energies of his entire nature. He had a large mind, an acute intellect, a melting heart, a holy soul, a kindling eye, and a 'moving voice;' and he called on all that was within him to aid him in his preaching. Being deeply earnest himself, he wished his hearers to be deeply earnest. Himself being a burning light he wished to flash the hallowed fire into the hearts of others. He seems never to have studied action or 'the start theatric.' The only teacher that gave him lessons in action and attitude was feeling—real, genuine, holy feeling; and this taught him how to look, how to move, and how to preach. In preaching, as well as in everything religious, he believed with Paul, that 'it is a good thing to be always zealously affected;' and consequently, that earnest, fervid preaching is truly apostolic."

How to soften a "Hard Field."—"It is a very hard field!" is a complaint very common among ministers, and there are indeed many "hard fields." If the unregenerated have "stony hearts," then all the fields which the gospel plough has not already subdued, are not only "hard fields," but also covered all over with stones.

But, brother, if yours is a "hard field," remember that it is the prerogative of the Holy Ghost to "take away the stony heart out of their flesh," and the promise of the Holy Spirit is the easiest of access of all the promises: "Ask, and ye shall receive" it. "How much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him."

Have you been to God and earnestly prayed that he would wake up that stupid elder or deacon, whose worldly-mindedness grieves, and whose hardness of heart distresses you? And then, have you taken your temporal "life in your hand," and with a fresh score of your own faults and imperfections, gone to him to tell him (in love) of his? If you have not, try it. Haply you will find before ever the agony of this service is over, that your "hard field" is softened by that influence which cometh "as the rain upon mown grass," and "maketh it soft with showers."—Era.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

THE GOOD OFFER RENEWED.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

The good offer, made last year, in behalf of parochial schools, is renewed. We are authorized to state the fact, without mentioning the name of the generous donor, that the sum of five thousand dollars has been placed at the disposal of the Board of Education to assist in establishing and sustaining parochial schools, for the year 1855.

This donation will be disbursed, on the requisite testimonials, in sums not usually exceeding $100 to a school.

May God accompany with his blessing this sincere and zealous effort to train up the rising generation in the spirit and principles of religion.

GENESEO ACADEMY, NEW YORK.

A correspondent of the Genessee Evangelist, who, as we infer from his letter is the pastor of the church at Geneseo, writes as follows, concerning the above institution:

"Among those who united with the Presbyterian Church, were two young men, students of the Academy, who have entered on a course of study preparatory to the ministry. These are but the continued fruits of that system of Christian education, which, with God's blessing, has resulted in the hopeful conversion of nearly one hundred pupils since the institution came under Synodical direction, ten at least of whom are now anticipating a life devoted to the preaching of Christ crucified. And shall such a school languish and decay for the want of funds? The answer lies with the wealthy among the people of God."

A letter from Professor Nichols, the principal, states "that within the past month or two, five of the students have become hopefully pious, and that the religious state of the school is good."

TOWANDA ACADEMY, PENNSYLVANIA.

This institution is reported to be in a flourishing condition. The number of pupils is one hundred and forty-four. At a late meeting of the Susquehanna Presbytery, the subject of establishing a Female department was fully discussed, and the measure determined upon, in accordance with which the trustees have elected a principal of this department, which, though under the same Board, and in the same place as hitherto, is to be located at a suitable distance from the present edifice, and to be substantially and practically a separate institution. The movement is regarded by those acquainted with the circumstances, as highly important in its prospective benefits to the cause of Christian education in that section of the State.

DES PERES INSTITUTE, MO.

This institution has been placed under the care of the St. Louis Presbytery, and is conducted by the Rev. Messrs. Gilbreath and Fenton, who are performing a twofold work, first in the academy, which affords facilities for young men to obtain a thorough education; and secondly, in the country around, by preaching at prominent points with the prospect in due time, of organizing churches. The number of students in the institute is thirty. Ministers' sons and other young men having the ministry in view, are not charged for tuition. The location is in St. Louis county, some eighteen or twenty miles from the city, easy of access, healthy and inviting. The school deserves a much larger patronage than it is now receiving. The prices are moderate, and special care is taken to guard the pupils against vice and irreligion.

MARENGO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, ILL.

At a late meeting of the Presbytery of Chicago, it was resolved to change the name of Marengo Academy to that of Marengo Collegiate Institute, and to locate it permanently in that place, provided the citizens would raise for buildings and endowment $9,000; $2,000 as a donation, and $7,000 in scholarships, which conditions have been complied with, and a new charter is to be obtained in accordance with this change in the character of the institution. The academy is in a prosperous condition, and its friends appear to be taking hold with spirit and liberality, to erect buildings and secure an endowment, on a scale commensurate with its enlarged and more elevated character.

AUSTIN COLLEGE, TEXAS.

The president of this institution, the Rev. Dr. Baker, has just returned to his post after an absence of eight months on an agency for the College. He received in cash nearly four thousand dollars, subscriptions, not yet paid, of over five hundred dollars, and a league of land on the Rio Frio. These donations were obtained principally we believe, if not wholly, in South Carolina, where Dr. Baker "held twenty-five protracted meetings of one week each," as the fruits of which, "some six hundred and fifty souls were hopefully converted, a majority of whom were men, a noble army of young men, with a smart sprinkling of men more advanced in years." These latter results, as every Christian will admit, are far more important than money or land, though this also is a just cause for gratitude, as funds are necessary for the endowment of the institution. We are glad to learn that the College "is in a very flourishing condition," and that there are "more students in attendance than ever before." May the Holy Spirit be poured out on the students, and many, nay, all of them, be made the subjects of renewing grace.

PRAYER FOR COLLEGES.

A premium Essay entitled "Prayer for Colleges," has just been published under the directions of "the Society for the Promotion of Collegiate and Theological Education at the West;" written by Professor W. S. Tyler, of Amherst College. From this excellent volume we extract the following, for the benefit of our readers, with the remark, that if the whole church will take that lively and prayerful interest in the spiritual prosperity of our literary institutions, so forcibly presented in this Essay, a host of young men now living in sin may be expected in answer to prayer, to devote their talents and learning to the service of Christ.

"Special inducements to pray for Colleges.

"Our Lord has commanded it. Among the few special objects of prayer which Jesus enjoined upon his disciples, was the raising up and sending forth of preachers of the gospel. As he lifted up his eyes on the multitudes that flocked to hear him, and saw the field already ripe for the harvest, he turned to his disciples, and said, "The harvest truly is great, and the labourers are few; pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." Here is our authority. Here, too, is our motive; it is the command of Jesus, who is our master and our friend, and who would fain be the master and friend of all mankind; who has died for our redemption, and died also for theirs; who waits to see the travail of his soul in their conversion, but who cannot see it, humanly speaking,—nay, according to the divine plan and purpose, cannot see it, except through the education and commission of an adequate number of suitably qualified ministers of the gospel. And this in our day can be realized only by the blessing of God and the outpouring of his Spirit on our colleges. As we love Christ, then, or the souls for whom Christ died; as we would honour and obey him ourselves, or see him honoured and obeyed by others, we must pray for his blessing on our colleges.

"They need our prayers. The officers need them,—they feel that they need them. They are oppressed with the weight of their responsibilities; not, indeed, all of them,—not any of them perhaps at all times, never any of them probably as they should be,—but some of them, sometimes at least, are oppressed with the weight of their responsibilities, and ready to cry out, "Who is sufficient for these things?" A crisis comes in the finances of a college, in the government and instruction, in the social habits and moral character of the young men, or in their religious condition and eternal destiny; when they feel that more than human wisdom, and a greater than human power, is needful to give the right direction to so many young minds, in whom are bound up so many precious interests, and who are destined to exert so wide and so powerful an influence. Then their first recourse is to God in prayer; and if they could whisper in the ears of Christians everywhere what they most desire from them, it would be, in the words of the apostle, "Brethren, pray for us." Especially on the recurrence of the day set apart by the churches to be observed annually as a day of united prayer for colleges, when the temporal and eternal welfare of so many of their pupils is brought to a crisis,—when the prosperity of the college, the interests of the church and the well-being of the community are so deeply involved,—when all these momentous interests are concentrated, as it were, in a point, and suspended on a few short weeks, when a few days even may turn the scale and decide the question,—then, with unutterable longings, do they wish that all the churches, and all who know how to pray, would pray for colleges.

"Next to the rulers of the State and the nation, no class of men have a stronger claim on the prayers of the church than the officers of our colleges. And, in one respect, their claim is prior even to that of civil rulers. The education of civil rulers themselves is, for the most part, intrusted to their hands.

"The students need our prayers,—peculiarly need them. They are at a peculiarly susceptible and critical age. They are placed in peculiarly trying circumstances. Consciously or unconsciously, they are passing the most important four years of their existence,—deciding questions for themselves which it never will be in their power to decide again; exerting an influence on others, which they will never have the opportunity to exert anywhere else. Young men are "strong;" and now they are to decide the question, whether they shall be strong to do good, or strong to do evil. College life abounds in helps and in hinderances to moral excellence; and now they are to determine, by their own free choice, whether the hinderances shall prevail over the helps, or the helps triumph over the hinderances. The pious students need our prayers, that they may be living epistles of Christ, where so many eyes are constantly reading them that will not read the written word of God; and that when they go forth into the world, they may go, not mere "professors of religion," not ordinary Christians and common-place ministers, but eminently holy and wise to win souls. The irreligious students need our prayers, that they may escape the many temptations incident to youth and college life; that they may not make shipwreck of themselves and many others for time and eternity; that they may not go out into the world educated and accomplished enemies of God and ministers of sin, but may be fitted by converting and sanctifying grace to serve God in their generation."

FAITH TRIED AND REWARDED.

An unskilful beholder, says Leighton, may think it strange to see gold thrown into the fire, and left there for a time; but he that puts it there would be loth to lose it; his purpose is to make some costly piece of work of it. Every believer gives himself to Christ, and he undertakes to present them blameless to the Father; not one of them shall be lost, nor one drachm of their faith; they shall be found, and their faith shall be found, when he appears. That faith which is here in the furnace, shall be made up into a crown of pure gold; it shall be found unto praise, and honour, and glory.

THE REWARD OF DILIGENCE.

"Seest thou a man diligent in his business?" says Solomon; "he shall stand before kings." We have a striking illustration of this aphorism in the life of Dr. Franklin, who, quoting the sentence himself, adds, "This is true; I have stood in the presence of five kings, and once had the honour of dining with one." All in consequence of his having been "diligent in business" from his earliest years. What a lesson is this for our youth, and for us all!

A GEM FROM AN OLD BOOK.

It has been eloquently and truly said, that if Christianity were compelled to flee from the mansions of the great, the academies of philosophers, the halls of legislators, or the throngs of busy men, we should find her last retreat with women at the fireside. Her last audience would be the children gathering around the knee of a mother; the last sacrifice, the secret prayer, escaping in silence from her lips, and heard, perhaps, only at the throne of God.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA, IN JANUARY, 1855.

I.—Fund for Candidates.

Presbytery of Albany.

Schenectady ch 125; 2d ch Albany 239 70	$364 70

Presbytery of Columbia.

Jewett ch	5 00

Presbytery of Genesee River.

1st ch Scottsville	13 35

Presbytery of Buffalo City.

2d Ward Lockport ch	7 00

Presbytery of Michigan.

1st ch Plymouth coll 7 92, Rev Jas Dubuar 1 08	9 00

Presbytery of Rochester City.

1st ch Vienna	7 00

Presbytery of North River.

Fishkill ch coll 7 50, Mrs Wm H Kirk to const Rev Wm H Kirk an hon mem 50=57 50, Peter B Fowler 3, Mrs Eliza Fowler 2, Thomas D Bloomer 1	63 50

Presbytery of New York.

Brick ch N Y 249 32; Jersey City 1st ch 189 19; Rutgers st ch, Mrs Jane Blewett 3; 1st ch N Y addl 381	822 51

Presbytery of Passaic.

Connecticut Farms ch	25 00

Presbytery of New Brunswick.

Laurence ch 75 35; Freehold ch 5 35; Pennington ch 55 50	136 20

Presbytery of West Jersey.

Camden ch 15; Greenwich ch 25	40 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

South-Western ch 5 26; Penn ch 12 81; 2d ch, Mrs Andrew Brown 5; 10th ch, "From a Friend" through the pastor, special 100, Wm Kirk 5; Central ch, Mrs C Kibben 5, Anna M Heckling 1, J Sibley 10, Thos Beaver 10, J C Taber 5, Mr J Scovel 50, Jas Wray 5=91, less collecting 1 50=88 50	212 57

Presbytery of Philadelphia 2d.

Frankford ch 23; Chestnut Hill ch 50	73 00

Presbytery of New Castle.

Fagg's Manor ch	31 10

Presbytery of Baltimore.

1st ch Baltimore 1000, of which for this fund 500; Franklin st ch special 150	650 00

Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Lewistown ch 35; Hollidaysburg ch 51 12	86 12

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Johnstown ch	70 00

Presbytery of Redstone.

McKeesport ch	33 00

Presbytery of Washington.

3d ch Wheeling	15 50

Presbytery of St. Clairsville.

New Castle, Brownsville, and Grandview chs	15 00

Presbytery of Zanesville.

Bethel ch 6, less discount 13 cts	5 87

Presbytery of Cincinnati.

Springfield ch 16 60; Pleasant Ridge ch 7	23 60

Presbytery of Sidney.

1st ch Piqua	21 00

Presbytery of Dane.

Oakland ch	3 00

Presbytery of Lexington.

Bethel ch	35 00

Presbytery of Western Texas.

Green Lake ch	28 05
Collections by Rev Thos Castleton in Georgia, particulars to be given hereafter	400 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr John Wolf, Oxford, Ohio 5; Rev W J McCord, Jefferson, Schoharie co, N Y 1; Rev Prof R P Dunn, Providence, R I 25; Mr John Newton, Orange Hill, Washington co, Fla, 1st payment on account to const himself an hon mem 5; Through Mission House, N Y "C D" 250, and "A Friend" 5	291 00
	$3487 07

II.—Fund for Schools, Colleges, &c.

Presbytery of New York.

1st ch New York for Parochial Schools	190 00

Presbytery of Philadelphia.

9th ch Philadelphia, Mrs Jane Rose on account of Blackwood Scholarship in Carroll Coll, Wis	25 00

Presbytery of Baltimore.

1st ch Baltimore	500 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

"A Friend to Parochial Schools"	1600 00
	$2315 00

III.—African Fund.

Interest on Principal	70 00

IV.—Fund for Teachers, &c.

Mrs Jane Rose, Philadelphia	20 00
Total,	$5892 07

WILLIAM MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT FITTSBURGH, PA., IN JANUARY, 1855.

Presbytery of Blairsville.

Ebenezer ch	$12 00

Presbytery of Redstone.

Rehoboth ch	33 33

Presbytery of Clarion.

Licking ch	9 33

Presbytery of Allegheny City.

Manchester ch	16 20

Presbytery of Washington.

Fairview ch 25; Pigeon Creek ch 50 to const Mrs M Sloan an hon mem; Cross Roads ch 50 to const Rev O M Todd an hon mem	125 00

Presbytery of St. Clairsville.

Beech Spring ch 55; Kirkwood ch 5; Nottingham ch in part 14 50; Crab Apple ch 80	154 50

Presbytery of Steubenville.

Still Fork ch	3 75

Presbytery of New Lisbon.

New Lisbon ch 92 72; Liverpool ch 5	97 72
* Concord ch 9; Belleville and Centre ch 10	19 00
	$470 83

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs Rev C C Beatty, special	25 00
Total,	$495 83

J. S. LEECH, McALPINE & Co., Treasurers.

* Their Presbyteries not stated.

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, IN JANUARY, 1855.

Presbytery of Rock River.

Andover ch	$7 50

Presbytery of Paducah.

Princeton ch in part	20 00

LEGACY.

Bequest of T Wallace, dec'd, Mayslick, Ky	332 05

MISCELLANEOUS.

R A Mathes, Caledonia, Mo 3; Mrs H G, Smithland, Ky 1; Rev Dr Humphrey, Danville, Ky, premium on draft sent 1 45	5 45
Total,	$365 00

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The sum of Fifty Dollars constitutes a person an Honorary Member of the Board of Education. A copy of the Annual Report is sent to all the Honorary members every year.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

The sum of Seventy-five dollars forms a scholarship to assist a student in the collegiate course, and the sum of One Hundred dollars in the theological course.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one Form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education and under its direction.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

Mission House, New York, Feb. 13th, 1855.

Indian Missions.—We have letters from the Chippewa Mission, January 1st; Omaha and Otoe, January 8th; Iowa and Sac, January 23d; Creek, January 8th; Chickasaw, December 25th; Choctaw, December 29th. Mr. Irvin mentions the death of a boy in the Iowa School, who had given promise of great usefulness; and states at the same time, that two of the pupils had applied to be received to the communion of the church. The school at Middle Village, among the Chippewas, is represented as in a flourishing condition. Of the thirty pupils now in attendance, about one-half were able to read with ease, and were making some progress in the study of arithmetic.

The mission families both at Tallahassee and Kowetah were in the enjoyment of good health and pursuing their labours as usual. The Rev. William H. Temple and Miss C. M. Workman, both of the Kowetah station, were united in marriage on the 1st of January. Mr. Loughridge was engaged in translating the Gospel of Matthew into the Muskokee language, and was assisted by an educated native who had been designated by the Methodist Missionaries for this purpose. The expense of printing this translation, when completed, will be borne by joint contributions from the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches among the Creeks. Mr. Reid mentions the hopeful conversion of a young man of promise in Spencer Academy, and thinks several others are anxiously inquiring what they must do to be saved.

India.—The latest intelligence from the Missions in India is, Futtehgurh, December 6th; Agra, November 29th; and Allahabad, December 4th. Mr. Walsh, speaking of certain inquirers, of whom mention has been made in a previous number of the Record, says, "Our inquirers continue to give us good hope, and will, I trust, prove true disciples. One of the men employed in the loom department is anxious to join us." Speaking of one of the monitors in the City School, he says, "He has been in the school a long time, and was there eleven years ago, when I first came to this station. He is a clever young man, and is thoroughly convinced of the truth, but needs courage to face the opposition that would arise if he should embrace Christianity. There are many others in his situation, who I hope are not far from the kingdom of Heaven. This young man has instructed his wife, so that she can read with ease. If our schools should exert this influence, it would be a glorious one, for the females of India, like every other part of the world, are really the rulers, and unfortunately we can have no access to them."

At Agra the schools were going on as usual. The attendance upon preaching, both in English and Hindustani, was good. Mention is made of the opening of a new Bazar School, of the higher class, to be taught by a native convert, which embraces between fifty and sixty pupils. At Allahabad the mission families were well, but no news of importance is communicated.

China.—We have letters from Canton, Nov. 9th; Ningpo, Oct. 31st; and Shanghai, Nov. 1st. The missionaries at all these stations are represented as in the enjoyment of their usual health, but no news of special interest is communicated later than what was published in the last number of the Record.

California.—The latest letter from this mission is the 14th January. The only item of interest is the commencement of a weekly newspaper, one-half in English, and the other in Chinese, under the superintendence of Mr. Speer. The expense of printing it for the present, is borne by a few individuals in San Francisco. The two first numbers have been received at the Mission House, and seem to be well executed. The English department contains matter of interest for English readers, and the Chinese will no doubt be equally valuable to those who are acquainted with this language, and for whom it is mainly intended.

Buenos Ayres.—We have received an interesting letter from Mr. L'Hombral of the 1st December, in relation to his position and labours in Buenos Ayres. He is formally acknowledged by the Government as a missionary of the Board to the French population of that city, and his acts, in the discharge of his ministerial duties, will be regarded as valid as those of any other minister in the place. He still holds his meetings in the North American church, but he has recently organized a little church which he hopes will be able to provide a place of worship for themselves before very long.

INDIAN MISSIONS.

JOURNAL OF A TOUR THROUGH THE INDIAN COUNTRY, BY REV. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, SECRETARY OF THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Journey from the Seminole Mission to Wapanucka.

Friday, Nov. 3d.—The distance from Oakridge to Wapanucka is fifty miles. There is no road between these two places except a mere bridle path, and no houses where we could stay, except one within ten miles of either end of the journey. How to get the wagon along, and how to arrange our stages so as to effect the journey in two days, was rather a difficult problem. But we had Mr. Lilley and Bemo to help us to plan, and as the latter had once before taken a wagon through this way, he was sure he could do it again. Two horses were added to the team, so as to make sure of getting the wagon through all the difficult places, and the whole of the party except Miss Ogden, who preferred the wagon, prepared for a horseback ride. It rained so hard in the morning that we could not think of setting out. But towards noon it held up, and the whole party were on the qui vive for a start. When we left Oakridge our cavalcade consisted of a wagon and four horses, and seven horseback riders. The leaders of the team were rather awkward at first, never having performed any service of the kind before, but Mr. Lilley took the reins, and soon reduced them to order. My horse, having been rested and kindly treated at Oakridge, was quite in the humour of travelling, and had to be kept reined in. The little Indian pony provided for Miss Thayer was so nimble and spirited, and so ambitious withal, to take the lead of the company, that it required all her strength to keep him in a more modest position. Mr. Burns had to use no less exertion, but it was in the application of a stimulus. Miss Thompson's horse had performed this same journey only a few weeks before, and having retained some recollection of its length and difficulty, was kept in the bounds of sobriety, without any special effort on the part of the rider. Mr. Allan, with a good deal of adroitness, had managed to get his horse in the gear, and was mounted on Mr. Lilley's saddle horse, an exchange which did not fail to call forth the hearty congratulations of his fellow-travellers, for the other was known to be intolerably rough in his gait.

In the course of two hours' ride we came to the Grand Canadian, and forded it without the least difficulty. On the opposite side of the river we stopped for a few minutes to see Mrs. McCleish, a daughter of the celebrated Col. Wm. McIntosh, who was murdered in Georgia twenty-eight or thirty years ago by his own people, on account of a treaty he had made with the United States Government. She is one of eleven brothers and sisters still living in the Indian country, and all of them persons of great respectability. She had a daughter in the school at Wapanucka, who died there something more than a year before. I introduced myself to her as a kinsman, being related by marriage to the McIntosh family of Georgia. At first she was somewhat incredulous about this, but when she found that I was particularly acquainted with the history of that branch of the family, as well as her own, she thought differently, and on that account she would have been glad to have entertained our whole party. But this was incompatible with our plans, and we had to decline her kind and hospitable invitation. Here we parted with Mr. Lilley, to whom we felt ourselves much indebted for aiding us on our journey. He returned home the same evening, and we urged our way onward, in the hope of reaching the house of a Shawnee chief, by the name of George Washington. We left the main road too soon, and after wandering in the woods a mile or two without seeing anything of the house, we came back to the main road, and travelled two or three miles further, before we came to the right path. I began to suspect now that guides were of very little account, for we had no less than three, all professing to know the road, and yet we had been misled. About dusk we rode up to the house of this chief, and alighted, without knowing certainly whether we could be entertained there or not. His entire establishment consisted of two log cabins, each about twelve feet square, and used for dwellings, and a corn crib of still smaller dimensions. One of the former was lined with clap-boards, and had a large fire-place, but no floor, except one of clay. The other was open, and afforded very little defence, either against the wind or rain. In the former there was a large fire burning brightly, and we were glad to get near to it, for it had now become very cold. The chief and his family, which consisted of his wife and a grown daughter, two men and several children, were seated around the fire, and when our party crowded in, the house was pretty thoroughly filled. The men retired immediately to the other house, and after a while the women and children followed also, leaving us sole occupants, with the exception of a few puppies and kittens, that were crawling about among our feet, and which our Indian friends intimated to us were too young to be removed to the more open house. Our host provided a partial supply of food for our horses, but had none for ourselves, except a few sweet potatoes.

We had provided ourselves with a small box of Scotch herrings at a store on the way, and had also a small supply of coffee and sugar. With these slender materials we set to work to prepare our own supper. One of the ladies prepared the coffee, another undertook to roast the potatoes, and one of the gentlemen undertook the management of the fish. We partook of this simple meal standing, without knife or fork, but with good zest and grateful hearts. All testified that the potatoes were unusually good, and none had ever eaten better Scotch herrings, and the coffee, of course, was first rate.

Sleep was out of the question, except to those who could doze in their chairs, or recline upon a bed of split boards, covered with a single blanket or a buffalo skin. It was cold and windy out-doors, and we were thankful for a comfortable retreat, even though we had no beds. We were naturally anxious for the morning light, and as we had to prepare our own breakfast, we were sure of having it once in time for a very early start. Our horses being poorly fed, and exposed to the beating rain, became restive, and made several attempts in the night to throw down the fence and get away, but we were fortunate in hearing them in time to prevent their escape.

The Shawnees are not numerous in this part of the country. None of the family where we stayed could speak English, and we could therefore hold very little intercourse with them, or find out much about them as a people. From other sources we learned that there were thirty or forty families in this immediate neighbourhood, and that they had been desirous for some time past, to have a teacher to instruct their children.

Saturday, Nov. 4.—By dawn of day we were all mounted and on our way. The most difficult places for the wagon to cross were within a few miles of the place where we had stayed. We determined to see it over these, and then ride on with the view of reaching Wapanucka that night, leaving Bemo and our coloured driver to follow and stay at the house of a friendly Indian on the way until Monday morning.

It soon became evident that it was no small matter to get the wagon across some of the deep gullies which lay across our path. Some of these are the channels of formidable streams in the winter and spring seasons, the banks of which are so precipitous that one is afraid to venture up and down even on horseback. I could scarcely see how a common wagon could be got up and down these steep banks without being dashed to pieces. Wherever the horses could be forced down, however, the wagon, somehow or other, was sure to follow; but not so always in ascending the opposite bank. Once, the wheels stuck fast in the mud, one of the horses was thrown flat on the ground, and it required no little effort to disengage him from the gear.

About 10 o'clock A. M., we left the wagon behind, and rode on single file, one while through wooded land and then over prairies, several of which were very beautiful and apparently fertile. Mr. Allan kept the lead, carried a hatchet in his hand, and now and then blazed a tree for the guidance of the party with the wagon. Occasionally a frightened deer bounded across our path, flocks of wild turkeys were seen speeding their way through the woods, and partridges were almost as common as grasshoppers. We crossed several branches of the Boggy river, the banks of which were so precipitous, that I thought it safest, on several occasions, to dismount and lower myself by holding to twigs and overhanging branches. The young ladies were more fearless, and rode down places where their horses would fall back upon their haunches, and slide down to the bottom of the channel. Six or eight miles before we reached Wapanucka, we passed over prairies that gave strong proofs that they had once been the bed of the ocean. Sea-shells, petrifactions, and fossil remains of various kinds, were scattered over the ground in great profusion, and one would judge from their appearance that they had not been exposed to the action of the elements for a very long period. At the same time there were ledges of limestone running across these prairies, as well as around their borders, which had all the appearance of having once been washed by the waves of the sea, and at no remote period.

We rode up to the Seminary at Wapanucka after dark. The family were at worship; and as everything about the place except the voice of praise and prayer was perfectly still, it was an impressive moment, and gave rise to many excited reflections upon the history, influence, and probable destiny of this institution. As soon as prayers were over, and it was known that we had arrived, the whole family encompassed us like a flood, and gave us a tumultuously joyful reception, and especially Miss Thompson, who, we soon saw, was a great favourite, both with teachers and pupils. We were pretty well tired out, having rode forty miles, and slept little or none the night before.

Female School at Wapanucka.

The Seminary building at Wapanucka is one of the finest in the Indian country. It is built of lime stone neatly dressed, is 115 feet long by 34 wide, three stories high, and has two wings, each 20 feet long, and two stories high.

The entire cost of this building was something more than $20,000, including the improvements on the farm, the funds having been furnished chiefly by the Chickasaws themselves. It has been in operation something more than two years, and has at present one hundred girls, the number to which it is limited. The Rev. H. Balentine has had the general superintendence of the station for the last two years, and Mrs. Balentine has had the supervision of the domestic affairs of the institution, both of whom have discharged their onerous duties with the utmost fidelity.

The whole school is arranged into three separate departments of upwards of thirty scholars each. Each one of these departments or schools is under the joint care of two young ladies, one of whom instructs the children in school, and the other has charge of them when they are engaged at their amusements or at work. It affords me great pleasure to testify to the zeal, faithfulness and ability, with which these young ladies have discharged their duties. It is but a short time since these children were placed under their care—most of them were without any previous Christian training—many were poor and badly clad—some were diseased, and gave very little promise of improvement, either in body or mind; but already the most encouraging results begin to show themselves. It would be difficult to find so large an assemblage of girls anywhere, of more pleasant and intelligent countenances, of more orderly deportment, or more decent personal appearance.

I had less time to examine the children in their studies than I wished, but what time I could spend in the schools gave me a very favourable impression of their progress. All of them, even the least, seemed perfectly familiar with the Children's Catechism, and a very large proportion of them seemed to be quite as familiar with the Shorter Catechism. One of their exercises I was particularly pleased with. The children were required to rise one after the other, and repeat from memory the successive verses of a given chapter of the Bible. In this way they went through several chapters, and could have repeated a half dozen or more. Surely, this storing of their minds with Scripture and with the Catechism, must exert a most important influence, not only upon their own future lives, but upon the whole community to which they belong. The dining-room operations at Wapanucka, are conducted on the same general plan with those at Tallahassee, with the exception that more attention is given to the little punctillios of the dining-table at the former than at the latter place, a circumstance to be accounted for, I suppose, by the predominance of female influence in one case over the other. Mr. James A. Allan, under whose superintendence this building was erected, is still connected with the institution, and is as laboriously engaged in promoting its welfare as ever. He has charge of the farm and stock, and superintends any repairs or improvements that may be necessary about the place. Both he and his wife however, show pretty strong marks of the hardships and privations through which they passed, during the first years of their residence at this place, when the country was comparatively wild, and afforded but few either of the comforts or necessaries of life.

The Sabbath was a pleasant and profitable day to us all. I preached in the forenoon, and Mr. Reid, who had arrived at Wapanucka about the same time we did, gave in the afternoon an interesting account of the recent revival at Spencer. I was to have given some account of my missionary labours in Africa in the evening, but being unwell, it was deferred to another time.

I spent most of the forenoon on Monday with Mr. Allan, in examining the state of the buildings, the farm and the site of a projected mill. It was a pretty hard forenoon's work, but I was more than repaid by the many delightful views through which our walk lead us. The environs of Wapanucka are exceedingly beautiful, and if the Seminary had been located on the brow of a hill in the rear of the place where it now stands, so as to overlook a broad prairie of most varied beauty, I would have pronounced it one of the most beautiful places in the world.

Most of the next day was spent in examining the schools, conferring with Mr. Balentine and others, in relation to the general affairs of the station, and with Mr. Burns in reference to his station at Boggy Depot.

It was settled that Mr. Reid and I should leave early Wednesday morning, with the hope of reaching Doaksville by Friday night, before the Choctaw Council should adjourn. The health of Miss Eddy, one of the female teachers at Wapanucka, had become so much impaired that it seemed necessary for her to seek medical aid; it was determined that she should return with me to New York. Mr. Allan had business at Doaksville also, and it was arranged that he should take Miss Eddy in a buggy to Spencer, leave her there and meet us at Doaksville.

As the time drew near to part with these dear Christian friends at Wapanucka, and especially with those who had been my fellow travellers for more than six weeks, it became a much more serious trial than I had anticipated. When my horse was brought out, I took a hurried and somewhat confused farewell of all, and was glad to get the start of Mr. Reid, so as to be alone for a half hour. If any of my friends there felt my departure to be abrupt, I have only to say that I felt too much at the time to act otherwise.

In less than an hour Mr. Reid overtook me, and we reached Boggy Depot, which is about ten miles from Wapanucka, by two o'clock in the afternoon. We stopped for a few minutes to see one or two white merchants, who had been kind and serviceable to our missionaries, both here and at Wapanucka, and dined with one of them. We stopped also to see the church, and the dwelling-house where Mr. Watson formerly lived, and which hereafter will be occupied by Mr. Burns. A German family is now in the house, but ready to give it up as soon as Mr. Burns is prepared to take possession. Since Mr. Watson left, the Rev. Henry Copeland, of the American Board, has occasionally preached at this place, as well as at the other stations connected with this mission. At two of them there is an interesting state of religious feeling at the present time; so that Mr. Burns commences his missionary labours under circumstances of great encouragement.

It was after three o'clock before we left this place, and as we had to ride twenty miles to reach Mr. Copeland's, where we proposed to spend the night, we had to put our horses at a brisk gait. It was some time after dark when we got to his house, and were sorry to learn that he had been confined to bed for some time past by an attack of bilious remittent fever. The disease had passed its crisis and he was convalescent, but too feeble to see us, except for a few minutes. To his family we are very much indebted for their kind hospitality, and were glad to have had it in our power to relieve their anxieties, by giving such advice and furnishing a few articles of medicine, which seemed necessary for his speedy recovery.

Tuesday morning, we left as soon as we got breakfast. Mr. Reid professed to know the road perfectly, and in consequence I discharged myself from all responsibility in the matter. I soon found, however, that whatever other excellencies Mr. Reid might possess, his skill as a guide was a very questionable matter. We got lost several times during the day, but always succeeded in getting back to the right path; so that it was finally conceded, that though he was very unskilful in keeping the right road, he had wonderful tact in recovering it when lost. He succeeded in finding one object of great interest, a singular conical hill, called the "Sugar-loaf Mountain," midway between the stations occupied by Mr. Copeland and Mr. Starks. We ascended this beautiful mound from the south side, and supposed it to be six or eight hundred feet high. Its outlines were so regular and perfect, that I could almost fancy it to be a work of art. Near the base, it is surrounded by a belt of limestone, that looked very much like the remains of an old battery. The summit was covered with large masses of loose brown sandstone. From the highest point, we had a panoramic view of surpassing beauty. We could see, as we supposed, forty or fifty miles in every direction. Three-fourths of the surrounding area was prairie, but so intersected with strips of wooded land as to resemble a natural garden on the grandest scale. We could have spent the whole afternoon in contemplating this enchanting scene. But we had a long journey before us, and had to turn our backs upon it. We descended on the north side and soon found our way back to the road.

At one o'clock we stopped at the house of a very respectable Indian, by the name of McIntosh, where we got dinner and had our horses fed. We were in our saddles before two o'clock, and had rode but a short distance before we overtook a Choctaw on horseback, who could speak no English, but who, we found by signs, was travelling the same road to Mr. Starks. We took charge of him as our guide, especially as there was a probability that we would not get to Mr. Starks until after night. He followed us all the afternoon, and whenever we came to a fork in the roads, he always pointed out the one we were to take. It became dark, and when we supposed that we were very near to Mr. Starks, we met the post-boy, who informed us that there was no house on the road we were travelling in less than fifteen or twenty miles. We still supposed that our Indian guide had understood us, and would take us along some bye-path to Mr. Starks. We put him in front, and intended to keep up with him, but in five minutes he was out of sight and gone. We pushed forward as fast as we dared ride in the dark, whooped and yelled, but we got no response. We concluded that he had misled us, and to get out of the difficulty, had run away and left us in our perplexity.

It was now very dark, we knew of no house in less than twelve or fifteen miles, and our horses were tired out. We rode on for a time in rather a moody humour, debating the question whether we had better not stop at once and spend the night in the woods, or ride on in the hope of reaching a house. In the midst of our anxiety and discomfort, Mr. Reid thought he remembered a point of wooded land extending into the prairie, which he had once passed in going to Mr. Starks. He proposed that we would go to the place, and if he found a path there, he would be sure it was the right one. We found it exactly where he had supposed, and after following it two or three miles through a very intricate wood, we came up to Mr. Starks' house. The family were preparing to retire for rest, but gave us a most cordial welcome, notwithstanding the unseasonable hour of our arrival. Mr. S. is connected with the American Board, and has charge of several large Indian congregations. I had no opportunity to attend any of his meetings, but learned from others as well as himself, that several of the churches under his care were in a very interesting and promising condition. He had recently been bereft of a most excellent wife, and her loss was mourned not only by an affectionate and sorrowing husband, and motherless family of little children, but by the entire missionary circle.

Friday Morning, November 10th.—Learning from Mr. S. that the Choctaw Council would not adjourn until the latter part of the next week, we determined to go directly to Spencer, and defer our visit to Doaksville until Monday.

The first part of our journey lay almost entirely through prairies, and much of the way we had not even a bridle path to follow, but were guided by certain land-marks about which Mr. Reid was more confident than he had been during the first part of our journey. We saw a greater profusion of sea-shells and fossil remains scattered on the surface of the ground than I had seen anywhere in the Indian country. Many of these shells were perfect in their forms, and did not bear stronger marks of the action of the elements than those that may be picked up on the sea-beach at the present time.

We crossed the Kiamishi river about eight miles from Spencer. This is a large and formidable river in the winter season, and can be crossed only in flats. We forded it however, without difficulty, except in descending and ascending its steep and slippery banks.

We stopped at the houses of several Indians with whom Mr. Reid was acquainted, and informed them that we would preach at the little church near Spencer both on Saturday and Sunday. We reached Spencer about two o'clock in the afternoon, and were most cordially welcomed by the mission family, who had been expecting us hourly for two days past. I had several letters to write, and spent the remainder of the day in this way, whilst Mr. Reid took a tour through the whole establishment to see that all were well, and everything going on right.

Spencer Academy.

The mission premises at Spencer consists of four large two story frame houses, arranged so as to form a quadrangle, with a house for the superintendent between the two on the east, and a chapel directly opposite on the west side, with various outbuildings, standing at some distance. Most of the buildings had recently been painted or whitewashed, and in consequence, the whole establishment presented quite an air of cheerfulness. The four principal buildings are intended each to accommodate a teacher, his family and twenty-five pupils, and they are sufficiently commodious for this. The whole number of pupils in the institution is one hundred, being the number agreed upon in the contract between the Board and the Choctaw Council. Their ages vary from eight to sixteen, and the whole are arranged in three departments or schools, according to their attainments in learning. The more advanced department is under the care of Mr. Anislie, and both of the others have been under the care of Mr. Burt, since Mr. Nourse left in the autumn.

These young brethren have discharged their duties with fidelity, as would readily be seen from the progress which their pupils have made. The two departments under Mr. Burt's care have been at Spencer only for a comparatively short period, and their studies as yet have been confined to the more elementary departments of education. They read, write, commit Scripture to memory, and have made considerable progress both in arithmetic and geography. Those in Mr. Ainslie's department appeared well in reading, arithmetic, geography, composition, and several had acquired a good knowledge of geometry.

There are a good many young men in the country who have gone through the ordinary course of study at this institution, who might now be formed into a class for the purpose of studying the languages, and the higher branches of mathematics, as well as the natural sciences. It is of great importance that some provision be made to meet this want of the country, and especially as many of these young men are pious, and might thus be fitted for the Christian ministry.

The institution at Spencer was never more flourishing than it is at the present time. The Choctaw people themselves are beginning to appreciate its importance more than they ever did before, and the number of pupils might easily be doubled if it were possible to accommodate and instruct so many. This prosperous condition of the institution is to be ascribed, under God, mainly to the judicious and unremitting labours of Mr. Reid. He has his finger upon every wheel in the machine, and taken altogether, he is one of the busiest and most laborious mortals I have ever met with.

Saturday, 11th.—I spent most of the forenoon in visiting the various families connected with the mission, and was afterwards introduced to every boy in the school, and it sounded strange enough to hear the familiar names of William Phillips, Joseph McElroy, James Alexander, Robert L. Stuart, &c., announced as these little Indian boys came forward in succession, and offered me their hands. They do not carry themselves quite so erect as those whose names they bear, but nobody can tell what changes twenty years may effect in their character and personal bearing.

Interesting work of Grace.

In the afternoon, Mr. Reid and I went out to the little church among the "Six-town's People," where there has been a precious work of grace in progress for the last six or eight months, the particulars of which have already been made known to the readers of the Record. There had been but little opportunity to circulate information in relation to our intention to have preaching at the church on this occasion; but on our arrival at three o'clock in the afternoon, we found twenty or more of these recent converts already assembled. The horn was blown, and very soon after Indians, women as well as men, were seen coming in all directions through the woods on their little ponies, and very soon we had a good audience. Before the services were concluded, others, from a greater distance, had arrived with their tents and provisions, for the purpose of camping out, with the intention of holding prayer-meetings that night, and being on the ground early on the Sabbath morning, so as to lose none of the spiritual food which they expected to be dispensed the next day. I preached to them from the words of our Saviour, "Go ye into all the world," &c., having a young man, who had been educated at Spencer, by the name of Edward Dwight, as my interpreter. He also conducted most of the devotional exercises in the Choctaw language, and with impressive seriousness. The attention given was most marked, and afforded an encouraging earnest of what we might hope to witness the next day.

Sabbath, 11th.—Immediately after breakfast, the whole mission family at Spencer, with exception of one or two individuals, set out for the little church at Six-towns. The boys and their teachers walked, the distance being about three miles, whilst horses and a wagon were provided for the rest. On our arrival, we found more people already assembled than could possibly get into the little church. A few tents had been pitched, and a much larger number would have stayed on the ground, if the night had not been very inclement. They were engaged in holding a prayer-meeting, and continued it until after ten o'clock, when public preaching was commenced. I preached for more than two hours in the simplest strain I could possibly command, and without the formality of a studied sermon. I told them, in the same style I should have adopted if talking to children of four or five years of age, of Jesus, what he had done and suffered for them, of what he was still doing for them in heaven, and what he required them to do. This seemed to be just the kind of instruction they needed, and they received it with an eagerness and avidity that I do not remember ever to have seen equalled. They gave evidence of their interest and feeling, not by the uplifted countenance and fixed gaze, but by the copious flow of tears that were streaming down many a furrowed cheek.

After the forenoon service, we had an interval of an hour, when a dozen or more large fires were kindled around the church, at which the people warmed themselves and prepared their dinners. In the afternoon, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered, when fifty or more of these new converts partook of this sacred ordinance. One young man, connected with the Spencer Academy, was baptized, and took his seat at the Lord's table for the first time. This was one of the most interesting scenes which I have ever been permitted to behold. Here was a goodly company of disciples gathered, in the course of a few months, from a community of Choctaws, who have heretofore been proverbial for their ignorance and obstinate adherence to heathenish practices that have long since been cast off by the rest of the nation. All previous efforts, and they had not been few, to bring them under the influence of the Gospel, had proved utterly unavailing; and when the missionaries were almost on the point of abandoning them as utterly hopeless, God was pleased to visit them with the outpouring of his Spirit, and we now behold them gathered around the feet of Jesus, as happy and as confiding a band of Christian brethren as to be found anywhere in the world. They give evidence of the sincerity of their professions in many ways. There has been an entire change in their outward conduct; the Sabbath, which was formerly almost unknown among them, is now strictly observed; and no people in the world can be more eager to attend upon the public administration of the word. They have erected a neat house of worship for themselves, and the great mass of them, old as well as young, have set to work to learn to read. Those most advanced in life, say they cannot make much proficiency in general learning, but they are very desirous to be able to read the Scriptures in their own language, and to use their hymn books; and I was greatly surprised to find how many of them had already made this attainment.

When it became necessary to bring the exercises of the day to a close, it was with evident regret on the part of the people. They would have been willing, judging from what they said themselves, to have spent the whole of the night in listening to the Gospel, if we had had the strength to have continued with them. After the benediction was pronounced, Mr. Reid went with me to the door, and introduced me to every individual of the congregation as they passed out. This would have been a tedious ceremony under other circumstances, but it was a gratification to these simple-hearted disciples of the Saviour, and I would not have denied them this much for any consideration. A paper was placed in my hands when I was about to leave the place, which proved to be an earnest request that a pastor should be sent to them. It was written, I suppose, by one of the young men connected with Spencer, and had more than sixty signatures. Who will accept this call, and break to these humble disciples the bread of life?

The Choctaw Council.

On Monday morning, Mr. Reid and I set out for Doaksville, where the Choctaw Council was in session. We stopped at Pine Ridge, the residence of Dr. Kingsbury of the American Board, which is not more than two miles from Doaksville. Dr. Kingsbury has been engaged in the missionary work forty years, and is still one of the most active and laborious men in the field. He travels over the country and preaches as much as he ever did. All who know him regard him as an eminently judicious, laborious, and devoted missionary. Mrs. Kingsbury has been very nearly as long in the missionary work, and evinces no less interest in the cause to which all her energies have been devoted.

Dr. Kingsbury accompanied us to Doaksville, and introduced me to the chiefs and the principal men of the country, who were present at the time, as well as to many members of the Council. Doaksville is a village of considerable mercantile importance, but wants the neatness and the beautiful location of Talequa, the capital of the Cherokee country. Most of the stores are in the hands of white men, but a few of the Choctaws have an interest in some of them.

We spent a half hour or more in the Council. Business seemed to be conducted in an orderly and dignified manner; but as most of the papers that were read, and their speeches, were in the Choctaw, we were not much edified. In the evening, according to previous appointment, I addressed the chiefs and the Legislative Council in Dr. Kingsbury's church. I gave them some idea of our missionary organization, of the state of our missions among the other Indian tribes which I had just visited, and dwelt particularly upon the state of the Spencer Academy (in which I found they were all cherishing an increasing interest), its present condition, its future prospects, and the influence which it must exert upon the future condition of the nation, if vigorously sustained. These views, as I afterwards learned, were entirely satisfactory to those who were present.

Tuesday, 14th.—After breakfast, Dr. Kingsbury and I rode over to Fort Towson, to see Colonel Cooper, the agent of the Choctaws. We spent more than an hour with him, conversing about the Choctaws, their present condition, their future prospects, and the best means of promoting the cause of education among them, and found him an intelligent and gentlemanly man; and I have no doubt he is sincerely interested in the welfare of the Choctaws.

Fort Towson has been abandoned as a military post, and though once kept in a good condition, and made quite an imposing appearance, is now falling into decay, and will be good for nothing in a few years, unless it passes into the hands of some one who will keep it in repair.

We returned to Pine Ridge, and heard the girls of the boarding-school, under Dr. Kingsbury, examined in their studies. They appeared well, and showed that they had been carefully trained in a moral, social, and religious, as well as in an intellectual point of view. I made them an address at the close of the examination, on the two-fold duty of improving their minds while they had an opportunity to do so, and of attending to the great concern of their soul's salvation.

We returned to Spencer in the afternoon; and that evening, and the two following days, were devoted exclusively to the affairs of the Academy. During the time, I heard all the children examined in their studies, held three religious meetings with them, met with the coloured people about the place twice, and had one prayer-meeting with the immediate members of the mission family, and had a personal conversation with almost every member of the mission. The institution, in almost every respect, is conducted with harmony and energy, and I shall always think of my visit here with feelings of the highest gratification.

Friday, 17th.—This morning, Miss Eddy and I set out in a common wagon without springs, on our way to Paraclifta, in the State of Arkansas, which is a hundred miles from Spencer, where we expected to find a stage to take us to Little Rock, the capital of the State. Mr. John Reid, nephew of the Rev. Alexander Reid, accompanied us to take the wagon back to Spencer. We stopped for a few minutes to see Mr. Samson Fulsom, the financial agent of the Chickasaws, who lives near Doaksville. I found him one of the most intelligent and pleasant men in the Indian country, and got more valuable information from him about the Chickasaws, in the course of two hours conversation, than I had got in all my previous intercourse with this people.

As we were passing through Doaksville, I received a message from Col. R. M. Jones, superintendent of public education for the Choctaws, requesting me to remain a day longer, with the view of considering the question of re-opening the female school at Good Water, under the care of our Board of Missions. This item of business not only suspended my journey for a day, but involved the necessity of my riding twenty miles on horseback to visit this place. It was a pleasant ride however, and I felt amply repaid in having the opportunity of spending the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Hotchins, who formerly had the charge of this institution, and who are excellent and devoted missionaries.

Saturday, 18th.—We resumed our journey and reached the station at Wheelock, under the care of the American Board, before sunset. This station was formerly occupied by the lamented Alfred Wright, who has left behind many proofs of his having been an honoured servant of the Lord Jesus. Few modern missionaries have laboured more successfully, and none have been mourned with more heartfelt sorrow than this devoted servant of the Redeemer. The station is now under the care of the Rev. John Edwards, but the female education of the station will be continued under the direction of Mrs. Wright, the widow of Mr. Wright. I preached three times on the Sabbath in churches that were organized by this sainted brother, and in one, if not two of these places, there was a state of religious feeling almost as remarkable as that at the Six-towns and Spencer.

Monday, 20th.—On Monday we reached Stockbridge, the station occupied by the Rev. Cyrus Byington. We had met before, and this visit was very refreshing. Mr. Byington's health did not seem to be as good as it was when I met him in New York, two years before; but he is as much devoted to his work, and as much attached to his Choctaws as he ever was. Mrs. Byington seemed to be as much at home in the missionary work as her husband.

On Wednesday we reached Paraclifta, after a hard day's ride, and about the middle of the night took the stage, which we continued without intermission until we reached Little Rock.

CHINA: NINGPO MISSION.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. H. V. RANKIN.

Sacred Isle of the Budhists—Inhabitants without women—Character and specimens.

May, 1854.—We left Ningpo on Monday, the 15th inst., and passed the greater part of a delightful week in this sacred isle of the Budhists. This, my third visit, convinced me more than ever of the degeneracy of Budhism. In former times, when favoured by emperors, it made rapid progress. A beautiful island was selected and given for the sole use of the priests, and there, in its most attractive seclusions, upwards of seventy temples of various sizes were built. Well paved roads, winding over the hills, and to a large extent beautifully shaded by noble trees; grottoes, where human taste has added much to what was remarkable in nature, and a broad lotus-pond, which in the summer months presents one of the most striking attractions conceivable in the vegetable kingdom; these and others show that there has been a grandeur in this religion which does not now exist. There is decay in everything; the temples are much impaired, and their inmates, now reduced in number to a few hundred, are as unintellectual a set of human beings as I ever met with. Many of them, indeed, have a vacant, idiotic expression, not unlike inmates of a lunatic asylum. The doleful idea suggested by Mrs. Ellis in one of her books of an island inhabited solely by males, has its exact counterpart in Pootoo; and doubtless this fact of the banishment of all women from the island, will account in a measure for their stupidity. Even with respect to the principles of their religion, many of them are ignorant, and merely follow by rote their prescribed duties. They spend their time idly, and few seem desirous of attaining to that absorption into Buddha, which is in theory the essential of their religion. No wonder, for they in almost every case become priests by being brought in childhood by parents who have no means of supporting them, or from their own necessities. I met with a few devout ones. One is the recluse mentioned by brother Coulter in his excellent account of Pootoo, published in the Record of November, 1852. He lives in a little monastery beside a stream, half way to the summit of Fuh-ting-san, the highest hill on the island. He was at his orisons when we entered the door, but he did not alter his position or conduct till he had finished, when he came out and gave us a friendly greeting. So habituated was he, however, to his repetition of O-me-to-fuh,* that he could hardly frame a sentence without it. It entered into every reply that he made to me, either in part or in whole, and the use of it was at times truly ludicrous. Hard by the "well of the genii" lives another man, whose long, flowing hair, clasped with a gilt band, showed that he was subject to vows of a peculiar nature, for Budhist priests, it is well known, shave their heads. There he was sitting as he had sat for months, beating his little mallet on a wooden drum, to keep time with his vain repetitions of the names of his idols. He was of quite a cheerful temperament, however, and freely conversed with us. Not being a regular priest, he has bound himself by a vow to his present employment, for a limited time, after which he will probably return to the world. Further on, we met a priest connected with the principal temple, who was acquiring sanctity, as he told me, by another and extraordinary process. This was by suffering the nails on three of his fingers to grow. They had not been cut, he assured me, for upwards of twenty years, which I could readily believe, for I found them on measurement to be eight or nine inches long. They were encased in bamboo tubes.

Attractions of Pootoo—Preaching to fishermen—Pyramids.

To foreigners Pootoo possesses peculiar attractions in summer, in its ocean-washed beaches and salubrious climate; though the scarcity of all kinds of provisions excepting rice, and the uncomfortable accommodations of the temples, hinder them from residing on the island for any length of time. It would not, however, be a strange thing if some "Pavilion" or "Ocean House" were some of these days erected near one of the beaches, especially for the benefit of foreigners at Shanghai, who would gladly run away from the dreary level which surrounds them there, if a snug little steamboat would in a few hours convey them to so delectable a place.

The same evening that we reached Pootoo, a host of fishing boats also came in from their stations, where recently they had met with but poor success. These poor fellows, in their eagerness to hear the truth, presented a striking contrast to the apathy of the priests. The following day, after returning from our rambling to all the places of interest, I went up the hill overlooking the little harbour, in order to rest myself. I was soon, however, surrounded by a score of fishermen, who began to ask me all kinds of questions, which I answered. A still larger number soon surrounded me, to whom I had the opportunity for an hour or two of making known the blessed gospel. They were inquisitive, and yet courteous, and I found it difficult to leave them. Let us hear some more, they insisted, of these things; but I was too tired, after a hard day's work, to continue. After tea, however, I went into one of their boats, and conversed still more, I hope not without profit to some individuals. Early the next morning they all left the island, though I hope to meet some of them again in Ningpo, when the fishing season is over. At Pootoo, and, indeed all along the coast and on the island, there are hollow-built brick pyramids on the highest eminences, where signal-fires, when lighted, can be seen a long distance off. These were erected in the last dynasty, three or four hundred years ago, to signalize the approach of pirates, and of the Japanese, who then several times invaded this part of the coast of China.

Chusan—a health and missionary station—Hon. Mr. McLane.

We stopped at Chusan both going and returning, where we visited somewhat into the interior. Almost the first thing one would notice is a lot of baskets hanging up under the fortress walls, containing the heads of pirates—a warning to all of like employment. The nearest hill-side is dotted over with the graves of English officers and privates, who died during the war at this place. One of the regiments lost, I think, a moiety of its men by sickness. Yet it is regarded as a healthy place, and is recommended as a health-station. It is a place where much missionary labour could be accomplished. The Romanists have an establishment within the city walls, where a French superintendent resides, and I apprehend none of us would have difficulty in stationing ourselves there. I distributed a number of books, and talked with many people, entering their shops, where I was in every instance kindly treated. Even at the distance of a few miles from the city of Ting-hai, where I strayed alone, I found sociable, friendly people, and only could regret that my stay was limited among them. Oh for more missionaries to break the bread of life among this interesting people!

On our return from this interesting trip we found the steamer Confucius in the river, having on board His Excellency Hon. Mr. McLane, Commissioner to China, who was visiting some of the ports. During his stay, he appointed Dr. McCartee as acting Consul for Ningpo. I did not see much of him, as the steamer left early the following morning, though he is highly spoken of by all. Captain Buchanan of the Susquehanna, and the chaplain, Rev. E. C. Bittinger, accompanied him. The latter was able to give us much interesting information respecting Japan, where he was at the opening of that empire by Commodore Perry.

Trip to Tsz-kyi—mode of itinerating, expense, &c.

Our satisfactory visit to the island, both in a missionary point of view and for its physical benefits, induced me, with brother S. Martin, to take a short trip, on the 23d inst, to the city of Tsz-kyi. The two assistants, Lu-seen-sang and Shih-neaou, together with three of the older school-boys, accompanied us, and we spent a good part of the day in visiting every section of the city, and distributing books in all the shops where there were probably readers. As usual we preached in two or three temples, and the two assistants also addressed the people. This city is delightfully situated among the hills, and a clear, beautiful lake outside the north gate gives an additional charm to the scenery. There are a great many scholars, and some very rich men residing there, who give character to the place. I do not think it would be at all difficult for a foreigner to reside at Tsz-kyi, and upon inquiry we found that places could be rented to us for conducting regular services, if we were disposed to go at stated intervals. I hope we may ere long be able to carry into effect some plan for regular missionary effort there, as we have already done at Chinhai. The people there, in the war with England, were taught a lesson of foreign prowess, and we have always found them well disposed towards us. The city is only a few hours distant from us, and the dialect is the same; it is an important place, being the capital of a district containing many populous villages, and it is perhaps as healthy a location as any to which we have access.

We stopped at several villages on our return, distributing books, and talking to the people as opportunity was furnished. No country could be better suited for purposes of itineration than China, at least than that part of it where we dwell. We hire a boat, large or small as we please, for from twenty-five to forty cents per day, and with a good supply of books and some provisions, we can go in almost any direction in a most comfortable manner. There is a perfect network of canals about Ningpo, and these connect by sluices with one of the branches of the river. It often happens that every mile or so, we come to a village, and there we haul up as long as we please, to give opportunity to preach and distribute books. We sail, or are propelled by the scull night and day if we wish it, and the tide is not unfavourable; the light bamboo covering affording good protection from both sun and rain. There is indeed, very little hardship in this kind of labour, so far as travelling is concerned.

A Juggler—Arrival of Mrs. Way and Baptist brethren A visit to villages—Heathen Temples.

May 28th—Went out with brother Nevius to a populous suburb, which I had not visited for a good while, to distribute tracts and talk to the people. A few cordially invited us into their shops to take tea. On the way, saw a crowd collected about a juggler, who was to all appearances murdering a boy in a most shocking manner. The little youngster seemed however to breathe quite composedly under the operations of the bloody knife, as it seemed to enter his vitals, and we passed on, concluding not to waste our sympathy upon him.

June 1st—We were gladdened to-day by the arrival of Mrs. Way, after an absence of a year and a half. We also had the pleasure of welcoming Messrs. Lord and Knowlton and their wives, of the Baptist Mission.

June 8th—Returned last night with my family and Mrs. McCartee, and two of the Christian school-boys, from a pleasant trip among the villages lying between Tsz-kyi and Chinhai. We left in one little boat on Tuesday evening, and found ourselves at the end of navigation in that direction early the next morning. Before break of day, I left the boat and walked to the summit of a hill near by. It was still so dark that I could hardly distinguish any distant object; yet at that early dawn, far down in the valley could be plainly heard the matin bells of the worshippers of Buddha. While the world around them was buried in sleep, these poor devotees were engaged in their superstitious rites. Alas, go where you will in China, and you will not be at a great distance from a heathen temple, where men are daily bowing down to idols which human hands have made, and burning incense before them. Oh, for the advent of that day, when "the idols He shall utterly abolish;" when "from the rising of the sun, even unto the going down of the same, the Lord's name shall be great among the gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered unto his name, and a pure offering."

[To be continued.]

* Fuh is the Chinese for Buddha, and this is one of his epithets: a form of words constantly repeated by the worshipper, who thereby obtains merit.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN JANUARY, 1855.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Troy Second street ch 315 85; Troy Second ch 77. Pby of Albany—Albany Third ch 60 02 452 87

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Buffalo City—Buffalo Central ch 61 75. Pby of Michigan—Plymouth 1st ch, Rev James Dubuar 3, Youth to ed James Dubuar 20. Pby of Rochester City—Port Byron ch, of which 7 50 from Sab sch, 22 50; Vienna 1st ch, Joseph Fulton to con Rev BENJ B STOCKTON 1 d, and Mrs. OLIVIA B STOCKTON, Rev GEO W BURROUGHS, Mrs OLIVIA C S BURROUGHS, Miss SARAH B STOCKTON, CHARLES P STOCKTON, and LA RUE P STOCKTON 1 m's 300 407 25

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of North River—Smithfield ch to con ——— 1 m 30; Highlands ch Sab sch 4 87, infant class 1 13; Cold Spring ch mo con 10; Rondout ch, of which 35 to ed Walter Coane Phillips and Martha H. Wurtz 121, less 6 for Foreign Missionary; Marlborough ch mo con coll's at West Neighbourhood 11 40, P V B Fowler 10, Mrs Eliza Fowler 10, Mrs John Tooker 1, Mrs Lydia Dolson 1, Maria Bont 25 cents, Mrs Eliza Cosman 1, Thomas D Bloomer 2, Mrs Elizabeth Wygant 1, in all from Marlborough ch 37 65; Wappinger's Creek ch 12 56, Sab sch 6 37, a child's offering 1 25. Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch a friend 1, Sab sch to ed A L Lindsley 25; Croton Falls ch mo con 7; North Salem ch in full to con GEO W MEAD 1 m 10, Sab sch to ed David Irving 15. Pby of Long Island—Smithtown ch Wm P Buffet 10. Pby of New York—New York 1st ch for Papal Europe 1400, mo con 150 54, less 12 50 for Foreign Missionary, Sab sch to ed W W Phillips in China 6 25, to ed child at Corisco 25, Teachers to ed James Donaldson and Sarah C Dow among the Omahas 12 50, Miss Jaudon's class to ed Fanny Phillips 6 25, Mrs Lowrie's class to ed girl at Canton 12 50, Young ladies to ed G B Lamar 25, to ed Josephine Tuttle 25, to ed Sarah L Tuttle 10, Infant Sab sch to ed Walter Lowrie 6 25; Williamsburgh ch mo con 21 78; Madison Avenue ch mo con 33; Forty-second street ch mo con 17 50; Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth street ch ann coll of which 1000 for Bible distribution and support of Missionaries among the Waldenses 6219 99; Astoria ch Sab sch to ed Fred G Clark 25; Chelsea ch mo con 29; Ainslie st ch, Williamsburg, mo con 19 08; Newtown ch, Dutchkills Youth's Missionary Association 17 50; Brick ch, L P Stone 100; Rutger's street ch ann coll, 138 69; Yorkville ch ann coll, of which 30 a family offering to con Rev E C BOTSFORD 1 m, and to ed Seminole boy 48 87, less 2 50 for Record, Sab sch to ed Mary Briant and John B Pinney 12 75. 2d Pby of New York—Canal street ch mo con to ed Wm Hamilton 2 78; Delhi ch 11; Scotch ch mo con January and February 153. Pby of Connecticut—Thompsonville ch 27 8828 06

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Woodbridge 2d ch Infant Sab sch to ed Julia Welles 25; Liberty Corner ch 28, less 6 for Foreign Missionary; New Vernon ch 30; Elizabethtown 1st ch, of which 100 from Youth's Missionary Society, 50 of which to ed Margaret Murray and Emma Beach at Allahabad 440, less 20 for Foreign Missionary; Plainfield ch Sab sch for Bond Scholarship 6; Perth Amboy ch 30. Pby of Passaic—Springfield ch 44 26; Connecticut Farms ch 45; Newark 3d ch ann coll add'l 5 for Papal Europe 70 72, Sab sch to ed Samuel I Prime 20. Pby of New Brunswick—Shrewsbury ch to con Rev THADDEUS WILSON 1 m 30; Freehold ch 28 89; Ewing ch, a friend of Foreign Missions 5; Pennington ch 27 50. Pby of West Jersey—Leed's Point ch Sab sch 1; Greenwich ch 50; Camden ch 5. Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch Sab sch to ed John M Sherrard 5. Pby of Susquehanna—Wysox ch 10. Pby of Luzerne—Tunkhannock ch 5; Kingston ch 7 50. Pby of Burlington—Columbus ch 5 58; Mount Holly ch 25 42. 923 87

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Sixth ch Sab sch to ed Edward Milnor Donaldson at Corisco 38 86; Tenth ch mo con 50 89; Penn ch mo con 15 77; Seventh ch mo con 34 43, Sab sch 23 80; Fourth ch Sab sch for sup of Rev R M Loughridge and to con Rev L CHEESEMAN, D. D., 1 m 40; North ch "a member" for Bible distribution abroad 15. 2d Pby of Philadelphia—Slatington ch 10; Chestnut Hill ch 70. Pby of New Castle—New Castle ch mo con coll's 90, Dr Couper to ed John E. Couper 20, Mrs Dr Black to ed Charles Hy Black and Frank Middleton Black 40, Miss Hetty Smith 50 cts, Miss Ellen Smith 50 cts, E Nivin 1, Louisa Johnson 1, Mrs Cannon 1, Mrs Gemmill 5, Mrs S Carpenter 1, Mrs. John Janvier 5, Mr Motherwell 3, Chancellor Johns 5, Miss Booth 5, Mr Turner 1, Mrs Patterson 1, Miss Louisa Spotswood 1, the Misses Virginia, Mary, Annie R, and Lucy E Spotswood 50 cents each, Miss E W J S and Miss S B S 1 each, Miss Caroline P Spotswood 50 cts, Mrs Spotswood 5, Mrs Louisa Nivin 1, Wm Couper 25, Sab sch to ed Sophia Moody 25, in all from New Castle ch 236 50 Pby of Baltimore—Baltimore, Md, a family to ed Eliza Jane Cross, Martha Young Cross, Helen Miller Cross and John Cross Webster 200; Franklin st ch, a member to ed Mary Elizabeth Boyd 25; Washington F street ch, Youth's miss soc to ed James Laurie and Ninian Banatyne at Ningpo, Phineas D Gurley at Spencer Academy, and Charles Stott among the Omahas 100; Baltimore First ch ann coll, of which 25 from Sab sch to ed E Brown 1318 65; Bladensburg ch 7; Madison street ch 2 09. Pby of Carlisle—Dickinson ch 47; Mercersburg ch, of which 10 from Sab sch and 50 to ed Wm H Lynch in the High School, Liberia, 132 82. Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg ch 51 13; Milroy ch 32; Spruce Creek First ch 135 75; Sinking Valley ch 36 25. Pby of Eastern Shore—Snow Hill and Pitt's Creek ch 20 2632 94

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Blairsville—Saltsburg ch 50; Glade Mill ch, Young People's miss soc 20 48; Bethel ch 10; Plumb Creek ch 16; Parnassus ch 6; Society of Inquiry of Elders Ridge Academy 2 55. Pby of Redstone—Morgantown ch Sab sch to ed Henry E Smith and James Oliphant Wilson 50, Children's fem miss soc to ed Margaret Davis 25; Rehoboth ch, David Hough 33 33. Pby of Ohio—Pittsburgh 2d ch, Miss Head 3; Monongahela City ch to con Mrs MARY C WILSON, Mrs MARY VAN VOORHEES, and Mrs ELIZABETH FULTON 1 m's 90, Sab sch for sup of Bazar School in India, and to con Miss SARAH ISABELLA MARTIN and Miss MATILDA BOYD 1 m's 60. Pby of Allegheny—Fairmount ch 22; Sharpsburgh ch Sab sch 4. Pby of Beaver—Pulaski ch 16 50; Beaver Falls ch 15 50. Pby of Erie—Franklin ch Sab sch to ed Samuel Miller Eaton at Furrukhabad 6 27; Mercer ch 50, Sab sch to ed R F Sample at Lodiana 12 50; Meadville ch 40. Pby of Clarion—Leatherwood ch 20; Licking ch 9 33. Pby of Allegheny City—Sewickly, Pa, Miss B Wilson 1 78, Miss Mary Wilson 1 75, Master H R Wilson 1 75, and Master James L. Wilson 1 60, their New Year's gift for the heathen 569 32

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Wheeling 2d ch 111 37, Sab sch to ed Delia M Dickson, Cyrus Dickson, Edgar Woods, James M McKelly, and Ro Crangle in China, and James C Orr and Louise J Stilwell among the Chippewas 87 50; Wheeling 3d ch, Mrs Mary and Mrs Edgar Woods to ed Edgar Woods 10; Unity ch, Mrs Margaret Cook, an aged widow 5. Pby of New Lisbon—Canfield ch 30 25; New Lisbon ch 32 276 12

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Zanesville—Duncan's Falls ch, of which 3 from Sab sch 15; Cumberland ch 67. Pby of Richland—Ashland ch 15, mo con 15 50; Bladensburgh ch 5; Mt Pleasant ch in part to con JOHN SMITH 1 m 12 80; Utica ch 6 60; Sharon ch 1; Clear Fork ch 2; Pleasant Hill ch 10; Chesterville ch 3; Harmony ch bal to con Rev F THAYER 1 m 2. Pby of Wooster—Wooster, O, Hannah Smith 1 155 10

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Marshall ch, of which 10 bal to con Mrs LUCINDA ROBINSON 1 m 23 10. Pby of Miami—Clifton ch 45; Sinking Creek ch 30. Pby of Cincinnati—Fourth ch mo con 1; First ch Sab sch to ed Samuel Ramsay Wilson 25; Bedford, O, Mrs M Brown 1. Pby of Oxford—Oxford 3d ch mo con 11 136 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of New Albany—New Philadelphia ch 5 40. Pby of Madison—Hanover ch Sab sch to ed J Finley Crowe 15. Pby of Indianapolis—Hopewell ch 40; Franklin ch, Dr John H Donnell in part to con Mrs ELIZABETH DONNELL 1 m 5; New Providence ch 4 25. Pby of White Water—Richmond ch Sab sch for sup of H L McGuire Scholarship in India 16 45. Pby of Palestine—Charleston ch Mrs M A Venable proceeds of two Shanghai chickens 6 92 10

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Lake—Sumption's Prairie ch 30; La Porte 1st ch 12 50 42 50

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Kaskaskia—Greenville ch 10 55. Pby of Sangamon—Sugar Creek ch 17 35. Pby of Schuyler—Westminster ch, Quincy, of which 4 from Sab sch 24; Andover ch 10; Pleasant Prairie ch 1 50; Fountain Green ch 13. Pby of Peoria—Canton ch 5 81 40

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—Oakland ch 5 50. Pby of Winnebago—Winnebago Rapids ch 8 20 13 70

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—St. Louis Pine street ch mo con 8 45. Pby of Potosi—Bellevue ch 20. Pby of Upper Missouri—Dover, Mo, Rev E Hickman for China mission 5; St. Joseph's, Mo, a friend 10 43 45

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—Chestnut st ch mo con 24 70; First ch mo con 14 75; Second ch mo con 10 40. Pby of Transylvania—Columbia ch 5 10; Glasgow ch, Mrs Nancy Kilgore 2 50; Richmond ch mo con 11 09, Sab sch 12 75. Pby of Ebenezer—Burlington ch, J M Preston 50; Elizaville ch 15; Covington First ch 73 50. Pby of Paducah—Marion ch 6; Smithland ch, Mrs H G 1 50 227 29

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Greenbrier—Point Pleasant ch 10. Pby of Lexington—Bensalem ch 6. Pby of Winchester—Fredericksburgh ch 12 36; Winchester ch, "a member" 50; Romney ch 35; Springfield ch 10. Pby of West Hanover—Lynchburg ch 39 50; Concord ch 10; New Store ch 7 25, Rev S W Watkins 2 75; Bethlehem ch 6. Pby of East Hanover—Richmond 2d ch mo con 24 84; Nottoway ch 50; Petersburgh ch, including mo con coll's 214 60, A G McIlvain 100, D Dunlop 50, John Donnan 50, D Donnan 15, R R Collier 10, F W Bradbury 5, A S Shafer 5, P P Batte 5, J B Dunn 5, Bequest of Miss Lucy Bolling, deceased, 25, bal of last year's coll 6, Sab sch to ed Robert Ritchie 25, in all from Petersburgh ch 515 60. Pby of Montgomery—Pearisburgh ch 10 27 789 57

SYNOD OF NASHVILLE.—Pby of Maury—Hopewell ch 15. Pby of Knoxville—Madisonville ch 21; Knoxville 1st ch mo con coll's 18 54 00

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—Pby of Harmony—Salem ch B R 85 00

SYNOD OF ALABAMA.—Pby of East Alabama—Hayneville ch 15; Mt Harmony ch 15; Providence ch 10 40 00

SYNOD OF MISSISSIPPI.—Pby of Mississippi—Port Gibson ch mo con 10; Jacksonville ch Sab sch to ed Leroy Halsey 50. Pby of Louisiana—Prytanea st ch, New Orleans, Juv miss soc to ed Elias R and Hannah J Beadle 25; Lake Providence ch, "a young lady" 5 90 00

SYNOD OF MEMPHIS.—Pby of Memphis—Hickory Wythe ch 40; Salem ch 17 50 57 50

Total from churches, $15,998 94

LEGACIES—Antrim, N H, Legacy of Miss Hannah Page, deceased, 50; Mayslick, Ky, Bequest of Thos Wallace, deceased, of which 33 55 for Liberia Missions 468 13 518 13

MISCELLANEOUS.—North Jackson, O, Alex Russell 5, Anne Russell 10, James Russell 30; Gaston Co, N. C., J H Holland 5; Philadelphia Soc, Nassau Hall 3 50; A friend 1 50; An old Presbyterian 25; Oregon, Mo, Mrs S A Zook 5; A little girl to purchase a Bible for a Hindu mother 1; Hamden, N Y, Mr James Russell 10; Cash 5; Rev M D Dunlap, Academy, Va, 1; Ladies' Association, Hempstead, N H, for mission to the Chinese in California 15; Miss Jane Rose, Phila, 20; A friend, Greensburg, Ky, 5; JOHN NEWTON, Orange Hill, Fla, in part to con himself 1 m 5; Female soc, Cambridge, O, to ed Henry R Wilson in India 12; "Unknown" for schools in India 75 234 00

Total receipts in December, $16,751 07

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE WALDENSES.—Amount previously ackow'ed, $9829 73
New York 1st ch 171; Ladies of Hollidaysburgh ch, Pa, 6 177 00 $10,056 73

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

DONATIONS OF CLOTHING, &c.—Source unknown, per James Adger, Esq, Charleston, S. C., one box clothing; Female miss soc of Bethel ch, Blairsville Pby, 1 box clothing 40 96.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., the Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, or the Rev. J. LEIGHTON WILSON, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr. Esq., Treasurer—same address.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—
Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D.D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 265 Chestnut street;
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky. Andrew Davidson.
Memphis, Tenn. J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Missouri, David Keith;
Natchez, Mississippi, Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Virginia, Samuel Winfree;
Charleston, South Carolina, James Adger;
Augusta, Georgia, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board; and should be preceded, or accompanied, by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY is published monthly, in two editions. Terms: Newspaper Edition, at the rate of two dollars a year for twenty copies to the address of one person, postage prepaid. Under twenty copies, at the rate of thirty-five cents for five copies to one address; on these, postage to be paid by subscribers, at the office of delivery—half a cent for each copy if paid quarterly in advance. Pamphlet Edition, Fifty cents a year for each copy. This edition contains several pages of additional matter. Copies are sent free, when desired to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to ministers. Address, for both editions, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OVERLAND LETTERS.—Letters for the Overland Mail, to India, Siam, and China, should reach the Mission House in time for the steamer nearest the first of each month. Postage: assessed according to weight, at the rate from New York of forty-five cents for half an ounce. This may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 265 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. WILLIAM E. SCHENCK, Corresponding Secretary, No. 265 Chestnut street.

Reports from Colporteurs and letters relating to their accounts, to be addressed to Mr. WINTHROP SARGENT, Superintendent of Colportage.

Orders for books, and letters relating to the business of the Depository, to be addressed to Mr. JOSEPH P. ENGLES, Publishing Agent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. ENGLES, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to A. W. MITCHELL, M. D. Treasurer.

NOTICE.

The Financial Year of the Board of Publication will close on the last day of the present month. No contribution which is not in the Treasury by that day can be acknowledged in the next Annual Report.

THE PSALMODIST IN AIKIN'S CHARACTER NOTES.

The last General Assembly directed the Board of Publication to have an edition of the Psalmodist published in Aikin's character notes. The Board very soon afterwards ordered the issue of such an edition, but was met with unexpected and complicated difficulties in reference to the patent right on the use of these notes. After these were obviated, it again encountered unexpected difficulties of a mechanical kind in the preparation of the stereotype plates of the character notes.

The Publishing Agent of the Board, Mr. Joseph P. Engles, now announces that the stereotyping is completed, and that the work will very soon pass through the press. It will probably be ready for delivery within one or two weeks. He now solicits orders for the work.

We have seen a specimen-sheet of the book, and from the excellence of the paper, and neatness and distinctness of the typography, it will doubtless be in these respects one of the most attractive books of music yet published in the country.

TO SABBATH-SCHOOLS.

AN APPEAL FROM TEXAS.

We ask the attention of our readers to the following extracts from a letter just received from a pious and benevolent gentleman residing in a new and flourishing county town in Northern Texas:

"We have nothing here in the shape of religious readable matter, either for the young or the old. Infidelity, profanity, Sabbath-breaking, and all their concomitant evils are rife in every place. Why the Father above should spare such a place, when he destroyed Sodom and the other cities of the plain, is beyond the power of mortal ken. I have no idea that the people would buy your publications at first, but if a few could be distributed, perhaps afterwards something might be done. If you can forward some good books I will attend gratuitously to their distribution, hoping to be able in the future to remunerate you for a present outlay. Cannot the favoured portion of our country spare ten or twenty dollars for a needy, suffering people? Oh! here are children perishing for spiritual food. Will not some of our wealthy neighbours feed them? Would to God they could but see for a moment what I witness from day to day. If they could, I know many a Sabbath-school whose children would contribute liberally to relieve the poor children around me.

"Can you not bring this specially before your Sabbath-school readers, and ask them to contribute their pennies for our relief. Perhaps under God they may thus be the means of saving a precious, yea, many precious souls. My heart yearns over the dear children as I see them plunging headlong into vice of all sorts, and not even one friendly hand to point them to a better way. I really know several parents who take a fiendish pleasure in teaching their children to curse and swear, and cheat, and drink spirituous liquors. I heard only one day ago, a boy, seven years old, swear and tell his father he was a —— fool, but the parent only laughed at it.

"But my heart sickens to think of such things. I do hope you will try to do something for us. Yours &c., ——."

Will not some pastor or Sabbath-school superintendent bring this touching appeal before his Sabbath-school, and propose to send them in reply a set of the Board's publications for children and Sabbath-schools? Such a set, comprising about 140 volumes, could be sent for about $24. And who can estimate the amount of good which, by God's blessing, would attend such a gift to the destitute children of a growing town in that far-off part of our country? We shall wait impatiently for a response.

A HOPEFUL CONVERSION.

A colporteur in Indiana writes as follows:

"I called upon a family which I soon learned consisted of several sons and daughters grown, but who had been raised without the Bible. After some conversation with them, I sold them "Alexander on Religious Experience." Not long afterwards one of the sons was married, and calling at his house, I soon learned that he had studiously read the copy of the Religious Experience bought at his father's, and had become hopefully converted unto God. After giving such words of encouragement as I could, I left the house, full of thankfulness for this additional evidence of God's power and faithfulness."

It is delightful to see how, by the instrumentality of the press, the usefulness of God's ministering servants is perpetuated after they have passed through death into glory.

TRUE WISDOM AND SOUND POLICY.

We cannot help inserting in the Record part of a letter recently received from a young and highly esteemed pastor in reply to a circular issued to solicit aid for the Colporteur Fund. If the hundreds of young and feeble churches throughout our land could be induced to follow the excellent example of the one referred to in this letter, we verily believe that their feebleness would more rapidly be converted into strength, while the aggregate of their "mites" would afford highly important aid to the Boards of the church.

"January, 1855.

"REV. W. E. SCHENCK, Cor. Sec.

"Dear Sir—Our little church is struggling hard, very hard, to free itself from debt, and our people are not rich. I wish however, from the commencement to have them interested in all our noble Boards, and as God shall give them ability, to help support them all. So I know of no better plan than to begin at once, even with our usual fractions of contribution. I therefore in reply to your circular forward for the Colporteur Fund five dollars from the —— church. I hope it may be the smallest we shall ever give.

Very truly yours, &c.

We rarely receive a contribution which has afforded more pleasure than this one of five dollars. We hope and pray that God may bless this young pastor abundantly, and we dare to predict that with God's blessing his church will enjoy a prosperous and useful future.

A HIDDEN BIBLE AND A HIDDEN SAINT.

A colporteur of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, who is labouring in Michigan, gives the following narrative, which, while it illustrates the efficacy of the simple word of God, shows that God has his "hidden ones" in places where we would be least likely to look for them.

Jan. 1, 1855.

"Last week I returned home chilled with cold and considerably indisposed. Taking some medicine I retired to rest, but was soon awoke by a female voice asking if I was at home. The messenger stated that Mrs. R. was at the point of death, her husband was frantic with grief, and the doctor wished me to come. Muffling myself up as well as I could, I started for the cabin in the woods, where this Irish Roman Catholic family lived. I found the doctor and a kind lady there, trying to alleviate the sufferings of the dying woman. Such sufferings may it never be my lot to witness again! She was in her confinement. The house was so open that you might thrust your arm between the logs, and the cold was so intense that every drop of water that fell on the floor instantly congealed. A little boy of four years old lay rolled up in an old garment on his mother's bed, unconscious of the sufferings of his best earthly friend, while the husband, wild with inconsolable sorrow, exclaimed, 'O, Mr. G., what shall I do? My darlin' little woman must lave me! Can you save my darlin heart?' I answered, "You must bear your trouble like a man, and would to God I could say, like a Christian.' I turned to the sufferer, who, grasping my hand, drew me near her, and said, 'I am dying.' I answered, 'Can I do anything for you?' 'O no, you have done much.' I asked, 'What is your prospect? In whom do you now hope for salvation?' 'In Christ, in Christ,' was her calm reply. Her husband urged her to say after him the 'Ave Maria' or 'Hail Mary,' but she closed her eyes, and resolutely refused. After repeated failures, he ceased from his efforts to draw her away from Christ to Mary. She then requested me to see that her husband sent in a letter two small sums of money to persons whom she mentioned, which should have been paid before, adding with a smile, 'I have now nothing more on my mind. My hope is in Jesus.' In this sweet spirit of calm composure, she expired.

"But whence this confident reliance on a Saviour's merits, and rejection of all creature mediators? In the month of July last, I gave her some tracts, and lent her a copy of the Bible. This Bible she had read, and kept concealed in a bundle of rags under her bed. Some pious ladies who visited her in her sickness, had read to her from this Bible, until her husband discovered it, and forbade their reading. He said, 'That book is not my Mary's religion. I thought it had gone home to Mr. G.' She endeavoured to talk to her poor benighted husband on the subject of her present joys and future prospects, but in vain. After an ineffectual effort to do so, she closed her eyes for ever without a word of complaint. All who saw her wondered at her Christian composure and fortitude. This is surely a fulfilment of the promise of the Saviour, 'He shall take of mine, and shall show it unto you.'"

FROM A COLPORTEUR IN VERMONT.

"I have great reason to believe that the books I have circulated through the north part of Vermont have done good, and will do much more good.

"In many places where I had travelled the year before, the people were exceedingly glad to see me and the books I brought. In visiting some families they would send some distance to obtain the money to pay for them. I trust the perusal of these books will bring some to the saving knowledge of the gospel. There are comparatively few poor people in that section, but I have found some. I visited one poor woman who had followed her husband to the grave the day before. She said he had been a Universalist, but she was not. She was apparently under deep impressions, and requested me to pray with her and her family. After prayer I observed the tears trickling down their cheeks. I gave them some books and tracts in parting, and received their warmest thanks and blessing for my visit.

"In a small congregation in the town of ——, they were getting up a library for their minister. I gave him the 'Life of McCheyne.' He recommended all our books to the congregation, and particularly requested them to obtain Fisher's Catechism, in order to form a class of the more advanced members. I sold five next day, which was all I then had with me.

"Another evidence of interest in our books appeared in an account a lady gave me of a small book I had sold her the year before, called "Sick Room Devotions." After she had read it and received much comfort from it, she lent it to a poor but pious lady, who had experienced much affliction. She was about leaving those parts, and had a great desire to take the book with her. The lady who had bought it was not only pious, but benevolent and wealthy, but she feared she could not obtain another. She, however, let the sick lady have the book, being deeply impressed with these words: 'Cast thy bread upon the waters, and thou shalt find it after many days.' When I called at her house this time, the first inquiry was whether I had that book, and when she found I had, she joyfully bought it and many others, although she had the largest library I had seen in the State. May God water the seed that has been sown!"

A COLPORTEUR'S JOYS.

The experiences of our colporteurs are varied. They are not all light, nor all darkness, but a mingling of the shades. They sometimes meet heavy discouragements, yet often also much cause for rejoicing. It is our object, in such extracts from their correspondence as may from time to time be given in the Record, to afford our readers as complete and faithful a view as possible of both the successes and the discouragements of colporteur labours. The following is from a recent letter of a colporteur in one of the central counties of the State of New York.

